Syn. — Entrance, enrapture, delight; violate, deflower.

rav'ish, n. Ravishment. Obs.

rav'ish·er (-ĕr), n. [Cf. OF. ravisseor.] One who ravishes.

rav'ish·ing, adj. That ravishes. — rav'ish·ing·ly, adv.

rav'ish·ment (-mĕnt), n. [OF. ravissement. See RAVISH.] Act, means, or effect of ravishing; state of being ravished; esp., transport; rapture; ecstasy.

All the mighty ravishment of spring. Wordsworth.

rav'i·son (răv'ĭ·sŭn; -s'n), n. [Appar. fr. F. rave turnip.] An inferior quality of rapeseed.

rav'is·sant (răv'ĭ·sănt), adj. [F., ravening, ravishing, pres. part. See RAVISH, v.] 1. Ravening. Obs.

2. [Now as F. (pron. ra'vē'sän'), with fem. ra'vis'sante' (-sänt').] Ravishing; causing ecstasy.

raw (rô), adj.; RAW'ER (-ĕr); RAW'EST. [AS. hrǣw, hrēaw; akin to D. raauw, LG. rau, G. roh, OHG. rō, ON. hrár, Dan. raa, Sw. rå, Ir. crū (n.), crō, blood, L. cruor blood, crudus raw, L. crus (fleshy part of the) leg, Gr. kreas flesh, Skr. kravis raw flesh. See CRUST; cf. CRO, CRUDE.] 1. Not cooked; as, raw meat; raw fruit.

2. In, or nearly in, the natural state; little changed by art; unwrought; as, raw material; specif.: a Not distilled; as, raw water. b Not spun or twisted; as, raw silk. c Not mixed or diluted; as, raw spirits. d Not tried; not melted and strained; as, raw tallow. e Not tanned; as, raw hides. f Not made even or smooth, or of an edge of cloth, not finished to prevent fraying. g Not yet prepared by heat; as, raw sienna. h Uncultivated; — of land.

3. a Unprepared for use or enjoyment; crude; as, raw products; unfinished; unseasoned; unpracticed; untrained; as, a raw recruit.

The raw judgment of the multitude. De Quincey.

b Unrefined; uncivilized; crude; as, raw comedy. "The raw and unkindled masses of humanity." M. Arnold.

c Slang. Indelicate.

4. Specif.: a Deprived of skin; galled; as, a raw sore. b Sore, as if by being galled; hence, Slang, incensed. c Looking as if galled; rawboned.

5. Disagreeably damp or cold; chilly; bleak; as, a raw wind. "A raw and gusty day." Shak.

6. Obs. a Unripe. b New. c Undigested. d Hoarse. e Immature.

7. Photog. & Motion Pictures. Unexposed; — of film.

8. Shoe Mfg. Unprotected by metal; — of lacing eyelets in leather or fabric uppers.

Syn. — Uncooked; natural, unprocessed, unprepared; inexperienced, unskilled; inclement. See CRUDE.

Ant. — Cooked; wrought, manufactured; finished; trained, seasoned; mild, temperate.

☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are:

raw-colored	raw-handed	raw-nosed raw-devouring	raw-headed	raw-ribbed raw-edged	raw-looking	raw-striped raw-faced	raw-mouthed	raw-wool raw, n. 1. A raw, sore, or galled place; a sensitive spot; as, to touch one on the raw; — usually figuratively.

2. Someone or something raw, as an uncultivated person, an unbroken pony, the break of day, or, usually pl., raw sugar or oysters. "Poetry which puzzles the raw." Amy Lowell. — in the raw. In one's or its natural or crude state; hence, in one's or its true nature or character; in naked truth; as, to present life in the raw.

raw, v. i. & t. To become or make raw.

raw (rô). Var. of ROW. Now Dial.

raw'boned' (rô'bōnd'; 66), adj. Having little flesh; gaunt.

raw'bones' (-bōnz'), n., pl. in form but construed as sing. A rawboned person; a skeleton; figuratively [cap.], Death.

raw glaze. Ceramics. A glaze made from materials which need no preparation, but can be bought ready for use.

raw'head' (rô'hĕd'), n. A specter mentioned to frighten children. See BLOODYBONES. — raw'head'-and-bloody'bones', adj.

raw'hide' (-hīd'), n. Untanned cattle skin; specif., a whip of untanned (or raw) hide twisted, braided, or rolled.

raw'hide', adj. Made of rawhide.

raw'hide', v. t. 1. To whip or drive with or as with a rawhide. Colloq.

2. To carry, as a pack, on one's back. Dial., U. S. — raw'hid'er (-hīd'ĕr), n.

raw'ish, adj. Somewhat raw. — raw'ish·ness, n.

raw material. Material available or suitable for manufacture, development, training, etc., but still raw (sense 2).

raw oil. Specif., unboiled linseed oil.

raw rubber. See RUBBER, n., 3.

raw score. See SCORE, n., 16.

raw sienna. 1. See SIENNA.

2. A brown, red-yellow in hue, of medium saturation and medium brilliance. Cf. COLOR.

raw silk. Reeled silk (before it is thrown).

Raw'son Lake her'ring (rô's'n). A lake herring (Leucichthys artedi bisselli) of the lakes of southern Michigan.

raw umber. 1. See UMBER.

2. A brown, yellowish red-yellow in hue, of low saturation and low brilliance; — called also Cyprus earth or umber, partridge, Roman umber, Sicilian umber, Turkey umber. Cf. COLOR.

rax (răks; dial. rāks), v. i. & t. [AS. raxan.] Chiefly Scot. & N. of Eng. a To stretch, as on awakening; to stretch or pull out; to reach; strain. b Rare. To grow; to become.

rax (rāks), n. Act of raxing. Scot. & N. of Eng.

rax, n. An iron instrument on which a spit is turned. Scot.

ray (rā), v. t.; RAYED (rād); RAY'ING. [Aphetic of array. Cf. BERAY.] 1. To arrange; to form in order or array; to equip; to deal with or dispose of. Obs.

2. Now Dial. a To array or dress. b To soil; besmear; defile.

ray (rā), n. [See ARRAY.] Obs. a Array; order; arrangement; also, a line or rank, as of soldiers. b Dress; raiment.

ray (rā), n. [OF. raie, fr. L. raia.] Zool. Any of numerous elasmobranch fishes of the order Batoidei which have the body more or less flattened dorsoventrally, with the mouth and gill clefts on the lower and the eyes on the upper surface. In typical forms the flattening is excessive, the pectoral fins are enormously developed and extend forward along the sides of the body and head, the pelvic fins are of moderate size, the anal fin is lacking, and the caudal region is much reduced, often slender and whiplike. They are modified for life on or near the sea bottom and for feeding on mollusks, crustaceans, etc., rather than on other fishes, and hence usually have blunt, flattened, sometimes pavementlike, teeth, and a pair of large spiracles on the top of the head through which they can draw in water for breathing without opening the mouth. Some forms, as skates, lay eggs (see SEA PURSE), but the others are viviparous. Among the rays are included some less flattened forms (the sawfishes and guitarfishes) which connect them with the sharks. See SKATE, TORPEDO, STING RAY.

ray (rā), n. [OF. rai (F. rai, rais), fr. L. radius a beam or ray, staff, rod, spoke of a wheel; prob. akin to L. radix root. See WORT; cf. RADIANT, RADIUS.] 1. One of the lines of light which appear to radiate from a bright object.

2. A glance; sight; perception; vision; — from an old theory of vision. See VISION.

3. a Light of a ray or rays; radiance; as, the ray of the moon. b Moral or intellectual light or a gleam of such light. "Bright reason's ray." Shelley.

4. A small or unsubstantial amount; a particle; as, there is not a ray of courage in him.

5. A thin line like a ray; esp., one of a number of lines or parts diverging from a common point or center, like the radii of a circle; as, a star of six rays.

6. A representation of, or a thing representing, a ray (sense 1, above).

7. Astron. Any of the fine, bright, whitish lines seen on the moon near full, and appearing to radiate from certain lunar craters.

8. Bot. a A ray flower. b A branch or flower stalk of an umbel. c A medullary ray.

9. Geom. One of a system of lines passing through a point and regarded as extending indefinitely in both directions; a half line; an element of a plane.

10. Physics. a A beam of light or, in general, of radiant energy, of small cross section. A beam of light of finite cross section is often considered as being made up of a bundle of rays of infinitesimal cross section. b The geometrical line, normal to the wave front, in which light, heat, or the like, is propagated. c A stream of material particles traveling in the same line, as in radioactive phenomena. d Any definite or limited portion of the total radiation; as, the red ray.

11. Zool. a One of the nearly parallel or somewhat divergent bony or cartilaginous or horny rods which extend and support the membrane in the fin of a fish. In ordinary fishes they are slender bony rods supported at their bases by parts of the internal skeleton, and usually transversely segmented into many short segments near their outer end, which is often also longitudinally cleft, so that the ray is soft and flexible. In many fishes some rays are stiff and unsegmented, and are called spines, the term ray being sometimes restricted to segmented rays. b One of the radiating divisions of the body of a radiate animal, as an arm of a starfish. c One of the longitudinal veins of an insect's wing.

Syn. — See BEAM.

☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are:

ray-fringed	ray-girt	ray-lit
ray-gilt	ray-illumined	ray-strewn

ray, v. [From RAY of light.] Intransitive: 1. To shine, or shine out, as with rays; to emit rays; also, to issue as rays.

2. To issue or extend like the radii of a circle; to radiate.

The little town rayed out into leafy lanes. Anne D. Sedgwick.

——, Transitive: 1. To send forth or emit in rays.

Eyes that ray out intelligence. Carlyle.

2. To furnish or mark with rays, radiating lines, or stripes. Cf. 4th RAY.

3. To irradiate, as one's face or darkness.

4. To expose to rays, as X rays, radiations from radium, or ultra-violet light.

Ray (rā), n. Masculine proper name; — originally diminutive of RAYMOND.

ray (rā), n. [OF. raie for reie, also roie, furrow, streak, line (F. raie), prob. fr. L. rigare to lead or conduct water to a place, to wet. See IRRIGATE.] A kind of striped cloth. Hist.

ray, n. [Prob. fr. F. raie stripe. See RAY a kind of cloth.] A stripe; a streak. Obs.

ray, n. [MD. rey.] A dance, probably a round dance. Obs.

ray (rā), n. A piece of gold leaf. Obs.

ray, n. [ME. See RYE GRASS.] a Obs. = DARNEL a. b = RYE GRASS a.

ray (rā). Dial. Eng. var. of REE, v.

ray. Scot. & dial. Eng. var. of RYE. ray (rā). Music. Var. of RE.

ra'ya (rä'yä), n. [NL., fr. Nepali rai, rai sūga.] An East Indian broadbill (Psarisomus dalhousiae).

ray'age (rā'ĭj), n. [ray + -age.] Med. The dosage of any form of radiant energy used in the treatment of disease, as X rays.

rayed (rād), adj. Having rays.

rayed (-rād). A combining form of 1st rayed, as in spine-rayed.

rayed (rād), adj. [OF. raier, v. See RAY a cloth.] Striped. Obs. exc. Hist.

ray filter. Photog. A color filter or screen.

ray floret. Bot. A ray flower.

ray flower. Bot. a One of the marginal flowers of the head in many plants of the Carduaceae, as the aster, goldenrod, daisy, and sunflower. It has an elongated, strap-shaped corolla, while the corollas of the disk flowers are tubular. b One of the similar flowers developed on all plants of the chicory family (Cichoriaceae), which have no disk flowers. c Loosely, one of the usually larger flowers at the margin of the umbel in certain plants of the carrot family.

Ray Flower.

ray fungus. Any fungus of the genus Actinomyces, esp. one parasitic on man and animals.

ray grass. = RYE GRASS a.

Ray'leigh e·qua'tion (rā'lĭ). Psychol. In a test for anomalous color vision, an equation expressing the proportions in which red and green must be mixed to appear to match a given yellow.

ray'less (rā'lĕs; -lĭs; 119), adj. Destitute of rays; hence: a Dark; blind. b Having no rays or raylike parts. c Emitting no rays; as, a rayless sun. d Admitting no rays.

In rayless caverns dim. Sir Lewis Morris rayless camomile. = WILD MARIGOLD b.

rayless change. Physics. A radioactive transformation which is not accompanied by the emission of alpha or beta rays.

rayless goldenrod. Any of several plants of the genus Chrysothamnus; also, any plant of the related genus Isocoma, some of which, esp. I. heterophylla and I. fruticosa, produce the trembles in cattle.

rayless marigold. A common North American beggar-ticks (Bidens frondosa) with small ray flowers or with rudimentary ones.

Ray'mond, Ray'mund (rā'mŭnd), n. [F. Raymond, Raimond, OF. Raimont, of G. origin; cf. OG. Raimund, Ragimund, Reginmunt; also Goth. ragin judgment, and OHG. munt hand, protection.] Lit., wise protection; — masc. proper name. F. Raymond (rĕ'mōn'); It. Raimondo (rī-mōn'dō); Sp. & Pg. Raimundo (Sp. rī·mōōn'dō; Pg. -dōō); G. Raimund (rī'mōōnt).

Ray'naud's' dis·ease' (rĕ'nōz'). [After A. G. M. Raynaud (1834–81), French physician.] Med. A disease of the vasomotor system in which parts of the body, esp. the fingers and toes, become pale, cold, painful, and, in some cases, gangrenous.

ray'on (rā'ŏn; F. rĕ'yōn'), n. [F.] 1. A ray; beam. Rare.

2. A radius; as, the rayon of a fort's fire.

3. A postal district. Switzerland.

ray'on, n. [Arbitrarily formed in English (not fr. F. rayon ray), with suggestion of E. ray beam, light.] A glossy fiber made by forcing a viscous solution of modified cellulose through minute holes and drying the filaments in air or chemicals; also, a fabric woven from this material. — ray'on, adj.

ray'on·nance (rā'ŏ·nănns), n. [F. rayonnant radiant.] Radiance. Rare.

ray'on·nant (rā'ŏ·nănt; F. rĕ'yō'nänk'), adj. [F.] 1. Her. Darting forth rays, as the sun when it shines out.

2. [cap.] Arch. Characterized by radiating lines, as in window tracery; — applied to the French Gothic style of the 14th century. See ARCHITECTURE, Chart.

ray pod. A starfruit.

Ray's wood'si·a (rāz). The rusty woodsia.

ray therapy. Radiotherapy.

raze (rāz), v. t.; RAZED (rāzd); RAZ'ING (rāz'ĭng). Also rase. [F. raser to scrape, to shave. See 1st RASE.] 1. To cut; to scratch. Obs.

2. To scrape; graze; wound slightly; also, to shave.

3. To scrape, cut, or shave, off; to erase; to efface; to obliterate.

Razing the characters of your renown. Shak.

4. To subvert completely; to lay level with the ground; to overthrow; to destroy; to remove utterly.

The royal hand that razed unhappy Troy. Dryden.

Syn. — Demolish, prostrate, ruin. See DESTROY.

— raz'er (rāz'ĕr), n.

raze, n. Act or result of razing; cut; scrape.

ra·zee' (rä·zē'), n. [F. vaisseau rasé, fr. raser to raze, to cut down ships. See RAZE, v. t., 1st RASE, v.] 1. Naut. A ship having her upper deck cut away, and thus reduced to the next inferior rate or to an intermediate class, as a seventy-four cut down to a frigate. Obs. exc. Hist.

2. A razeed chest, book, or the like.

ra·zee', v. t.; RA·ZEED' (-zēd'); RA·ZEE'ING. To cut down to a less number of decks, as a ship; hence, to prune or abridge by cutting off or retrenching parts; as, to razee a book.

‖ra·zón' so·cial' (rä·thōn' sō·thyäl'; 103; 267). [Sp.] Sp. & Sp. Amer. Law. A firm or partnership name; firma social.

ra·zoo' (rä·zōō'), n. [From RASPBERRY, 4, with influence of razzle-dazzle, and racket. Cf. RAZZ, 3d RACKET.] Slang, U. S. a A razzing. b A racket; racketing.

ra'zor (rā'zĕr), n. [ME. rasor, fr. OF. rasor, fr. raser. See RAZE, v. t., 1st RASE, v.] 1. A keen-edged cutting instrument used in shaving off one's hair. Cf. SAFETY RAZOR.

1 Ordinary Razor; 2 Safety Razor.

2. A tusk of a wild boar.

3. A razor clam.

☞ COMBINATIONS are:

razor-bladed	razormaker	razor-sharpening, adj.
razor-bowed	razormaking	razorstrop razor-edged	razorman	razor-tongued razor-keen	razor-shaped	razor-weaponed razor-leaved	razor-sharp	razor-witted ra'zor, v. t. To shave or cut with or as with a razor.

ra'zor-back' (rā'zĕr·băk'), n. 1. A rorqual.

2. A thin-bodied, long-legged, half-wild hog, the descendant of better breeds. Chiefly Southeastern U. S.

3. A sharp, narrow back or ridge, as of a range of hills.

4. One of the men who load and unload the cars of a traveling circus; a roustabout. Circus Argot, U. S.

ra'zor-back', adj. Razor-backed.

ra'zor-backed' (-băkt'), adj. Having a sharp, narrow back; of the class of razorbacks; as, a razor-backed hog.

razor-backed buffalo fish. The smallmouthed buffalo fish. See BUFFALO FISH.

razor-backed sucker. The humpbacked sucker.

razorback hog. = RAZORBACK, n., 2.

razorback terrace. A small, razor-backed terrace for the prevention of soil erosion by runoff water.

ra'zor·bill' (rā'zĕr·bĭl'), n. a The razor-billed auk. b A skimmer (bird).

ra'zor-billed' (-bĭld'), adj. Having a razor-shaped bill.

razor-billed auk. An auk (Alca torda) of the American and European coasts and islands of the northern North Atlantic. It is about 16 inches long, black above and white below. The compressed sharp-edged bill is black crossed by a white band.

razor-billed curassow. Any of several South American curassows of the genus Mitu having a short, laterally compressed bill with a knob or swelling on the culmen.

---

raw'shed·ly (rô'shĕd·lĭ), adv. of rawished, past part. raw'isht. Rawished. Ref. Sp. ravison oil. See OIL, Table I. raw'yle. Dial. var. of RAVEL. raw'bone', adj. Rawboned. Obs.
— n. Rawbones. Obs.
Raw'don Craw'ley (rô'd'n krô'lĭ). See CRAWLEY. rawed, adj. Rayed; striped. Obs. raw'ing (rô'ĭn), rawn (rôn). Dial. Eng. vars. of ROWEN. rawk. Var. of ROKE, vapor. rawk'y. Var. of ROKY. Obs. exc. Dial. raw'ly, adv. of RAW. [exc. Scot.] rawn. Var. of RAUN, roe. Obs. raw'ness, n. See -NESS.
‖raw'nie (rô'nĭ), n. Var. of RANI. Gypsy. raw'port'. Var. of ROWPORT. ra'yah (rä'yȧ). Var. of RAIA. ray'at, ray'at-wa'ra, ray'at-wa'ri. Vars. of RYOT, RYOTWARI. ray'ful, adj. See -FUL. ray'less-ness, n. See -NESS. ray'let, n. See -LET.
rayne. ✝ RAIN, RAINY, RANE, REIGN, REIN.
Raynold. ✝ REYNARD.
Razboosh. ✝ RAJPUT.
raze. ✝ RAISE; RACE, a root.
Ra'zis (rā'zĭs). Bib. ra'zor-a·ble, adj. See -ABLE.
razor blade. a The blade of a razor. b A razor clam.

razor clam. Any marine bivalve mollusk of Solen, or a closely allied genus, of the family Solenidae (esp. Ensis directus), having a long, narrow, curved, thin shell.

Shell of Razor Clam (Solen ensis). (½) ra'zor-edge' (rā'zĕr-ĕj'), n. An edge (in any sense) comparable to a razor's edge in fineness, sharpness, hazardous possibilities, etc.; as, an appetite whetted to a razoredge.

razor fish. a Any labroid fish of the genus Xyrichthys, esp. X. psittacus, marked with bright red and blue, found in the Mediterranean, West Indies, etc. b The chopa blanca. c A razor clam.

razor grass. A West Indian climbing sedge (Scleria scindens) with very rough triangular stems and leaves.

ra'zor-grind'er, n. The European goatsucker. Local, Eng.

razor saw. A narrow saw used in excavating limestone.

razor shell. A razor clam; also, its shell.

razor stone. Novaculite.

razor temper. See TEMPER, n., 7.

razz (răz), n. [From RASPBERRY, 4.] = RASPBERRY, n., 4. Slang. — v. t. & i. To chaff; banter; tease; ridicule. Slang, U. S.

raz'zi-a (răz'ĭ-ȧ), n. [F. (influenced by Algerian pron. of Ar. gh, and by F. ravir, ravager; cf. RAVAGE), fr. Algerian colloq. Ar. ghazyah, fr. Ar. ghazwah, ghazāh, raid, expedition; cf. Ir. razzia.] A plundering and destructive incursion; a foray; a raid.

raz'zle-daz'zle (răz'l-dăz'l), v. i. & i. To confuse; dazzle; to get in a razzle-dazzle. Slang.

raz'zle-daz'zle, n. 1. A state of confusion, hilarity, or bewilderment; specif., a spree. Slang. 2. Something that razzle-dazzles; specif., a kind of swiftly revolving, undulating carrousel without seats. 3. A noisemaker which, when whirled, operates a ratchet-like mechanism at the end of a stick. 4. A variety of cinch, in which the highest bidder calls on the holder of a named card as his partner.

raz'zly (răz'lĭ), adj. [Imitative.] Rasping; — of sound. Rare.

re (rā; rē), n. [It., fr. L. resonare to resound.] Music. a A syllable applied in solmization to the second tone of the diatonic scale. See SOL-FA SYLLABLES. b The tone D (as second in the C scale); — so called esp. in the French and Italian systems.

re (rē), n. [Abl. of L. res thing.] In or of the thing or matter; in the matter (of); — commonly used prepositionally for in re in business correspondence and in law; as, re your letter of the 3d instant.

re-. [F. or L.; F. re-, ré-, fr. L. re-, red-.] A prefix denoting: 1. Back, esp. back to an original or former state or position; backwards; — chiefly in words derived from Latin compounds, as in recline, retrace, recede, refuge, recall; also, back from advancing, as in refrain, reserve, residue. 2. Again; — used chiefly to form words, esp. verbs, of action, denoting in general repetition (of the action of the verb), or restoration (to a previous state), as in rejoin, to join again, reiterate, to iterate again, renew, to make new again, restitution, reseat, regild, recase, etc.

☞ In certain cases where the second element, chiefly in words taken into English as compounds, as from Latin or French, has the form of, or is, an independent English word and there is an obscuration of the prefix in sense and pronunciation (as in recover, to get back; recoil, to spring back; reform, to amend, correct), independent compounds, or doublets, distinguished by being hyphenated, have been formed by addition of re- to English words (as in re-cover, to cover again; re-coil, to coil again; re-form, to form again). The prefix is sometimes doubled, as in re-recover. See § 63.

3. = UN-; DIS-; as in reveal. Rare.

Re (rā), n. Egypt. Relig. = RA.

're (71). Colloquial contraction of are.

re-al' (rā-ăl'), n. [D.] The equivalent of the Spanish real in the Low Countries. Cf. GOUDEN REAAL.

re-al' (rā-ăl'), n. [D., a real.] See WEIGHT, Table.

re-ac'cess (rē-ăk'sĕs), n. A second access; return.

reach (rēch), v.; REACHED (rēcht) (RAUGHT, the old preterit, is obsolete); REACH'ING. [ME. rechen, fr. AS. rǣcan; akin to D. reiken, G. reichen.] Transitive: 1. To extend; to stretch out; to thrust out; to put forth, as a limb.

Reach hither thy hand and thrust it into my side. John xx. 27.

2. To stretch, or retch, as leather. Obs. exc. Dial. Eng. 3. To strike, hit, or touch, with a missile; as, to reach an object with an arrow, a bullet, or a shell. 4. To deliver by stretching out the hand; to pass to another; to hand over; as, to reach one a blow.

He reached me a full cup. 2 Eccl. xiv. 39.

5. To touch, strike, grasp, seize, or the like, by extending some part of the body, esp. the hand, or something held by one; as, fruit too high for me to reach it; they could not reach the bullet with the probe; hence, Obs., to obtain or attain by or as if by stretching out the hand; to seize.

Wilt thou reach stars, because they shine on thee? Shak.

6. To extend to; to stretch out as far as; to touch by virtue of extent; as, his land reaches the river. 7. To arrive at; to come to; to get as far as.

Before this letter reaches your hands. Pope.

8. To extend an action, effort, or influence to; to penetrate to; to influence or impress; as, men are better reached by kindness than by force.

The joy can scarcely reach the heart. Burns.

9. To arrive at by effort, or development, of any kind; to attain to; to gain; to be advanced to; as, Milton's verse reached sublimity; to reach an understanding. 10. To understand; to comprehend. Now Rare.

Do what, sir? I reach you not. Beau. & Fl.

—, Intransitive: 1. To stretch out the hand or arm; to make a reach, as with the hand, arm, or foot, esp. so as to grasp, touch, strike, or the like; as, I could not reach to him.

Goddess humane, reach, then, and freely taste! Milton.

2. To stretch; to become stretched. Obs. exc. Dial. Eng. 3. To extend in dimension, time, amount, action, influence, etc.; as, the results reached into the next century.

And behold, a ladder set upon the earth, and the top of it reached to heaven. Gen. xxviii. 12.

4. To get or make its way (to a place, point, or the like); as, the excitement reached to Washington; also, of a gun, the voice, the eye, or the like, to carry; as, the foghorn reached to a great distance; as far as the eye can reach. 5. To strain after something; to make efforts.

Reaching above our nature does no good. Dryden.

6. Obs. a To go; to proceed. b To attain; — usually with to. c To suffice. 7. Naut. To sail directly on one's course with the wind forward of the beam, usually with sheets eased off.

Syn. — Stretch; possess; achieve, attain.

reach, n. 1. Act of reaching, or stretching out, esp. as if to grasp or touch something; as, he made a long reach for it. 2. That which reaches; as: a An extent; stretch; expanse; as, reaches of meadow; the reach of history.

The next reach of my subject. Martineau.

b An extended portion of water or land; a straight portion of a stream or river; a level stretch, as between locks in a canal; an arm of the sea extending up into the land; a promontory or tongue of land.

The coast . . . is very full of creeks and reaches. Holland.

c A distance or part of limited extent; as, a reach between rollers; the upper reaches of a stairway. 3. Power of stretching out a limb so as to seize, strike, or touch something; hence, power of seizing, obtaining, touching, or affecting something; esp., extent of such power; as, the fruit is beyond my reach; within reach of the guns; beyond the reach of his eye.

Out of the reach of danger, he has been bold. Johnson.

4. Power of stretching out or extending action, development, influence, or the like; power of attainment or accomplishment; extent or range of force, capacity, or the like; as, it is beyond the reach of my imagination.

Be sure yourself and your own reach to know. Pope.

5. A bearing shaft or a coupling pole; esp., the pole or rod joining the hind axle to the forward bolster of a wagon. 6. = RACE, a stripe on a horse's face. 7. A striving after something; an effort; plan; scheme. Obs. 8. Mech. The sum of the hoist and the minimum distance between the hooks of a pulley tackle. 9. Naut. A leg or board sailed by a vessel between tacks; also, a course of sailing with the wind forward of the beam but not enough so to compel tacking. A reach is close when the vessel has to sail close to the wind; broad when the wind is almost abeam.

— within reach. That may be reached without effort or exertion because at hand, near by, within one's means or powers, etc.; as, the market is within reach; pleasures within reach of the poor.

reach (dial. rēch, rĕch), v. i. & t. [See RETCH.] To spit; hawk; also, to retch; vomit. Obs. exc. Dial.

reach'er (rēch'ĕr), n. 1. One who or that which reaches. 2. Textile Mfg. A workman who carries thread from warp to hook; — called also reach'er-in'. 3. An exaggeration; a preposterous statement. Obs.

reach'ing, verbal n. The action or an instance of grasping or seeking to grasp something; reach; specif., a striving; effort; often, a futile endeavor or aspiration.

Incomplete, abstracted reachings for the meaning of things. Walter Lippmann.

reach'ing, adj. That reaches; specif., penetrating; profound; — esp. of a mind, thought, or the like.

An octopus with cold slimy eyes and a hundred writhing reaching tentacles. Edna Ferber.

reaching post. The post at the lower end of a ropewalk.

reach'less, adj. 1. That is not within reach; specif., lofty. 2. Without a reach. See REACH, n., 5.

reach'-me-down', adj. Slang. a Ready-made; hand-me-down; hence, cheap. b Secondhand; passed along.

But now David was beginning to see that he could no longer take reach-me-down judgments. E. F. Benson.

— n. Usually pl. Ready-made or secondhand things, as clothing, ideas, etc.

reach rod. Mach. A rod with a double eye at each end, for communicating the motion of the reversing lever of a link motion to the lifting shaft.

reach'y (rēch'ĭ), adj. [reach + 3d -y.] Far-reaching; specif., of various animals, characterized by a long neck and by the wide separation of the forefeet from the hind feet.

re'ac-quire' (rē'ăk-kwīr'), v. t. To acquire again; esp., to regain possession or knowledge of; to learn again.

re-act' (rē-ăkt'), v. t. To act or perform a second time.

In his imagination he re-acted the scene. Aldous Huxley.

re-act' (rē-ăkt'), v. Intransitive: 1. To act (on or upon) in turn or in return; to exert a return, reciprocal, or counteracting influence; as, every body reacts upon the body that moves it; the home and the school react on each other.

The proof that a philosopher does not know what he is talking about is apt to sadden his followers before it reacts on himself. Henry Adams.

2. To act in response, as to a stimulus, influence, or a reagent; to respond by showing an effect or change, usually that desired; to answer; — often with to; as, to react to a treatment; plants that react favorably to transplantation.

My soul could not react . . . in song. Edgar Lee Masters.

3. To manifest resistance; to exert opposing force or influence; — with against. Rare. 4. To show a reaction, or reverse trend; to turn back to a prior condition, an earlier belief, a lower price, or the like; as, public sentiment soon reacted in his favor; stocks reacted markedly today. 5. Loosely, to act, behave, operate, function, etc., esp. under particular circumstances. "How . . . he would have acted — or you, I believe, would say reacted." F. M. Ford. 6. Chem. To undergo reaction. Cf. REACTION, 6.

—, Transitive: To cause to react; specif., Chem., to bring about a reaction in.

re-act'ance (rē-ăk'tăns), n. [react + -ance.] 1. Acoustics. That part of the impedance which is due to the effective mass of the medium. See IMPEDANCE, 2. 2. Elec. That part of the impedance of an alternating-current circuit which is due to capacitance or inductance or both. It is expressed in ohms. Capacitive reactance is due to the presence of capacitance in the circuit; it equals $\frac{1}{2\pi fC}$, where f is frequency in cycles per second and C is capacitance in farads. Inductive reactance is due to the inductance in the circuit. It equals $2\pi fL$, where f is the frequency in cycles per second and L is the inductance in henrys. Capacitance causes the current to lead the voltage in a circuit, and inductance causes the current to lag behind the voltage. Hence, the total reactive effect of inductance and capacitance in the same circuit is their algebraic sums and equals $2\pi fL - \frac{1}{2\pi fC}$. The current leads the voltage if the capacitive reactance is greater than the inductive reactance; if the inductive reactance is larger than the capacitive reactance the current lags behind the voltage. The tangent of the angular phase difference between the current and the voltage in a circuit containing resistance, capacitance, and inductance, equals $\frac{2\pi fL - \frac{1}{2\pi fC}}{R}$, where R is the resistance of the circuit in ohms. The impedance of the circuit equals $\sqrt{R^2 + \left(2\pi fL - \frac{1}{2\pi fC}\right)^2}$. Cf. IMPEDANCE, ANGULAR PHASE DIFFERENCE.

reactance coil. Elec. = REACTOR.

reactance drop. Elec. The voltage drop in a circuit due to the current traversing the reactance. It is 90 degrees out of phase with the current. Called also the quadrature component. Cf. RESISTANCE DROP, IMPEDANCE DROP.

re-act'ant (rē-ăk'tănt), n. [react + -ant, b.] One who or that which reacts; specif., Chem., a reacting substance; an initial factor in a reaction.

re-ac'tion (rē-ăk'shŭn), n. [Cf. F. réaction.] 1. Reciprocal or return action or influence; as, when one commits an injustice there is a reaction upon himself. 2. A counter tendency; movement in a contrary direction; as, a reaction from pessimism; esp., in politics, a movement or tendency towards a former political or social condition, policy, or form of government. 3. Action or mental attitude evoked by an external influence; retaliatory or responsive effect of stimulation; response; as, one's reaction to a piece of news. 4. Loosely, impression; influence; as, the reaction of the rumors on public opinion. 5. Bacteriol. & Immunol. The specific effect or effects, as hemolysis, local inflammation, or a rise in bodily temperature, characteristically evoked in cells or tissues by a foreign substance, as in tests for infection; as, the tuberculin reaction; the precipitin reaction; an allergic reaction, etc. Cf. WASSERMANN REACTION. 6. Chem. Chemical transformation or change; a chemical process, specif. one brought about by the use of a particular reagent; as, the reaction of zinc solutions toward or with ammonia. Also, the manner or result of such a process; as, an alkaline reaction; the violet flame reaction of potassium salts. Chemical reactions are classed as: endothermic and exothermic, according as heat is absorbed or given out by the reacting substances; as first-order or monomolecular, second-order or bimolecular, and third-order or trimolecular, according as one, two, or three molecules take part as reactants; and as reversible and nonreversible (complete). See SUBSTITUTION, ISOMERIC. 7. Mech. The force which a body subjected to the action of a force from another body exerts upon the latter body in the opposite direction. Reaction is utilized in various prime movers, as in the so-called reaction engine or machine (cf. AEOLIPILE, 1), reaction wheel (cf. TURBINE), etc.

Reaction is always equal and opposite to action, that is to say, the actions of two bodies upon each other are always equal and in opposite directions. Sir I. Newton (3d Law of Motion).

8. Med. a An action induced by vital resistance to some other action; as, inflammatory reaction to bacterial infection. b Depression or exhaustion of vital force consequent on overexertion or overstimulation. c Heightened activity and overaction succeeding depression or shock. 9. Physiol. & Psychol. Activity aroused in an organism by a stimulus; a response. The term is sometimes limited to the motor, glandular, or other effect or outcome of the activity, and sometimes covers the total sensorimotor process with whatever intellectual and emotional elements it may contain. Cf. REACTION TIME. 10. Radio. Regeneration. Brit.

re-ac'tion, adj. Of or pertaining to reactions.

re-ac'tion-al (rē-ăk'shŭn-ăl; -l), adj. Manifesting or marked by reaction; also, concerned with reactions. "The reactional biographies of individuals." J. H. Randall.

— re-ac'tion-al-ly, adv.

re-ac'tion-a-rism (-ȧ-rĭz'm), n. Reactionism. — re-ac'tion-a-rist (-rĭst), n.

re-ac'tion-ar'y (rē-ăk'shŭn-ĕr'ĭ or, esp. Brit., -ēr-ĭ), adj. Of, pertaining to, characterized by, or favoring, reaction or return to the older order; as, reactionary movements, influences, or legislators. — re-ac'tion-ar'i-ness (-ĭ-nĕs; -nĭs; 119), n.

re-ac'tion-ar'y, n.; pl. -ARIES (-ĭz). One who favors reaction, esp., one who seeks to undo political progress.

re-ac'tion-ar'y-ism (-ĭz'm), n. Reactionism.

reaction border. A reaction rim.

reaction formation. Psychoanalysis. Conscious activity diametrically opposite to an unconscious tendency.

re-ac'tion-ism (rē-ăk'shŭn-ĭz'm), n. Hostility toward, or attempt to undo, political progress.

re-ac'tion-ist, n. A reactionary. — adj. Reactionary reaction locus. See INTERSECTION LOCUS.

reaction of degeneration. Med. The reaction to electric stimulation occurring in muscles the nerves of which have undergone degeneration, and consisting of increased though sluggish response to galvanic stimulation of the muscle, with failure of response to faradic stimulation of the muscle and to either galvanic or faradic stimulation of the nerve.

re-ac'tion-proof' (66), adj. See -PROOF.

reaction rim. Petrog. A zone of one or more species of mineral surrounding a larger crystal of another kind. This ring represents reaction between a solidified mineral and the surrounding liquid magma. Cf. RESORPTION BORDERS.

reaction ring. Mining. A heavy internal cast-iron flange set in cement and used to resist the thrust of the jacks when sinking a shaft by a process in which a continuous casing is forced downward as the excavation progresses.

reaction time. Psychol. & Physiol. The time elapsing between the beginning of the application of a stimulus and the beginning of the organism's reaction to it. In experiments with higher animals, esp. with human beings, reaction time consists of three periods; first, a period of excitation of the sense organ and transmission of the stimulation to the nerve center; second, a period of activity in the center the central, or reduced, reaction time; and third, the period of the transmission of the efferent impulse and of the peripheral (ordinarily motor) reaction.

---

ra'zor-less, adj. See -LESS.

Raz'ou-mof'sky-a (răz'ōō-mŏf'skĭ-ȧ), n. [NL., after Count Aleksyey Kirilevich Razumovski (1748–1822), Russ. statesman.] Syn. of ARCEUTHOBIUM.

razour. † RIZZAR. [SURE.]

ra'sure (rā'zhĕr). Var. of RAre'a (rē'ȧ). = TURMERIC, 1. Pacific Islands.

re'a (rē'ȧ). Rhea. Ref. Sp.

re'a-ban'don, v. t. See RE-, 2.

re-a'ble, v. t. [re- + -able.] To confirm; to legitimate. Obs. Scot.

re'a-bol'ish, v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'ab-o-li'tion, n.

re'a-bridge', v. t., re-ab'sence, n., re-ab'sent, v. i., re'ab-solve', v. t., re'ab-sorb', v. t., re'ab-sorp'tion, n., re'a-buse', v. t., re'ac-cend', v. t. (Obs.), re'ac-cept', v. t., re'ac-cept'ance, n., re'ac-ces'sion, n. See RE-, 2. — re'ac-cli'ma-ti-za'tion, n. re'ac-cli'ma-tize, v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'ac-cli'ma-ti-za'tion, n. re'ac-com'mo-date, v. t., re'ac-com'pa-ny, v. t., re'ac-com'plish, v. t., re'ac-com'plishment, n., re'ac-cord', n., re'ac-cost', v. t., re'ac-count', v. t., re'ac-cred'it, v. t., re'ac-cru', v. i., re'ac-cu'mu-late, v. i., re'ac-cu'mu-la'tion, n., re'ac-cu-sa'tion, n., re'ac-cuse', v. t., re'ac-cus'tom, v. t. See RE-, 2. re'a-cet'y-la'tion, n. See RE-, 2. reach'a-ble, adj. See -ABLE. re'a-chieve', v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'a-chieve'ment, n. — re'a-cid'i-fi-ca'tion, n. re'ac-know'edge, v. t., re'ac-know'edg-ment, n., re'ac-quaint', v. t., re'ac-quaint'ance, n., re'ac-qui-si'tion, n. See RE-, 2. re'ac-quite', v. t. To requite. Obs. re-act'ing weight. Chem. = EQUIVALENT, n., 3 a.

‖ Foreign Word. † Obsolete Variant of. + combined with. = equals. Abbreviations, Signs, etc., are explained on pages immediately preceding the Vocabulary.

In the simple reaction time the central time is made as short as possible by calling for a simple prearranged response to a defined stimulus, while in complex, or compound, reaction times the central process is made longer by the requirement of discrimination between stimuli or choice of response. The simple reaction times are from 0.1 to 0.2 sec.; the compound are from 0.2 to 0.3 sec. The associative reaction time, or association time, is longer still. It is the time required for the subject to speak a word suggested to him by a stimulus, and it ranges from a third of a second to several seconds, being usually about one second. Cf. ASSOCIATION TEST.

re·ac'ti·vate (rē·ăk'tĭ·vāt), v. t. To restore to a state of activity; specif.: a Bacteriol. To restore complement to (an inactivated serum) by addition of fresh normal serum. b Med. To cause to become active again; as, a disease, formerly quiescent, can be reactivated by overwork, chilling, etc. c Physical Chem. To render a catalyst or an adsorbing medium (as charcoal) active again by suitable treatment. d Radio. To restore ability of (an electron tube) to emit electrons copiously from the cathode. — re'·ac·ti·va'tion (rē'ăk·tĭ·vā'shŭn), n.

re·ac'tive (rē·ăk'tĭv), adj. [Cf. F. réactif.] 1. That reacts, tends to react, or results from reaction; pertaining to, or characterized by, reaction.

2. Elec. Possessing reactance.

— re·ac'tive·ly, adv. — re·ac'tive·ness, n.

re·ac'tive, n. Chem. A reagent. Rare.

reactive coil. Elec. = REACTOR.

reactive component. Elec. a The component of an alternating current that has a phase angle of 90° with the electromotive force. b The component of the voltage across the circuit that is in quadrature with the current. The reactive component produces no power in an alternating-current circuit.

reactive current. Elec. That component of the current in an alternating circuit at right angles to the electromotive force; — called also wattless, or idle, current, because during a complete period it does no work. Opposed to watt, or active, current.

reactive drop. Elec. = REACTANCE DROP.

reactive electromotive force or pressure. Elec. That component of the impressed electromotive force in an alternating circuit at right angles to, or differing in phase 90° from, the current.

reactive factor. Elec. The ratio of the reactive current or voltage to the total current or voltage; it is the sine of the angular phase difference between the voltage and current. Cf. ANGULAR PHASE DIFFERENCE.

reactive load. Elec. A load carried by an alternating current generating station or system in which the current and voltage are out of phase. It is measured in kilovolt amperes.

reactive volt–amperes. Elec. The product of the volts, amperes, and reactive factor of an alternating-current circuit. It is that part of the volt-amperes that does no work. Called also wattless power.

re'ac·tiv'i·ty (rē'ăk·tĭv'ĭ·tĭ), n. State or condition of being reactive; power or tendency to react.

re'ac·tol'o·gy (-tŏl'ŏ·jĭ), n. [reaction + -ology.] The science of reactions, esp. of human beings; — proposed as a substitute for psychology. — re·ac'to·log'i·cal (rē·ăk'·tō·lŏj'ĭ·kăl), adj.

re·ac'tor (rē·ăk'tĕr), n. 1. One that reacts; a reagent.

2. Elec. A coil, winding, or conductor of small resistance and large inductance, used in an alternating-current circuit to impede or throttle the current, or to change its phase.

3. Immunol. & Veter. An animal or patient reacting positively to a foreign substance, esp. in a test for disease; as, tuberculous cattle are reactors to tuberculin.

re·ac'tu·al·ize (rē·ăk'tū·ăl·īz), v. t. To make actual again. — re'ac·tu·al·i·za'tion (rē'ăk·tū·ăl·ĭ·zā'shŭn; -ĭ·zā'-), n.

re·ac'tu·ate (-tū·āt), v. t. To make real or actual again.

read (rēd), n. [AS. rēada.] The stomach; now, only the fourth stomach or abomasum of a ruminant.

read (rĕd), v.; past tense & past part. READ (rĕd); pres. part. & verbal n. READ'ING (rēd'ĭng). [ME. reden, ræden, fr. AS. rēdan to read, advise, counsel, guess; akin to D. raden to advise, G. raten, ON. rātha, Goth. rēdan (in comp.), and to OSlav. raditi to take thought for, Skr. rādhnoti, rādhyati, succeeds, makes fit, prepares. See REASON; cf. REDE counsel, RIDDLE enigma.] Transitive: 1. To advise; to counsel. See REDE. Archaic.

2. To go over, esp. with apprehension of the meaning of, as characters or words, with or without utterance aloud or inaudible recital to oneself; to take in the sense of, as of language, by interpreting the characters with which it is expressed; to peruse; as, to read a discourse, the letters of an alphabet, Latin, figures, the notes of music; to read a book; — applied also to perusal of other significant marks or signs or that on which they are; as, to read a barometer, a watch, or the palm.

Well could he rede a lesson or a story. Chaucer.

3. To utter aloud or render something written, esp. so as to give an interpretation of its significance; as, Booth read the lines of Hamlet superbly.

4. a To learn or be informed of by perusal.

To read in Greek the wrath of Peleus' son. Pope.

b To learn, or discover the nature of, by observing closely as if perusing a book; to perceive, or discern. by the observation of outward signs, as of the face.

She had not read him right. H. James.

She . . . could almost read the thoughts of people. Shak.

5. To interpret; to discover the meaning of; as, to read a riddle; hence, to foresee or foretell.

You, who men's fortunes in their faces read. Cowley.

6. To attribute (a meaning, explanation, conception, or the like) to what is read; to put a construction upon, either rightly or wrongly; to infer as meant in something read; as, to read a meaning into a verse; to read a statement as an insult; to read one's prejudices into history.

7. To offer as one's version of a textual word or passage, esp. of one in dispute; — of editors or texts; also, to substitute in a text; as, for "hurry" read "harry."

8. To make a special study of, as by perusing books on; as, to read theology or law.

9. To register; measure; indicate; — said of a machine or instrument of precision; as, this micrometer reads ten-thousandths of an inch.

10. In card cutting for Jacquard weaving: a To follow (the painted pattern or design) space by space along each horizontal line in turn, to determine the punches to be pushed out of the punch box into the carrying plate to subsequently perforate the card. b To transfer (a pattern) to a machine (the reading-in machine), by causing the desired punches to be pushed into the carrying plate; — with in. c To transfer (a pattern) into the cords.

11. Obs. a To guess; think; suppose. b To estimate. c To tell; declare; relate; describe. d To teach; to give instruction in. e To discern.

—, Intransitive: 1. To perform the act of reading words, characters, or the like; to peruse, or to go over with understanding, the words of a book or other like document.

So they read in the book of the law of God distinctly, and gave the sense. Neh. viii. 8.

2. To utter aloud what is written, either while perusing it or from memory; sometimes, as in the case of an actor, esp. so as to give an interpretation of its significance; as, he read to his companion; he reads delightfully.

3. To inform oneself by reading; — usually with of.

I read of bright embattled fields. Cowper.

4. To bear construction, have import, or be in effect, as to terms, conditions, or the like, when read (in sense 2, v. t.); as, that sentence reads queerly; this ticket reads to Boston via Providence; also, elliptically, to read well or easily; to be readable. "We only ask . . . when the book comes out, Does it read?" Augustine Birrell.

5. To appear in writing or print; to be expressed by, or consist of, certain words or characters; as, the passage reads thus in the early manuscripts.

6. To study, esp. by reading; — chiefly Eng., exc. in the phrases, to read for the bar; to read up on a subject.

Stayed at Christmas up [at Cambridge] to read. Tennyson.

7. Obs. a To give advice or counsel. b To teach by or as if by reading; to discourse. c To tell; to declare.

Syn. — Solve, decipher; con, peruse.

read between the lines. To get more than the surface meaning in reading by gathering what is implied, left unsaid, or the like.

read in. = read oneself in, below. Eng.

read in or on. To read. Now Rare.

read one a lecture or lesson. To admonish or rebuke a person vigorously.

read oneself in. To read aloud the Thirty-nine Articles and make the declaration of assent, as required of a clergyman of the Church of England when he first officiates in a new benefice.

read out of. To expel from (an organization) by reading a formal notice or now usually in a formal or conspicuous manner.

read the riot act. a To order a mob to disperse. See RIOT ACT. b Hence, figuratively, to issue a peremptory order or warning to cease doing something; to protest vehemently.

read while one runs. To gather the significance of immediately or without effort.

read (rĕd), adj. Instructed by or informed through reading; learned; as, a well-read man; read in science.

read (rĕd), n. [From READ, v.] An act or period of reading.

read. Var. of RED, REDD; REDE, counsel. Obs. exc. Dial.

read'a·ble (rēd'ă·b'l), adj. 1. Such as can be read; specif.: a Legible; as, readable handwriting. b Easy to read, because interesting or pleasing; as, a readable book.

2. That permits or admits of reading. Rare.

— read'a·bil'i·ty (rēd'ă·bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n. — read'a·ble·ness, n. — read'a·bly, adv.

read'er (rēd'ĕr), n. [AS. rēdere.] 1. One who reads.

2. Specif.: a A professional reciter of selections, etc.; an elocutionist. b An employee who reads meters, indexes, etc. c A proofreader. d One who reads manuscripts offered for publication and advises regarding their merit.

3. Slang. a Among thieves, a pocketbook. b A license.

4. A book containing selections for reading; an elementary book for instruction and practice in reading.

5. A hand lens, or reading glass. Colloq.

6. Advertising. A reading notice.

7. Eccl. One appointed or authorized to read the lessons or prayers, etc., in a place of worship; esp., R.C.Ch. & Eastern Churches, one ordained for the office of reading the lessons; an anagnost or lector (see these words). Cf. LAY READER.

8. Educ. & Law. One who reads lectures or expounds subjects to students; a teacher; a lecturer, as, formerly, on law in the Inns of Court; — used esp. in some universities as the title of certain instructors. In the Inns of Court, now only the title of an honorary office.

9. Gambling. A card marked on the back according to a gambler's own system. Cf. STAMP, n.

10. Textile Mfg. A worker who records a design, as in string or in numbers, which he reads from a card.

read'i·ly (rĕd'ĭ·lĭ), adv. 1. With cheerful readiness; without delay or objection; willingly; as, to promise readily.

2. With promptness; quickly; at once; easily; as, his allusions were readily understood.

3. Very likely; probably. Scot.

read'i·ness (rĕd'ĭ·nĕs; -nĭs; 119), n. 1. Quality of being ready to act, respond, comply, etc.; promptness; alacrity; as, to learn with readiness; his readiness of wit; also, ease in performance; as, to emulate a conjuror's readiness.

2. State or fact of being ready, or prepared; as, to have everything in readiness for a sudden departure.

Syn. and Ant. — See FACILITY.

read'ing (rēd'ĭng), n. [AS. rēding.] 1. Act of one who reads; as: a Perusal. b Oral rendering or delivery of written or printed matter. c Obs. A lecturing or commenting on a topic. d Recital of a bill in a legislature.

2. That which is read; hence, a public recital or lection; also, a lecture on a special subject, text, or passage; a prelection.

3. The form in which anything is written; the words and construction of a writing or any copy or edition; a version; as, the first folio readings of Shakespeare.

4. Study of books; literary scholarship.

Reading maketh a full man, conference a ready man, and writing an exact man. Bacon.

5. Written or printed matter intended to be read.

6. Manner of rendering something written, esp. so as to give an interpretation of its significance; as, an actor's reading of a part; also, the interpretation placed on anything observed; as, my reading of his character is unfavorable.

7. That which is indicated so as to be read, as on the scale of a graduated instrument; as, the reading of a barometer read'ing, adj. 1. That reads or studies.

2. Of or for reading; as: a That is to be read; as, reading matter; a reading play. b That provides or suggests reading matter; as, a reading book or list. c Designed for use in or while reading; as, a reading glass, lamp, or coat. d Set aside for reading, or the use of a reader or readers; as, reading days, room, or table. e Composed of or participated in by readers or students; as, a reading circle or party.

Read'ing beds (rĕd'ĭng). [From Reading, Eng.] Geol. Mottled clays and sands constituting a division of the English Eocene strata; — stratigraphically equivalent to the fossiliferous estuarine Woolwich beds.

read'ing book (rēd'ĭng). [AS. rædingbōc.] a A book for teaching reading; a reader. b Obs. A book of Scripture readings, or lessons.

reading desk. A desk to support a book while reading, esp. in a church service; a lectern.

reading distance. The distance from the eyes at which a printed page is held for maximum facility in reading.

read'ing·dom (rēd'ĭng·dŭm), n. Readers collectively. Southey.

reading glass. A large magnifying lens, usually attached to a handle, used in reading, etc.

reading hook. A bookmark of bone, ivory, or the like.

read'ing–in' ma·chine'. See READ, v. t., 10 b.

reading lamp. A lamp for use in reading, esp. one so arranged as to throw the greater part of its light directly upon a book or reading desk.

reading man. One who reads much; specif., in English universities, a student given to reading or study. Cf. GRIND, n., 3 b.

reading matter. In a newspaper or periodical, regular news or editorial or contributed matter as distinguished from paid advertising matter. Cant.

reading notice. In a newspaper or periodical, a paid advertisement so set up as to have the appearance of regular news or editorial or contributed matter. Cant.

reading of a bill. Legislation. The formal recital of a bill by the proper officer, before the house which is to consider it. In the House of Representatives and the House of Commons bills are read three times before final action is taken upon them. Cf. COMMITTEE STAGE, REPORT STAGE.

reading pew. Ch. of Eng. The stall sometimes occupied by the officiant at matins and evensong.

reading room. a A room appropriated to reading; a room provided with papers, periodicals, and the like, to which persons resort. b Print. A room or space for proofreading.

re'ad·just' (rē'ă·jŭst'), v. t. To adjust or settle again or anew; to rearrange; specif., Finance, to reconstruct or rehabilitate (a corporation) by voluntary action.

re'ad·just'a·ble (-jŭs'tă·b'l), adj. See RE-, 2; -ABLE.

re'ad·just'er (-jŭs'tĕr), n. One who readjusts; specif.: U. S. Hist. A member or follower of a party in Virginia (1878–83), which tried to reduce, or readjust, the State debt, and secured the passage of laws to this end. The U. S. Supreme Court declared these unconstitutional.

re'ad·just'ment (rē'ă·jŭst'mĕnt), n. Act or result of readjusting; specif., Finance, the reconstruction or rehabilitation of a corporation, esp. of a railroad, effected usually by the voluntary action of the security holders. Cf. REORGANIZATION, 2.

re'ad·mis'sion (rē'ăd·mĭsh'ŭn), n. Act of readmitting.

re'ad·mit' (-mĭt'), v. t.; -MIT'TED; -MIT'TING. To admit again; to give entrance or access to again.

re'ad·mit'tance (-ăns), n. Readmission.

re'ad·vert'en·cy (rē'ăd·vûr'tĕn·sĭ), n. The act of adverting to again, or of reviewing mentally. Rare.

read'y (rĕd'ĭ), adj.; READ'I·ER (-ĭ·ĕr); READ'I·EST. [ME. readi, redi, fr. AS. ræde, gerǣde; akin to D. gereed, Icel. reiðr, G. bereit, ON. greithr, Goth. garaiths fixed, arranged, and prob. to E. ride, as meaning originally, prepared for riding. See RIDE; cf. ARRAY, GRAITH, KINDRED, REDD to clean.] 1. Prepared for what one is about to do or experience; equipped or supplied with what is needed for some act or event; prepared for immediate movement or action; as, the troops are ready to march; ready for the journey. "When she redy was." Chaucer.

2. Fitted, arranged, or placed, for immediate use; causing no delay for lack of being prepared or furnished; as, the carriage is ready. "Dinner was ready." Fielding.

All things are ready; come unto the marriage. Matt. xxii. 4.

3. Brought into, or being in, such a state as to be likely to do something; immediately liable; likely; — esp. with to.

My heart is ready to crack. Shak.

4. Prepared in mind or disposition; not reluctant; moved to willingness; willing; inclined; disposed.

I am ready not to be bound only, but also to die at Jerusalem, for the name of the Lord Jesus. Acts xxi. 13.

5. Not slow or hesitating; quick in action or perception of any kind; dexterous; prompt; expert; as, ready in apprehension; ready wit; a ready writer or workman.

6. Characterized by promptness, dexterity, or willingness; prompt; willing; as, a ready answer or greeting.

7. Offering itself at once; immediately at hand; opportune; available; handy; as, ready assets; ready money; a ready weapon. "The readiest way." Milton.

8. Obs. a Of payment, not deferred; promptly rendered. b Fully attired or accoutered. c Present; here; — used in answer to a roll call or similar summons.

Syn. — Prepared; eager; quick, facile, skillful, apt; cheerful, free, unhesitating. See PROMPT.

Ant. — Unprepared; unavailable; reluctant, unwilling, grudging; slow; dull, sluggish; awkward, clumsy.

☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are:

ready-armed	ready-formed	ready-sanded ready-beaten	ready-furnished	ready-sensitized ready-bent	ready-grown	ready-shapen ready-braced	ready-handed	ready-starched ready-built	ready-mixed	ready-tongued ready-coined	ready-mounted	ready-typed ready-cooked	ready-penned	ready-winged ready-cut	ready-prepared	ready-worded ready-dressed	ready-reference	ready-written read'y, adv. Readily; easily. Now Rare.

read'y (rĕd'ĭ), v. t.; READ'IED (-ĭd); READ'Y·ING. 1. To make ready; to put in a state of order or preparation; specif., Scot. & Dial. Eng., to prepare (food), as by cooking.

2. Horse Racing. To keep from winning or running well in order to secure a handicap. Slang.

ready about. Naut. An order to be ready for tacking ship, or going about.

ready up. To make ready; to prearrange; hence, to arrange or prepare, as dice, to facilitate cheating. Slang.

read'y, n. 1. Ready money; cash; — often with the; as, he was well supplied with the ready. Colloq.

2. State of being ready; preparation. Colloq.

re'a·dapt', v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'a·dapt'a·bil'i·ty, n. — re'a·dapt'a·ble, adj. — re'ad·ap·ta'tion, n. — re'a·dap'tive, adj. — re'a·dap'tive·ness, n.

re·add', v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'a·dapt', v. t. See RE-, 2.

re'ad·dress', v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·ade. Dial. Eng. past tense of RIDE.

reade. = READ, RED, REDE.

re'a·dept', v. t. [re- + L. adeptus, past part. of adipisci to obtain.] To regain; recover. Obs. — re'a·dep'tion, n. Obs.

read'er·dom, n. See -DOM.

read'er·off', n. Textile Mfg. = READER, 10.

read'er·ship, n. See -SHIP.

re'ad·here', v. i., re'ad·he'sion, n. See RE-, 2.

re'ad·mi·ra'tion, n., re'ad·mire', v. t., re'a·dopt', v. t., re'a·dop'tion, n., re'a·dorn', v. t., re'ad·vance', v. i.

readliche. + READLY, REDLY.

re'ad·meas'ure·ment, n., re'ad·min'is·ter, v. t., re'ad·mi·ra'tion, n., re'ad·mire', v. t., re'a·dopt', v. t., re'a·dop'tion, n., re'a·dorn', v. t., re'ad·vance', v. i.

& t. & n., re'ad·vance'ment, n., re·ad'vent, n., re'ad·ven'ture, v. i. & t., re'ad·ver'ten·cy, n., re·ad'ver·tise, v. t., re'ad·ver·tise·ment, n., re'ad·vise', v. t., re·ad'vo·cate, v. t. See RE-, 2.

N O P Q R

3. Mil. A position of preparation in the manual of arms or in artillery drill, at which the piece is cocked or otherwise prepared for instant firing.
4. Naut. A left-handed strand formed by twisting together a number of right-handed yarns, of which three go to form a right-handed, or a plain-laid, rope.
read'y-for-wear', adj. Ready-made; — of clothing.
read'y-made' (rĕd'ĭ·mād'; 66), adj. 1. Made already, or beforehand, in anticipation of need; specif., made for general sale; — distinguished from made-to-order or custom-made; as, ready-made clothing; hence, lacking originality or individuality; as, ready-made beliefs.
2. Pertaining to, or connected with, ready-made goods; as, a ready-made clothier.
read'y-made', n. Usually in pl. Something ready-made; specif., a ready-made article, or suit, of clothing.
ready money. Money on hand, or quickly available; esp., money held ready for payment, or actually paid, at the time of a transaction; cash.
ready pole. = RANNEL TREE. ready reckoner. See RECKONER b. ready roofing. = PREPARED ROOFING. read'y-to-wear', adj. Ready-made; — of clothing. — n. Ready-made clothing; — chiefly attributive. read'y-wit'ted (66), adj. Quick-witted. — read'y-wit'ted·ly, adv. — read'y-wit'ted·ness, n.
re'af·firm' (rē'ă·fûrm'), v. t. To affirm again in order to strengthen or confirm. — re'af·firm'ance (rē'ă·fûr'mĕns), re'af·fir·ma'tion (rē'ăf·ĕr·mā'shŭn), n. — re'af·firm'er (rē'ă·fûr'mĕr), n.
re·a'gen·cy (rē·ā'jĕn·sĭ), n. Action of, as of, or like that of, a reagent; reactional or reactionary agency.
re·a'gent (rē·ā'jĕnt), n. 1. Chem., etc. Any substance which, because it takes part in certain reactions, is used in detecting, examining, or measuring other substances, in preparing material, in developing photographs, etc.
2. Psychol. The subject of a psychological experiment; esp., one who reacts to a stimulus.
re·ag'gra·vate (rē·ăg'rȧ·vāt), v. t. 1. To make heavier. Obs.
2. To aggravate, or annoy, afresh. Rare.
re'ag·gra·va'tion (rē'ăg·rȧ·vā'shŭn), n. [ML. reaggravatio; cf. MF. reaggravacion.] R.C. Canon Law. The second and last monitory, published after three admonitions and before the last excommunication. Cf. AGGRAVATION, 3. Hist.
re'a·gin (rē'ȧ·jĭn), n. [reagent + -in.] Immunol. An antibody or substance behaving like an antibody in the complement-fixation reaction and similar reactions.
reak (rēk), n.; pl. REAKS (rēks). A prank; practical joke; — commonly in pl. Obs. exc. Scot. & Dial. Eng. re'al (rē'ăl; Sp. rā·äl'), n.; pl. REALS (rē'ălz), REALES (rā·ä'lās). [Sp., fr. real royal, fr. L. regalis. See REGAL; cf. REIS money.] a The former silver coin unit of the Spanish monetary system, eight of which made the dollar, or piece of eight (reals). The re·al' de pla'ta (rā·äl' dā plä'tä) (sterling silver) circulated widely at approximately $.12½ (6¼ d.). See 1st LEVY, n. The re·al' de vel·lón' (vĕl·yōn') (base silver) of the 19th century was worth only $.05 (2½ d.). In 1871 Spain's coinage was assimilated to the coinage of the Latin Union, of which the franc ($.193) was the unit. See also REAAL, RIAL, RIYAL, GOUDEN REAAL. See COIN, Table. b (rā·äl'). [Pg.] Singular of 1st REIS. re'al (rē'ăl; rē'ăl; 116), adj. [OF. (F. réel), fr. ML. realis, fr. L. res, rei, a thing; akin to Skr. rās wealth, property. Cf. REPUBLIC, REBUS.] 1. Existent as a thing, state, or quality; having actuality as an occurrence; as, real events, feelings, life.

Forms more real than living man. Shelley.

2. Genuine; not artificial, counterfeit, or factitious; — often opposed to ostensible; as, the real reason; real Madeira wine; real ginger; a real falsehood; real dignity.
3. Sincere; unaffected; void of pretense.

If his intentions were real. Clarendon.

4. Relating to things or events, esp. to physical things, rather than to persons or opinions; also, formerly, consisting of physical things; as, a real offering.
5. Properly so called in distinction from that which is similar or adjunct; as, the real womb; actual.

The king's real, or his stamped face. Donne.

6. Representing reality; corresponding to what is; true.

Ideas of substances are real when they agree with the existence of things. Locke.

7. Pertaining to the German Realschule.
8. Obs. a Essential or important. b Ideographic. c Loyal; faithful; true.
9. Lacemaking Handmade, as opp. to machine-made.
10. Law. a Of or pert. to things themselves; involving or pertaining to a jus in re or in rem; as, a real action (see in phrases); a real, or praedial, servitude; a real right; real privileges; etc.; — opp. to personal. b Designating a contract or contracts accompanied by a delivery of the object concerned; — opposed to consensual. c Specif.: Eng. & Amer. Law. Pertaining to, or consisting of, things fixed, permanent, or immovable, as lands and tenements; as, real property, in distinction from personal property. See PERSONAL PROPERTY.
11. Logic. Significant; conveying information; not merely verbal or formal; as, a real proposition.
12. Math. Having no imaginary part. See REAL NUMBER.
13. Music. Exact as regards repetition of intervals; as, a real fugue, one in which the answer gives an exact transposition of the subject; — distinguished from tonal.
14. Philos. a Actually being or existing; of the nature of fact; belonging to the order of nature; actual, as distinguished from fictitious or imaginary, or the ideal.

My suggestion would be, that anything which possesses any sort of power to affect another, or to be affected by another . . . has real existence. Jowett (Plato).

b Self-existent or pertaining to the self-existent; absolute, as opposed to derivative or dependent; fundamental and ultimate, as opposed to merely apparent or phenomenal; intrinsic and of the essence, as opposed to nominal or relative.

When we speak of a thing as real, we imply that it is complete and self-existent. B. Bosanquet.

But besides nominal essences, he admitted real essences, or essences of individual objects, which he supposed to be the causes of the sensible properties of those objects. J. S. Mill.

c Obs. Pertaining to medieval realism.

☞ COMBINATIONS are:
real-hearted, real-minded, real-sighted.

Syn. — Existent, veritable, authentic. — REAL, ACTUAL, TRUE. REAL implies primarily substantive or objective existence — what is; ACTUAL, emergence in the sphere of action or fact — what has become; TRUE, conformity or correspondence to what is actual or real. Real is opposed to imaginary; as, the real George Washington; to artificial; as, real gems; to counterfeit; as, "a real ancient medal and a counterfeit" (Wordsworth); to fictitious; as, one's real name; to ostensible; as, one's real reason; to nominal; as, the real attendance. Actual is opposed to potential; as, the actual energy of heat; to constructive; as, actual fraud; to virtual; as, actual identity; to theoretical or hypothetical; as, to illustrate by an actual case. It is also opposed, in the sense of "now existing, present, current," to past or future; as, not what has been or may be, but the actual situation, confronts us. Both real and actual may be opposed to ideal; as, ideal conditions, contrasted with actual, real conditions. True is opposed to false; as, a true story; and to erroneous; as, the true version of a story. With the shades of difference indicated, the three words are occasionally interchangeable; as, the real, actual, true state of affairs. Cf. AUTHENTIC, HONEST, CORRECT, INTRINSIC, TRUTH, REALITY.

His names are the names of real persons, and the events he chronicles were actual events. Stevenson.

The language . . . must often, in liveliness and truth, fall short of that which is uttered by men in real life under the actual pressure of those passions. Wordsworth.

re'al (rē'ăl; rē'ăl; 116), n. 1. A realist. Obs.
2. Something which is real; a particular reality; also, with the, actual state of affairs; as, the real contrasted with the ideal; in a metaphysical sense, reality in general.

The material thing we call an orange is commonly regarded as an independent "real," that gives rise in each percipient to his sensations of color, taste, and so on. James Ward.

3. pl. Herbartian Philos. The ultimate beings composing the world, each being of a simple, indefinable quality.
4. Math. A real quantity.
re'al, adv. a Rare. Really. b Very; much; as, I was real provoked; — a loose and uncultivated use. re'al, adj. [OF. reial (F. royal). See REGAL.] Royal; regal. Obs. real account. Accounting. An asset, liability, or proprietary account. real action. Law. An action for the recovery of the thing itself, esp. real estate; — opposed to personal action. See REAL, adj., 10 a. real assets. Law. Assets consisting of real property; specif., such assets in the hands of the heir, chargeable with the debts of the ancestor.
real attribute. Logic. An attribute inherent in the substance of the thing, as distinguished from one merely involved in the thought of it.
real bigamy. See BIGAMY, 2 a. real burden. See BURDEN, n., 11. real cost. See 3d COST, 6. real covenant. Law. A covenant affecting real property, usually one which runs with the land. Cf. COVENANT, n., 5.
re·al' d'or' (rā·äl' dôr'). [Sp.] = GOUDEN REAAL. re'al·est (rē'ăl·ĕst; -ĭst; rē'ăl-; 119), adj. Most true; most vital. Dial.
real estate or property. Lands, tenements, and hereditaments; freehold interests in landed property; property in houses and land. See PERSONAL PROPERTY; cf. LAND, n., 11 b. — re'al–es·tate', adj. re'al–es·tate' trust. An unincorporated association holding title to real estate in the name of one or more trustees, who manage the property for the benefit of the members of the trust. Cf. MASSACHUSETTS TRUST.
real fallacy. Logic. See FALLACY, n., 3. real focus. See FOCUS, n., 6. re·al'gar (rē·ăl'gĕr), n. [ML. realgar, F. réalgar, fr. Catalan realgar, Sp. rejalgar, fr. Ar. rahj al-ghār powder of the mine. Cf. RESALGAR.] a Mineral. Arsenic monosulphide, As_2S, an orange-red mineral of resinous luster, occurring in monoclinic crystals or in granular or compact form. It burns with a bluish flame, giving off arsenical and sulphurous fumes. H., 1.5–2. Sp. gr., 3.56. It was formerly used as a pigment, and, in pyrotechny, in making "white fire." b Arsenic disulphide. realgar orange. The color Dutch orange. realgar yellow. The color lemon yellow.
‖Re·al'gym·na'si·um (rā·äl'gĭm·nä'zĭ·ŏŏm; -güm·nä'-), n.; pl. -SIEN (-zĭ·ĕn); Latin pl. -SIA (-ȧ). [G.] A German secondary school in which no Greek is taught and much attention is given to the sciences. In curriculum it is between the Gymnasium and the Realschule.
‖re·a'lĭ·a (rē·ā'lĭ·ȧ), n. pl. [ML.] Philos. Real things; realities. real idealism. = IDEAL REALISM. re'a·lign' (rē'ȧ·līn'), v. t. To align again or anew; esp., to make new divisions or groupings of according to other lines of cleavage; as, to realign American political parties. — re'a·lign'ment, n.
real image. Optics. See IMAGE, n., 10 a. real incidence. Econ. See INCIDENCE, 3. re'al·ism (rē'ăl·ĭz'm; rē'ăl-), n. [Cf. F. réalisme, G. realismus.] 1. Philos. a The doctrine that universals exist outside the mind; the conception that what a general or abstract term names is an independent and unitary reality or essence. This doctrine, first formulated by Plato, is often called logical realism. It is opposed to nominalism. Cf. CONCEPTUALISM. b The conception that objects of sense perception (and, sometimes, of cognition in general) are real in their own right, existing independently of their being known or related to mind; — often called epistemological realism; it is opposed to idealism.
2. Preoccupation with fact or reality; scientific, as opposed to idealistic or speculative or sentimental, attitude, policy, or the like; now esp., the disposition to think and act in the light of things as they are and to repudiate unrealizable or visionary schemes.
3. In art and literature, fidelity to nature or to real life; representation without idealization; adherence to actual fact. As a consciously professed principle, realism was opposed, in 19th-century critical discussions, to romanticism (which see), taken as typically subjective, and inclining to the sentimental and extravagant. Its adherents have laid stress on the rendering of literal fact, on "truth to nature" without selection either of subject or detail in the interest of preconceived ideals. The term is applied in a favorable sense to denote accuracy and graphicalness in delineation, and depreciatively to denote excessive minuteness of detail and preoccupation with trivial, sordid, or offensive subjects. Cf. IDEALISM, 3; NATURALISM, 2.
4. Rare. a Emphasis on practical subjects in education Cf. REALSCHULE. b A real experience. Carlyle.
5. Jurisprudence. A conception of the science of law and of the phenomena of administering justice which sees significance in the unique elements of particular cases and the alogical and nonrational factors in decision.
6. Law. The tendency to treat rights and obligations as in any way connected with a fixed place, or with rights or obligations to land. Pollock & Maitl.

Syn. — See REALITY. Ant. — Idealism, romanticism.

re'al·ist (rē'ăl·ĭst; rē'ăl-), n. [Cf. F. réaliste.] 1. One who is preoccupied with things rather than with words. Obs.
2. An adherent to or advocate of realism (sense 1); one whose beliefs, acts, etc., are determined by realism.
3. Art & Lit. An artist or writer who aims at realism in his work. See REALISM, 3. re'al·ist, adj. Pertaining to realists or realism; realistic.
re'al·is'tic (rē'ăl·ĭs'tĭk; rē'ăl-), adj. Of or pertaining to, or after the manner of, realism or realists; characterized by realism; like reality; as, realistic writing, portraiture, or policies. — re'al·is'ti·cal·ly (-tĭ·kăl·ĭ), adv.
re'al·is'ti·cize (-tĭ·sīz), v. t. To make realistic.
re·al'i·ty (rē·ăl'ĭ·tĭ), n.; pl. -TIES (-tĭz). [From F. réalité, or ML. realitas. See 2d REAL; cf. 2d REALTY.] 1. State, character, quality, or fact of being real, existent, self-existent, or genuine, or of having real being or existence; as, to doubt the reality of pygmies, of matter, or of God; also, in art, etc., the character of being true to life or to fact; correspondence to what is real.

A strong living soul in him, and sincerity there; a reality, not an artificiality, not a sham! Carlyle.

Their portraits remove the vagueness from history, and give it reality. G. W. Curtis.

2. Someone real or something real or realized; an actual person, event, situation, or the like; an accomplished fact; also, the substance as opposed to the appearance or form of a thing; as, amid the realities of his life; to make one's dream a reality; the reality of power is in the hands of the dictator.
3. Obs. a Loyalty; sincerity. "To express our reality to the emperor." Fuller. b A sincere statement.
4. Law. Real estate; realty (in sense 2). Obs.
5. Philos. a That which actually exists; that which is not imagination, fiction, or pretense; that which has objective existence, and is not merely an idea.

My neck may be an idea to you, but it is a reality to me. Beattie.

Feelings or states of consciousness are assured to be accounted among realities. J. S. Mill.

b That which is absolute or self-existent, as opposed to what is derivative or dependent; that which is ultimate, as opposed to what is merely apparent or phenomenal.

The reality we divined to be self-existent, substantial, and individual; but as it appears in a presentation, it is none of these. F. H. Bradley.

Syn. — REALITY, REALISM are here compared as they apply to representations of what is real. REALITY implies so close or vivid a correspondence between the representation and the thing itself that the representation produces the effect of the actual object; REALISM, in present usage, commonly implies faithful adherence to truth of detail, even where such details are trivial or sordid; as, "Here [in the notion of sincerity], I suspect, is to be found the distinction between the reality of Dante and modern realism" (Lowell). Ant. — Fancy, dream; fantasy, imagination.

— in reality. In fact; as a matter of fact.
re'al·i·za'tion (rē'ăl·ĭ·zā'shŭn; -ĭ·zā'shŭn; rē'-), n. [Cf. F réalisation.] 1. Act of realizing, or state of being realized.
2. An instance or product of realizing.
3. Philos. The act or process of becoming real.
realization and liquidation account. Accounting. An account or statement used in settling or winding up a business or estate to show the results of the disposition of assets and the liquidation of the debts.
re'al·ize (rē'ăl·īz; rē'ăl·īz), v.; -IZED (-īzd); -IZ'ING (-īz'·ĭng). [Cf. F. réaliser.] Transitive: 1. To make real; to convert from the imaginary or fictitious into the actual; to bring into concrete existence; to accomplish; as, to realize a scheme or project.

The iron men, who, under Edward III, had realized the fabled Paladins of Charlemagne and Arthur. Ld. Lytton.

2. To cause to seem real; to impress upon the mind as actual; — often with to; as, to realize ancient history.

It realizes to us, in a way which nothing else can, the littleness of human intelligence. H. Spencer.

3. To convert into actual money; as, to realize assets.
4. To acquire as an actual possession; to obtain as the result of plans and efforts; to gain; as, to realize large profits. Also, of property, to bring by sale or investment; as, the land sold realized a fair price.

Knighthood was not beyond the reach of any man who could by diligent thrift realize a good estate. Macaulay.

5. To conceive vividly as real; to apprehend clearly; as, he realized his danger; — formerly often disapproved as an Americanism.

Scott . . . evidently failed to realize how far superior is Clara Mowbray to all his other heroines. Swinburne.

6. To experience. Obs. U.S.

—, Intransitive: 1. To convert an intangible right or property into real (tangible) property; hence, to convert any kind of property into money.
2. Rare. a To become real. b To create realistically.

Syn. — See CONCEIVE.

re'al·iz'er (rē'ăl·īz'ĕr; rē'ăl-), n. One who realizes.
re'al·iz'ing (-īz'ĭng), adj. Characterized by vivid or clear realization; as, a realizing sense. — re'al·iz'ing·ly, adv.
real'ly (rē'ĭ·lĭ; rē'ăl'ĭ), adj. Real. Dial., U. S.
re'al·ly (rē'ăl·ĭ; rē'-; 116), adv. In a real manner; with or in reality; actually; in truth; — often used familiarly as a slight corroboration of an opinion or a declaration, or interrogatively to express mild surprise or incredulity.

Whose anger is really but a short fit of madness. Swift.

Why, really, sixty-five is somewhat old. Young.

re'al·ly, adv. of REAL, royal. Obs.
re'–al·ly' (rē'ă·lĭ'), v. [MF. realier. See RALLY to collect.] Transitive: 1. To rally, as beaten troops.
2. To ally again; to unite; to form anew.

—, Intransitive: To rally, as from defeat. Obs.

re'al·ly–tru'ly, adj. Real and true; genuine. Colloq.
realm (rĕlm), n. [ME. realme, reame, reaume, fr. OF. reialme, reaume (F. royaume), fr. (assumed) VL. regalimen, fr. L. regalis royal. See REGAL.] 1. A royal jurisdiction or domain; a region under dominion of a king; a kingdom.

---

read'y-made-a'sy. Var. of REEDEMADEASY. re'a·er-a'tion, n. See RE-, 2. re'af·fect', v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'af·fec'tion, n.
re'af·fil'i·ate, v. i. & v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'af·fil'i·a'tion, n.
re'af·flict', v. t., re'af·ford', v. t. re'af·for'est (rē'ăf·fôr'ĕst; -ĭst), v. t., re'af·for'es·ta'tion (-ĕs·tā'shŭn), n., re'af·fu'sion, n. See RE-, 2.
re·ag'gre·gate, v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'ag·gre·ga'tion, n.
re'ag·gres'sive, adj., re·ag'i·tate, v. i., re'ag·i·ta'tion, n., re'a·gree', v. i. & t., re'a·gree'ment, n. See RE-, 2.
Re·a'ia (rē·ā'yȧ; rē·ī'ȧ), Bib. reak. Var. of list REEK. New Dial.
re'a·larm', v. t. See RE-, 2.
re·a'les, n., pl. of REAL, the coin. re·al'ien·ate, v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'al·ien·a'tion, n.
re'a·live', adj. See RE-, 2. re'al·iz'a·ble (rē'ăl·īz'ȧ·b'l), adj. See -ABLE. — re'al·iz'a·bil'i·ty (-ȧ·bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n. — re'al·iz'a·ble·ness, n. — re'al·iz'a·bly, adv.
re'al·ized (rē'ăl·īzd), past tense & past part. of REALIZE.
re'al·le·ga'tion, n., re'al·lege' (rē'ă·lĕj'), v. t., re·al'le·go·rize, v. t., re'al·li'ance, n., re·al'lo·cate, v. t., re'al·lo·ca'tion, n., re'al·lot', v. t., re'al·lot'ment, n. See RE-, 2. [re'al·low'ance, n.; re'al·low', v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'al·lude', v. i. See RE-, 2. — re'al·lu'sion, n.
realm'less, adj. See -LESS.
realm'let, n. See -LET.

‖ Foreign Word. † Obsolete Variant of. + combined with. = equals. Abbreviations, Signs, etc., are explained on pages immediately preceding the Vocabulary.

2. Hence, in general, province; region; country; domain; department; division; as, the realm of fancy.
3. Biogeog. a A primary marine faunal division. b A primary terrestrial division consisting of one or more regions (see REGION, 9 b). By some authors two, and by others three, such realms are recognized. See ARCTOGAEA, NOTOGAEA, CAENOGAEA, EOGAEA. c A division co-ordinate with a region (see REGION, 9 b), esp. in the usage of certain American authors.
☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are:

realm-bounding	realm-governing	realm-subduing realm-conquering	realm-o'ershadowing	realm-sucking realm-destroying	realm-peopling	realm-unpeopling re'al·ness (rē'ăl·nĕs; -nĭs; rē'ăl-; 119), n. Quality or state of being real; reality.

real number (rē'ăl; rē'ăl). Math. An ordinary number either rational or irrational; a number in which there is no imaginary part; a number generated from the single unit, 1; any point in the continuum of natural numbers filled in with all rationals and all irrationals and extended indefinitely both positively and negatively; — opposed to complex number (which see).
real par. See 1st PAR, 1. real part. See PART, n., 11 a. real point. Geom. A point whose co-ordinates are real.
‖Re·al'po'li·tik' (rā·äl'pō'lĭ·tēk'), n. [G.] Practical politics. Hence: Re·al'po·li'ti·ker (-pō·lē'tĭ·kĕr), n. sing. & pl. One who believes in or relies upon practical politics; — often cynically applied to one who believes in reliance upon armed strength for gaining one's ends in national or international affairs.
real presence. [usually caps.] Eccl. The actual presence of Christ in the Eucharist. The interpretation of the doctrine varies. In the Roman Catholic and Eastern churches the presence is held to be substantial, the substance of the bread and wine being held to be converted into the real body and blood of Christ (transubstantiation). In the Lutheran Church it is held that while the nature of the bread and wine remains unaltered, yet the body and blood are so inseparable from them that the bread and wine are the true body and blood of Christ and are given and received not only by the godly, but also by wicked Christians. In churches of the Anglican Communion it is held that Christ is spiritually present and communicates himself to the spirits of those who take part in the Communion Service, as distinguished from the Zwinglian doctrine of an influence of Christ upon the soul during the service regarded as a commemoration of Christ's death. real price. See PRICE, n., 2.
‖Re·al'pro'gym·na'si·um (rā·äl'prō'gĭm·nä'zĭ·ŏŏm; -gŭm·nä'-), n.; pl. -SIEN (-ĕn); Latin pl. -SIA (-ä). [G.] A six-year German scientific secondary school which lacks only the three highest grades of the Realgymnasium. real property. See REAL ESTATE. real quaternion. See QUATERNION, 5. real ratio of expansion. Steam Engin. Actual ratio of expansion. See RATIO OF EXPANSION. real rent. Scots Law. The gross annual value of a holding given in the valuation rolls made for allocation of poor rates.
real representative. Law. See REPRESENTATIVE, n., 1 b; HEREDITAMENT. real reserve. See RESERVE. real school. A partial translation of Realschule. — real scholar.
‖Re·al'schu'le (rā·äl'shōō'lĕ), n.; pl. -SCHULEN (-shōō'lĕn). [G.] A six-year German secondary scientific school, teaching no classics, but including in its curriculum modern languages, mathematics, science, and practical arts, of the grade of the classical school called Progymnasium. real servitude. Law. See SERVITUDE, n., 8. real stock. Stock Exchange. Stock held by a bona fide owner.
real substitution or transformation. Math. A substitution, or transformation, whose coefficients are real. real tare. See TARE.
re'al·tor (rē'ăl·tĕr; rē'ăl·tĕr; -tôr), n. [See 2d REALTY.] A real-estate broker who is an active member of a local board having membership in the National Association of Real Estate Boards, an organization, incorporated in 1908, for the advancement of the interests of real-estate brokers and the protection of the public from unprincipled agents or brokers. real treaty. See TREATY.
re'al·ty (rē'ăl·tĭ; rē'ăl·tĭ), n. [OF. realté, reauté (F. royauté), fr. (assumed) VL. regalitas, fr. L. regalis. See REGAL.] 1. Royalty. Obs.
2. Realm; also, a regality. Obs. Scot. re'al·ty (rē'ăl·tĭ; rē'ăl-), n. [real + -ty. Cf. REALITY.] 1. Obs. a Reality. b Loyalty; honesty. c A possession by right.
2. Real estate or real property; a piece of real property.
real variable. Math. A variable whose values are real.
real wages. Econ. Wages measured by their purchasing power, as distinct from nominal wages, measured in money.
ream (rēm), v. t. & i. [ME. ræmien, remen, of uncert. origin; cf. AS. ārǣman to raise, arise.] To stretch or draw out, apart, or asunder; to stretch oneself. Obs. exc. Dial.
ream (rēm; dial. also rām), n. [AS. rēam; akin to G. rahm.] Cream; also, froth; scum; foam; in glassmaking, seed (see SEED, n., 11). — v. i. To cream; froth. — v. t. To skim the cream from. All Now Dial.
ream (rēm), n. [ME. reme, fr. OF. rayme (F. rame), fr. Sp. resma, fr. Ar. rizmah a bundle, esp. of paper.] 1. A quantity of paper, usually twenty quires, or 480 sheets, but sometimes 472 sheets of drawing or handmade paper, 500 sheets of news or book paper, and in a printer's perfect ream 516 sheets. Cf. BUNDLE, n., 2.
2. pl. An enormous amount, as of something written, printed, or spoken; — often reams and reams. Colloq.
ream (rēm), v. t.; REAMED (rēmd); REAM'ING. [Cf. ME. remen, rumen, rimen, to make room, extend, AS. rȳman, fr. rūm room; also E. dial. rime to enlarge a hole, rim to remove, make room for. Cf. ROOM.] 1. To widen the opening of (a hole); to bevel out; countersink.
2. To enlarge or dress out (a hole) with a reamer; to enlarge the bore of, as a gun, in this way; — often with out.
3. To remove (a defective part, as in a bore) by reaming (sense 2, above); — with out.
4. Naut. To open (the seams of a vessel's planking) for the purpose of calking them.
ream'age (rēm'ĭj), n. Number of reams in a lot of paper.
ream'er (rēm'ĕr), n. [From REAM to enlarge (a hole).] 1. One who or that which reams; specif., Mach., any of various rotating finishing tools with cutting edges, or flutes (straight or spiral), for enlarging or shaping a hole; a rimer. Reamers may be classified, according to the kind of hole they are designed to ream, as straight, tapered, or formed reamers, or, according to their construction, as solid or inserted-blade reamers. A rose reamer is a straight reamer that cuts on its end only and is used when considerable stock is to be removed. A shell reamer is a hollow reamer, which, when used, is fitted to a suitable shank made, usually, of less expensive material. A stepped reamer has a number of steps each of which cuts (by end cutting) a hole of a diameter larger than that cut by the step below it. It is used as a roughing taper reamer. A chucking reamer is a three-grooved or four-grooved twist drill or other reamer held in a chuck, as of a turret, lathe or drill socket, and used for rough reaming, as for the reaming of cored holes. Some chucking reamers have oil passages through them by means of which oil is fed to the cutting edges, while cutting, which form of reamer is especially suited for reaming steel. A square reamer has four equally spaced straight flutes and is used esp. for finish reaming the bores of gun barrels or other work where a very smooth finish is required. In use, two of the cutting edges do the cutting, a wedge being inserted between the flute opposite these edges and the wall of the hole being reamed. By means of this wedge and thicknesses of paper, called packing, the size of hole reamed is regulated. Another form of square reamer, used in woodworking, is shown in the illustration. A ball reamer is a formed reamer shaped hemispherically for forming the female part of a ball joint. For center reamer, see in the Vocabulary. A flat reamer is formed of a flat piece of steel. It is used esp. for reaming tapered holes in brasswork.

Reamers, 1: 1 Square; 2 Fluted; 3 Roughing; 4 Rose-shell.

2. One who enlarges holes with a reamer.
3. A fruit squeezer having a ridged and pointed dome projecting from the hollowed center of a plate.
4. Petroleum. Any drilling tool for enlarging a bored well or for making the borehole circular when the drill has failed to do so.
5. Quarrying. A kind of chisel for cutting (two) V-shaped grooves from a (round) blasthole in the line of the desired rift. ream'er (rēm'ĕr), v. t. To cut with a reamer, as in enlarging diamond dies. — ream'er·er (-ĕr), n. re'am·pu·ta'tion (rē'ăm·pū·tā'shŭn), n. Surg. The second of two amputations performed upon the same member.
ream'y (rēm'ĭ; dial. also rām'ĭ), adj. Frothy; creamy.
re·an'i·mate (rē·ăn'ĭ·māt), v. t. To animate anew; to restore to animation, or life, vigor, spirit, or courage; to revive; to reinvigorate; as, to reanimate a drowned person, disheartened troops, languid spirits, or a dying cause. — v. i. To become reanimated.
re·an'i·mate (-mât), adj. Reanimated.
re'an·i·ma'tion (rē'ăn·ĭ·mā'shŭn), n. Act or operation of reanimating, or state of being reanimated; a reviving; renewal.
re·an'swer (rē·ăn'sẽr; 83), v. t. Obs. a To answer; to reply to. b To match; to be equal to; also, to encounter. c To return or restore. — n. Obs. Response.
reap (rēp), v.; REAPED (rēpt); REAP'ING. [ME. repen, reopen, ripen, fr. AS. reopan, repan, ripan; rīpan; akin to E. RIPE.] Transitive: 1. To cut with a sickle, scythe, or reaping machine, as grain; to gather, as a harvest, by cutting.
When ye reap the harvest of your land, thou shalt not wholly reap the corners of thy field. Lev. xix. 9.
2. To gather as the fruit of labor or of works; to receive as a reward or recompense; to harvest; — in a good or a bad sense; as, to reap lasting benefits, undying hatred, or great success.
3. To clear of a crop by reaping; as, to reap a field.
—, Intransitive: To reap something; to gather a harvest.
They that sow in tears shall reap in joy. Ps. cxxvi. 5. reap the whirlwind. To bring down disasters and widespread destruction as the result of one's sin; to incur excessively heavy retribution. Hosea viii. 7. reap, n. [AS. reopa, ripa. See REAP, v.] A handful, or unbound sheaf, of grain. Now Chiefly Dial. reap, n. [Cf. AS. rip (or perh. rīp) harvest. See REAP, v.] Reaping; reapers collectively. Obs. exc. Local, Eng. reap, v. t. [Var. of RIP, v.] To bring into the light again; to rake or rip; — with up. Obs. exc. Dial. reap (rēp). Dial var. of ROPE. reap'dole' (rēp'dōl'), n. A gratuity given to the reapers, in feudal law to the lord's tenants, after they have harvested the grain. Obs. exc. Dial.
reap'er (rēp'ĕr), n. One who or that which reaps, as a man or a machine; specif. [cap., with the], death personified. See DEATH, n., 3. reap'ing, pres. part. & verbal n. of REAP. reaping hook. Also reap hook. A hand implement having a hook-shaped blade, formerly used in reaping; a sickle. reaping machine. Agric. Mach. Any of various machines for reaping grain. The first practical reaping machines were patented by Obed Hussey (1833) of Maryland and Cyrus H. McCormick (1834) of Virginia. In the usual types the grain is bent against the cutter bar (which is like that of the mowing machine) by a gathering reel or other raking device. The power is taken from a ground wheel. The reaping machine has been largely displaced by the binder and combine. See BINDER, n., 7 a; COMBINE, n., 3. re'ap·pear' (rē'ă·pēr'), v. i. To appear again.
re'ap·pear'ance (-ăns), n. A reappearing. rear (rēr), n. [Shortened fr. ARREAR. Cf. REAR GUARD.] 1. The unit or division of an army, fleet, or force which comes last, or is stationed behind the rest; — opposite of van.
When the fierce foe hung on our broken rear. Milton.
2. The back of anything; as, the rear of a house or bookcase.
3. The space or position behind, or at the back of, a person or thing; as, waiting at the rear of the house; to move to the rear; a hill was discovered to his rear.
4. Logging. The upstream end of a drive.
— in rear. Mil. 1. In the rear; as, to attack the enemy in rear.
2. Behind; from, at, or to the back.
rear (rēr), adj. Being at the back, or in the hindmost part; hindmost; as, the rear rank of a company.
Syn. — See POSTERIOR. Ant. — Fore, front, forward. rear, v. t. Obs. To attack or reinforce in the rear.
rear, v.; REARED (rērd); REAR'ING. [ME. reren, ræren, fr. AS. rǣran to raise, rear, elevate, for rǣsan, causative of rīsan to rise; akin to Goth. urraisjan, ON. reisa to raise. See RISE; cf. RAISE.] Transitive: 1. To raise upright; to lift up to an erect position; to set upright; as, to rear a flagpole or a monolith.
His hunting spear was rear'd against the wall. Thomas Miller.
2. To erect by building; to set up; to construct; as, to rear defenses or houses; to rear one government on the ruins of another. "One reared a font of stone." Tennyson.
3. To lift up or upwards or to hold aloft; to elevate; to raise; — often figurative; as, the city rears its towers.
To that she bends, to that her eyes she rears. Pope.
It reareth our hearts from vain thoughts. Barrow.
4. To rouse; to cause to rise, as a man from bed or an animal from its covert; hence, to arouse. Obs. exc. Dial. Eng.
5. To breed and raise; as, to rear cattle; also, to cause to grow, as plants or produce.
6. To foster; educate; instruct; as, to rear offspring.
For her sake I do rear up her boy. Shak.
7. To raise or make heard (the voice).
8. To cause (a steed) to rear; also, to throw by rearing.
9. Obs. a To produce; to originate; as, to rear discord. b To raise (a noise, song, cry, or the like). c To exalt. d To collect; gather; levy; as, to rear an army. e Naut. = RAISE, v. t., 10; as, to rear the coast. f To wrest; — with from.
—, Intransitive: 1. (dial. pron. also râr). To rise up; esp., of a horse or other quadruped, to rise up on the hind legs; to perform a pesade.
2. To rise into sight; to appear. Dial.
Syn. — Lift, erect; build, establish.
rear (rēr), v. t. To carve (commonly, a goose). Archaic. rear (dial. râr). Var. of RARE. Obs. exc. Dial.
rear (rēr), adv. Toward or from the rear; — in combinations forming adjectives, as in:
rear-cut, rear-directed, rear-driven, rear-driving, rear-steering.
rear– (rēr-). Also, Archaic, rere–. A combining form, Anglo-French rere- meaning the rear, after-, as in rearfeast.
rear admiral. a An officer in the navy, next in rank below a vice-admiral. See ADMIRAL, 3. In the United States Navy the insignia of his rank on epaulets and shoulder marks are two silver stars, and on the sleeves of blue uniforms a two-inch stripe of gold lace with a half-inch stripe above it. See PRECEDENCE. b Now Rare. A rear admiral's flagship.
rear arch. Arch. The arch carrying the inner part of the thickness of a wall, when the exterior face is carried differently, as where a door piece or window piece is elaborate in design, leaving half or more of the thickness of the wall to be supported apart from it. — rear'–arch', adj.

a Rear Arch.

rear commodore. An officer of a yacht club, ranking after vice-commodore. rear echelon. Mil. In any command, the echelon concerned with administrative and supply duties. Cf. FORWARD ECHELON. rear'–end', adj. Of, at, from, or affecting, the back part or division, esp. the rear platform or section of a railroad train; as, a rear-end collision.
rear'er (rēr'ĕr), n. One who or that which rears.
rear guard. [AF. reregard, F. arrière-garde. See ARRIERE; GUARD. Cf. REARWARD, n.] a Mil. (1) Obs. The rear ranks of an army in battle; — opp. to vanguard. (2) A security detachment, divided similarly to an advance guard, detailed to march in the rear of, and protect, the main body. b Eng. The guard at the rear of a railroad train, or his van.
rear'horse' (rēr'hôrs'), n. A mantis; — so called because it rears up when disturbed.
rear'ing, pres. part. & verbal n. of REAR. rearing bit. A bit to prevent a horse from lifting his head when rearing.
rear'ling (rēr'lĭng), n. [rear to bring up + 1st -ling.] Foster child. Rare. re·arm' (rē·ärm'), v. t.; -ARMED' (-ärmd'); -ARM'ING. To furnish with new or improved arms. — re·ar'ma·ment (-är'mȧ·mĕnt), n. rear'most (rēr'mōst; -mŭst), adj. Farthest in the rear; last.
re'ar·range' (rē'ă·rānj'), v. t. To arrange again or anew.
re'ar·range'ment (-rānj'mĕnt), n. A rearranging, or state of being rearranged. Specif., Chem., a rearranging of the atoms in the molecule of a compound to form an isomeric compound; — called also molecular rearrangement or intramolecular rearrangement.
rear sight. The sight nearest the breech of a firearm. rear sight drift slide. = PEEP PLATE; — the term used in the U. S. Army. rear vassal. Feudal Law. A vassal's vassal; an arriere vassal, a vassal not a tenant in capite.
rear vault. Arch. A rear arch used where the wall is very thick and the window recess becomes a vaulted chamber. rear'–vi'sion mir'ror. Also rear'view' mir'ror (rēr'vū'). In an automobile, a mirror reflecting the road behind.

rear'ward (rēr'wĕrd), adj. Rear; backward. — adv. At or toward the rear. — rear'ward·ly, adv. — rear'ward·ness, n. — rear'wards (-wĕrdz), adv.

rear'ward' (rēr'wôrd'), n. [AF. rerewarde. See REAR GUARD; WARD, n., guard.] The rear; specif., the rear division of an army or fleet. Now Rare.

re'as·cen'sion·al (rē'ă·sĕn'shŭn·ăl), adj. Geol. Designating or pertaining to any or all processes whereby clastic or detrital material becomes consolidated, cemented, or crystallized, or to rocks affected by such processes. Cf. DESCENSIONAL.

rea'son (rē'z'n), n. [ME. resoun, fr. OF. raison, fr. L. ratio; akin to L. reri, ratus, to reckon, believe, think, Goth. garathjan to count, and to E. READ. Cf. 2d ARRAIGN, 2d DERAIGN, HUNDRED, RATE proportion, RATIO, RATION.] 1. a An expression or statement offered as an explanation of a belief or assertion or as a justification of an act or procedure. "I'll give him reasons for it." Shak. b A consideration, motive, or judgment inducing or confirming a belief, influencing the will, or leading to an action or course of action; a rational ground or motive; — often followed by for, that, to, or why.

I have no other but a woman's reason:
I think him so because I think him so. Shak.

c Any sufficient ground of explanation or of logical defense; esp., a general principle, law, or warranted presumption, which supports a conclusion, explains a fact, or validates a course of conduct. Cf. SUFFICIENT REASON.

2. A ground or cause; that in the reality which makes any fact intelligible.

The reason of the motion of the balance in a wheel watch is by the motion of the next wheel. Sir M. Hale.

3. The power of comprehending and inferring; the ability to trace out the implications of a combination of facts or suppositions; intellect; — variously used to denote: (1) a distinct cognitive faculty, co-ordinate with perception and understanding; (2) the sum of the intellectual powers; (3) human, as distinguished from brute, intelligence; (4) universal or general rationality or intelligence, be it of minds collectively or of nature as a whole; (5) a mind or intelligence pervading the universe as its rational soul. In philosophy, numerous distinctions of different types of reason have been made. The more important types are: discursive, or logical, reason, the faculty of drawing inferences; intuitive reason, the faculty of apprehending a priori truths or principles; speculative reason, or reason concerned with the supersensible; theoretical reason, reason leading to cognition, or reason as the capacity to grasp the universal in the particular; practical reason (which see); and pure reason (see PURE, adj., 6 & 12). Reason has also been used in transcendental senses, and as an equiv. of Gr. nous (see NOUS, 1). For the Kantian use of reason and understanding, see VERNUNFT and VERSTAND. See also INTELLECT, 1; UNDERSTANDING, 3. Cf. JUDGMENT, 10.

The sense perceives; the understanding, in its own peculiar operation, conceives; the reason, or rationalized understanding, comprehends. Coleridge.

4. A sane or sound mind; the quality given by reason in its normal and just exercise; reasonableness; sanity; sense; also, a sane or sound view or consideration.

But law in a free nation hath been ever public reason. Milton.

5. Due exercise of the reasoning faculty accordance with, or that which is accordant with and ratified by, the mind rightly exercised; right thinking.

The most probable way of bringing France to reason would be by the making an attempt on the Spanish West Indies. Addison.

6. Archaic. a A formal account or reckoning; as, to give reason; to put to reason; hence, accounting. b Justice; propriety; moderation; specif., equitable or honorable treatment (formerly often with reference to drinking); satisfaction (as in a duel). "Do me reason in a cup of wine." Scott.

7. Obs. a A speech or discourse, or a subject of discourse; also, a sentence or clause; hence, a motto. b Exercise of reason; reasoning. c pl. Accounts. d Just measure; reasonable amount; specif., a miller's measure. e Rationale; rational principle.

8. Logic. A premise, esp. a minor premise.

9. Math. Ratio. Obs.

Syn. — REASON, UNDERSTANDING, SENSE are here compared only in their ordinary use; for technical distinctions see defs. REASON commonly suggests esp. that guiding or directing faculty of the mind by virtue of which men are distinguished from the lower animals; UNDERSTANDING applies to the faculty of clear comprehension or sound judgment esp. in practical affairs; SENSE adds to understanding the implication of native sagacity; as, "a creature . . . not prone and brute as other creatures, but endowed with sanctity of reason" (Milton); "His understanding was lucid and his judgment accurate" (Bancroft); "He [Chaucer] is a perpetual fountain of good sense" (Dryden). See CAUSE; cf. RATIONAL, REASONING, MIND, SOUL, WILL, FEELING.

— by reason of, or, rarely, that. On account of; because of; as, a man poor by reason of his thriftlessness. — in reason, in all reason. a In justice; justifiably; as, we cannot, in reason, doubt such evidence. b That is reasonable, just, or possible; as, to do everything in reason; a price that is in reason. — it is reason. It is reasonable; it is right. Now Rare.

Yet it were great reason, that those that have children should have greatest care of future times. Bacon.

rea'son (rē'z'n), v.; -SONED (-z'nd); -SON·ING. [OF. raisoner (F. raisonner). See REASON, n.] Intransitive: 1. a Obs. To hold discussion or argument; hence, to discourse; converse.

Hear him but reason in divinity. Shak.

I reason'd with a Frenchman yesterday, who told me. . . there miscarried a vessel of our country richly fraught. Shak.

b To talk or discourse persuasively in order to induce a change of opinion, conduct, or the like; as, we reasoned with him for an hour.

2. To use one's reason as a characteristic act or in a particular instance; to attempt to arrive at a conclusion through induction, deduction, or a combination of these; as, man alone reasons; to reason about free will or from experience; unable to reason clearly; to reason in a circle.

3. To hold a reckoning. Rare.

Let's reason with the worst that may befall. Shak.

— Transitive: 1. To question; call to account. Obs.

2. To discuss or present the reasons for or against; to debate; argue; as, to reason the point with his colleagues.

3. To seek a reason or reasons for; to question; also, to infer or conclude; as, to reason why it happened.

4. To explain, support, justify, etc., by adducing reasons.

This boy . . . does reason our petition with more strength than thou hast to deny 't. Shak.

5. To persuade or affect by reasoning or argument; as, to reason one into a belief or out of a plan.

6. To discover, formulate, or the like, after study or careful thought; to come to a conclusion about by systematic thinking; as, to reason out a plan of action.

rea'son (rē'z'n), n. [Var. of RASEN.] A horizontal timber over a row of posts, puncheons, or quarters, supporting a beam.

rea'son. Var. of RAISIN. Obs. exc. Dial.

rea'son·a·bil'i·ty (-ă·bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n. Reasonableness.

rea'son·a·ble (rē'z'n·ă·b'l; 59), adj. [ME. resonable, fr. OF. raisonable, fr. L. rationabilis. See REASON, n.] 1. Having the faculty of reason; rational; as, a reasonable being.

2. In accordance with reason; of men, acting, speaking, or thinking, under the guidance of reason; just; fair-minded; of their acts, thoughts, etc., agreeable to reason; not beyond the bounds of reason, logic, probability, etc.; as, a reasonable assumption, decision.

3. Not more or less than reason dictates within due or just limits; proper; as, a reasonable demand, time.

4. Inexpensive; moderately priced; as, chickens are reasonable at the butcher's.

Syn. — Equitable, fair, just; moderate. See RATIONAL.

Ant. — Unreasonable, illogical, preposterous, absurd; insane; unfair, unjust.

rea'son·a·ble, adv. Reasonably. Now Illit.

rea'son·a·ble·ness, n. Quality or fact of being reasonable.

reasonable rate. Railroads. A traffic rate that reimburses the carrier for actual costs and allows a fair profit.

rea'son·a·bly (rē'z'n·ă·blĭ; 59), adv. In a reasonable manner; also, tolerably; to a degree that suffices; as, it is reasonably good.

rea'soned (rē'z'nd), adj. Based upon reasoning; characterized by reason; studied. — rea'soned·ly, adv.

There is also a reasoned case against the modernists. Walter Lippmann.

rea'son·er (rē'z'n·ẽr), n. One who reasons or argues.

rea'son·ing (rē'z'n·Ĭng; 59), pres. part. & verbal n. of REASON. Hence: n. 1. The drawing of inferences; the passage from data or premises to a conclusion; the forming or discovering of rational relationships of ideas; thinking with a view to, or with the attainment of, a conclusion believed to be valid.

Reasoning, in the extended sense in which I use the term, and in which it is synonymous with inference, is popularly said to be of two kinds; reasoning from particulars to generals, and reasoning from generals to particulars; the former being called induction, the latter ratiocination or syllogism. J. S. Mill.

2. The reasons, proofs, or arguments resulting from the use of reason; course of argument; as, let me examine your reasoning.

Syn. — REASONING, ARGUMENTATION. REASONING includes both the act or process of exercising the reason, and the use of reasoned arguments with a view to convince or persuade; as, "Wrong reasoning sometimes lands poor mortals in right conclusions" (G. Eliot); "Reasoning, remonstrance had been tried; from your own town meetings, from the pulpit, from beneath the arches of Faneuil Hall" (E. Everett). ARGUMENTATION is esp. the presentation of arguments in an orderly and logical fashion; as, "The Principles of Argumentation" (G. P. Baker).

rea'son·less, adj. 1. Devoid of reason; as, reasonless creatures.

2. Without understanding or comprehension; unreasonable.

Dolts and fools who make up reasonless unreasoning Rome. Browning.

3. Without a rational basis, support, motive, or the like; as, a reasonless universe.

Going off into fits of reasonless giggles. P. L. Ford.

— rea'son·less·ly, adv. — rea'son·less·ness, n.

reason of state. [F. raison d'état.] The cause, often unjust or without principle, given in explanation of a political action, esp. by a ruler or government.

reason why. Reason, motive, or cause.

re'as·sert' (rē'ă·sûrt'), v. t. To assert again or anew; to maintain after an omission to do so, as a claim. — re'as·ser'tion (-sûr'shŭn), n. — re'as·ser'tor (-tẽr), n.

re'as·so'ci·a'tion (rē'ă·sō'sĭ·ā'shŭn; -shĭ·ā'shŭn), n. Psychol. The restoration of lost memories and behavior patterns; — opposed to dissociation.

re'as·sume' (rē'ă·sūm'), v. t. To assume again or anew; to resume; as, to reassume an office, a cool demeanor, an argument, or a place in life. — re'as·sump'tion (-sŭmp'shŭn), n.

re'as·sur'ance (-shŏŏr'ăns), n. 1. Assurance renewed or repeated; hence, reinforced or restored confidence.

2. Insurance. = REINSURANCE.

re'as·sure' (-shŏŏr'), v. t. To assure anew; specif.: a To restore confidence to; to free from fear, terror, or anxiety. b Insurance. = REINSURE. — re'as·sure'ment (-mĕnt), n. — re'as·sur'er (-shŏŏr'ẽr), n.

re'as·sured' (-shŏŏrd'), adj. a Having confidence restored; freed from fear or anxiety. b Having renewed insurance; also, having insurance covered by being placed with another insurance company (see REINSURE). — re'as·sur'ed·ly (-shŏŏr'ĕd·lĭ; -ĭd·lĭ; 119), adv.

reas'ty (rēs'tĭ), adj. [ME. resty, fr. OF. resté, left over, past part. of rester to remain. See REST remainder.] Rancid. — reas'ti·ness (rēs'tĭ·nĕs), n. Both Obs. exc. Dial.

rea'sy (rē'zĭ), adj. Rancid. — rea'si·ness (rē'zĭ·nĕs; -nĭs; 119), n. Both Obs. exc. Dial.

‖re·a'ta (rā·ä'tä; rē·ä'tä), n. [Sp.] A lariat.

re·a'tus (rē·ā'tŭs), n. [L.] Law. State of a reus, or person accused; charge; offense.

Re'au·mur, Ré'au·mur (rā'ō·mūr; F. rā'ō'mür'), adj. Of or pertaining to René Antoine Ferchault de Réaumur or the thermometric scale invented by him about 1730. — n. A Reaumur thermometer or scale. The Reaumur thermometer is so graduated that 0° marks the freezing point and 80° the boiling point of water. Its readings are therefore converted into Centigrade readings by multiplying by ¾, and into Fahrenheit by multiplying by ⁹⁄₄ and adding 32. It is still used to some extent in France, Germany, and Russia. Abbr. R. See THERMOMETER, Illust.

reave (rēv), v. t.; past tense & past part. REAVED (rēvd), REFT (rĕft), or, Obs., RAFT (răft); pres. part. & verbal n. REAV'ING. [ME. reven, fr. AS. rēafian; akin to AS. rēofan to break (cf. birēofan to deprive of), rēaf spoil, plunder, G. rauben to rob, ON. raufa to rob, rýfa to break, violate, Goth. biraubon to despoil, L. rumpere to break, Skr. ropayati he breaks off, lumpati he breaks, robs. Cf. BEREAVE, ROB, v., ROBE, ROVER, RUBBLE, RUFF collar, RUFFLE to grow rough, RUPTURE.] Archaic. a To rob or plunder; to despoil; to divest. "Of what enjoyments thou has reft us!" Burns. b To take away (something) as by force or stealth; to seize; to deprive of (one's possession, quality, faculty, etc.) "To reave his life." Spenser. "Thy father, Uther, reft . . . a field." Tennyson. c To carry or tear away; to transport or remove by superior power or force. "Ah, who hath reft . . . my dearest pledge?" Milton. — v. i. To plunder or pillage; to rob. Archaic.

reave (rēv), v. t. & i. [Prob. a use of reave to plunder, after rive.] To burst; tear; split; as, a tree reft by lightning. Archaic.

reave (rēv; rāv). Scot. & dial. N. of Eng. past tense of RIVE.

reave (rāv). Var. of RAVE, v. Obs. exc. Dial.

reav'er, reiv'er (rēv'ẽr), n. [AS. rēafere. See REAVE, v.; cf. ROBBER, ROVER.] One who reaves. Archaic.

reb (rĕb), n. A rebel. Colloq., U. S.

re·bab' (rĕ·băb'), n. [See REBEC.] Music. A medieval instrument, sometimes regarded as a progenitor of the violin. It was usually two-stringed, and played by plucking, or (later) by bowing.

re·back' (rē·băk'), v. t. Bookbinding. a To reshape the back of (a book) in a roller-backer after casing or covering. b To add a new back to (an old book) without entirely rebinding.

re·bait' (rē·bāt'), v. t. To bait (as a hook) again.

re·ban' (rē·băn'; in the phrase below, rĕ'băn'; 66), n. A second ban; — chiefly in ban and reban.

re·bap'tism (rē·băp'tĭz'm), n. A second baptism. Believers in baptismal regeneration naturally hold that valid Christian baptism cannot be repeated, and advise that where doubt exists whether it has been validly administered, it be readministered conditionally. Baptists and others who regard the immersion of believers as the only Christian baptism do not regard such immersion in the case of those previously baptized in infancy or by sprinkling or pouring as being rebaptism for the reason that the previous rite was not valid Christian baptism. Cf. ANABAPTIST. — re'bap·tis'mal (rē'băp·tĭz'măl), adj.

re'bap·tize' (rē'băp·tīz'), v. i. [LL. rebaptizare; cf. F. rebaptiser.] To baptize again or a second time; also, to name or christen again. See REBAPTISM. — re'bap·ti·za'tion (rē'-băp·tĭ·zā'shŭn), n. Obs. — re'bap·tiz'er (rē'băp·tīz'ẽr), n.

re·bar' (rē·bär'), v. t. Music. To change the position of the bar lines in (a composition).

re·bar'ba·tive (rē·bär'bə·tĭv), adj. [F. rébarbatif, fr. OF. rebarber to be repellent, fr. re- re- + barbe beard.] That repels or irritates; repellent; repulsive; unattractive; crabbed re'bate (rē'bāt commonly răb'ĕt; -ĭt; 119), n. [See RABBET.] 1. Arch. A rectangular longitudinal recess or groove, cut in the corner or edge of any body; a rabbet. Cf. RABBET, n., 1.

2. A rabbet plane. See 4th PLANE, 2.

re'bate (rē'bāt; rē·bāt'), n. [MF. rabat. See REBATE, v.] 1. Deduction; abatement; specif.: a Remission or payment back; as, a rebate of interest for immediate payment. b Railroads. Part of a transportation charge, as for freight, paid back to the shipper by the carrier. By the Interstate Commerce Act rebates in the United States are unlawful.

2. Insurance. A portion of the premium returned, directly or indirectly, to the policyholder by an agent or broker (from commissions received), either as an inducement to purchase insurance or to gain a competitive advantage over another agent or broker in selling insurance. It is regarded as unethical and frequently has been declared illegal by statute.

re'bate (rē'bāt; rē·bāt'; 277), v.; -BAT·ED (-bāt·ĕd; -bāt'-; -ĭd; 119); -BAT·ING (-bāt·Ĭng; -bāt'Ĭng). [OF. rabattre, fr. re- re- + abattre. See RE-; ABATE to beat down. Cf. RABBET, n. & v.] Transitive: 1. To deduct, as one thing from another. Obs.

2. To diminish; reduce; weaken; check. Now Rare.

3. To deprive of keenness; to blunt; to dull, as a weapon or, fig., a feeling, disposition, etc. Archaic.

But doth rebate and blunt his natural edge. Shak.

4. To make a rebate of (an amount) or on (a bill); to give a rebate to (one).

5. Her. To remove a portion of (a charge), or a portion of a charge from (an escutcheon), as for a difference.

— Intransitive: 1. To abate; also, to become blunt or dull. Obs.

2. To give or practice giving a rebate or rebates; as, to criticize railroads that rebate.

re'bate (rē'bāt; commonly răb'ĕt; -ĭt; 119), v. t. To cut a rebate (see 1st REBATE) in; to join with a rebate. Cf. RABBET, v. t.

re·bate'ment (rē·bāt'mĕnt), n. [OF.] 1. = REBATE, deduction. Now Rare.

2. A narrowing. Rare. 1 Kings vi. 6, margin.

re'bat·er (rē'bāt·ẽr; rē·bāt'ẽr), n. One who or that which rebates.

re·ba'ter (rē·bā'tẽr), n. = REBATO. Obs.

re·ba'to (rē·bä'tō), n. [F. rabat, fr. rabattre. See REBATE.] Hist. 1. A turned-back collar worn around 1600, at first, possibly, the high collar of a gown or doublet folded back to support a ruff; later, and esp., a stiffly starched or wired flaring collar of lace or the like worn high at the back of the neck, particularly with a décolletage; a piccadill (sense b).

2. A support for a ruff or piccadill; specif., a wire framework used to support a piccadill.

---

re'as·cend', v. t. & i., re'as·cend'an·cy, re'as·cend'en·cy, n., re'as·cend'ant, re'as·cend'ent, adj., re'as·cen'sion, n., re'as·cent', n. See RE-, 2. re·as'cer·tain', v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'as·cer·tain'ment, n.

rease. † RAISE, REESE, n.

re·ash'lar, v. t. See RE-, 2.

Re'a Sil'vi·a. See RHEA SILVIA.

re·ask', v. t. See RE-, 2.

rea'son·a·bl. Reasonable. Ref. Sp. [Obs.]

rea'son·al, n. & adj. Rational.

rea'son·ing·ly, adv. of reasoning, pres. part rea'son·ment, n. Reasoning. Obs.

rea'son·proof', adj. See -PROOF.

re'as·pire', v. i., re'as·sail', v. t. & i., re'as·sault', v. t. & i., & n., re'as·say', v. t. & i., re'as·sem'blage, n., re'as·sem'ble, v. t. & i., re'as·sem'bly, n., re'as·sess', v. t., re'as·sess'ment, n., re'as·sent', v. i., re'as·sev'er·ate, v. t., re'as·sieg'er, v. t. (Obs.), re'as·sign', v. t., re'as·sig·na'tion, n., re'as·sign'ment, n., re'as·sim'i·late, v. t. & i., re'as·sim'i·la'tion, n., re'as·sist', v. t., re'as·sist'ance, n., re'as·so'ci·ate, v. t. & i., re'as·sort', v. t., re'as·sort'ment, n., re'as·sur'ing (-shŏŏr'Ĭng), part. pr. & verbal n., re'as·sur'ing·ly, adv. See RE-, 2.

reast (rēst). Scot. & dial. Eng. var. of REEST.

re'as·ton'ish, v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'as·ton'ish·ment, n.

re'a·stray', adj., re'at·tach', v. t., re'at·tach'ment, n., re'at·tack', v. t. & i., re'at·tain', v. t., re'at·tain'ment, n., re'at·tempt', v. t. & n. See RE-, 2.

re'at·tend', v. t. & i. See RE-, 2. — re'at·tend'ance, n.

re'at·ten'tion, n., re'at·ten'tive, adj., re'at·test', v. t., re'at·tire', v. t. See RE-, 2.

re'at·tract', v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'at·trac'tion, n.

re'at·trib'ute, v. t., re·au'dit, v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'at·tri·bu'tion, n.

reaute. Var. of REALTY. Obs.

re'au·then'ti·cate, v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'au·then'ti·ca'tion, n.

re·au'thor·ize, v. t. See RE-, 2. — re·au·thor·i·za'tion, n.

reav. Reave. Ref. Sp.

re'a·vail', v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'a·vail'a·ble, adj.

rea'vel (rā'v'l). Scot. & N. of Eng. var. of RAVEL, to entangle.

reav'er·y, n. [See REAVE to rob.] Robbery. Obs.

re'a·void', v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'a·void'ance, n.

re'a·vouch', v. t. & i., re'a·vow', v. t., re'a·wait', v. t., re'a·wake', v. i. & t., re'a·wak'en (rē'ă·wāk'ĕn), v. t. & i., re'a·wak'en·ing, n., re'a·wak'en·ment, n., re'a·ward', v. t., re'a·ware', adj. See RE-, 2.

re'ba, re'bah (rē'bä), n. [Heb. rebhi'a one fourth of a shekel.] See WEIGHT, Table.

Re'ba (rē'bä). Bib.

re·bag', v. t., re·bake', v. t., re·bal'ance, v. t., re·bale', v. t., re·bal'last, v. t., re·bal'lot, v. t., re·band'age, v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·ban'ish, v. t. — re·ban'ish·ment, n. See RE-, 2.

re·bank'rupt, v. t. See RE-, 2. — re·bank'rupt·cy, n.

re·bap'tist, n. An Anabaptist Obs.

re'bar·ba·ri·za'tion, n., re·bar' ba·rize, v. t., re·bar'gain, v. t., re·base', v. t., re·ba'sis, n. See RE-, 2.

re·bat'a·ble, re·bate'a·ble, adj See -ABLE.

rebate plane. Joinery. = REBATE PLANE, n., 2.

re·bathe', v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·bawl', v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·beam'er, n. Textile Mfg. = WINDER·ON.

re·bear', v. t. See RE-, 2.

re'bec, re'beck (rē'bĕk), n. [F. rebec (after bec beak), fr. OF. rebebe, rubebe, fr. Ar. rabāb. Cf. RIBIBE.] Music. A stringed instrument believed to be the progenitor of the viol class, having a pear-shaped body, a slender neck, and usually three strings, and played with a bow. "The locund rebecks sound." Milton.

Re·bec'ca, Re·bek'ah (rē·bĕk'ȧ), n. [Heb. Ribhqāh. The form Rebecca is fr. LL. Rebecca, fr. Gr. Rhebekka, fr. Heb.] 1. Fem. proper name. L. Rebecca; F. Rébecca (rȧ'bĕ'kȧ'); G. Rebekka (rā·bĕk'ä). — Dim. Becky.

2. (Usually Rebekah.) Bib. Sister of Laban, wife of Isaac, mother of Esau and Jacob.

3. A beautiful, modest, and brave Jewess in Scott's Ivanhoe, daughter of Isaac, a wealthy Jew of York. She nurses Ivanhoe, whom she secretly loves, when he is wounded, and after his marriage to Rowena leaves England.

4. A leader, who was dressed in female attire, of the bands of rioters (the Re·bec'ca·ites [-īts]), who demolished toll-gates in South Wales in 1843–44; — in allusion to Gen. xxiv. 60.

5. A salmon poacher. Eng.

Re·bec'ca·ism (rē·bĕk'ȧ·ĭz'm), n. Practices or principles of the Rebeccaites. See REBECCA, 4.

Re·bek'ah (rē·bĕk'ȧ), n. a = REBECCA. b A member of the Daughters of Rebekah.

re·bel' (rē·bĕl'), v. i.; -BELLED' (-bĕld'); -BEL'LING. [OF. rebeller, fr. L. rebellare to make war again, fr. re- again + bellare to make war, fr. bellum war. See BELLICOSE; cf. REVEL.] 1. To renounce, and resist by force, the authority of the ruler or government to which one owes allegiance. See REBELLION, 1.

Ye have builded you an altar, that ye might rebel this day against the Lord. Josh. xxii. 16.

2. To oppose one in authority or in control; to be disobedient or insubordinate; to make resistance.

How could your heart rebel against your reason? Dryden.

reb'el (rĕb'ĕl; -ĭl), adj. [OF. rebelle, fr. L. rebellis. See REBEL, v. i.] Of, pertaining to, or characteristic of, rebels or rebellion; rebellious; as, rebel troops; rebel songs.

Syn. — See INSURGENT.

reb'el, n. [F. rebelle.] One who rebels or is in rebellion.

reb'el, n. [Cf. ML. rebellum, rebellium.] Rebellion. Obs. Surrey.

reb'el clo'ver. Japan clover.

reb'el·dom (rĕb'ĕl·dŭm; -l·dŭm), n. 1. A region infested or held by rebels; rebels, considered collectively.

2. Conduct or quality characteristic of rebels. Thackeray.

re·bel'ler (rē·bĕl'ẽr), n. A rebel. Now Rare.

re·bel'lion (rē·bĕl'yŭn), n. [OF., fr. L. rebellio. See REBEL, v. i.] 1. Act of rebelling; open renunciation of the authority of the government to which one owes obedience, and resistance to its officers and laws, either by levying war or aiding others to do so; an organized uprising of subjects in order to coerce or overthrow their lawful ruler or government; revolt; insurrection; as, Tyler's Rebellion.

The term rebellion is applied to an insurrection of large extent, and is usually a war between the legitimate government of a country and portions or provinces of the same who seek to throw off their allegiance to it and set up a government of their own.

Instructions for Gov. of the Armies of the U. S.

2. Open resistance to, or defiance of, any authority.

3. Specif.: Law. Disobedience to a legal command or summons, formerly resulting in actual outlawry and later in certain penalties. Now Hist., exc. in Scots Law.

Syn. — REBELLION, REVOLUTION, REVOLT, INSURRECTION, MUTINY. REBELLION is open, organized, and armed resistance to constituted authority; REVOLUTION, as here compared, implies the overthrow of one government and the substitution of another; as, Jack Straw's Rebellion, the Great Rebellion (1642–52); the Revolution of 1688; the American Revolution; the French Revolution. But the two words are often used of the same event, according to the point of view of the user. REVOLT and INSURRECTION denote an armed uprising against authority which does not attain the extent of a rebellion; MUTINY commonly denotes an insurrection against military or naval authority; as, "The enemy [was] much enfeebled, by daily revolts" (Raleigh); "Insurrections of base people are more furious in their beginnings" (Bacon); the mutiny of a regiment. Cf. SEDITION, INSURGENT.

— the Rebellion. Specif.: a The American Civil War (1861–65). b The Great Rebellion (which see).

re·bel'lion, n. [LL. rebellio.] A rebel. Obs.

re·bel'lious (rē·bĕl'yŭs), adj. 1. That rebels or is given to rebelling, esp. against constituted authority; engaged in rebellion; as, rebellious troops; a rebellious boy; also, of, pertaining to, or characteristic of, a rebel, rebels, or rebellion; as, rebellious times, leaders, or acts.

2. Resisting treatment or operation; refractory; as, a rebellious growth in the throat; rebellious ores.

Syn. — See CONTUMACIOUS.

Ant. — Submissive, meek, obedient, complaisant — re·bel'lious·ly, adv. — re·bel'lious·ness, n.

reb'el·ly (rĕb'ĕl·ĭ), adj. Rebellious. Colloq.

re·bi'a (rē·bē'ȧ), n. [Turk. rub'īyeh, fr. Ar. rub'īyah pert. to a fourth part.] a A former gold coin of the Ottoman Empire, weighing 13½ grains, circulating in the 19th century as ⅓ zermahbub. b A Turkish silver coin, originally ten paras, but subsequently passing for 9¼ piasters.

re·bi'a, n. [Ar. rub'īyah. See 1st REBIA, RODHAH.] See MEASURE, Table.

re·bid' (rē·bĭd'), v. t. To bid again for; specif., Bridge, to bid (the same suit) again if it is outbid the first time.

re'bid' (rē'bĭd'), n. A renewed bid; specif., Bridge, a second (higher) bid of one's own previous bid.

re·bil'ling (rē·bĭl'ĭng), verbal n. The issuing of a new waybill at a junction point.

re·bind' (-bīnd'), v. t. To bind anew or again; esp., to put a new binding on (a book).

re'bind' (rē'bīnd'), n. Among bookbinders, etc., a rebound book.

re·birth' (rē·bûrth'; rē'bûrth'), n. 1. A new or second birth.

2. A renaissance; a revival.

reb'o·ant (rĕb'ō·ȧnt), adj. Also reb'o·an'tic (-ăn'tĭk). [L. reboans, pres. part. of reboare, fr. re- re- + boare to cry aloud.] Rebellowing; reverberating.

reb'o·a'tion (-ā'shŭn), n. A loud reverberation. Obs.

re·boil' (rē·boil'), v. t. & i. [OF. rebouillir.] 1. Obs. a To ferment again. b To boil or cause to boil up or over.

2. To boil or seethe again; specif., to boil water, as distilled water, again to remove from it occluded air and gases, as in ice making, where the presence of the latter produces white ice.

re·boise' (rē·boiz'), v. t. [F. reboiser, fr. re- re- + bois wood, forest.] To reafforest. — re·boise'ment (-mĕnt), n.

re·bolt' (rē·bōlt'), v. t. 1. To bolt again.

2. To saw or cut again into a bolt. See 3d BOLT, 8.

re·born' (rē·bôrn'), adj. Born again; having or experiencing a rebirth.

Re·bou'li·a (rē·bōō'lĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., after H. P. I. Reboul (1763–1839), French naturalist.] Bot. A large genus of hepatics (family Marchantiaceae), widely distributed on rocks and soil. The pseudoperianth is conspicuous and splits into fringelike lanceolate lobes. Syn. Asterella.

re·bound' (rē·bound'), v. [OF. rebondir to spring back, to re-echo (F. rebondir to spring back). See BOUND to spring.] Intransitive: 1. To spring back on collision or impact with another body.

Bodies which are absolutely hard, or so soft as to be void of elasticity, will not rebound from one another. Sir I. Newton.

2. To follow as a result;—through confusion with redound.

3. To reverberate; to resound; to re-echo.

4. To bound as if upon impact; to leap or spring; as, his heart rebounded with hope. Archaic.

—, Transitive: 1. To send back as if by a rebound; to cause to spring back; to return. Now Rare.

2. To re-echo or reflect; to reverberate. Now Rare.

Silenus sung; the vales his voice rebound. Dryden.

Syn. — REBOUND, RECOIL. REBOUND suggests a springing back, esp. after impact; RECOIL more frequently implies reaction after strain or stretching; as, a ball rebounds, a spring recoils. Figuratively, rebound suggests resilience after depression or the like; recoil connotes shrinking or revulsion; as, his spirits rebound readily; "He recoiled from the imagined burning" (G. Eliot); cf. "the sharpness of the recoil from one extreme of feeling to the other" (W. Pater). Cf. ELASTIC, SHRINK.

re·bound' (rē·bound'; rē'bound'), n. 1. Act of rebounding, or returning quickly to a previous state, place, condition, or the like; resilience.

Flew . . . back, as from a rock, with swift rebound. Dryden.

2. Something reverberated or returned, as an echo.

Such rebounds our inward ear Catches sometimes from afar. Wordsworth.

3. A mental or emotional recoil following disappointment, frustration, or the like; as, to marry on the rebound.

re·bound' (rē·bound'), adj. Bound again or anew.

rebound clip. A clip surrounding the back and one or two other leaves of a leaf spring, usually rigidly fastened to the shortest, to distribute the load during rebounds.

re·bound'er (rē·boun'dẽr), n. One who or that which rebounds; specif., Gun., a mechanism to cause the hammer to rebound to half cock after striking the cap or primer.

re·bound'ing, pres. part. & verbal n. of REBOUND.

rebounding hammer. The hammer in a rebounding lock.

rebounding lock. A gunlock having a rebounder.

rebound leaf. In a leaf spring, a leaf placed over the master leaf, of a curvature opposite to it, to limit the rebound and help carry the load imposed by it.

‖re·bo'zo (rā·bō'sō; 267), n. [Sp.] A plain or embroidered scarf of cotton or silk, worn over the head and shoulders. Chiefly Rural Spanish & Mexican.

re·broad'cast' (rē·brôd'kăst'; 83), v. t. & i. [See RE-, 2.] Radio. To broadcast (signals, programs, or other material) while receiving the same from another source. — re·broad'cast', n.

re·buff' (rē·bŭf'), n. [MF. rebuffe, fr. It. ribuffo, rabbuffo, fr. rabbuffare to censure, tousle, fr. baruffare to scuffle, quarrel, fr. OHG. biroufan.] 1. A curt rejection of solicitation; a brusque refusal to meet an advance or offer; a snub; as, to endure rebuffs for the sake of a cause; braving a rebuff, she spoke.

2. Any sharp check; a repulse; also, Rare, a repelling blast.

And they both [magpie, rabbit] will be gone at November's rebuff. Browning.

re·buff', v.; RE·BUFFED' (rē·bŭft'); RE·BUFF'ING. [MF. rebuffer.] Transitive: 1. To administer a rebuff to; to refuse or repulse curtly; to snub.

2. To drive, beat, or blow back.

—, Intransitive: To give a rebuff or rebuffs; to exert repelling power.

re·buff' (rē·bŭf'), v. t. See RE-, 2, & 5th BUFF.

re·build' (rē·bĭld'), v. t. To build again or to construct anew, usually the parts that are in good condition and some new parts being used; as, to rebuild a house, a wall, a typewriter, a wharf, or a city. — re·build'er (-bĭl'dẽr), n.

re·build' (rē·bĭld'; rē'bĭld'), n. Act of rebuilding; also, Chiefly Cant, something rebuilt, as an engine.

re·built' (rē·bĭlt'), adj. Of factory products, as typewriters, disassembled, reconstructed with new parts replacing those that are worn, and refinished.

re·buke' (rē·būk'), v. t.; RE·BUKED' (-būkt'); RE·BUK'ING (-būk'ĭng). [AF. rebuker, OF. rebuchier to repel; akin to OF. buschier to strike, beat (F. bûcher to hew), fr. busche (F. bûche) piece of wood. See AMBUSH.] 1. To check; to turn back; to repress; restrain; also, to beat. Now Rare.

Thou god of this great vast, rebuke these surges. Shak.

2. To check with reproof; to reprehend sharply; to chide or criticize severely; reprimand; as, to rebuke a person for a fault, or the lack of tact in a person; also, to serve as a rebuke to; as, your industry rebukes me.

Syn. and Ant. — See REPROVE.

re·buke' (rē·būk'), n. 1. Disgrace; ignominy; shame. Obs.

2. Reproach; reprobation; now usually, a sharp reproof; a reprimand.

Why bear you these rebukes and answer not? Shak.

3. Check; rebuff; also, a blow. Obs.

— to be without rebuke. To be blameless.

re·buk'er (rē·būk'ẽr), n. One who rebukes.

re'bus (rē'bŭs), n.; pl. REBUSES (-ĕz; -ĭz; 119). [L. rebus by things, abl. pl. of res a thing; cf. F. rébus, in OF. applied to certain satirical pieces composed in Picardy. See REAL actual.] 1. A mode of expressing words and phrases by pictures of objects whose names resemble those words, or the syllables of which they are composed; enigmatical representation of words by figures; hence, a peculiar form of riddle made up of such representations.

2. Her. A pictorial suggestion on a coat of arms of the name of the person to whom it belongs. See CANTING ARMS.

re'bus, v. t.; -BUSED (-bŭst); -BUS·ING. To mark with or indicate by a rebus or rebuses.

He [John Morton] had a fair library rebused with More in text and Tun under it. Fuller.

re·but' (rē·bŭt'), v.; RE·BUT'TED; RE·BUT'TING. [OF. rebouter to repulse, drive back, fr. re- + bouter to push, thrust. See BUTT to thrust; cf. BOUTADE, SACKBUT.] Transitive: 1. To revile; rate violently. Obs.

2. To drive or beat back; to repulse. Obs.

3. To check the advance of; to repel. Now Rare.

4. To contradict; to refute, esp. in a formal manner; to offer evidence and arguments in disproof.

5. Law. To contradict, meet, or oppose by argument, plea, or countervailing proof.

—, Intransitive: 1. To retire; recoil. Obs.

2. To make a rebuttal.

3. Curling. To play forcefully at random when the ice is blocked with curling stones, in hope of chance advantage.

4. Law. To make, or put in, an answer or counter proof, as to a plaintiff's surrejoinder.

re·bute' (rē·būt'), n. Repulse; rebuff. Scot.

re·but'tal (-būt'ȧl; -l), n. Act of rebutting; specif., Law, the giving of evidence in a suit to destroy the effect of evidence introduced by the other side in the same suit.

re·but'ter (-ẽr), n. [Prop. fr. OF. rebouter, inf. as n. See REBUT, v.] Law. The answer of a defendant in matter of fact to a plaintiff's surrejoinder.

re·but'ter, n. That which rebuts, or refutes.

re·ca'den·cy (rē·kā'dĕn·sĭ), n. [ML. recadere to fall back.] Relapse. Rare.

‖re·ca'do (rā·kä'thō; 112), n.; pl. -DOS (Sp. -thōs). [Sp. or Pg.] 1. A complimentary message; a gift.

2. A kind of saddle with its trappings. South Amer.

re·cal'ci·trance (rē·kăl'sĭ·trăns), n. Also re·cal'ci·tran·cy (-trăn·sĭ). [Cf. F. récalcitrance.] State of being recalcitrant; obstinate noncompliance. Froude.

re·cal'ci·trant (-trănt), adj. [L. recalcitrans, pres. part. of recalcitrare to kick back, fr. re- re- + calcitrare to kick, fr. calx heel; cf. F. récalcitrant. See INCULCATE.] Kicking back; recalcitrating; hence, stubbornly rebellious; obstinate in defying constituted authority; refractory; as, a recalcitrant minority, frame of mind.

Syn. and Ant. — See OBSTINATE.

re·cal'ci·trant, n. One who is recalcitrant.

re·cal'ci·trate (-trāt), v. i.; -TRAT'ED (-trāt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -TRAT'ING (-trāt'ĭng). To kick backwards; now, usually, to kick, or protest vigorously; to manifest stubborn opposition. — v. t. To kick back; hence, to reject, or spurn, with repugnance. Rare.

re·cal'ci·tra'tion (-trā'shŭn), n. A kicking back or against; opposition; repugnance; refractoriness.

re'ca·lesce' (rē'kȧ·lĕs'), v. i.; RE'CA·LESCED' (-lĕst'); RE'CA·LESC'ING (-lĕs'ĭng). [L. recalescere to grow warm.] Physics. To show recalescence.

re'ca·les'cence (-ĕns; -'ns), n. Metal. The sudden liberation of heat by a metal when cooling through a certain critical temperature, as pure iron at 690° C. Cf. DECALESCENCE. — re'ca·les'cent (-ĕnt; -'nt), adj.

recalescence point. Steel Mfg. The temperature, characterized by evolution of heat, at which carbon separates from slowly cooling steel, forming cementite and ferrite. In plain carbon steel the recalescence point is 690° C.

re·call' (rē·kôl'), v. t.; -CALLED' (-kôld'); -CALL'ING. 1. To call back; to summon to return; to cause to return, come back, etc., by or as if by calling; as, to recall troops from the front, one's wandering thoughts, or a person to life.

2. To call back to mind; to revive in memory; to recollect; to awaken recollection of; as, to recall bygone days; unable to recall myself to him.

3. To renew; revive; restore. Poetic.

Beauty . . . whose season was, and cannot be recalled. Wordsworth.

4. To revoke; annul; to take back; withdraw; as, to recall words, a decree, or a move at chess.

Syn. — Retract. See REMEMBER.

Ant. — Dismiss; forget; confirm.

re·call' (rē·kôl'; rē'kôl'), n. 1. A calling back; a summons to return; as, the recall of an ambassador.

2. Act of revoking, annulling, or the like; possibility of being revoked, etc.; as, a decision that is beyond recall.

3. Act or fact of recalling to mind; also, that which is recalled to mind; a memory; a recollection. Rare.

4. a Mil. A call on the trumpet, bugle, or drum, which calls soldiers back to the ranks, camp, etc. b Nav. A signal calling a boat or vessel back to a ship or squadron.

5. Polit. Science. a The right or procedure by which a public official, commonly a legislative or executive official, may be removed from office, before the end of his term of office, by a vote of the people to be taken on the filing of a petition signed by the required number of qualified voters (commonly 25 %). b Short for recall of judicial decisions, the right or procedure by which court decisions may be directly reversed or annulled by popular vote, as was advocated, in 1912, in the platform of the Progressive party for certain cases involving the police power of a State. It has been little used.

6. Psychol. Act of calling back to mind; that form of memory which consists in the revival of what has been previously learned or experienced; reproduction. Cf. RECOGNITION.

re·call′a·ble (rē·kôl′ə·b'l), adj. Capable of being recalled.
re·call′ist (-ĭst), n. One who advocates giving power of recall (sense 5) to the electorate.
re·call′ment (-mĕnt), n. Recall. Rare. re·cam′er·a (rē·kăm′ĕr·ə), n. [It. recamera, or Sp. recámara.] Retiring room. Obs.
re·cant′ (rē·kănt′), v.; -CANT′ED; -CANT′ING. [L. recantare, recantatum, to recall, recant, fr. re- re- + cantare to sing, to sound. See CHANT.] Trans.: 1. To withdraw or repudiate formally and publicly (opinions formerly expressed); to contradict, as a former declaration; to take back openly.
2. To retract; revoke; also, rarely, to abandon, or renounce.
How soon . . . ease would recant Vows made in pain, as violent and void! Milton.
3. To sing or tell again. Obs.
—, Intransitive: To retract a declaration, etc., esp. publicly; as, to induce a heretic to recant.
Syn. — Abjure, repudiate, revoke, disavow. See RENOUNCE. re·can·ta′tion (rē′kăn·tā′shŭn), n. Act of recanting; a recanted opinion, etc.; a retraction; as, a forced recantation.
re·cant′er (rē·kănt′ĕr), n. One who recants.
re·cap′i·tal·ize (rē·kăp′ĭ·tăl·īz), v. t. To capitalize again; to change the capital or capitalization of. — re·cap′i·tal·i·za′tion (-ĭ·zā′shŭn; -ĭ·zə̄′-), n.
re′ca·pit′u·late (rē′kə·pĭt′ū·lāt), v.; -LAT′ED (-lāt′ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -LAT′ING (-lāt′ĭng). [LL. recapitulare, recapitulatum, fr. re- re- + capitulum a small head chapter, section. See CAPITULATE.] Transitive: 1. To repeat or restate briefly, as the principal points in a discourse, argument, or essay; to give a summary or brief résumé of; to summarize; as, to recapitulate his argument in the peroration.
2. Biol. To repeat (ancestral stages) in the course of development.
—, Intransitive; To make a recapitulation; to pass through a recapitulation.
re′ca·pit′u·la′tion (-lā′shŭn), n. [F. or L.; F. récapitulation, fr. LL. recapitulatio.] 1. Act of recapitulating; a concise summary of principal points, facts, or the like; a summing up.
2. Biol. Repetition, in an individual, of phylogenetic development.
3. Music. The third part of a sonata form. See SONATA FORM.
re′ca·pit′u·la′tion·ist (-ĭst), n. Evolution. One who believes in the recapitulation theory.
recapitulation theory. 1. Biol. The theory that an organism passes through successive stages resembling the series of ancestral types from which it has descended, the ontogeny of the individual being a recapitulation of the phylogeny of its group; the "fundamental biogenetic law" of Haeckel. The theory is supported by observable facts in the development of many animals, but in more cases deviations due to adaptation to environment, abbreviation of the course of development, etc., are too many to permit of very close comparison of the ontogeny and phylogeny.
2. Theol. The theory of Irenaeus that the Logos passed through all phases of human experience, thus reversing the evil processes caused by sin and winning complete salvation for man.
re′ca·pit′u·la′tive (rē′kə·pĭt′ū·lā′tĭv), adj. Of or pertaining to recapitulation, esp., biological recapitulation.
re′ca·pit′u·la′tor (rē′kə·pĭt′ū·lā′tĕr), n. One who recapitulates. Rare.
re′ca·pit′u·la·to′ry (-lə·tō′rĭ; -tĕr·ĭ), adj. Of the nature of a recapitulation; containing recapitulation.
re·cap′per (rē·kăp′ĕr), n. Firearms. A tool for applying a fresh percussion cap or primer to a cartridge shell or case.
re·cap′tion (rē·kăp′shŭn), n. Law. Act of retaking, as of one who has escaped after arrest; reprisal; the peaceable retaking of one's own goods, chattels, wife, or children, from one who has taken and wrongfully detains them.
re·cap′tor (rē·kăp′tŏr), n. 1. Internat. Law. One who recaptures; one who takes a prize which had been previously taken.
2. Law. One who recovers (something) by recaption.
re·cap′ture (rē·kăp′tŭr), n. 1. Act of retaking or recovering by capture, or fact of being so retaken; specif.: Internat. Law, the retaking of a prize or goods. In general recapture devests the property acquired in captured booty or prize. Cf. POSTLIMINIUM, 1.
2. That which is recaptured; a prize retaken.
3. Law, U. S. In public utility law, a taking by the public of earnings or profits beyond some fixed amount.
re·cap′ture, adj. Law. Designating the statute or the clause of a charter or franchise providing for recapture (sense 3).
re·cap′ture (rē-), v. t. 1. To capture, or seize again, as a prize.
2. To regain; recover; to bring to memory; recall.
The glad, rebellious excitement they (his books) had once caused in the world he could recapture only in memory. Willa Cather.
3. Law. To take a portion of earnings or profits above a fixed amount. Cf. RECAPTURE, n., 3. recapture clause. Railroad Accounting. A provision in the Transportation Act of 1920, by which one half of all railroad net income above six per cent per annum of the valuation fixed by the Interstate Commerce Commission must be paid over to that body to establish a general railroad contingent fund.
re·car′bon (rē·kär′bŏn), v. t. Also re·car′bon·ize (-īz). To recarburize. — re′car·bon·i·za′tion (rē′kär·bŏn·ĭ·zā′shŭn; -ĭ·zə̄′-), n. — re·car′bon·iz′er (-kär′bŏn·īz′ĕr). re·car′bu·rize (rē·kär′bū·rīz), v. t. To carburize again; to restore carbon to. See BESSEMER PROCESS. — re′car·bu·ri·za′tion (rē′kär·bū·rĭ·zā′shŭn; -rĭ·zā′shŭn), n.
re·car′bu·riz′er (-rīz′ĕr), n. A reagent that recarburizes, as spiegeleisen (used in recarburizing iron). re·cast′ (rē·kăst′; 83), v.; -CAST′; -CAST′ING. Transitive: 1. To throw again; esp., Angling, to make a second cast of (a line).
2. To cast or found anew; to remold or remodel; hence, to throw into a new or different form; as, to recast cannon, a poem, or a sentence.
3. To compute, or cast up, a second time, as a horoscope. Rare.
4. To provide a new cast, or set of actors, for; as, to recast a play.
—, Intransitive: To throw or cast a second time; esp., Angling, to make a second cast; to renew casting. re·cast′ (-kăst′; rē′kăst′; 83), n. Act or instance of recasting; also, the product of recasting.
re·cast′er (rē·kăs′tĕr), n. One who recasts. re′cau·les′cence (rē′kô·lĕs′ĕns; -′ns), n. [See RE-; CAULESCENT.] Bot. Adnation of a leaf or its petiole to a branch. Rare.
re·cede′ (rē·sēd′), v.; -CED′ED (-sēd′ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -CED′ING (-sēd′ĭng). [L. recedere, recessum, fr. re- re- + cedere to go, to go along. See CEDE.] Intransitive: 1. To move back or away; to withdraw, esp. from view; to fall or draw back from a given line or position; to retreat; retire; as, to watch the tides recede; the hills receded into the distance as we rode away; a disease that causes gums to recede. "The woods recede around the naked seat." Pope.
2. To depart or deviate, as from one's true or native state, an authority, or a principle; also, to differ, or vary. Rare.
3. To withdraw, as a party to an agreement, a sponsor, a supporter, an opponent, or the like; — usually with from; as, a contract from which neither can recede; the president finally receded from his position.
—, Transitive: To retract; also, to move back or away. R.
Syn. — Retrograde. Ant. — Advance, progress.
re·cede′ (rē·sēd′), v. t. [re- + cede; cf. F. recéder. Cf. 1st RECEDE.] To cede back; to grant or yield again to a former possessor; as, to recede conquered territory.
re·ced′ence (rē·sēd′ĕns), n. Act of receding; recession.
re·ced′ent (rē·sēd′ĕnt), adj. Retrocedent.
re·ced′er (rē·sēd′ĕr), n. One who or that which recedes; specif., a device in a sawmill to recede the knees of the head blocks a sufficient distance to take on another log when the last board of the previous log has dropped.
re·ceipt′ (rē·sēt′), n. [ME., receite, fr. OF. recete, recepte (F. recette), fr. L. recepta, fr. past part. of recipere, receptum, to receive. See RECEIVE.] 1. A formula according to the directions of which things are to be taken or combined, or some effect is to be produced; a recipe; as, a receipt for making sponge cake; — used esp. in medicine (now rare), cookery, and industrial chemistry.
She had a receipt to make white hair black. Sir T. Browne.
2. Act of receiving; also, the fact of receiving or being received. "At the receipt of your letter." Shak.
3. That which is received; that which comes in, in distinction from what is expended, paid out, sent away, and the like; — usually in pl.; as, the gross receipts.
4. Place of receiving, esp. of receiving money. Now Hist.
A man . . . sitting at the receipt of custom. Matt. ix. 9.
5. A writing acknowledging the taking or receiving of goods or money delivered or paid. A receipt, even a receipt in full, is merely presumptive evidence, and may be disputed. In some cases by statute a person making a payment may demand a receipt as a condition of payment.
6. A means of cure, remedy, or attainment; expedient.
The newest receipt for avoiding calumny. Sheridan.
7. Obs. a A mixture made according to a formula; also, pl., ingredients of a formulated compound. b Reception; specif. (1) Admittance, as to a receptacle or to an inn. (2) Partaking, as of food. (3) Acceptance. (4) Act of receiving the Sacrament. (5) Reception as an act of hospitality, etc. c A receptacle, as a basin or reservoir; also, a place for reception of persons, as for refuge or accommodation; hence, a chamber. d Capacity for receiving or containing; size. e Mental capacity.
8. Hunting. A place of waiting with fresh dogs to attack the game, or the persons and dogs in waiting. Obs.
Syn. — RECEIPT, RECIPE. RECEIPT, in the sense of a cookery formula, is now used less often than RECIPE. See RECEPTION. re·ceipt′ (rē·sēt′), v. t.; -CEIPT′ED; -CEIPT′ING. a Rare. U. S. To give a receipt for. b To put a receipt on; to mark paid; as, to receipt a bill. — v. i. To give a receipt, as for money. U. S. Rare. re·ceipt′ (rē·sēt′), v. t. [OF. receter.] To receive; — said esp. of harboring criminals. — re·ceipt′er (-ĕr), n. — re·ceipt′ment, n. All Obs.
receipt book. A book containing receipts or recipes.
re·ceipt′or (rē·sēt′ĕr), n. One who receipts; specif., Law, one who receipts as bailee for property taken by the sheriff.
re·ceiv′a·ble (rē·sēv′ə·b'l), adj. [Cf. F. recevable.] 1. Capable of being received; that may be received; specif., acceptable as legal or as legal tender; as, receivable testimony, evidence, certificates.
2. Such that payment is due or callable; as bills receivable.
3. Able to receive; receptive.
— re·ceiv′a·bil′i·ty (-bĭl′ĭ·tĭ), re·ceiv′a·ble·ness, n.
re·ceiv′a·bles (-b'lz), n. pl. Accounting. Accounts, accepted bills, or notes created in the course of business, due from others, or becoming due at an assignable date.
re·ceiv′al (rē·sēv′ăl), n. Act of receiving; receipt.
re·ceive′ (rē·sēv′), v.; RE·CEIVED′ (-sēvd′); RE·CEIV′ING (-sēv′ĭng). [OF. receivre, later recevoir (F. recevoir), fr. L. recipere, fr. re- re- + capere to take, seize. See HEAVE; cf. RECEIPT, RECEPTACLE, RECEPTION, RECIPE, RECOVER.] Transitive: 1. To take, as something that is offered, given, committed, sent, paid, or the like; to accept; as, to receive payment, a gift, a letter, homage.
2. To admit; to take in; accommodate with shelter; hence, to have capacity for; to hold; contain.
The brazen altar that was before the Lord was too little to receive the burnt offerings. 1 Kings viii. 64.
3. To give (one) admittance; to permit to enter, as into one's house, presence, company, and the like; as, to receive a lodger, visitor, ambassador, messenger, etc.; hence, to recognize the presence of; to greet; as, to receive an actor or speaker with applause or with hisses.
4. To admit or accept in some character or capacity; as, to receive one as guide or servant.
5. To come into possession of, get, acquire, or the like, from any source outside of oneself or itself, without direct effort; hence, to experience; to be subjected to; to undergo; as, to receive sympathy, blessings, pain, instruction; the earth receives the rain; to receive a mortal wound; to receive a summons or sentence.
6. To take in at the mouth, as food or the sacrament. Archaic.
For fear of opening my lips and receiving the bad air. Shak.
7. To gain the knowledge of from some communication; as, to receive news or a warning; also, Now Rare, to take into the mind with assent; to accept as true, valid, or the like; to believe; of a custom or practice, to adopt or follow; hence, to apprehend; learn; comprehend.
Our hearts receive your warnings. Shak.
The idea of solidity we receive by our touch. Locke.
Many other things there be which they have received to hold, as the washing of cups, and pots. Mark vii. 4.
8. To allow, or undergo, the imposition, impact, or the like, of; to support, catch, bear, or the like; to take, as an impression, puncture, or the like; as, to receive an enemy's charge; a mirror receives and reflects rays; to receive a weight on one's back, a blow on one's shield.
His tenderer cheek receives her soft hand's print. Shak.
9. To take from a thief, as goods known to be stolen.
10. Astrol. To admit (a planet entering a house) as subject to the influence of a planet situated there in an essential dignity.
—, Intransitive: 1. To be a recipient; to get; accept; admit; — sometimes with of.
It is more blessed to give than to receive. Acts xx. 35.
2. a To receive the Sacrament. b To receive visitors; to be at home to receive calls; as, she receives on Tuesdays.
3. Radio. To convert incoming radio waves into perceptible signals.
Syn. — See TAKE. Ant. — Decline, reject. See GIVE.
receive a report. Parl. Practice. To take a report of a committee under consideration, with no implication of assent or dissent; — said of an assembly. Cf. ACCEPT, v. t., 6.
re·ceived′ (rē·sēvd′), adj. Of speech or language, generally accepted and conformed to; as, received pronunciation; received standard English.
re·ceived′ness (rē·sēvd′nĕs; -nĭs), n. Receivableness. R. received pronunciation. In British use, the form of English spoken at the public schools (Eton, Rugby, etc.), at the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge, at the Court, and by many educated Englishmen elsewhere; — called also received standard, and public-school pronunciation.
Received Standard dialect. See DIALECT, n., 4. received text. See TEXT, n., 9. re·ceiv′er (rē·sēv′ĕr), n. [Cf. F. receveur.] 1. One who takes or receives in any manner; hence, variously, a catcher, breaker, porter, etc.
2. One who receives on behalf of others; a person appointed to receive money due; a treasurer.
3. One who takes or buys stolen goods from a thief, knowing them to be stolen.
4. That which receives; a receptacle, as the glass vessel or bell jar of an air pump. See AIR PUMP, Illust.
5. Chem. a A vessel connected with a retort, condenser, or the like, to receive (and sometimes to condense) the product of distillation. See RETORT, Illust. b A vessel to receive and contain gases.
6. Elec. That portion of a telegraphic or telephonic apparatus by which the electric currents or waves are converted into visible or audible signals.
7. Firearms. In portable breech-loading firearms, the steel frame screwed to the breech end of the barrel, which receives the bolt or block, gives means of securing for firing, facilitates loading, and holds the ejector, cutoff, etc.
8. Law. a A person appointed, ordinarily by a court of equity jurisdiction, to receive, and hold in trust, money or other property which is the subject of litigation, pending the suit, as in case of a person incompetent to manage his property, or of the dissolution and winding up of a partnership or a corporation, etc. The receiver is an officer of the court, and the property held as such by him is not subject to process other than in the case itself. He often obtains authority to continue and manage the business as a going concern. b U. S. A person appointed under a statute by some administrative officer to wind up some business of public interest, such as a bank.
9. Ordn. In a breech mechanism, the frame or main body of the lock.
10. Radio. a A receiving set. b A receiving station. c A person operating a receiving station.
11. Steam Engines. a A vessel in an expansion engine whose pistons are not in phase, for receiving the exhaust steam from any cylinder for distribution to another working at a lower pressure. b A vessel for receiving steam from a boiler, and supplying it dry to an engine.
re·ceiv′er·gen′er·al, n.; pl. RECEIVERS-GENERAL. One in charge of receipts in general.
re·ceiv′er's cer·tif′i·cate (rē·sēv′ĕrz). An acknowledgment of indebtedness made by a receiver under order of court to obtain funds for the preservation of the assets held by him, as for operating a railroad. Receiver's certificates are ordinarily a first lien on the assets, prior to that of bonds or other securities.
re·ceiv′er·ship (rē·sēv′ĕr·shĭp), n. Law. 1. The office or function of a receiver appointed by a court or under a statute.
2. The state or condition of being in the hands of a receiver; as, to put a corporation into, or under, receivership.
re·ceiv′ing (-ĭng), pres. part. & verbal n. of RECEIVE. receiving gauge. See GAUGE, n., 10. receiving note. Com. See SHIPPING NOTE. receiving order. Eng. Law. An order made by the bankruptcy court appointing a receiver for the bankrupt's estate.
receiving set. Radio. A set of apparatus for receiving radio signals; specif., the portion of a complete receiving station which receives a radio-frequency current from the antenna and converts it into an audio-frequency current which is then made audible by the telephone receiver. It includes tuner and detector and may include an amplifier.
receiving ship. A ship, usually moored at a navy yard and unfit for sea, used for new recruits, men in transit between stations, etc.
receiving station. Radio. An assemblage of equipment to receive radio waves, including an antenna, receiving set, and telephone receiver.
receiving tube (of the kidney). = COLLECTING TUBULE. re′cen·cy (rē′sĕn·sĭ; -s'n·sĭ), n. [Cf. ML. recentia, fr. L. recens. See RECENT.] State or quality of being recent, or near in past time. re·cense′ (rē·sĕns′), v. t. [F. or L.; F. recenser, fr. L. recensere, fr. re- again + censere to value, estimate.] To review; revise; now, usually, to make a recension of (a text).
re·cen′sion (rē·sĕn′shŭn), n. [F. or L.; F. recension, fr. L. recensio.] 1. Act of reviewing or revising; review; examination; enumeration. Now Rare.
2. Specif.: a A revising of a text (as of an ancient author) by an editor; esp., critical revision with intent to establish a definitive text. b The result of such work; a text so established.
— re·cen′sion·ist, re·cen′sor (-sĕr), n.
re·cen′sure (rē·sĕn′shĕr), n. A censure in response. — re·cen′sure, v. t.

re·cam·paign′, v. t. See RE-, 2.
re·can′cel, v. t. See RE-, 2. — re′can·cel·la′tion, n.
re·can·des′cence (rē′kăn·dĕs′ĕns; -ns), n. See RE-, 2.
re·can′di·da·cy, n. See RE-, 2.
re·can′ting·ly, adv. of recanting, pres. part.
re·can′vas, v. t. See RE-, 2.
re·car′ri·er, n., re·car′ry, v. t., re·cart′, v. t., re·carve′, v. t., re·case′, v. t., re·cash′, v. t., re·cas′ket, v. t. See RE-, 2.
re·cast′ing, pres. part. & verbal n. of RECAST.
re·cat′a·logue, v. t. See RE-, 2. re·catch′, v. t. See RE-, 2.
re·cau′do. + RECADO.
re·caus′ti·cize, v. t. See RE-, 2. recche, v. t. [AS. reccean.] To tell; explain; interpret. Obs. recche. + REACH, RECK, RETCH. reccheless, etc. + RECKLESS, etc. recead. + RECEDE.
re·ceipt′a·ble, adj. See -ABLE.
re·ceipt′less, adj. See -LESS. re·ceiv′, re·ceiv′a·bl. Receive; receivable. Ref. Sp.
re·ceivd′. Received. Ref. Sp.
re·cel′e·brate, v. i., re′cel·e·bra′tion, n., re′ce·ment′, v. i., re′cementa′tion, n. See RE-, 2.

re'cent (rē'sĕnt; -s'nt), adj. [F. récent, fr. L. recens, -entis, akin to MIr. cinim I arise from, descend from, Gr. kainos new, Skr. kanīna young, OSlav. iskoni from the beginning. Cf. RINSE.] 1. Lately (relatively or absolutely) formed, created, developed, used, etc.; as, recent rivers, nobility, buds, or tissue.

Almost before the recent ink is dry. Keats.

2. Of or pertaining to a time relatively near; not of comparatively remote times; as, Gothic architecture is more recent than Romanesque; recent geological ages; the most recent medieval romances.

3. Of the present period or the very near past; belonging to or happening at a time just before the immediate present; fresh; new; current; as, of recent date; recent events, developments, rains, novels, or news.

4. [cap.] Geol. Pertaining to or designating the present or existing epoch, which is dated from the close of the Pleistocene. The period has also been called the Diluvial, or Human period. See GEOLOGY, Chart.

Syn. — See NEW. Ant. — See OLD.

re'cept (rē'sĕpt), n. [L. receptum, neut. past part. of recipere. See RECEIVE; cf. CONCEPT, PERCEPT.] 1. Psychol. A mental image or idea formed by successive percepts of the same or like objects, accentuating their common characters.

2. Physiol. The disturbance in a sense organ generated by a stimulus.

re·cept' (rē·sĕpt'). Var. of RESET. Obs. exc. Scot.

re·cep'ta·cle (rē·sĕp'tȧ·k'l; -tĭ·k'l; formerly rĕs'ĕp·tȧ·k'l or rĕs'ĕp·tăk''l), n. [L. receptaculum, fr. receptare, v. intens. fr. recipere to receive. See RECEIVE.] 1. That which serves, or is used, for receiving and containing or sheltering; a repository; now, usually, a container; a holder; as, a receptacle for refuse.

2. Bot. a = TORUS, 3 a. b An intercellular cavity containing oil, resin, or other secretion products. c In cryptogamous plants, an organized structure, with or without a stalk, containing reproductive bodies, as an outgrowth of tissue or modified branch bearing sporangia. Thus in certain seaweeds (as Fucus), the receptacles are the swollen tips of the thallus branches; in fungi, any of various envelopes or structures surrounding or supporting a fructification, whatever their form; in certain liverworts (as Marchantia), the umbrellalike outgrowths of the thallus bearing sex organs; in ferns, the placenta. The term is also applied to the gemma cups in liverworts.

3. Elec. A permanently mounted female electrical fitting, containing the live parts of the circuit, as a lamp holder, or a device for receiving detachable plugs or caps.

rec'ep·tac'u·lar (rĕs'ĕp·tăk'ū·lĕr; rē'sĕp-), adj. Bot. Pertaining to the receptacle, or growing on it.

Re'cep·tac'u·lit'i·dae (rē'sĕp·tăk'ū·lĭt'ĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL., fr. L. receptaculum receptacle.] Paleontol. A family regarded as hexactinellid sponges, found in Mid-Paleozoic rocks. They are cup-shaped or pyriform, and the surface is covered with lozenge-shaped plates formed by the expanded ends of spicules. The type genus is Re'cep·tac'u·li'tes (-lī'tēz). — re'cep·tac'u·lite (-tăk'ū·līt), n. — re'cep·tac'u·li'tid (-lī'tĭd), n. — re'cep·tac'u·li'toid (-toid), adj.

rec'ep·tac'u·lum (rĕs'ĕp·tăk'ū·lŭm; rē'sĕp-), n.; pl. -LA (-lȧ). [L.] A receptacle.

‖re'cep·ta'cu·lum chy'li (rĕs'ĕp·tăk'ū·lŭm kī'lī). [L.] = CISTERNA CHYLI.

rec'ep·tac'u·lum sem'i·nis (sĕm'ĭ·nĭs). [L.] Zool. A receptacle or sac connected with the female reproductive organs of many animals, in which semen is received.

re·cep'tant (rē·sĕp'tȧnt), adj. Receiving. Rare.

re·cep'ti·ble (rē·sĕp'tĭ·b'l), adj. [LL. receptibilis.] Such as may be received; receivable; also, capable of receiving; receptive; as, receptible ideas or minds. — re·cep'ti·bil'i·ty (-bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n.

re·cep'tion (rē·sĕp'shŭn), n. [OF., fr. L. receptio, fr. recipere, -ceptum. See RECEIVE.] 1. Act of receiving, or state of being received; receipt; admission; as, the reception of food into the stomach; the reception of a letter, of sensation or ideas, of evidence.

2. Act of receiving into a place, company, or status; esp., the formal receiving of visitors; entertainment; an occasion or ceremony of receiving guests.

What reception a poem may find. Goldsmith.

3. Manner of receiving; as, a kind or cold reception.

4. The act or fact of receiving and accepting as one's own, an opinion or doctrine, or the like; the fact of being so received or accepted; adoption; as, a world ready for the reception of Christianity; ideas that had a favorable reception. Specif., apprehension by the senses or mind; intuition; as, sense reception, organs of reception.

The modern historian of Germany will speak of "the Reception" (that is, the reception of Roman law), as no less important than the Renaissance and Reformation with which it is intimately connected. Encyc. Brit.

Philosophers who have quitted the popular doctrines of their countries have fallen into as extravagant opinions as even common reception countenanced. Locke.

5. Obs. a A retaking; a recovery. b A place or thing for receiving. c Ability to receive; capacity.

6. Astrol. The act or state of being received. See RECEIVE, v. t., 10.

7. Radio. Act or process of receiving.

Syn. — RECEPTION, RECEIPT. RECEPTION denotes the act, process, or fashion of receiving; RECEIPT denotes esp. the fact of being received; as, his reception of your letter surprised me; to acknowledge receipt of a letter; the house is ready for the reception (not receipt) of its occupants.

reception hall. Arch. An entrance hall adapted to the reception of guests.

re·cep'tion·ism (rē·sĕp'shŭn·Iz'm), n. The view that in the Communion the bread and wine remain as such, but that with them the faithful communicant receives the body and blood of Christ.

re·cep'tion·ist (-Ĭst), n. 1. One who believes in the doctrine of receptionism.

2. An office employee, usually a woman, who greets callers. Colloq., U. S.

reception room. A room for the formal reception of guests.

re'cep·ti'tious (rē'sĕp·tĭsh'ŭs), adj. [L. recepticius.] Roman Law. Literally, kept or to be had back; reserved; — specif. of dowry to be returned by agreement to the donor on the husband's decease.

re·cep'tive (rē·sĕp'tĭv), adj. [ML. receptivus. See RECEIPT.] 1. Having the quality of receiving; able or inclined to take in, absorb, hold, or contain; as, a receptive mind.

Imaginary space is receptive of all bodies. Glanvill.

2. Physiol. & Psychol. Pertaining to receptors or to the reception of stimuli; sensory.

— re·cep'tive·ly, adv. — re·cep'tive·ness, n.

receptive spot. Bot. The light-colored spot in an egg or oösphere at which the male gamete or sperm enters.

re'cep·tiv'i·ty (rē'sĕp·tĭv'ĭ·tĭ; rĕs'ĕp-), n. State or quality of being receptive; specif., Kantianism, the power or capacity of receiving impressions; sensibility.

re·cep'tor (rē·sĕp'tĕr), n. [OF. receptour, fr. L. receptor.] 1. A receiver; as: a One who shelters fugitives from justice; also, a receiver (sense 3). b A kind of basin to receive the water of a shower bath.

2. Astrol. The planet that receives; a dispositor.

3. Biochem. & Immunol. A hypothetical side chain occurring in or detached from living protoplasm, having an affinity for specific chemical substances, including food substances, toxins, drugs, etc. According to the side-chain theory, an excess of free receptors for a specific toxin in the blood would render this toxin harmless by forming stable combinations with it.

4. Physiol. A cell or group of cells functioning in the reception of stimuli; a sense organ.

5. Telephony. A receiver. See RECEIVER, 6.

6. Wireless Teleg. The entire receiving apparatus.

— re·cep'to·ral (-tō·rȧl), adj. — re'cep·to'ri·al (rē'sĕp·tō'rĭ·ȧl; rĕs'ĕp-), adj.

re·cep'tu·al (-tū·ȧl), adj. [Cf. RECEPT.] 1. Receptive. Obs.

2. Of the nature of, or pertaining to, recepts.

— re·cep'tu·al·ly, adv.

re·cer'ce·lée' (rē·sûr'sĕ·lā'), adj. Also re·cer'ce·lé'. [OF. recercelé, past part., curled, curly.] Her. With ends divided and curling back on each side like rams' horns; — said of a cross moline. — re·cer'ce·lée', re·cer'ce·lé', n.

re·cess' (rē·sĕs'; rē'sĕs; 277; the 2d pron. is now usual in the U. S. for a period of intermission), n. [L. recessus, fr. recedere, recessum. See RECEDE.] 1. A withdrawing or retiring; retreat; retirement. Obs.

My recess hath given them confidence. Eikon Basilike.

2. A receding, or going back; recession, as of the tides.

3. A space formed by an indentation, cleft, or the like, in a straight line or in a surface bounded by a line conceived of as straight; as, a recess in a coast line; specif., in a room, an alcove, niche, or the like.

4. A place of retirement, retreat, secrecy, or seclusion.

5. Secret or abstruse part; as, the difficulties and recesses of science. I. Watts.

6. Remission or suspension of business or procedure for a comparatively short time; a short intermission, as of a legislative body, court, or school.

The recess of . . . Parliament lasted six weeks. Macaulay.

7. State of being withdrawn; seclusion; privacy. Obs.

Good verse recess and solitude requires. Dryden.

8. Bot. & Anat. A cleft or sinus.

9. [G.] German Hist. A decree or ordinance of the German Imperial Diet or of the Diet of the Hanseatic League; as, the Frankfort recess of 1558, which attempted to reconcile the orthodox Lutherans and the Philippists, or the Lubeck recess of 1614, which became the maritime law of all the cities of the League. Hist.

re·cess' (rē·sĕs'), v.; RE·CESSED' (-sĕst'); RE·CESS'ING. Transitive: 1. To put into a recess; to set back; to seclude or conceal in a recess; retire; — chiefly in past part.; as, a recessed bed or plug.

2. To make a recess in; as, to recess a wall.

——, Intransitive: To take a recess. Colloq., U. S.

recess appointment. Polit. Science. The power granted to the president by the Constitution (Art. II, sec. 2, § 3) to fill vacancies by appointment when the Senate is not in session. U. S.

recess bed. A bed so constructed that it may be folded and stood or hung vertically in a recess or closet, when not in use.

recess committee. A committee of a legislative body appointed to make an investigation or prepare agenda in the interval between sessions.

re'cessed' arch (rē'sĕst'; 66). Arch. One of a series of arches one within another to correspond with splayed jambs of a doorway.

re·cess'er (rē·sĕs'ĕr), n. One who recesses studs, bobbins, etc.

re·ces'sion (rē·sĕsh'ŭn), n. [L. recessio, fr. recedere, recessum. See RECEDE.] 1. Act, fact, or appearance of receding or retiring; withdrawal. "The recession of the dome of St. Peter's." Ruskin.

Mercy may rejoice upon the recessions of justice. Jer. Taylor.

2. The process by which waterfalls gradually shear back the bed of a stream, because of undercutting at the base and breakage of the rock at the top.

3. The return procession, as of clergy and choir after a service.

re'ces'sion (rē'sĕsh'ŭn), n. [re- + cession.] Act of ceding back; restoration; as, the recession of conquered territory.

re·ces'sion·al (rē·sĕsh'ŭn·ȧl; -'l), adj. 1. Of or pertaining to recession.

2. Pertaining to, or done in, a recess, or interval. Rare.

3. Designating or pertaining to marginal moraines left by a retreating glacier or ice sheet at a halt in its retrogression. Recessional moraines are similar to terminal moraines in shape, material, and mode of formation.

re·ces'sion·al, n. a A recessional hymn. b Any musical piece played at the end of a play, service, performance, or the like, while the audience is leaving.

Re·ces'sion·al, The. A poem (1897) by Rudyard Kipling, on the occasion of the 60th anniversary of Queen Victoria's accession to the throne.

recessional hymn. A hymn sung during the recession of the clergy and choir from the chancel to the robing room.

re·ces'sion·ar'y (rē·sĕsh'ŭn·ĕr'ĭ or, esp. Brit., -ēr'ĭ), adj. Recessive.

re·ces'sive (rē·sĕs'ĭv), adj. 1. Tending to go back; receding.

2. Biol. Designating that member of a pair of allelomorphs which, when both contrasting factors are present, is subordinate to the other in its manifestation; as, a recessive factor, which gives rise (in the homozygous state) to a recessive character. Cf. DOMINANT; see MENDEL'S LAW.

— re·ces'sive·ly, adv. — re·ces'sive·ness, n.

re·ces'sive, n. Biol. a A recessive character or factor. b An organism possessing one or more recessive characters.

recessive accent. Phonet. Accent, or stress, thrown back toward or to the first syllable of a word.

Rech'ab·ite (rĕk'ȧ·bīt), n. [LL. Rechabita.] Jewish Hist. One of the descendants of Jonadab, son of Rechab, all of whom by Jonadab's injunction abstained from living in houses, from using intoxicating drinks, and from planting the vine. Jer. XXXV. 2–19. Hence: a An abstainer from alcoholic liquors; specif., one of a society of such abstainers, the Independent Order of Rechabites, founded in England in 1835. b One who lives in tents. — Rech'ab·it·ism (-bĭt·Iz'm), n.

re·change' (rē·chānj'), n. 1. Re-exchange. Obs.

2. A changing again or back.

re·change', v. t. & i. [Cf. F. rechanger.] 1. To re-exchange. Obs.

2. To change again.

re·charge' (rē·chärj'), v. t. & i. [re- + charge; cf. F. recharger.] 1. To supply with a new charge; to reload.

2. To charge, or accuse, in retaliation or again.

3. To charge or attack, again, anew, or in return.

re·charge', n. Act of recharging; also, a new, repeated, or retaliatory charge; specif., a new load.

re·char'ter (rē·chär'tĕr), v. t. To charter again or anew.

re·char'ter (rē·chär'tĕr), n. A second or renewed charter.

re·chase' (-chās'), v. t. [Cf. F. rechasser.] To chase again, or back. — re·chas'er (-chās'ĕr), n.

re·chase', n. & v. [The n. is perh. fr. an OF. nom. sing. See RECHEAT, n. & v.] Recheat. Obs.

‖ré'chauf'fé' (rā'shō'fā'), n.; pl. RÉCHAUFFÉS (-fā'). [F., orig. past part. of réchauffer to warm over. See CHAFE, v. t.] A dish of food that has been warmed again; hence, figuratively, something made up from old material; a rehash.

It is merely a réchauffé of ancient philosophies. F. W. H. Myers.

‖ré'chauf'fé' (rā'shō'fā'), part. adj. masc., ré'chauf'fée' (-fā'), part. adj. fem. [F.] Warmed over; — of a dish or of food; hence, figuratively, of or pertaining to rehashed material; worked over again.

re·cheat' (rē·chēt'), n. [ME. rechate. See RECHEAT, v. i.] Hunting. A strain on the horn to call together the hounds; also, the act of so calling the hounds. Archaic.

re·cheat', v. i. [ME. rechaten, fr. OF. rachater, racheter, to rally, assemble.] To blow the recheat. Obs.

re·cher'ché' (rē·shĕr'shā'; rē·shär'shā), adj. [F. See RESEARCH.] Sought out with care; choice; hence, of rare quality, elegance, or attractiveness, peculiar and refined in kind; also, farfetched. Often Jocose or Satirical.

‖Recht (rĕkt), n.; pl. RECHTE (rĕk'tĕ). [G.] Law. A (legal) right; also, law (in the abstract).

re·cid'i·vate (rē·sĭd'ĭ·vāt), v. i. [ML. recidivare. See RECIDIVOUS.] To fall back; to relapse. Obs.

re·cid'i·va'tion (-vā'shŭn), n. [ML. recidivatio.] 1. A falling back; a backsliding; apostasy; relapse. Obs.

2. Criminol. = RECIDIVISM.

rec'i·dive (rĕs'ĭ·dīv), v. i. To relapse; to be recurrent; — chiefly in pres. part.; as, a recidiving sprain.

rec'i·dive (rĕs'ĭ·dĭv), adj. [See RECIDIVOUS.] Relapsing. Obs. — n. [F. récidive.] Relapse; relapser. Rare.

re·cid'i·vism (rē·sĭd'ĭ·vĭz'm), n. State or quality of being recidivous; relapse, specif., Criminol., a falling back or relapse into prior criminal habits, esp. after punishment.

re·cid'i·vist (-vĭst), n. One who is recidivous or has been guilty of recidivism; an incorrigible criminal. — re·cid'i·vis'tic (-vĭs'tĭk), adj.

re·cid'i·vous (-vŭs), adj. [L. recidivus, fr. recidere to fall back.] Relapsing; tending to or marked by recidivism; as, recidivous ex-convicts.

rec'i·pe (rĕs'ĭ·pē), n.; pl. -PES (-pēz). [L., imperative of recipere to take back, take in, receive. See RECEIVE.] 1. A formula or prescription for compounding a medicine or remedy; also, the preparation so compounded; — now usually prescription.

2. A formula for making a dish in cookery; a receipt; — now often preferred to receipt.

3. A means prescribed for producing a desired result; a set formula or pattern. "Too often they [Hugo's characters] seem made after a recipe." C. L. Moore.

Syn. — See RECEIPT.

rec'i·pe (rĕs'ĭ·pē), v. t. [See RECIPE, n.] Take; — used in physicians' prescriptions.

re·cip'i·an'gle (rē·sĭp'ĭ·ăng'g'l), n. [F. récipiangle, fr. L. recipere to take + angulus angle.] Fort. An obsolete instrument with two arms pivoted and a graduated arc for measuring angles.

re·cip'i·ence (rē·sĭp'ĭ·ĕns), n. Also re·cip'i·en·cy (-ĕn·sĭ). Act of receiving or state of being recipient; receptiveness.

re·cip'i·end (-ĕnd), n. [L. recipiendum, neut. gerundive of recipere to receive.] Something received or receivable.

re·cip'i·en'da·ry (rē·sĭp'ĭ·ĕn'dȧ·rĭ), n. [L. recipiendus, gerundive of recipere to receive + 1st -ary.] a An accepted candidate, as for the ministry. b Rare. A receptacle.

re·cip'i·ent (rē·sĭp'ĭ·ĕnt), n. [L. recipiens, -entis, receiving, pres. part. of recipere to receive. See RECEIVE.] 1. One who or that which receives; a receiver; as, the recipient of a favor; — now commonly used of persons only.

2. A re-entrant angle. Rare.

re·cip'i·ent, adj. Receiving; receptive.

re·cip'i·o·mo'tor (-ō·mō'tĕr), adj. [L. recipere to receive + E. motor.] Physiol. Of or pertaining to the reception of motor impulses.

re·cip'ro·ca·ble (rē·sĭp'rō·kȧ·b'l), adj. That may reciprocate.

re·cip'ro·cal (-rō·kȧl), adj. [L. reciprocus, prob. orig. turning backward and forward, fr. derivatives of re- and pro-. See RE-; PRO-.] 1. Alternating in motion backward and forward; reciprocating. Obs.

2. That reciprocates; manifested, given, educed, or the like, in return; as, a teacher hopes for a reciprocal interest in his pupils. "Believing in the reciprocal friendship of the British." Woodrow Wilson.

3. Mutual; mutually existing; shared, felt, shown, or the like, by both sides; Joint; as, united in reciprocal affection; a reciprocal understanding.

4. Corresponding to each other as by being equivalent or complementary; marked by or based upon reciprocity; as, the reciprocal obligations of capital and labor; a treaty that provides for reciprocal privileges.

5. Interchangeable; convertible; of equal force or meaning; also, inversely related.

These two rules will render a definition reciprocal with the thing defined. I. Watts.

6. Biol. Made in the opposite direction; — applied, specif., in genetics, to a mating operation in which one cross is the reverse of the other. Thus in fowls, if one cross re·cen'sus, n. See RE-, 2. re·cen'ter, re·cen'tre, v. t. See RE-, 2. re'cent·ly, adv. of RECENT.

re'cent·ness, n. See -NESS. re·cen'tral·ize, v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'cen·tral·i·za'tion, n.
re·cept'. ✝ RECEIPT.
re·cep'ta·ble, n. [OF.] A receptacle. Obs. [CEPTIBLE.] re·cep'ta·ble, adj. Var. of RE-re·cep'tiv. Receptive. Ref. Sp. re·cep'to·ry, n. [L. receptorium a shelter.] Receptacle. Obs.
re'cer·tif'i·cate, v. t. See RE-, 2.
re·cer'ti·fy, v. t. See RE-, 2.
re·cess'like', adj. See -LIKE.
re·ces'sor, n. = RECESSER.
Re'chab (rē'kăb). Bib.
re·chafe', v. t. See RE-, 2.
Re'chab (rē'kȧ). Bib.
re·chain', v. t., re·chal', v. t., re·chal'lenge, v. t., re·cham'ber (rē·chām'bĕr), v. t. See RE-, 2.
re·chant', v. t., re·cha'os, v. t., re·char', v. t. See RE-, 2. [RE-, 2. re·chas'ten (rē·chās'n), v. t. See re·chate'. ✝ RECHEAT. re·chaw', v. t. See RE-, 2. Rare.
reche. ✝ REACH; RECCHE; RECK; REEK, smoke; RETCH. re·check', v. t., re·cheer', v. t. See RE-, 2. re·chew', v. t. See RE-, 2. rechie. ✝ RECHY.
re·chip', v. t. See RE-, 2. [RE-, 2. re·chis'el (rē·chĭz'ĕl), v. t. See re·choose', v. t., re·chris'ten, v. t., re·Chris'tian·ize, v. t. See RE-, 2. re·chuck', v. t. See RE-, 2. re·churn', v. t. See RE-, 2. re·cide', v. i. [L. recidere, fr. re- + cadere to fall.] To relapse; subside. Obs. [RECIDIVISM.]
rec'i·div'i·cy (rĕs'ĭ·dĭv'ĭ·sĭ), n. = re·ciet'. Receipt. Ref. Sp. re·ciev'. Receive. Ref. Sp.

is between a black Leghorn male and a white Leghorn female, the reciprocal cross is between a white Leghorn male and a black Leghorn female. The progeny of the two crosses are known as reciprocal hybrids.
7. Gram. Expressive of mutual action or relation; — applied to certain verbs, and especially to pronouns (reciprocal pronouns), such as the Greek allēlōn and the English compound forms, each other, one another, denoting a mutual action or cross relation between the members comprised in a plural subject (A and B like each other, that is, A likes B, and B likes A).
8. Math. Used to denote different kinds of mutual relation; — often with reference to the substitution of reciprocals for given quantities.
Syn. — RECIPROCAL, MUTUAL, CORRELATIVE, CONVERTIBLE. RECIPROCAL and MUTUAL (cf. MUTUAL) are often used without clear distinction with the implication of an interchange of the same feeling or act; as, mutual aversion, reciprocal affection; mutual greetings, reciprocal reproaches; "whether the offense has been solely on my side, or reciprocal, or on yours chiefly" (Byron); "There is a reciprocal pleasure in governing and being governed" (Johnson). But reciprocal often suggests esp. that the feeling or action in question is in return for (or in response to) something previously felt or done by the other party; as, his kindness resulted in a reciprocal manifestation of good will. Reciprocal is also used in the sense of corresponding, answering; as, "correspondent organs with reciprocal functions" (Coleridge). CORRELATIVE implies mutual interdependence or a complementary relation; CONVERTIBLE, as here compared, is equivalent to interchangeable; as, "Father and son . . . are correlative terms" (Hume); "The law, and the opinion of the judge, are not always convertible terms, or one and the same thing" (Blackstone). Cf. IDENTICAL.

re·cip′ro·cal (rē·sĭp′rō·kăl), n. 1. That which reciprocates or bears a reciprocal relation to another thing.
Corruption is a reciprocal to generation. Bacon.
2. Gram. A reflexive verb. Obs.
3. Insurance. See RECIPROCAL INSURANCE.
4. Math. The quotient of unity divided by any quantity. The reciprocal of a fraction is the fraction inverted.

reciprocal algebras. See ALGEBRA, n., 2.

reciprocal demand. Econ. The demand of two persons or communities for one another's products; — chiefly used in the phrase equation of reciprocal demand.

reciprocal determinant. Math. The determinant of the matrix that is reciprocal to the matrix of a given determinant.

reciprocal diagram. a The force diagram for a framed structure, drawn in accordance with Maxwell's definition of reciprocal figures. See BOW'S NOTATION. b = RECIPROCAL FIGURE.

reciprocal elements (of n-space). Math. Elements or spaces the sum of whose dimensions is $n - 1$; complemental extents.

reciprocal equation. Math. An equation which remains unchanged when the reciprocal of the unknown quantity is substituted for that quantity.

reciprocal exchange. See RECIPROCAL INSURANCE.

reciprocal figure. Geom. a Either of two figures of the same kind (as triangles, parallelograms, prisms, etc.) so related that two sides of one form the extremes of a proportion of which the means are the two corresponding sides of the other; in general, either of two figures so related that the first corresponds in some special way to the second, and the second in the same way to the first. b Either of two plane figures consisting of an equal number of lines so that corresponding lines in the two figures are parallel, and corresponding lines which converge to a point in one figure form a closed polygon in the other (J. Clerk Maxwell). See RECIPROCAL DIAGRAM a.

reciprocal functions. Math. a = INVERSE FUNCTIONS. b Two functions, $K(x, y)$, $k(x, y, \lambda)$ bounded in a region $a \leq x \leq b$, $a \leq y \leq b$, of the (x, y) plane and such that $$K(x, y) + k(x, y, \lambda) = \lambda \int_a^b k(x, \xi, \lambda) K(\xi, y) d\xi, \lambda \text{ being an}$$ arbitrary parameter, — of importance in the theory of integral equations.

reciprocal hybrids. See RECIPROCAL, adj., 6.

reciprocal insurance. A plan of insurance whereby each member of a reciprocal exchange (colloquially called a reciprocal), acting through an attorney in fact, becomes an insurer of, and is insured by, every other member; sometimes called interinsurance.

re·cip′ro·cal′i·ty (rē·sĭp′rō·kăl′ĭ·tĭ), n. Reciprocalness. Rare.

re·cip′ro·cal·ize (rē·sĭp′rō·kăl·īz), v. t. To make reciprocal.

re·cip′ro·cal·ly, adv. a Math. Inversely. b Mutually. c In return. d Alternately. e Conversely.
— reciprocally proportional. Math. Inversely proportional.

reciprocal matrix (of a given square matrix whose determinant is not zero). Math. The square matrix of which the element in the *r*th row and *s*th column is the cofactor of the element in the *s*th row and *r*th column of the determinant of the original matrix divided by this determinant.

reciprocal polars. Math. Two curves so related that as a point (or pole) traces either, the polar of this point (as to a fixed conic) envelops (or rolls around) the other.

reciprocal pronoun. See RECIPROCAL, adj., 7.

reciprocal proportion. Math. A proportion such that, of four terms taken in order, the first has to the second the same ratio which the fourth has to the third, or the first has to the second the same ratio which the reciprocal of the third has to the reciprocal of the fourth. Thus, 2:5 and 20:8 form a reciprocal proportion, because $2:5 :: \frac{1}{20}:\frac{1}{8}$.

reciprocal qualities. Mach. Two quantities whose product is 1.

reciprocal ratio. Math. = INVERSE RATIO.

reciprocal spiral. Geom. A hyperbolic spiral. Its equation in polar co-ordinates is $r = \frac{a}{\theta}$.

reciprocal surface. Math. See POLAR RECIPROCAL SURFACE.

reciprocal terms. Logic. Those terms which have the same signification, and, consequently, are convertible.

re·cip′ro·cant (rē·sĭp′rō·kănt), n. [L. reciprocans, -antis, pres. part. of reciprocare to move back and forth.] Math. A function $F(y_1, y_2, \ldots y_n)$ of the derivatives of y as to x that contains as a factor the same function $F(x_1 x_2, \ldots x_n)$ of the derivatives of x as to y. When the quotient of the two F's is a pure number, the reciprocant is absolute. Obs.
— re·cip′ro·can·tive (-kăn·tĭv), adj. Obs.

re·cip′ro·cate (rē·sĭp′rō·kāt), v.; -CAT′ED (-kāt′ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -CAT′ING (-kāt′ĭng). [L. reciprocatus, past part. of reciprocare to move back and forth, reciprocate. See RECIPROCAL.] Intransitive: 1. To return; to go or come back. Obs.
2. To move forward and backward alternately (Obs., exc. Mech.); to recur in vicissitude; to act interchangeably; to alternate; also, to be correspondent or equivalent.
One brawny smith the puffing bellows plies,
And draws and blows reciprocating air. Dryden.
3. To make a return for something done or given; also, Colloq., to return a compliment, good wishes, or the like.
4. To bear or have a reciprocal relation; to correspond as a complement, equivalent, or converse; — often with with.
5. Math. To be changed by reciprocation.
——, Transitive: 1. To cause to move in alternate directions.
2. To give and take reciprocally; to exchange mutually; to interchange; as, we reciprocated friendly offices and good wishes.
3. To return in kind or degree; to repay; to respond in like measure to (a feeling); as, tell me how to reciprocate this favor; his love was not reciprocated.
4. To make correspondent, equivalent; or convertible; — usually in passive. Rare.
5. Math. To find the figure reciprocal to (a given figure).

re·cip′ro·cate, adj. Reciprocal. Rare.

re·cip′ro·cat′ing (-kāt′ĭng), pres. part. & verbal n. of RECIPROCATE. Specif.: adj. a Characterized by alternation in movement. b Of machines, etc., having a part or parts with a to-and-fro motion.

reciprocating conveyer. A vibrating trough conveyer.

reciprocating drill. Mining. = PISTON DRILL.

reciprocating engine. An engine in which the piston moves to and fro; — disting. from rotary engine (def. 1).

reciprocating proposition. Logic. A proposition which asserts a reciprocal or symmetrical relation between subject and predicate, and hence one in which subject and predicate may be interchanged.

re·cip′ro·ca′tion (rē·sĭp′rō·kā′shŭn), n. [L. reciprocatio.] Act or fact of reciprocating. a Reciprocal motion, succession, action, or relationship. b Mutual exchange; as, the reciprocation of courtesies. c A return in kind or of like value; as, a reciprocation of his love. d Correspondence or equivalence. e Geom. (1) In a plane, the correlation between the points and lines of two reciprocal figures. (2) In space, the correlation between the points and planes of two reciprocal figures.

re·cip′ro·ca′tive (rē·sĭp′rō·kā′tĭv), adj. That reciprocates; tending to, or characterized by, reciprocation.

re·cip′ro·ca′tor (-kā′tĕr), n. One who or that which reciprocates; specif., Steam Engines, a double-acting engine.

re·cip′ro·ca·to′ry (-kā·tō′rĭ; -tĕr·ĭ), adj. Reciprocating.

rec′i·proc′i·tar′i·an (rĕs′ĭ·prŏs′ĭ·târ′ĭ·ăn; 79), n. [reciprocity + -arian.] An advocate of reciprocity in trade. — adj. Of or pertaining to reciprocity or reciprocitarians.

rec′i·proc′i·ty (rĕs′ĭ·prŏs′ĭ·tĭ), n. [F. réciprocité. See RECIPROCAL.] 1. State of being reciprocal; reciprocal relationship; mutual dependence, co-operation, etc.; also, a reciprocation; an interchange, return in kind, etc.; as, reciprocities between colleges; reciprocity is essential in social life.
2. Internat. Trade. That relation or policy as to trade or other interests between countries under which special advantages are granted by one side in consideration of special advantages granted by the other. Such a relation or policy involves in respect of tariff duties the simultaneous existence in each country of a high schedule for countries not included in the grants, and a low schedule or no tariff to those that are.
3. Math. = CORRELATION, n., 4.

reciprocity law. Photochem. The rule (formulated by Bunsen and Roscoe) that the effective action of light is constant when the product of the intensity by the time of action is constant.

re·ci′sion (rē·sĭzh′ŭn), n. [L. recisio, fr. recidere, recisum, to cut off, fr. re- re- + caedere to cut; cf. MF. recision (F. rescision) rescission.] a Now Rare. Act of pruning or cutting. b Act of rescinding or canceling.

‖ré′cit′ (rā′sē′), n. [F.] Recital; story; brief tale.

re·cit′al (rē·sīt′ăl; -l), n. [From RECITE.] 1. Act of reciting. Specif.: a A rehearsing in detail and order; an enumeration; a particularized account; as, a recital of one's misfortunes; to be spared a recital of their adventures. b Repetition of the words of another, as by reading or from memory; as, during the recital of Hamlet.
2. That which is recited, or told; a story; a narrative; as, to listen to his recital with profound attention.
3. Law. The formal statement, or setting forth, of some related matter of fact in any deed or writing, as to explain the reasons for a transaction, to evidence the existence of facts, or, in pleading, to introduce a positive allegation.
4. Music. a A homogeneous program of music, vocal or instrumental; often, such a program presented by one person; — distinguished from concert; as, a song recital. b An exhibition concert given by music pupils.
Syn. — Recitation, rehearsal, enumeration. See NARRATIVE.

re·cit′al·ist (rē·sīt′ăl·ĭst; -l·ĭst), n. Music. One who gives recitals.

‖re′ci·tan′do (rā′chē·tän′dō), adj. [It., pres. part.] Music. Delivering in reciting (free) style; declamatory; — used as a direction.

rec′i·ta′tion (rĕs′ĭ·tā′shŭn), n. [F. récitation, fr. L. recitatio. See RECITE.] 1. Act of reciting, esp. of rehearsing or enumerating details.
2. The delivery before an audience of something committed to memory, esp. as an elocutionary exhibition; also, that which is so delivered.
3. Educ. A class exercise in which students reply orally to questions for which preparation is expected; hence, loosely, any class exercise or attendance; as, he had only ten recitations a week in the second term.

rec′i·ta′tion·al·ism (-ăl·ĭz′m), n. The manner of one who gives public recitations; — often derogatory. Rare.

rec′i·ta′tion·ist (-ĭst), n. An elocutionist.

rec′i·ta·tive′ (rĕs′ĭ·tȧ·tēv′), v. t. & i. To deliver in or as in recitative. Rare.

rec′i·ta·tive′ (rĕs′ĭ·tȧ·tēv′), n. [It, recitativo. See RECITE.] 1. Music. A species of musical recitation in which the words are delivered in a manner resembling declamation; also, a piece of music intended for such recitation; a musical passage, part, performance, or the like, rendered in this manner; — opposed to melisma or melody. Recitative is thus characterized by freedom from strict form in its tonal and metrical structure, being rhetorical rather than melodic in its phrasing. Unaccompanied recitative, or ‖re′ci·ta·ti′vo sec′co (rā′chē·tȧ·tē′vō sĕk′kō), has only occasional instrumental chords — often merely indicated by a figured bass — to maintain the key; accompanied recitative, or ‖re′ci·ta·ti′vo stro′men·ta′to (strō′mĕn·tȧ′tō), has a continuous and elaborate instrumental setting. Intermediate between recitative and the lyric aria are the arioso and aria parlante.
2. Tone or rhythm peculiar to a language, dialect, or author's style. Rare.

rec′i·ta′tive (rĕs′ĭ·tā′tĭv; rē·sīt′ȧ·tĭv), adj. 1. That recites, rehearses, or repeats; narrative; as, the recitative part of an exposition.
2 (pron. rĕs′ĭ·tȧ·tēv′) Of or pertaining to recitative; having the style or manner of recitative.

rec′i·ta·tiv′i·cal (rĕs′ĭ·tȧ·tĭv′ĭ·kăl), adj. Like recitative. Rare.

re·cite′ (rē·sīt′), v.; -CIT′ED (-sīt′ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -CIT′ING (-sīt′ĭng). [F. réciter, fr. L. recitare, recitatum, fr. re- re- + citare to call, to cite. See CITE.] Transitive: 1. To repeat, as something prepared, written down, committed to memory, or the like; to deliver from a written or printed document, or from recollection; to rehearse; as, to recite the words of an author.
2. To tell over; to go over in particulars; to relate; narrate; enumerate; as, to recite events or experiences.
3. To rehearse or repeat, as a lesson to an instructor.
4. Obs. a To write down; to compose. b To quote; to cite.
5. Law. To state in or as a recital. See RECITAL, 3.
——, Intransitive: 1. To relate. Obs.
2. a To repeat, pronounce, or rehearse, as before an audience, something prepared or committed to memory. b To reply to a teacher's question on a prepared lesson; to make a recitation.
Syn. — Recount, tell, recapitulate.

re·cite′, n. [F. récit.] Recital. Rare.

re–cite′ (rē·sīt′), v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·cite′ment (rē·sīt′mĕnt), n. [F. récitement.] Recital. Rare.

re·cit′er (rē·sīt′ĕr), n. a One who recites. b A book of extracts for recitation.

re·cit′ing (rē·sīt′ĭng), pres. part. & verbal n. of RECITE.

re·cit′ing note (rē·sīt′ĭng). Chanting. A note or tone on which a varying number of syllables are uttered, as distinguished from a note that receives but one syllable. In Gregorian music it is properly the dominant.

reck (rĕk), v.; RECKED (rĕkt), Obs. RAUGHT, ROUGHTE; RECK′ING. [ME. recken, recchen, fr. AS. reccan, rēcan; akin to OS. rōkjan, OHG. ruochan, G. geruhen, ON. rækja, and to E. RECKON.] Archaic. Intransitive: 1. To make account; to take heed, care, or thought; to care; mind; to be aware; — often followed by of.
Of me she recks not, nor my vain desire. M. Arnold.
Recked little of the storm and strife without. Browning.
2. To be of account or interest; to matter.
——, Transitive: Archaic. 1. To make account of; to care for; to heed; regard.
This son of mine not recking danger. Sir P. Sidney.
2. To reckon; deem; estimate. Now Scot.
3. To concern. "What recks it them?" Milton.

reck, n. Heed; concern; care. Archaic.
— what reck or whatreck. a What does it matter? b Scot. Nevertheless; — a parenthetical adverbial use.
But yet, whatreck, he at Quebec . . . did fa', man. Burns.

reck. Var. of RICK. Obs. exc. Dial.

reck′la (rĕk′lä), n. [Marathi rekalā.] A covered two-wheeled passenger cart drawn by oxen. India.

reck′less (rĕk′lĕs; -lĭs; 119), adj. [AS. reccelēas, rēcelēas, fr. a lost n. (+ -lēas -less) akin to RECK, v.] 1. That does not reck of one's duty, character, life, or the like; now usually, careless; neglectful; indifferent; inconsiderate; as, utterly reckless of danger.
My soul too reckless of mild grace. Wordsworth.
2. Characterized by or manifesting lack of due caution; rash; utterly heedless; as, reckless youth, adventures, buying, or driving.
Syn. — Heedless, careless, thoughtless, regardless. See RASH. Ant. — Cautious, wary, circumspect, discreet. See CAREFUL.
— reck′less·ly, adv. — reck′less·ness, n.

reck′less, v. t. [AS. rēcelēasian.] To neglect. Obs.

reck′ling (rĕk′lĭng), n. [Cf. RITLING.] The weakest or smallest one of a litter, brood, or family; weakling. Chiefly Dial. Eng.

Reck′ling·hau′sen's dis·ease′ (rĕk′lĭng·hou′zĕnz). [After F. D. von Recklinghausen (1833–1910), Ger. pathologist.] Med. A disease characterized by multiple neurofibromata of the skin and nerve trunks and, often, excessive pigmentation of the skin and morbid changes in the bones.

reck′on (rĕk′ŭn), v.; -ONED (-ŭnd); -ON·ING. [ME. rekenen, fr. AS. gerecenian to explain; akin to D. rekenen to reckon, G. rechnen, OHG. rehhanōn, and to Gr. oregein to stretch out. See RIGHT, adj.] Transitive: 1. To name in order; to recite; specify. Obs.
2. To count; now usually, to compute; calculate; as, to reckon the days before Christmas, the size of an audience, one's total indebtedness.
3. To account; consider; regard; repute; as, to reckon him the richest man hereabouts; this business is generally reckoned as prosperous.
4. To count in, as part of a total, one of a class, or the like; to place; to class; also, to sum (up); to evaluate; as, he is not reckoned among the leaders.
5. To conclude, as after an enumerating or a balancing of chances; hence, Colloq., to think; suppose; — with an object clause. "I reckon that for ten thousand dollars you can travel for two years." Edith Wharton.
6. To attribute, or assign (a quality, a relationship, etc.); to impute. Obs.
Faith was reckoned to Abraham for righteousness. Rom. iv. 9.
——, Intransitive: 1. To name items in order. Obs.
2. To make an enumeration or computation; to engage in numbering or computing. Shak.
3. To come to an accounting; to make up accounts; to settle; to examine and strike the balance of debt and credit; to adjust relations of desert or penalty.
"Parfay," sayst thou, "sometime he reckon shall." Chaucer.
4. Now Dial. a To expect; intend. b To claim; pretend.
5. To place dependence; to rely; count; — followed by on; as, to reckon on one's coming.
6. To think, suppose; guess; — usually in I reckon, often used parenthetically. Chiefly Dial.
7. To explain or account for one's conduct. Obs.
Syn. — Number, include, estimate. See CALCULATE.

---

re·cip′ro·cal·ness, n. See -NESS. re·cip′ro·cal·ty, n. Reciprocity. Obs.
reciprocating steam engine. See STEAM ENGINE, 1. re·cip′ro·ca′tiv. Reciprocative. Ref. Sp. re·cip′ro·cous, adj. [L. reciprocus.] Reciprocal. Obs. rec′i·proque, adj. & n. [F. réciproque, fr. L. reciprocus.] = RECIPROCAL. Obs.
re·cir′cle, v. t. See RE-, 2. re·cir′cu·late, v. t. See RE-, 2. — re′cir·cu·la′tion, n.
re·cis′sion, re·cis′so·ry. Erron. for RESCISSION, RESCISSORY. re·cit′a·ble (rē·sīt′ȧ·b'l), adj. See -ABLE.
rec′i·ta·tif′ (rĕs′ĭ·tȧ·tēf′), n. [F. récitatif.] = RECITATIVE, n., 1. rec′i·ta·tive′ly (rĕs′ĭ·tȧ·tēv′lĭ), adv. of RECITATIVE. rec′i·ta·tif′ro (rĕs′ĭ·tȧ·tēf′vō; It. rā′chē-), n.; pl. -VI (-vē), -VOS (-vōz). [It.] Music. = RECITATIVE, n., 1. re′cit·i·lil·ta′tion, n., re·cit′i·lize, v. t. See RE-, 2. reck′an. Var. of RACKAN.

reckon for. To answer for; to pay the account for.

reckon with. a To settle accounts or claims with; — also figuratively.

After a long time the lord of those servants cometh, and reckoneth with them. Matt. xxv. 19.

b To take into account; as, to reckon with a danger.

reckon without one's host. Orig., to reckon one's score without consulting one's landlord; hence, to ignore in a calculation or arrangement some essential consideration.

He that reckons without his host must reckon twice. Proverb.

reck'on (rĕk'ŭn). Dial. Eng. var. of RACKAN.

reck'on·er (rĕk'ŭn·ĕr), n. a One who or that which reckons. b An aid to reckoning, esp. a book of tables, etc.; — often called ready reckoner.

reck'on·ing, n. 1. Act of one who reckons, counts, or computes; result of reckoning or counting; calculation. Specif.: a Now Rare. The calculated time of pregnancy. b The act or fact of accounting, as to God, one's subjects, or one's superiors, for one's conduct; — usually with an implication of immediate or prospective retribution; as, at last, the people called the king to a bitter reckoning. c Archaic. One's score, as at an inn.

2. Esteem; account; estimation. Obs.

3. Navig. (1) The calculation of a ship's position, either from astronomical observations, or from "dead reckoning"; also, dead reckoning as opposed to observation. (2) Position of a ship so determined.

— be out of one's reckoning. Naut. To be at a distance from the place indicated by the reckoning; — said of a ship or captain; hence, to be mistaken in, or misled by, one's calculations or reasoning.

re·claim' (rē·klām'), v.; RE·CLAIMED' (-klāmd'); RE·CLAIM'ING. [ME. reclaimen, reclamen, fr. OF. reclamer (3d sing. pres. reclaime) to call back, appeal to (F. réclamer), fr. L. reclamare, reclamatum, to cry out against, fr. re- re- + clamare to call or cry aloud. See RE-; CLAIM.] Transitive: 1. To call back, as a hawk to the wrist in falconry, by a certain customary call; to recall; revoke. Obs.

2. To call back from flight or disorderly action; to call to, for the purpose of subduing or quieting.

The headstrong horses hurried Octavius . . . along, and were deaf to his reclaiming them. Dryden.

3. To reduce from a wild to a tamed state, as an eagle; to tame and train; — said esp. of hawks.

4. To call back to rectitude from moral wandering or transgression; to reform.

It is the intention of Providence, in all the various expressions of his goodness, to reclaim mankind. Rogers.

5. To reduce to a desired state by discipline, labor, cultivation, or the like; to rescue from being wild, desert, waste, submerged, or the like; as, to reclaim savages; to reclaim wild land, overflowed land, etc.

6. To obtain, as rubber, from a waste product or by-product; to recover; also, to recover the useful material from; as, to reclaim scraps.

7. Obs. a To hold back; check; restrain. b To correct; reform;—said of things. c To exclaim against; gainsay. Fuller.

——, Intransitive: 1. To cry out, esp. in protest; to object; protest. Now Rare.

At a later period Grote reclaimed strongly against Mill's setting Whately above Hamilton. Bain.

2. Obs. a To draw back; to give way. b To reform; to undergo conversion.

3. Internat. Law. To demand surrender of a person or thing belonging to one state where found to be irregularly under the control of another or of citizens of others.

4. Scots Law. To appeal, specif. from a judgment of the Lord Ordinary of the Court of Session to the Inner House.

Syn. — Regenerate, redeem; recover, restore.

re·claim', n. [OF. See RECLAIM, v.] 1. A reclaiming, or state of being reclaimed. Now Rare.

2. That which is reclaimed, as rubber.

re–claim' (rē·klām'), v. t. To claim back; to demand the return of as a right; to attempt to recover possession of.

A tract of land [Holland] snatched from an element perpetually reclaiming its prior occupancy. W. Coxe.

re·claim' (rē·klām'), n. A fresh claim; a renewed claim.

re·claim'a·ble (rē·klām'ä·b'l), adj. That may be reclaimed. — re·claim'a·ble·ness, n. — re·claim'a·bly, adv.

re·claim'ant (rē·klām'ănt), n. [Cf. F. réclamant, pres. part.] One who reclaims, or esp., protests or appeals.

re·claimed' rub'ber (-klāmd'). Rubber recovered from scraps by any of various processes, as by treatment with alkali, and sometimes mixed with crude rubber during manufacture.

re·claim'er (-klām'ĕr), n. a One who or that which reclaims, as land, persons, etc.; as, oil reclaimers are used to clarify used lubricants. b = RECOVERER b.

re·claim'ing note. Scots Law. A printed paper by which an appeal is taken from the Lord Ordinary to the Inner House of the Court of Session.

re·claim'less (rē·klām'lĕs; -lĭs; 119), adj. Irreclaimable. R.

re·claim'ment (-mĕnt), n. Reclamation. Rare.

re·cla'ma (rā·klä'mä), n. [Cf. Sp. reclamo.] Complaint. Colloq., Phil. I.

rec'la·ma'tion (rĕk'lä·mā'shŭn), n. [F. réclamation, fr. L. reclamatio. See RECLAIM.] 1. Act or process of reclaiming or state of being reclaimed; also, the industry of reclaiming waste; as, the reclamation of land; prisoners in the first stage of reclamation; a reclamation plant.

2. A reclaimant's representation, as a claim or a protest.

3. Internat. Law. A demand by a state to which a person or thing belongs that he or it be delivered up by those who have acquired control irregularly.

reclamation district. Law, U. S. A district created by legislation for the purpose of reclaiming swamp, marshy, or desert lands and making them suitable for cultivation or habitation. Usually such districts have power to levy assessments, issue bonds, and the like.

Reclamation Service. A bureau of the Department of the Interior, created under the Reclamation Act of 1902 and organized to reclaim desert lands (chiefly in the West) by irrigation projects for public sale and to develop electric power. U. S.

‖ré'clame' (rā'klām'), n. [F., fr. réclamer. See RECLAIM.] Publicity; also, publicity seeking.

re·clin'a·ble (rē·klīn'ä·b'l), adj. That may be reclined. R.

rec'li·nate (rĕk'lĭ·nāt), adj. Also rec'li·nat'ed (-nāt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119). [L. reclinatus, past part.] Bot. Bent downward, so that the point, as of a stem or leaf, is below the base.

rec'li·na'tion (rĕk'lĭ·nā'shŭn), n. 1. Act of reclining, or state of being reclined.

2. Dialing. The angle which the plane of the dial makes with a vertical plane. Now Rare.

3. Surg. An old method of operating for cataract by introducing a broad needle into the upper part of the pupil and turning the lens backward and downward into the vitreous humor.

re·cline' (rē·klīn'), v.; -CLINED' (-klīnd'); -CLIN'ING (-klīn'-ĭng). [OF. recliner, fr. L. reclinare, fr. re- re- + clinare to lean, incline. See INCLINE, LEAN to incline.] Transitive: To cause or permit to incline backwards; to place in a recumbent position; loosely, to lean; to incline; rest; as, to recline one's head on a pillow.

——, Intransitive: 1. To lean or incline, esp. backwards; specif., Obs., of a dial, to have a backward inclination.

2. To assume, or to be in, a recumbent position; to lie down; rest; as, to recline on a couch.

re·cline', adj. [L. reclinis. See RECLINE, v.] Reclining.

re·cline', n. A reclining posture. Rare.

re·clined' (rē·klīnd'), adj. In a reclining position; Bot., reclinate.

re·clin'er (rē·klīn'ĕr), n. One who or that which reclines; specif., a reclining dial or plane.

re·clin'ing (rē·klīn'ĭng), adj. Bot. a Bending or curving gradually back from the perpendicular. b Recumbent.

re·cluse' (rē·klōōs'; 242; 277), adj. [OF. reclus, fem. recluse, fr. L. reclusus, fr. recludere, reclusum, to unclose, open, later, to shut up. See CLOSE; cf. RECLUDE.] 1. Shut up; sequestered; retired from the world or from public notice; solitary; cloistered.

Nor these alone prefer a life recluse. Cowper.

2. Hidden; secret; — said of actions, etc. Obs.

— re·cluse'ly, adv. — re·cluse'ness, n.

re·cluse' (rē·klōōs'; rĕk'lūs; 242; 277), n. [F. reclus, fem. recluse, ML. reclusus, reclusa. See RECLUSE, adj.] 1. A person who lives in seclusion, as a hermit or monk; specif., an inclusus (which see).

2. One who leads a retired life, with few social contacts.

3. A place of seclusion, as a hermitage or convent. Obs.

Syn. — See HERMIT.

re·clus'e', v. t. To shut up; seclude. Obs.

re·clus'er·y (rē·klōōs'ĕr·ĭ; 242), n. A hermitage; anchorage. Rare.

re·clu'sion (-klōō'zhŭn; 242), n. [ML. reclusio.] 1. Act of becoming, or state of being, a recluse; seclusion; specif., imprisonment, esp. when solitary.

2. A place of seclusion, esp. of religious retreat. Rare.

re·clu'sive (-sĭv), adj. Affording, involving, or favoring, retirement from society. — re·clu'sive·ness, n.

re·coct' (rē·kŏkt'), v. t. [L. recoctus, past part. of recoquere to cook or boil over again. See RE-; 2d COOK.] To boil or cook again; hence, to make over; vamp up. — re·coc'tion (rē·kŏk'shŭn), n.

re·cog'i·tate (rē·kŏj'ĭ·tāt), v. i. [L. recogitare (ML. in sense a).] a Obs. To change one's mind. b To think over again. — re'cog·i·ta'tion (rē'kŏj·ĭ·tā'shŭn), n. Rare.

‖re·cog'ni·ta (rē·kŏg'nĭ·tä), n. pl. [L., past part. neut. pl. of recognoscere. See RECOGNIZANCE.] Things recognized.

Objects are the recognita amid events. Whitehead.

rec'og·ni'tion (rĕk'ŏg·nĭsh'ŭn), n. [F. récognition, fr. L. recognitio. See RECOGNIZANCE.] 1. Act of recognizing, or state of being recognized; as: a Formal acknowledgment, as of a fact or a claim; specif., in England, an expression of reception of the sovereign by the people at the coronation. b Acceptance as entitled to consideration or attention; as, recognition by the Chair of one rising to speak in a meeting; also, special notice or attention; as, he received much recognition.

2. Acknowledgment of something done or given, esp. by making some return; as, a gift in recognition of a service.

3. Perception of identity as already known in fact or by description; as, recognition of a person or portrait; also, condition of being so recognized; as, to escape recognition. Specif., Drama, such recognition as an incident or solution of plot.

4. Discernment of the character, status, or class of something; as, his recognition of the principle involved.

5. Obs. a Consciousness. b Admission. c Review or reconsideration; recension.

6. Early Eng. Law. The form of inquest by jury existing under the early Norman kings.

7. Internat. Law. Acknowledgment of the independence of an insurgent or rebelling community or province. Cf. RECOGNIZE, v. t., 5 b.

8. Psychol. That form of memory which consists in knowing or feeling that a present object has been met before. Cf. RECALL.

9. Scots Law. Act of a feudal superior in recognoscing lands from a tenant, esp. for unauthorized alienation. Obs.

rec'og·ni'tion, adj. Serving for recognition; as, a recognition mark on an animal.

re'–cog·ni'tion (rē'kŏg·nĭsh'ŭn), n. A second cognition, a knowing of something which has been known before; — not implying conscious identification. Cf. RECOGNITION.

— re'–cog·ni'tion·al (-ăl), adj.

rec'og·ni'tion mark. A peculiar and usually conspicuous marking of an animal supposed to serve as a signal to others of its kind, as the white tail of an antelope or a rabbit.

re·cog'ni·tive (rē·kŏg'nĭ·tĭv), adj. Of, pertaining to, or characterized by, recognition.

re·cog'ni·tor (-tĕr), n. [ML.] Early Eng. Law. One of a jury impaneled on an assize to hold a recognition. Hist.

re·cog'ni·to'ry (-tō'rĭ or, esp. Brit., -tĕr·ĭ), adj. Pertaining to, or connected with, recognition. Lamb.

re·cog'ni·zance (rē·kŏg'nĭ·zăns; or, esp. Law, rē·kŏn'ĭ·-; 277; cf. COGNIZANCE), n. [ME. reconnissance, fr. OF. reconissance, reconnoissance, later also reconnoissance (F. reconnaissance), fr. reconissant, reconnoissant, pres. part. of reconoistre to recognize (F. reconnaître), fr. L. recognoscere, fr. re- re- + cognoscere to know. The g is a secondary insertion after the Latin spelling. See KNOW; cf. COGNIZANCE, RECOGNIZE, RECONNOISSANCE.] 1. Law. a An obligation of record entered into before some court of record or magistrate duly authorized, making the performance of some act, as duly appearing in court, keeping the peace, or payment of a debt, the condition of nonforfeiture. A recognizance differs from a bond, being witnessed by the record only. Also, the sum liable to forfeiture upon such an obligation. b Obs. = RECOGNITION, 6.

2. Acknowledgment, as of a right, a rank, or distinction; avowal; profession; also, recognition. Now Rare.

3. A token; symbol; pledge; badge. Archaic.

That recognizance and pledge of love. Shak.

re·cog'ni·zant (rē·kŏg'nĭ·zănt; rē·kŏn'ĭ-; cf. COGNIZANT), adj. [Cf. COGNIZANT.] Recognizing; expressing or showing recognition.

rec'og·nize (rĕk'ŏg·nīz), v.; -NIZED (-nīzd); -NIZ'ING (-nīz'-ĭng). [See RECOGNIZANCE; cf. COGNITION, RECONNOITER.] Transitive: 1. To know again; to perceive to be a person or thing previously known; to recover or recall knowledge of.

2. To avow knowledge of; to consent to admit, hold, or the like; to admit with a formal acknowledgment; as, to recognize an obligation; to recognize a consul.

3. To acknowledge formally, as by special attention; to take notice of; specif.: a To acknowledge with a show of approval or appreciation; as, to recognize services. b To acknowledge acquaintance with, as by salutation. c To acknowledge by admitting to an associated or privileged status. d To acknowledge as the one entitled to be heard at the time, as one who offers to speak in a meeting; to give the floor to.

4. Obs. a To admit the fact, truth, or validity of. b To review; revise; correct.

5. Law. a Eng. To make formal acknowledgment of as one's lord, ruler, or sovereign. b To acknowledge the independence of (a community or body which has thrown off the sovereignty of a state to which it was subject), thus entitling it to be treated as an independent state by the recognizing power. The recognition may be by express declaration or by any overt act sufficiently indicating the intention to recognize. See RECOGNITION, 7. c U. S. To bind by a recognizance.

6. Scots Law. = RECOGNOSCE, 2. Obs.

——, Intransitive: (rĕk'ŏg·nīz; in legal use commonly rē·kŏg'nĭz). Law. To enter into an obligation of record before a tribunal; as, B recognized in the sum of $20. U. S.

Syn. — RECOGNIZE, ACKNOWLEDGE. To RECOGNIZE, as here compared, commonly adds to ACKNOWLEDGE a stronger implication of formal admission or authoritative sanction; as, to acknowledge another's prior claim; a claim not recognized by the law; to acknowledge a secret marriage; he refused to recognize the woman as his wife; "The ladies never acted so well as when they were in the presence of a fact which they acknowledged, but did not recognize" (G. Meredith).

Ant. — Ignore, disregard; overlook. See DENY.

re·cog'nize (rē·kŏg'nīz), v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·cog'ni·zee' (rē·kŏg'nĭ·zē'; rē·kŏn'ĭ·zē'), n. Law. The person in whose favor a recognizance is made.

rec'og·niz'er (rĕk'ŏg·nīz'ĕr), n. One who recognizes.

re·cog'ni·zor' (rē·kŏg'nĭ·zôr'; rē·kŏn'ĭ-), n. One who enters into a recognizance.

rec'og·nosce' (rĕk'ŏg·nŏs'; rē'kŏg-), v. [L. recognoscere. See RECOGNIZE.] Transitive: Obs. 1. To recognize.

2. Scots Feudal Law. To resume the possession of (lands granted to a tenant), esp. for unauthorized alienation.

——, Intransitive: Scots Law. Of lands, to return to the superior by recognition.

re·coil' (rē·koil'), v.; -COILED' (-koild'); -COIL'ING. [ME. recoilen, fr. OF. reculer, fr. L. re- re- + culus the fundament.] Transitive: To force or drive back; to retire. Obs.

——, Intransitive: 1. To retreat, draw back, or fall back; to reverse one's motion or direction; to be driven or forced backward; specif., to reel back; — sometimes with back. "Ten paces huge he back recoiled." Milton. "As deep recoiling surges foam below." Burns.

2. To start or draw back, as in horror, fear, or disgust; to shrink; as, at the sight, the crowd recoiled.

Or, if the mind turn inward, she recoils
At once — or, not recoiling, is perplexed. Wordsworth.

3. To withdraw oneself; to retire. Archaic.

I recoiled into the wilderness. Wordsworth.

4. To rebound; to spring back, as a released spring or a firearm in the act of discharging.

5. To rebound or return to or as to the source or starting point. "Evil on itself shall back recoil." Milton.

Syn. — See REBOUND.

re·coil' (rē·koil'), n. 1. Act of recoiling; now, esp., a rebound; a drawing or shrinking back; as, hit by a ball in its recoil; an angry recoil from his suggestion.

2. The state or condition of having recoiled; reaction.

The recoil from formalism is skepticism. F. W. Robertson.

3. Specif.: The recoiling of a gun, spring, etc.; also, the distance through which a gun, spring, etc., recoils.

4. Phonet. Aspiration after a voiceless stop (p, t, k); a neutral or murmur vowel or a voiced aspirate after a voiced stop (b, d, g). A. J. Ellis.

re–coil' (rē·koil'), v. t. To coil again or anew.

recoil atom. Physical Chem. The heavy remainder of a radioactive atom still in rapid motion because of the recoil action produced by the emission of an alpha or a beta particle.

recoil cylinder. Mil. In a system for checking the recoil or counterrecoil of guns, a fixed cylinder into which a piston attached to the gun is forced by the recoil of the gun on firing. Recoil is checked by slow passage of liquids (hydraulic system) or air (pneumatic system) through perforations in the piston, or by the compression of springs.

re·coil'er (rē·koil'ĕr), n. One who or that which recoils.

recoil escapement. Horol. See ESCAPEMENT, 3.

re·coil'ment (rē·koil'mĕnt), n. Recoil. Rare.

recoil wave. Physiol. The dicrotic wave.

re·coin' (rē·koin'), v. t. To coin anew or again.

re·coin'age (-ĭj), n. Act of coining, or a thing coined, anew.

‖Re'co·le'to (rā'kō·lā'tō), n. [Sp.] R. C. Ch. A Recollect.

re'–col·lect' (rē'kŏ·lĕkt'), v. [L. recollectus, past part. of recolligere to collect; in some senses prob. fr. re- + collect. See RE-; COLLECT.] Transitive: 1. To collect again, as something that has been scattered; as, to re-collect routed troops; also, to gather; rally; recover; as, to re-collect one's courage.

2. (pron. rĕk'ŏ-) To recall or bring back; to withdraw. Obs.

I . . . can also recollect you from . . . desperation. Donne.

3. To compose (oneself); to recover control over (oneself); as, to re-collect oneself quickly after an outburst.

——, Intransitive: To reassemble.

---

reck'on·a·ble, adj. See -ABLE. reck'ond. Reckoned. Ref. Sp. recks. + REX, pranks. reckt. Recked. Ref. Sp. reclaimed wool. = SHODDY, 1. re·clang', v. i., re·clasp', v. t. & i., re·class', v. t., re'clas·si·fi·ca'tion, n., re·clas'si·fy, v. t., re·clean', v. t., re·clean'er, n., re·cleanse', v. t., re·clear', v. t., re·clear'ance, n. See RE-, 2.
re·climb', v. t. See RE-, 2. re·cli'na·to·ry, n. [LL. reclinatorium.] A thing to recline on. Obs. [= BACKBOARD, 3.] re·clin'ing board (rē·klīn'ĭng). [OF. reclos, past part. See CLOSE, v.] To connne. Obs.
re·close' (rē·klōz'), v. t. See RE-, 2.
re·clothe' (rē·klōth'), v. t., re·cloth'ing (-klōth'ĭng), verbal n. See RE-, 2.
re·clude' (rē·klōōd'; 242), v. t. [L. recludere to unclose, open, fr. re- again, back, un- + claudere to shut.] To close; sequester. Obs.
re·clu'siv. Reclusive. Ref. Sp.
re·clu'so·ry (rē·klōō'sō·rĭ), n. [ML. reclusorium.] = RECLUSERY. re·coach', v. t. See RE-, 2. re'co·ag'u·la'tion, n., re·coal', v. t. & i., re·coast', v. i., re·coat', v. t., re·cock', v. t. See RE-, 2.
re·code', v. t. See RE-, 2. re·cod'i·fy, v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'cod·i·fi·ca'tion, n. [Sp.] re·cog'ni·tiv. Recognitive. Ref. rec'og·niz'a·ble (rĕk'ŏg·nīz'ä·b'l), adj. See -ABLE. — rec'og·niz'a·bly, adv.
re·cog'ni·zate, v. t. Recognize. — re·cog'ni·za'tion, n. Both Obs.
rec'og·niz'ed·ly (rĕk'ŏg·nīz'ĕd·lĭ; -ĭd-lĭ; 119), adv. of recognized, past part.
re·coin'er, n. See RE-, 2.
re·coke', v. t. See RE-, 2.
re'col·lapse', n. See RE-, 2.
re'col·later', v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'col·la'tion, n.
bil'i·ty (-bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n. — rec'og·niz'a·bly, adv.
re·cog'ni·zate, v. t. Recognize. — re·cog'ni·za'tion, n. Both Obs.
rec'og·niz'ed·ly (rĕk'ŏg·nīz'ĕd·lĭ; -ĭd-lĭ; 119), adv. of recognized, past part.
re·coin'er, n. See RE-, 2.
re·coke', v. t. See RE-, 2.
re'col·lapse', n. See RE-, 2.
re'col·later', v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'col·la'tion, n.
re'co·hab'i·ta'tion, n., re·coil', v. t. See RE-, 2. re·coild'. Recoiled. Ref. Sp.
re·coil'ing·ly, adv. of recoiling, pres. part.

N O P Q R

rec'ol·lect' (rĕk'ō·lĕkt'), v.; REC'OL·LECT'ED; REC'OL·LECT'·ING. [L. recollectus, past part. of recolligere to collect. See 1st RECOLLECT; cf. RECOLLET.] Transitive: 1. To recover or recall the knowledge of; to call to mind; to remember.
2. a = 1st RE-COLLECT, 3. b To cause (oneself, one's mind, etc.) to be absorbed in thought or contemplation; to concentrate in spiritual meditation; as, unable to recollect oneself in prayer.
3. To recall something forgotten to (oneself); as, there was no error, because he recollected himself in time.
——, Intransitive: To have a recollection; to call something to mind.
Beasts and babies remember, that is, recognize: man alone recollects. Coleridge.
Syn. — See REMEMBER.
Rec'ol·lect (rĕk'ō·lĕkt), n. [L. recollectus, past part. See RECOLLECT.] R.C.Ch. One of a former very strict family or division of Observants. See OBSERVANT, 3. rec'ol·lect'ed (rĕk'ō·lĕk'tĕd; -tĭd; 119), adj. 1. Composed, calm; as, not sufficiently recollected to discuss the matter; cool and recollected at all times.
2. Manifesting, or given to recollection, or prayerful contemplation; as, a recollected nun or congregation.
3. Recalled to memory.
— rec'ol·lect'ed·ly, adv. — rec'ol·lect'ed·ness, n.
rec'ol·lec'tion (rĕk'ō·lĕk'shŭn), n. [F. récollection, ML. recollectio.] 1. Act or practice of collecting the mind; concentration, esp. in prayer; specif., spiritual meditation.
Charles contracted habits of gravity and recollection. Robertson.
2. Self-control; composure. Rare.
3. Act of recollecting, or recalling to the memory; the operation by which objects are recalled to the memory, or ideas revived in the mind; reminiscence; remembrance.
4. The power of recalling ideas to the mind, or the period within which things can be recollected; remembrance; memory; as, a weakened recollection; an event within my recollection.
5. That which is recollected; something called to mind; reminiscence. "His earliest recollections." Macaulay.
Syn. — See MEMORY.
re'-col·lec'tion (rē'kŏ·lĕk'shŭn), n. [Cf. RECOLLECTION.]
1. A collecting again.
2. Recapitulation. Obs. rec'ol·lec'tive (rĕk'ō·lĕk'tĭv), adj. Pertaining to recollection; recollected; also, having the power of recollecting. — rec'ol·lec'tive·ly, adv. — rec'ol·lec'tive·ness, n.
Rec'ol·let (rĕk'ō·lĕt; F. rā'kō'lĕ'), n. [F. récollet, fr. L. recollectus, past part. of recolligere to gather again, to gather up, ML. to collect (oneself), esp. for religious contemplation.] 1. R.C.Ch. = RECOLLECT, n.
2. [not cap.] A cedar waxwing. Canada.
rec'o·mem'ber (rĕk'ō·mĕm'bĕr), v. i. Contamination of recollect and remember. Dial., U. S.
re·com'fort (rē·kŭm'fĕrt), v. t. [OF. reconforter (F. réconforter).] To comfort; to console; to refresh; strengthen. Archaic. re·com'fort, n. [OF. reconfort.] Consolation. Obs. re'com·mand' (rē'kŏ·mănd'), v. t. [F. recommander. Cf. RECOMMEND.] To recommend; to commend, as to another's remembrance. Obs. re'com·mand', v. t. See RE-, 2. re'com·mence' (rē'kŏ·mĕns'), v. t. & i. [F. recommencer.]
1. To commence or begin again.
2. To begin anew to be; to act again as. Archaic.
He seems desirous enough of recommencing courtier. Johnson.
— re'com·mence'ment (-mĕnt), n.
re'com·menc'er (rē'kŏ·mĕn'sĕr), n. One who recommences. rec'om·mend' (rĕk'ō·mĕnd'), v.; -MEND'ED, -MEND'ING. [ML. recommendare.] Transitive: 1. To commit; to give in charge; to consign; to entrust; — now usually commend.
Recommended by the brethren unto the grace of God. Acts xv. 40.
2. To praise; now specif., to make a commendatory statement concerning (a person or thing); as, his professors will not recommend him; physicians recommend it.
3. To commend, or bring forward explicitly, as meriting consideration, acceptance, adoption, election, or the like; to present as one's advice; one's choice or as having one's approval or support; to offer or suggest with favoring representations; as, to recommend a newcomer to one's friends, a defendent to the mercy of the court, the appointment of Brown to the postmastership.
4. To make acceptable; to attract favor to; as, his manners recommended him.
5. To advise; counsel. "He recommended that the whole disposition of the camp should be changed." W. Irving.
——, Intransitive: To make a recommendation. rec'om·mend', n. = RECOMMENDATION. Colloq.
re'-com·mend' (rē'kŏ·mĕnd'), v. t. See RE-, 2. rec'om·mend'a·ble (rĕk'ō·mĕn'dă·b'l), adj. That may be commended or recommended. — rec'om·mend'a·bil'i·ty (-bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), rec'om·mend'a·ble·ness, n. — rec'om·mend'a·bly, adv.
rec'om·men·da'tion (-mĕn·dā'shŭn), n. [ML. recommendatio; cf. F. recommandation.] 1. Act of recommending.
2. State of being recommended; esteem; favor. Obs.
3. Something which recommends or commends; as, his only recommendation is his personality; specif., a statement, letter, or the like, declaring what one recommends or expressing commendation; as, the mayor would make no recommendations; a candidate supplied with recommendations.
4. A thing, course of procedure, or the like, recommended.
rec'om·mend'a·to'ry (-mĕn'dă·tō'rĭ or, esp. Brit., -tĕr·ĭ), adj. 1. Serving to recommend, commend, or attract favorable attention; as, letters recommendatory; recommendatory features.
2. Offered as a recommendation; advisory in nature; as, recommendatory legislation.
rec'om·mend·ee' (rĕk'ō·mĕn·dē'), n. One who is recommended. Rare.
rec'om·mend'er (rĕk'ō·mĕn'dĕr), n. One who or that which recommends.

re'com·mit' (rē'kŏ·mĭt'), v. t. [ML. recommittere.] To commit; recommend. Obs.
re'com·mit' (rē'kŏ·mĭt'), v. t. To commit again, as a sin; to give back into keeping; as, to recommit a criminal to prison; specif., to refer again, as a bill, to a committee.
— re'com·mit'ment (-mĕnt), re'com·mit'tal (-dĭl; -'l), n.
rec'om·pen'sa·ble (rĕk'ŏm·pĕn'să·b'l), adj. Capable of being recompensed, or, Obs., of being a recompense.
re·com'pen·sa'tion (rĕ·kŏm'pĕn·sā'shŭn), n. [OF., fr. LL. recompensatio.] 1. Recompense. Obs.
2. Scots Law. In actions for debt, a plaintiff's plea of a counterclaim made to meet a defendant's counterclaim.
rec'om·pense (rĕk'ŏm·pĕns), v.; -PENSED (-pĕnst); -PENS'·ING (-pĕn'sĭng). [OF. recompenser, fr. LL. recompensare, fr. L. re- re- + compensare to compensate. See COMPENSATE.] Transitive: 1. To give compensation to; to requite; remunerate; compensate; as, to recompense one for his losses; to be recompensed for our efforts.
2. To give an equivalent for; to make up for as by atoning or requiting; to pay for; as, to recompense all losses promptly; a pleasure that recompensed our trouble.
3. To return in kind; to reciprocate as by rewarding or avenging; to pay back. Now Rare.
She did me wrong, I recompensed the deed. Cowper.
——, Intransitive: To repay something; to make amends or requital.
Syn. — Repay, reward, indemnify, reimburse. rec'om·pense (rĕk'ŏm·pĕns), n. [OF.] 1. The act or fact of recompensing.
To me belongeth vengeance, and recompense. Deut. xxxii. 35.
2. Compensation; an equivalent or a return for something done, suffered, or given; a repayment as by way of satisfaction, restitution, retribution, etc.; as, offered in recompense for his injuries; to receive an insufficient recompense for his labors; to make recompense to Belgium.
rec'om·pens'er (rĕk'ŏm·pĕn'sĕr), n. One who recompenses. rec'om·pen'sive (-pĕn'sĭv). Compensative. Sir T. Browne. re'com·pose' (rē'kŏm·pōz'), v. t.; RE'COM·POSED' (-pōzd'); RE'COM·POS'ING (-pōz'ĭng). [re- + compose; cf. F. recomposer.] 1. To compose again; to form anew; to recombine; also, to rearrange; — often opposed to decompose.
2. To restore to composure, as one's spirits; to settle, as a quarrel.
— re'com·pos'er (-pōz'ĕr), n. Rare.
re'com·po·si'tion (rē'kŏm·pō·zĭsh'ŭn), n. Act of recomposing, or state of being recomposed. re'com·press' (rē'kŏm·prĕs'), v. t. To compress over again; specif., Engin., to subject (a workman) to compression after being decompressed. See COMPRESSION, 3 — re'com·pres'sion (-prĕsh'ŭn), n.
‖re·con'cen·tra'do (rā·kōn'sĕn·trä'dō; 103; 112), n.; pl. -DOS (Sp. -dōs). [Sp., past part. of reconcentrar to enclose, to reconcentrate.] Literally, one who has been reconcentrated; specif., in Cuba, Philippines, etc., one of the rural noncombatants subjected to the process of reconcentration.
re·con'cen·trate (rē·kŏn'sĕn·trāt), v. t. & i. To concentrate again; to concentrate thoroughly; to subject to reconcentration (which see).
re'con·cen·tra'tion (rē'kŏn·sĕn·trā'shŭn), n. Act of reconcentrating, or state of being reconcentrated; esp., the act or policy of concentrating the rural population in or about towns for convenience in political or military administration, as in Cuba during the revolution of 1895–98.
rec'on·cil'a·ble (rĕk'ŏn·sīl'ă·b'l), adj. Capable of being reconciled. — rec'on·cil'a·ble, n. — rec'on·cil'a·bil'i·ty (-bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), rec'on·cil'a·ble·ness, n. — rec'on·cil'a·bly, adv.
reconcilable circuits. Math. Two closed curves on a surface one of which can be reduced to the other by continuous deformation without leaving the surface or crossing certain stated singular points on it.
rec'on·cile (rĕk'ŏn·sīl), v.; -CILED (-sīld); -CIL'ING (-sīl'·ĭng). [OF. or L.; OF. reconcilier, fr. L. reconciliare, fr. re- re- + conciliare to bring together, to unite. See CONCILIATE.] Transitive: 1. To cause to be friendly again; to restore to friendship; to bring back to harmony; as, to reconcile persons who have quarrelled.
We pray you . . . be ye reconciled to God. 2 Cor. v. 20.
2. To adjust; settle; as, to reconcile differences.
3. To make consistent or congruous; to bring to agreement or suitableness; — followed by with or to.
The great men among the ancients understood how to reconcile manual labor with affairs of state. Locke.
4. To bring to acquiescence, content, or quiet submission; as, to reconcile oneself to afflictions.
5. Obs. a To restore to peace or favor. b To regain (favor or credit). c To absolve. d To expiate.
6. Eccl. a To restore to communion or consecration (one under interdict or excommunication). b To purify or restore to sacred uses (a church, cemetery, etc.) after a pollution, or desecration. c Obs. To restore (a person) to purity; to cleanse.
7. Shipbuilding. To plane smooth, as boards, esp. at joints.
——, Intransitive: To become reconciled.
Syn. — Reunite; conciliate, propitiate; harmonize.
Ant. — Estrange, alienate; aggravate. rec'on·cil·ee' (rĕk'ŏn·sĭl·ē'), n. One who is reconciled. rec'on·cile'less (rĕk'ŏn·sīl'lĕs; -lĭs; 119), adj. Irreconcilable.
rec'on·cile'ment (-mĕnt), n. Reconciliation.
rec'on·cil'er (rĕk'ŏn·sīl'ĕr), n. One who or that which reconciles. rec'on·cil'i·a·ble (-sĭl'ĭ·ă·b'l; 159), adj. Reconcilable. — rec'on·cil'i·a·bil'i·ty (-bĭl'ĭ·ă·tĭ), n. Both Rare.
rec'on·cil'i·ate (rĕk'ŏn·sĭl'ĭ·āt), v. t. [L. reconciliatus, past part.] To reconcile. Obs. rec'on·cil'i·a'tion (rĕk'ŏn·sĭl'ĭ·ā'shŭn), n. [OF. or L.; OF. reconciliation, fr. L. reconciliatio.] 1. Act of reconciling, or state of being reconciled; restoration to harmony or friendship.
Reconciliation and friendship with God really form the basis of all rational and true enjoyment. S. Miller.
2. Reduction to congruence or consistency; removal or explanation of inconsistency; harmony; as, to attempt a reconciliation of the Gospels; the reconciliation of various accounts of an accident.
3. R.C.Ch. A ceremony of reconciling. See RECONCILE, 6.
Syn. — Reconcilement, reunion. See PROPITIATION. rec'on·cil'i·a'tive (rĕk'ŏn·sĭl'ĭ·ā'tĭv; -ă·tĭv), adj. Reconciliatory. Rare.
rec'on·cil'i·a'tor (-ā'tĕr), n. A reconciler. Rare. rec'on·cil'i·a·to'ry (-sĭl'ĭ·ă·tō'rĭ or, esp. Brit., -tĕr·ĭ), adj. Serving or tending to reconcile.
rec'on·cil'ing (rĕk'ŏn·sīl'ĭng), adj. That reconciles. — rec'on·cil'ing·ly, adv.
rec'on·dite (rĕk'ŭn·dīt; rē·kŏn'dĭt; 277), adj. [L. reconditus, past part. of recondere to put up again, to lay up, to conceal, fr. re- re- + condere to bring or lay together. See ABSCOND.] 1. Hidden from sight; concealed; not in view. "Its recondite machinery." Lamb.
2. Beyond the view or reach of average intelligence; extremely difficult to apprehend or comprehend; abstruse.
3. Dealing with what is obscure or abstruse; characterized by profound and searching scholarship; as, recondite studies, writers, or books.
Syn. — Deep, abstract; cryptic, hidden, dark, mystic. — RECONDITE, ABSTRUSE, OCCULT, ESOTERIC. RECONDITE emphasizes the idea of depth or profundity, esp. with reference to knowledge which is beyond ordinary comprehension; ABSTRUSE suggests esp. remoteness from ordinary modes of thought, or great difficulty or complexity; as, "recondite points of law" (Sir H. Maine); "The most abstruse studies . . . never cost him any labor" (Cowper). But the words are often used with little distinction. OCCULT implies esp. the action of secret or mysterious agencies; that is ESOTERIC which pertains to an inner circle of adepts or is understood by the initiated alone; as, "Whether it be from natural predisposition or from some occult influence of the time" (Lowell); occult virtues; "the esoteric and paradoxical beauty, which escapes the vulgar" (Mrs. Humphry Ward); "Calling to me with an air of superiority, like that of an esoteric over an exoteric disciple of a sage of antiquity" (Boswell). Cf. SECRET, MYSTERIOUS.
Ant. — Obvious, clear, simple, elementary. See MANIFEST.
— rec'on·dite·ly, adv. — rec'on·dite·ness, n.
re'con·di'tion (rē'kŏn·dĭsh'ŭn), v. t. 1. To restore (something worn) to sound condition by readjustments and replacement of parts; to renovate; as, a reconditioned automobile.
2. To condition again; to re-educate (individuals); to change (emotional attitudes, habits, etc.). See CONDITION, v. t.
re'con·duct' (rē'kŏn·dŭkt'), v. t. [L. reconductus, past part. of reconducere.] To conduct back. re'con·duc'tion (rē'kŏn·dŭk'shŭn), n. [F. réconduction, fr. L. reconducere, reconductum, to hire again.] a A conducting back; act or instance of leading back. b Civil Law. A renewal of a lease; relocation.
re·con'nais·sance (rē·kŏn'ĭ·săns), n. [F. See RECONNOISSANCE.] A survey; specif.: a Engin. An examination of a region as to its general natural features, preparatory to triangulation, etc. b Geol. A preliminary examination or survey of a region in reference to its general geological characters. c Mil. An examination of a territory, whether by single scouts or detachments, to gain information of friendly troops, of the enemy, of the terrain, or of resources. Also, Nav., a survey of a coast, etc., for similar purposes.
‖Re·con'nais'sance′ fran′çaise′, Mĕ′dal′le de la (mä′dä′y′ dĕ la rē·kô′nä′sänsʼ frän′säz′). [F.] = MEDAL OF FRENCH RECOGNITION. See MEDAL, Plate.
re·con'nais·sance in force (rē·kŏn'ĭ·sănsʼ). Mil. A demonstration or attack by a large force of troops for the purpose of discovering the position and strength of an enemy, as by drawing his fire. re·con'nois·sance (rē·kŏn'ĭ·sănsʼ), n. [F. (now reconnaissance). See RECOGNIZANCE.] Act of reconnoitering; preliminary examination or survey. Specif.: a Obs. = RECOGNIZANCE, 1. b Obs. = RECOGNITION. c = RECONNAISSANCE, 1. rec'on·noi'ter, rec'on·noi'tre (rĕk'ŏ·noi'tĕr; rĕ'kŏ-), v.; -NOI'TERED, -NOI'TRED (-tĕrd); -NOI'TER·ING, -NOI'TRING. [F. reconnoître (now reconnaître), fr. OF. reconoistre. See RECOGNIZE.] Transitive: 1. To examine with the eye; to make a preliminary examination or survey of, esp. for military or engineering operations.
2. To recognize; remember. Obs.
——, Intransitive: To make a reconnoissance. rec'on·noi'ter, rec'on·noi'tre, n. A reconnoissance. rec'on·noi'ter·er (-ĕr), rec'on·noi'trer (-trĕr), n. One who reconnoiters.
re'con·sid'er (rē'kŏn·sĭd'ĕr), v. t. 1. To consider again; to consider with a view to changing, as a plan.
2. Parliamentary Practice. To take up for renewed consideration, as a motion or a vote previously acted on. This is done by a motion made and seconded in the usual way.
re'con·sid'er·a'tion (-ā'shŭn), n. Act, fact, or instance of reconsidering.
re'con·sign'ment (-kŏn·sīn'mĕnt), n. Consignment again or anew; specif., Transportation, change of destination or consignee by rebilling in transit. — re'con·sign', v. t.
re'con·stit'u·ent (-stĭt'ū·ĕnt), adj. That reconstitutes, esp. wasted tissue. — n. A reconstituent medicine.
re·con'sti·tute (-kŏn'stĭ·tūt), v. t. To constitute again; to restore the constitution of, as dehydrated vegetables or fruits by treatment with water. — re·con'sti·tu'tion (-tū'shŭn), n.
re'con·struct' (rē'kŏn·strŭkt'), v. t. To construct again; to rebuild; to remodel; to form again or anew as in the imagination; as, to reconstruct a church, a regiment, or a past epoch.
re'con·struct'ed (-strŭk'tĕd; -tĭd; 119), adj. Made again or anew; rebuilt; rehabilitated; also, of gems, artificially made; synthetic.
re'con·struc'tion (-strŭk'shŭn), n. 1. Act of reconstructing, or state of being reconstructed; specif., rehabilitation.
2. A thing reconstructed.
3. Biol. A model, usually of wax or cardboard, built up of layers cut to represent magnified serial sections of an object.

---

rec'ol·lect'a·ble, rec'ol·lect'·i·ble, adj. See -ABLE.
re'col·o·ni·za'tion, n., re·col'o·nize, v. t., re·col'or, re·col'our, v. t. See RE-, 2.
re·comb', v. t. See RE-, 2. re'com·bine', v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'com·bi·na'tion, n.
re·com'fort·less, adj. Without comfort. Obs.
re·com'for·ture, n. Consolation. [Obs. rec'om·mends', n. A recommendation. Obs. rec'om·men'dum, n. Commendation. Obs. re'com·mis'sion, v. t. & i. See RE-, 2.

re'com·mu'ni·cate, v. t. & i., re'com·mun'ion, n., re'com·pact', v. t., re'com·pare', v. t., re'com·par'i·son, n., re·com'pass, v. t., re'com·pel', v. t., re·com'pensate, v. t. See RE-, 2. [Ref. Sp.] rec'om·pensat. Recompensed. re'com·pete', v. i. See RE-, 2. — re'com·pe·ti'tion, n. — re'com·pet'i·tor, n. re'com·pi·la'tion, n., re'com·pile', v. t., re'com·pile'ment, n., re'com·plain', v. i., re'com·plaint', n., re'com·plete', v. t., re'com·ple'tion, n., re'com·pli'ance, n., re·com'pli·cate, v. t., re'com·pli·ca'tion, n., re'com·ply', v. i. See RE-, 2. re'com·pound', v. t. See RE-, 2. re·com'pre·hend, v. t. & i. See RE-, 2. — re'com·pre·hen'sion, n.

re'com·pute', v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'com·pu·ta'tion, n.
re·con', v. i., re'con·cealʼ, v. t., re·con'ceal'ment, n., re'con·cede', v. t. See RE-, 2. re'con·ceive', v. t., re'con·cep'tion, n., re'con·cert', v. i., re'con·ces'sion (-sĕsh'ŭn), n. See RE-, 2.
re·con·clude', v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'con·clu'sion, n.

re·con·coct', v. t. See RE-, 2.
re·con'crete, v. t. See RE-, 2. re·con·cur', v. i. See RE-, 2. re·condʼ, v. t. [L. recondere.] To put or store away. Obs.
re'con·demn', v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'con·dem·na'tion, n.
re·con·dense', v. t. & i. See RE-, 2. — re'con·den·sa'tion, n. re'con·dit. Recondite. Ref. Sp. re·con'di·to'ry, n. [ML. reconditorium.] A repository. Obs.
re'con·dole', v. i. See RE-, 2.
re·con·fer', v. t. & i., re'con·fess', v. t. & i. See RE-, 2. re'con·fide', v. t. See RE-, 1 & 2.

re·con·fine', v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'con·fine'ment, n.
re·con·firm', v. t., re'con·fir·ma'tion, n., re·con'fis·cate, v. t., re'con·fis·ca'tion, n. See RE-, 2. re'con·form', v. i. See RE-, 2. re'con·fort'. † RECOMFORT. re'con·found', v. t. See RE-, 2. re'con·front', v. t. See RE-, 2. re'con·fuse', v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'con·fu'sion, n.
re'con·geal', v. i. See RE-, 2. — re'con·ge·la'tion, n. re'con·gest', v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'con·ges'tion, n.
re'con·grat'u·late, v. t. See RE-,

2. — re'con·grat'u·la'tion, n. re'con·join', v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'con·junc'tion, n.
re'con·nect', v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'con·nec'tion, n.
rec'on·noi'ter·ing·ly, adv. of reconnoitering, reconnoitring, pres. part.
re·con'quer, v. t., re·con'querʼor, n., re·con'quest, n. & v. t., re·con'se·crate, v. t., re'con·se·cra'tion, n. See RE-, 2. re'con·sentʼ, v. i. See RE-, 2. re'con·solʼ, v. t., re'con·sol'i·date, v. t. & i., re'con·sol'i·da'tion, n. See RE-, 2.

4. Railroad Finance. Reorganization. Eng.
5. [sometimes cap.] U. S. Hist. The act or process of reorganizing the governments of the States which had passed ordinances of secession, and of re-establishing their constitutional relations to the national government, after the Civil War, in accordance with the Reconstruction Acts of March 2, 1867, "to provide for the more efficient government of the rebel States," and of March 23, 1867, both passed over Johnson's veto.

re'con·struc'tion (rē'kŏn·strŭk'shŭn), v. t. To reconstruct, or reorganize.

re'con·struc'tion·al (-ăl; -'l), adj. Of or pertaining to reconstruction, or a period of reconstruction.

re'con·struc'tion·ar'y (rē'kŏn·strŭk'shŭn·ĕr'ĭ), adj. [usually cap.] Of or pertaining to reconstruction, esp. reconstruction (sense 5).

Reconstruction Finance Corporation. A corporation established by act of Congress, Jan. 22, 1932, with available capital expanded by subsequent legislation to $3,800,000,000, authorized to grant emergency relief through loans to financial institutions of various kinds, including banks, insurance companies, mortgage and loan companies, agricultural credit corporations, etc., esp. for aid and stimulation to agriculture, commerce, and industry. Abbr., R.F.C.

re'con·struc'tion·ist (rē'kŏn·strŭk'shŭn·ĭst), n. An advocate of reconstruction. See RECONSTRUCTION, n., 5. U. S.

re'con·struc'tive (-strŭk'tĭv), adj. Reconstructing; tending to reconstruct; as, a reconstructive policy. — n. That which reconstructs. — re'con·struc'tive·ness, n.

re'con·struc'tor (-tĕr), n. One who or that which reconstructs.

re'con·ven'tion (rē'kŏn·vĕn'shŭn), n. [OF.] 1. Civil Law. A cross demand; a cross action by the defendant against the plaintiff before the same judge.
2. A reassembling, as of Parliament. Obs.
— re'con·ven'tion·al (-ăl; -'l), adj.

re·con'vert (rē·kŏn'vûrt), n. A reconverted person.

re'con·vert'i·ble (-vûr'tĭ·b'l), adj. Capable of being reconverted; convertible again to the original form or condition.

re'con·vey' (rē'kŏn·vā'), v. t. 1. To convey back or to the former place; as, to reconvey goods.
2. To transfer back to a former owner, as an estate.

re·cop'i·la'tion (rē·kŏp'ĭ·lā'shŭn), n. [Sp. recopilación.] Recompilation. Obs.

re·cord' (rē·kôrd'), v.; -CORD'ED; -CORD'ING. [ME. recorden to repeat, remember, remind, fr. OF. recorder, fr. L. recordari to remember, fr. re- re- + cor, cordis, the heart or mind. See HEART.] Transitive: 1. To get by heart; to learn, as by repeating; to recite. Obs.
2. To commit to writing, to printing, to inscription, or the like; to make an official note of; to write, transcribe, or enter in a book or on parchment, for the purpose of preserving authentic evidence of, or on a wax cylinder, rubber disk, etc., for reproduction, as by a phonograph; to register; enroll; as, to record the proceedings of a court.
3. To practice (a song); to sing of; — said now of birds only.
They longed to see the day, to hear the lark Record her hymns, and chant her carols blest. Fairfax.
4. Obs. a To call to mind; to recollect; meditate. b To put (one) in remembrance of. c To narrate orally; also, to declare as a verdict. d To declare to be true; to attest.
——, Intransitive: 1. a Obs. To reflect; to ponder. b To remember.
2. To sing, warble, or repeat a tune, esp. as a bird learning to sing; also, to imitate a bird's note or song.
Whether the birds or she recorded best. W. Browne.
3. To admit of being reproduced, as by a phonograph; as, his voice records beautifully.

record a deed, mortgage, lease, etc. To have a copy of a deed, mortgage, lease, etc. entered in the records of the office designated by law.

rec'ord (rĕk'ĕrd or, esp. Brit., -ôrd), n. [OF. recort, record, remembrance, attestation, record. The final d is due to influence of the verb. See RECORD, v.] 1. Act or fact of recording or being recorded; reduction to writing as evidence; also, the writing so made; a register; as, a record of the acts of the Hebrew kings; a family record.
2. That which is written or transcribed to perpetuate a knowledge of acts or events; also, that on which such record is made, as a monument; a memorial.
3. Specif.: a An official contemporaneous writing by which the acts of some public body, or public officer, are recorded; as, a record of city ordinances. b An authentic official copy of a document entered in a book, or deposited in the keeping of some officer designated by law. Cf. CONVEYANCE, 4. c An official contemporaneous memorandum stating the proceedings of a court of justice; a judicial record. The record is indisputable evidence of the facts recorded, and can be amended only by the court itself upon sufficient evidence of actual mistake or omission. d The official copy of the various legal papers used in a case, together with memoranda of the proceedings of the court.
4. That which has been, or might be, recorded; the known facts in the course of anything, as in a public man's career.
5. That which has been publicly achieved in any kind of competitive sport as recorded in some authoritative manner, as the time made by a winning horse in a race; also, the best of such achievements; as, to beat, or break, the record.
A record is the fastest time made by a horse in a performance against time or in a heat which he won. Nat. Trotting Assn.
6. Something made by perforating, indenting, or otherwise transforming an original blank, so that when operated upon by a special instrument or machine it will at any time perform a definite act of reproduction, esp. of sound; as: a The cylinder or disk of hard wax, rubber, etc., on which phonographic sounds are recorded; also, a metal master of this cylinder or disk; also, a replica of the master used in the reproduction of the sounds. In some forms of phonographs, the same record is used for recording and reproduction. See PHONOGRAPH, 3. b The locally magnetized steel wire, ribbon, or disk similarly used in the telegraphone. c The perforated paper roll of an automatic piano player. d The perforated ribbon used in an automatic telegraphic sender.
7. Obs. a Testimony; evidence; attestation. b Remembrance; recollection; memory. c Good repute; reputation. d A witness.
Syn. — RECORDS, ARCHIVES, CHRONICLES, ANNALS. RECORDS, as here compared, are in general written accounts of facts or events; ARCHIVES are public records; CHRONICLES are registers esp. of historical facts, disposed in the order of time; ANNALS are chronicles arranged by years. Cf. LIST.
☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are:

record-bearing	record-breaking	record-seeking record-beating	record-making	record-setting — of record. a Appearing upon the record of a court, as a debt upon a judgment or a cognizance. b Documented; as, his reversal of opinion is of record. — on record. In the position of having declared oneself; in the status of being known, published, or documented; as, to go on record as favoring a sales tax; to put one's views on record.

rec'ord (rĕk'ĕrd; -ôrd), adj. Denoting a performance, occurrence, or condition which goes beyond, or is extraordinary among, others of its kind; as, a record run; record prices.

re·cord'ant (rē·kôr'dănt), adj. Recording. Rare.

rec'or·da'tion (rĕk'ŏr·dā'shŭn), n. [OF., fr. L. recordatio. See RECORD, v.] 1. A recollection or the power of recollecting. Obs.
2. A recording as in the memory or in writing; a record.

re·cor'da·tive (rē·kôr'dā·tĭv), adj. [MF. recordatif.] Commemorative. — re·cor'da·tive·ly, adv.

re·cor'da·to'ry (rē·kôr'dā·tō'rĭ; -tĕr·ĭ; 181), adj. Of or pertaining to recordation.

re·cord'er (rē·kôr'dĕr), n. [OF. recordeor, prop., one who remembers, a relater or minstrel, in AF., a magistrate.]
1. One who records; esp., one whose official duty it is to make a record of writings or transactions.
2. A recording apparatus or instrument, esp. when autographic (see AUTOGRAPHIC, 3); as, a cash, speed, steam, or time recorder.
3. A witness. Obs.
4. Law. a Eng. The chief judicial magistrate of some cities and boroughs, having, now, only criminal jurisdiction. b U. S. A judge with criminal jurisdiction of first instance and, sometimes, also a magistrate's civil jurisdiction, in a municipality. See Forms of Address, in Appendix. c Obs. The chief justice of an East Indian settlement.
5. Music. a A fipple flute with eight holes that was the "common flute" before the invention of the transverse flute. It was made in various sizes and was commonly used in England in sets of four, descant, alto, tenor, and bass. Recorder making and playing have been revived in the twentieth century. b A phonograph or its sound box or other device that records sounds. In one type, variations of sound pressure are recorded on a moving photographic film by means of variations in film density produced by a fluctuating beam of light. Cf. REPRODUCER a, PHONOGRAPH, 3. c One who performs, as by singing, reciting, or playing a musical instrument, for a phonograph or other sound-recording device.

Descant, or Treble, Recorder.

6. Teleg. A receiving apparatus for recording signals. See SIPHON RECORDER.
7. Teleph. A telephonic message-recording device. See TELEGRAPHONE.

re·cord'ing, pres. part. & verbal n. of RECORD. Specif.: n. a Obs. Recollection; meditation. b The singing or practicing of birds.

re·cord'ing, adj. Keeping a record or a register; as, a recording secretary; the recording angel; also, self-recording; as, a recording telegraph. Cf. AUTOGRAPHIC, 3; SELF-RECORDING.

recording meter. Elec. & Mech. An instrument usually driven by clockwork, containing a chart upon which a record of the variations in current, pressure, or the like are recorded.

re·cord'ist (rē·kôr'dĭst), n. [See -IST.] One who records.

rec'ord rib'bon. Office Practice. A typewriter ribbon, usually black, used when no copy of the writing is to be made. Cf. COPYING RIBBON.

re·count' (rē·kount'), v.; -COUNT'ED; -COUNT'ING. [OF. reconter to relate, to recount, fr. re- again + conter to relate. See COUNT, v.] Transitive: 1. To tell; to relate in detail; to narrate the particulars of; as, to recount all that had occurred.
2. To make an enumeration or recital of; to specify one by one; as, to recount one's blessings.
3. Obs. a To account; to deem. b To reckon; include.
——, Intransitive: To tell or count instances. Obs.

re·count', n. [See RECOUNT to relate.] Account. Obs.

re·count', v. t. & i. = RECOUNTER, v. t. & i.

re–count' (rē·count'), v. t. To count again. See RE-, 2.

re·count' (rē·kount'; rē'kount'), n. A counting again.

re·count'al (rē·koun'tăl; -t'l), n. A recounting; recital.

re·count'er (-tĕr), n. One who recounts.

re·coun'ter, n. [See RE-; COUNTER to encounter.] Obs.
1. An encounter; also, a buffet.
2. Scots Law. A counter pledge.

re·coun'ter, v. t. & i. Obs. 1. To encounter.
2. Law. To oppose. Scot.

re·count'ment, n. Recital. Obs. Shak.

re·coup' (rē·kōōp'), v.; -COUPED' (-kōōpt'); -COUP'ING. [F. recouper, fr. re- re- + couper to cut. See COPPICE.] Transitive: 1. Law. To keep back rightfully (a part), so as to diminish a sum due; to take off (a part) from damages; to deduct; to make recoupment of. (See RECOUPMENT.)
2. To get an equivalent or compensation for; as, to recoup one's losses in gaming or in the stock market.
3. To compensate (oneself) for loss, damage, or the like; reimburse; to indemnify.
Elizabeth had lost her venture; but if she was bold, she might recoup herself at Philip's cost. Froude.
——, Intransitive: v. i. To gain or receive compensation; to regain something once lost, or its equivalent; as, one year he lost everything, but the next year he recouped.

re·coup', n. Law. Act of recouping.

re·coup'er, n. One who recoups.

re·coup'ment (rē·kōōp'mĕnt), n. Act of recouping, or that which is recouped; specif., Law, the defendant's act or right of abating or reducing the claim sued on by setting up in defense some act or fact growing out of the matters constituting the cause or ground of the action brought. The right was formerly recognized only with respect to previous partial payment or recovery, but the wider right has become generally established, though without fixed limits. Recoupment includes unliquidated damages, while setoff applies only to those that are liquidated; counterclaim is the broader term, including both recoupment and setoff. Recoupment corresponds closely to the civil law reconvention.

re·course' (rē·kôrs'; rē'kōrs; 181), n. [OF. recours, fr. L. recursus a running back, fr. recurrere, recursum, to run back. See RECUR.] 1. A coursing back, or coursing again, along the line of a previous coursing; return; retreat; recurrence. Obs. "Swift recourse of flushing blood." Spenser.
2. Resort or application for assistance; specif., resort (to a person) for the meeting of an obligation.
Our last recourse is therefore to our art. Dryden.
3. A source of aid; the person or thing resorted to.
4. Obs. a Flow or movement, esp., as of a river, in a path or channel; flow of the tide; course. b Repeated visiting; habitual resort. c A coming together, or gathering. d Access; admittance; intercourse.
— without recourse. Commerce. Words which when added to the endorsement of a negotiable instrument protect the endorser from liability to the endorsee and subsequent holders.

re·course' (rē·kôrs'), n. & v. t. [Var. of RESCOURS.] Rescue. Obs.

re·course', v. i. 1. To return; revert; recur. Obs.
2. To have recourse; to resort. Now Rare.

re·cov'er (rē·kŭv'ĕr), v.; -COV'ERED (-ĕrd); -COV'ER·ING. [ME. recoveren, fr. OF. recovrer (F. recouvrer), fr. L. recuperare; akin to L. recipere to receive. See RECEIVE; cf. RECUPERATE.] Transitive: 1. To get or obtain again; to get renewed possession of; to win back; to regain, as lost property, territory, appetite, health, courage.
2. To overcome; to get the better of, as a state of mind or body. "I do hope to recover my late hurt." Cowley.
3. Reflexively: a To bring back to normal health, poise, or status. b To withdraw in order to return or reinstate oneself; — with from or out of.
4. To make good by reparation; to make up for; to retrieve; to repair the loss or injury of; as, to recover lost time. "Loss of catel may recovered be." Chaucer.
5. To gain by motion or effort; to obtain; to reach; to come to; also, to return to. Archaic.
The forest is not three leagues off;
If we recover that, we're sure enough. Shak.
6. To restore from sickness, faintness, or the like; to bring back to life or health; to cure; heal.
The wine in my bottle will recover him. Shak.
7. To rescue; deliver; — now with from or out of.
That they may recover themselves out of the snare of the devil, who are taken captive by him. 2 Tim. ii. 26.
8. To restore as a thing regained; — usually with to.
Recovering to man the use of his reason. Law.
9. To get hold of again, as by capture or reconciliation.
To recover those whom their fears had led astray. Burke.
10. To find again; as, to recover a scent.
11. To reclaim, as land from the sea.
12. To obtain or regain from an ore, a waste product, or a by-product; as, to recover gold by cyaniding gold ore.
13. Obs. a To set right again. b To get in return for something else.
14. Law. To gain as a compensation; to obtain in return for injury or debt; as, to recover damages in trespass; to recover debt and costs in a suit at law; to obtain title to or possession of something by final decree or judgment in a court of law; as, to recover lands in ejectment or real action; to gain by legal process; as, to recover judgment against a defendant.
——, Intransitive: 1. To regain health after sickness; to grow well; to be restored or cured; hence, to regain self-control, consciousness, etc.; — often with of or from; as, to recover slowly from pneumonia, a swoon, or fright.
Go, inquire of Baal-zebub, the god of Ekron, whether I shall recover of this disease. 2 Kings i. 2.
2. To make one's way back, as after a journey or lapse; to return. Obs.
With much ado the Christians recovered to Antioch. Fuller.
3. Fencing, Rowing, etc. To make a recovery.
4. Law. To obtain a final judgment in one's favor; to succeed in a lawsuit or proceeding; as, I recovered in my suit.
Syn. — Regain, retake, repossess, resume, recruit.

recover arms. Mil. Formerly, a command whereby the piece is brought from the position of "aim" to that of "ready."

recover the wind of. To get the better of; gain an advantage over. Shak.

re·cov'er (rē·kŭv'ĕr), n. [OF. recovre. See RECOVER, v.] Recovery (in various senses); esp. = RECOVERY, 6 & 9.

re–cov'er (rē·kŭv'ĕr; 63), v. t. To cover again or anew.

re·cov'er·a·ble (rē·kŭv'ĕr·ă·b'l), adj. Capable of being recovered, or of recovering; that may be recovered. — re·cov'er·a·bil'i·ty (-bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), re·cov'er·a·ble·ness, n.

re·cov'er·ance (rē·kŭv'ĕr·ăns), n. [OF. recovrance.] Recovery. Archaic.

re·cov'er·ee' (rē·kŭv'ĕr·ē'), n. Law. The person against whom a judgment is obtained in common recovery.

re·cov'er·er (rē·kŭv'ĕr·ĕr), n. a One who recovers. b Specif., a worker in a recovery process.

re·cov'er·er, n. [OF. recovrer to recover, to obtain, inf. as n.] Recovery. Obs.

re·cov'er·or (-kŭv'ĕr·ôr; -kŭv'ĕr·ôr'), n. [Cf. OF. recovreor.] Law. The demandant in a common recovery after judgment.

re·cov'er·y (rē·kŭv'ĕr·ĭ), n.; pl. -ERIES (-ĭz). [Cf. OF. recovree.] 1. Means of restoration; remedy; cure. Obs.
2. Act of recovering; act of regaining or retaking possession; specif., act of regaining the natural position after curtseying.
3. Restoration from sickness, weakness, or the like, or from a condition of misfortune, fright, evil life, depression, etc.
4. The recovering of useful material from spent products or waste; also, product thus recovered; as, the recovery of sulphur in making soda.
5. A period of recovering, as after a depression.
6. Fencing, Sparring, etc. Act of regaining the position of guard after making an attack.
7. Law. The obtaining in a suit at law of a right to something by a verdict, decree, or judgment of court, esp. by the final one deciding the issues involved; specif., a common recovery (which see). A final recovery is one obtained by a verdict or final decree or judgment. Its total is the sum awarded and does not include interest after the verdict or decision.
8. Metal. The amount (of metal or valuable substance) obtained in a process of ore treatment, expressed sometimes as a percentage of the metal originally in the ore.

---

re·con·strue', v. t. See RE-, 2.
re·con·sult', v. t. & i., re·con·sul·ta'tion, n., re·con'tact, n., re·con'tem·plate, v. t., re·con·tem·pla'tion, n., re·con·tend', v. i. See RE-, 2.
re·con'ter, v. t. [See RECOUNTER.] Encounter. Obs. Scot.
re·con·test', n. & v. See RE-, 2.
re·con·tin'u·ance, n., re'con·tin'ue, v. t. & i., re·con·tract', v. t., re·con·trac'tion, n. See RE-, 2.
re·con·trast', v. t. See RE-, 2. re·con·trib'ute, v. t. & i. See RE-, 2. — re·con·tri·bu'tion, n.
re·con·trive', v. t. & i. See RE-, 2. — re·con·triv'ance, n.
re·con·trol', n. & v. See RE-, 2.
re·con·va·lesce', v. i., re·con·va·les'cence, n., re·con·va·les'cent, adj., re·con·vene', v. i. & t., re·con·vent', v. t. (Obs.), re·con·verge', v. i., re·con·verse', v. t. & i., re·con·ver'sion, n., re·con·vert', v. t. See RE-, 2.
re·con·vey'ance, n., re·con·vict', v. t., re·con·vic'tion, n., re·con·vince', v. t., re·con·voke', v. t., re·cook', v. t., re·cool', v. i., re·coop'er, v. t. See RE-, 2.
re'·co·op'er·ate, v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'·co·op'er·a'tion, n.
re·cop'per, v. t., re·cop'y, v. t., re·cop'y·right', v. t., re·cord', v. t. See RE-, 2.
re·cord'a·ble, adj. See -ABLE.
re·cord'ance, n. [OF.] Remembrance. Obs. [past part.] re·cord'ed·ly, adv. of recorded, re·cord'er·ship, n. See -SHIP. rec'ord·less, adj. See -LESS.
re·cork', v. t., re'cor·por'i·fi·ca'tion, n., re'cor·por'i·fy, v. t., re·cor·rect', v.t., re'cor·rec'tion, n., re'cor·rupt', v. t., re'cor·rup'tion, n., re·cos'tume, v. t., re·count'sel, v. t. See RE-, 2.
re·coun'sel, v. t. [OF. reconseiller, fr. L. reconciliare to reconcile, after OF. conseiller to counsel.] = RECONCILE, v. t. Obs. — re·coun'sel·er, n. Obs.
re·count'a·ble, adj. See -ABLE.
re·count'e·nance, v. t. See RE-, 2.
re·count'less, adj. See -LESS. re·coup'a·ble (rē·kōōp'ă·b'l), adj. See -ABLE.
re·coup'ment, n. [RE-, 2.]
re·coup'ple (rē·kŭp'l), v. t. See RE-, 2. re·cour', n. [OF. recouvre, fr. the v. See RECOVER to regain.] Recovery. Obs. — v. t. To recover. Obs. [PAR.] re·cov'ered grease. See WOOL. re·cov'er·ing·ly, adv. of recovering, pres. part.
re·cov'er·less, adj. See -LESS.

9. Rowing. The movement of the body and oar or oars, after completion of a stroke, into position for the next stroke.
Syn. — Return, retrieval; reformation; restoration, salvage, reclamation.
Ant. — Loss, ruin, decline, fall. recovery oven. A by-product oven. See COKE OVEN. — recovery coke, etc. rec/re·ance (rĕk′rē·ăns), n. Recreancy. rec/re·ance, n. [Cf. RECREATION.] Recreation. rec/re·an·cy (rĕk′rē·ăn·sĭ), n. Quality or state of being recreant; shameful cowardice; perfidiousness. rec/re·ant (-ănt), adj. [OF., pres. part. of recreire, recroire (also used reflexively), to surrender or give up one's cause or allegiance, to cause to do so, ML. recredere, recredere se, to give up, surrender, fr. L. re- again, back + credere to entrust, trust, believe. See CREED.] 1. Crying for mercy, as a combatant in the trial by battle; yielding; cowardly; mean-spirited; craven. "This recreant knight." Spenser.
2. Apostate; false; unfaithful to one's duty or allegiance.
Turned recreant to God, ingrate and false. Milton.
Syn. and Ant. — See COWARDLY.
— rec/re·ant·ly, adv. — rec/re·ant·ness, n.
rec/re·ant, n. [OF. See RECREANT, adj.] 1. One who yields cravenly in combat; a cowardly wretch.
You are all recreants and dastards. Shak.
2. A betrayer; an apostate; a deserter; as, a recreant to his faith.
rec/re·ate (rĕk′rē·āt), v. t.; -AT′ED (-āt′ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -AT′ING (-āt′ĭng). [L. recreatus, past part. of recreare to create anew, to refresh, fr. re- re- + creare to create. See CREATE.] To give fresh life to; to reanimate; now esp., to refresh after wearying toil or anxiety; to give relief to, as by change or diversion; to cheer; amuse.
Painters, when they work on white grounds, place before them colors mixed with blue and green, to recreate their eyes. Dryden.
— v. i. To take recreation.
re′–cre·ate′ (rē′krē·āt′), v. t. To create again or anew; figuratively, to image anew in the imagination; to recollect and reform in the mind. — re′–cre·ate′, adj.
rec/re·a′tion (rĕk′rē·ā′shŭn), n. [ME. recreacioun, fr. OF. recreation, fr. L. recreatio.] 1. Refreshment by means of food; a meal; also, refreshment by any means. Obs.
2. Act of recreating, or state of being recreated; refreshment of the strength and spirits after toil; diversion; play; also a mode or means of getting diversion or refreshment.
Syn. — See PLAY. Ant. — See WORK. rec/re·a′tion, adj. Recreational; esp., equipped so as to provide diversions or amusements.
re′–cre·a′tion (rē′krē·ā′shŭn), n. See RE-, 2. rec/re·a′tion·al (rĕk′rē·ā′shŭn·ăl; -l), adj. Of or pertaining to recreation.
rec/re·a′tion·ist, n. One who takes or seeks recreation, esp. at a resort in the open.
rec/re·a′tive (rĕk′rē·ā′tĭv), adj. [Cf. F. récréatif. See RECREATE.] Tending to recreate; recreating; amusing; diverting. "Let the music of them be recreative." Bacon.
— rec/re·a′tive·ly, adv. — rec/re·a′tive·ness, n.
re′–cre·a′tive (rē′krē·ā′tĭv), adj. See RE-, 2. rec/re·a′tor (rĕk′rē·ā′tĕr), n. One who or that which recreates.
re′–cre·a′tor (rē′krē·ā′tĕr), n. See RE-, 2.
re′cre·den′tial (rē′krē·dĕn′shăl), adj. & n. Designating letters which are the credentials of an ambassador returning from his post. Obs.
rec/re·ment (rĕk′rē·mĕnt), n. [F. or L.; F. récrément, fr. L. recrementum, fr. re- re- + cernere, cretum, to separate, sift. See DISCERN.] 1. Superfluous matter separated from that which is useful; dross; scoria; as, the recrement of ore.
2. Med. a Obs. Excrement. b A substance secreted from a part of the body, as a gland, and again absorbed by the body. rec/re·men′tal (rĕk′rē·mĕn′tăl; -t′l), adj. Pertaining to recrements. rec/re·men·ti′tial (-mĕn·tĭsh′ăl), adj. Med. Of the nature of a recrement. See RECREMENT, 2 b. rec/re·men·ti′tious (-mĕn·tĭsh′ŭs), adj. Of, pert. to, consisting of, or of the nature of, recrement or dross; superfluous.
re·cres′cence (rē·krĕs′ĕns; -′ns), n. [L. recrescere to grow anew.] Biol. New growth; reproduction of a lost part.
re·crim′i·nate (rē·krĭm′ĭ·nāt), v. i.; -NAT′ED (-nāt′ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -NAT′ING (-nāt′ĭng). [ML. recriminare. See CRIMINATE.] To make a countercharge or accusation; to charge back fault or crime upon an accuser. — v. t. To accuse (a person) in return; to retort or return (an accusation). Now Rare.
re·crim′i·na′tion (-nā′shŭn), n. [ML. recriminatio.] Act of recriminating; an accusation brought by the accused against the accuser; a counter accusation.
re·crim′i·na′tive (rē·krĭm′ĭ·nā′tĭv; -nə·tĭv), adj. Recriminatory.
re·crim′i·na′tor (-nā′tĕr), n. One who recriminates.
re·crim′i·na·to′ry (-nə·tō′rĭ; 68; 181), adj. Having the character or nature of recrimination; recriminating. re·cru′den·cy (rē·krōō′dĕn·sĭ), n. Recrudescence. Bacon.
re′cru·desce′ (rē′krōō·dĕs′), v. i.; -DESCED′ (-dĕst′); -DESC′ING (dĕs′ĭng). [See RECRUDESCENT.] To become recrudescent; to break out again; to renew activity.
The general influence . . . which is liable every now and then to recrudesce in his absence. Edmund Gurney.
re′cru·des′cence (-dĕs′ĕns; -′ns), n. State of being recrudescent; as: a Increased severity of a disease after a remission. b The breaking out again of a wound, sore, or, figuratively, of some latent evil. c A return; a revival; a renewal.
A recrudescence of barbarism may condemn it. Duke of Argyll. re′cru·des′cen·cy (rē′krōō·dĕs′ĕn·sĭ; -′n·sĭ), n. Recrudescence.
re′cru·des′cent (-ĕnt; -′nt), adj. [L. recrudescens, -entis, pres. part. of recrudescere to become raw again, fr. re- re- + crudescere to become hard or raw. See CRUDE.] That breaks out again; renewing morbid or dangerous activity after abatement, suppression, or cessation; as, a recrudescent boil or fever; recrudescent discontent or anarchy.
re·cruit′ (rē·krōōt′; 242), v.; -CRUIT′ED; -CRUIT′ING. [F. recruter, fr. recrue, recrute, recruiting, recruit, prop., a new growth, fr. recroître, past part. recrû, OF. recreü, to grow again, fr. re- re- + croître to grow, OF. croistre, creistre, fr. L. crescere. See CRESCENT.] Transitive: 1. To strengthen or supply with fresh or additional men or troops; to reinforce, fill up, or make up, by enlistment; as, to recruit an army by a new draft; the party was recruited largely from the farmers; also, to muster; to raise; to enlist; as, he recruited a regiment.
2. To provide (something) with what is needed to correct or prevent depletion, exhaustion, waste, etc.; to repair or replenish with fresh supplies, material, efforts, or the like. Now Rare.
And each of the Many helps to recruit
The life of the race by a general plan. Browning.
3. To restore the vigor or health of (a person, one's spirits, etc.); to renew in strength; to reinvigorate.
Her vital energies recruit. Wordsworth.
With thy care of him . . . and mine together, we might recruit him once again, and set him upon his legs. Sterne.
—, Intransitive: 1. To gain new supplies of men for service; to raise or enlist new soldiers; as, both armies recruited easily.
2. To recover what has been lost or spent, esp. strength or health; to recuperate; as, lean cattle recruit in fresh pastures.
Syn. — Gather, assemble; revive, refresh, restore.
Ant. — Exhaust, waste; weary. re·cruit′, n. [MF. recrute. See RECRUIT, v.] 1. Mil. a Obs. A newly raised, or additional, body of soldiery, as a fresh levy or reinforcements; — often in pl. b Obs. A strengthening or increase of an army by reinforcements or new levies. c A newly enlisted soldier, sailor, or marine, — from 1948 the lowest grade in the U. S. Army.
2. That which replenishes or repairs a loss; a fresh or additional supply. Now Rare.
The state is to have recruits to its strength, and remedies to its distempers. Burke.
re·cruit′age (rē·krōōt′ĭj), n. State of being a recruit. Rare.
re·cruit′al (-ăl; -′l), n. A recruiting; a new supply; a restoration to health.
re·cruit′ee′ (rē·krōōt′ē′), n. [See -EE.] One recruited. re·cruit′er (rē·krōōt′ĕr), n. 1. An extra member of Parliament, chosen to bring up the number, esp. during the Civil War. Obs.
2. One who recruits; esp., one who enlists recruits.
re·cruit′ing, pres. part. & verbal n. of RECRUIT. Specif.: adj. Having military recruiting as a duty or purpose; as, a recruiting depot, party, sergeant, service, staff. recruiting ground. A place for obtaining, enlisting, or supplying recruits; a source of supply; — chiefly figurative.
re·cruit′ment (rē·krōōt′mĕnt), n. [Cf. F. recrutement.] 1. A reinforcement.
2. Act or process of recruiting, as of men for an army.
re·crush′er (rē·krŭsh′ĕr), n. A rock crusher for producing fine aggregate for concrete by crushing again material which has already been crushed.
re·crys′tal·lize (rē·krĭs′tăl·īz), v. t. & i. Chem. To crystallize again or repeatedly. — re′crys·tal·li·za′tion (rē′krĭs·tăl·ĭ·zā′shŭn; -ī·zā′-), n.
rect (rĕkt), n. [L. rectus straight, right.] Philos. In the philosophy of nature of A. N. Whitehead, an element analogous to a right line in a geometrical system.
rect, adj. [L. rectus.] Right; straight; erect. Obs.
rect-. = RECTO- (which see), as in rec·tal′gi·a, rec·tec′tomy, rec·tis′chi·ac, rec·tit′ic, rec·ti′tis. See -ALGIA, etc. rect-. = RECTI-. rec′tal (rĕk′tăl; -t′l), adj. Anat. Of or pertaining to the rectum; in the region of the rectum. — rec′tal·ly, adv.
rectal valve. Anat. Any of three or four crescentic folds projecting into the cavity of the rectum.
rec′tan′gle (rĕk′tăng′g'l), n. [F., fr. LL. rect(i)angulum, fr. L. rectus right + angulus angle. See RIGHT; ANGLE.] Geom. A right-angled parallelogram.

Rectangle.

As the area of a rectangle is the product of its two dimensions, the term rectangle has been used for product of two factors; as, the rectangle of a and b, that is, ab. Also, formerly, a right angle. The area of a rectangle may be found by multiplying together two adjacent sides.
rec′tan′gle, adj. [F., fr. LL. rect(i)angulus. See RECTANGLE, n.] Right-angled (of triangles). Obs.
rec′tan′gled (rĕk′tăng′g'ld), adj. Rare. a Rectangular. b Right-angled. c Divided into rectangles.
rec·tan′gu·lar (rĕk·tăng′gū·lĕr), adj. [Cf. F. rectangulaire.] 1. Having one or more right angles; having a surface or surfaces shaped like a rectangle; having the shape of a rectangle; as, a rectangular plot, crystal, or solid.
2. That meet, cross, lie, or the like, at a right angle; forming a right angle; as, rectangular directions or course.
— rec·tan′gu·lar·ly, adv. — rec·tan′gu·lar·ness, rec·tan′gu·lar′i·ty (rĕk·tăng′gū·lăr′ĭ·tĭ), n.
rectangular array. Math. A matrix, esp. with an unequal number of rows and columns. rectangular co–ordinates. See Cartesian co-ordinates, under CO-ORDINATE, n., 2. rectangular eyepiece. Astron. = DIAGONAL EYEPIECE. rectangular hyperbola. Math. = EQUILATERAL HYPERBOLA. rectangular parallelepiped. Math. A parallelepiped whose dihedral angles are right angles. rectangular polyhedral angle. Math. A polyhedral angle having one right dihedral angle. rectangular solid. Math. A cylindrical solid whose axis is perpendicular to its base, esp. a rectangular parallelepiped.
rec·tan′gu·late (rĕk·tăng′gū·lāt), v. t. To make rectangular; to square. — v. i. To move at right angles.
rec·tan′gu·late (rĕk·tăng′gū·lăt), adj. Rectangular.
rec·tan′gu·lom′e·ter (-lŏm′ē·tĕr), n. [rectangular + -meter.] Instrument to test right angles.
rec′ti- (rĕk′tĭ-), rect-. A combining form, Late Latin recti-, meaning straight, as in *rect*angular, *recti*lineal, *rect*inerved.
rec′ti (rĕk′tī), n., pl. of RECTUS.
rec′ti·fi′a·ble (rĕk′tĭ·fī′ə·b'l), adj. Capable of being rectified; as, a rectifiable mistake; a rectifiable curve.
rec′ti·fi·ca′tion (-fĭ·kā′shŭn), n. [F. rectification, fr. LL. rectificatio.] 1. Act or operation of rectifying; as, the rectification of an error; the rectification of spirits.
2. Geom. The determination of a straight line equal in length to a portion of a curve; the determination of the length of a given curve or of a portion of it.
rectification of a globe. Astron. Its adjustment for latitude, etc., preparatory to solution of a proposed problem.
rec′ti·fi·ca′tive (rĕk′tĭ·fĭ·kā′tĭv), adj. [F. rectificatif.] Serving to rectify. Rare.
rec′ti·fi·ca′tor (-kā′tĕr), n. A rectifier. rec′ti·fi·ca′to·ry (-tō·rĭ), adj. Rectifying; corrective. Rare.
— n. One that adjusts, rectifies, or corrects. Obs.
rec′ti·fied (rĕk′tĭ·fīd), past tense & past part. of RECTIFY. Specif.: adj. Hort. Having unusual color markings, presumably caused by a disease, as one of the mosaics; — said of flowers, esp. tulips. Eng.
rectified spirit. Alcohol purified or concentrated by redistillation; specif., in the British Pharmacopoeia, one containing ten per cent by volume of water.
rec′ti·fi′er (rĕk′tĭ·fī′ĕr), n. One who or that which rectifies. Specif.: a A part of a distilling apparatus in which the more volatile portions are separated by evaporation and condensation. b Elec. (1) A device or apparatus for converting an alternating or oscillating current into a unidirectional current by means of a kind of commutator (distinguished from converter), or by suppressing half of each cycle, as by passing the current through a mercury-vapor tube, aluminum cell, etc. See NODON VALVE, ELECTROLYTIC RECTIFIER; cf. FULL-WAVE RECTIFIER, HALF-WAVE RECTIFIER. (2) = ELECTRON TUBE. (3) = DETECTOR, n., 2 e. c Mech. Refrig. See ABSORPTION SYSTEM; REFRIGERATION, Illust. d Naut. An instrument formerly used for determining and rectifying variations of the compass.
rectifier instrument. An instrument consisting of a rectifier in conjunction with a direct-current meter, used for measuring alternating currents. The direct-current meter reading gives the value of the rectified alternating current.
rec′ti·fy (rĕk′tĭ·fī), v. t.; -FIED (-fīd); -FY′ING (-fī′ĭng). [F. rectifier, fr. LL. rectificare, fr. rectus right + -ficare (in comp.) to make. See RIGHT; -FY.] 1. To make or set right; to correct from a wrong, erroneous, or false state; to amend; as, to rectify errors, mistakes, or abuses; to rectify the will, the judgment, opinions; to rectify disorders.
I meant to rectify my conscience. Shak.
2. To set right by adjustment or calculation; to adjust (an instrument); — used esp. in phrase to rectify a globe, to adjust a globe in preparation for solving a problem.
3. Obs. a To set right by correcting. b To straighten (something); to bring into line. c To proclaim right; also, to justify.
4. Chem. To refine or purify, esp. by a process of repeated or fractional distillation, sometimes with the addition of flavoring substances; as, to rectify spirit.
5. Elec. To make (an alternating or oscillating current) unidirectional, varying periodically between zero and a maximum.
6. Math. To determine the length of (an arc of a curve).
Syn. — Right, remedy, better, reform; regulate, adjust. See CORRECT. rec′ti·fy′ing (rĕk′tĭ·fī′ĭng), pres. part. & verbal n. of RECTIFY. rectifying developable. Math. A developable surface through a space curve, in the development of which the curve is rolled out into a right line. It is the envelope of the rectifying planes of the curve.
rectifying edge. Math. The cuspidal edge of a rectifying developable. rectifying line (of a skew curve at a given point on the curve). Math. The limit of the intersection of the rectifying plane at the point with the rectifying plane at a neighboring point as this neighboring point approaches the given point.
rectifying plane (of a space curve at a given point). Math. The plane containing the tangent and binormal at the point and hence perpendicular to the osculating and normal planes.
rec′ti·grade (rĕk′tĭ·grād), adj. [See RECTI-; GRADE.] That moves or proceeds in a straight line or course.
Rec′ti·graph (rĕk′tĭ·grăf; 83), n. [recti- + -graph.] A trade-mark applied to a device for making photographic copies of written or printed matter, drawings, maps, etc., directly upon the surface of sensitized paper with the image in correct position. rec′ti·lin′e·al (-lĭn′ē·ăl), adj. [recti- + lineal.] Rectilinear. — rec′ti·lin′e·al·ly, adv. Rare.
rec′ti·lin′e·ar (-ĕr), adj. [recti- + linear.] 1. Moving in a straight line; having an undeviating direction; forming a straight line; as, rectilinear motion; a rectilinear course.
2. Right-lined; formed or bounded by straight lines; also, characterized by straight lines; as, a rectilinear angle or figure; rectilinear arrangement of streets.
— rec′ti·lin′e·ar′i·ty (-ăr′ĭ·tĭ), rec′ti·lin′e·ar·ness, n. — rec′ti·lin′e·ar·ly, adv.
rec′ti·lin′e·ar, n. Something rectilinear.
rectilinear lens. Photog. A lens specially corrected for distortion, so that straight lines are reproduced accurately, even on the margins of the pictures.
rec′ti·lin′e·a′tion (rĕk′tĭ·lĭn′ē·ā′shŭn), n. Act of making rectilinear. Rare.
rec′ti·nerved′ (rĕk′tĭ·nûrvd′), adj. [recti- + nerve.] Bot. Having the veins or nerves straight. rec′ti·pe·tal′i·ty (rĕk′tĭ·pē·tăl′ĭ·tĭ), n. [recti- + L. petere to seek.] Plant Physiol. The tendency of growing plant organs to grow in a straight line. Rare.
rec′ti·ros′tral (-rŏs′trăl), adj. [recti- + rostral.] Having a straight beak.
rec′ti·se′ri·al (-sē′rĭ·ăl), adj. [recti- + serial.] Bot. In phyllotaxy, arranged in exactly vertical ranks.
rec′ti·tude (rĕk′tĭ·tūd), n. [F., fr. LL. rectitudo, fr. rectus right, straight. See RIGHT.] 1. Straightness; also, direct line. Now Rare.
The rectitude of many of her streets. W. D. Howells.
2. The quality of not deviating from a strict moral code; righteousness; uprightness; specif., strict observance of standards of integrity and honesty; as, never to question the rectitude of his motives.
3. Correctness of judgment, procedure, or the like; as, scientific rectitude.
Syn. — RECTITUDE, UPRIGHTNESS. RECTITUDE is often used to designate a quality of motives, intentions, and the like; UPRIGHTNESS connotes esp. probity or integrity, and oftener suggests a personal characteristic; as, the rectitude of his purpose; a man of unquestioned uprightness in all his dealings. But there is often no clear distinction between the words. Cf. HONESTY, JUSTICE, FAIR.
Ant. — Iniquity, evil, wickedness, sinfulness. rec′ti·tu′di·nous (rĕk′tĭ·tū′dĭ·nŭs), adj. Self-righteous. R.
rec′to (rĕk′tō), n.; pl. RECTOS (-tōz). [L., abl. of rectus right.] 1. Print. The right-hand page; — opposed to verso.
2. Bookbinding. The front cover of a book.
rec′to (rĕk′tō), n. [Abbr. fr. ML. breve de recto. See RIGHT.] Law. A writ of right. rec′to- (rĕk′tō-). Anat. & Med. A combining form from rectum, used to denote: a The rectum; — in nouns, as in rec′to·cele, hernia of the rectum. b Rectal and; — in adjectives, as in rec′to·ab·dom′i·nal, rectal and abdominal.

re·cramp′, v. t. See RE-, 2. re·crank′, v. t. See RE-, 2. re·crate′, v. t. See RE-, 2. re·crayed′, adj. Recreant. Obs. re/re·an·dise, n. [OF., also -ise.] Recreancy. Obs. re·crease′, v. i. [OF. or L.; OF. recroistre, fr. L. recrescere.] To increase again. Obs. re·cre′re·a′tiv. Recreative. Ref. Sp.
re/re·a·to′ry, n. = RECREATIVE. Rare.
re·cred′it, v. t. See RE-, 2. re·crew′, n. & v. [F. recrue, n. See RECRUIT.] Recruit. Obs. re·crit′i·cize, v. t. See RE-, 2. re·croon′, v. t. See RE-, 2. re·crop′, v. t. & i. See RE-, 2. re·cross′, v. t. & i. See RE-, 2. re·crowd′, v. t. See RE-, 2. re·crown′, v. t., re·cru′ci·fy, v. t. See RE-, 2.
re·cruit′able, adj. See -ABLE.
re·cruit′hood, n. See -HOOD. re·cruit′y (rē·krōōt′ĭ), n. Dim. of RECRUIT (sense 1 c). Kipling.
re·crush′, v. t. See RE-, 2. rec′ta, n., pl. of RECTUM. rectangle group. = QUADRATIC GROUP. rec′ti·line, adj. [Cf. F. rectiligne.] Rectilinear. Obs.
rec′ti·lin′e·ar·ism, n. See -ISM. rec′tion (rĕk′shŭn), n. [L. rectio, fr. regere to rule or govern.] Gram. = GOVERNMENT, 8.

For words below see the word or element with which recto- is combined.

rectociysis	rectopexy	rectotome rectococcygeal	rectoplasty	rectotomy rectocolitic	rectorrhaphy	recto-urethral rectocolonic	rectoscopy	recto-uterine rectocystotomy	rectostenosis	rectovaginal rectogenital	rectostomy	rectovesical rec'to-coc·cyg'e·us (rĕk'tō-kŏk·sĭj'ē-ŭs), n. [NL., fr. recto- + coccygeus.] Anat. A band of smooth muscle extending from the coccyx to the posterior wall of the rectum.

rec'tor (rĕk'tĕr), n. [L., fr. regere, rectum, to lead straight, to rule. See REGIMENT, RIGHT.] 1. The ruler or governor of a country, etc. Obs. exc. Hist.

God is the supreme rector of the world. Sir M. Hale.

2. A director; a leader; the chief.

The admitted rector of all the balladmongers. W. B. Yeats.

3. Eccl. a Ch. of Eng. A clergyman who has the charge and cure of a parish, and has the tithes, etc.; the clergyman of a parish where the tithes are not impropriate. b Prot. Episs. Ch. A clergyman who is the spiritual head and, legally, the presiding officer of a parish. He is elected by the vestrymen. c R.C.Ch. The head of a religious house for men. See Forms of Address in Appendix. d R.C.Ch. A pastor of a church or parish.

4. The head of a university, school, or other teaching institution; specif.: a In the Scottish universities an honorary official, usually termed Lord Rector, elected for a term of three years by the students. He is president of the University Court, but is not in residence, and performs no duties beyond delivering a "rectorial address." b In England, the master of a college; — now used only of the heads of Exeter and Lincoln colleges, Oxford. c R.C.Ch. The president of a college or university. d In various universities in France and Germany, the president of the academic senate. Usually he is elected for a short term and has a professorship. e Scot. The head master of a secondary school or academy. f Local, U.S. The head master of a private academy, grammar school, or the like. g Obs. A proctor or proproctor.

rec'tor·al (rĕk'tĕr·ăl), adj. Rectorial; specif. and usually, of or pertaining to God as governor or ruler of men.

rec'tor·ate (rĕk'tĕr·ĭt), n. [ML. rectoratus; cf. F. rectorat.] The office, rank, station, or term of a rector.

rec·to'ri·al (rĕk·tō'rĭ·ăl; 181), adj. Of or pertaining to a rector, a rectory, or a rectorate.

‖rec'tor mag·ni'fi·cus (rĕk'tôr măg·nĭf'ĭ·kŭs). [ML.] Title of the acting head of a German university, usually elected annually.

rec'to·ry (rĕk'tō·rĭ), n.; pl. -RIES (-rĭz). [From MF. rectorie or ML. rectoria.] 1. A benefice held by a rector; the province of a rector; a parish church, parsonage, or spiritual living, with all its rights, tithes, and glebes. Eng.

2. A rector's residence; a parsonage.

3. Rectorship; also, administration. Obs.

rec'to·scope (rĕk'tō·skōp), n. [recto- + -scope.] Med. A proctoscope.

rec'to·sig'moid (-sĭg'moid), adj. [recto- + sigmoid.] Anat. Designating the distal part of the sigmoid flexure and the proximal part of the rectum. — rec'to·sig'moid, n.

rec'to·vag'i·nal pouch (-văj'ĭ·năl; -vă·jī'năl). Anat. The pouch of Douglas.

rec'to·ves'i·cal fas'ci·a (-vĕs'ĭ·kăl). A membrane derived from the pelvic fascia, which invests the rectum, bladder, etc., and the inner surface of the levator ani muscle.

rec'tress (rĕk'trĕs; -trĭs; 119), n. A rectoress.

rec'trix (rĕk'trĭks), n.; pl. RECTRICES (rĕk·trī'sēz). [L., fem. of rector.] 1. A female ruler. Now Rare.

2. Zool. One of the quill feathers of the tail of a bird; — chiefly in pl. Most birds have 12, but some have 14, some 10, a few only 8, and rarely some as many as 28. — rec·tri'cial (rĕk·trĭsh'ăl), adj.

rec'tum (rĕk'tŭm), n.; pl. -TA (-tă). [NL. (sc. intestinum), fr. L. rectus straight. See RIGHT.] Anat. & Zool. The terminal part of the intestine; in man, the part of the large intestine, of somewhat variable length (usually about eight inches), from the sigmoid flexure to the anus.

rec'tus (rĕk'tŭs), n.; pl. RECTI (-tī). [NL. (sc. musculus), fr. L. rectus straight.] Anat. a Any of several straight muscles, as the rectus abdominis or the rectus femoris. b Also ‖rec'tus o'cu·li (ŏk'ū·lī). Any of four muscles of the eyeball, which arise from the borders of the optic foramen, and, running forward, are inserted into the sclerotic coat of the eyeball, distinguished as the superior, inferior, lateral (or external), and medial (or internal) rectus. See 1st EYE, 1 a.

‖rec'tus ab·do'mi·nis (ăb·dŏm'ĭ·nĭs). [L. abdominis of the abdomen.] Anat. A long flat muscle on either side of the linea alba extending along the whole length of the front of the abdomen. It arises from the pubic crest and symphysis and is inserted into the cartilages of the fifth, sixth, and seventh ribs. It is crossed by from three to five tendinous intersections called inscriptions, or inscriptiones tendineae. For its upper three fourths it is enclosed in a sheath formed by the aponeuroses of the external and internal oblique muscles ventrally, the internal oblique and transversus abdominis dorsally. For its lower fourth all these aponeuroses pass ventral to the rectus.

‖rec'tus ca'pi·tis (kăp'ĭ·tĭs). [L. capitis of the head.] Anat. Any of certain small paired muscles moving the occipital bone, the lateral, anterior, and posterior minor attached to the atlas, the posterior major to the axis.

‖rec'tus fe'mo·ris (fĕm'ō·rĭs). [L. femoris of the thigh.] Anat. A division of the quadriceps extensor muscle lying in the anterior middle region of the thigh, arising from the ilium by two heads and inserted into the tuberosity of the tibia by a narrow flattened tendon.

‖rec'tus in cu'ri·a (ĭn kū'rĭ·ă). [L.] Upright in the court; free from charge or impeachment; with clean hands. See LEGAL MAN.

‖rec'tus o'cu·li (ŏk'ū·lī). [L. oculi of the eye.] See RECTUS b.

‖re·cu' (rē·sü'), part. adj. [F.] Received. — n. A receipt.

rec'u·bant (rĕk'ū·bănt), adj. [L. recubans, -antis, pres. part. of recubare to recline.] Recumbent. Rare.

rec'u·bate (-bāt), adj. Recumbent. Rare.

rec'u·ba'tion (-bā'shŭn), n. Recumbency. Obs.

‖re·cueille'ment' (rē·kû'y'·mäN'), n. [F.] Religious meditation.

‖re·cu'lade' (rē·kü'lăd'), n. [F., fr. reculer to recoil.] Retreat.

re·cum'bence (rē·kŭm'bĕns), n. Recumbency. Now Rare.

re·cum'ben·cy (rē·kŭm'bĕn·sĭ), n. 1. State of leaning, resting, or reclining; a recumbent position; repose.

2. A relying; dependence; — with on or upon. Now Rare.

re·cum'bent (rē·kŭm'bĕnt), adj. [L. recumbens, pres. part. of recumbere. See RECUMB, INCUMBENT; cf. ACCUMBENT.] 1. a Leaning; reclining; lying; as, the recumbent posture of the Romans at their meals; in Biol., said of structures which tend to rest upon the surface from which they extend. b Resting; reposing; inactive. — re·cum'bent·ly, adv.

re·cum'bent, n. 1. One that is recumbent.

2. One who is religiously reliant on another. Obs.

recumbent anticline. Geol. An overturned anticline having its axial plane more nearly horizontal than vertical.

re·cu'per·a·bil'i·ty (rē·kū'pĕr·ă·bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n. Power of recuperation.

re·cu'per·ance (rē·kū'pĕr·ăns), n. Recuperation.

re·cu'per·ate (rē·kū'pĕr·āt), v.; -AT'ED (-āt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -AT'ING (-āt'ĭng). [L. recuperatus, past part. of recuperare. See RECOVER to get again.] Transitive: 1. To recover; regain; as, to recuperate the health or strength; also, to restore to health.

2. To recoup; reimburse. Rare.

—, Intransitive: To recover health or strength; to convalesce; also, to recover from pecuniary loss.

re·cu'per·a'tion (-ā'shŭn), n. [L. recuperatio.] Recovery, as of anything lost; specif., restoration to health or strength.

re·cu'per·a'tive (-kū'pĕr·ā'tĭv; -ă·tĭv), adj. [L. recuperativus.] 1. Of or pertaining to recuperation; tending to recovery; restorative; having the power of recuperating; as, recuperative powers, medicines, or industries.

2. Mech. Having a recuperator, as a gas-fired furnace. — re·cu'per·a'tive·ness, n.

re·cu'per·a·tor (rē·kū'pĕr·ā'tĕr), n. [L., a recoverer.] 1. pl. -ATORES. Roman Law. A judge appointed with others in certain cases. They exercised the same functions as the judices, but it is uncertain in just what causes they were used. Provincial judges were regularly called recuperatores.

2. Mach. = REGENERATOR, n., 4.

3. Mil. A device for returning a gun into the firing position after recoil.

re·cu'per·a·to'ry (-ă·tō'rĭ or, esp. Brit., -tĕr·ĭ), adj. [L. recuperatorius.] Of or pertaining to recuperation or recuperators.

re·cur' (rē·kûr'), v.; RE·CURRED' (-kûrd'); RE·CUR'RING. [L. recurrere, fr. re- re- + currere to run. See CURRENT; cf. RECOURSE, SUCCOR.] Intransitive: 1. a Obs. To move back; to recede. b Rare. To return, as to a place or status.

2. To resort; have recourse; go for help. Now Rare.

3. a To go or come back in thought or discourse; as, Before going on, I must recur to our former subject. b To come again to mind; as, the sound of the waters recurred in his memory; also, to come up again for consideration; as, the question often recurs.

4. To occur, take place, or appear, again; usually, to occur again after a stated interval or according to some regular rule; as, the fever will recur tonight.

5. Math. To repeat itself (generally indefinitely) in fixed periods of figures, as a decimal; to circulate.

—, Transitive: To repeat. Rare.

Syn. — Return, repeat, reoccur, reappear.

re·cure' (rē·kūr'; 242), v. t. & i. [Due to confusion of recover to get again, with L. recurare to take care of, to restore by taking care of, to cure. Cf. CURE.] Obs. a To cure; heal; restore to health. b To recover; also, to obtain. c To remedy; retrieve; repair.

re·cure', n. [See RECURE, v.] Cure; remedy; recovery. Obs.

re·cur'rence (rē·kŭr'ĕns), n. 1. Act or fact of recurring or state of being recurrent; a return; a periodical or frequent returning; a reappearance; as, the nightly recurrence of fever; to study recurrence of ancestral traits.

2. A resorting; recourse; as, recurrence to arms.

3. Bot. Repetition of the same type.

4. Math. See MATHEMATICAL INDUCTION.

Syn. — See RETURN.

recurrence formula. Math. A formula expressing any term of a sequence, after a stated term, as a function of preceding terms.

re·cur'ren·cy (rē·kŭr'ĕn·sĭ), n. Recurrence. Rare.

re·cur'rent (rē·kŭr'ĕnt), adj. [L. recurrens, -entis, pres. part. of recurrere. See RECUR.] 1. Returning from time to time; recurring; as, a recurrent fever or verse.

2. Anat. Running or turning back in a direction opposite to its former course; — said specif. of certain nerves, and certain branches of vessels in the arms and legs; as, the radial recurrent artery, the recurrent tibial arteries, the recurrent laryngeal nerve, etc. See LARYNGEAL NERVE, RADIAL ARTERY, TIBIAL ARTERY, etc.

3. Bot. Returning toward the main rib; — of veinlets.

4. Math. Persymmetric.

5. Paleontol. Reappearing at other than the first geologic horizon, as a recurrent fauna or species.

— re·cur'rent·ly, adv.

recurrent appendicitis. See APPENDICITIS.

recurrent fever. Med. Relapsing fever.

recurrent sensibility. Physiol. The sensibility manifested by the ventral, or motor, roots of the spinal cord because of the presence of sensory fibers from the corresponding sensory or posterior roots.

recurrent sequence (of the *n*th order). Math. A sequence whose *n*th term is a linear homogeneous function of the next preceding r terms, n being greater than r.

recurrent series. Math. A series whose coefficients constitute a recurring sequence.

re·cur'rer (rē·kŭr'ĕr), n. One who or that which recurs.

re·cur'ring (-ĭng), adj. That recurs. — re·cur'ring·ly, adv.

recurring continued fraction. Math. See CONTINUED FRACTION.

recurring decimal. A circulating decimal. See CIRCULATE, v. i., 3.

recurring series. Math. A recurrent series.

re·curse' (rē·kŭrs'), v. i. [L. recursare.] To recur. Rare.

re·cur'sion (rē·kŭr'shŭn), n. [L. recursio, fr. recurrere.] A recurring; return.

re·cur'sive (-sĭv), adj. Phonet. Formed with an inward movement of air caused by lowering the larynx with closed glottis; — said of certain consonants in Sindhi (g, j, d, b).

re·cur'vate (-vāt), adj. [L. recurvatus, past part. of recurvare. See RE-; CURVATE.] Recurved.

re·cur'vate (-vāt), v. t. & i. To recurve. — re'cur·va'tion (rē'kŭr·vā'shŭn), n. Both Now Rare.

re·cur'va·ture (-vă·tŭr), n. A backward curvature. Rare.

re·curve' (rē·kŭrv'), v. t. & i.; RE·CURVED' (-kŭrvd'); RE·CURV'ING (-kŭr'vĭng). [Cf. RECURVATE.] To curve in an opposite or unusual direction; to bend back. Cf. DECURVE.

Re·cur'vi·ros'tra (rē·kŭr'vĭ·rŏs'tră), n. [NL., fr. L. recurvus bent back + rostrum beak.] Zool. The genus of birds consisting of the avocets, type of a family, Re·cur'vi·ros'tri·dæ (-trĭ·dē), which includes also the stilts.

re·cur'vi·ros'tral (-trăl), adj. [See RECURVIROSTRA.] Having the beak bent upward.

re·cur'vo- (rē·kŭr'vō-). A combining form from Latin recurvus, bent back, denoting bent back and, as in re·cur'vo·pat'ent, re·cur'vo·ter'nate.

re·cur'vous (-vŭs), adj. [L. recurvus.] Recurved. Rare.

rec'u·sance (rĕk'ū·zăns; rē·kŭ'-), n. Recusancy.

rec'u·san·cy (rĕk'ū·zăn·sĭ; rē·kŭ'-), n. State of being recusant or a recusant; nonconformity; refusal to obey; esp., Eng. Hist., refusal, esp. of Roman Catholics, to attend the services of the Established Church. This was, for more than two centuries after about 1570, a statutory offense punishable by a fine, and it also created many disabilities.

rec'u·sant (-zănt; -z'nt), adj. [L. recusans, pres. part. of recusare to refuse, to object to, fr. re- re- + causa a cause, pretext. See CAUSE.] Refusing to submit to authority; dissentient; specif., Eng. Hist., refusing to attend the services of the Established Church.

rec'u·sant, n. One who refuses to comply with some regulation or to conform to some general practice or opinion; a dissenter or dissentient, esp. in religion; specif., Eng. Hist., a person, esp. a Roman Catholic, who refused to attend the services of the Church of England; a nonconformist; a dissenter.

rec'u·sa'tion (rĕk'ū·zā'shŭn), n. [F. or L.; F. récusation, fr. L. recusatio.] Law. A refusal, objection, or exception; a plea challenging a judge or judges for alleged interest or other incompetency. Obs. exc. in Civil & Canon Law.

re·cu'sa·tive (rē·kū'zā·tĭv), adj. [LL. recusativus.] Rejective. Rare.

re·cu'sa·tor (-tŏr), n. Scots Law. A recusation to a judge. Rare.

re·cuse' (rē·kūz'), v. t. [OF. recuser, fr. L. recusare. See RECUSANT.] To refuse or reject; esp., to challenge or except to a judge or judges as interested or otherwise incompetent. Obs. exc. in Civil & Canon Law.

re·cus'sion (rē·kŭsh'ŭn), n. [L. recutere, recussum, to beat back.] Repercussive action.

re·cy'cle (rē·sī'k'l), v. t. & i. To pass again through a cycle of changes or treatment.

red (rĕd), adj.; RED'DER (-ĕr); RED'DEST. [ME. red, reed, read, fr. AS. rēad; akin to AS. rēod, OS. rōd, OFris. rād, D. rood, G. rot, OHG. rōt, Dan. & Sw. rød, ON. rauthr, rjóthr, Goth. rauths, W. rhudd, Bret. ruz, Ir. & Gael. ruadh, L. ruber, rufus, Gr. erythros, Skr. rudhira, rohita, Lith. raudas. Cf. ERYSIPELAS, ROBUST, ROIL, ROUGE, ROWAN, RUBRIC, RUBY, RUDDY, RUDE, RUSSET, RUST.] 1. Of the color red; of the hue red.

2. a Having red or reddish hair; as, William the Red; a red heifer. b Dyed with red. c Now Rare. Clad in red. "The red English." Thackeray. d Having reddish skin; as, the red warriors.

3. Suffused with redness; as: a Glowing from heat. b Flushed, as with shame or anger. c Bloodstained; hence marked by bloodshed or violence. d Bloodshot; inflamed; as, eyes red with tears. e Extremely vivid; lurid.

4. Golden; — from the archaic phrase red gold.

5. [often cap.] Revolutionary or anarchistic; esp., practicing or favoring revolutionary socialism. See 2d RED, 4.

6. Pert. to or designating the north pole of a magnet.

☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are:

red-armed	red-flecked	red-ribbed red-backed	red-fleshed	red-rimmed red-banded	red-flowered	red-ripening red-bar	red-flowering	red-roan red-barked	red-footed	red-roofed red-beaded	red-fronted	red-rooted red-beaked	red-fruited	red-rose red-beamed	red-gemmed	red-rumped red-bearded	red-gilled	red-rusted red-bellied	red-girdled	red-scaled red-belted	red-gleaming	red-scarlet red-berried	red-gold	red-shank red-billed	red-gowned	red-shouldered red-black	red-haired	red-sided red-bodied	red-hatted	red-silk red-boled	redhearted	red-skinned red-bonnet	red-heeled	red-snooded red-bound	red-hipped	red-specked red-branched	red-hissing	red-speckled red-branching	red-hooded	red-spotted red-breasted	red-horned	red-stalked red-brick	red-hued	red-streaked red-brown	red-humped	red-streaming red-burning	red-jerseyed	red-swelling red-buttoned	red-kneed	red-tailed red-cheeked	red-knobbed	red-tempered red-chested	red-leaf	red-thighed red-clad	red-leather	red-throat red-cloaked	red-leaved	red-throated red-clocked	red-legged	red-tiled red-coat	red-lettered	red-tipped red-coated	red-lidded	red-tongued red-cockaded	red-lined	red-topped red-collared	red-lipped	red-trousered red-colored	red-listed	red-tufted red-combed	red-lit	red-twigged red-crested	red-looking	red-upholstered red-crowned	red-making	red-veined red-curtained	red-mouthed	red-vented red-dabbled	red-naped	red-vested red-dyed	red-necked	red-violet red-eared	red-nosed	red-walled red-edged	red-orange	red-wattled red-faced	red-painted	red-washed red-facedness	red-plowed	red-white red-feathered	red-plumed	red-winged red-finned	red-polled	red-wooded red-flanked	red-purple	red-written

-red (-rĕd). A combining form of the adjective red, as in:

blood-red	currant-red	ginger-red bloody-red	dull-red	orange-red blue-red	dun-red	poppy-red brick-red	fire-red	rose-red brown-red	flame-red	rust-red cardinal-red	flesh-red	wax-red coral-red	garnet-red	yellow-red red (rĕd), n. 1. a Any of several colors the hue of which ranges from that of blood to that of the ruby or of many roses; any of the colors normally seen when the portion of the physical spectrum of the longest wave lengths capable rec'tor·ess, n. See -ESS.

---

rectorial tithes. See TITHE, n., 1.

rec'tor·ship, n. See -SHIP.

re·cueil', v. i. [F. recueillir.] To collect; receive; entertain. Obs.

re·cueil' (rē·kû'y'), n. [F.] A literary collection; also, reception.

Obs. exc. as French.

re·cule'. ✝ RECOIL, RECUEIL.

‖re·cu'ler pour mieux' sau'ter' (rē·kü'lā' poor myŭ' sō'tā'). [F.] Literally, to go back in order to take a better leap.

re·cul'ti·vate, v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'cul·ti·va'tion, n.

re·cumb' (rē·kŭm'), v. i. [L. recumbere, fr. re- back + cumbere (in comp.); akin to L. cubare to lie down. See RECUMBENT.] To lean; recline. Obs.

rec'um·ben'ti·bus, n. Also rec'um·ben'di·bus. [In imitation of L. endings, fr. recumbent.] A knockdown blow. Obs.

re·cu'per·a·ble, adj. [OF.] Recoverable. Obs. [Ref. Sp.] re·cu'per·a'tiv. Recuperative.

re·curd'. Recurred. Ref. Sp.

re·cure'ful, adj. Curative. Obs.

re·cure'less, adj. Incurable. Obs. — re·cure'less·ly, adv. Obs.

re·cure'ment, n. = RECURE, n. Obs. [See RE-, 2.]

re·cur'l', v. t., re·cur'tain, v. t., re·cur'vant (rē·kŭr'vănt), adj. [L. recurvans, pres. part.] Her. Coiled, as a serpent, with raised head.

re·cush'ion, v. t., v. i. & i. See RE-, 2.

re·cuv'er, re·cuv'erd. Recover; recovered. Ref. Sp.

red. Read. Ref. Sp.

of evoking visual sensation is employed as a stimulus; most characteristically, the color seen when the extreme long waves of the visible spectrum are mixed with a very small amount of the shortest visible waves. b That one of the four psychologically primary hues which most closely resembles that of the color seen when the extreme long waves of the physical spectrum are mixed with a very small amount of the shortest visible waves.

2. a Any pigment or dye which colors red. b pl. Insoluble red substances yielded by certain vegetable tanning materials and deposited on the surface of the leather.

3. An object of the color red or belonging to a group of which the characteristic color is red; or, a thing, animal, or person that is red or dressed in red; as: a Red cloth or stuff. "Clad in black or red." Chaucer. b Now Dial. Eng. Reddle. c Obs. Gold. d Red wine. e Obs. Rouge. f An American Indian; a redskin. g Slang. A red, or copper, cent.

4. [often cap.] A revolutionary; an anarchist; esp., one practicing or favoring revolutionary socialism.

5. [cap.] Short for RHODE ISLAND RED (fowl).

6. Archery. The second innermost circle of the target; also, a hit in it.

7. Billiards, etc. The red ball.

8. Gambling. The red compartments, as in roulette.

9. [cap.] European Politics. A Red Republican.

10. pl. Med. The menses. Obs.

— in the red. With a balance on the loss side; — said of an account; hence, in debt. Slang, U. S. — *the red. The debtor side of an account; — so called from the practice of entering debit items in red ink. Slang, U. S.

red (rĕd), v. t. & i. [AS. rēadian, v. i.] To redden. Archaic & Dial.

red (rĕd). Var. of READ. Obs. exc. Ref. Sp.

red. Var. of REDD.

red. Var. of REDE, counsel.

red. Scot. & N. of Eng. past & past part. of RIDE.

-red. [ME. -rede, fr. AS. -rǣden. See KINDRED.] A suffix equivalent to -head, as in hat*red,* kind*red.*

red-. A form of re-, before vowels, in words from Latin, as in *red*action, *red*emption, *red*undant.

re·dact' (rē·dăkt'), v. t.; -DACT'ED; -DACT'ING. [L. redactus, past part. of redigere, fr. red-, re-, again, back + agere to drive. See RE-; ACT.] 1. To put in writing; specif., to frame; to draft; as, to redact a proclamation. "[A traveler] accustomed to redact his impressions in the form of letters to his father." The Nation.

2. Orig., to change the form of (something written); as, Shakespeare redacted an old play into his Hamlet; now usually, to reduce to good or suitable form; to put in shape for publication; to edit or revise; as, this article must be redacted.

3. To reduce, or bring down (a person or thing); as, to be redacted to poverty. Obs.

re·dact', adj. Redacted. Obs.

‖ré'dac'teur' (rā'dăk'tûr'), n. [F.] An editor.

re·dac'tion (rē·dăk'shŭn), n. [F. and L.; F. rédaction, fr. LL. redactio.] Act of redacting; work produced by redacting; a new edition. — re·dac'tion·al (-ăl; -ĭ), adj.

re·dac'tor (-tēr), n. [Cf. F. rédacteur.] One who redacts; reviser; editor. — re'dac·to'ri·al (rē'dăk·tō'rĭ·ăl; 181), adj.

red adder. The copperhead (sense 1 a).

red admiral. A beautiful butterfly (Vanessa, syn. Pyrameis, atalanta) common in both Europe and America. The front wings are crossed by a broad orange-red band. The larva feeds on nettles.

Red Admiral. r Wings reversed to show Markings of underside.

red alder. An alder (Alnus rubra) of the Pacific coast of North America; also, its hard red wood, used for furniture. — red'-al'der, adj.

red'-al'der fam'i·ly. The Cunoniaceae.

red algae; sing. RED ALGA. Bot. Algae of a class characterized by red or violet pigment; the Rhodophyceae.

red alpine campion. The alpine campion.

red amaranth. a The spiny amaranth. b = PRINCE'S-FEATHER a. re·dame' (rē·dām'), v. t. [MF. redamer, fr. L. redamare.] To love in return. Obs. — red'a·ma'tion, n. Obs.

re·dan' (rē·dăn'), n. [F., also redent, a double notching or jagging, as in the teeth of a saw, fr. re- re + dent, tooth.] Fort. A work having two parapets forming a salient angle, whose gorge, being unfortified, is usually protected by being on the bank of a stream, at the head of a bridge, or in advance of, or enfiladed by, a strong line. Redans joined by curtains are a simple form of field works.

a, b Redans; c Double Redan.

Re·dan' (rē·dăn'), n. See Sevastopol, under BATTLE, Table.

red and black. Rouge et noir.

red ant. 1. Any of various reddish ants; esp.: a Monomorium pharaonis, a small species often infesting houses. b Formica rufa, F. sanguinea, or related large species of Europe and America, which make hills in open ground.

2. Angling. An artificial fly with slender red silk body, peacock-herl butt, gold tag, brown hackle, and dark-gray wings.

red antimony. Kermes mineral.

red ape. The orangutan.

red archangel. A Eurasian, annual, weedy herb (Lamium purpureum) with purplish-red flowers in axillary clusters. It is naturalized in North America.

red·ar'gue (rĕd·är'gū), v. t.; -AR'GUED (-gūd); -AR'GU·ING (-gū·ĭng). [OF. redarguer, fr. L. redarguere, fr. red-, re-, re- + arguere to accuse, charge with.] 1. To reprove; accuse; reproach; convict. Obs.

2. Obs. exc. Scot. a To confute by argument. b To disprove or refute (a statement, argument, etc.); — chiefly in Law.

red'ar·gu'tion (rĕd'är·gū'shŭn), n. [OF., fr. L. redargutio.] Orig., reproof; later, refutation. Now Rare.

red·ar'gu·tive (rĕd·är'gū·tĭv), adj. Also red·ar'gu·to'ry (-tō'rĭ; 181). Tending to redargution. Obs.

Red Army. In Russia, the army of the revolutionaries, represented by the Bolsheviki, or Communist party. Hence, also, any of similar armed radical forces in Germany, Hungary, Finland, etc.

red arsenic. Realgar.

red arsenic glass. Com. Arsenic disulphide.

red ash. 1. a An American ash (Fraxinus pennsylvanica), smaller than the white ash, with hard, strong, brown wood. It is often called green ash, which by some is considered a distinct species. b An Australian tree (Alphitonia excelsa), family Rhamnaceae, with hard wood. c The Australian tree Orites excelsa (family Proteaceae).

2. The wood of any of these trees.

Red As'tra·chan (ăs'trā·kăn). A yellowish-red variety of early apple with a heavy bloom, white crisp flesh, and rather acid flavor.

red'back' (rĕd'băk'), n. 1. One of the treasury notes not bearing interest issued in 1838 by the Republic of Texas.

2. The dunlin Pelidna alpina sakhalina.

red'-backed' jun'co (-băkt'). See JUNCO, 1 b.

red-backed mouse. Any of many small short-tailed voles of the genus Clethrionomys, syn. Evotomys, of northern and mountainous parts of Europe, Asia, and America.

red-backed salamander. A common salamander (Plethodon cinereus) of eastern North America.

red-backed sandpiper. The dunlin Pelidna alpina sakhalina.

red-backed shrike. See SHRIKE.

red balm. Oswego tea.

red baneberry. Either of two North American perennial herbs (Actaea rubra and A. arguta) with ternately compound leaves, small white flowers in terminal racemes, and bright-red oval berries.

red bark. Pharm. A red variety of cinchona bark obtained from Cinchona succirubra and its hybrids. Quinine constitutes only about one fifth of its alkaloids.

red basal series. Geol. The basal division of the German Permian;— a red, barren series underlying the productive copper shales of the Mansfeld district.

red bass (bās; 83). a The red drum. b An Australian snapper (Lutianus superbus).

red bat. A North American bat (Nycteris borealis) having the interfemoral membrane densely hairy. The color varies from rusty red to reddish gray.

red bay. A small tree (Persea borbonia) of the southern United States, having dark-red heartwood.

red'-bead' tree (rĕd'bēd'). The necklace tree.

red-bead vine. The Indian licorice.

red bean. a An Australian tree (Dysoxylum muelleri), family Meliaceae, the timber of which resembles rosewood. Called also pencil cedar. b = CORAL BEAN b.

red bearberry. The bearberry Arctostaphylos uva-ursi. See BEARBERRY.

red'beard' (rĕd'bērd'), n. A branching, bright-red sponge (Microclona prolifera), common on oyster shells and stopes. Local, U. S.

red beds. Geol. Sedimentary strata, largely Permian and Triassic, containing few fossils and prevailingly red in color.

red beech. a The common American beech. b An Australian timber tree (Tarrietia trifoliolata), family Sterculiaceae. c = RED BIRCH c.

red bell. The columbine Aquilegia canandensis.

red'-bel'lied snake. Either of two small harmless snakes (Storeria occipitomaculata and Natrix kirtlandii) of the eastern and central United States, having the under parts chiefly red or salmon-colored.

red-bellied snipe. A dowitcher.

red-bellied sunfish. The red-breasted bream.

red-bellied terrapin. See TERRAPIN.

red-bellied woodpecker. A woodpecker (Centurus carolinus) of the eastern United States, having a scarlet head and nape, barred black-and-white back, and grayish under parts tinged with red.

Red-bellied Woodpecker.

red'bel'ly (rĕd'bĕl'ĭ), n. a A European char (Salvelinus salvelinus). b The red-bellied terrapin. See TERRAPIN. c U. S. The red grouper.

red benjamin. The birthroot Trillium erectum.

red bergamot. Oswego tea.

red'-ber'ried el'der. A common North American shrub (Sambucus racemosa) with pointed cymes of small whitish flowers, and bright-scarlet fruit.

red'ber'ry (rĕd'bĕr'ĭ; -bĕr·ĭ), n. 1. Any of several Australian red-berried shrubs of the genus Rhagodia.

2. U. S. a The red baneberry (Actaea rubra). b The ginseng (Panax quinquefolium) of North America. c A Californian shrub (Rhamnus crocea) with minute flowers and bright-red berries.

red betty. The cardinal flower.

red bilberry. The mountain cranberry.

red'bill' (rĕd'bĭl'), n. a An oyster catcher (Haematopus niger unicolor) of Australia and New Zealand. b The common black-and-white long-tailed whidah (Vidua macroura) of Africa. c An African waxbill (Estrilda astrild).

red'-billed' mud hen. The Florida gallinule. See GALLINULE.

red-billed teal. A South African duck (Paecilonetta erythrorhyncha).

red-billed tropic bird. See TROPIC BIRD.

red birch. a The river birch (Betula nigra). b The heartwood lumber of the yellow birch (Betula lutea) and of the sweet birch (Betula lenta). c In New Zealand a valuable timber tree (Nothofagus fusca) or its hard wood; — called also red beech and clinker beech.

red'bird' (rĕd'bûrd'), n. a The cardinal bird. b The summer tanager. c The scarlet tanager. d The European bullfinch.

redbird cactus. The jewbush.

red bird of paradise. See BIRD OF PARADISE, 1 a.

red bird's-eye. a The herb Robert. b The red campion.

red blindness. See COLOR BLINDNESS. — red'-blind' (rĕd'blīnd'), adj.

red blood. 1. The red-colored blood (sense 1), characteristic of most vertebrates.

2. Figuratively, physical vigor; abounding animal spirits; unusual vitality.

red'-blood'ed (66), adj. Having or abounding in red blood; hence, characterized by great vitality and courage. — red'-blood'ed·ness, n.

red blotch. Adustiosis.

red body. Zool. An aggregation of capillaries forming a mass on the inner wall of the air bladder of certain teleost fishes. When covered with glandular epithelium, as in the Physoclisti, they are called red glands. They are supposed to control the diffusion and absorption of the gases contained in the air bladder.

red bole. Red ocher. — red'-bole', adj.

red'bone' (rĕd'bōn'), n. A white with a slight admixture of Indian or negro blood. Southern U. S.

red book. A book having a red cover, usually one of official character or of some peculiar importance; specif. [cap.]: a A book formerly published in England containing the names of all persons serving, or pensioned by, the state. b An English annual register entitled "Royal Kalendar," etc., published from 1767 to 1893; also, a similar later record. c An official report (1915), containing various diplomatic documents relating to Austria's participation in the World War.

Red Book of Hergest, The. See MABINOGION.

red Bordeaux wine. See BORDEAUX, 2.

red box. a Any of several Australian eucalypts, esp. Eucalyptus polyanthemos. b An Australian timber tree (Tristania conferta).

red box. A box, commonly red, containing important papers, esp. state papers.

red'-box', adj. Official; bureaucratic. Thackeray.

Red Branch. The festal hall of the Ulster heroes, near Armagh; the seat of King Conchobor. See DEIRDRE. red brass. A brass of a reddish tint, due to its high copper content. b A variety of bronze containing tin, lead, and zinc, together with more than 75 per cent of copper; composition metal. It is used for valves, steam fittings, etc.

red bream. a See SNAPPER, 5 c. b The rosefish.

red'breast' (rĕd'brĕst'), n. 1. a The European robin. b The American robin. c The knot, or red-breasted sandpiper. d The red-breasted bream.

2. A Bow Street officer.

red'-breast'ed bream. A sunfish (Lepomis auritus) of the eastern and southern States, having the belly largely orange-red. U. S.

red-breasted goose. A Siberian goose (Branta ruficollis), chiefly black and white with a chestnut breast.

red-breasted merganser. See MERGANSER, 1.

red-breasted nuthatch. See NUTHATCH.

red-breasted plover. The knot (sandpiper).

red-breasted rail. The Virginia rail.

red-breasted sandpiper. The knot.

red-breasted sapsucker. See SAPSUCKER.

red-breasted snipe. A dowitcher.

red'-brown' root rot. Plant Pathol. A destructive root rot of various conifers caused by the pore fungus Polyporus schweinitzii.

red-brown rot. Plant Pathol. A fungous decay of conifers and various deciduous plants caused by the pore fungus Fomes pinicola.

red'brush' (rĕd'brŭsh'), n. Either of two North American cornels with red or reddish-purple twigs: a The silky cornel. b = RED OSIER b.

red bryony. The common bryony.

red'buck' (rĕd'bŭk'), n. The impala.

red buckeye. A shrubby species of buckeye (Aesculus pavia) of the southern United States.

red'bud' (rĕd'bŭd'), n. Any American tree of the genus Cercis; esp., the eastern C. canadensis, resembling the Judas tree (C. siliquastrum), of Europe and Asia, in its heart-shaped leaves and fascicles of small deep pink flowers which bloom before the leaves expand.

red bug. Any of various red insects; as: a Southern U. S. The chigger. See CHIGGER b. b A red hemipterous insect of the genus Pyrrhocoris, esp. the European P. apterus, which is bright scarlet and lives in clusters on tree trunks. c The cotton stainer.

red campion. A biennial European catchfly (Lychnis dioica), having red or pink flowers.

red'cap' (rĕd'kăp'), n. 1. A person wearing a red cap; specif.: a U. S. A railroad station porter, or carrier of hand luggage. b Slang, Brit. One of the military police.

2. [cap.] A specter having long teeth, popularly supposed to haunt old castles. Chiefly Scot.

3. The European goldfinch. Local, Eng.

red cardinal. The cardinal flower.

Red Carib. See CARIB, n., 1.

red carp. The common goldfish.

red cedar. 1. a Also eastern red cedar. An American juniper (Juniperus virginiana) found everywhere east of the Rocky Mountains. It has dark-green, closely imbricated leaves. b The fragrant, close-grained red wood of this tree, which is not very durable. c Any of several related species of Juniperus.

2. a The tall or giant arborvitae (Thuja plicata) of western North America; also, its strong, durable wood, a very important coniferous timber in the western United States. Commonly called western red cedar. b The incense cedar.

3. In Australia: a The toon tree. b The flindosa.

red cell. An erythrocyte.

red cent. The copper cent which was formerly coined; hence, a cent. Colloq., U. S. Cf. BRASS FARTHING.

red chalk. Specif.: a Ruddle. b The color bole (sense 3 b). — red'-chalk' (66), adj.

red char. The common European char. See SALVELINUS.

red charcoal. An intermediate between wood and ordinary charcoal, made by heating wood to about 300° C.

red chickweed or chickenweed. The common pimpernel (Anagallis arvensis).

red chokeberry. A common swamp shrub (Aronia arbutifolia) of the eastern United States, with terminal cymes of white, pearlike flowers, and bright-red, long-persistent fruits.

red clay. Geol. a Any ruddy clay, the coloring matter being commonly oxide of iron. b A unique, slowly accumulating, abysmal oceanic deposit now forming and covering some 55,000,000 square miles of the deepest parts of the ocean bottom. It consists of the insoluble, residual material of volcanic and meteoritic or cosmic dust, mingled with nodules of manganese oxide, crystals of the zeolite phillipsite, sharks' teeth, the siliceous tests of Radiolaria, and other resistant organic debris. — red'-clay', adj.

red clover. A Eurasian clover (Trifolium pratense) with globose heads of reddish-purple flowers, cultivated as a fodder plant and a cover crop. It is naturalized in America and is the State flower of Vermont. See STATE FLOWER, Plate.

red'coat' (rĕd'kōt'), n. One who wears a red coat; specif., a British soldier, as formerly the typical uniform was red.

red coati. See COATI.

red cobalt. Erythrite.

red cock. The male of the red grouse.

red cod. A food fish (Physiculus bachus) of Australia and New Zealand. Its normal color is gray but when removed from the water it quickly becomes red.

red coffee borer. The tea borer.
red cohosh. The red baneberry (Actaea rubra). red columbine. The columbine Aquilegia canadensis.
red copper, red copper ore. Cuprite. red coral. An alcyonarian (Corallium nobile, syn. C. rubrum) of the Mediterranean and adjacent parts of the Atlantic. Related species occur in the Indian Ocean, etc. It forms branching shrublike colonies, sometimes about a foot high, and has in the axis of the stems and branches a hard stony skeleton of a delicate red or pink color, which is prized for ornaments and jewelry. See CORAL, Illust.
red cornel. = RED OSIER b. red corpuscle. One of the colored corpuscles of the blood of vertebrates, which contain the hemoglobin and carry the oxygen from the respiratory organs to the tissues; an erythrocyte. See BLOOD, n., 1; HEMOGLOBIN. Individual corpuscles are light yellow, but in quantities deep red.
Red crag. [See RED; 1st CRAG, 2.] Geol. & Archaeol. A deposit of sand and marine shells constituting the lower division of the Upper Pliocene of southeastern England.
Red Crescent. A Turkish organization like the Red Cross. red'-crest'ed po'chard. An Old World duck (Netta rufina), having in the male a chestnut head with a large crest, and red bill and feet, and a white speculum. red crooner. The red gurnard Trigla cuculus. red cross. A red-colored cross; hence: a St. George's cross, the national emblem of England. b The Geneva cross. c [cap.] The crusaders or the cause they represented. d [cap.] A hospital or ambulance service established as a result of, though not provided for by, the Geneva convention of 1864; any of the national societies for alleviating the sufferings of the sick and wounded in war, also giving aid and relief during great calamities; also, a member or worker of such a society; — so called from the badge of neutrality, the Geneva cross, a red cross on a white background, being the flag of Switzerland with the colors reversed. — red'-cross', Red Cross, adj.
red crossbill. See CROSSBILL.
Red'cross' Knight. In Spenser's Faerie Queene (Bk. I), the character who personifies St. George, patron saint of England, and typifies Christian Holiness. The Faerie Queene assigns to him the task of slaying a dragon which laid waste the kingdom of Una's father. He destroys the dragon, and marries Una. His adventures allegorize the history of the Church of England. red crowberry. See CROWBERRY a. red curlew. a The scarlet ibis. b The marbled godwit. red currant. 1. a The common currant. b A South African sumac (Rhus laevigata) reaching treelike size.
2. The color currant red. red cypress. The bald cypress; also, its wood.
redd (rĕd), v. t.; past tense & past part. REDD, REDD'ED; pres. part. & verbal n. REDD'ING. [Prob. the same word as ME. reden, fr. AS. rēdan to arrange, put in order, akin to E. ready; cf. E. dial. red(d), rede, D. redden to put in order, reeden to make ready; but also confused in E. with rid; cf. dial. red(d) to get rid of. See READY.] Scot. & Dial. 1. To clear or clean; to put in order; to make tidy, as a house, the person, etc.; — often followed by up; as, to redd up the house.
2. To free from (entanglement or embarrassment).
3. To take apart, or separate, as opponents.
4. To bring to an end, or settle, as a quarrel.
5. To set right; to rebuke; scold; — usually with up. redd (rĕd), n. Scot. & Dial. 1. Act of redding.
2. That which is cleared, or is to be cleared, away; refuse. redd (rĕd), adj. Cleared for a new occupant; — used esp. in void and redd. Scot. & Dial. Eng.
redd (rĕd), v. t. [AS. hreddan; akin to G. retten.] Obs. exc. Dial. To deliver; rescue; free, as from trouble, loss, etc. Specif.: a To keep from burning; to extinguish (flames or a fire). b To disencumber (oneself or another person) of; to free of.
redd (rĕd), n. [E. dial. red spawn, spawning ground, to spawn.] Spawn of a fish; also, the excavation or nest made by some fishes for spawn. Scot & N. of Eng.
redd (rĕd). Var. of REDE, counsel. red dace. The redfin (Luxilus cornutus). red daisy. The orange hawkweed. red darnel. = RYE GRASS a. red dead nettle. The red archangel. red deal. The wood of the Scotch pine. red deer. a The common stag (Cervus elaphus) of temperate Europe and Asia, similar to the wapiti, but smaller. b The Virginia deer in its summer coat. See DEER, 2. red'den (rĕd'n), v. t. & i.; -DENED (-'nd); -DEN-ING. [From RED, adj.] To make or become red or reddish; flush; blush Appius reddens at each word you speak. Pope.

red-den'do (rē-dĕn'dō), n.; pl. -DOS (-dōz). [From the Latin clause reddendo inde annuatim.] Scots Law. The clause in a charter specifying the particular duty or service due from the vassal to his superior; also, the duty itself.
red-den'dum (-dŭm), n.; pl. -DA (-dȧ). [Neut. of L. reddendus that must be given back or yielded, gerundive of reddere. See REDDITION.] Law. A clause in a deed by which some new thing is reserved out of what had been granted before, as the clause by which rent is reserved in a lease. The reddendum usually follows the tenendum, and in reservations of rent generally begins "Yielding and paying."
redd'er (rĕd'ĕr), n. One who redds; esp., one who attempts to separate combatants or to settle their quarrel. Dial.
red'ding (rĕd'ĭng), n. Material which is, or is used to make, red; specif., now Dial., red ocher; ruddle.
redd'ing (rĕd'ĭng), pres. part. & verbal n. of REDD. red'ding-ite (rĕd'ĭng-ĭt), n. [From Redding, Conn.] Mineral. A pinkish or yellowish-white orthorhombic hydrous manganese phosphate, $Mn_5(PO_4)_2 3H_2O$. red'dish (rĕd'ĭsh), adj. Somewhat red; having a tinge of red; as, a reddish yellow.—red'dish, n.—red'dish-ness, n.

☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are:

reddish-amber	reddish-brown	reddish-headed reddish-bay	reddish-colored	reddish-looking reddish-bellied	reddish-gray	reddish-purple reddish-black	reddish-green	reddish-white reddish-blue	reddish-haired	reddish-yellow red'dish (rĕd'ĭsh). Dial. var. of RADISH. reddish egret. A medium-sized heron (Dichromanassa rufescens) of Central America, the Gulf States, and the West Indies. It is usually slate color with rufous head and neck and black legs, but forms occur in which the entire plumage is white. red·di'tion (rē-dĭsh'ŭn), n. [F. or L.; F. reddition, fr. L. redditio, fr. reddere to give back. See RENDER; cf. RENDITION.] Restoration; restitution; surrender; specif., Obs., formal restitution by judicial confession. Obs. a Explanation; esp., the application of a comparison, or the clause that contains the application. b Translation; rendition. red dog. 1. U. S. a A banknote bearing a red stamp. b One of the State-bank notes issued in Michigan about 1845, and bearing an endorsement stamped in red ink by an Ohio firm which became bankrupt; also, a similar issue in New York State. c Any wildcat note.

2. Also red'-dog' flour. See FLOUR, n., 1 a.
3. a A game in which players hold each five cards and bet, for a pool, that they hold a higher card in the same suit than the top card of the stock. b A variety of stud poker played with seven cards, the first two and the last one being dealt face down, in which all buried red cards are wild. — red'-dog' (66), adj.
red dogwood. a A commonly cultivated European shrub (Cornus sanguinea) with handsome white flowers in dense cymes, but cultivated also for its bright-red twigs. b = RED OSIER b. red dressing. Leather Mfg. A preparation of crushed bark and water in which hides are soaked before tanning.
red drum or drumfish. A large drumfish (Sciaenops ocellata), which is an important food fish of the Atlantic coast from Chesapeake Bay southward, though its flesh is lacking in flavor. It becomes several feet long. Called also branded drum from the conspicuous dark spot at the base of the caudal fin.
redds'man (rĕdz'mȧn), n. [redd rubbish + man.] A redder. redd'-up' (66), adj. Redded up; set to rights. Colloq.
red'dy (rĕd'ĭ), adj. Reddish.
red dysentery. A disease of cattle, especially young animals, characterized by bloody feces and caused by a protozoan (Eimeria zurni).
rede (rēd), v. [See READ, v.] Transitive: 1. Archaic & Dial. a To advise or counsel (a person). b To interpret; explain; also, to relate.
2. Dial. a Scot. To guess or imagine. b To predict.

Red Drum. $\frac{1}{10}$

3. Obs. a To govern, control, guide; hence, of the Deity, to guard or protect. b To give as advice. c To decree. d To agree upon or decide after consultation.
——, Intransitive: Obs. a To take counsel. b To give advice. rede (rēd), n. [AS. rēd counsel, fr. rēdan to counsel. See READ, v.] 1. Counsel or advice; also, a scheme, plan, or method devised or adopted. Archaic & Dial.
2. Archaic. a A story; a tale. b Interpretation.
3. Obs. a What is advisable or profitable; hence, aid; remedy. b Faculty or act of advising or counseling; hence: (1) Judgment; reason. (2) A council. c Hap; lot; an occurrence. d A telling of something. e A saying; a proverb; a wise saw. f Speech. rede, v. t. [ME. reden, fr. AS. rēdan. See REDD.] To make ready or put in order; to clear up or out. Obs. exc. Dial. rede (rēd). Var. of READ, stomach; REDD; REED. Now Dial.
Red Eagle. See ORDER, n., 1. red ebony. The granadilla tree.
re'de·cus'sate (rē'dē-kŭs'āt; rē-dĕk'ŭs-), v. i. [re- + decussate.] To cross again; — said of nerve fibers.
re·deem' (rē-dēm'), v.; RE·DEEMED' (-dēmd'); RE·DEEM'ING. [F. or L.; F. rédimer, fr. L. redimere, redemptum, fr. red-, re-, re- + emere, emptum, to buy, orig., to take; akin to OIr. em (in comp.), Lith. imti. Cf. ASSUME, CONSUME, EXAMPLE, EXEMPT, PEREMPTORY, PREMIUM, PRESUME, PROMPT, RANSOM, RESUME.] Transitive: 1. To regain possession of by payment of a stipulated price; to repurchase.

If a man sell a dwelling house in a walled city, then he may redeem it within a whole year after it is sold. Lev. xxv. 29.

2. To ransom, liberate, or rescue from captivity or bondage, or from any obligation or liability to suffer or to be forfeited, by paying a price or ransom; to ransom.

Redeem Israel, O God, out of all his troubles. Ps. xxv. 22.

3. To recover or regain, as pledged or mortgaged property, by the requisite fulfillment of some obligation, as by payment of what may be due.
4. To rescue; deliver; reclaim; — often with from or out of.

Throws the freight over to redeem the ship. Browning.

5. To buy off, take up, or remove the obligation of, by payment or rendering of some consideration; as, to redeem bank notes with coin.
6. To make amends for; to offset; to atone for; to compensate; as, to redeem an error.
7. To make good by performing; to fulfill, as a promise.
8. Obs. a To restore. b To buy.
9. Theol. Hence, to rescue and deliver from the bondage of sin and the penalties of God's violated law.

Christ hath redeemed us from the curse of the law. Gal. iii. 13.

——, Intransitive: 1. To rebuy; specif., to pay off a mortgage.
2. To give deliverance or salvation.
SYN. — See RANSOM.
redeem (the or one's) time. To make the best use of time.

re·deem'a·ble (rē-dēm'ȧ-b'l), adj. Capable of being redeemed; held under conditions permitting redemption; subject to an obligation of redemption; payable; due; as bonds, promissory notes, etc., redeemable in gold.
— re·deem'a·bil'i·ty (-bĭl'ĭ-tĭ), n. — re·deem'a·ble·ness, n. — re·deem'a·bly, adv.
re·deem'er (-ĕr), n. One who redeems; specif. [cap.]: a the Saviour of the world, Jesus Christ. b See ORDER, n., 1. re·deem'less (-lĕs; -lĭs; 119), adj. Not redeemable. Rare.
red eft. A brick-red terrestrial form of the common North American newt Triturus viridescens. red elder. The cranberry tree. rede'less (rēd'lĕs; -lĭs; 119), adj. [AS. rēdlēas.] Wanting counsel; helpless. Obs.
re'de·liv'er (rē'dē-lĭv'ĕr), v. t. 1. To give back; to return.
2. To liberate a second time or again.
3. To deliver (a message, etc.) again.
4. To report. "Shall I redeliver you e'en so?" Shak.
— re'de·liv'er·er (-ĕr), n. — re'de·liv'er·y (-ĕr-ĭ), n.
red elm. Any of several American elms having reddish wood; esp., the slippery elm; also, its wood.
red els. A South African shrub or small tree (Cunonia capensis), the bark of which yields tannin. re'de·mand' (rē'dē-mȧnd'), v. t. [re- back, again + demand; cf. F. redemander.] To demand back or again; — also, Obs., to inquire again. — n. A redemanding. Rare.
— re'de·mand'a·ble (-mȧn'dȧ-b'l), adj.
re·demp'ti·ble (rē-dĕmp'tĭ-b'l), adj. Redeemable.
re·demp'tion (rē-dĕmp'shŭn; 206), n. [ME. redempcioun, fr. OF. redemption, fr. L. redemptio. See REDEEM; cf. RANSOM.] 1. Act of redeeming, or state of being redeemed; repurchase; ransom; release; rescue; deliverance; restoration; recovery; reclamation; as, the redemption of prisoners of war; the redemption of a slum. Specif.: a Eng. The securing of some privileged status or of membership in a society by purchase. b The buying off, taking up, or removing, of the obligation of something by rendering an equivalent, as of a bond by payment.
2. That which redeems, or a way or means of redeeming; a redeeming feature; atonement; Obs., a recompense.
3. In religions generally, salvation; deliverance from what is regarded as evil, esp. viewed as due to divine agency, or to a certain right relation to a divine reality; as: a In Hinduism, deliverance from the misery of finite existence, esp. from transmigration, whether through insight into the nature of God, or as a reward either of works of obedience or of loving devotion to a divine being or divine beings. b In Christianity, deliverance from the bondage and consequences of sin, especially as through the reconciliation (atonement) effected by Christ. Cf. ATONEMENT, 3.

In whom we have redemption through his blood. Eph. i. 7.

4. More fully redemption of the first-born. Jewish Law. The freeing of the first-born males of men and of unclean beasts (so Num. xviii. 15, but the rabbis made the law apply to asses only) from the condition of being sanctified to the Lord as his, which setting apart is required in the case of both man and beast in remembrance of the delivery of the first-born of Israel when the first-born of Egypt were slain, and in ancient times involved the sacrifice of all first-born males. From this sacrifice, however, all except the first-born of clean beasts were redeemable. The observance of this law as to a first-born son by the father, or, in case the father fails to do it, by the son when grown up, is obligatory on every Israelite. See Ex. xiii. 2 & 12 ff.; Num. iii. 12, 13, & 45 ff.; Num. xviii. 15–18; Deut. xv. 19–22.
5. Law. Regaining of property by satisfaction of some obligation; specif., liberation or resumption of property pledged or mortgaged by performance of the terms or conditions of the pledge or mortgage; also, an equity of redemption. See EQUITY OF REDEMPTION.
re·demp'tion·al (rē-dĕmp'shŭn-ȧl; -'l; 206), adj. Of or pertaining to redemption.
re·demp'tion·er (-ĕr), n. 1. Formerly, one who, wishing to emigrate from Europe to America, secured passage on credit, binding himself to be sold into service by the master or owner of the ship for a stipulated time.
2. One who redeems himself, as from debt or servitude. redemption fund. a A fund of $150,000,000 in gold held in the Treasury of the United States for the redemption of United States notes and Treasury notes of 1890. b A fund maintained by national banks with the Treasurer of the United States for the redemption of national bank notes. Each national bank must deposit a sum not less than five per cent of its outstanding note issue.
re·demp'tive (rē-dĕmp'tĭv; 206), adj. Serving or tending to redeem; redeeming. — re·demp'tive·ly, adv.
re·demp'tor (rē-dĕmp'tĕr), n. [OF. or L.; OF. redemptor, fr. L. redemptor.] A redeemer. Now Rare.
re'demp·to'ri·al (rē'dĕmp·tō'rĭ·ȧl; 181), adj. Redemptory.
Re·demp'tor·ist (rē-dĕmp'tĕr-ĭst), n. [F. rédemptoriste, fr. L. redemptor redeemer, fr. redimere. See REDEEM.] R.C.Ch. A member of an order, the Congregation of the Most Holy Redeemer, founded in Naples in 1732 by St. Alphonsus Maria Liguori, devoted to preaching to the neglected.
re·demp'to·ry (rē-dĕmp'tō-rĭ; 206), adj. Of or pertaining to redemption; paid for ransom; serving to redeem.
re·demp'tress (rē-dĕmp'trĕs; -trĭs; 119), n. A female redeemer. re·demp'trice (-trĭs), n. [L. redemptrix, -tricis.] A woman who redeems. Rare.
red ensign. Naut. The ensign with a red field borne by British merchantmen. For its use as a colonial flag, see ENSIGN, n., 1. redes'man (rēdz'mȧn), n. [AS. rādesmann.] Counselor. Archaic.
re'de·ter'mine (rē'dē-tûr'mĭn), v. t. To determine anew or again. —re'de·ter'mi·na'tion (-mĭ-nā'shŭn), n. re'de·vel'op (rē'dē-vĕl'ŭp), v. t. & i.; -VEL'OPED (-ŭpt); -VEL'OP·ING. To develop again; specif., Photog. a Rare. To intensify (a developed image). b To tone (a developed image) by subjecting it to a suitable bleach, as a ferricyanide with a bromide, and then to a sodium sulphide (or the like) solution. — re'de·vel'op·er (-ĕr), n. — re'de·vel'opment (-mĕnt), n.

red'coll', n. [ME. radcolle; origin uncert.] Horse-radish. Obs.
Red'cowl'. = REDCAP, 2. Scot. redde. ✝ RAD, afraid; RED; REDD; RID. [READ.] redde. Obs. past & past part. of READ. red'den·ing, n. = RUST, 2 b. red'di·tive (rĕd'ĭ-tĭv), adj. & n. [L. redditivus.] Chiefly Gram. Correlative. Obs. red'dle (rĕd'l). Var. of RUDDLE. red'dle·man (-mȧn), n. = RADDLEMAN. red'dock (rĕd'ŭk). Dial. Eng. var. of RUDDOCK, robin redbreast. rede. ✝ RAD, afraid; READ, v.; RED.
re·deal', n. & v., re·de·bate', v. t., re·deb'it, v. t., re'de·ceive', v. t., re'de·cide', v. t. & i., re·dec'i·mate, v. t., re'de·ci'sion (rē'dē-sizh'ŭn), n., re·deck', v. t., re'dec·la·ra'tion, n., re'de·clare', v. t., re'de·cline', n. & v., re·dec'o·rate, v. t. & i., re·dec·o·ra'tion, n., re'de·crease', v. t., re·ded'i·cate, v. t., re·ded·i·ca'tion, n., re·ded'i·ca·to'ry, adj. See RE-, 2.
re·ded'u·cate, v. t. See RE-, 1. re·deed', v. t. See RE-, 1. re·deemd'. Redeemed. Ref. Sp.
re·deem'er·ess, n. See -ESS. re·deem'er·ship, n. See -SHIP.
re·de·fault', n. & v., re·de·feat', n. & v., re·def'e·cate, v. i., re'de·fer', v. t., re'de·fine', v. t., re'def·i·ni'tion (rē'dĕf·ĭ·nĭsh'ŭn), n., re·de·flect', v. t. See RE-, 2.
re·de·fy', v. t. See RE-, 1. — re'de·fi'ance, n.
re·de'i·fy, v. t. See RE-, 2.
re·de·lay', v. t. See RE-, 2. re·del'e·gate, v. t. See RE-, 1. — re'del·e·ga'tion, n.
re·de·lib'er·ate, v. t. & i. See RE-, 2. — re'de·lib'er·a'tion, n.
re·de·liv'er·ance, n. See RE-, 2. redes'ly, adv. Advisedly; assuredly; surely; readily. Obs. re'de·mise', n. & v. See RE-, 1. re'de·mol'ish, v. t. See RE-, 2. re·dem'on·strate, v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'dem·on·stra'tion, n.
Re·demp'tine (rē-dĕmp'tĭn; -tēn), n. = REDEMPTORISTINE.
Re·demp'tion·ist, n. R.C.Ch. a = TRINITARIAN, 2. b = MERCEDARIAN. re·demp'tion·less, adj. See -LESS. re·demp'tive. Redemptive. Ref. Sp.
re·demp'ture, n. ✝ REDEMPTOR. reden. ✝ READ, v.
re·den'i·grate, v. t. See RE-, 2. re'de·ny', v. t. See RE-, 1. re·de·pend', v. t. See RE-, 1. re·de·pos'it, v. t. & n. See RE-, 1. re·dep·o·si'tion (rē'dĕp·ō-zĭsh'ŭn), n.
re·de·pre·ci·ate, v. t. See RE-, 2. — re·de·pre'ci·a'tion, n.
re·de·prive', v. t., re'der·i·va'tion, n., re'de·rive', v. t., re'de·scend', v. t. & i., re'de·scent', n., re'de·scribe', v. t., re'de·scrip'tion, n., re'·de·sert', v. t. & i., re'de·ser'tion, n., re'de·serve', v. t., re'de·sign', v. t. & n., re·des'ignate, v. t., re'des·ig·na'tion, n., re'de·sire', n. & v., re'de·sir'ous, adj. See RE-, 2. re'de·spise', v. t. See RE-, 1. re'de·tect', v. t., re'de·ten'tion, n. See RE-, 2.
re·dev'a·ble, adj. [F.] Indebted. Obs. re'de·vise', v. t. See RE-, 2. re'de·vote', v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'de·vo'tion, n.

red'eye' (rĕd'ī'), n. 1. The rudd. Hence, U.S.: a = ROCK BASS a. b The green sunfish.
2. The red-eyed vireo.
3. The copperhead Agkistrodon mokasen.
4. Whisky, esp. of a poor quality. Slang, U.S.

red'–eyed' (-ĭd'; 66), adj. Having red eyes or a red ring about the eye, as certain birds; also, having reddened or inflamed eyelids, as from weeping.

red–eyed perch. = ROCK BASS a.

red–eyed pochard. The common European pochard.

red–eyed vireo. A common vireo (Vireo olivaceus) of northeastern North America, with a grayish-green back, white under parts, and the iris red.

red feed. Small, red, marine, surface-swimming copepod crustaceans which are a favorite food of the mackerel.

red fender. Red-bellied terrapin. See TERRAPIN.

red fescue. A European and American fescue (Festuca rubra) with creeping rootstocks, erect culms, and reddish spikelets.

red fever. Swine erysipelas.

red fig. The poplar-leaf fig; also, its small red fruit.

red'–fig'ured (rĕd'fĭg'ŭrd; 66), adj. Gr. Antiq. Designating, or relating to, vases in which the decoration consists of red figures (the natural clay) upon a black ground, which is painted in. This style originated at Athens toward the close of the 6th century B.C. As compared with the black-figured style, it is characterized by greater delicacy and expressiveness and greater variety of subject matter. From true red-figured vases are distinguished vases covered entirely with black varnish upon which red figures are painted, a much rarer type. Cf. BLACK-FIGURED; POLYCHROME, adj., 2 a.

red'fin' (-fĭn'), n. Any of certain fishes of the families Cyprinidae and Catostomidae; as: a A small shiner (Luxilus cornutus) widely distributed in the streams of eastern and central North America, the male of which has bright red fins in the breeding season; also, Lythrurus umbratilis of the Mississippi Valley. b = REDHORSE, 1 a.

Redfin (Luxilus cornutus).

red'finch' (-fĭnch'), n. A red linnet. See LINNET a.

red fir. a Any of several western American firs, as Abies nobilis, A. magnifica (the California red fir), and A. amabilis; also, their reddish wood. b The Douglas fir. c The Norway spruce. d See SCOTCH PINE.

red fire. A composition that burns with a bright-red light, used in pyrotechny, signaling, etc. The color is usually due to a strontium salt.

red'fish' (rĕd'fĭsh'), n.; pl. -FISH, -FISHES (-fĭsh'ĕz; -ĭz; 119). See PLURAL, Note. a The blueback salmon. b The rosefish. c In California, the fathead (sense 1 b). d The red drum. e The red phase of a West Indian grouper (Cephalopholis fulvus) which varies in color with the depth of water it inhabits.

red flag. 1. A flag of red color, used as: a A revolutionary and terroristic emblem. b The generally accepted emblem of socialism. c A sign of danger, as on board a war vessel when powder is being loaded. d The sign of an auction sale.
2. Figuratively: a Rare. A blush. b A red rag (sense c).
— red'–flag' (66), adj.

red'–flag'ger, n. One who carries, follows, or waves a red flag. — red'–flag'ger·y, n.

red'–flag' law. A statute, enacted in various forms in a number of States of the United States, prohibiting public exhibition of flags or other symbols of opposition to organized government or of belief in revolution or violent overthrow of political, social, or economic institutions.

red'–foot'ed boo'by. Also red'foot' (rĕd'fŏŏt'), n. See BOOBY, n., 2 a.

red–footed falcon. A chiefly plumbeous European falcon (Falco vespertinus).

red fox. See 1st FOX, 1.

Red Friar. A Knight Templar.

red game. Red grouse. Now Rare.

Red'gaunt'let (rĕd'gôntˈlĕt; -gănt'lĕt; -lĭt; 119), n. The title and one of the principal characters of a novel (1824) by Scott. Redgauntlet is a political enthusiast and Jacobite, who upholds the cause of the Pretender, and accompanies him into exile. When he frowned, the figure of a horseshoe, the fatal mark of his race, became visible upon his brow.

red giant. A large variety of Belgian hare.

red gland. Zool. See RED BODY.

red goatfish. See GOATFISH.

red gold. Gold alloyed with copper. Archaic.

red goose. The snow goose. It has reddish bill and feet. New Jersey.

red gooseberry. a A red variety of the common gooseberry. b Obs. The common red currant.

red goosefoot. A common, Eurasian, annual weed (Chenopodium rubrum) naturalized in North America; — called also French spinach.

red grain beetle. See GRAIN BEETLE b.

red grape. The Missouri grape.

red grosbeak. Cardinal bird.

red grouper. A grouper (Epinephelus morio) of the Atlantic coast from Virginia southward. It reaches a length of three feet and with age acquires a flesh-red color. See GROUPER, Illust.

Red Grouse. (⅛)

red grouse. A ptarmigan (Lagopus scoticus), of the British Islands, closely allied to the willow ptarmigan, but not turning white in winter as other species do. Commonly called simply grouse in Great Britain. See GROUSE.

Red Guard. In Russia, Hungary, Finland, etc., the Red Army; esp., the forces of the revolutionary party.

red gum. [ME. redgound, fr. AS. rēad red + gund matter, pus.] 1. a Any of several Australian species of Eucalyptus, esp. E. rostrata, E. amygdalina, etc.; also, their timber. b The dried juice of several Australian species of Eucalyptus, used as an astringent in medicine. c Acaroid resin.
2. The heartwood of the sweet gum Liquidambar styraciflua or the reddish-brown lumber sawed from it; also, the tree itself.

red gurnard. a A European gurnard (Trigla cuculus) which is chiefly red in color. b A related fish (Chelidonichthys kumu) of Australia.

red hackle. Angling. An artificial fly with scarlet hackle, peacock-herl body, and gold tag.

red'–hand' (66), adj. Red-handed.

Red Hand. The Badge of Ulster, representing a sinister hand, erect, open, and couped at the wrist.

red'–hand'ed, adj. Having hands red with blood; in the very act, as if with bloody hands; — said of a person taken in the act of homicide; hence, fresh from the commission of crime; as, he was taken red-handed.
— red'–hand'ed·ly, adv. — red'–hand'ed·ness, n.

red'–hard' (66), adj. Metal. Hard when red-hot; — said of high-speed steel. — red'–hard'ness, n.

red'–hard'en, v. t. To make red-hard, as steel.

red'–hat', n. 1. A cardinal, part of whose official costume is a red hat; — a nickname.
2. A staff officer. Slang, Brit.

red haw. Any of several American hawthorns, esp. Crataegus coccinea and its allies. Crataegus mollis is the State flower of Missouri.

red hawk. A hawk in its first year.

red'head' (rĕd'hĕd'), n. 1. A person who has red hair, esp. one having a fiery disposition.
2. a The European pochard. b An American duck (Nyroca americana) similar to the European pochard and highly esteemed as a game bird. It is allied also to the canvasback, but the head of the male is brighter rufous its bill shorter. c The red-headed woodpecker. d The house finch.
3. = BLOODFLOWER a.

red'head'ed (rĕd'hĕd'ĕd; -ĭd; 66; 119), adj. 1. Red-haired; hence, excited or easily excitable to anger.
2. Having a red or reddish head.
— red'head'ed·ly, adv.
— red'head'ed·ness, n.

Redhead 2 b. Male.

redheaded curre, duck, pochard, poker, widgeon. A pochard, or redhead.

redheaded fungus. A sac fungus (Sphaerostilbe aurantiicola) parasitic on citrus scale insects; — so called from the bright-red spore fruits.

redheaded linnet. The house finch.

redheaded lizard. A blue-tailed skink.

redheaded woodpecker. A rather large woodpecker (Melanerpes erythrocephalus) widely but irregularly distributed in North America. The adult has white under parts and wing patches, with back, tail, and the rest of the wings black, and a red head and neck. See BIRD, Plate.

red'head'–grass', n. A very common, submerged pondweed (Potamogeton perfoliatus) with broad, clasping or perfoliate leaves and a terminal spike of greenish, apetalous flowers.

red heart. a Incipient decay in lumber indicated by a dark-red discoloration not found in sound wood. b = RED ROT, 2 b.

red'heart' hick'o·ry (rĕd'härt'). The shagbark hickory Carya ovata.

red heat. State of being red-hot; the temperature at which a substance is red-hot.

red heath. a The heather Calluna vulgaris. b In New Zealand a heathlike shrub (Dracophyllum recurvum), family Epacridaceae, with small red flowers.

red hematite. Mineral. Ordinary massive hematite. See HEMATITE.

red herring. 1. Herring cured with saltpeter and slowly dried and smoked so as to be red; a herring so cured. See neither fish, fowl, nor good red herring, under 2d FISH.
2. A subject intended to divert attention from the main question; — often in to draw a red herring across the track (path, etc.). red'hi·bi'tion (rĕd'hĭ·bĭsh'ŭn), n. [F. or L.; F. rédhibition, fr. L. redhibitio a taking back.] Civil Law. The annulling of a sale of an article and the return of it to the seller on account of some material defect. — red·hib'i·to'ry (rĕd·hĭb'ĭ·tō'rĭ or, esp. Brit., -tĕr·ĭ), adj.

red hickory. a The mockernut. b The pignut (Carya glabra).

red hind (hīnd). a A grouper (Epinephelus guttatus), important as a food fish in Cuba (where it is called cabrilla), but ranging from the Carolinas to Brazil. It is largely olive, with red spots. b See CONY, 5 b.

red honeysuckle. 1. Local, Eng. a The sulla. b The red clover.
2. An Australian shrub (Banksia serrata) often cultivated for its beautiful rusty foliage and thick spikes of red flowers.

red'hoop' (rĕd'hōōp'), n. [E. dial. hoop bullfinch, also alp.] The male of the European bullfinch. Local, Eng.

red horse. U.S. 1. a Any of numerous large suckers (Catostomidae) of the genera Moxostoma and Placopharynx of North American rivers and lakes; — so called from the red fins, esp. of the male in the breeding season. b The red drum (fish).
2. [cap.] A Kentuckian; — a nickname. Obs.

red horse chestnut. A much-cultivated ornamental tree (Aesculus carnea) of hybrid origin, resembling the common horse chestnut, but with red flowers.

red'–hot' (66), adj. Red from a high degree of heat. Hence: a Excited, exciting, or marked by great excitement, enthusiasm, vigor, violence, or the like; fiery; furious; violent; as, a red-hot radical; a red-hot debate. b Fresh; up-to-the-minute; as, red-hot news.

red'–hot', n. 1. A red-hot metal; also, a red-hot person.
2. A hot dog or Frankfurter. Local, U.S.

red–hot poker plant. A poker plant.

re'di·a (rē'dĭ·ȧ), n.; pl. REDIAE (-ē), REDIAS (-ȧz). [NL., after Francesco Redi (1626?–97), It. naturalist.] Zool. A larva produced within the sporocyst of certain trematodes. It in turn produces, either another generation of rediae, or else cercariae in itself. See 1st FLUKE, 2.

re'di·ent (rē'dĭ·ĕnt; 159), adj. [L. rediens, pres. part. of redire, fr. red- + ire to go.] Returning. Rare.

‖re·dif' (rā·dēf'), n. [F. rédif, fr. Turk. redīf, fr. Ar. radīf, one who rides behind another on the same animal, follower.] In the army of the former Turkish Empire, a second category of reserves in which the soldier spent nine years before passing to service in the final category; a soldier in this reserve.

red Indian. 1. Also Red Indian. a An American Indian, as distinguished from an East Indian or from an Eskimo. See INDIAN, n., 5. b One of the copper-colored Indians of North America, as contrasted with American Indians of other hues. c An Indian of the tribes of the United States and Canada.
2. The painted cup Castilleja coccinea.

red Indian paint. = BLOODROOT, 1. U.S.

red'in·gote (rĕd'ĭng·gōt), n. [F., fr. E. riding coat.] A long plain double-breasted outside coat, now one worn by women.

red ink. Red-colored ink, esp. that used for entries on the loss side of an account; hence, Slang: a Vin ordinaire. b Business loss. — red'–ink' (66), adj.

red'–ink', v. t. To mark with, or print in, red ink.

red inkberry, red ink plant. The pokeweed Phytolacca americana.

red·in'te·grate (rĕd·ĭn'tē·grāt), adj. [L. redintegratus, past part. of redintegrare to restore, fr. red-, re-, re- + integrare to make whole. See INTEGRATE.] Redintegrated. Now Rare.

red·in'te·grate (-grāt), v.; -GRAT'ED (-grāt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -GRAT'ING (-grāt'ĭng). Transitive: 1. To make whole again; to renew; re-establish; to restore to integrity or soundness.
2. To restore (one) to a previous place or condition. Obs.
—, Intransitive: 1. To become united again. Rare.
2. To be restored to a previous condition or status; esp., to become reconciled.

red·in'te·gra'tion (-grā'shŭn), n. [L. redintegratio.]
1. The act or process of redintegrating; state or fact of being redintegrated.
2. Psychology. a Revival of the whole of a previous mental state when a phase of it recurs. b Arousal of any response by a part of the complex of stimuli that originally aroused that response.

red·in'te·gra'tive (rĕd·ĭn'tē·grā'tĭv), adj. Tending to redintegrate.

red·in'te·gra'tor (-grā'tĕr), n. One who or that which redintegrates. Rare.

Red International. See INTERNATIONAL, n., 2 g & j.

re'di·rect' (rē'dĭ·rĕkt'; -dī-), adj. Law. Designating, or pertaining to, the examination of a witness by the party calling him, after the cross-examination. U.S.

re'di·rect', v. t. 1. To direct again, esp. in a different direction or course.
2. To readdress (mail).
3. Photom. To change the direction of (the luminous flux) in a definite manner.
— re'di·rec'tion (-rĕk'shŭn), n.

red iron, red iron ore. Mineral. Ordinary hematite.

red ironbark. Any of several Australian eucalypts, as Eucalyptus siderozylon, E. paniculata, etc.

red ironwood. A small tree (Reynosia septentrionalis) of the Bahamas and southern Florida; also, the closely related Cuban tree R. latifolia.

re·dis'count (rē·dĭs'kount), v. t. To discount again, as commercial paper.

re·dis'count, n. Act of rediscounting; also, Colloq., rediscounted commercial paper.

rediscount rate. Banking. The published rate at which the Federal Reserve banks will rediscount commercial paper for member banks, or lend to member banks.

re'dis·seize', re'dis·seise' (rē'dĭ·sēz'), v. t. Law. To disseize anew. — re'dis·sei'zor, -sei'sor (-sē'zĕr; -zôr), n.

re'dis·sei'zin, re'dis·sei'sin (-sē'zĭn), n. Law. A disseizin by one previously adjudged to have disseized the same person of the same lands, etc.; also, a writ which lay in such a case.

re·dis'trict (rē·dĭs'trĭkt), v. t.; -TRICT·ED; -TRICT·ING. To district again or anew; to revise the legislative, esp. Congressional districts of.

red'i·vive (rĕd'ĭ·vīv), v. t. [L. redivivus that lives again.] To revive; restore to life. Rare. — adj. Redivived. Rare.

red'i·vi'vous (-vĭ'vŭs), adj. Tending to revive. Obs.

red'i·vi'vus (rĕd'ĭ·vī'vŭs), adj. [L., fr. red-, re-, re- + vivus alive.] Living again; revived.

red'jack'et (rĕd'jăk'ĕt; -ĭt; 119), n. One who wears a red jacket.

red jasmine or jessamine. a The frangipani (Plumiera rubra). b The cypress vine.

red juniper. The red cedar.

red kangaroo. See KANGAROO, 1 a.

red kauri. See KAURI d.

red'knees' (rĕd'nēz'), n. The smartweed Persicaria hydropiper.

red lac. The Japanese wax tree. See JAPAN WAX.

red land. a Scot. & Ir. Arable land. b Soil of reddish color. — red'–land', adj.

red lane. The esophagus. Colloq.

red larch. The tamarack Larix laricina.

red larkspur. A perennial herb (Delphinium nudicaule) of the Pacific coast, often cultivated for its reddish-yellow flowers.

red lattice. Red latticework, — formerly common in the windows of alehouses; hence, an alehouse or tavern. — red'–lat'tice (66), adj.

red la·uan' (lä·wän'). A valuable Philippine timber tree (genus Shorea, species unknown); also, its hard, heavy, red wood often sold as Philippine mahogany (which see).

red laver. See 1st LAVER a.

red lead (lĕd). a Minium, Pb_3O_4, prepared as a bright-red powder by oxidizing massicot in an oven and used in the manufacture of glass, matches, storage batteries, etc., and as a paint pigment, esp. to protect metals from corrosion. The commercial article usually contains lead monoxide and other impurities. b The color fiery red. — red'–lead' (66), adj.

red'–lead', v. t. To paint with red lead. — red'–lead'er (-lĕd'ĕr), n.

---

redgeling. † REDGELING.

red'–green' blind'ness. See COLOR BLINDNESS. — red–green blind. [re'dĭo·te'tĭon, n. re·dĭo'tate, v. i. See RE-, 2. — re'dĭf·fer·en'tĭ·ate, v. i. & t. See RE-, 2. — re'dĭf·fer·en'tĭ·a'tion, n.

re·dig', v. t. See RE-, 2.

re'di·gest', v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'di·ges'tion, n.

re'di·min'ish, v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·dip', v. t. See RE-, 2. — re·dip'per, n.

re'dis·a'ble, v. t., re'dis·ap·pear', v. i., re'dis·burse', v. t., re'dis·burse'ment, n., re'dis·charge', v. t., re·dis'ci·pline, v. t., re'dis·cour'age, v. t., re'dis·cov'er, v. t., re'dis·cov'er·er, n., re'dis·cov'er·y, n., re'dis·cuss', v. t., re'dis·cus'sion, n., re'dis·em·bark', v. i., re'dis·miss', v. t., re'dis·patch', v. t., re'dis·pel', v. t., re'dis·perse', v. t., re'dis·play', v. t., re·dis'pose', v. t., re·dis·po·si'tion, n., re'dis·pute', v. t., re'dis·sect', v. t., re·dis·sec'tion, n., re'dis·sol'u·ble, adj., re'dis·so·lu'tion, n., re·dis·solv'a·ble, adj., re'dis·solve', v. t., re'dis·tend', v. t., re'dis·till', v. t., re'dis·til·la'tion, n., re'dis·til'ler, n., re'dis·tin'guish, v. t., re'dis·train', v. t., re'dis·train'er, n., re'dis·trib'ute, v. t., re'dis·trib'ut·er, n., re'dis·tri·bu'tion, n., re'dis·trib'u·tive, adj., re'dis·trib'u·tor, n., re'dis·trib'u·to·ry, adj., re'dis·turb', v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·di'tion (rē·dĭsh'ŭn), n. [L. reditio, fr. redire. See REDIENT.] Returning; return. Obs.

re·dive', v. i., re'di·ver'sion, n., re'di·vert', v. t., re'di·vert'i·ble, adj., re'di·vide', v. t., re'di·vi'sion, n., re'di·vorce', v. & n., re'di·vorce'ment, n., re'di·vulge', v. t., re'di·vulg'ence, n. See RE-, 2.

red lead' ore. Mineral. Crocoite. red leaf. 1. The smartweed Persicaria hydropiper.
2. Plant Pathol. a A nonparasitic disease of oats characterized by reddening of the foliage. b A disease of the pear caused by nutritional disturbances producing a dark or purplish-red discoloration of the leaves. c A destructive disease of strawberries.
red leaf blight. Plant Pathol. A disease of cotton characterized by red or reddish-brown color of the foliage and reduced vigor, believed to be related to a shortage of potash.
red leaf spot. A fungous disease of the cranberry caused by Exobasidium vaccinii. See EXOBASIDIUM. red'leg' (rĕd'lĕg'), n. Also red'legs' (-lĕgz'). a The redshank. b The turnstone. Local, U.S. c The red-legged partridge. d The purple sandpiper. Local, Wales.
red–legged crow. The chough. red'–leg'ged fal'con (-lĕg'ĕd; -lĕgd'; 119). A chiefly lead-colored European falcon (Falco vespertinus); also, its eastern subspecies (F. v. amurensis). red–legged grasshopper or locust. See GRASSHOPPER, n., 1. red–legged gull. The black-headed gull. Local, Eng.
red–legged kittiwake. See KITTIWAKE. red–legged partridge. Any partridge of the genus Alectoris (syn. Caccabis), esp. A. rufa of western Europe.
red–legged plover. A turnstone. Local, U.S.
red–legged snipe. The redshank.
Red Letter. The Roman Catholic Church; — a 17th century nickname. — Red'–Let'ter man. Both Obs.
red'–let'ter (66), adj. Of or pertaining to a red letter; specif., of a day, that is a feast day; hence, fortunate; specially happy; memorable; — a sense arising from the calendar practice of indicating ecclesiastical feasts by red letters. Cf. BLACK-LETTER.
red light. A red-colored light, esp. one used as a sign of danger or signal to stop. — red'–light' (66), adj.
red'–light' dis'trict. A district in which disorderly resorts are frequent; — so called in allusion to the red light in front of many such resorts.
red lily. a The wood lily Lilium philadelphicum. U.S. b The Barbados lily. W. Ind. c = WESTERN RED LILY. d The southern red lily. red linnet. See LINNET a. red liquor. Chem. a The mother liquor left in the evaporation of the solution obtained by leaching black ash in the Leblanc process. b The mother liquor obtained in the recrystallization of tartar. c Dyeing. A solution consisting chiefly of aluminum acetate, used as a mordant, esp. in dyeing red. red'–lit'ten, adj. Having a red light. Poe.
red lobelia. The cardinal flower. red locust. The locust Robinia pseudoacacia.
red'–looked' (rĕd'lo̅o̅kt'), adj. Red-faced. Shak.
red loosestrife. The purple loosestrife. red louse. A chigger, or red bug. red'ly (rĕd'lĭ), adv. In a red manner; with red color.
red'ly, adv. [AS. rǣdlīce.] Wisely or prudently; surely; clearly; distinctly. Obs.
red maggot. The larva of the wheat midge.
red mahogany. An Australian eucalypt (Eucalyptus resinifera); also, its hard, deep-red wood. The tree also yields a dark-colored variety of kino. red maids. An annual, branching herb (Calandrinia menziesii) of the Pacific coast of North America, cultivated for its crimson flowers.
red man. 1. An American Indian, a redskin.
2. [cap.] A member of the Improved Order of Red Men, a fraternal benevolent order founded at Baltimore in 1834.
red mangrove. a Any true mangrove having red wood, as the African Rhizophora natalensis; also, its wood. b Any of several trees of the genus Bruguiera (family Rhizophoraceae) of Australia and Polynesia. In the Philippines several species yield tannin. c = LOOKING-GLASS PLANT a. red'man's or'chard (rĕd'mănz). In western North America, a grove or stand of the piñon Pinus monophylla.
red mapau. The mapau.
red maple. Any of several American maples belonging to a group of which Acer rubrum is the type. They are all distinguished by the crimson flowers, produced before the leaves in very early spring.
red marrow. See 1st MARROW, 1. red Mass. A Mass, celebrated in red vestments, as a Mass of the Holy Ghost, at the opening of courts, congresses, etc.
red meat. Meat that in its raw or uncured state is red in color, as beef and mutton.
red message. A telegraphic message to be sent at night. It is copied on a blank printed in red ink.
red millet. The crab grass Digitaria sanguinalis. red'–mind'ed (66), adj. Radical. red mite. The red spider.
red monkey. The patas and related species.
red mordant. Dyeing. Red liquor. red morocco. = PHEASANT'S-EYE a. red morwong. The morwong Cheilodactylus fuscus. red'mouth' (-mouth'), n. Any of several grunts of the genus Haemulon, having the inside of the mouth bright red. redmouth buffalo fish. The common buffalo fish. redmouth grunt. A redmouth. red mulberry. A North American forest tree (Morus rubra) with soft, weak, but durable wood; also, its dark-purple edible fruit.
red mulga. An Australian acacia (Acacia cyperophylla). red mullet. a Any mullet of the family Mullidae; a surmullet or goatfish. See 2d MULLET, 2. b A red horse (Moxostoma macrolepidotum) of the streams of the eastern United States from Delaware to North Carolina.
red mustard. The black mustard (Brassica nigra). See MUSTARD, 3 a. red myrtle. An Australian tree (Eugenia myrtifolia); also, its ovoid, purplish-red fruit. red'–necked' grebe. See GREBE. red–necked nightjar. A nightjar (Caprimulgus ruficollis) of southwestern Europe and northern Africa.
red–necked phalarope. The northern phalarope. See PHALAROPE. red nightshade. a The alkekengi. b The pokeweed Phytolacca americana.
red nucleus. Anat. A nucleus of gray matter in the tegmentum of the midbrain on either side of the middle line, receiving fibers from the cerebellum of the opposite side by way of the brachium conjunctivum, and giving rise to fibers of the rubrospinal tract of the opposite side; — called also nucleus ruber.
red oak. a A North American oak (Quercus borealis) having large leaves with triangular, spiny-tipped lobes. b Any of several related oaks, esp. Q. texana, of the southern United States. c The hard, strong, coarse-grained wood of any of these trees, esp. Q. borealis; also, in the lumber trade, the wood of the related Quercus velutina, or black oak, Q. palustris, the pin oak, and Q. phellos, the willow oak. See OAK, Illust.
red ocher. Mineral. A red, earthy, and often impure variety of hematite. It is used as a pigment.
red oil. Any of various red (often because impure) oils, as: a Commercial oleic acid. See OLEIC ACID. b A domestic remedy for bruises, made by macerating the tops of the common St.-John's-wort in olive oil.
red'o·lence (rĕd'ō·lĕns), n. [OF.] Quality of being redolent; sweetness of scent; fragrance. red'o·len·cy (-lĕn·sĭ), n. Redolence. red'o·lent (rĕd'ō·lĕnt), adj. [OF., fr. L. redolens, -entis, pres. part. of redolere to diffuse an odor, fr. red-, re-, re- + olere to emit a smell. See ODOR.] 1. Diffusing odor or fragrance; sweet-scented; as, a redolent breeze; hence, odorous; emitting or suggesting odors; — usually with of.
"Honey redolent of spring." Dryden.
2. That arouses memories or creates an atmosphere; as, a scene redolent of the Middle Ages; also, imbued; impregnated; as, a tone redolent with contempt.
— red'o·lent·ly, adv.
Syn. — FRAGRANT, ODOROUS, REDOLENT, AROMATIC. That is FRAGRANT which emits an agreeable odor; ODOROUS may suggest either (as commonly) a pleasant or (sometimes) an unpleasant smell; REDOLENT (of, with) applies to that which is strongly impregnated with an odor, whether pleasant or unpleasant; the word is chiefly fig.; as, "one glass of a fragrant wine, the color of honey" (Landor); "the odorous cedar bark" (Shelley); "redolent of joy and youth" (Gray); "a symbol redolent with moral memories" (W. James). AROMATIC adds to fragrant the suggestion of spiciness or pungency; as, "her sweetest flowers, her aromatic gums" (Cowper). Cf. SMELL. re'don·dil'la (rā'dŏn·dēl'yä; 170), n. [Sp., dim. fr. redondo round.] Sp. Poetry. A rhymed stanza, esp. one of four trochaic verses of six or eight syllables, rhyming a b b a.
red orpiment. Realgar.
red osier. a The purple willow (Salix purpurea) the reddish twigs of which are extensively used for basketry, etc.; also, any of several related willows. b Also red osier dogwood. A common North American shrub (Cornus stolonifera) with reddish-purple twigs, white flowers, and globose, blue or whitish fruit. c = SILKY CORNEL.
re·doub'ble (rē·dŭb'l; rē-), v.; re·doub'led (-'ld); re·dou'bling (-lĭng). [F. redoubler.] Intrans.: 1. To become twice as great in size or quantity; to double; also, to grow more numerous, stronger, or the like.
2. To repeat; as: a To repeat a stroke in fencing. b To repeat a sound; to re-echo.
3. Bridge. To double an adversary who has doubled.
——, Transitive: 1. To double or increase in size or amount; as, to redouble one's efforts or one's zeal.
2. To say, do, act, again; to repeat; specif., Obs., to re-echo.
3. To reproduce in reflection; to reflect.
re·dou'ble, n. 1. Repetition. Obs.
2. Bridge. Act or instance of redoubling. re·dou'ble (rē·dŭb'l; 66), v. t. & i. [re- + double.] To double again or back; — esp. in to double and redouble.
re·dou'ble·ment (-mĕnt), n. [F.] Redoubling; specif., an increase in severity of a disease; paroxysm. Now Rare.
re·dou'bler (rē·dŭb'lĕr; rē-), n. One who or that which redoubles.
re·doubt' (rē·dout'), n. [F. redoute, fr. It. ridotto, fr. ML. reductus, lit., a retreat, fr. L. reducere to lead or draw back. See REDUCE; cf. RÉDUIT, RIDOTTO.] Fort. a An permanent works, a work placed within an outwork. See RAVELIN, Illust., F and i. b A small, and usually rough, enclosed work of varying shape, having no re-entrant angle. It is commonly temporary and without flanking defenses, is used esp. in fortifying tops of hills and passes, and positions in hostile territory. c Rare. A réduit. re·doubt', v. t.; -DOUBT'ED; -DOUBT'ING. [ME. redouten, fr. OF. redo(u)ter (F. redouter), formerly also spelt redoubter (with b silent), fr. L. re- re- + dubitare to doubt, in ML., to fear. See DOUBT.] To dread.
re·doubt'a·ble (rē·dout'ä·b'l), adj. [ME. redoutable, fr. OF. redo(u)table. See REDOUBT to dread.] Formidable; dread; as, a redoubtable hero; also, worthy of respect or reverence; — now usually, in contempt or burlesque. — re·doubt'a·ble·ness, n. — re·doubt'a·bly, adv.
re·doubt'ed (-ĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj. Formidable; dread; renowned.
re·dound' (rē·dound'), v.; RE·DOUND'ED; RE·DOUND'ING. [OF. redonder to overflow, be abundant or in excess, fr. L. redundare, fr. red-, re-, re- + undare to rise in waves or surges, fr. unda a wave. See UNDULATE; cf. REDUNDANT.] Intransitive: 1. Obs. a To rise or surge, as water; hence, to overflow; abound. b To roll back, as a wave; to return; rebound. c To reverberate; resound.
2. To flow back as a consequence; to conduce by way of reaction or return; to come as a result; to accrue; to turn; recoil; as, glory which redounds to a nation from its heroes; the action redounds to his credit; benefits which redound upon us all.
3. To issue; result; to arise. Now Rare.
Like the fumes and vapory clouds Through fancy's heat redounding in the brain. Wordsworth.
——, Transitive: Obs. a To reflect. b To render in return. c To yield.
Syn. — See CONDUCE. re·dound', n. 1. Reverberation; a resounding cry. Rare.
2. A redounding; return, as of consequence or effect.
We give you welcome; not without redound
Of use and glory to yourselves ye come. Tennyson.
‖re·doute' (rē·dōōt'), n. [F. See REDOUBT, n.] A ridotto. red'o·wa (rĕd'ō·wä; -vä), n. [F. & G., fr. Czech rejdovák, fr. rejdovati to steer around, drive.] Either of two popular ballroom dances of the 19th century, one in triple time, like a waltz, the other in $\frac{2}{4}$ time, like a polka.
red owl. a An American screech owl in its red phase. b Local, Eng. The short-eared owl. red'ox (rĕd'ŏks), n. Chem. Mutual reduction and oxidation. — red'ox, adj.
red oxide of copper. Chem. See COPPER OXIDE. red oxide of iron. Ferric oxide. red oxide of lead. = RED LEAD a. red oxide of mercury. Chem. See MERCURY OXIDE. red oxide of zinc. Zincite.
red pepper. a Cayenne pepper. b A tropical American woody herb (Capsicum grossum) with edible fruit, red or sometimes yellow when ripe; also, the fruit.
red perch. a Calif. = GARIBALDI, 2. b The rosefish. red periwinkle. A commonly cultivated woody herb (Vinca rosea) of the Old World tropics, having opposite entire leaves and large white or pinkish-purple flowers, often with a red eye. Called also Cape or Madagascar periwinkle.
red pestilence. See RED PLAGUE a. red phalarope. See PHALAROPE. red phosphorus. Chem. See PHOSPHORUS, n., 3.
red pigweed. The red goosefoot. red pimpernel. The common pimpernel (Anagallis arvensis). red pine. 1. a A North American pine (Pinus resinosa) having reddish bark; also, its wood, which is hard, but not durable, being chiefly sapwood. Called also Canadian red pine. b The bull pine Pinus ponderosa. c The Douglas fir.
2. a In Australia, the cypress pine Callitris calcarata; also, its timber. b In New Zealand, the rimu; also, the black pine Podocarpus spicata.
red plague. Med. a A form of the plague marked by red spots or ulcers; — called also red pestilence. b Venereal disease.
red plant. = RED LEAF, 2 c. red plum. Any red-fruited plum; specif., the American wild plums Prunus americana and P. nigra. See WILD CHERRY. red'poll' (rĕd'pōl'), n. 1. a Any of several small finches of the genus Acanthis of northern Europe, Asia, and America, similar in size and habits to the siskins. The males usually have a red or rosy crown and streaked back and sides. Often, as in the common redpoll (A. linaria), the breast and rump also are rosy. Hornemann's redpoll (A. hornemanni) of Europe and the hoary redpoll (A. l. exilipes) of America are small and pale. b The linnet Carduelis cannabina. See LINNET a. c Also redpoll warbler. The palm warbler Dendroica palmarum. Cf. YELLOW REDPOLL.

Redpoll (Acanthis linaria).

2. One of the Red Polled (cattle).
Red Polled (pōld). An English breed of hornless dairy cattle of a uniform reddish color, raised also for beef.
red pop. The male painted bunting (Passerina ciris). Local, U.S. red pope. The prefect of the Propaganda. Cf. BLACK POPE. red poppy. The corn poppy. red porgy. See PORGY, 1 a. red precipitate. Chem. See MERCURY OXIDE.
Red Prince. Frederick Charles (1828–85), Prussian prince and general; — from the color of his favorite hussar uniform.
red prussiate of potash. Chem. Potassium ferricyanide. red puccoon. = BLOODROOT, 1. U.S. red quebracho. See QUEBRACHO, 1 b. red quill. Angling. An artificial fly with gray wings, dark-red quill body, and brown hackle and tail. red race. The race of the American Indians. See INDIAN, n., 5.
re·draft' (rē·drăft'; rē'drăft'; 66; 83), n. 1. A draft on the maker or endorsers of a bill of exchange dishonored by the drawee, for the amount of the bill and the protest fee and other charges.
2. A second draft or copy.
red rag. a Slang. The tongue. b Eng. Wheat rust. c Something that arouses anger or vexation; — from phrase like a red rag to a bull.
red raspberry. Any red or purple raspberry, as distinguished from a black raspberry, or blackcap; specif., in England the species Rubus idaeus or its fruit, and in the United States R. strigosus or its fruit.
red rattle. See 3d RATTLE, 3 b. red rattlesnake. See RATTLESNAKE. re·draw' (rē·drô'), v. t. & i. To draw again; to make a redraft. — re·draw', n. — re·draw'er (-ĕr), n.
Red Republican. European Politics. Orig., one who maintained extreme republican doctrines in France, — because a red liberty cap was the badge of the party; hence, an extreme radical in political reform.
re·dress' (rē·drĕs'), v.; -DRESSED' (-drĕst'); -DRESS'ING. [F. redresser to straighten, OF. redrecier to make straight again, fr. re- re- + dresser to raise, arrange, OF. drecier to straighten. See DRESS.] Transitive: 1. To erect again; to re-establish; also, to bring back to the right course. Obs.
2. To set right, as a wrong; to repair, as an injury; to make amends for; to remedy; relieve.
Those wrongs, those bitter injuries, . . .
I doubt not but with honor to redress. Shak.
3. To correct, amend, or reform, as a fault or abuse; also, Rare, to emend.
4. To make amends to; to relieve of anything unjust or oppressive. "The afflicted to redress." Dryden.
5. To adjust again (usually, the balances).
Redress the eternal scales. Emerson.
6. Obs. a To restore to the right condition or order; to mend; repair. b To address or direct (a thing) to a destination. c To arrange; to put in order. d To atone for.
7. Aeronautics. To restore (an airplane) to normal flying attitude; to flatten out.
8. Elec. To rectify. Rare.
——, Intransitive: Obs. a To become erect. b To take one's course.
re·dress' (rē·drĕs'; rē'drĕs), n. 1. Reparation of wrong; amends, as for a loss; as, to seek redress in the courts; to have no redress for one's losses.
2. Act of redressing; a making right; correction; reformation; — often with of; as, the redress of grievances.
Reformation of evil laws is commendable, but for us the more necessary is a speedy redress of ourselves. Hooker.
3. Obs. a Relief in trouble; remedy; help. b Means of being redressed; improvement. c One that relieves; a redressor.
Syn. — See REPARATION. Ant. — Aggravation. re–dress' (rē·drĕs'), v. t. See RE-, 2.
re·dres'sal (rē·drĕs'äl; -l), n. Redress.
re·dress'er (-ĕr), n. One who or that which redresses.
re·dres'sive (rē·drĕs'ĭv), adj. Tending to redress. Rare.
re·dres'sor (-ĕr), n. One who redresses.
red ribbon. a The ribbon of the Order of the Bath in England; hence, the order, or membership in it. b An award indicating second rank among the exhibitions in its class.

red'–lead' put'ty. See PUTTY, n., 2 a. red'ness, n. See -NESS. re-do', v. t. See RE-, 2.
re-dock', v. t. See RE-, 2.
re-dock'et, v. t. See RE-, 2.
‖re'do·let lu·cer'na or lu·cer'nam (rĕd'ō·lĕt). [L.] It smells of the lamp; — said of any labored literary production.
re·dom'i·nate, v. t. See RE-, 2.
re·doom', v. t. See RE-, 2.
re·dou'bling, pres. part. & verbal n. of REDOUBLE. re·doubt'ing, n. Reverence, honor; also, apprehension. Obs. re·dout', Var. of REDOUBT. Obs. red'pole', Var. of REDPOLL. redpoll linnet. = REDPOLL, 1 a & b.
re·draft', v. t., re·drag', v. t., re·drape', v. t. See RE-, 2.
re·draw'ing press. Mach. See PUNCH PRESS. redrawing punch. Mach. See [7th PUNCH, 1 a.] re·dream', v. t. & i., re·dredge', v. t. See RE-, 2.
re·dress'a·ble, -i·ble, adj. See [-ABLE.] re·dress'less, adj. See -LESS.
re·dress'ment, n. See -MENT.

red rice. 1. A Chinese vegetable dye used in food products; ang-khak.
2. A rice (Oryza rufipogon) with a red seed coat and pinkish-white grain, considered a bad weed in the rice fields of the southern United States. The grain resembles that of the common rice in nutritive value.
Red Ridinghood. See LITTLE RED RIDINGHOOD. red ring disease. Plant Pathol. A disease of the coco palm caused by the nematode Aphelenchus cocophilus, in which a cross section of the trunk shows a red ring.
Red River maple. The box elder Acer negundo.
Red River Rebellion. An uprising (1869) in the valley of the Red River of the North, Canada, led by Louis Riel in protest against annexation of the region to the new province of Manitoba. It was overcome by Sir Garnet Wolseley.
Red River snakeroot. The Texas snakeroot. red robin. 1. The scarlet tanager.
2. Dial. Eng. a The herb Robert. b Wheat rust. red rock. Geol. Any rock of red color; specif. the red sandstones and shales of the Triassic and Permian periods; the red beds.
red rock cod. An Australian food fish (Scorpaena crumenta). red rockfish. A large rockfish (Sebastopyr ruberrimus) common from Puget Sound to southern California. red rock trout. See ROCK TROUT. red rod. The silky cornel.
red roncador. See RONCADOR. red'root' (rĕd'rōōt'; 200), n. a A perennial herb (Lachnanthes tinctoria) of the eastern United States, with sword-shaped leaves, cymose woolly flowers, and a red root, sometimes used as a dye. b The New Jersey tea. c = BLOODROOT, 1. d The gromwell Lithospermum officinale. e The alkanet Alkanna tinctoria. f The green amaranth Amaranthus retroflexus. g A West Indian and Central American shrub (Morinda roioc) with white flowers. h Pinkroot.
Red Rose, the. The English royal house of Lancaster, from its emblem, a red rose. See Wars of the Roses, under WAR, Table.
red rot. 1. The common sundew (Drosera rotundifolia).
2. Plant Pathol. a Either of two fungous diseases of sugar cane; (1) A destructive disease caused by Colletotrichum falcatum, characterized by red patches within the canes. (2) A rot of the leaf sheaths caused by Sclerotium rolfsii. b A wood decay of various conifers and deciduous trees caused by certain pore fungi. c = ADUSTIOSIS.
red row (rō). A state of being streaked with red; — of barley just before ripening. Dial. Eng.
Red Russian. a = RUTHENIAN, n., 1. b Colloq. = BOLSHEVIK a. red rust. Plant Pathol. a The uredinial stage of a rust, esp. of cereal; also, the diseased condition produced by such fungi. b The infestation of plants by red spiders. c An affection of the leaves or twigs of tropical or subtropical plants, as tea, citrus, etc., producing a rusty appearance. It is caused by a parasitic green alga (Cephaleuros virescens) of the family Trentepohliaceae. d The alga itself.
red sable. See KOLINSKY, 1 b. red sage. A tropical shrub (Lantana camara) with flat clusters of small tubular flowers that open yellow or pink but change to scarlet or orange. See LANTANA.
red salamander. A common salamander (Pseudotriton ruber) of the central and eastern United States though not occurring in New England.
red sallow. The red osier (Salix purpurea). red sally. The purple loosestrife. red salmon. The blueback salmon.
red sandalwood. a The heavy dark-red dyewood of an East Indian tree (Lingoum santalinum); also, the tree itself. b An East Indian tree (Adenanthera pavonina), much cultivated for ornament in the West Indies, where it is known as Barbados pride. c Pharm. The heartwood of the tree Lingoum santalinum, used for coloring tinctures and other liquid preparations.
red sanders or saunders. = RED SANDALWOOD a. red sandpiper. The knot in summer plumage. red sandstone. See OLD RED SANDSTONE, NEW RED SANDSTONE. red sandwort. A Eurasian sand spurry (Spergularia rubra) with pink flowers, common as a weed in North America.
red savin. = RED CEDAR, 1 a. red scale. Either one of two circular scale insects, Chrysomphalus aonidum, the Florida red scale and C. aurantii, the California red scale. Both are widespread in warmer countries, and injurious to citrus fruit trees and many other trees and shrubs.
red'sear' (rĕd'sēr'), adj. Red-short. — v. i. To be red-short. red seaweed. Any red alga (Rhodophyceae); sometimes, specif., one of the genus Polysiphonia.
red seed. Red feed.
red'-shaft'ed (66), adj. Having the shaft of the quills red, as the red-shafted flicker or woodpecker (see 4th FLICKER). red'shank' (rĕd'shăngk'), n. 1. a A common Old World limicoline bird (Totanus totanus), having the legs and feet pale red. The spotted redshank (T. erythropus) is larger, and has orange-red legs. b Local, Eng. The fieldfare.
2. One who has red legs; specif.: a A Celtic inhabitant of the Scottish Highlands or of Ireland; — in derisive allusion to their bare legs. b A cardinal.
3. Duck. Old Slang.
4. Persicary. N. of Eng.
red shift. Astrophysics. A minute displacement toward the red of spectrum lines when originating in an intense gravitational field, predicted by Einstein and adduced as one of the three observational proofs of the theory of relativity. The shift required by theory in the solar spectrum amounts to 2.1 parts in a million.
red'shirt' (rĕd'shûrt'), n. An anarchist or revolutionist; esp., a follower of Giuseppe Garibaldi in the Italian wars (1859–67). — red'-shirt'ed (66), adj.
red'-short' (66), adj. [Sw. rödskört, neut. of rödskör, fr. röd red + skör brittle. Cf. COLD-SHORT. Oxf. E. D.] Metal. Hot-short; brittle when red-hot; — said of certain kinds of iron. — red'-short'ness, n.
Red-shortness is caused chiefly by sulphur or by oxygen; many other elements may produce the same effects. W. Metcalf.
red'-shoul'dered hawk. A common hawk (Buteo lineatus) of eastern North America, slightly smaller than the red-tailed hawk and having reddish rufous lesser wing coverts in the adult. It is one of the species called hen hawk.
red shrike. A minivet, esp. the scarlet minivet. red'-sid'ed dace. A small fresh-water cyprinoid fish (Clinostomus, syn. Leuciscus, elongatus) of eastern North America. The male in the breeding season has a red band along each side.
red silver ore. Pyrargyrite (dark red silver ore) or proustite (light red silver ore).
red'skin' (rĕd'skĭn'), n. A North American Indian. — red'skin', adj. red snapper. A large snapper (Lutianus campechinus, syn. aya), chiefly rose-red, which ranges from Long Island to Brazil and is abundant in the Gulf of Mexico and on certain banks off the Florida coast. It is an important food fish.
red snow. Snow colored by the growth of a flagellate (Chlamydomonas, syn. Sphaerella, nivalis) containing red pigment and living in the upper layer of snow in arctic and alpine regions; also, the organism itself.
red soldier. Hog cholera. Colloq. red sorrel. a W. Ind. The roselle. b The sheep sorrel. red spider. Any of numerous very small web-spinning mites of the genus Tetranychus, esp. T. bimaculatus, or allied genus usually pale red when adult, which infest, and often destroy, various plants, including the cotton plant. They feed mostly on the under side of the leaves, and cause them to turn yellow and die.

Red Spider. (× 20)

red spinner. Angling. An artificial fly with dark-gray wings, red silk body, brown hackle, gold ribbing and tag, and brown hair tail.
red spirit. Dyeing. A tin spirit used in dyeing red. red'-spot'ted pur'ple. A common American butterfly (Basilarchia astyanax) having blue-black wings banded with white — so called from the red spots on the under wing surfaces.
red-spotted trout. Any of several trouts, or chars, having red spots; esp., the Dolly Varden trout and the brook trout. See TROUT, 1. red spruce. A coniferous tree (Picea rubra) of eastern North America, important as a source of pulp wood.
Red Square. A large open space in Moscow, Russia, formerly a forum and market place and always a center of political life. Bordering it are the Kremlin, Lenin's Mausoleum, and the Soviet Museum.
red squill. = SQUILL, 2 b. red squirrel. A common and widely distributed North American squirrel (Sciurus hudsonicus); — called also chickaree. It is much smaller than the gray squirrel, with the upper parts chiefly red. The typical form is found in British America and parts of Alaska; in the United States it is represented by many varieties, esp., in the east, S. h. loquax, in which the under parts are pure white.
red'-stalk' as'ter. The cocash.
Red Star. An international organization for the succor of animals. It originated in Switzerland and has engaged in campaigning against the neglect and abuse of livestock, and against bullfighting, cruel methods of trapping, etc.
red'start' (rĕd'stärt'), n. [red + start tail.] 1. A small European singing bird (Phoenicurus phoenicurus) allied to the redbreast, bluethroat, and nightingale. It has a white forehead, black face and throat, and bright-chestnut breast and tail. Also, any of other species of the genus as the black redstart (P. ochrurus, syn. titys) of Europe, and many Asiatic species.

European Redstart (Phoenicurus phoenicurus).

2. A fly-catching warbler (Setophaga ruticilla) of eastern North America. The male is chiefly black, with a white belly, and bright orange on the sides, wings, and tail. The female is olivaceous with pale yellow instead of orange. See BIRD, Plate.
red steenbras. See STEENBRAS. red stopper. A small tree (Eugenia rhombea) of southern Florida and the West Indies, with white flowers and orange or blackish fruit.
red'streak' (rĕd'strĕk'), n. A kind of apple with skin streaked with red and yellow — an English cider apple.
red'-streaked' spi'der. The katipo.
red stripe. Plant Pathol. A decay of timber caused by the pore fungus Polyporus vaporarius, characterized by red or brown stripes or streaks.
red stuff. Rouge or crocus.
red stumpnose. See STUMPNOSE. red sucker. The northern sucker.
red sumac. The Venetian sumac.
red sunflower. The purple coneflower. See ECHINACEA, 1. red'tab' (rĕd'tăb'), n. An officer wearing a red tab on his uniform, as in the British army, the staff officers. Slang.
red tag. Angling. An artificial fly with brown hackle, peacock-herl body, gold tag, and red wool tail.
red tai. See TAI.
red'tail' (rĕd'tāl'), n. a Red-tailed hawk. b European redstart. See REDSTART. red'-tailed' hawk. A common hawk (Buteo borealis) of eastern North America, one of the hen hawks. It is about 20 inches long, dusky above, and below white tinged with buff and streaked with dusky, and has the tail rufous in the adult. It is represented in the South and West by closely allied subspecies, as the black warrior, or Harlan's hawk (B. b. harlani) of the Gulf coast, Krider's hawk (B. b. krideri) of the Great Plains, the darker western redtail (B. b. calurus) of western North America, and the Alaskan redtail (B. b. alascensis) of the southeast coast of Alaska.
red-tailed tropic bird. See TROPIC BIRD. red tail snapper. Lane snapper.
red tape. The tape used in public offices for tying up documents, etc.; hence, extremely formal official action; scrupulous adherence to prescribed routine, esp. when the result is delay or inaction. — red'-tape', red'-taped' (-tāpt'; 66), adj. — red'-tape'dom (-tāp'dŭm), red'-tap'er (-tāp'ēr), red'-tap'er·y (-ĭ), n. — red'-tape'y (-tāp'ĭ), red'-tap'ish (-ĭsh), adj. — red'-tap'ism (-ĭz'm), red'-tap'ist (-ĭst), n.
red tassel flower. The purple prairie clover.
Red Terror. See TERROR, 4 a. red thorn. The red haw. red'throat' (rĕd'thrōt'), n. A small Australian singing bird (Pyrrholaemus, syn. Sericornis, brunneus). The upper parts are brown, the center of the throat rufous. redthroat trout. The cutthroat trout. red thrush. The European redwing. Local, Eng.
red tiercel. Falconry. An immature male peregrine falcon. red ti'ti (tē'tē). The leatherwood Cyrilla racemiflora.
red'top' (rĕd'tŏp'), n. a An important pasture and forage grass (Agrostis stolonifera major) of eastern North America, with reddish panicles. b = BLUEJOINT a.

Redtop a.

Red Triangle. The Y. M. C. A.; — so called during the World War from the red triangle used as its symbol. red trillium. Any of several wakerobins of the genus Trillium, with red or dark-purple flowers, esp. T. sessile, T. erectum, etc.
red truffle. See MELANOGASTER. red turpentine beetle. See TURPENTINE BEETLE. re·dub'ber (rē·dŭb'ēr), n. [From REDUB; — because the buyer made changes.] A buyer of cloth known to be stolen, in order to alter and sell it. Hist.
‖re·duc'ción' (rā·dōōk'syōn'), n.; pl. -CIONES (-syō'nās). [Sp.] A village or settlement of converted natives. Phil. I.
re·duce' (rē·dūs'), v.; -DUCED' (-dūst'); -DUC'ING (-dūs'ĭng). [L. reducere, reductum, fr. red-, re- + ducere to lead. See DUKE; cf. REDOUBT, n.] Transitive: 1. Obs. To bring back: a To recall (something) to mind or to recall (the thoughts, etc.) to a subject. b To bring or lead back (a person or thing) to a former place or state; esp., to lead back from error in conduct or religion.
2. To draw together; now, to diminish, esp. in bulk, amount or extent; as, to reduce expenses.
Thus incorporeal spirits to smallest forms Reduc'd their shapes immense. Milton.
3. To restore (a person, thing, condition, etc.). Now Rare.
While dreams, reducing childhood, shall be left. Lamb.
4. To bring to any inferior state in rank, degree, value, etc.; bring (to a disagreeable condition); to diminish; lower; degrade; as, to reduce a sergeant to the ranks.
Nothing so excellent but a man may fasten upon something belonging to it, to reduce it. Tillotson.
5. To bring to terms; to humble; conquer; subdue; capture; as, to reduce a province or a fort; to bring (to obedience, order, etc.), by compulsion.
6. To bring into a certain order, arrangement, classification, etc.; to bring under rules or within certain limits of description, or to conditions and terms adapted to computation; as, to reduce animals to classes; to reduce astronomical observations; to reduce language to rules.
7. To carry over in application; as, theories reduced to practice.
8. To bring to a certain state or condition by grinding, pounding, kneading, rubbing, etc.; as, to reduce a substance to powder; to reduce fruit or wood to pulp.
9. To diminish the strength of; to dilute, as a paint with a thinner, or a pigment with an inert extender or another pigment.
10. To treat (garbage) so as to recover grease and other products.
11. Obs. a To adapt (something) to a certain purpose; as, to reduce land to public use; also, to conform to a standard. b To translate; also, to record in writing. c To bring (a person or thing) to a certain condition or act. d = REFER, 2. e To induce.
12. Anthropol. To gather into villages to bring about a more orderly, civilized way of life under supervision; — said esp. of wild Indians in South America. Cf. GUARANI, n., a; INCA n., b; REDUCTION, 3.
13. Arith. a To change the denominations of (a quantity) without changing the value; as, to reduce pounds, shillings, and pence to pence, or days and hours to minutes, or conversely (the operation being reduction descending or ascending according as it is from numbers of a higher into others of a lower denomination, or the converse). b To change the form of (an expression) without changing the value; as, to reduce fractions to their lowest terms, to a common denominator, etc.
14. Biol. To subject to reduction (sense 4).
15. Chem. a Also Metal. To bring to the metallic state by removal of nonmetallic elements; as, metals are reduced from their ores. b To deoxidize; as, to reduce anthraquinone to anthracene. c To combine with, or subject to the action of, hydrogen; as, to reduce an aldehyde to an alcohol. d By extension, to change (a compound) by decreasing the proportion of the electronegative part, or to change (an element) from a higher to a lower positive valence; to supply (an atom or ion) with electrons; as, to reduce ferric to ferrous chloride; to reduce ferric to ferrous iron. Cf. OXIDIZE.
16. Geom. To construct a figure similar to and smaller than (a given figure).
17. Law. a To bring (into or to possession), as choses in action. b Chiefly Scots Law. To vacate, rescind, or annul.
18. Logic. To change (a syllogism) from an imperfect to a perfect mode. See 1st MODE, 5 a.
19. Math. To solve (an equation). Rare.
20. Mil. To disband (a regiment, etc.). Now Rare.
21. Philol. To shorten (a word), as by apocope.
22. Photog. To render less dense, as a negative. See also sense 15, above.
23. Surg. To restore to its proper place or condition, as a displaced organ or part; also, to correct (an abnormality of position) by so restoring the misplaced part.
——, Intransitive: To become reduced in any way; specif.: a To lessen one's weight. b Biol. To undergo meiosis Syn. — Lessen, minimize, curtail; subject, subjugate. See ABASE, CONQUER.
Ant. — Increase, enhance; raise, elevate, promote.
re·duce' (rē·dūs'), n. Reduction. Rare. re·duced' (rē·dūst'), past & past part. of REDUCE. Specif.: adj. Biol. Dwarfed; vestigial; imperfect in form or function or lacking certain parts. reduced grade. Philol. The weak grade of an ablaut series. See GRADE, n., 11 a. reduced hematin. Biochem. See HEMATIN, 2. reduced inertia. Mech. The mass of a body which, if placed at the driving point of a machine, would take up the same work in a given acceleration as is actually absorbed by the moving masses in the machine.
reduced iron. Specif., Pharm. Finely divided iron prepared by heating ferric oxide or hydroxide at a dull-red heat in hydrogen. It is used as a tonic.
reduced mechanism. Kinematics. A mechanism obtained from a more complex one by omitting one or more links without destroying the constraint of the mechanism.

re·drill', v. t. See RE-, 2. re·drive', v. t. See RE-, 1. red'-roan' (66), adj. See ROAN. re·dry', v. t. See RE-, 2. red-shire, red-share, adj. [Cf. RED-SHORT.] Red-short. Obs.
red'-throat'ed loon or div'er. See 2d LOON a. red'-tint'ed, adj. See -TINTED. red'-topped' buf'fa·lo grass. See GRASS, Table. re·dub', v. t. [AF. redubber, fr. re- re- + dubber to dub. See 1st DUB.] To repair; remedy; restore; redress; amend. Obs.
re·duce'a·ble, adj. [reduce + -able.] Reducible. — re·duce'a·ble·ness, n.

reduced oil. Petroleum freed from volatile and suspended matter, used in lubricants, etc. reduced reaction time. See REACTION TIME. reduced small. A size of cards. See PAPER, Table. reduced syllable. Phonet. An unaccented syllable; — contrasted with a normal (or accented) syllable.
re·duce′ment (rē·dūs′mĕnt), n. 1. Reduction. Now Rare.
2. Restoration; deduction; subjugation; diminution. Obs.
re·du′cent (rē·dū′sĕnt), adj. [L. reducens, pres. part. of reducere.] Tending to reduce. — n. A reducent agent.
re·duc′er (rē·dūs′ĕr), n. 1. One who or that which reduces.
2. Chem. a A reducing agent. b A vessel in which a reduction is carried out.
3. Mach. a A contrivance for reducing the dimensions of one part so as to fit it to another, as a reducing coupling, or a device for holding a drill in a chuck. b A reducing motion. c A reducing valve. d A hydraulic device for reducing pressure and hence increasing movement, used to transmit the load from the hydraulic support of the lower shackle to the lever weighing apparatus in some kinds of heavy testing machines. e A shell reducer.
4. Photog. a A reducing agent such as is used in development. b An agent for reducing the density of the silver image; chemically, an oxidizer. Such reducers may be classed as subtractive, proportional, or superproportional, according to their action.
reducer sleeve. Mach. = TAPER REDUCER SLEEVE. re·duc′i·ble (rē·dūs′ĭ·b'l), adj. Capable of being reduced. — re·duc′i·bil′i·ty (-ĭ·bĭl′ĭ·tĭ), re·duc′i·ble·ness, n. — re·duc′i·bly, adv.
reducible algebra. See ALGEBRA, n., 2. reducible algebraic surface or plane curve. Math. An algebraic surface or plane curve for which the polynomial which, equated to zero, furnishes the equation of the surface or curve, is reducible.
reducible point set. Math. A point set which has a first or second, . . . or *n*th derived set consisting of a finite number of points.
reducible polynomial. Math. A polynomial expressible as the product of two or more polynomials of lower degree.
re·duc′ing (rē·dūs′ĭng), n. Act or process of one that reduces; reduction; also, its result.
re·duc′ing, adj. That reduces; as, a reducing valve; reducing substances; esp., Chem., that causes reduction (see REDUCE, v. t., 15); specif., Org. Chem., capable of reducing Fehling solution and similar reagents; as, a reducing sugar. reducing coupling. Mach. A coupling for joining a pipe to another of smaller diameter. reducing flame. See FLAME, n., 1. reducing furnace. Metal. A furnace for reducing ores. reducing glass. Optics. A double-concave lens giving a virtual image of reduced size of an object.
reducing motion. Mach. Any of many devices, as the pantograph, for copying motion so as to reduce the travel and hence the speed in a given ratio.
reducing press. Mach. A redrawing press. See PUNCH PRESS. reducing turbine. A steam turbine used as a reducing valve, useful work being performed in the process of pressure reduction.
reducing valve. Mach. An automatic valve for reducing pressure. reducing wheels. Mach. A combination of wheels used as a reducing motion.
re·duct′ (rē·dŭkt′), adj. [L. reductus, past part.] Obs. a Reduced, as to a form, state, or order. b Brought back. re·duct′, v. t. 1. To reduce; bring back. Obs.
2. To deduct. Now Dial.
re·duc′tant (rē·dŭk′tĕnt), n. [reduction + -ant.] Chem. A reducing agent.
re·duc′tase (-dŭk′tās; -tāz), n. [reduction + diastase.] Any enzyme that accelerates the process of reduction. Cf. DEHYDROGENASE. re·duc′ti·bil′i·ty (rē·dŭk′tĭ·bĭl′ĭ·tĭ), n. Reducibleness. R.
‖re·duc′ti·o (rē·dŭk′shĭ·ō), n. [L.] Logic. Reduction.
‖re·duc′ti·o ad ab·sur′dum (ăd ăb·sûr′dŭm). [L.] a Literally, reduction to absurdity (cf. ABSURD, adj., 3); proof of a proposition by showing the falsity of its contradictory opposite; also, disproof of a proposition by arguing from it to an impossible or false conclusion; — formally the same as apagogic, or indirect, reduction. See also 1st MODE, 5 a, second figure. b A train of such reasoning, esp. in refutation. c The self-evidently false conclusion which reveals the falsity of its assumption. d By extension, a result, effect, or outcome which demonstrates an error of judgment.
‖re·duc′ti·o ad im′pos·si′bi·le (ĭm′pŏ·sĭb′ĭ·lē) or re·duc′ti·o per im′pos·si′bi·le. [L., contraction of reductio per deductionem ad impossibile.] Reduction to impossibility; reductio ad absurdum.
re·duc′tion (rē·dŭk′shŭn), n. [F. or L.; F. réduction, fr. L. reductio. See REDUCE.] 1. A reducing, or state of being reduced. See REDUCE, as for Med., Arith., Chem. & Metal., etc., senses.
2. A thing made by reducing, as a copy on a smaller scale, a reduced price, etc.
3. A settlement or village of South American Indians, formed and supervised by the Incas, or, later, by Spanish missionaries, to bring wild tribes to a civilized way of life. The most successful of the reductions were the Paraguay Missions of the Jesuits. See GUARANI, n., a; INCA, n., b.
4. Biol. Meiosis; specif. the reduction by half of the chromosome number in the first meiotic division (see MEIOSIS, 2).
5. Flour Milling. a A grinding of stock from which the coarse bran has been removed. b The machine which performs this grinding.
6. Meteorol. The substitution for an observed value of one computed therefrom so as to bring all to a common basis, as pressures to sea level values.
7. Psychol. a Analysis of a motive into its instinctive elements, as in psychoanalysis. b The diminishing of emotion by any activity or adjustment.
re·duc′tion·al (rē·dŭk′shŭn·ăl; -'l), adj. Characterized by reduction. reduction division. Biol. In gametogenesis, the first meiotic division. See MEIOSIS, 2; REDUCTION, 4. re·duc′tion–im′pro·ba′tion, n. Scots Law. A rescissory action for setting aside a writing or a part of it, in which the summons provides that if the document be not produced it shall be adjudged false or forged.
re·duc′tion·ist (rē·dŭk′shŭn·ĭst), n. An advocate of reduction. reduction potential. See OXIDATION-REDUCTION POTENTIAL; REDUCE, v. t., 15. reduction to absurdity or the absurd. Reductio ad absurdum. reduction works. A plant in which the garbage and refuse of a city is burned. re·duc′tive (rē·dŭk′tĭv), adj. [Cf. F. réductif.] 1. Bringing back; restorative. Now Rare.
2. Tending to reduce; having the effect of reducing; as, reductive policies, scission, or degradation.
3. Of or pertaining to reduction.
4. Referable to, or derivable from, something. Obs.
5. Psychol. a Reducing anything to its elements or tracing it to its origins; as, the reductive interpretation of dreams. b Reducing or diminishing emotional tension; as, reductive behavior.
— re·duc′tive·ly, adv.
re·duc′tive, n. 1. A reductive agent.
2. Psychol. A sensory impression which by conflicting with a memory image prevents the latter from being regarded as an objectively present object.
re·duc′tor (rē·dŭk′tĕr), n. [reduction + -or.] Anal. Chem. An apparatus for carrying out reduction, as of a ferric to a ferrous salt. A common form is the Jones reductor, which consists essentially of a long upright tube filled with granular zinc, through which the solution to be reduced is poured.
re′duc·to′ri·al (rē′dŭk·tō′rĭ·ăl; 181), adj. Reductive. re·due′ (rē·dū′; 242), adj. See RE-, 2.
‖ré′duit′ (rā′dwē′), n. [F. See REDOUBT, n.] Fort. A central or retired work within another work.
Re·dun′ca (rē·dŭng′kȧ), n. [NL., fr. L. reduncus curved; in reference to the horns.] Zool. The genus consisting of the reedbucks.
re·dun′dance (rē·dŭn′dăns), n. [L. redundantia.] 1. Redundancy.
2. That which is redundant or in excess; anything superfluous or superabundant.
3. Law. Surplusage in a pleading.
4. Rhet. Superfluity of words in phrasing, esp. by overlapping of meaning within a phrase.
re·dun′dan·cy (rē·dŭn′dăn·sĭ), n. [See REDUNDANCE.]
1. Quality, instance, or state of being redundant; superfluity; superabundance; excess.
2. That which, or a thing that, is redundant; a superfluity; a surplus. "Redundancies of luxury." T. L. Peacock.
Syn. — REDUNDANCY, TAUTOLOGY, PLEONASM, VERBOSITY, VERBIAGE, PROLIXITY, DIFFUSENESS, CIRCUMLOCUTION, PERIPHRASIS. REDUNDANCY, as here compared, is the generic term for the use of more words than are needed to express one's meaning; as, "a feeble, diffuse, showy, Asiatic redundancy" (Hazlitt). TAUTOLOGY is needless or useless repetition of the same idea in different words; PLEONASM (which may sometimes be a means of proper emphasis) denotes the use of words whose omission would leave one's meaning intact; as, "'Boldly dare' is tautology" (Gray); "It is a pleonasm, a figure usual in Scripture, by a multiplicity of expressions to signify one notable thing" (South). VERBOSITY is excessive wordiness; it differs from pleonasm in that it is too pervasive to be remedied by excision; VERBIAGE applies to that which is verbosely expressed, or which consists of nothing but words; as, "One of the worst plagues of society is this thoughtless, inexhaustible verbosity" (Mrs. Humphry Ward); "At once, then, and without verbiage, let us take up this subject" (Thackeray). PROLIXITY implies excessive and wearisome attention to trivial particulars; DIFFUSENESS is the opposite of conciseness; as, "He calls the whole drama tediously instructive, [and] there is indeed here and there prolixity" (Landor); "these enormously prolix harangues" (Coleridge); "It is too strong and concise—not diffuse enough for a woman" (Jane Austen); "The one can be profuse on occasion; the other is diffuse whether he will or no" (Lowell). CIRCUMLOCUTION and PERIPHRASIS (the more bookish term) denote a roundabout or indirect way of saying a thing; as, "Somehow I can't relish that word Hockey. Can't you supply it by a circumlocution?" (Lamb); "He was one of those anomalous practitioners in lower departments of the law who . . . on prudential reasons . . . deny themselves all indulgence in the luxury of too delicate a conscience (a periphrasis which might be abridged considerably)" (De Quincey). See EXCESS; cf. PROFUSE, TALKATIVE.
Ant. — Conciseness, brevity, terseness, succinctness. re·dun′dant (rē·dŭn′dănt), adj. [L. redundans, -antis, pres. part. of redundare. See REDOUND.] 1. Exceeding what is natural, usual, or necessary; superfluous; superabundant; as, a redundant secretion of bile; to support the redundant population; a redundant verse in a stanza.
2. Containing something excessive or superfluous; as, a redundant chord, line, style.
3. a Characterized by profusion or superabundance. "Of mercy redundant." Young. b Copious; exuberant; as, "Redundant locks." Milton.
4. Swelling or overflowing, as water or a wave. Obs.
Syn. — Superfluous, excessive, lavish; verbose.
Ant. — See CONCISE.
— re·dun′dant·ly, adv.
re·dun′dant, n. A thing that is redundant. redundant member. Engin. Design. In a framed structure, a member not actually necessary for stable equilibrium.
re·du′pli·cate (rē·dū′plĭ·kăt; 242), adj. [LL. reduplicatus, past part. See RE-; DUPLICATE.] 1. Double; doubled; reduplicative.
2. Bot. Valvate with the margins curved outwardly.
3. Philol. Reduplicated.
re·du′pli·cate, n. A duplicate.
re·du′pli·cate (-kăt), v. t. & i.; -CAT′ED (-kāt′ĕd; -ĭd; 119) -CAT′ING (-kāt′ĭng). [LL. reduplicare.] 1. To redouble; repeat.
2. Philol. To repeat all or part of (a radical element); to form by reduplication.
re·du·pli·ca′tion (-dū′plĭ·kā′shŭn), n. [LL. reduplicatio repetition.] 1. Act of redoubling, or state of being redoubled. Also, a part folded back on itself.
2. Repetition or an instance of it.
A crowd is but the reduplication of ourselves. Leigh Hunt.
3. Repetition that qualifies; the added qualification. Obs.
4. Med. a Repetition, as of a sequence of symptoms. b Multiplication, esp. of the layer of cells lining tubules.
5. Philol. a Repetition, commonly at the beginning of a word, of a radical element or a part of it, often accompanied by change of the radical vowel. Originally expressing mostly repeated or intensive action, the phenomenon is found in many languages, but especially in the Indo-European it has often become grammatically functional, chiefly in the formation of the perfect and present tenses, as Sanskrit dadāmi, I give (dā give), Greek didōmi; Skr. dadarśe, I have seen (dṛś see), Gr. dedorka; Latin poposci, I have demanded; Gothic lailot, I have let. Other types are illustrated by Hottentot go-go, to examine (go see), Somali urar, bodies (ur, body), French bonbon, L. murmur, English knickknack, wishy-washy, pooh-pooh, Hear, Hear! b (1) A word or form produced by reduplication. (2) The repeated element in such a word or form (po- in L. poposci).
6. Rhet. Anadiplosis. re·du′pli·ca′tive (rē·dū′plĭ·kā′tĭv; 242), adj. 1. Of, pertaining to, or conveying reduplication of terms. Now Rare.
2. Formed by reduplication; reduplicate.
3. Tending to reduplicate.
4. Susceptible of repetition. H. More.
— re·du′pli·ca′tive·ly, adv.
re·du′pli·ca′tive, n. One that reduplicates. Rare.
re·du′pli·ca·to′ry (rē·dū′plĭ·kȧ·tō′rĭ or, esp. Brit., -tĕr·ĭ), adj. Reduplicating. Rare.
re·du′pli·ca′ture (-kā′tûr), n. [From REDUPLICATE, v. t.] A part folded back on itself.
Red′u·vi′i·dae (rĕd′ū·vī′ĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL., fr. L. reduvia a hangnail + -idae.] Zool. A very large and widely distributed family of predaceous hemipterous insects consisting of the assassin bugs. They have a short three-jointed proboscis, which in repose is curved back under the head, and three-jointed tarsi. They live by sucking the blood of other insects, and destroy many noxious species. Some attack man. The type genus is Re·du′vi·us (rē·dū′vĭ·ŭs). — re·du′vi·id (-ĭd), n. & adj. — re·du′vi·oid (-oid), adj. & n.
re′dux (rē′dŭks), adj. [L., fr. reducere to bring back.] Lit., led back; specif., Med., indicating return to health after disease.
red valerian. A European herb (Centranthus ruber) with small, crimson or white, spurred flowers. It is eaten as a salad in Italy.
red viper. The copperhead (sense 1 a). red vision. Med. Erythropia. red vitriol. a Bieberite. b Botryogen. c Colcothar (sense 1).
Red′wall′ (rĕd′wôl′), adj. Of or pertaining to a formation in the Lower Carboniferous Grand Canyon region. It forms the most imposing and continuous cliff of the canyon walls. See GEOLOGY, Chart. — Red′wall′, n.
red′ward (rĕd′wĕrd), adv. & adj. Toward red; toward the red end of the spectrum.
red′ware′ (rĕd′wâr′), n. [red + ware seaweed.] A large brown edible seaweed (Laminaria digitata) common off the New England coast.
red′–wat′ (rĕd′wŏt′), adj. [Scot. wat wet. See RED; WET.] Wet with blood; bloodstained; bloody. Scot.
red water. 1. Water colored red, as by iron compounds.
2. A body of sea water colored red by myriads of peridinians of the genus Peridinium, which, sweeping along with the current, are fatal to many forms of marine life.
3. Med. Hematuria; specif.: a Veter. Any of certain diseases of cattle so called from the bloody color of the urine; specif.: (1) Any babesiasis, as Texas fever, in which hemoglobin liberated by destruction of red blood cells appears in the urine. (2) A chronic disease affecting cattle esp. at the end of winter, in which blood escapes into the urine from lesions in the bladder, attributed to oxalic acid in the forage. b East Coast fever.
red water tree. The sassy.
red′–wat′–shod′, adj. [red-wat + shod.] Having bloodstained shoes; wading deep in blood. Burns.
red′weed′ (rĕd′wēd′), n. a Dial. Eng. The corn poppy. b W. Ind. The pokeweed Phytolacca americana.
red whelk. A European whelk (Chrysodomus antiquus) with a slightly ridged yellowish or reddish shell.
Red, White, and Blue, the. a Formerly, in England, any of the three British ensigns or the Union Jack. b The flag of the United States.
red whortleberry. The mountain cranberry.
red willow. a Any of several willows having reddish or purplish twigs, esp. Salix longifolia, the sand-bar willow, and S. purpurea, the red osier. b The silky cornel. red wine. See WINE, n.
red′wing′ (rĕd′wĭng′), n. a A European thrush (Turdus musicus, syn. iliacus), having the under wing coverts red. b A red-winged blackbird. c A South African francolin (Francolinus levaillanti). d The gadwall. Local, U. S.

European Redwing.

red′–winged′ black′bird′. A bird (Agelaius phoeniceus) of the family Icteridae, widely distributed in North America. The adult male is black with a patch of bright scarlet bordered behind with white or buff on the wing coverts. The female and the young of both sexes are brown streaked with dusky. It breeds in swampy places and collects in fall in large flocks for migration. In the Pacific States, Mexico, and the West, allied species are found. See BIRD, Plate.
red–winged starling. A red-winged blackbird; — a book name.
red–winged thrush. The European redwing. red′withe′ (rĕd′wĭth′; -wĭth′), n. A tropical American woody vine (Combretum jacquini) with reddish branchlets.
red wolf. The maned wolf.
red′wood′ (rĕd′wŏŏd′), n. 1. Any wood yielding a red dye. The more important redwoods in commerce are brazilwood, sapanwood, Lima wood, camwood, barwood, caliatour wood, and red sanders or red sandalwood. All these red woods are hard and resinous, and are used also in cabinetwork. See BRAZILIN, SANTALIN.
2. Any tree yielding a red dyewood; also, by extension, any one of numerous unrelated trees having wood of a red or reddish color. The redwoods of East India are the red sandalwood Lingoum santalinum, the Andaman redwood, or Amboina wood (L. indicum), and the rohan (Soymida febrifuga). The South American redwoods are mostly species of Caesalpinia and Erythroxylum, the first-named genus yielding the dyewoods of that name. Redwood is also applied to the mahogany; to the Scotch pine; the cornelian cherry (Cornus mas); an Asiatic buckthorn (Rhamnus erythroxylon); a tree (Melhania erythroxylon), family Sterculiaceae, of St. Helena; an African tree (Ochna arborea); the false logwood (Haemocharis haematoxylon) and the snakebark (Colubrina ferruginosa) of the West Indies.
3. a An important coniferous timber tree (Sequoia sempervirens) of California, found only on the Coast Range, often attaining a height of 300 feet. It bears hemlocklike foliage and numerous small oblong cones. See SEQUOIA. b The handsome brownish-red light wood of this tree. It takes a fine polish, and is much used on the Pacific coast.
4. a The color Morocco red. b The color raspberry red. red′wood′, adj. Of or pert. to or made of redwood.
red′wood′ (rĕd′wŏŏd′; -wŏd′; -wŏŏd′), adj. [red + wood mad.] Stark mad; furious. Chiefly Scot.
redwood willow. = CRACK WILLOW a. red wrack. The redware.
red wrasse. See WRASSE. red yam. The white yam.
re·dye′, v. t. See RE-, 2. red′–yel′low, n. The hue of the color cycle which is equally like, and equally unlike the primary hues red and yellow; the hue seen when the portion of the physical spectrum centering at 587.5 m. is employed as a stimulus. See COLOR. Cf. 1st ORANGE, 4. — red'-yel'low (66), adj.

red zinc ore. Zincite.

ree (rē), n. A river; a channel. Obs.

ree, v. t. To riddle, as grain, etc.; to sift. Dial.

ree, interj. Right; — a command to horses. Obs. exc. Dial.

ree, adj. Wild; crazy; drunk; fuddled. Chiefly Scot.

ree (rē), n. An enclosure, as a sheepfold, a coalyard, or a harbor or dam. Scot.

Ree, n. Arikara.

ree. Var. of REEVE, n., & REI.

re-ech'o (rē-ĕk'ō), v. i.; RE-ECH'OED (-ōd); RE-ECH'O-ING. To repeat or return an echo or echoes; to reverberate; resound; to be resonant; as, thunder re-echoed through the valley; the house re-echoed with laughter. — v. t. To echo back; to reverberate.

re-ech'o, n.; pl. RE-ECHOES (-ōz). The echo of an echo; a second echo.

reech'y (dial. rēch'ĭ), adj. [See REEKY.] Rancid. Cf. REEKY. Obs. exc. Dial.

reed (rēd), n. [ME., rede, reod, fr. AS. hrēod; akin to D. riet, G. ried, OHG. hriot, riot.] 1. Any of various tall bamboolike grasses or their stems, joints, stems; specif., the ditch reed (Phragmites communis) found in marshes throughout temperate and warm regions; also, any other species of Phragmites or of Arundo, esp. A. donax. Cf. CANE, n., 6.

2. a A growth or mass of reeds; reeds for thatching or for plastering on. b Reeds collectively as a material. c Eng. Straw prepared for thatching.

3. An arrow, as of a reed.

4. A musical instrument made of the hollow joint of some plant, esp. of reed or cane, with a mouthpiece and finger holes; a rustic or pastoral pipe. "Arcadian pipe, the pastoral reed of Hermes." Milton.

5. Arch., etc. A small convex molding. = REEDING, 1 a.

6. Bib. An ancient Jewish measure of six cubits. See MEASURE, Table.

7. Mining. A tube containing a train of powder, once used for igniting the charge in certain kinds of blasting. Cornwall.

8. Music. a A thin, elastic tongue of cane, wood, or metal, fastened at one end to the mouthpiece of certain instruments, as the clarinet or the organ reed pipe, or to a reed block or other fixture over an air opening, as in the reed organ or accordion, and set in vibration by the breath or other air current. When stiff the reed may determine the tone by its own vibration, as usually in organs, the air column serving chiefly as resonator; or when flexible it may conform more or less to the vibration of the air column, as in the clarinet. A reed is beating or striking when it overlaps the opening; free, when it plays freely within the opening the former, as used in organ pipes, giving orchestral effects, the latter giving smoother and mellower tones. Reed organ pipes have generally striking reeds of brass. Though the usual reed is single, certain instruments like the oboe and bassoon have a double reed composed of two strips tied together. (See Illust., fig. 2 a & b.) In brass-wind instruments the player's lips act as reeds within the mouthpiece. The human vocal cords are really free reeds. b The immediate mechanism surrounding and comprising the reed proper, as the beak of a clarinet, or the tubular box with its attachments of a reed pipe (which see). c Any reed instrument; as, the reeds of an orchestra. d A reed stop.

1 Clarinet Reed. 2 a and b Oboe Reed, b in cross section, showing air passage. r, r, r, r Reeds, 8 a.

9. Tapestry Making. A comb of boxwood or other hard material, for pressing down the weft.

10. Weaving. a A contrivance in a loom, consisting of a series of flat parallel slips called dents. See 3d DENT b; LOOM, Illust. b A weave of cloth of fineness determined by the number of threads to an inch of the reed.

☞ COMBINATIONS are:

reed-blade	reed-crowned	reedplot reed-bordered	reed-green	reed-roofed reedbush	reed-grown	reed-rustling reed-clad	reedmaker	reed-shaped reed-compacted	reedmaking	reed-thatched reed (rēd), v. t. 1. To cover with reed, or thatch; also, to prepare for use in thatching, as straw.

2. To decorate with reeds, or reeding.

3. To draw (yarns) through the reed of a loom.

reed (rēd). Var. of RED, adj.; REDE, counsel; ROOD. Dial.

reed. Var. of READ, fourth stomach.

reed babbler. = REEDBIRD b.

reed'-back', adj. Having, as a chair, a back of vertical and flat, or curved and narrow, balusters, often with a connecting member at the center.

reed bent. a Any grass of the genus Calamagrostis. b A perennial grass (Arctagrostis arundinacea) of northern North America and Asia.

reed'bird' (rēd'bûrd'), n. a Local, U. S. The bobolink, esp. in fall and winter, when it flocks in reedy marshes. b One of several small Asiatic timaliine birds of the genera Schoenicola and Laticilla. c The sedge warbler.

reed'buck' (-bŭk'), n.; pl. -BUCK, sometimes -BUCKS (-bŭks'). See PLURAL, Note. [Trans. of D. rietbok. See REITBOK.] Any of certain African antelopes, allied to the waterbuck and kobs but smaller, which constitute the genus Redunca, syn. Cervicapra. They are of a brownish-fawn color; the females are hornless. The nagor, bohor, and reitbok are examples.

Reed Bent (Calamagrostis canadensis).

reed bunting. a A European bunting (Emberiza schoeniclus) frequenting marshy places. Its face and head are chiefly black, the wings and back chestnut, and the under parts white. b The reedling.

reed canary grass. A common perennial grass (Phalaris arundinacea) of temperate regions, with flat leaves and narrow dense panicles. It is grown for hay and pasture in Germany and the northern Pacific coast region of the United States. Cf. RIBBON GRASS.

reed'ed, adj. 1. Covered with reeds, reedy; also, thatched.

2. Ornamented with reeds, or reeding (see REEDING, 1); as, the reeded edge of a coin; a table with reeded legs.

reed'en (rēd''n), adj. a Now Rare. Of or like a reed or reeds. b Obs. Reedy.

reed'er (rēd'ĕr), n. One who or that which reeds; as: a One who thatches with reeds. b A reed-covered frame to protect drying china clay. c A reed plane. d A textile worker who draws warp yarn through the dent of a loom.

reed fescue. The meadow fescue.

reed grass. a Any reed or reedlike grass; specif.: (1) Any tall perennial grass of the genus Calamagrostis, some species of which are useful for hay. (2) Any grass of the genus Arundo, esp. A. donax. (3) = WOOD GRASS a. (4) The ditch reed. (5) An Australian grass (Deyeuxia quadriseta). b The bur reed.

reed green. A color, greenish-yellow in hue, of low saturation and high brilliance. Cf. COLOR.

reed'le-mad-ea'sy (rēd'l-mă-dē'zĭ), n. [Corrupt. of reading made easy.] A primer of reading. Scot., N. of Eng., & Ir.

re-ed'i-fi-cate (rē-ĕd'ĭ-fĭ-kāt), v. t. [LL. reaedificatus, past part. See RE-EDIFY.] Rebuild. Rare. — re-ed'i-fi-ca'tion (-kā'shŭn), n. Now Rare.

re-ed'i-fy (-fī), v. t. [F. réédifier, fr. LL. reaedificare.] To rebuild. — re-ed'i-fi'er (-fī'ĕr), n.

reed'ing, n. [From REED plant.] 1. Arch. & Furniture. a A small convex molding; a reed; — the reverse of fluting. (See MOLDING, Illust.) b Decoration by reeds, esp. by series of parallel reeds, as on chair or table legs, esp. between 1790 and 1830.

2. The knurling on the edge of a coin; specif., Numis., the ridges and indentations on the cylindrical surface (edge) of a coin as distinguished from the milling on its plane surface (rim).

reed instrument. Music. A wind instrument whose tone is generated by the vibration of a reed.

reed'ish (rēd'ĭsh), adj. Reedy. Rare.

reed'less (-lĕs; -lĭs; 119), adj. Having no reed; specif., Organ Building, without a reed, but producing a reedlike tone; — said of an organ stop.

reed'ling (rēd'lĭng), n. [reed + 1st -ling.] A small, long-tailed European bird (Panurus biarmicus) which frequents reedy places. It is largely orange brown, black, and white. The male has a tuft of black feathers on each side of the face. Called also bearded titmouse.

reed mace. The cattail. Eng.

reed mark. Textiles. A fault in a fabric caused by irregular reeding or a defective reed or loom.

reed meadow grass. A pasture grass (Glyceria grandis) found in moist places throughout North America.

reed organ. Music. An organ in which the wind acts on a set of free metal reeds, as the harmonium, melodeon, concertina, etc. Two prevailing types of reed organ are the harmonium, in which the air is forced out through the reeds by means of compression bellows, and the American organ, in which the air is drawn through them inward by means of suction bellows.

reed pheasant. The reedling.

reed pipe. Music. A pipe, esp. of an organ, producing its tone by vibration of a reed in a current of air. See REED, n., 8 b.

1 One form of Reed Pipe; 2 Enlarged Section of Boot. a Body; b Boot; c Tuning Wire; d Foot; e Shallot; f Reed, or Tongue; g Reed Block.

reed plane. A plane having a blade whose edge is provided with semicircular notches, for making narrow parallel beads.

reed'-rond', n. A reed thicket in a marsh or in shallow water. Dial.

reed sparrow. Reed bunting.

reed stop. Music. A set of reed pipes, in an organ, controlled by a single stop knob. Reed stops are very individual in their timbre, and are generally imitative of some orchestral instrument.

reed thrush. The greater reed warbler. See REED WARBLER.

re-ed'u-cate (rē-ĕd'ū-kāt), v. t. To educate again; specif., to restore, in part or in whole, through education, abilities lost through accident or disease; as, to re-educate an aphasic patient.

re'-ed-u-ca'tion (rē'ĕd-ū-kā'shŭn), n. Education again or anew; specif., training of a disabled, neurotic, or mentally disordered person with the object of restoring to him some measure of competence. — re-ed'u-ca'tive (-ĕd'ū-kā'tĭv), adj.

reed warbler. Any of several small European warblers of the genus Acrocephalus, esp. A. scirpaceus. The greater reed warbler is A. arundinaceus. The name is extended to certain Asiatic species of the same and related genera.

reed'work' (rēd'wûrk'), n. Music. The reed stops of an organ. Cf. FLUEWORK.

reed wren. a The reed warbler Acrocephalus scirpaceus. b The long-billed marsh wren.

reed'y (rēd'ĭ), adj.; REED'I-ER (-ĭ-ĕr); REED'I-EST (-ĕst; -ĭst; 119). 1. Abounding in, or covered with, reeds.

2. Made of, or resembling, a reed or reeds; hence, long and slender, like a reed.

3. Having the quality of a reed instrument in tone.

4. Showing reed marks; — said of cloth.

reed yellow. A color, yellow in hue, of medium saturation and very high brilliance. Cf. COLOR.

reef (rēf), n. [ME. riff, fr. ON. rif, prob. same as ON. rif rib. See REEF of a sail.] 1. A chain or range of rocks or ridge of sand lying at or near the surface of the water, esp. one where there is not more than six fathoms at low water. See CORAL REEF; cf. SHOAL.

2. Mining. a A vein or lode. b In the South African diamond mines, the barren shales, etc., which surround the diamantiferous rock. Both Colloq.

reef, v. i. Mining. To work a reef. Australia.

reef, n. [ME. riff, fr. ON. rif, reef, prob. same as ON. rif rib. See RIB; cf. 1st REEF.] Naut. a That part of a sail which is taken in or let out by means of the reef points, in order to regulate the size of the sail. From the head to the first reef band, in square sails, is the first reef; from this to the next, the second reef, etc. In fore-and-aft sails, which reef on the foot, the first reef is the lowest part. b The reduction in area of a sail by reefing.

reef (rēf), v. t. & i.; REEFED (rēft); REEF'ING. Naut. a To reduce the area of (a sail) by rolling or folding a certain portion of it and making it fast to the yard or spar with reef points. A square sail is reefed at the head, a fore-and-aft sail at the foot. To double-reef a sail is to take it in up to the second reef. b To lower or bring inboard wholly or partially (a spar), as a topmast or bowsprit; to house. c To move the floats of (a paddle wheel) toward its center so that they will not dip so deeply.

reef one's sails. To reduce the scope of one's activities; to curtail one's efforts; to withdraw in part.

reef (rēf), n. [Cf. AS. hrēof scabby.] The itch or mange; an eruption. Scot. & Dial. Eng.

reef'a-ble (rēf'ă-b'l), adj. That can be reefed.

reef band. Naut. A piece of canvas sewed across a sail to strengthen it at the eyelet holes for reef points.

reef cringle. Naut. One of the cringles on the leach, or edge, of a sail at the end of a reef band through which a rope passes binding the edge of a reefed sail to the yard or spar.

reef earing. Naut. See EARING b.

reef'er (rēf'ĕr), n. 1. A miner who works on a reef. Australia.

2. An oyster that grows without cultivation or transplanting on a reef or natural bed. Gulf States.

reef'er (rēf'ĕr), n. 1. Naut. One who reefs; — a name often given to midshipmen.

2. A close-fitting, usually double-breasted, jacket or short coat of thick cloth.

reef goose. The Canada goose. North Carolina.

reef heron. A blue-and-white heron (Demiegretta sacra) of southern Asia, Australia, and Oceania.

reef'ing (rēf'ĭng), pres. part. & verbal n. of REEF.

reefing bowsprit. A bowsprit that can easily be shortened by sliding inboard.

reefing jacket. A reefer. See 2d REEFER, 2.

reef jig, reef jigger. Naut. A light tackle on a yard for stretching the reef band before reefing.

reef'-knoll', n. Geol. A mass of coralline limestone within a sedimentary series; a fossil coral or algal reef.

reef knot. Naut. A square knot, used in tying reef points, etc. See 2d KNOT, 1.

reef'-knot', v. t. To make a reef knot in.

reef pendant. Naut. A short rope passed or fixed through a reef cringle and used to fasten the clew to the boom or the leach to the reef tackle in reefing a sail.

reef point. One of the pieces of small rope passing through the eyelet holes of a reef band, and used in reefing the sail.

reef tackle. A tackle by which the reef cringles of a square sail are hauled up and out to the yardarm in reefing.

reef'y (rēf'ĭ), adj.; REEF'I-ER (-ĭ-ĕr); REEF'I-EST. Full of reefs or rocks.

reek (rēk), n. [AS. rēc; akin to OFris. rēk, LG. & D. rook, G. rauch, OHG. rouh, Dan. røg, Sw. rök, ON. reykr, and to AS. rēocan to reek, smoke. Cf. REEK to smoke, steam.] 1. a Now Dial. & Literary. Smoke. b A cloud (sense 2 a) or haze like smoke.

2. Vapor; an exhalation; fetid air; a disagreeable fume; as, the reeks of the slums; a reek of gin.

reek (rēk), v.; REEKED (rēkt); REEK'ING. [AS. rēocan; akin to D. rieken, ruiken, to smell, G. riechen, OHG. riohhan to smoke, steam, smell, ON. rjūka to smoke, steam. Cf. REEK vapor.] Intransitive: 1. To emit smoke, steam, warm vapor, or offensive odors; to throw off fumes; as, horses that reek with sweat; a marsh reeking in the sun. "Few chimneys reeking you shall espy." Spenser.

2. To be exhaled as vapor, effluvia, etc.; to issue as fumes; to fume. "Smoke, which still away did reek, solid and black from that eternal pyre." Keats. "An atmosphere . . . which reeked up from decayed trees." Poe.

3. To be permeated with or as with a reek; to be full of noxious vapors; to smell offensively.

> The coffeerooms reeked with tobacco. Macaulay.
>
> Although no one believed in civil war, the air reeked of it. Henry Adams.

—, Transitive: 1. To subject to the action of smoke, vapor, etc.; — now chiefly technical.

2. To emit as or as if a reek; to exhale, exude, or vent; — often figurative; as, his manner reeks prosperity.

reek, v. t. & i. Rig; equip. Scot.

reek, n. [Var. or RICK.] a Obs. exc. Dial. Heap; pile. b Ir. A round mountain. — v. t. & i. To heap; pile.

reek, n. Seaweed. Obs.

reek. Scot. var. of REACH.

reek'er (rēk'ĕr), n. One who or that which reeks.

reek'y (rēk'ĭ), adj.; REEK'I-ER (-ĭ-ĕr); REEK'I-EST. [From REEK vapor; cf. REECHY.] Reeking; emitting, or permeated with, a reek. "Reeky fen." Scott.

reel (rēl), n. [Prob. fr. REEL a rolling, reeling, REEL to whirl.] 1. a A lively dance of the Scottish Highlanders marked by circular figures and performed with gliding movements; — often called Scotch, or Scottish, reel. b Music for, or having the rhythm of, this dance. Its notes are typically of equal length; its measure, usually 4/4, sometimes 8/8.

Silk Reel. a Basin of Water with Cocoons; b Reel.

2. = VIRGINIA REEL.

reel, v. t. & i. To dance a reel.

reel (rēl), n. [AS. hrēol; cf. ON. hræll a weaver's sley, or E. REEL to whirl.] 1. A revolvable device on which yarn or thread is wound into hanks or skeins as it comes from the spindle, or the composite fiber of raw silk from the cocoons. It is usually a frame consisting of a horizontal axle with spokes radiating from a hub near each end, and horizontal bars or slats connecting these in pairs.

1 Reel. 2 a. 2 Reel for Garden Hose.

2. Hence, any of numerous devices more or less resembling this apparatus in shape, application, or both, as any of various contrivances for winding spun re-earn', v. t. See RE-, 2.

---

ree'bok' (rē'bŏk'). Var. of RHEBOK.

re'-e-bul'lient, adj. See RE-, 2. reech (rēch). Var. of REEK. Now Dial.

reede. † READ, v.; RED; REED; REDE.

reed'i-ly, adv. of REEDY.

reed'i-ness, n. See -NESS.

re-ed'it, v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'-e-di'tion (rē'ĕ-dĭsh'ŭn), n.

reed'like', adj. See -LIKE.

reed'man (rēd'măn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). Textile Mfg. = REEDER d.

re'-ef-fem'i-nate, v. t. See RE-, 2.

reeft. Reefed. Ref. Sp.

re-egg', v. t., re'-e-jac'u-late, v. t., re'-e-ject', v. t., re'-e-jec'tion, re'-e-ject'ment, n. See RE-, 2.

Reek'ie, Auld. See AULD REEKIE.

reek'ing-ly, adv. of reeking, pres. part.

reekt. Reeked. Ref. Sp.

yarns, wire, hose, etc.; specif.: a A kind of small windlass for the butt end of a fishing rod, to wind up or let out line. b A similar device for winding up a surveyor's tape, or the like. c A gathering reel. d A device having radial arms from which bread pans hang suspended, used in baking bread in an oven (hence called a reel oven). e Chiefly Brit. A spool or bobbin of wood to hold sewing cotton, silk, etc. f The drum carrying the bolting cloth in milling. 3. A quantity of thread, wire, paper, or the like, wound on a reel (senses 1 and 2).

4. A pavior's hammer of from 5 to 7 lbs. in weight having rectangular ends, for finishing small paving blocks.

5. A flanged spool on which a photographic film is wound; hence, a strip of motion-picture film, usually 1,000 or 2,000 feet in length (full reel), wound on a spool.

6. A humming noise like that made by a moving reel.

The kingfisher was there ahead of us with his loud clicking reel. John Burroughs.

— off the reel. Also right off the reel. Colloq. a In straight succession; without interruption; as, to lose four deals off the reel. b Without hesitation; directly; as if reeled off; as, to write his impressions off the reel.

reel (rēl), v. t.; REELED (rēld); REEL'ING. 1. To wind upon a reel, as yarn or thread, a fishline, etc.

2. To draw by reeling a line; as, to reel a fish in.

reel off. a To take off by reeling, as silk from the cocoon. b To tell rapidly or fluently, as a story.

reel, v. [From 3d REEL.] Intransitive: 1. To turn or move round and round; to whirl; specif.: a Of the eyes, to roll with dizziness, etc. b Of the mind, head, or the like, to be giddy; to be in a whirl.

In these lengthened vigils his brain often reeled. Hawthorne.

2. To dash about wildly. Obs

3. To give way; waver; fall back, as a line in battle.

4. To incline to and fro, or to sway, dizzily or unsteadily, on one's feet, as one faint, giddy, or intoxicated; to walk or move in such a manner; also, to move with great irregularity and unsteadiness, as a ship in a storm or in a collision, a building in an earthquake, or the like.

They reel to and fro, and stagger like a drunken man. Ps. cvii. 27.

—, Transitive: 1. To roll, as a stone. Obs.

2. To cause to reel, esp. to whirl; as, to reel one's partner in a dance.

3. To stagger through (a street). Shak.

reel, n. [Cf. REEL to whirl.] 1. Act or motion of reeling or staggering; as, a drunken reel; — in pl., Obs., revels.

2. A crashing noise; a peal, as of thunder. Scot.

reel'a·ble (rēl'ȧ·b'l), adj. Capable of being wound on a reel.

reel borer. See BORER.

reeled (rēld), adj. 1. Wound on a reel.

2. Disposed in a zigzag line; staggered, as rivet holes.

reel'er (rēl'ẽr), n. One who reels, winds on reels, or works with a reel; also, one who prints reels, as of revenue tickets; specif., Naut., one who tends the reel of a log.

reel foot. A clubfoot. Scot. — reel'-foot'ed, reel'-fit'ted, adj. Scot. & Ir.

reel oven. An oven for drying fish in which a large reel carrying pans or racks revolves slowly over a fire.

reel'rall (rēl'rȧl; -rä), n. Disturbance; confusion. Scot.

reel'rall, adv. Topsy-turvy. Scot. & Ir.

reem (rēm), n. [Heb. rē'ēm, rēym.] The horned wild animal, prob. a wild ox; called in the King James Bible unicorn. Job xxxix. 9.

reem (rēm). Var. of REAM, cream; REAM, v.

re'-em·bod'y (rē'ĕm·bŏd'ĭ), v. t. To embody again or anew; to put in or into a new form; to reshape, reincorporate, reorganize, or the like. — re'-em·bod'i·ment (-ĭ·mĕnt), n.

re'-e·merge' (-ē·mûrj'), v. i. To emerge again after concealment, retirement, suppression, quiescence, or the like. — re'-e·mer'gence (-mûr'jĕns), n. — re'-e·mer'gent (-jĕnt), adj.

reem'ing bee'tle (rēm'ĭng). [See REAM to enlarge a hole.] Naut. The largest mallet used by a calker.

reeming iron. Naut. A chisel for reeming the seams of planks in calking ships.

reem'ish (rēm'ĭsh), n. [Origin uncert.; cf. REME to cry out, shout.] A heavy blow; a loud noise. Scot.

re·em'pha·size (rē·ĕm'fȧ·sīz), v. t. To emphasize again or anew; specif., to declare one's continued faith in, as a questioned doctrine.

re'-en·grav'ing (rē'ĕn·grāv'ĭng), n. Something engraved again or anew; specif., Philately, a stamp issued from a plate or die that has been re-engraved.

re'-en·no'ble (-ē·nō'b'l; -ĕn·nō'-), v. t. To ennoble again or anew.

re-en'ter (rē·ĕn'tẽr), v. t. & i. [re- + enter; cf. F. rentrer.] To enter again. Hence: a Calico Printing. To apply (the secondary colors). See RE-ENTERING. b Backgammon. To remove (a man) from the bar to some point in the adversary's home table. c Engraving. To cut deeper, as engraved lines on a plate of metal.

re-en'ter, n. Re-entrance. Rare.

re-en'ter·ing, pres. part. & verbal n. of RE-ENTER; specif.: verbal n. Calico Printing. The process of applying additional colors, by applications of printing blocks, to patterns partly colored.

re-entering angle. An angle pointing inward, as a in RE-ENTERING POLYGON, Illust., below; specif., Mil., an angle in a line of troops or of fortifications, with its apex turned away from the enemy.

re-entering order of battle. Mil. A formation of attacking, rarely defending, forces in lines converging away from the enemy, feasible only when both flanks are protected against being turned, or when they overlap the enemy's lines.

re-entering place of arms. Fort. A place of arms within a re-entering angle of the counterscarp.

re-entering polygon. Math. A polygon having one or more re-entering angles.

Re-entering Polygon. a Re-entering Angle.

re-en'trance (rē·ĕn'trȧns), n. Also, Rare, re-en'tran·cy (-trȧn·sĭ). Act of entering again; re-entry.

re-en'trant (-trȧnt), adj. a Re-entering; directed inwards, as an angle. b Elec. Having its ends closed on itself; as, a re-entrant armature winding in which the end of each spiral leads into the beginning of the succeeding spiral, the end of the final spiral leading into the beginning of the first spiral.

re-en'trant, n. 1. One who or that which re-enters or is re-entrant; specif., a re-entrant angle as in a coast line or in a fortification.

2. a Math. In a closed polygon, any exterior angle less than 180 degrees. b An indentation between two salients, in a horizontal plane (just as a valley is a depression between two hills, in a vertical plane).

re-en'try (-trĭ), n. [Cf. F. rentrée.] 1. A second or new entry; as, a re-entry into public life.

2. A re-entry card.

3. Law. A retaking possession; esp., entry by a lessor or grantor on premises leased or granted, in exercise of a right reserved, on the tenant's failure to perform the covenants or conditions of the lease, grant, or other conveyance.

4. Philately. = DOUBLE TRANSFER.

re-entry card. Whist & Bridge. A card that by winning a trick will enable one to regain the lead.

reep'er (rēp'ẽr), n. [Marathi rēp.] A strip of wood used as a batten or a lath. India.

reese (rēz), v. i. [Cf. REASTY.] To become rancid. Obs. exc. Dial. Eng.

reese, v. t. [Origin uncert. Cf. REEST to cure by smoking.] To scorch. Obs.

reese (rēz). Scot. var. of ROOSE.

ree'shle (rē'shĭ'l), ree'sle, rees'tle (rēs'l), n. & v. i. & t. Clatter; rustle; beat. Chiefly Scot.

reesk (rēsk), n. [Gael. riasg.] Any coarse grass growing on moors or swamps; also, the land where such grasses grow. Scot.

reest (rēst), v. i. [Cf. REST, v., ARREST, v.] Of a horse, to balk. — reest, n. Both Scot. & Dial. Eng.

reest, n. [AS. rēost.] A plowshare, moldboard, or piece under a moldboard. Obs. exc. Dial.

reest, v. t. & i. [Origin uncert.; cf. Dan. riste to grill.] To cure or be cured by smoking, as fish, etc. Scot.

reest, n. A place for smoking fish, etc Scot.

reest, adj. [Cf. REASTY.] Of bacon, rancid. — n. Rancid bacon. — v. i. To become rancid. All Obs. exc. Dial.

reest. Var. of REST. Obs. exc. Dial.

reest'er (rēs'tẽr), n. [reest to balk + -er.] A balky horse. Scot. & Dial. Eng.

reest'y (-tĭ), adj. [reest to balk + 3d -y.] Balky. Scot. & Dial. Eng.

reest'y. Var. of REASTY.

re-etch' (rē·ĕch'), v. t. To etch again, as a lithographic stone in continuation of a partial etching; to touch up (a plate) with a brush dipped in acid. — re-etch'er (-ẽr), n.

re·e·vap'o·ra'tion (rē'ē·văp'ō·rā'shŭn), n. Evaporation a second time; specif., Steam Engines, evaporation, of the moisture from condensation, due to the steam temperature falling below that of the cylinder walls in expansion.

reeve (rēv), n. The female of the ruff (sandpiper).

reeve, v.; past tense & past part. ROVE (rōv), REEVED (rēvd); pres. part. & verbal n. REEV'ING. [Origin uncert.] Transitive: 1. Naut. a To pass, as the end of a rope, through any hole or opening in a block, thimble, cleat, ringbolt, cringle, or the like. b To fasten by passing through a hole or around something; — with on, about, to, around, over, etc.; as, they rove a rope over the yard. c To pass a rope through; as, to reeve a block.

2. To thread; to pass cautiously through; as, the ship reeved the shoals.

—, Intransitive: Naut. Of a rope, to pass through a block.

reeve (rēv), n. 1. A rope of onions. Obs. exc. Dial.

2. A narrow strip. Rare.

reeve, v. t. To wind; to twist; wrinkle; pucker; also, to roll up (the sleeves). Dial. Eng.

reeve, n. [ME. reve, fr. AS. gerēfa. Cf. 2d SHERIFF, 1st GRIEVE.] 1. O. Eng. Hist. An administrative official or officer who had in part at least the general duties of a steward, bailiff, or overseer, but whose duties and powers varied with the source of his appointment and the jurisdiction over which he was placed. See SHERIFF, PORTREEVE.

It would seem that originally the position of the king's reeve did not differ in principle from that of the reeve of any other landowner. We have seen that the chief duties of the private reeve were: (1) To be responsible for the maintenance of order upon his estate, (2) to collect the food rents and other dues from his lord's dependents, and (3) to see that they performed their various services.

H. Munro Chadwick.

2. The president of the council in rural municipalities and in some villages. Central and Western Canada.

reeve (rēv), n. A pen or enclosure for cattle, poultry, or pigs; a sheepfold. Scot.

reeve'land (rēv'lȧnd), n. Early Eng. Law. Land subject to the jurisdiction of a reeve; — used of lands that had reverted to the king and were not granted to tenants. Obs. exc. Hist.

Reeves's pheasant (rēv'zĭz). A pheasant (Phasianus, syn. Syrmaticus, reevesii) native of China. The plumage of the male is largely buffy with dark edgings on the feathers, black collar, white nap and throat, and black belly. The head is white with a dark facial band; the tail is very long.

re'-e·voke' (rē'ē·vōk'), v. t. To evoke again; often, to recall to life or to the imagination.

re'-ex·am'i·na'tion (rē'ĕg·zăm'ĭ·nā'shŭn; -ĭg-), n. A second examination; esp., Law, an examination made by a party calling a witness, after, and upon matters arising out of, the cross-examination.

re'-ex·am'ine (-zăm'ĭn), v. t. To subject to re-examination. — re'-ex·am'in·er (-ĭn·ẽr), n.

re'-ex·change' (rē'ĕks·chānj'; -ĭks·chānj'), n. 1. A renewed or second exchange.

2. Com. a The process by which is recovered the expense chargeable on a bill of exchange or draft which has been dishonored in a foreign country, and returned to the country in which it was made or indorsed, to be there taken up. b The draft so drawn, or the expense or percentage included in it.

re'-ex·port' (rē'ĕks·pōrt'; 181; see EXPORT), v. t. To export again; also, usually, to export (something imported). — n. (pron. rē·ĕks'pōrt) Act of re-exporting; any commodity re-exported; — chiefly in pl. — re'-ex·por·ta'tion (rē'ĕks·pōr·tā'shŭn), n. — re'-ex·port'er (rē'ĕks·pōr'tẽr), n.

re'-ex·tent' (-ĕks·tĕnt'; -ĭks-), n. O. Eng. Law. A second extent, or execution, made on complaint that a former one was wrong.

re·face' (rē·fās'), v. t. To supply with a new face, or front; to renew the front or appearance of; as, to reface a church.

‖re·fait' (rē·fā'), n. [F., fr. refaire to redeal, remake, fr. L. re- re- + facere. See FACT.] Card Playing. A drawn game; specif., Trente et quarante, a state of the game in which the aggregate pip value of cards dealt to red equals that of those dealt to black. All bets are then off, unless the value is 31, in which case the banker wins half the stakes.

re·fa'thered (rē·fā'ᵗʰĕrd), adj. Being a father again. R.

re·fect' (rē·fĕkt'), v. t. [L. refectus, past part. of reficere, fr. re- re- + facere to make.] To restore after hunger or fatigue; to refresh, as with food or drink. Archaic.

re·fect', adj. Refected. Obs.

re·fec'tion (rē·fĕk'shŭn), n. [OF., fr. L. refectio. See REFECT, FACT.] 1. Refreshment of mind, spirit, or body; esp. refreshment after hunger or fatigue; nourishment; relief.

[His] feeble spirit inly felt refection. Spenser.

2. The taking of refreshment; the satisfaction of hunger and thirst; also, food and drink; a repast; a lunch. "It being the hour of refection."

Those Attic nights, and those refections of the gods. Curran.

3. A right to require, or obligation to give, meals. Hist.

re·fec'tion, v. t. To provide with refection. Obs.

re·fec'tion·ar'y (rē·fĕk'shŭn·ĕr'ĭ or, esp. Brit., -ēr·ĭ), adj. Of or pertaining to refection. Rare.

re·fec'tion·er (-ẽr), n. A refectorian.

Refection Sunday. Refreshment Sunday.

re·fec'tive (rē·fĕk'tĭv), adj. Refreshing; restoring. — n. A restorative. Both Rare.

re·fec'to·rar'i·an (rē·fĕk'tō·rȧr'ĭ·ăn), re·fec'to·rar'y (-fĕk'tō·rĕr'ĭ; -rēr·ĭ), n. [MDL. refectorarius.] A refectorian. Rare.

re·fec'to·rer (rē·fĕk'tō·rẽr), n. [Cf. ML. refectorarius.] A refectorian. Rare.

re'fec·to'ri·al (rē'fĕk·tō'rĭ·ȧl; 181), adj. Of or pertaining to refection.

re'fec·to'ri·an (-ăn), n. Eccl. One in charge of a refectory or of refections; — called also refectioner.

re·fec'to·ry (rē·fĕk'tō·rĭ), n.; pl. -RIES (-rĭz). [ML. refectorium, whence F. réfectoire. See REFECTION.] A dining hall; specif. and usually, a dining hall in a monastery or convent.

re·fel' (rē·fĕl'), v. t. [L. refellere, fr. re- re- + fallere to deceive.] Obs. 1. To refute; disprove; discredit.

2. To reject; repulse.

re·fer' (rē·fûr'), v.; RE·FERRED' (-fûrd'); RE·FER'RING. [OF. or L.; OF. referer, fr. referre, fr. re- re- + ferre to bear. See BEAR to carry.] Transitive: 1. To bring, carry, or send, back. Obs. Chaucer.

2. To regard, specify, identify, or the like, as belonging or related (to); to assign (to a class, cause, source, motive, or the like) as being included, explained, or accounted for; as, he referred the phenomena to electrical disturbances.

3. To send or direct (to some person or place), as for treatment, aid, information, decision, etc.; to make over, submit, or commit (to another as having authority); as, to refer a student to a book; to refer a bill to a committee.

4. a To have recourse; to apply; to appeal; to betake oneself; as, to refer to a dictionary or the clock. b To direct for information or a guaranty of any kind, as in respect to one's integrity, capacity, pecuniary ability, etc.; as, to refer one to a former employer.

5. To make a record of; report. Now Rare.

6. To reserve for subsequent discussion.

---

re'-e·lab'o·rate, v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'-e·lab'o·ra'tion, n.

Re'el·a'lah (rē'ĕl·ā'yȧ; -ĭ'ȧ). Bib.

reeld. Reeled. Ref. Sp.

re'-e·lect', v. t., re'-e·lec'tion, n., re'-el'e·vate, v. t., re'-el'e·va'tion, n. See RE-, 2.

Re·el'i·as (rē·ĕl'ĭ·ȧs). Bib. Var. of RELELIUS.

re·el'i·gi·bie (rē·ĕl'ĭ·jĭ·b'l), adj. & n. See RE-, 2. — re'-el·i·gi·bil'i·ty (-bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n.

re'-e·lim'i·nate, v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'-e·lim'i·na'tion, n.

reeling hammer. = 3d REEL, 4.

reel'ing·ly, adv. of reeling, pres. part.

Re·el'i·us (rē·ĕl'ĭ·ŭs). Bib.

re·em'a·nate, v. i. See RE-, 1.

re'-em·bark', v. t. & i., re'-em·bar·ka'tion, n., re'-em·bar'rass, v. t., re'-em·bar'rass·ment, n., re'-em·bat'tle, v. t., re'-em·bed', v. t., re'-em·bel'lish, v. t., re'-em·bos'om (rē'ĕm·bōōz'ŭm; -bōō'zŭm), v. t., re'-em·brace', v. & n., re'-em·brace'ment, n., re'-em·broil', v. t., re'-e·mer'sion, n., re-em'i·grant, n. See RE-, 2.

re-em'i·grate, v. i. See RE-, 2. — re'-em·i·gra'tion, n. [OF REEM.]

reem'ing, pres. part. & verbal n.

re'-e·mis'sion, n., re'-e·mit', v. t., re-em'pha·sis, n., re'-em·ploy', v. t., re'-em·ploy'ment, n., re'-em·pow'er, v. t., re-emp'ty, v. t., re'-e·mul'si·fy, v. t. See RE-, 2.

reen. Var. of RHINE, a ditch.

re'-en·a'ble, v. t., re'-en·a'ble·ment, n., Obs., re'-en·act', v. t., re'-en·ac'tion, n., re'-en·act'ment, n., re'-en·am'el, v. t., re'-en·am'or, re'-en·am'our, v. t., re'-en·chain', v. t., re'-en·close', v. t., re'-en·clo'sure, n., re'-en·coun'ter, v. t. & n., re'-en·cour'age, v. t., re'-en·cour'age·ment, n. See RE-, 2.

re'-en·dear', v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'-en·dear'ment, n.

re'-en·dorse', v. t. See RE-, 1. — re'-en·dorse'ment, n.

re'-en·dow', v. t., re'-en·dow'ment, n., re-en'er·gize, v. t. See RE-, 2.

re'-en·feoff', v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'-en·feoff'ment, n.

re'-en·force', v. & n., re'-en·force'ment, n., re'-en·forc'er, n. Vars. of REINFORCE, REINFORCEMENT, REINFORCER.

re'-en·forced' con'crete. = REINFORCED CONCRETE.

re'-en·fran'chise, v. t., re'-en·fran'chise·ment, n., re'-en·gage', v. i. & i., re'-en·gage'ment, n. See RE-, 2. [rove.]

reenge. Scot. var. of RANGE, to re'-en·gen'der, v. t., re'-en·gen'der·er, n., re-en'gine, v. t. See RE-, 2.

re'-en·gor'ge, v. t. To repour, as into the gorge. Obs.

re'-en·graft', v. t., re'-en·grave', v. t., re'-en·gross', v. t., re'-en·heart'en, v. t., re'-en·join', v. t., re'-en·joy', v. t., re'-en·joy'ment, n., re'-en·kin'dle, v. t. & i., re'-en·large', v. t. & i., re'-en·large'ment, n., re'-en·light'en, v. t., re'-en·light'en·ment, n., re'-en·list', v. t. & i., re'-en·list'er, n., re'-en·list'ment, n., re'-en·liv'en, v. t., re'-en·roll', v. t., re'-en·roll'ment, n., re'-en·shrine', v. t., re'-en·slave', v. t., re'-en·slave'ment, n., re'-en·sphere', v. t., re'-en·ter·tain', v. t., re'-en·ter·tain'ment, n., re'-en·thral', v. t., re-en·throne', v. t., re'-en·throne'ment, n., re'-en·thron'ize, v. t., re'-en·tice', v. t., re'-en·tif'le, v. t., re'-en·toil', v. t., re'-en·tomb', v. t., re'-en·train', v. t. & i., re'-en·trench'ment, n. See RE-, 2.

re'-e·nu'mer·ate, v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'-e·nu'mer·a'tion, n.

re'-e·nun'ci·ate, v. t. & i., re'-e·nun'ci·a'tion, n. See RE-, 2.

re'-en·verse', v. t. [F. renverser.] To reverse. Obs.

re'-e·pit'o·mize, v. t., re'-e·qui·bra'te, v. t., re'-e·qui·li·bra'tion, n., re'-e·quip', v. t., re'-e·quip'ment, n. See RE-, 2.

reerdos. ✝ REREDOS.

reere, n. A shout; noise. Obs.

re'-e·rect', v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'-e·rec'tion, n.

reer mouse. Var. of REREMOUSE, rees. Var. of REES. [bat.

Re'e·sa'ias (rē'ē·sā'yȧs; -sĭ'ȧs). Bib.

re'-es·cape', v. i. & n., re'-es·cous'e, v. t. See RE-, 2.

re'-es·pouse', v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'-es·pous'al (rē'ĕs·pouz'ȧl), n.

re'-es·say', v. t. See RE-, 2.

Rees's rule (rēs'ĭz). = CHAIN RULE.

re'-es·tab'lish, v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'-es·tab'lish·er, n. — re'-es·tab'lish·ment, n. [Obs.]

re'-es·tate', v. t. To re-establish.

re'-es·teem', v. t. See RE-, 1.

re'-es'ti·mate, v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'-es·ti·ma'tion, n.

re'-e·vac'u·ate, v. t. & i., re'-e·vac'u·a'tion, n., re'-e·vade', v. t., re'-e·val'u·ate, v. t., re'-e·val'u·a'tion, n., re'-e·vap'o·rate, v. t. & i., re'-e·va'sion, n. See RE-, 2.

reeve'ship, n. See -SHIP.

reev'ing, pres. part. & verbal n. of REEVE. [KNOT, 1.]

reeving-line bend. See 2d re'-ev·o·lu'tion, n., re'-ex·alt', v. t. See RE-, 2. [-ABLE.]

re'-ex·am'in·a·ble, a & j. See re-ex'ca·vate, v. t., re'-ex·ca·va'tion, n., re'-ex·cel', v. t. & i., re'-ex·change', v. t. & i., re'-ex·ci·ta'tion, n., re'-ex·cite', v. t., re'-ex·clude', v. t., re'-ex·clu'sion, n., re-ex'e·cute, v. t., re'-ex·e·cu'tion, n., re'-ex·empt', v. t., re'-ex·emp'tion, n., re-ex'er·cise, v. t., re'-ex·ert', v. t., re'-ex·er·tion, n., re'-ex·hale', v. t., re'-ex·haust', v. t., re'-ex·hib'it, v. t., re'-ex·hi·bi'tion, n., re'-ex·hil'a·rate, v. t., re'-ex·hil'a·ra'tion, n., re'-ex·ist', v. i., re'-ex·ist'ence, n., re'-ex·ist'ent, adj., re'-ex·pand', v. i. & t., re'-ex·pan'sion, n., re'-ex·pect', v. t., re'-ex·pec·ta'tion, n., re-ex'pe·dite, v. t., re'-ex·pe·di'tion, n., re'-ex·pel', v. t., re'-ex·pe'ri·ence, v. t. & i. & n., re'-ex·peri·ment, v. i. & n., re'-ex·plain', v. t., re'-ex·pla·na'tion, n., re'-ex·pose', v. t., re'-ex·po'sure, n., re'-ex·pound', v. t., re'-ex·press', v. t., re'-ex·pres'sion, n., re'-ex·pul'sion, n. See RE-, 2.

re'-ex·struct', adj. Rebuilt. Obs.

re'-ex·tend', v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'-ex·ten'sion, n.

re'-ex·tract', v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'-ex·trac'tion, n.

reezed. Var. of REEZED. [Table.] ref, n. [Sw.] See MEASURE, re'fa·cil'i·tate, v. t. See RE-, 2.

‖re·fa'ci·men'to. Var. of REFACIMENTO.

re·fac'tion, n. [F. réfaction. See REFECTION.] Recompense. Obs.

re·fall', v. & n., re·fal'low, v. t., re·fan', v. t., re·fas'ci·nate, v. t., re'fas·ci·na'tion, n., re·fash'ion, v. t. (hence, re·fash'ion·er, n., re·fash'ion·ment, n.), re·fas'ten (rē·fas'n), v. t., re·fa'vor, re·fa'vour, v. t. See RE-, 2. [REEVE.]

refe. ✝ REEVE; REEF, Naut.;

re·fec'tive. Reflective. Ref. Sp.

re·fed'er·ate, v. i. & t., re·feed', v. i. & t., re·feel', v. t., re·feign', v. t., re·fence', v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·feoff', re·feof', v. t. See RE-, 2. — re·feoff'ment, re·feof'ment, n. All Obs.

7. Obs. a To leave for future action; postpone; defer. b To transfer in application. c To restore. d To transfer; give. e To represent.
8. Psychol. To regard as coming from or localized in a certain portion of the body or of space; as, visual sensations are referred to external space. See REFERRED PAIN.
—, Intransitive: 1. To recur; return. Obs. Chaucer.
2. a To have relation or reference; to relate; point; as, the figure refers to a footnote. b To carry the mind or thought; to direct attention; as, the preacher referred to the late election. c To have recourse. d To make a reference in reading or writing.
3. To suggest to a person (to act). Obs. & R. Ozf. E. D.
Syn. — REFER, ASCRIBE, ATTRIBUTE, IMPUTE, CHARGE. To REFER (to), as here compared (see ALLUDE), is to bring (something) into relation, often causal, with the class to which it belongs, or to subsume it under its proper category; as, the aurora borealis is commonly referred to the class of electrical phenomena. To ASCRIBE (to) is to refer (something, esp. a quality) to that which is regarded as its source or possessor; ATTRIBUTE is stronger; as, "They habitually ascribed every event to the will of the Great Being for whose power nothing was too vast" (Macaulay); "In all this Job sinned not, nor attributed folly to God" (Job i. 22). IMPUTE (for theological senses see defs.) is commonly applied to what is bad; CHARGE (cf. CHARGE) is stronger than impute; as, "We usually ascribe good, but impute evil" (Johnson); "Do not impute this [neglect] to forgetfulness" (E. FitzGerald); "Charge the crime on native sloth" (Dryden). refer oneself. To have recourse; to submit oneself; to appeal. NowRare. "I'll refer to all things of sense." Shak.
ref'er·a·ble (rĕf'ĕr·ȧ·b'l; 277), adj. Capable of being referred, or considered in relation to something else; assignable; ascribable; as, the typhoid was not referable to any known cause.
ref'er·ee' (rĕf'ĕr·ē'), n. One to whom a thing is referred; as: a In the English Parliament, a person to whom a matter is referred to examine and report upon it; esp., formerly, in the House of Commons, a member of certain committees or courts to report and decide upon private bills. b Law. A person, originally in equity practice a master, to whom a matter in dispute has been referred that he may settle it. In the United States referee is usually used of an attorney at law appointed to act as an officer of the court in determining, or reporting on, an issue referred to him in a pending proceeding or suit with or without the consent of the parties, as disting. from an arbitrator (who may not be an attorney at law) designated by the parties to decide a difference between them. In England this difference between the terms is less observed. c A person appointed to decide any issue or question; an umpire, as in certain games or sports; sometimes, specif., a judge of certain points of play, as, in American football, an official whose decision is final in all matters under dispute, but who is esp. the judge of matters connected with the progress of the ball, as distinguished from the umpire, who is, in general, judge of the acts of the players.
Syn. — Arbitrator, umpire. ref'er·ee', v. t. & i. To act as referee (for).
ref'er·ence (rĕf'ĕr·ĕns), n. [See REFER.] 1. Act of referring, or state of being referred; as, reference to a chart.
2. Relation; relationship; regard; respect.
Something that hath a reference to my state. Shak.
3. a That which refers or alludes to something; as, his poems contain many references to contemporary history. b A specific direction of the attention; a sign or direction referring a reader to another passage or book. c Direction to, or consultation of, books, periodicals, etc., for information; — also used attributively; as, reference room, reference work, reference librarian.
4. One who or that which is referred to or consulted; specif.: a One of whom inquiries can be made as to the integrity, capacity, etc., of another. b A written statement of the qualifications of a person seeking employment, a position, etc., given by his previous employer or by someone familiar with his character, ability, experience, training, or the like; as, he brought excellent references. c A book, or a passage in a work, to which one is referred.
5. Appeal. Rare. "Make your full reference." Shak.
6. Bookbinding. = TAB, n., 4.
7. Law. Act of referring a matter in dispute to a referee or referees; also, the warrant or order by which the matter is referred. See REFEREE b.
8. Psychiatry. Condition of referring everything to oneself. See DELUSION, 4.
Syn. — Connection, relevance, pertinence; allusion; recommendation.
— in, or with, reference to. As concerning or pertaining to; in relation to; as regards.
ref'er·ence, adj. Used or usable for reference. ref'er·ence, v. t. & i.; -ENCED (-ĕnst); -ENC·ING (-ĕn·sĭng). To supply with, or to make or give, a reference. reference book. 1. A book intended primarily for consultation rather than for consecutive reading, as a dictionary, an encyclopedia, an atlas, a syllabus, a handbook, etc.
2. Libraries. A book which may be used on the premises, but which may not be taken away.
reference frame. Math. = FRAME OF REFERENCE. reference gauge. See GAUGE, n., 10. reference library. 1. Libraries. A collection of books useful for consultation, often about a particular subject; as, a reference library of science.
2. A library, the books of which may be used on the premises but may not be taken away.
reference mark. A mark to indicate reference, as to notes in print, as *, †, ‡, §, ‖, ¶, or superior figures or letters. Superior figures have now largely supplanted the old-style marks.
ref'er·en'dal (rĕf'ĕr·ĕn'dăl; -d'l), adj. Of, pertaining to, or having to do with, a referendum; referendary. ref'er·en'da·ry (-dȧ·rĭ), n.; pl. -RIES (-rĭz). [ML. referendarius, fr. L. referendus to be referred, gerundive of referre. See REFER.] 1. A referee; an arbitrator. Now Rare.
2. A title used at various courts for an official who investigated petitions, kept the seal, or the like. Hist.
3. One who furnishes news; a reporter. Obs.
ref'er·en'da·ry, adj. Of or pertaining to a referendum. ref'er·en'dum (rĕf'ĕr·ĕn'dŭm), n.; pl. -DUMS (-dŭmz), -DA (-dȧ). [Neut. gerundive of L. referre. See REFER.] 1. Polit. Science. a The principle or practice of referring measures passed upon or proposed by the legislative body to the body of voters, or electorate, for approval or rejection, as in the Swiss cantons and in various States and local governments in the United States; also, the right so to approve or reject laws, or the vote by which this is done. The submission of ordinary laws to the electorate, after being passed by a legislative body, is called the statutory referendum. The constitutional referendum is a compulsory referendum upon an amendment to a constitution. The optional, or facultative, referendum (optional with the people, but compulsory upon the legislative body if properly petitioned for) requires that a law must be submitted to the people if a certain number of the voters petition for it. The compulsory, or obligatory, referendum is more democratic, making it compulsory for all laws to be submitted to the voters without petition, as provided by city charters in the case of franchises and bond issues. The referendum serves to some extent as a protest, or popular veto, by the electorate against an act of its law-making body. See INITIATIVE, 3 b; cf. PLEBISCITE, 2, 3. b The submission of a measure by referendum, or the vote on it.
2. Hence, any similar practice or method for ascertaining the will of members of a union, association, or group of persons; as, a referendum in a railroad union to determine approval or disapproval of a policy.
3. A diplomatic agent's note asking his government for instructions.
Syn. — REFERENDUM, MANDATE, DIRECT GOVERNMENT, PLEBISCITE. The REFERENDUM is a device whereby the voters approve or disapprove a measure adopted by a legislative body; the MANDATE, an instruction of representatives by the people; DIRECT GOVERNMENT by the people is that in which they initiate and make the laws by direct action without representation; and a PLEBISCITE is a popular vote taken on any measure proposed by a person or body having the initiative but not constituting a representative or constituent body. ref'er·en'dum, v. t. & i. To submit (a law or legislative act) to a referendum. referendum dollar. An octagonal silver token containing an ounce of coin silver, struck by Joseph Lesher at Victor, Colo., in 1900.
ref'er·ent (rĕf'ĕr·ĕnt), n. [L. referens, -entis, pres. part.] 1. Someone or something that refers to another or is referred to.
2. Logic. The first term of a relation, the other being called the relatum; thus, if A has the relation R to B, A is referent and B relatum. ref'er·ent, adj. That refers; having reference. "Judgments referent to the entirety of life." L. T. Hobhouse. — ref'er·ent·ly, adv.
ref'er·en'tial (-ĕn'shăl), adj. 1. Containing, or of the nature of, a reference; pointing to something out of itself; as, referential words; symbols are inherently referential.
2. Of, pertaining to, or intended for, reference; as, notes for referential use; referential marks.
— ref'er·en'tial·ly, adv.
re·fer'ral (rē·fûr'ăl), n. [See -AL, 2 b.] Act of referring.
re·ferred' pain (rē·fûrd'). A pain subjectively localized in one region though due to irritation in some other region; as, referred pain in the shoulder caused by heart disease.
re·fer'rer (rē·fûr'ĕr), n. One who refers. re·fig'ure (rē·fĭg'ūr; Brit. -fĭg'ĕr), v. t. [OF. or LL.; OF. refigurer, fr. LL. refigurare.] To figure again; reproduce. re'fill (rē'fĭl), n. 1. A commercial product designed to fill again a special container that was sold with its appropriate contents; as, a refill for a vanity case or a loose-leaf notebook.
2. Med., a replacement in a cavity of removed liquid or other material, or a substitution for it, as of gas; as, a refill of the anterior chamber of the eye with fluid or of the thoracic cavity with gas.
re·fil'ter (rē·fĭl'tĕr), v. t. To filter a second time. — n. A device for refiltering.
re·fin'age (rē·fīn'ĭj), n. Right of refining. Rare.
re'fi·nance' (rē'fĭ·nănsʹ; -fī-), v. t. & i. To finance again or anew; to reorganize the finances (of); sometimes, to provide additional capital (for).
re·fine' (rē·fīn'), v.; -FINED' (-fīnd'); -FIN'ING (-fīn'ĭng) [re- + fine to make fine; cf. F. raffiner.] Transitive: 1. To reduce to a fine, unmixed, or pure state; to separate from extraneous matter; to free from dross or alloy, as metals; to free or cleanse from impurities, as wine, sugar, etc.
2. To clarify or sublime; to free from dullness, earthiness, etc., as one's mind or soul, or its operations; to spiritualize or subtilize; to elevate.
While thy truths my grosser thoughts refine. Cowper.
3. To improve or perfect as by pruning, polishing, or rarefying; as, Flaubert refined his style to the utmost. Hence: a To remove or eliminate in order to purify or perfect. "Prune the luxuriant, the uncouth refine." Pope. b To attenuate or reduce in vigor, intensity, or the like, by pruning, polishing, etc.; — often with away; as, to refine away a notion into a subtlety.
4. To free from what is coarse, vulgar, inelegant, or the like; to cause to become elegant, cultivated, fastidious, or more so; as, an education that refined his taste; struggling to refine the manners of her charges.
5. Iron Mfg. To treat (pig iron) in the refinery furnace so as to remove the silicon.
—, Intransitive: 1. To become pure, perfected, elegant, or the like, or more so; to be or become free or freer from that which is extraneous, crude, debasing, etc.
2. To make use of refinements, esp. in thought or language; also, to improve by introducing refinements; — with on or upon; as, a philosopher who refines beyond our power to comprehend; to refine upon another's invention. Cf. REFINEMENT, 2.
re·fine', adj. Refined. Obs.
re·fined' (rē·fīndʹ), adj. That is refined, purified, perfected, polished, etc. Hence: a Highbred; fastidious; cultivated; as, a refined accent or face. b Marked by refinement of methods or execution; highly subtle, precise, exact, etc.; carried to a very fine point; as, the refined cruelty of a tyrant. "Men learned the necessity of . . . refined calculations." J. H. Randall. — re·fin'ed·ly (rē·fīn'ĕd·lĭ; -īd·lĭ; 119), adv. — re·fin'ed·ness, n. re·fine'ment (rē·fīn'mĕnt), n. [Cf. F. raffinement.] 1. Act or process of refining; also, the state or quality of being refined; as, the refinement of metals; an age lacking in refinement. "He had true refinement; he couldn't help thinking of others, whatever he did." Galsworthy.
2. Something which is the product or outcome of a refining process or which conduces to refining; a refined feature, method, point, or the like; as, the refinements of modern life or in a language. Specif.: a A subtlety in reasoning; as, the refinements of logic. b A contrivance, device, or the like, intended to improve or perfect; as, to introduce refinements into a machine; this refinement will increase the cost of the automobile.
Refinement is what characterizes our intellectualist philosophies. William James.
3. Arch. Any slight departure from mechanical exactness or uniformity of line intended to enhance the beauty of a building or add vitality to its design.
Syn. — Purification, clarification; politeness, gentility, elegance, cultivation. See CIVILIZATION, DELICACY.
Ant. — Impurity, pollution; coarseness, crudeness, vulgarity, boorishness, grossness.
re·fin'er (rē·fīn'ĕr), n. 1. One who or that which refines.
2. One who work is refining a (specified) thing, as in:

arsenic refiner	lard refiner	suet refiner
gold refiner	oil refiner	sugar refiner re·fin'ers' sir'up (-ĕrz). Sugar Mfg. The residual liquid product obtained in the process of refining raw sugars; treacle.

re·fin'er·y (-ĕr·ĭ), n.; pl. -ERIES (-ĭz). [Cf. F. raffinerie.] A building and apparatus for refining, or purifying, esp. metals, oil, and sugar; specif., Iron Mfg., a form of furnace with a shallow hearth, for refining pig iron to wrought iron or to iron suitable for puddling. It was formerly of great importance, and is still used for special purposes.
re·fin'ing (rē·fīn'ĭng), pres. part. & verbal n. of REFINE; specif.: n. The act or process of removing impurities from a crude or impure material; as, refining of copper, glass (see FINING, 1 b), gold, etc. — re·fin'ing·ly, adv.
refining engine. Paper Mfg. An engine for the final pulping of the paper stuff. See JORDAN ENGINE. refining heat. Steel Mfg. A heat that imparts fineness of grain and toughness to steel that is raised to it and afterward quenched.
re·fit' (rē·fĭt'), v. t.; -FIT'TED, -FIT'TING. To prepare for use again; to fit out or supply again; to restore after damage or decay; as, to refit a ship. — v. i. To get refitted; to obtain repairs or fresh supplies or equipment; as, the fleet returned to refit.
re·fit', n. A refitting, or fitting out again; a repairing of damages or replacing of what is worn or useless; esp., Naut., a refitting and renovating of a ship.
re·fit'ment (-mĕnt), n. Refitting; a refit. re·flate' (rē·flāt'), v. i. To expand again the quantity of currency and credit, esp. after a period of deflation; to inflate again; to reinflate. Cf. DEFLATION, INFLATION. — v. t. To expand again the amount of (currency and credit); to inflate again. — re·fla'tion (-flā'shŭn), n.
re·flect' (rē·flĕktʹ), v.; -FLECT'ED; -FLECT'ING. [OF. reflecter, fr. L. reflectere, reflexum, fr. re- re- + flectere to bend or turn. See FLEXIBLE; cf. REFLEX, adj.] Transitive: 1. To turn or direct; to deflect; divert; as, to reflect the eye to a thing.
2. To bend back; to cause to turn backward; to throw or cast back, esp. on being struck; as, this wall reflects heat waves; a polished surface reflects rays of light; hence, to emit rays or waves of by reflection; as, the sunlight here is reflected from that window.
3. To give back an image or likeness of; to reproduce or show as a mirror does; to mirror.
Nature is the glass reflecting God. Young.
4. To bring or cast as a result; as, to reflect credit on one.
—, Intransitive: 1. To be sent back; to rebound as from a surface; to revert or return after impact; also, to throw a light; to shine. Obs.
Whose virtues will, I hope, Reflect on Rome, as Titan's rays on earth. Shak.
2. To throw back light, heat, etc.; to return rays or beams.
3. To throw or turn back the thoughts (upon anything); to contemplate; to consider mentally; to use attention or earnest thought; to think seriously; specif., to attend to what passes within the mind; to attend to the facts or phenomena of consciousness.
We cannot be said to reflect upon any external object, except so far as that object has been previously perceived, and its image become part and parcel of our intellectual furniture. Sir W. Hamilton.
4. To cast or bring reproach, discredit, censure, or the like.
Neither do I reflect in the least upon the memory of his late majesty. Swift.
5. To be mirrored. Rare.
6. Obs. a To turn or deviate. b To turn or come back; to return; also, to bend or be bent back. c To look or glance; to have a cast; to bestow attention; to have regard; — with upon or on.
Syn. — Think, cogitate, meditate, ponder, muse, ruminate. See CONSIDER. reflect in a plane (or line). Math. To construct a figure each of whose points P' is related with a corresponding point P of a given figure in such a way that the line joining P and P' is bisected perpendicularly by the plane (or line).
re·flect', n. Reflection. Now Rare.
re·flect', adj. Reflected. Rare.
re·flect'ance (rē·flĕk'tăns), n. [reflect + -ance.] Optics & Photom. Coefficient of reflection. re·flect'ed (rē·flĕk'tĕd; -tĭd; 119), past tense & past part. of REFLECT. Hence: adj. 1. Bent or sent back; mirrored; specif., derived through the reflection of waves or rays; as, reflected heat, light, or color.
2. Coming indirectly or from a source other than oneself or itself; received from another; as, his glory was reflected glory.
3. Biol. Turned back upon itself.
— re·flect'ed·ly, adv. — re·flect'ed·ness, n.
re·flect'ent (rē·flĕk'tĕnt), adj. [L. reflectens, pres. part. of reflectere. See REFLECT.] Reflecting. Rare.
re·flect'er (-tĕr), n. One who or that which reflects.
re·flect'ing, adj. That reflects or causes reflection; specif.: a Having some contrivance or apparatus to reflect light, etc.; as, a reflecting telescope or lamp. b Casting reflection, or reproach; insinuating; as, remarks reflecting on his integrity. c Given to reflection or serious consideration; reflective; thoughtful; as, every reflecting person.
— re·flect'ing·ly, adv.
reflecting circle. See CIRCLE, n., 12. reflecting galvanometer. A galvanometer in which the deflections of the needle or coil are read by means of a mirror attached to it, which reflects a ray of light or the image of a scale. See GALVANOMETER.

re·ferd'. Referred. Ref. Sp. ref'er·en'da, n. Pl. of REFERENDUM. ref'er·en'da·ry·ship', n. See -SHIP.
re·fer'ment, n. See -MENT. re/fer·ment', v. t. & i. See RE-, 2. re·fer'ri·ble (rē·fûr'ĭ·b'l), adj. = REFERABLE. — re·fer'ri·ble·ness, n.
re/fer·ti·li·za'tion, n., re·fer'ti·lize, v. t., re·fetch', v. t. See RE-, 2.
re·fete', v. t. [OF. refait, past part. of refaire to remake, refresh.] To refresh; feed; nourish. — v. i. To recuperate. — part. adj. Refreshed; nourished. — n. Food; nourishment. All Obs.
re·fight', v. t., re·file', v. t., re·fill', v. See RE-, 2.
re·fill'a·ble, adj. See -ABLE.
re·film', v. t. See RE-, 2. re·fin'a·ble (rē·fīn'ȧ·b'l), adj. See -ABLE.
re·find' (rē·fīndʹ), v. t. & n. See RE-, 2. refined madder. See 1st MADDER, n., 2. re·fin'ger (rē·fĭng'gĕr), v. t., re·fin'ish, v. t., re·fire', v. t., re·fix', v. t., re/fix·a'tion, n. See RE-, 2.
re·fix'ture, v. t., re·flag', v. t., re·flag'el·late, v. t. See RE-, 2. re·flair', n. [Cf. FLAIR.] Smell; odor. Obs. — v. t. & i. To emit; exhale; issue. Obs.
re·flame', v. i., re·flash', v. t. & i. See RE-, 2.
re·flat'ion·ism, n. See -ISM. re·flect'i·ble (rē·flĕk'tĭ·b'l), adj. See -ABLE. — re·flect'i·bil'i·ty (-bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n.

reflecting goniometer. An instrument for measuring accurately the interfacial angles of crystals by measuring in each case the angle through which the crystal must be turned so that a beam of light, reflected to a certain point by a crystal surface, may be reflected to the same point by an adjoining surface.

Reflecting Goniometer. 1 Crystal; 2 Handle for adjusting first crystal face so as to reflect a light ray through Telescope 3; 5 Handle for turning Crystal so that second face reflects same ray; 4 Graduated Circle attached to, and moved by, 5, from which the angle of rotation is read; 6 Vernier.

reflecting octant or quadrant. Astron. Hadley's quadrant.

reflecting telescope. See TELESCOPE.

re·flec′tion (rē·flĕk′shŭn), n. [ME. reflexion, fr. OF. reflexion, fr. LL. reflexio.] 1. The return of objects, particles, or waves after impinging on surfaces; esp., the return of light or sound waves from surfaces. Reflection of waves may be regular, diffuse, or mixed, depending upon the nature of the reflecting surface. If the surface is smooth, in the sense that its inequalities are small in comparison with the wave length of the incident waves, regular, specular, or mirror reflection occurs; an incident ray gives rise to a reflected ray, each making the same angle with a line perpendicular to the surface at the point where the incident ray meets it. Both rays and the perpendicular line are in the same plane. Cf. ANGLE OF INCIDENCE, ANGLE OF REFLECTION. If the surface is not smooth, the reflected waves do not obey this law but are diffused, that is, they spread out in many directions. Diffuse, or irregular, reflection results when the roughness of the surface is so fine and even that the reflected waves obey the cosine law. As a rule the rough surface is not of this character, and spread, or mixed, reflection (intermediate between regular and diffuse) results. In general, all the energy in the incident waves is not reflected, some being transmitted into the body at whose surface reflection takes place, where it may be continued as a refracted wave or it may be absorbed. Total reflection occurs when waves in a medium meet a smooth reflecting surface separating the medium from another in which their velocity is greater, provided the angle of incidence is greater than a critical angle, which see.

2. Production of an image by or as by a mirror.

The eye sees not itself but by reflection. Shak.

3. Act of bending, or folding back. "The first reflections of a crooked tree are not to straightness." Jer. Taylor.

4. That which is produced by reflection. "Reflection of her wit." Shak. Specif.: a Reflected light or heat; hence, figuratively, reflected brilliance, as of wit, warmth, as of emotion, etc. b An image given back from a reflecting surface; a reflected counterpart.

As the sun in water we can bear, Yet not the sun, but his reflection, there. Dryden.

c An effect of an influence, as in commerce or art; as, reflections of the Arthurian legend in Italian literature.

5. Reproach cast; censure; blame; a statement, etc., that casts reproach or discredit; an imputation.

He died; and oh! may no reflection shed Its poisonous venom on the royal dead. Prior.

6. A thought, idea, or opinion formed, or a remark made, after attentive consideration or contemplation.

7. Mental consideration of some subject matter, idea, or purpose, often with a view to understanding or accepting it, or seeing it in its right relations; sometimes, contemplation of the contents of one's own mind or of one's own mental processes, as in introspection.

8. Obs. a Turning back; return. b Relation; connection. c Recollection.

9. a Anat. & Zool. The bending back of a part upon itself; a duplication; also, a reflected part. b Zool. An iridescence.

10. Physiol. Transference of an impulse from one nerve fiber to another, as in reflex action.

Syn. — Meditation, contemplation, rumination, cogitation, consideration, musing, thinking. See ANIMADVERSION.

☞ Reflection is the usual spelling, except that reflexion is common in British scientific usage. Cf. CONNECTION.

re·flec′tion·al, re·flex′ion·al (rē·flĕk′shŭn·ăl; -l), adj. Pertaining to, or caused by, reflection.

reflection factor. = COEFFICIENT OF REFLECTION.

re·flec′tion·ing, n. Reflection. Obs.

re·flec′tive (rē·flĕk′tĭv), adj. [Cf. F. réflectif. Cf. REFLEXIVE.] 1. That reflects; as: a Throwing back images, light, etc.; reflecting; as, a reflective mirror. b Self-conscious; involving reflection; as, modesty is a reflective emotion. c Characterized by, or characterizing, reflection as a state of mind; deliberative; thoughtful; self-conscious; concerned with ideas; as, reflective consciousness.

2. Of, pertaining to, or caused by, reflection; reflected.

3. Casting or conveying reflections, or imputations. Obs.

4. Gram. a Reflexive. b Reciprocal.

— re·flec′tive·ly, adv. — re·flec′tive·ness, n.

re·flec′tive, n. 1. A mirror. Rare.

2. pl. Reflective faculties or organs.

reflective judgment. Kantianism. A judgment which subsumes the particular under its appropriate universal or relates it to a general principle.

re·flec·tiv′i·ty (rē′flĕk·tĭv′ĭ·tĭ), n. 1. State or quality of being reflective; specif., Optics, the ratio of the intensity of the total reflected to that of the total incident light.

2. Photom. The coefficient of reflection for infinite thickness of the reflecting substance; — applied to thin metallic films and diffusing media, the reflectance of which varies appreciably with the thickness.

re·flec·tom′e·ter (-tŏm′ĕ·tĕr), n. A photometer for measuring reflection. — re·flec·tom′e·try (-trĭ), n.

re·flec′tor (rē·flĕk′tĕr), n. 1. One who or that which reflects. Specif.: a Obs. One who meditates or considers; also, one who causes reflections. b A polished surface or body for reflecting light or heat, as a mirror. c A reflecting telescope. See TELESCOPE. d A device for reflecting sound.

2. Automobiles. In head lamp, a highly polished curved metal piece, usually parabolic, to reflect the light forward.

3. Elec. Lighting. A device used in lighting to modify the distribution of light from an illuminant, to shade the source, to diffuse the light, and to produce artistic effects. The principal agencies used are polished metal, silvered or mirrored glass, porcelain-enameled metal, aluminum paint, and special forms and kinds of glass, as prismatic glass or opal glass. Reflectors are mainly used in industrial lighting and are usually either cone-shaped or bowl-shaped. An angle reflector distributes the light at some angle, as 30 degrees, from its mounting. It is used where overhead light is inadequate, for billboard lighting, etc. A parabolic reflector, or headlight, is shaped like a parabola and is designed to concentrate the light in a beam or to send it forth in parallel rays. The R L M dome reflector is a dome-shaped reflector designed for general lighting and to provide uniform illumination; — so called because adopted as a standard by manufacturers of reflectors and lamps. A translucent reflector is a partly transparent reflector used in semi-indirect lighting.

4. Photog. A movable and adjustable opaque screen, used to modify lighting, especially in portraiture.

5. Radio. A portion of an antenna array which serves to reverse the direction of part of the radio waves sent out from the radiating portion.

re·flec′to·scope (rē·flĕk′tō·skōp), n. See PROJECTOR, 6 b.

‖re·flet′ (rē·flē′), n. [F., reflection. See REFLEX.] Luster; special brilliancy of surface; — used esp. in ceramics.

re′flex (rē′flĕks; 66), adj. [L. reflexus, past part. of reflectere. See REFLECT.] 1. Bent, turned, or directed back; reflected, as light; reversed in direction or course; as, a reflex current.

Altruism . . . might be called reflex egoism. L. F. Ward.

2. Of thought or acts of thought, directed back upon the mind or its operations; attended by, consisting in, or produced by, introspection. Now Rare.

The reflex act of the soul, or the turning of the intellectual eye inward upon its own actions. Sir M. Hale.

3. Produced in reaction, in resistance, or in return; as, deflation is the reflex consequence of undue inflation.

4. Gram. Reflexive; — said of a pronoun. Earle.

5. Physiol. Of, pertaining to, or produced by, stimulus or excitation without the necessary intervention of consciousness; of the nature of, pertaining to, marked by, or connected with, a reflex or reflex action; as, a reflex center.

re′flex (rē′flĕks), n. [L. reflexus a bending back. See REFLECT.] 1. Reflected heat, light, color, or the like; reflection of heat, etc.; specif., light represented as reflected from an illuminated surface to one in shade, as in a painting. Now Rare.

2. A reflected likeness. Specif.: a A mirrored image. "Like the reflex of the moon Seen in a wave under green leaves." Shelley. b A copy that reflects an original in essential features, peculiar characteristics, or the like; often a concrete representation or expression.

Biron is . . perhaps, a reflex of Shakespeare himself. Pater.
To make legislation a reflex of the popular will. Lecky.

3. Obs. a Reflection, or consideration; introspection. b A reflection, or considered statement. c A look back or aside; a glancing reference; an allusion.

4. A reflex, or return action, operation, consequence or the like. Now Rare.

5. Physiol. An act, as a movement, performed involuntarily in consequence of a nervous impulse transmitted inward by afferent fibers from a receptor, or sense organ, to a nerve center and (commonly through adjustor neurones) outward by efferent fibers to an effector, as a muscle or gland; also, the whole process, called specif. reflex action, culminating in such an act.

6. Radio. Of or pertaining to a type (of receiving set) with an amplifier tube or tubes functioning simultaneously as both a radio-frequency and an audio-frequency amplifier. The current is led through a tube or tubes both before and after detection. When two or more tubes are thus used, the opposite order of use of the tubes for radio and audio amplification is called inverse reflex.

re·flex′ (rē·flĕks′), v. t. [L. reflexus, past part. of reflectere. See REFLECT.] 1. To bend, turn, or fold, back, to reflect; — chiefly in past part. Technical.

2. To reflect (light, an image, etc.); to mirror; to image; also, to throw or send (beams). Obs.

re′flex ac′tion. See REFLEX, n., 5.

reflex arc. Physiol. The complete path of the nervous impulse evoking a reflex.

reflex camera. A camera in which the image formed by the lens is, for focusing purposes, viewed in a mirror.

re·flexed′ (rē·flĕkst′; 66), adj. 1. Thrown back; reflected; produced by reflection. Obs.

2. Turned or directed backward; reflex. Obs.

3. Biol. Bent, turned, or folded; — said of material things. Cf. REFLEX, v., 1.

re·flex′i·ble (rē·flĕk′sĭ·b'l), adj. Capable of being reflected. — re·flex′i·bil′i·ty (-bĭl′ĭ·tĭ), n.

re′flex·ism (rē′flĕks·Iz′m), n. [reflex + -ism.] The limitation of psychological research to the study of reflexes.

re·flex′ive (rē·flĕk′sĭv), adj. [Cf. F. réflexif. Cf. REFLECTIVE.] 1. Capable of bending back. Rare.

2. Directed or turned back upon itself; reflex; — said of mental acts; given to, marked by, or capable of, reflection.

Assurance reflexive cannot be a divine faith. Hammond.

3. Reflective (in various senses).

4. Operating by way of return; of a reflex nature.

5. Gram. a Denoting an action that is directed back upon the agent or subject; as, a reflexive verb, either a verb with a pronoun object referring to the agent or subject as its antecedent (the witness perjured himself; I bethought myself) or a verb which carries its own implication of reflexivity (he keeps aloof; to wash in cold water). b Referring back to the subject. See REFLEXIVE PRONOUN.

Some languages have special inflections or other formal marks to show when a verb is used in a reflexive sense, such as the Greek "middle voice." H. Sweet.

6. Psychol. Designating, pertaining to, or consisting of a reflex or reflexes.

— re·flex′ive·ly, adv. — re·flex′ive·ness, re′flex·iv′i·ty (rē′flĕk·sĭv′ĭ·tĭ), n.

re·flex′ive, n. A reflexive pronoun or verb.

reflexive pronoun. Gram. A pronoun referring to the subject of the sentence, clause, or verbal phrase in which it stands (he hurt himself). In Anglo-Saxon, and frequently until the 18th century, a simple personal pronoun was used reflexively. This use is now only colloquial or archaic, except when the pronoun is part of an adverbial adjunct, where it is used to the exclusion of the compound form (I'll cut me a slice [Colloq.]; he feels anger welling up within him).

reflexive relation. Math & Logic. A relation such that a term may have this relation to itself; thus, identity and "in the same class with" are reflexive relations.

re′flex·og′e·nous (rē′flĕks·ŏj′ē·nŭs), adj. [See REFLEX; -GENOUS.] Causing or giving rise to reflexes.

re′flex·ol′o·gy (rē′flĕks·ŏl′ō·jĭ), n. [reflex + -ology.] The science or system which interprets behavior as consisting of simple and complex reflexes. — re·flex′o·log′i·cal (rē·flĕk′sō·lŏj′ĭ·kăl), adj. — re′flex·ol′o·gist (rē′flĕks·ŏl′ō·jĭst), n.

reflex zenith tube. Astron. A fixed vertical telescope over a reflecting surface of mercury, used for measuring zenith distances of stars which culminate very near the zenith, first employed at Greenwich on Gamma (γ) Draconis. An improved form now used at Washington employs photography.

re′flo·res′cence (rē′flō·rĕs′ĕns; -'ns), n. A blossoming anew. — re′flo·res′cent (-ĕnt; -'nt), adj.

re·flour′ish (rē·flŭr′ĭsh), v. i. [Cf. L. reflorescere, F. refleurir.] To flourish again. — re·flour′ish·ment, n.

re·flow′ (rē·flō′), v. i. To flow back; ebb. — n. (pron. rē′flō). Reflux; ebb.

re·fluc′tu·a′tion (rē·flŭk′tū·ā′shŭn), n. Refluence. Rare.

ref′lu·ence (rĕf′lū·ĕns; 242), n. Refluent action; reflux.

ref′lu·en·cy (rĕf′lū·ĕn·sĭ), n. Refluence. Rare.

ref′lu·ent (rĕf′lū·ĕnt), adj. [L. refluens, pres part. of refluere to flow back, fr. re- re- + fluere to flow. See FLUENT.] Flowing back; ebbing; having refluence, as of the tide.

And refluent through the pass of fear
The battle's tide was poured. Scott.

re′flux (rē′flŭks; formerly also rē·flŭks′), n. [re- + flux. See REFLUENT, FLUX.] 1. A flowing back, as the return of a fluid; ebb; refluence; as, the flux and reflux of the tides.

2. Something which has been refluxed.

3. Chem. A reflux apparatus, esp. a reflux condenser.

re′flux (rē′flŭks), adj. Of or pertaining to reflux; returning; ebbing; also, admitting or controlling reflux; as, a reflux tower in an oil field.

re·flux′ (rē·flŭks′), v. t. Chem. To heat under a reflux condenser.

reflux condenser. Chem. A condenser so placed (usually upright) that the condensed vapors flow back into the distilling flask. This arrangement permits of continued boiling of easily volatile substances with little loss from evaporation.

re·fluxed′ (rē·flŭkst′), adj. Returned or run back, as oil from a reflux tower.

reflux valve. A check valve; esp., a back-pressure valve.

re·foc′il·late (rē·fōs′ĭ·lāt), v. t. [LL. refocillatus, past part. of refocillare.] To refresh; revive. — re·foc′il·la′tion (-lā′shŭn), n. Both Now Rare.

re·font′ (rē·fŏnt′), n. [F. refonte.] A recast. Rare.

re·for′est (rē·fŏr′ĕst; -ĭst), v. t. & i. To renew forest cover on (denuded land) by natural seeding or artificial planting. — re′for·est·a′tion (rē′fŏr·ĕs·tā′shŭn; -ĭs-), n.

re·for′est·ize (-Iz), v. t. To reforest. — re′for·est·i·za′tion (rē′fŏr·ĕst·ĭ·zā′shŭn; -ĭ-zā′shŭn), n.

re·forge′ (rē·fôrj′; -fŏrj′), v. t. [re- + forge; cf. F. reforger.] To forge again or anew; hence, to fashion or fabricate anew; to make over. — re·forg′er (-fôr′jĕr; -fŏr′jĕr), n.

re·form′ (rē·fôrm′), v.; REFORMED′ (-fôrmd′); REFORM′ING. [OF. reformer, fr. L. reformare, fr. re- re- + formare to form, fr. forma form. See FORM.] Transitive: 1. To restore; renew; rebuild. Obs.

2. To put or change into a new and improved form or condition; to amend or improve by change of form, removal of faults or abuses, or the like, to restore to a former good state, or bring from bad to good; to induce or cause to abandon an evil manner of living and follow a good one; to change from worse to better; to end by enforcing or introducing a better method, course of action or behavior, or the like; to amend; correct; improve; as, to reform a profligate man; to reform an abuse.

The example alone of a vicious prince will corrupt an age; but that of a good one will not reform it. Swift.

3. Obs. a To censure; reprove; punish. b To redress; make good. c To direct; instruct. d To correct or emend. e To trim; prune; to improve by cutting.

4. Mil. a Obs. To form into a new organization, as by reduction in number; also, to reduce or disband, as a regiment. b To restore order among units, as after an attack.

—, Intransitive: To undergo reform; to amend or correct one's own character or habits.

Syn. — Emend, rectify, mend, repair; better, reclaim.

Ant. — Aggravate; degrade, debase; corrupt.

re·form′, n. [Cf. F. réforme.] 1. Amendment of what is defective, vicious, corrupt, or depraved, or a case of it; reformation; a removal or correction of an abuse, a wrong, or errors; as, to demand sweeping reforms; to urge reform of the calendar; a school for reform of young criminals.

2. Eccl. Of a religious order, a reformed branch or congregation, the observance being made stricter than that generally or previously followed. Rare.

Syn. — See REFORMATION.

re–form′ (rē·fôrm′), v. t. & i. To shape again or anew.

re·form′ (rē·fôrm′), adj. Pertaining to, or having to do with, reform; as, a reform wave swept the state.

Reform Act. Eng. a Also Reform Bill. Any of various acts (as 2 & 3 Wm. IV. c. 45, 1832; 30 & 31 Vict. c. 102, 1867; 48 & 49 Vict. c. 23, 1885) reforming the electoral system. The Act of 1832 provided for a more equitable distribution of parliamentary seats. It abolished most of the pocket boroughs and rotten boroughs and consolidated some of the smaller boroughs, thus gaining about 150 seats for distribution among the new great industrial centers, such as Manchester and Leeds, which before had been without any representation. It reformed the suffrage, adding about 500,000 voters to the lists. The Reform Act of 1867 added a million more voters by a redistribution of seats and by extension of the suffrage, esp. to the working classes in the cities. The acts of 1884–85 granted the rights already possessed by borough residents, to those in the counties, esp. to the farm laborers and it redistributed more than 100 seats to the advantage of the counties and larger cities. b = REPRESENTATION OF THE PEOPLE ACT.

ref′or·ma′do (rĕf′ôr·mā′dō), n. [Sp., fr. reformar, fr. L. reformare. See REFORM, v.] 1. Obs. exc. Hist. Mil. a An officer deprived of command by the reorganization or disbandment of his troops, but retaining rank and receiving full or half pay. b A volunteer serving without a commission, but with an officer's rank.

2. A reformed person. Obs.

3. A reformer or supporter of reform.

reflecting stereoscope. See STEREOSCOPE.

re·flec′tion·ist, n. See -IST. Rare.

re·flec′tion·less, adj. See -LESS.

reflector mirror. = PARABOLIC REFLECTOR. See REFLECTOR, 3.

re·fledge′, v. t., re·flee′, v. i. See RE-, 2.

re·flex′ion, re·flex′ion·al. Vars. of REFLECTION, REFLECTIONAL.

re·flex′i·ty, n. Reflection; reflexibility. Obs.

re·flex′iv. Reflexive. Ref. Sp.

re·flex′ly, adv. of REFLEX.

re·flex′ness, n. See -NESS.

re·flex′v. Reflexed. Ref. Sp.

re·fling′, v. t. See RE-, 1.

re·float′, v. i. & t. See RE-, 2. — re·float·a′tion, n.

re·flog′, v. t., re·flood′, v. t., re·floor′, v. t., re·flow′er (rē·flou′ĕr), v. i. & t. See RE-, 2.

ref′lu·ous, adj. [L. refluus.] Refluent. Obs.

re·flush′, v. i. & t. See RE-, 2.

re·flux′ion, n. [ML. refluxio.] Reflux. Obs.

re·fly′, v. i., re·fo′cus, v. t., re·fold′, v. t., re·fo·ment′, v. t., re·fool′, v. t., re·foot′, v. t., re′for·bid′, v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·force′, v. t. & i. [OF. reforcier.] To reinforce, or to be reinforced. Obs.

re·ford′, v. i. See RE-, 1.

re′fore·cast′, v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·for′est·ment, n. See -MENT.

re′for·es·tra′tion, n. Corrupt. of REFORESTATION.

re·for′feit, v. t. See RE-, 2. — re·for′feit·ure, n.

re′for·get′, v. t. See RE-, 2.

re′for·give′, v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·form′a·ble, adj. See -ABLE. — re·form′a·bil′i·ty, re·form′a·ble·ness, n.

re′for·made′ (rĕf′ôr·mād′), n. A reformado. Obs.

N O P Q R

ref′or·man′dum (rĕf′ôr·măn′dŭm), n.; pl. REFORMANDA (-dȧ). [L., neut. gerundive of reformare to reform.] A thing that is to be reformed.

Ref′or·ma′ti (rĕf′ôr·mā′tī), n. pl. [L., the reformed.] An austere branch of the Franciscan Order, approved by Clement VII in 1532. It maintained its separate existence until 1897 when it was merged with the Observants. See OBSERVANT, 3.

ref′or·ma′tion (rĕf′ôr·mā′shŭn), n. [F. réformation, fr. L. reformatio.] 1. Act of reforming, or state of being reformed; specif.: a Obs. Re-establishment (of peace). b Improvement in form or character; change from worse to better; correction or amendment, as by removal of faults or errors, introduction of better methods, or the like; as, the reformation of manners; reformation of the age; reformation of abuses. "Satire lashes vice into reformation." Dryden. c Obs. Mil. Disbandment; also, retirement (of an officer).

2. [cap.] Specif., in Eccl. Hist., the important religious movement in western Christendom beginning early in the 16th century, which resulted in the formation of the various Protestant churches. The movement in its inception was moral and religious, arising out of Luther's rediscovery of the Pauline doctrine of justification by faith rather than by works of the law. Hence Luther attacked the indulgence traffic based on the assumption that man can by good works earn superfluous merit, which may be transferred to others. The attack on indulgences enlisted the sympathy of the nationalists, like Ulrich von Hutten, who had long objected to the financial extortion of the papacy. The appeal to Paul and the Bible won the favor of the humanists, like Erasmus, who were engaged in the discovery and dissemination of the sources of Christian antiquity. The movement once begun and definitely repudiated by the Pope, went on to reject flatly the doctrine of transubstantiation, the veneration of the Virgin and the saints, and the practice of clerical celibacy. The Reformation soon hardened, and lost the support largely of the humanists and altogether of the peasants. Opposing sects speedily appeared, intolerant not only of the Church of Rome, but of each other. The outstanding leaders were Luther and Melanchthon in Germany, Zwingli in German Switzerland, Calvin and Beza in France and French Switzerland, Knox in Scotland, Latimer, Ridley, and Cranmer in England. The movement won many individual adherents, but did not take deep root in Italy and Spain.

Syn. — Regeneration. — REFORMATION, REFORM. REFORMATION denotes the act or state, REFORM, the fact or result. Reformation implies a more comprehensive change than reform, which commonly applies to the amendment of some particular condition or abuse; as the Reformation in Germany, the reformation of a criminal; tariff reform, the reform party.

Ant. — Lapse, corruption, debasement, disgrace.

re′–for·ma′tion (rē′fôr·mā′shŭn), n. A shaping or forming again or anew. See RE-, 2.

ref′or·ma′tion·al (rĕf′ôr·mā′shŭn·ăl; -′l), adj. Of or pertaining to reformation or the Reformation.

ref′or·ma′tion·ar′y (-ĕr′ĭ or, esp. Brit., -ēr·ĭ), adj. Reformational. Rare.

re·form′a·tive (rē·fôr′mȧ·tĭv), adj. Tending or disposed to reform. — re·form′a·tive·ly, adv. — -ness, n.

re–form′a·tive, re·form′a·tive (rē·fôr′mȧ·tĭv), adj. Having the quality or power of forming again.

re·form′a·to′ry [(rē·fôr′mȧ·tō′rĭ or, esp. Brit., -tĕr·ĭ), adj. That tend to or aim at reformation; intended for reformation; reformative; as, reformatory measures or schools.

re·form′a·to′ry, n.; pl. -RIES (-rĭz). A penal institution to which young offenders are committed, in which repressive and punitive measures are subordinated to training in industry and exercise of the physical, mental, and moral faculties.

Reform Bill. = REFORM ACT.

re·formed′ (rē·fôrmd′), adj. 1. Corrected; amended; restored to purity or excellence; — said, specif. [cap.], of the whole body of Protestant churches originating in the Reformation or, in a more restricted sense, of those churches formed in various European countries by Zwingli, Calvin, and others who separated from Luther on the doctrine of the Lord's Supper, etc., and carried the Reformation, as they claimed, to a higher point, or of their doctrines, etc. The Reformed Churches, specifically so called, are Presbyterian in polity and doctrine, but have different standards of faith and ecclesiastical terms from those of the Presbyterians. They have consistories instead of sessions, classes instead of presbyteries, and general synods instead of general assemblies. There are, in this specific sense of the term, three Reformed bodies in the United States: (1) the Reformed Church in America (Reformed Dutch or Dutch Reformed) tracing its origin to the Reformed Church of Holland, its first minister arriving in New Amsterdam in 1628; (2) the Reformed Church in the United States (Reformed German or Reformed), a descendant of the Reformed Church in Germany, its first coetus, or synod, in America being organized in 1747; it was united, in 1934, with the Evangelical Synod of North America (which see) to form the Evangelical and Reformed Church; (3) the Christian Reformed Church (which see). In titles of other churches in the U. S., Reformed has the more general sense.

2. Amended or improved, esp. in character and life.

3. Following, or restored to, a stricter observance; — said of a branch or congregation of a religious order.

4. Mil. Of an officer, left without a command and retired on half or full pay. Cf. REFORMADO, 1 a. Obs. exc. Hist.

Re·formed′, n. sing. & pl. A Protestant or Protestants.

Reformed Catholic Church. A denomination of Christians formed about 1880 by priests of the Roman Catholic Church, but now extinct. It renounced allegiance to the Pope and differed in doctrine, polity, and usage from the Roman Catholic Church.

Reformed Church in America, Free Magyar. A body formed in 1924 by those of the Hungarian Church in America who declined to enter into union with the Reformed Church in America.

Reformed Episcopal Church, the. A Christian church organized in 1873 by Rev. Dr. G. D. Cummins, formerly the assistant bishop of Kentucky in the Protestant Episcopal Church, who, disturbed by the growth of the Anglo-Catholic party, founded an independent church. It recognized but two orders in the ministry, presbyter and deacon, and holds that the episcopate is an office only, the bishop being simply first presbyter.

Reformed Judaism. A form of Judaism practiced chiefly in Western Europe and America, which does not require strict observance of all the traditional ritual and civil laws such as those concerning kashruth, abstention from all work on the Sabbath, recitation of the daily prayers, etc. It dates from the early 19th century in Germany, whence it spread to America. Reformed Judaism does not look for the coming of a personal Messiah nor to the establishment of a Jewish kingdom in the traditional sense.

Reformed Mennonite Church. See MENNONITE, n., Table.

Reformed Methodist Church. See METHODIST, n., 2.

Reformed Methodist Union Episcopal Church. See METHODIST, n., 2.

Reformed Presbyterian. A Cameronian.

Reformed Presbyterian Church in North America, General Synod; Reformed Presbyterian Church of Ireland; Reformed Presbyterian Church of Scotland. See PRESBYTERIAN, adj.

Reformed Presbytery. See PRESBYTERIAN, adj.

reformed spelling. Any of several methods of spelling English words that use letters (or phonetic characters) with more phonetic consistency than conventional English spelling, and, usually, discard some of the silent letters; as: thoro for thorough; markt for marked; laps for lapse; limnd for limned.

Reformed Zion Union Apostolic Church. See METHODIST, n., 2.

re·form′er (rē·fôr′mĕr), n. 1. One who effects or tries to effect a reformation or amendment; one who labors for, or urges, reform.

2. a Eccl. Hist. One of those who commenced or promoted the reformation of religion in the 16th century. b pl. [cap.] The Disciples of Christ (Campbellites); — so called in the early years of their history.

3. An advocate or promoter of political reform; specif.: a In Great Britain, an advocate or promoter of parliamentary reform; esp., a participator in the reform movement in 1831–32. b [cap.] A member of a reform party, as in Canada or New Zealand.

4. Of a writing, a reviser; an amender. Rare.

re–form′er (rē·fôr′mĕr), n. One who shapes forms again or anew.

re·form′er (rē·fôr′mĕr), n. = REFORMADO, 1 a. Obs.

re·form′ism, n. [See -ISM.] The doctrine of reform, esp. of social reform.

re·form′ist, n. 1. One who advocates or supports ecclesiastical, political, or social, reform; a reformer; specif.: a A promoter or supporter of the Reformation. b A promoter or supporter of parliamentary reform.

2. Eccl. A member of a reformed branch or congregation of a religious order. — re·form′ist, ref′or·mis′tic (rĕf′ôr·mĭs′tĭk), adj.

reform school. Penol. A reformatory for boys or girls.

re·found′ (rē·found′), v. t. To found, or establish, again.

re·found′, v. t. To found, or cast, again.

re·found′ (rē·found′), v. t. [See REFUND to pour back.] To refund; restore; redress; to place for redress. Obs. Scot.

re·found′ (rē·found′), past tense & past part. of REFIND, v. t.

re·found′er, n. One who refounds.

re·fract′ (rē·frăkt′), v. t.; -FRACT′ED; -FRACT′ING. [L. refractus, past part. of refringere, fr. re- re- + frangere to break. See FRACTURE; cf. REFRAIN, n., SAXIFRAGE.] 1. To cast or send back; to reflect. Obs.

2. To break up or down; to impair; diminish. Obs.

3. Med. & Optics. To determine the refracting power of or abnormality of refraction in (an eye, glasses, etc.).

4. Physics. To subject (rays of light, etc.) to refraction. See REFRACTION.

re·fract′, adj. Refracted. Rare.

re·fract′ed (rē·frăk′tĕd; -tĭd; 119), past tense & past part. of REFRACT. Hence: adj. Specif.: Bot. & Zool. Bent backward angularly, as if half-broken. — re·fract′ed·ly, adv. — re·fract′ed·ness, n.

re·frac′tile (rē·frăk′tĭl; 155), adj. Capable of refracting; refractive. — re·frac·til′i·ty (rē′frăk·tĭl′ĭ·tĭ), n.

re·fract′ing, pres. part. & verbal n. of REFRACT.

refracting angle of a prism. Optics. The dihedral angle of a prism included between the planes of the two sides through which the refracted beam passes.

refracting system. = REFRACTIVE SYSTEM.

refracting telescope. See TELESCOPE.

re·frac′tion (rē·frăk′shŭn), n. [LL. refractio.] 1. Act of refracting, or state of being refracted; specif.: a Obs. A breaking open or up; also, rebound. b Physics. The deflection from a straight path suffered by a ray of light, heat, sound, or the like, in passing obliquely from one medium into another in which its velocity is different, as from air into water or from a denser to a rarer layer of air. See INDEX OF REFRACTION. If the medium entered is anisotropic double refraction usually occurs. See DOUBLE REFRACTION, POLARIZATION, 2. In ordinary refraction, or single refraction, the ray is not divided, although, unless the light is monochromatic, it suffers dispersion. See DISPERSION, 4.

Refraction. A Section of Prism, showing Refraction. The Incident Ray od is refracted at d and again at k, the Eye (h) seeing a virtual image of o at o′; oeo′ Angle of Deviation. B Section of Vessel, lower part filled with Water; s I Ray of Light in straight line; spr Ray of Light refracted; Qq Perpendicular; spQ Angle of Incidence; rpq Angle of Refraction.

Refraction out of the rarer medium into the denser is made towards the perpendicular. Sir I. Newton.

c Astron. The change in the direction of a ray of light, and hence in the apparent position of a celestial body from which it emanates, due to its passage through the earth's atmosphere; — disting. as atmospheric refraction, or astronomical refraction. Also, correction to be applied on account of this, to the apparent position of a celestial body.

d See TERRESTRIAL REFRACTION.

2. A rebate, as on a bill. Obs.

3. Figuratively, the action of distorting or its result; also, a distorted or imperfect image, copy, or type.

re·frac′tion·al (rē·frăk′shŭn·ăl; -′l), adj. Of or pertaining to refraction.

re·frac′tion·ate (-āt), v. t.; -AT′ED (-āt′ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -AT′ING. [re- + fractionate.] To treat again by fractional distillation.

refraction circle. Optics. An instrument with a graduated circle to measure refraction.

re·frac′tion·ist, n. One skilled in the practical application of the laws of refraction, esp. to the determination of errors of refraction in the eye.

re·frac′tive (rē·frăk′tĭv), adj. [See REFRACT.] Serving, or having power, to refract, or turn from a direct course; of, pertaining to, or due to, refraction. — re·frac′tive·ly, adv. — re·frac′tive·ness, n.

refractive index. Optics. See INDEX OF REFRACTION.

refractive power. Photom. A measure of the effect of a body in refracting a ray of light, expressed by its index of refraction.

refractive system. Optics. Any optical system in which lenses instead of mirrors are used for focusing light, forming an image, or changing the path of a beam of light by refraction; specif., a mode of lighting in lighthouses by a central lamp surrounded by a combination of lenses; — called also dioptric, or refracting, system.

re′frac·tiv′i·ty (rē′frăk·tĭv′ĭ·tĭ), n. [From REFRACTIVE.] Optics. Refractive power; refractiveness. It is equal to the difference between the index of refraction and unity. Specific refractivity is the ratio of this difference to the density.

re′frac·tom′e·ter (-tŏm′ē·tĕr), n. [refraction + -meter.] Physics. Any of various instruments used for measuring refraction, as the interferometer, reflectometer, etc.

re′frac·tom′e·try (-trĭ), n. The art or process of measuring refraction; the use of the refractometer. — re·frac′to·met′ric (rē·frăk′tō·mĕt′rĭk), adj.

re·frac′tor (rē·frăk′tĕr), n. Anything that refracts; specif., Optics, a refracting telescope (see TELESCOPE).

re·frac′to·ri·ness (-tō·rĭ·nĕs; -nĭs; 119), n. State, condition, or quality of being refractory; esp., the capacity of a material to resist a high temperature.

re·frac′to·ry (rē·frăk′tō·rĭ), adj. [See REFRACT.] 1. Obstinate; contumacious; stubborn; unmanageable; as, a refractory child, patient, or disposition; specif., of or pertaining to refractory persons or their treatment.

2. Able to resist; insusceptible, as to disease; immune.

3. Resisting ordinary treatment; difficult to fuse, corrode, reduce, draw out, or the like; as, a refractory ore, metal, brick, or mortar.

4. Physiol. Unresponsive, as to stimuli.

Syn. — Perverse, intractable, unruly, unyielding, ungovernable. See OBSTINATE.

Ant. — Complaisant, meek, manageable, tractable. See OBEDIENT.

re·frac′to·ry, n.; pl. -RIES (-rĭz). 1. A refractory person or thing.

2. A refractory material; specif.: a One specially resistant to the action of heat and hence used for lining furnaces, etc., as fire clay, magnesite, or graphite. b One resistant to corrosion by chemical agents and used in chemical plants, laboratories, etc.

3. Ceramics. A material or compound capable of enduring a high temperature without softening.

4. Metal. A nonmetallic substance fusible with difficulty and suitable for saggers, crucibles, construction or lining of furnaces, etc., where high temperatures must be withstood. Refractories are acid (as silica and fire clay), basic (as magnesite and dolomite), or neutral (as chromite and graphite) to correspond with the character of the charge with which they will be in contact, thus preventing chemical union therewith.

refractory period or phase. Physiol. The brief period immediately following the response of a muscle, nerve, or other irritable element before it recovers its capacity to make a second response.

refractory rock. A naturally occurring rock material which has refractory qualities, and is capable of withstanding high temperatures, used in the form of blocks for lining certain types of furnaces.

refractory ware. Clayware so composed as to resist a high temperature, as in saggers, crucibles, blocks and pots for glass furnaces, blast-furnace linings, etc.

re·frac′ture (rē·frăk′tŭr), v. t. Surg. To break again, as a bone badly set. — re·frac′ture, n.

ref′ra·ga·ble (rĕf′rȧ·gȧ·b'l), adj. [ML. refragabilis, fr. L. refragari to oppose.] Rare. That may be controverted. — ref′ra·ga·bil′i·ty (-bĭl′ĭ·tĭ), n. — ref′ra·ga·ble·ness, n.

re·frain′ (rē·frān′), v.; -FRAINED′ (-frānd′); -FRAIN′ING. [ME. refreinen, fr. OF. refrener, fr. L. refrenare; influenced prob. by OF. refraindre to restrain, moderate, fr. (assumed) VL. refrangere, for L. refringere to break up, break (see REFRACT). L. refrenare is fr. re- back + frenum bridle; perh. akin to L. frendere to gnash the teeth, to grind. See GRIND.] Transitive: 1. To hold back; to restrain; to check; to put a restraint upon; to curb; govern. Archaic.

> Thou refrainest the spirit of princes. R. M. Benson.
> Refrain thy foot from their path. Prov. i. 15.

2. To abstain from, to give up; avoid; shun. Obs.

——, Intransitive: To keep oneself from doing, feeling, indulging in, etc., something contextually implied; also, with from, to hold aloof; to forbear; abstain; as, let us all refrain; to refrain from tears or from smoking.

Syn. — See ABSTAIN.

re·frain′, n. [OF., fr. refraindre to break, modulate, restrain, fr. (assumed) VL. refrangere, fr. L. refringere, lit., to break off; cf. Pr. refranh a refrain. See REFRACT, REFRAIN, v.] The burden of a song; a phrase or verse which recurs regularly, esp. at the end of each stanza or division of a poem or song. Also, the musical setting of such a phrase or verse.

re·frain′er, n. One who refrains.

re·frain′ment (-mĕnt), n. Act of refraining; abstinence.

re·fran′gent (rē·frăn′jĕnt), adj. [Cf. REFRANGIBLE, and L. refringens, pres. part. of refringere to break.] Refracting.

re·fran′gi·ble (-frăn′jĭ·b'l), adj. [re- + L. frangere to break. Cf. REFRACT.] Capable of being refracted, as rays of light. — re·fran′gi·bil′i·ty (-bĭl′ĭ·tĭ), re·fran′gi·ble·ness, n.

ref′re·na′tion (rĕf′rē·nā′shŭn), n. [L. refrenatio. See REFRAIN, v.] 1. Act of restraining or refraining. Obs.

2. Astrol. The failure of an expected planetary aspect to occur because one of the planets becomes retrograde.

---

ref′or·ma′tion·ist, n. See -IST. ref′or·ma′tion-proof′ (66), adj. See -PROOF. [Obs.] re·form′a·tist, n. A reformer. re·form′a·tiv. Reformative. Ref. Sp. [former. Obs.] ref′or·ma′tor, n. [L.] A re-re·formd′. Reformed. Ref. Sp. re·form′ed·ly, adv. of REFORMED.
re·form′er·ess, n. See -ESS.
re·form′ing·ly, adv. of reforming, pres. part.
re·form′proof′, adj. See -PROOF.
re·for′mu·late, v. t. & i., re′for·mu·la′tion, n., re′for·sake′, v. t., re′for·ti·fi·ca′tion, n., re·for′ti·fy, v. t. See RE-, 2.
re·for′ward, v. t., re′foun·da′tion, n. See RE-, 2. re·fract′a·ble, adj. See -ABLE.
re·frac′ta·ry, adj. & n. [L. refractarius.] Refractory. — re·frac′ta·ri·ly, adv. — re·frac′ta·ri·ness, n. All Obs.
re·frac′tiv. Refractive. Ref. Sp. re·frac′to-. A combining form for refraction.
re·frac′to·ri·ly, adv. of REFRACTORY. [tory. Obs.] re′frac·to′ri·ous, adj. Refracref′ra·gate, v. t. & i. [L. refragatus, past part. of refragari.] To oppose; gainsay. Obs. ref′rai·na′tion, n. Astrol. Refrenation. Obs. re·frained′. Refrained. Ref. Sp.
re·frame′, v. t. See RE-, 2. ref′ra·na′tion (rĕf′rȧ·nā′shŭn), n. Astrol. Refrenation. Obs. re·frayne′, v. t. [re- + frayne.] To question. Obs.
re·freeze′, v. t. & i. See RE-, 2.
re·freid′, v. t. & i. [OF. refreidier, also refroidier.] To make, or become, cold. Obs. refreit. ✝ REFREID, REFRET. refrene. ✝ REFRAIN.
re·fren′zy, v. t. See RE-, 2.

‖re·fres'co (rē·frĕs'kō), n. [Sp.] A refreshment, as food; esp., a cooling drink. Sp. Amer.

re·fresh' (rē·frĕsh'), v.; -FRESHED' (-frĕsht'); -FRESH'ING. [ME. refreshen, refreschen, fr. OF. refreschier, or refreschir (cf. OF. rafraischir, rafreschir, F. rafraîchir), fr. re- re- + fres fresh (F. frais). See FRESH, adj.] Transitive: 1. To make fresh or fresher, as by wetting or cooling; to restore strength, spirit, animation, or the like, to, as through food or rest; to relieve from fatigue or depression; to enliven anew; to reinvigorate; reanimate; as, sprinkling refreshes the grass; sleep refreshes the body and the mind. Chaucer.

For they have refreshed my spirit and yours. 1 Cor. xvi. 18.

2. To revive, strengthen, or the like, by renewing supplies; to replenish; to furnish with what will restore or quicken; to provide with refreshment or a new supply; as, the fire needs refreshing; to refresh one's memory before an examination; to refresh the batteries monthly. Hence: a To furnish, as with supplies or reinforcements. Obs. b Rare. To freshen the memory of (a person).

3. To freshen up, as by cleaning; restore; renew; renovate; as, to refresh the lace on a dress.

4. To make (a surface) fresh, as by cutting; specif., Surg., to make raw again by removing the epithelial covering, as the edges of a wound in order to hasten the healing process.

—, Intransitive: 1. To become fresh again; to revive.

2. To give or supply refreshment.

3. To refresh oneself; to take refreshment, esp. drink.

4. To lay in fresh provisions, as a ship.

Syn. — Freshen, invigorate, revive, recreate, cheer.

Ant. — Jade, weary, fatigue, exhaust, fag.

re·fresh', n. Refreshment. Obs.

re·fresh'ant (rē·frĕsh'ănt), n. A refresher; something that invigorates or reanimates.

re·fresh'er (-ēr), n. 1. Something or someone that refreshes, replenishes, or revives; specif.: a Colloq. A drink. b A reminder.

2. Law. An extra fee paid to counsel in a case adjourned from one term to another or unusually protracted.

re·fresh'ful (-fōōl; -fl), adj. Full of power to refresh; refreshing. — re·fresh'ful·ly, adv.

re·fresh'ing, pres. part. & verbal n. of REFRESH. Specif.: adj. That gives one a rarely pleasant or agreeable sensation; also, heartening. — re·fresh'ing·ly, adv. — re·fresh'ing·ness, n.

re·fresh'ment (rē·fresh'mĕnt), n. [OF. refreschement.] 1. Act of refreshing, or state of being refreshed. Specif.: a Spiritual restoration or healing; reanimation of the soul. Cf. REFRIGERIUM a. b Restoration of strength, spirit, vigor, or liveliness, esp. after depression or fatigue; as, to seek refreshment at the theater or in the country.

Yet, for him there's refreshment even in toil. Keats.

2. That which refreshes; means of restoration or reanimation; specif., food or drink; in pl. a light meal; a lunch; as, to serve refreshments.

3. pl. Fresh supplies, as of provisions. Obs.

re·fresh'ment, adj. Used for the service or sale of refreshment; as, a refreshment booth, car, counter, room, or stand.

Refreshment Sunday. Eccl. Mid-Lent Sunday; — prob. so called because the gospel for the day relates the miracle of feeding the five thousand (John vi. 1–14).

re·frig'er·ant (rē·frĭj'ēr·ănt), adj. [F. or L.; F. réfrigérant, fr. L. refrigerans, pres. part. of refrigerare. See REFRIGERATE.] Cooling; allaying heat or fever; refreshing.

re·frig'er·ant, n. A refrigerant agent or agency. Specif.: a A medicine or an application for allaying fever, or its symptoms. Also figurative. "A refrigerant to passion." Blair. b Any substance, as ice, liquid air, ammonia, or carbon dioxide, used in refrigeration.

re·frig'er·ate (-āt), v.; -AT'ED (-āt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -AT'ING (-āt'ĭng). [L. refrigeratus, past part. of refrigerare, fr. re- re- + frigerare to make cool, fr. frigus, frigoris, coolness. See FRIGID.] Transitive: 1. To cause to become cool; to make or keep cold or cool; specif., to freeze or chill (food) for preservation.

2. To extract heat from (a body or substance) by lowering the temperature of the body and by keeping its temperature below that of its surroundings.

—, Intransitive: To become cool or cold.

re·frig'er·ate (-āt), adj. Refrigerated; also, refrigerant.

re·frig'er·at'ing (-āt'ĭng), pres. part. & verbal n. of REFRIGERATE.

refrigerating engine or machine. Mach. A refrigerator, working in a reversed heat-engine cycle, for utilizing mechanical energy to extract heat from a substance (see JOULE'S CYCLE). In a common type ammonia gas is compressed, and, after cooling, is allowed to expand, thereby becoming very cold so that brine circulating through it in pipes is cooled to below 32° F. See REFRIGERATION, ICE MAKING, VACUUM MACHINE, HOUSEHOLD SYSTEM.

refrigerating engineering. See ENGINEERING, n., 1. — refrigerating engineer.

re·frig'er·a'tion (rē·frĭj'ēr·ā'shŭn), n. [L. refrigeratio.] 1. Act or process of refrigerating, or state of being refrigerated; a cooling or becoming cold. Besides cooling with water or ice, there are other methods, as the dissolving of certain salts in water, evaporation of a volatile liquid, or expansion of a compressed gas. Mechanical refrigeration is the act or process of removing heat by means of a refrigerating engine. Electric refrigeration utilizes a compression machine driven by an electric motor. Gas refrigeration makes use of an absorption machine in which the refrigerant is heated by a gas flame. The capacity of mechanical refrigeration systems is expressed in tons of refrigeration, a standard ton of refrigeration being the extraction of 288,000 B.T.U's (the latent heat of one ton of ice).

Fig. 2. Gas refrigeration. Ammonia vapor driven from an aqueous solution in Generator (2) by heat from Gas Flame (1) passes through Analyzer (3) (where some of the water vapor is condensed) and Rectifier (4), where the remaining water vapor is condensed, to the lower of two ammonia condensers (5, 12) where the ammonia vapor liquefies before passing to the Freezing Coil or Evaporator (6) where the ammonia, in the presence of hydrogen gas evaporates with absorption of heat from the surroundings. The mixture of ammonia and hydrogen gases flows through the Gas Heat Exchanger (7) to the Absorber (8) where the ammonia is absorbed in water. The hydrogen returns through Gas Heat Exchanger (7). In the latter an exchange of heat takes place, warming the ammonia-hydrogen mixture and cooling the returning hydrogen. The ammonia absorbed in water returns through the Liquid Heat Exchanger (9) where it cools the incoming weak aqueous solution) and the Analyzer (3) to the Generator. Heat liberated in the Absorber is carried away by vaporization of methyl chloride in the Coil (10) surrounding the absorber, the vapor returning to the coil after liquefaction in a Condenser (11). In case not all of the ammonia vapor condenses in the ammonia condensers, the vapor passes from the upper Condenser (12) through an Equalizer (13), a device which allows the pressure in the Pressure Tank (14) to become equal to that in the rest of the system. ¶More hydrogen is driven into the absorber, raising the pressure of the whole system and causing the ammonia vapor to liquefy. 15 Standpipe for Liquid Ammonia; 16 Pump Tube. The unit is air cooled. a Liquid Ammonia; b Ammonia Gas; c Hydrogen Gas; d Hydrogen and Ammonia Gas; e Strong Liquid; f Weak Liquid; g Methyl Chloride.

2. Reduction of heat; specif., Med., a lowering of the temperature of the body for therapeutic purposes, as by immersion in a cold bath.

re·frig'er·a'tive (rē·frĭj'ēr·ā'tĭv; -ă·tĭv), adj. [Cf. F. réfrigératif.] Tending to cool; cooling; allaying heat. — n. Med. A refrigerant. Rare.

re·frig'er·a'tor (rē·frĭj'ēr·ā'tĕr), n. 1. That which refrigerates or makes cold; that which keeps cool. Specif.: a A box or room for keeping food or other articles cool. See REFRIGERATION, 1. b An apparatus for rapidly cooling heated liquids or vapors, connected with a still, etc. c Thermodyn. = CONDENSER, n., 2 f.

2. One who attends to refrigerating apparatus.

refrigerator car. Railroads. A freight car constructed and used as a refrigerator in transportation of fresh meats, etc.

re·frig'er·a·to'ry (-ă·tō'rĭ or, esp. Brit., -tĕr·ĭ), adj. [L. refrigeratorius.] Refrigerative; cooling.

re·frig'er·a·to'ry, n.; pl. -RIES (-rĭz). [Cf. MF. réfrigératoire.] That which refrigerates or cools. Specif.: a In distillation, a vessel filled with cold water, surrounding the worm, the vapor in which is thereby condensed. b The chamber, or tank, in which ice is formed, in an ice machine. c A place of cooling or getting cooled.

‖re·fri·ge'ri·um (rē·frĭ'rĭ·jē'rĭ·ŭm), n. [LL.] a Refreshment; specif. in liturgies, etc., spiritual restoration; heavenly life; hence, Paradise. b Loosely, a prayer for the repose of a soul. c A cooling respite for one in hell. South.

re·frin'gen·cy (rē·frĭn'jĕn·sĭ), n. Also re·frin'gence (-jĕns). Refractivity.

re·frin'gent (rē·frĭn'jĕnt), adj. [L. refringens, pres. part. of refringere. See REFRACT.] Refractive; refracting.

reft (rĕft), adj. [See REAVE to burst.] Cleft.

reft, past tense & past part. of 1st REAVE.

reft (rĕft). Var. of RIFT, a cleft.

ref'uge (rĕf'ūj), n. [OF., fr. L. refugium, fr. re- + fugere to flee. See FUGITIVE; cf. SUBTERFUGE.] 1. Shelter or protection from danger, distress, annoyance, etc.; as, to seek refuge in flight; to take refuge in the home of a friend; a house of refuge.

2. That which, or one who, shelters or protects from danger, distress, calamity, etc.; a shelter; an asylum; a place inaccessible to an enemy. Specif.: a A home for the destitute, fallen, or the like. b A sanctuary; often, a sanctuary for birds or wild animals. c A safety zone for pedestrians crossing a street in heavy traffic, often a central portion raised above the street level and paved. d A mountain hut or cabin erected to serve as sleeping quarters for mountaineers.

3. A means of resort, esp. for help in difficulty; resource; a recourse; also, an excuse; plea; pretext.

Puts his last refuge all in heav'n and prayer. Pope.

Patriotism is the last refuge of a scoundrel. Johnson.

Syn. — Protection, shelter, asylum, retreat, sanctuary, covert.

ref'uge (rĕf'ūj), v. t. & i. To give or take refuge; to shelter; to protect or seek protection. Now Rare.

ref'uge. Var. of REFUSE. Obs. exc. Dial.

ref'u·gee' (rĕf'ū·jē'), n. [F. réfugié, fr. se réfugier to take refuge. See REFUGE, n.] 1. One who flees to a place of safety; rarely, a fugitive, as from justice.

2. Esp., one who flees to a foreign power or country for safety; as, the French refugees after the revocation (1685) of the Edict of Nantes.

3. U. S. Hist. a = COWBOY, 2. b A Unionist who fled from the South to take refuge in the Northern States during the Civil War.

ref'u·gee' (rĕf'ū·jē'; 66), adj. That is a refugee; as, refugee slaves, Belgians, or teachers.

ref'u·gee', v. i. To flee as a refugee.

ref'u·gee'ism (rĕf'ū·jē'ĭz'm), n. State of being a refugee.

re·fulge' (rē·fŭlj'), v. i. To be refulgent. Humorous.

re·ful'gence (rē·fŭl'jĕns), n. Also re·ful'gen·cy (-jĕn·sĭ). [L. refulgentia. See REFULGENT.] Quality or state of being refulgent; brilliancy; splendor; radiance.

re·ful'gent (-jĕnt), adj. [L. refulgens, pres. part. of refulgere to flash back, to shine bright, fr. re- re- + fulgere to shine. See FULGENT.] Casting a bright light; radiant; brilliant; resplendent; shining; splendid; as, refulgent beams. — re·ful'gent·ly, adv. — re·ful'gent·ness, n.

re·fund' (rē·fŭnd'), v. t.; -FUND'ED (-ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -FUND'ING. [re- + fund.] To fund again or anew; specif., Finance, to borrow, usually by the sale of bonds, in order to pay off an existing loan with the proceeds. Cf. FUND, v. t.

re·fund' (rē·fŭnd'), v. i. -FUND'ED; -FUND'ING. [OF. or L.; OF. refunder, F. refonder, fr. L. refundere, fr. re- re- + fundere to pour. See POUND to cast; cf. REFOUND to cast again, REFUSE to deny.] Transitive: 1. To pour back; to give back. Now Rare.

Were the humors of the eye tinctured with any color, they would refund that color upon the object. Ray.

2. To return (money) in restitution, repayment, balancing of accounts, etc.; as, to refund the price of a defective machine; to refund a hundred dollars excess on a tax.

3. To supply again with funds; to reimburse.

—, Intransitive: To make repayment.

re·fund' (rē·fŭnd'; rē'fŭnd), n. Act of refunding, or that which is refunded.

re·fund'er, n. One who refunds.

re·fund'ing bond. Finance. A bond issued to pay off an older issue.

re·fur'bish (rē·fŭr'bĭsh), v. t. To brighten or freshen up; to make as if new; to renovate; to renew; as, to refurbish an old house, an antique dresser, or a forgotten doctrine. — re·fur'bish·ment, n.

re·furl' (-fŭrl'), v. t. To furl again or anew.

re·fus'a·ble (rē·fūz'ă·b'l), adj. [Cf. MF. refusable. See REFUSE.] Capable of being refused; admitting of refusal; Obs., meriting refusal or rejection.

re·fus'al (-ăl; -'l), n. 1. Act of refusing; denial of anything demanded, solicited, or offered for acceptance; as, a convention's or a nominee's refusal of a nomination.

2. The opportunity or right of refusing or taking before others; the choice of refusing or taking, esp. as to a purchase; as, to give one the refusal of a house.

3. One who or that which is refused or rejected. Rare.

4. Card Playing. a In écarté, a refusing by the dealer to allow a discard and the drawing of cards. b At seven-up, a refusing to give the point when a player begs (see BEG, v. i., 3), running the cards instead.

5. Engin. a Stoppage of a bolt, pile, etc., because of resistance greater than the driving force. b The point of stoppage. c The distance a pile sinks under a single blow as indicating a maximum resistance. d The total distance a pile sinks under a volley of blows.

Syn. — Rejection, declination.

Ant. — Consent; acceptance, agreement.

re·fuse' (rē·fūz'), v.; -FUSED' (-fūzd'); -FUS'ING (-fūz'ĭng). [OF. refuser, fr. (assumed) VL. refusare to refuse, v. freq. of L. refundere to pour back, give back, fling back. See REFUND to repay, FUSE to melt; cf. RUSE.] Transitive: 1. To keep free from; to avoid; to shun. Obs.

2. To decline to accept; to reject; specif., to decline to have as wife or (now almost exclusively) as husband.

The cunning workman never doth refuse
The meanest tool that he may chance to use. Herbert.

3. To decline to submit to or undergo; to decline to do, give, or grant; to deny; with following infinitive or gerund, to decline; as, he refused to help his friend; to refuse one permission; to refuse aid to one.

That never yet refused your best. Chaucer.

4. To renounce; to give up; to abandon; to cast off; to decline to bear. "Refuse thy name." Shak.

5. To decline to jump or leap over, as a fence or ditch; — said of a horse.

6. Obs. a To put, thrust, or drive, away; to expel. b To deny (one) permission (to); to prevent (from).

7. Card Playing. To fail to follow suit to (the suit led) because out of it.

8. Mil. To throw or bend back, or cause to keep back (as the center, a wing, or a flank), out of the regular alignment, and usually at an angle to it, when about to engage; as, the right was refused along a crossroad.

—, Intransitive: 1. To decline to accept; to withhold compliance or permission; to make a refusal, as in écarté.

If ye refuse, . . . ye shall be devoured with the sword. Is. i. 20.

2. To decline to jump; — said of a horse.

3. Engin. To exhibit refusal; — said of a pile.

Syn. — Deny, withhold. See DECLINE.

Ant. — Accept; allow, grant. See TAKE.

re·fuse' stays. Naut. To miss stays.

re·fuse' (rē·fūz'), n. [ME. refus, fr. OF. refus refusal.] The accent is retained on the second syllable under influence of the verb. See REFUSE, v. t.] Refusal. Dial.

ref'use (rĕf'ūs), adj. [ME. refus, prob. fr. OF. refuse (F. refusé), past part., refused, but later influenced by refuse worthless matter.] Refused; rejected; thrown aside or left as worthless or of no value; worthless; useless; as, refuse matter, flax, or vegetables.

ref'use, n. [ME. refuse, refuce, prob. fr. OF. refus refusal, also, that which is refused. See REFUSE to deny.] That which is refused or rejected as useless; worthless matter; rubbish; scum; dregs, leavings, etc. In the U. S. the term refuse, with reference to the waste of municipalities, is usually used to include practically all wastes except garbage and ashes; in England, all wastes except sewage.

Syn. — Junk, dross, litter, trash, lumber.

re·fuse' (rē·fūz'), v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·fus'er (rē·fūz'ēr), n. One who or that which refuses, as a horse that will not jump a fence, etc.; esp., a recusant.

re·fu'sion (rē·fū'zhŭn), n. [F. réfusion, fr. LL. refusio an overflowing, restitution.] Act of pouring back; refusion; refundment. Obs.

re·fu'sion (rē·fū'zhŭn), n. See RE-, 2.

---

re·fresh'en, v. t. See RE-, 2. Rare. — re·fresh'en·er, n. Rare.

re·fresh'. Refreshed. Ref. Sp.

re·fret', n. [OF., fr. L. refractus, past part. See REFRAIN, n., REFRACT.] A refrain. Obs.

ref'ri·cate, v. t. [L. refricatus, past part. of refricare.] To rub open again. — ref'ri·ca'tion, n. Both Obs. [Ref. Sp.] re·frig'er·a'tiv. Refrigerative.

re·frig'er·y (rē·frĭj'ēr·ĭ), n. [LL. refrigerium.] Cooling (from the heat of torment). Obs.

re·fright', v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·fringe', v. t. [L. refringere. See REFRACT.] To infringe upon; drive back; refract. Obs.

re·froid', v. t. [OF. refroidier. Cf. REFREID.] To cool. Obs.

re·front', v. t., re·frus'trate, v. t., re·fu'el, v. t., re·fu'el·ing, adj. & n. See RE-, 2.

ref'u·gee'ship, n. See -SHIP.

ref'u·gy, n. [L. refugium.] Refuge. Obs.

re·func'tion, v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·fund'ment, n. See -MENT.

re·fur'nish, v. t., re·fur'nish·ment, n. See RE-, 2.

refuse destructor. See DESTRUCTOR, 2.

refuse lac. See LAC, n., 1.

re·fus'ing (rē·fūz'ĭng), pres. part. & verbal n. of REFUSE. — re·fus'ing·ly, adv.

N O P Q R

re·fu′sive (rē·fū′sĭv), adj. [Cf. REFUSE to deny.] Reflective. Rare.

re·fut′al (rē·fūt′ăl), n. Act of refuting; refutation.

ref′u·ta′tion (rĕf′ū·tā′shŭn), n. [L, refutatio.] Act of refuting; disproof; proof of falsehood or error; overthrowing by argument or proof; confutation.

Some of his blunders seem rather to deserve a flogging than a refutation. Macaulay.

re·fu′ta·tive (rē·fū′tā·tĭv), adj. Tending to refute; pertaining to refutation; refutatory.

re·fut′a·to′ry (rē·fūt′ā·tō′rĭ or, esp. Brit., -tĕr·ĭ; 181), adj. [LL. refutatorius; cf. F. réfutatoire.] Refutative.

re·fute′ (rē·fūt′), v. t.; -FUT′ED (-fūt′ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -FUT′ING (-fūt′ĭng). [L. refutare to repel, refute. See CONFUTE.] To disprove and overthrow by argument, evidence, or proof; to prove to be false or erroneous; to confute; as, to refute arguments, testimony, a charge, or, less often, a person. — v. i. To make a refutation; to disprove something.

Syn. — Disprove, overthrow. See DENY.

Ant. — Substantiate. See CONFIRM.

re·fute′, n. Refutation. Obs.

re·fute′, n. [OF. refuite.] Refuge. Obs.

re·fut′er (rē·fūt′ĕr), n. One who or that which refutes.

reg (rĕg), n. = 2d ERG. Africa.

re·gain′ (rē·gān′), v. t.; -GAINED′ (-gānd′); -GAIN′ING. [re- + gain; cf. F. regagner.] 1. To gain anew; to get again; to recover; as, to regain health; to regain one's hold or footing.

2. To get back to; to reach again; as, to regain the shore.

Syn. — Recover, retrieve. Ant. — Lose, forfeit.

re·gain′, n. 1. The act of regaining; also, the amount regained.

2. In weighing textiles, a standard allowance in percentage (varying with each material) to be added to make up for moisture contained in the raw material and lost in the manufacturing process.

re·gain′er (-ĕr), n. One who regains.

re′gal (rē′găl; 91), adj. [OF. or L.; OF. regal, fr. L. regalis, fr. rex, regis, a king. See ROYAL; cf. RAJA, REALM, REGALIA.] Of, pertaining to, suitable to, characteristic of, or like, a king; hence, stately, splendid, etc. "The regal title." Shak.

Syn. — Royal. See KINGLY.

re′gal, n. Obs. 1. Regality; royalty; a royal person.

2. A thing pertaining to royalty; specif.: a A royal jewel; as, the regal of France; a precious stone; also, the Scottish coronation chair. b A regal privilege; pl., regalia. c A chalice used at English coronations in the Communion.

re′gal, n. [F. régale, of uncert. origin.] Music. A small portable organ of the 16th and 17th centuries whose keys were played with one hand while its bellows were worked with the other. Originally it had reed pipes only. A single regal had one pipe, a double regal two, to each key.

re′gal (rē′g'l), n. [Var. of REGOL.] A channel; a groove. Obs. exc. Dial.

re·gale′ (rē·gāl′), v. t.; RE·GALED′ (-gāld′); RE·GAL′ING (-gāl′ĭng). [F. régaler, fr. régal, régale. See 2d REGALE.] To entertain or feast in a sumptuous or agreeable manner; to give or offer great delight or pleasure to; to gratify; to affect pleasurably; as, to regale one with delicious food; a scene that regales the eye. — v. i. To feast oneself; to give regalement. "This blooming young person was regaling on dewberries." George Meredith.

re·gale′, n. [F. régal, earlier régale, fr. OF. gale pleasure. See GALLANT.] 1. A choice or sumptuous repast; a feast; also, a delicious or refreshing food or drink. Now Rare.

2. Rare. a Regalement. b A regaling present.

re·ga′le (rē·gā′lē), n. [ML. regale, pl. regalia, fr. L. regalis: cf. F. régale. See REGAL, adj.] 1. A prerogative of royalty; — usually in pl., regalia (which see).

2. (The earliest use in English.) Specif., Eccl. Hist., the right or prerogative of enjoying the revenues of vacant sees and abbacies and of presenting to benefices dependent on them claimed by rulers in the Middle Ages.

Reg′a·lec′i·dae (rĕg′ā·lĕs′ĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL., fr. Regalecus, type genus, fr. L. rex, regis, king + alec fish pickle, taken in sense "herring"; a transl. of the name "king of herrings."] Zool. The family constituted by the oarfishes. Re·gal′e·cus (rē·gāl′ē·kŭs) is the type genus.

re·gale′ment (rē·gāl′mĕnt), n. Act of regaling; anything which regales; entertainment; refreshment.

re·gal′er (-gāl′ĕr), n. One who regales.

regal fern. The royal fern.

re·ga′li·a (rē·gā′lĭ·ā; Sp. rä′gä·lē′ä), n.; pl. REGALIAS (-āz; Sp. -äs). [Sp. regalia, lit., royal prerogative.] A kind of cigar of large size and superior quality, also, the size in which such cigars are classed.

re·ga′li·a (rē·gā′lĭ·ā; -gāl′yā), n. pl. [L., neut. pl. of regalis regal. See REGAL, adj.] 1. The rights and prerogatives of a king, or the properties or revenues which are the subjects of these. Regalia have been classified as ‖ re·ga′li·a ma·jo′ra, including the royal character and authority, and such rights as the use of the seashore for purposes of navigation and fishing (now considered as held in trust for the public); and ‖ re·ga′li·a mi·no′ra, or those pertaining to the royal revenue, such as salmon fishings. Various royal rights have retained the name regalia, or regalities, after being conveyed away by royal grant.

2. The emblems, symbols, or paraphernalia, of royalty, such as the crown, scepter, ensigns, etc.

3. Hence, decorations or insignia of an office or order, esp. of a fraternal order, as of Freemasons, Odd Fellows, etc.

4. Hence, loosely, finery; special dress, costume, or the like; as, he appeared in his Sunday regalia.

re·ga′li·a (rē·gā′lĭ·ā), re·ga′li·o (-lĭ·ō). Erroneous for REGALO. Obs.

re·ga′li·an (rē·gā′lĭ·ăn; -gāl′yăn), adj. Of or pertaining to regalia; regal.

re′gal·ism (rē′găl·ĭz′m), n. Doctrine of royal supremacy, esp. in church affairs. — re′gal·ist, n.

re·gal′i·ty (rē·găl′ĭ·tĭ), n.; pl. -TIES (-tĭz). [From ML. regalitas, fr. L. regalis regal, royal, perh. through OF. regalité. See REGAL, adj.; cf. ROYALTY.] 1. Royalty; sovereignty; sovereign right or privilege; sovereign jurisdiction; pl., regalia.

[Passion] robs reason of her due regalitie. Spenser.

2. A country or territory subject to royal jurisdiction, or to such jurisdiction in the hands of a subject.

3. Eng. & Scots Law. Royal or sovereign jurisdiction in the hands of a subject by virtue of a grant from the crown. Such rights early became obsolete in England, and in Scotland were abolished by Act 20 Geo. II, c. 43.

re′gal·ize (rē′găl·īz), v. i. To make regal.

regal lily. A commonly cultivated garden lily (Lilium regale) of western China, grown for its showyflowers that are white and yellow inside, but light lilac-purple and streaked on the exterior.

regal moth. A large handsome American moth (Citheronia regalis). Its forewings are olive, spotted with yellow and heavily veined with red, and the hind wings are orange-red spotted with yellow. Its larva, the hickory horned devil, feeds on walnut, sycamore, and other trees, and is armed with several long curved spiny horns.

Regal Moth (½) and Larva (½).

‖re·ga′lo (rā·gä′lō; rē·gā′lō), n. [Sp. See REGALE, v. t.] A gift or present, esp. of superior food or drink; a delicacy or dainty; a banquet. Now Rare.

regal purple. = ROYAL PURPLE b.

regal water. Aqua regia. Rare.

Re′gan (rē′găn), n. In Shakespeare's King Lear, the second daughter of Lear. See KING LEAR.

re·gard′ (rē·gärd′), v.; -GARD′ED; -GARD′ING. [F. regarder, fr. re- + garder to guard, heed, keep. See GUARD; cf. REWARD.] Transitive: 1. To keep in view; to behold; to look at; to view; to gaze upon.

Your niece regards me with an eye of favor. Shak.

2. To look closely at; to observe attentively; to pay attention to; to notice or remark particularly.

If much you note him,
You offend him; . . . feed, and regard him not. Shak.

3. a To hold (one) in high esteem; to esteem; to care for. b To have care for; to heed in conduct or practice; to obey (laws); to have respect for (a person); to respect; to listen to; lit. or fig., to show respect or consideration for.

Here's Beaufort, that regards nor God nor king. Shak.

4. To take into consideration or account; to take account of; to consider. "Neither regarding that she is my child, nor fearing me as if I were her father." Shak.

5. a To look upon, as in a certain relation; to hold; consider; as, to regard fasting as a duty; to regard one as a friend. b To look upon; to consider and treat; as, to regard one with favor or dislike.

6. To have relation to, as bearing upon; to respect; to relate to; to concern; to touch; as, an argument does not regard the question; I agree with you as regards this.

7. Obs. a To look after; to take care of or for. b To treat (a thing) as something of peculiar value, sanctity, or the like; to value; to esteem. c To look or front toward; to face.

It is a peninsula which regardeth the mainland. Sandys.

—, Intransitive: 1. To look attentively; to gaze; also, to pay attention; to heed.

2. To look; seem; appear. Shelley.

3. Obs. a To consider; deliberate; also, to have consideration or reference (to). b To take heed or pains; to care.

Syn. — Observe, remark, mind; estimate. See ESTEEM.

re·gard′, n. [OF. See REGARD, v.] 1. Aspect; appearance; look; air. Archaic.

2. A look; glance; gaze.

But her, with stern regard, he thus repelled. Milton.

3. Attention of the mind with a feeling of interest; consideration; heed; care; interest; concern; attention or respect as shown in action or conduct.

4. That which is considered as a ground of action or opinion; a consideration or motive.

5. A respect, relation, or particular.

Persuade them to pursue and persevere in virtue, with regard to themselves; in justice and goodness with regard to their neighbors; and piety toward God. I. Watts.

6. Respect; esteem; reverence; affection; as, to have a high regard for a person; — often in the pl., in expressions intended to convey such feeling; as, my best regards to your brother.

7. Obs. a Estimation; esteem; repute; account; value; worth. b Something seen; a prospect. c Reference. d Intention. e An evidence or indication of affection or kindly feeling.

8. O. Eng. Law. Inspection of a forest by officials to learn if any trespasses have been committed; the right or office of such inspection; also, a district under the jurisdiction of such an official (called a regarder).

— at regard of. = IN REGARD OF, a. Obs. — for the regard of. = IN REGARD OF, c. Obs. — in one's regard. In respect to one. — in regard. a Obs. Comparatively; relatively. b Now Rare. Considering that; since; because. — in regard of. a Archaic. Also in regard to, at regard of, etc. In comparison with. "Bodily penance is but short and little at regard of the pains of hell." Chaucer. b Now, usually, in, or with, regard to. With respect or relation to; as to. c Now Illit. Also for the regard of. On account of; because of.

Change was thought necessary in regard of the injury the church did receive by a number of things then in use. Hooker.

In regard of its security, it had a great advantage over the bandboxes. Dickens.

d Obs. Also in regard to. Out of consideration or respect for. Obs. — in regard to. a See IN REGARD OF, a, b, & d. b Also with regard to. With respect to; relating to; concerning; as to. — with regard to. a = IN REGARD OF, b. b = IN REGARD TO, b.

re·gard′ance (rē·gär′dăns), n. A regarding; state of being regarded. Rare. Dickens.

re·gard′an·cy (-dăn·sĭ), n. State or fact of being regardant. Rare.

re·gard′ant (rē·gär′dănt), adj. [F., pres. part. of regarder. See REGARD, v.] 1. O. Eng. Law. Literally, regarding; — used only in the phrase villein (or villain) regardant or regardant to a manor, commonly misunderstood to imply the praedial dependence of a colonus, as distinguished from a villein (or villain) in gross, implying the personal dependence of a true slave, the terms, in fact, having nothing to do with a legal distinction of status but relating to the modes of proof and pleading in the 14th century, villein in gross denoting a villein without further qualification, and villein regardant to a manor a villein by reference to a manor. Both terms may apply to the same person from different points of view.

2. Her. Depicted with the face in profile and looking backward; — said in modern blazon of an animal.

Lion Passant Regardant.

3. Disposed to regard; regarding; observant; regardful; watchful.

re·gard′ant (rē·gär′dănt), n. 1. One who regards or beholds; a spectator. Obs.

2. A villein regardant. Rare.

re·gard′er (rē·gär′dĕr), n. [Cf. OF. regardeor.] 1. O. Eng. Law. See REGARD, n., 8.

2. One who regards.

re·gard′ful (rē·gärd′fo͝ol; -f'l), adj. 1. Heedful; observant

2. Full or expressive of regard or respect; respectful.

3. Meriting regard or attention. Obs.

Syn. — Mindful, thoughtful, attentive.

Ant. — Careless, regardless.

— re·gard′ful·ly, adv. — re·gard′ful·ness, n.

re·gard′ing, prep. Concerning; respecting.

re·gard′less, adj. 1. Having no regard; heedless; careless; as, regardless of life, consequences, dignity.

2. Not regarded; slighted; not meriting regard. Now Rare.

Syn. — Negligent, indifferent, unconcerned, inattentive, unobservant, neglectful.

Ant. — Thoughtful, considerate, mindful, solicitous.

— re·gard′less·ly, adv. — re·gard′less·ness, n.

— regardless of. Without taking into account; sometimes, in spite of; as, regardless of his faults, I like him.

re·gard′less, adv. In a manner regardless of cost, labor, consequences, or the like. Colloq.

Everything's been done regardless. Montgomery.

re·gat′ta (rē·găt′ä), n.; pl. -TAS (-äz). [It. regatta, regata, fr. Venetian regata, fr. regatar to compete, of obscure origin.] 1. Orig., a gondola race in Venice; now, a rowing or sailing race, or, usually, an organized series of such races.

2. A kind of stout twilled cotton cloth often striped in blue and white. Chiefly Brit.

3. The color liberty.

re′ge·late (rē′jĕ·lāt; rē′jĕ·lāt′), v. i. Physics. To freeze together again; to undergo regelation, as ice.

re′ge·la′tion (-lā′shŭn), n. [re- + L. gelatio a freezing.] The phenomenon of the refreezing of water, when the water has resulted from the melting of ice due to pressure, ice being one of the few solids whose melting point is lowered under increased pressure.

re′gence (rē′jĕns), n. [F. régence.] Regency. Obs. — re·gence, adj. Obs. exc. in designating furniture, etc., of the Regency of the Duke of Orleans.

re′gen·cy (rē′jĕn·sĭ), n.; pl. -CIES (-sĭz). [Cf. F. régence, ML. regentia. See REGENT, adj.] 1. The office of ruler; rule; dominion; government.

2. Esp., the office, jurisdiction, or dominion of a regent or vicarious ruler, or of a body of regents; deputed or vicarious government.

3. A governing body (of certain cities or states). Obs.

4. A body of men entrusted with vicarious government; as, a regency constituted during a king's minority.

5. A meeting of the members of a regency. Obs.

6. A territory governed by a regent or regency, as in Java.

7. The period during which a regent governs; specif.: [usually cap.] a F. Hist. The period (1715–23) of the rule of Philip, Duke of Orleans, regent for Louis XV. b Eng. Hist. The period (1811–20) of the rule of George, Prince of Wales (afterwards George IV), regent for George III. c Span. Hist. (1) The period of the rule (1833–40) of Maria Christina, queen mother, and (1840–43) of Gen. J. B. Espartero, regents for Isabella II. (2) The period (1885–1902) of the rule of Christina, queen mother, regent for Alfonso XIII. d Neth. Hist. The period (1890–98) of the rule of Emma, queen mother, regent for Wilhelmina. e Jap. Hist. The period (1921–26) of the rule of Hirohito, crown prince, regent for his father, Emperor Yoshihito.

8. The position or function of a university regent.

re·gen′er·a·ble (rē·jĕn′ĕr·ä·b'l), adj. That may be regenerated.

re·gen′er·a·cy (rē·jĕn′ĕr·ä·sĭ), n. [See REGENERATE.] State of being regenerated.

re·gen′er·ant (-ănt), adj. Regenerating. — re·gen′er·ance (-ăns), n. Both Rare.

re·gen′er·ate (-ĭt), adj. [L. regeneratus, past part. of regenerare to regenerate, fr. re- re- + generare to beget. See GENERATE.] 1. Reborn; formed or created again.

2. Theol. Born again; having undergone regeneration; spiritually reborn or converted; become a Christian or Christians.

3. Reformed; renovated; redeemed from error, baseness, etc.

re·gen′er·ate (-āt), v.; RE·GEN′ER·AT′ED (-āt′ĕd; -ĭd; 119); RE·GEN′ER·AT′ING (-āt′ĭng). Transitive: 1. Theol. To cause to be spiritually born again; to subject to regeneration.

2. Hence, to make a radical change for the better in; to reform completely; as, forces that will regenerate society.

3. To generate or produce anew; to reproduce; re-create; revive; as, to regenerate hatred; regenerated tissue.

4. To re-establish on a better basis; to reconstruct. Rare.

5. To restore (a material) to its original strength or properties, as by adding salt to a brine that has been weakened by the absorption of atmospheric moisture.

6. Elec. To increase the amplification of by causing a part of the power in the output circuit to act upon the input circuit; — said of the amplification of an electron current by means of electron tubes.

—, Intransitive: 1. To form again; to shape, frame, or fashion anew.

2. To become regenerate; to reform.

re·gen′er·ate (-ĭt), n. One regenerated, esp. one spiritually reborn.

re·gen′er·a′tion (rē·jĕn′ĕr·ā′shŭn; rē′jĕn-), n. [OF., fr. LL. regeneratio.] 1. Act of regenerating, or state of being regenerated; re-creation; revival; re-establishment on a better basis; reformation.

When man, with changeless Nature coalescing, Will undertake regeneration's work. Shelley.

2. Bot. & Zool. a The reproduction or regrowth of a part which has been lost or destroyed. b = REJUVENESCENCE, 2.

3. Elec. The process by which part of the power in the output circuit of an amplifying device is caused to act upon re′al·lop, v. i. See RE-, 2.

re′al·ly, adv. of REGAL.

re′al·ness, n. See -NESS.

re′al·ty, n. [Cf. OF. regalité.] Regality. Obs.

re·gal′va·nize, v. t. See RE-, 2. — re·gal′va·ni·za′tion, n.

re′gal·y, n. [See REGAL.] Regality. Obs.

re′gar. Var. of REGUR.

re·gard′a·ble, adj. See -ABLE.

re·gar′ment, v. t., re·gar′nish, v. t., re·gar′ri·son, v. t., re·gath′er, v. t. & i. See RE-, 2.

Regatta Day. See HOLIDAY, 3.

re·gauge′, v. t. & n. See RE-, 2.

Re′gel. Var. of RIGEL.

Re′gem (rē′gĕm). Bib.

Re′gem-me′lech (rē′gĕm·mē′lĕk; -mē′lĕk). Bib.

re·gen′der, v. t. See RE-, 2. Obs.

re·gen′er·at′ed cel′lu·lose. See VISCOSE, n.

re·gen′er·ate·ness, n. See -NESS.

the input circuit so as to increase the amplification; a feedback. Cf. REGENERATE, v. t., 6.
4. Mach. The use, by special devices, of heat or the like which would ordinarily be lost. See REGENERATOR, 4.
5. Physiol. a The reproduction or renewal of tissues, cells, etc., which have been used up and destroyed, as by the ordinary processes of life; as, the continual regeneration of the epithelial cells of the body; the regeneration of the contractile substance of muscle; the regeneration of liver cells following necrosis. b The union of parts which have been severed, so that they become anatomically and physiologically perfect; as, the regeneration of a nerve.
6. Theol. The entering into a new and spiritual life; that change by which holy affections and purposes are substituted for the opposite motives in the heart. Regeneration is often referred to symbolically as the new birth, as being born again, or as being born of water and of the spirit, to signify the sacrament of baptism by which one is reborn as it were into a spiritual family, the Christian church. Historically, regeneration by baptism has been regarded as the bestowal by God of an indelible spiritual mark or "character" or the soul.

re·gen'er·a'tive (rē·jĕn'ĕr·ā'tĭv; -ȧ·tĭv), adj. [F. régénératif.] 1. Of, pertaining to, characterized by, or using, regeneration; tending to regenerate; as, regenerative influences; a regenerative furnace.
2. Elec. Pert. to or designating the returning of energy to the supply system, as when a descending motor-driven hoist returns energy to the line by acting as a generator; specif., pertaining to a method of amplification with electron tubes in which a part of the power in the output circuit acts upon the input circuit, thereby increasing the amplification.
— re·gen'er·a'tive·ly, adv.

regenerative braking. See ELECTRIC BRAKING.

regenerative cycle. SteamEngin. A cycle using heat that would ordinarily be lost; specif.: a A multiple-expansion steam-engine cycle in which the receivers are used as successive feed-water heaters. b A steam-turbine cycle in which the condensate or feed water is heated to a temperature much higher than that corresponding to saturation at the exhaust pressure by means of steam that has been bled from the turbine at points intermediate between the throttle and exhaust.

regenerative furnace. A gas-burning furnace equipped with a regenerator (sense 4).

re·gen'er·a'tor (rē·jĕn'ĕr·ā'tĕr), n. 1. One who or that which regenerates.
2. A heavy swinging counterpoise or other balancing device for a mine pump rod to permit a higher engine speed.
3. Engin. A hypothetical body, as used with a reversible engine operating on a Stirling's cycle, that stores heat from the working substance of an engine so that (1) each part of the body and the contiguous gas or vapor have the same temperature, (2) each increment of heat is maintained at the temperature at which it was received, (3) the stored heat is returned to the working substance by the reversal of the process.
4. Mach. A device used with hot-air engines, gas-burning furnaces, etc., in which the incoming air or gas is heated by contact with masses of iron, brick, etc., previously heated by the outgoing hot air or gas, or by being passed through a pipe or pipes heated by a flow of the hot air or gas escaping in the opposite direction; — called also recuperator.

re·gen'er·a·to'ry (-ȧ·tō'rĭ; -tĕr·ĭ), adj. Regenerative. R.

re·gen'e·sis, or re–gen'e·sis (-ĕ·sĭs), n. New birth; renewal. "Regenesis of dissenting sects." H. Spencer.

re'gent (rē'jĕnt), adj. [F. or L.; F. régent, fr. L. regens, -entis, pres. part. of regere to rule. See REGIMENT, RIGHT, adj.; cf. REIGN.] 1. Holding the office of a university regent. Hist.
2. Exercising vicarious authority; acting as a regent.
3. Ruling; governing; regnant. Now Rare.

re'gent, n. [See REGENT, adj.] 1. Now Rare. a That which rules or governs; a ruling authority or principle. b One who rules or reigns; a governor; ruler.
2. One invested with vicarious authority; one who governs a kingdom in the minority, absence, or disability of the sovereign. Specif.: a Formerly, a member of the governing body of some European cities. b In the Dutch colonial administration of Java, a native official through whom a resident and his assistants carry out the details of the government of a residency. The regents belong to the highest (often princely) families.
3. European Univ. a Hist. At Oxford and Cambridge, a master of arts who presided over disputations in the schools, at first for one year and later at Oxford for two, at Cambridge for five years after graduation; hence, a master of arts of not more than two or five years' standing. b Hist. In Scotland, one of certain instructors in a college who had charge of a certain number of students through the entire course; a professor. c In France, a teacher of an art or science in a college or university, esp. of an elementary class.
4. In the United States, one of a governing board: a Of a State university. b Of the Smithsonian Institution. c Of the University of the State of New York. See REGENTS OF THE UNIVERSITY OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK. d Harvard Univ. An officer who supervises student discipline.
5. [cap.] Short for REGENT DIAMOND.
6. The headmaster of a school. Obs.

re'gent (rē'jĕnt), v. t. Now Rare. a To serve (a college, etc.) as regent; to act as regent or instructor to; to teach. b To govern or manage as regent. — v. i. To act as regent. Rare.

re'gent·al (-jĕn·tăl; -t'l), adj. Pertaining to a regent.

regent bird. A beautiful Australian bowerbird (Sericulus chrysocephalus). The male has the head, neck, and large patches on the wings bright golden yellow, and the rest of the plumage deep velvety black. So called in honor of the Prince Regent (see REGENCY, 7 b).

Regent diamond. A famous diamond of fine quality, which weighs about 137 carats and is among the state jewels of France. It is so called from the Duke of Orleans, Regent of France, to whom it was sold in 1717 by Pitt the English Governor of Madras (whence also called the Pitt diamond), who bought it of an Indian merchant in 1701. It is now in the Louvre.

regent house. Formerly, at Cambridge University, the upper house of the senate.

Regents' examinations. State-wide final examinations given under the auspices of the Regents of the University of the State of New York, esp. in the last year of the grammar schools and in the secondary schools.

Regents of the University of the State of New York. The members of the controlling board of a corporate body called the University of the State of New York, which consists of all incorporated institutions for academic and higher education, the State Library, the State Museum, and such other libraries, museums, and educational institutions as may be admitted. The regents have large supervisory and regulative powers.

Regent Street. One of the main thoroughfares of the West End, London, running from Portland Place south to Waterloo Place and containing many fine shops.

‖re'ges (rē'jēz), n., pl. of REX.

re'gi·a (rē'jĭ·ȧ), n. [L.] Rom. Antiq. The residence of the pontifex maximus at Rome. See FORUM, Illust.

reg'i·cid'al (rĕj'ĭ·sīd'ăl; 66), adj. Pertaining to regicide or a regicide; having the nature of, or disposed to, regicide.

reg'i·cide (rĕj'ĭ·sīd), n. [L. rex, regis, a king + -cide; cf. F. régicide, in both senses.] 1. One who kills or who murders a king, esp. his own KING; specif. [often cap.]: a Eng. Hist. One of the judges who condemned Charles I. to death. b F. Hist. One of those connected with the execution of Louis XVI.
2 The killing or murder of a king.
— reg'i·cid'ism (-sĭd'ĭz'm), n.

‖re'gi·dor' (rā'hē·thōr'; 112; 142), n.; pl. -DORES (-thō'rās). [Sp., fr. regir to rule, fr. L. regere.] One of a body of officers charged with the government of Spanish municipalities, corresponding to the English alderman.

‖ré'gie' (rā'zhē'), n. [F.] 1. Direct management of public finance or public works by agents of the government for government account; — opposed to the system under which such public business is done under contract.
2. Specif.: The system of collecting taxes by officials who have either no interest or a very small interest in the proceeds, disting. from the system of farming them out.
3. Any kind of government monopoly (as on tobacco, salt, etc.) used chiefly as a means of taxation. Such monopolies are largely employed in Austria, Italy, France, and Spain. Also, tobacco bought or supplied by agents of such monopolies.

reg'i·fuge (rĕj'ĭ·fūj), n. [LL. regifugium, fr. rex, regis, king + fuga flight.] Rom. Hist. The flight or expulsion of the kings (traditionally in 510 B.C.).

re·gime' (rā·zhēm'), n. Also ré·gime'. [F. régime. See REGIMEN.] 1. Mode or system of rule or management; character of government, or of the social system.
2. Hydraul. The condition of a river with respect to the rate of its flow, as measured by the volume of water passing different cross sections in a given time.
3. Med. Regimen.

reg'i·men (rĕj'ĭ·mĕn), n. [L. regimen, -inis, fr. regere to guide, to rule. See RIGHT; cf. REGIME, REGIMENT, REGENT, REGION.] 1. A governing; government; rule; system; administration.
2. A kind or class. Obs.
3. Any regulation or treatment intended to benefit by gradual operation; esp., Med., a systematic course of diet, etc., to improve or preserve health, or to attain some effect, as reduction of flesh; — sometimes synonymous with hygiene.
4. This system or regular course of any continuous natural process; as, the regimen of a river.
5. Gram. A syntactical relation between words, as when one depends on another and is regulated by it in respect to case or mood; government.

re·gim'e·nal (rē·jĭm'ē·năl; -n'l), adj. Regiminal. Rare.

‖Re'gi·men sa'ni·ta'tis sa·ler'ni·ta'num (rĕj'ĭ·mĕn săn'ĭ·tā'tĭs sȧ·lûr'nĭ·tā'nŭm). [ML.] Med. Hist. An assemblage of medical doctrine and rules of health emanating from the medical school of Salerno in the 13th century, and having an important place in the teaching of medicine for several centuries following.

reg'i·ment (rĕj'ĭ·mĕnt; Brit. often rĕj'mĕnt), n. [F. régiment a regiment of men, OF. also government, fr. LL. regimentum government, fr. regere to guide, rule. See REGIMEN.] 1. Governmental rule. Now Rare.
2. Obs. a Rulership; governorship; also, the period of one's rule; a reign. b Governance; management; guidance. c Regimen (sense 1); a regime. d A region or district governed. e A rule or ordinance.
3. a Obs. A kind or class, as of dogs, birds, devils. b A number of individuals in a group.
4. Med. A dietary or sanitary regimen. Obs.
5. Mil. In general, a body of soldiers commanded by a colonel, and consisting of a number of companies, troops, or batteries; now, a unit composed basically of a headquarters and two or more battalions (or corresponding units, as squadrons of cavalry). Its exact composition varies with the branch of the service. At present, in the United States Army, the infantry regiment contains three battalions, a band, a headquarters company, a service company, and a howitzer company.
6. Naut. Astron. A table of declinations.

reg'i·ment (-mĕnt), v. t.; -MENT'ED; -MENT'ING. 1. Mil. To form into a regiment or into regiments.
2. To place in, or assign to, a regiment.
3. To organize into groups, classes, or other units, esp. for the sake of central regulation or control; as, to regiment the industries of a country; hence, to subject to systematization or rigid discipline; to reduce to strict order or uniformity; as, an education that regiments children.

reg'i·men'tal (-mĕn'tăl; -t'l), adj. 1. Belonging to, or concerning, a regiment; as, regimental officers, clothing, etc.
2. Regimented; serving to regiment; tending to regimentation.
3. Of, pertaining to, or having to do with, regimen.

reg'i·men'tal (rĕj'ĭ·mĕn'tăl; -t'l), n. 1. Obs. sing. of REGIMENTALS.
2. A color, reddish blue in hue, of low saturation and low brilliance. Called also Persian blue. Cf. COLOR.

reg'i·men'taled (-tăld; -t'ld), reg'i·men'tailed, adj. Wearing regimentals.

reg'i·men'tals (-tălz; -t'lz), n. pl. Also, Obs. sing., reg'i·men'tal. The uniform worn by the officers and soldiers of a regiment; military dress; — not now in technical use.

reg'i·men'ta·ry (-tȧ·rĭ), adj. Regimental. Rare.

reg'i·men'ta·ry, n. [Pol. regimentarz, NL. regimentarius.] Mil. A (Polish) commander. Obs.

re·gim·en·ta'tion (-mĕn·tā'shŭn), n. Act or process of regimenting; organization into groups.

re·gim'i·nal (rē·jĭm'ĭ·năl; -n'l), adj. Of, pertaining to, or of the nature of, regimen; as, regiminal rules.

re·gin' (rē·jĭn'), v. t.; -GINNED'; -GIN'NING. To gin (cotton) more than once.

re'gin (rā'yĭn). Var. of REGINN.

‖re·gi'na (rē·jī'nȧ), n. [L.] Queen.

re·gi'nal (rē·jī'năl; -n'l), adj. Of or pertaining to a queen; queenly; also, supporting the queen.

Reg'i·nald (rĕj'ĭ·năld), n. [Prob. fr. a Latinization of OG. Reginald, Raginald, Rainald, Reinold; cf. Goth. ragin judgment, and OHG. waltan to rule, G. walten; cf. also AS. Regenweald, and E. REYNOLD.] Lit., strong ruler; — masc. proper name. L. Reginaldus (-năl'dŭs); F. Regnauld, Regnault (rē'nyō'), Renaud (rē·nō'); It. Rinaldo (rē·năl'dō); Sp. Reynaldos (rā'ē·năl'dōs); G. Reinwald (rīn'vält), Reinald (rī'nält). Dim. Rex, Reggie.

Re'ginn, Re'gin (rā'yĭn), n. In the Volsunga Saga, a treacherous dwarf smith, brother of Fafnir and foster father of Sigurd, whom he incites to slay Fafnir, plotting to kill the hero afterward. His purpose is miraculously revealed to Sigurd, who slays him. Cf. MIMIR.

re'gion (rē'jŭn), n. [OF. regium (F. région), fr. L. regio a direction, a boundary line, region, fr. regere to guide, direct. See REGIMEN.] 1. A realm; a kingdom. Obs. Chaucer.
2. A major indefinite division of inanimate creation, as the air; figuratively, realm, sphere.
Out of the powerful regions under earth. Shak.
3. A large tract of land; one of the large districts or quarters into which any space or surface is conceived of as divided; hence, in general, an indefinite area; a country; province; district; tract.
Embassies from regions far remote. Milton.
4. Of the body or a part of it, a part or division; as, a region of the skull. "The region of my heart." Shak.
5. a One of the portions into which the atmosphere is conceived of as divided according to height, or the sea according to depth; as, the upper, middle, or lower regions of the air. Also used figuratively. "He is of too high a region." Shak. b Obs. The upper air; the sky; the heavens.
6. An administrative area, division, or district, as in Rome under Augustus or in Soviet Russia (Russ. kraĭ).
7. A space occupied; an enclosing space.
8. Archaeol. One of the districts of ancient Pompeii.
9. Biogeog. a Usually, a primary faunal division of the world. The regions most generally accepted are the Holarctic, Oriental, Australian, Ethiopian, and Neotropical. The following also are often ranked as regions: New Zealand, Malagasy, Polynesian, Nearctic, and Palaearctic. b According to another nomenclature, the above regions (though of the same extent) treated as secondary divisions by being grouped into two or three realms, Arctogaea, Notogaea, and Neogaea.
10. Math. The totality of all points each representing a set of values of n real or complex variables $z_1, \ldots z_n$, where each variable of the set varies continuously over a given interval of the real axis or portion of the complex plane.
— in the region of. In the neighborhood of; near.

re'gion·al (-ăl; -l), adj. [LL. regionalis.] 1. Of or pertaining to a region, or territory, esp. a geographical region; — often opposed to local; as, regional geography.
2. Of or pertaining to a region or division, as of a country or of the body; sectional; local; as, regional governments; regional symptoms.
— re'gion·al·ly, adv.

re'gion·al·ism, n. The doctrine or practice of subdividing or decentralizing a country into regions on a political, economic, or other, basis. — re'gion·al·ist, n. — re'gion·al·is'tic, adj.

re'gion·al·ize (rē'jŭn·ăl·īz; -l·īz), v. t. To divide into regions, or administrative districts. — re'gion·al·i·za'tion (-ĭ·zā'shŭn); -ĭ·zā'shŭn), n.

re'gion·ar'y (-ĕr'ĭ; -ĕr·ĭ), adj. Regional. — n. A description or account of the regions of ancient Rome.

regionary deacon. The head of one of the deaconries (orig. seven, later, twelve) into which ecclesiastical Rome was divided; — called also cardinal deacon.

re'gioned (rē'jŭnd), adj. Divided into regions; dwelling in the region.

reg'is·ter (rĕj'ĭs·tĕr), n. [Cf. ML. registrarius. Cf. REGISTRAR.] One who registers, or records; a registrar; a recorder; esp., a public officer charged with recording certain transactions or events; as, a register of deeds.

reg'is·ter, n. [ME. registre, fr. OF. registre, fr. ML. registrum, regestrum, regestum, fr. LL. regesta, pl., fr. regerere, regestum, to carry back, to register, fr. re- re- + gerere to carry. See JEST; cf. SUGGEST.] 1. A written record containing regular entries of items or details; an official or formal enumeration, description, or record of particulars; a memorial record; a book for such a record; as, a municipal register (as of births, marriages, and deaths).
As you have one eye upon my follies, . . . turn another into the register of your own. Shak.
2. a Short for Register of Writs or of the Chancery, a book containing a transcript of the early English writs, first printed and published in the reign of Henry VIII. The date of its origin is unknown. b A book or system of public records; as, the register of deeds, births, etc.; in Scots Law, esp., the records of landed property.
3. a A record containing the names of seamen of a district or country, or a list and description of the merchant vessels belonging to a port, district, or country. b A certificate, signed by the commissioner of navigation and issued by the customs collector of the port to the owner of a vessel engaged in foreign trade. It contains a description of the vessel, its name, ownership, etc., and serves as evidence of nationality or as a muniment of title. It is granted only for vessels owned wholly by American citizens, whether built in the United States or abroad.
4. An entry in a register, as of a parish.
5. a A bookmark. b A table of contents; an index.
6. Registration; registry; as, a port of register.
7. A lid, stopper, or sliding plate, in a furnace, stove, etc., for regulating the admission of air to the fuel; also, an arrangement containing dampers or shutters, as in the floor or wall of a room or passage, or in a chimney, for admitting or excluding heated air, or for regulating ventilation.
8. Something which registers or records; esp., a machine for registering automatically the number of persons admitted, fares taken, etc.; a telltale; also, a number or amount registered.
9. A list, catalogue, or schedule. Obs.
10. Elec., Gas, Water, etc. The part of a meter which consists of the dials and their attendant mechanism for indicating the total quantity of electricity or gas consumed.
11. Mach. A contrivance for automatically noting the performance of a machine or the rapidity of a process.
12. a Music & Phonet. (1) The compass or range of a voice. (2) The series of tones of like quality within the compass of a voice which are produced by a particular adjustment of the vocal cords. In singing up the scale the register changes at the point where the vocal cords readjust themselves to reach the higher tones, all tones below this point being considered to be the chest, or thick, register, all above, the head, or thin, register. The two registers generally overlap, some tones about the middle of the voice being producible by either adjustment. Cf. VOICE, FALSETTO. b Music. The compass of an instrument; also, a special portion of it; a series of tones similarly produced and of the same quality; as, the chalumeau register of the clarinet. c Music, Rare. = SLIDER, 5. d A set of pipes of the same quality in an organ; a stop.

13. Photog. Correspondence in position between the focusing screen and the surface of the replacing sensitive film or plate.

14. Print. a Exact correspondence in position of pages, columns, or lines on the opposite or reverse sides of the sheet, or of the several impressions in a design printed in parts, as in process color printing, or in the manufacture of paper hangings. See REGISTER, v. i., 2. b The inner part of the mold in which printing types are cast. c Series or list of signatures.

15. Teleg. A recorder.

Syn. — Roll, record, archives, chronicle, annals. See LIST.

reg'is·ter (rĕj'ĭs·tĕr), v.; -TERED (-tĕrd); -TER·ING. [OF. registrer, fr. ML. registrare, regestrare. See REGISTER, n.] Transitive: 1. To record formally and exactly, as for future use or service; to enroll; to enter precisely in a list or the like.

Such follow him as shall be registered. Milton.

2. a To secure or make an official entry of in a register; as, to register a will, a deed, a mortgage. b To record as on a register; reflect accurately.

3. a To record automatically; to indicate; as, the thermometer registered a temperature of 25° below zero. b To record photographically.

4. To make correspond exactly; to adjust so as to secure correspondence; as, to register printed pages, etc.

5. To secure the protection of as registered mail by prepayment of a certain special fee.

6. To experience or convey an impression of; as, to register fear. Slang.

7. Finance. To enter the name of the owner of (a share of stock, a bond, or other security) in a register, or record book. A registered security, which bears the name of the owner on its face, is transferable only on the written assignment of the owner of record and on surrender of his bond, stock certificate, or the like.

8. Motion Pictures. Of an actor, to show, as an emotion, by facial expression, bodily movement, etc.; also, to indicate, in a similar manner, consciousness of, or emotional response to (a sound or circumstance).

9. Photog. In photographic printing or projection, to superimpose two or more images exactly.

——, Intransitive: 1. To enroll one's name in a register, as a hotel register; specif., Govt., to enroll one's name in a list of voters. See REGISTRATION, 5.

2. To correspond exactly one with another; to fit correctly in a relative position; to be in correct alignment one with another, as rivet holes.

3. To manipulate organ registers.

4. To make an impression. Slang.

5. Motion Pictures. Of an actor, to show an emotion or the like by bodily movement, facial expression, etc.

6. Print. To correspond in relative position; as, two pages, columns, etc., register when the corresponding parts fall in the same line, or when line falls exactly upon line in reverse pages, or when various colors are printed separately with perfect adjustment.

reg'is·tered (rĕj'ĭs·tĕrd), past tense & past part. of REGISTER; specif.: adj. 1. Of bonds, shares, etc., having the owner's name entered in a register. See REGISTER, v. t., 7.

2. Designating purebred livestock, whose pedigree, etc., has been recorded by a recognized breed association; as, a registered Jersey bull.

registered club. Eng. Law. A club registered under the Licensing Act of 1902, which makes the sale of intoxicating liquors to members in unregistered clubs unlawful.

registered letter, parcel, mail, etc. A letter, parcel, or mail, the addresses of the sender and consignee of which are, on payment of a special fee, registered in the post office, and the transmission and delivery of which are attended to with certain formalities for the sake of security.

registered mail insurance. See INSURANCE, n., 1.

registered nurse. A trained nurse who has successfully passed state examinations for registration in that state. The examinations are conducted by a State Board of nurse examiners or similar body. U. S.

registered tonnage. = register tonnage under TONNAGE.

reg'is·ter·er, n. One who or that which registers.

register office. An office where a register or record is kept, as an employment office; as the General Register Office in London, where the registration of all births, marriages, and deaths is made.

Register of the Chancery, Register of Writs. See 2d REGISTER, 2 a.

register point. = 1st POINT, 39 a.

register ton. See TON.

register tonnage. See TONNAGE.

reg'is·tra·ble (rĕj'ĭs·trȧ·b'l), adj. Capable of being registered. — reg'is·tra·bil'i·ty (-bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n.

reg'is·tral (rĕj'ĭs·trăl), adj. Pert. to a register; registered. Rare.

reg'is·trant (rĕj'ĭs·trănt), n. [From ML. registrans, pres. part., or F. registrant.] One who registers; esp., one who, by virtue of securing an official registration, obtains a certain right or title of possession and use, as to a trademark.

reg'is·trar (rĕj'ĭs·trär; -trăr'), n. [For older registrer (fr. OF. registreur), after ML. registrarius. See REGISTER, v. & n.] 1. One who registers; an official recorder, or keeper of records; as, a registrar of voters; a registrar of a diocese; a registrar of a college or university. Cf. 1st REGISTER.

2. A registering contrivance; specif., = 2d REGISTER, 11 a.

reg'is·trar·gen'er·al, n.; pl. REGISTRARS-GENERAL. The head of any general register office; specif. [cap.], Gr. Brit., the chief official of the General Register Office (see REGISTER OFFICE), or of Shipping and Seamen, of the Mercantile Marine.

reg'is·trar·ship', n. See -SHIP.

reg'is·tra'ry (rĕj'ĭs·trĕr'ĭ or, esp. Brit., -trĕr·ĭ), n. [ML. registrarius.] A registrar. Obs. exc. at Cambridge University, Eng.

reg'is·trate (rĕj'ĭs·trāt), v. t. [ML. registratus, past part. of registrare.] To register. Obs. Drummond. — v. i. Music. To select and adjust organ stops.

reg'is·trate, adj. [ML. registratus.] Registered. Obs.

reg'is·tra'tion (-trā'shŭn), n. [ML. registratio. See REGISTER, v.] 1. Act or fact of registering; as, to require registration of voters; registration for a course of study in a college.

2. Something registered; specif., a registered name, detail, or the like; an entry in a register; as, to search for a particular registration.

3. Number of persons registered; also, those registered, collectively; enrollment; as, a school with a large registration.

4. Music. a The art or act of registrating. b The combination of stops selected for the performing of a particular composition.

5. Polit. Science. The act whereby a person, by appearing publicly before the proper officials, gives oath as to citizenship, age, residence, etc. (see QUALIFIED VOTER) and signs a register, thus affording proof of his right to vote at a caucus, primary, or election. Registration lists are either prepared or revised during a certain definite period before a primary or election and are used as an official check list at the polls.

reg'is·tra'tion·al (-ăl; -'l), adj. Of or pert. to registration.

registration area. That part of the United States in which the public registration of births or deaths meets the standards set by the Census Bureau. It includes more than 95 per cent of the population of the United States.

registration county. See 1st COUNTY, 3 d.

reg'is·tra'tion·ist, n. One who advocates registration.

reg'is·tra'tor (rĕj'ĭs·trā'tĕr), n. [ML.] A registrar. Rare.

reg'is·trer (rĕj'ĭs·trĕr), n. [See REGISTRAR.] 1. A registrar. Obs.

2. [From REGISTER, v.] A registering device; a register. Rare.

reg'is·try (rĕj'ĭs·trĭ), n.; pl. -TRIES (-trĭz). 1. Act of registering; enrollment; registration.

2. The state or fact of being entered in a register (specified or implied); as, a certificate of registry; specif., of a ship, (particular) nationality as evidenced by such an entry; as, ships of British or of Greek registry. See 2d REGISTER, 3 b.

3. The place where a register is kept; a place of registration; specif., = REGISTER OFFICE.

4. A register; an official record book or an entry in one.

5. Marine Transportation. Short for certificate of registry. See 2d REGISTER, 3 b.

‖re'gi·um do'num (rē'jĭ·ŭm dō'nŭm). [L.] A royal gift; — applied esp. to an annual grant of public money, in England, for the Presbyterian clergy in Ireland, now withdrawn.

‖re'gi·us (rē'jĭ·ŭs), adj. [L. regius, fr. rex, regis, a king.] Royal.

regius professor. An incumbent of a professorship founded by royal bounty, as at Oxford and Cambridge.

re'gle (rē'g'l), v. t. [F. régler, fr. L. regulare.] To rule; govern. Obs.

re'gle, n. [OF. regle rule.] A regulation or rule; also, act of ruling or governing.

‖rè'gle (rȧ'gl'), n. [F.] Rule, esp. as fixed by usage. See EN RÈGLE.

reg'le·men'ta·ry (rĕg'lĕ·mĕn'tȧ·rĭ), adj. [F. réglementaire.] Regular. Rare.

reg'le·men·ta'tion (-mĕn·tā'shŭn), n. [F. réglementation.] Regulation, as by police supervision.

reg'le·men·tist (rĕg'lĕ·mĕn·tĭst), n. An advocate of reglementation.

reg'let (rĕg'lĕt; -lĭt; 119), n. [F. réglet, dim. of règle a rule, fr. L. regula. See RULE.] 1. Arch. A flat, narrow molding, used chiefly to separate parts or members of compartments or panels, or doubled, turned and interlaced to form knots, frets, or other ornaments, or to cover joints between boards.

2. Print. a A low strip of wood, 6 points (or a multiple thereof up to 36 points) in thickness, used like leads between lines, as in posters, etc. b Reglets collectively, or material for them.

re·glow' (rē·glō'), v. i. To glow again or anew; to reclesce. — n. Recalescence.

reg'ma (rĕg'mȧ), n. [NL., fr. Gr. rhēgma, -atos, fracture, fr. rhēgnynai to break.] Bot. A schizocarp consisting of three or more carpels, which split away from each other and burst elastically.

Fifteen-celled Regma, the Fruit of the Sandbox Tree. (¼) reg'ma·carp (-kärp), n. [regma + -carp.] Bot. A schizocarp. Rare.

reg'nal (rĕg'nȧl; -n'l), adj. [ML. regnalis, fr. regnum reign.] Of or pertaining to a reign, kingdom, or king.

regnal day. The anniversary of a sovereign's accession.

regnal year. A year of a sovereign's reign, the first being dated from the moment of his accession; — used in chronology, esp. in the citation of laws. Every regnal year (except the last) is complete and contains parts of two calendar years; thus, the first regnal year of George V was from May 6, 1910 to May 5, 1911.

reg'nan·cy (rĕg'nȧn·sĭ), n. The condition or quality of being regnant; sovereignty; rule.

reg'nant (-nȧnt), adj. [L. regnans, -antis, pres. part. of regnare to reign. See REIGN.] 1. Exercising rule or authority; reigning; as, a queen regnant.

2. Having the chief power; exercising sway; dominant; also, prevalent. "A traitor to the vices regnant." Swift.

She was filled with a regnant determination to defend herself. Gilbert Parker.

Re·gnault's' for'mu·la (rē·nyōz'), [After H. V. Regnault (1810–78), French chemist and physicist.] Physics. An empirical formula giving the total heat (H) of steam at any temperature ($t°$ Centigrade). It is $H = 606.5 + 0.305\ t$.

Regnault's law. Physics. The law that the specific heat of a gas is invariable at constant pressure.

‖reg'num (rĕg'nŭm), n. [L.] Dominion; rule; tenure of power.

reg'o·lith (rĕg'ō·lĭth), n. [Gr. rhegos blanket + -lith.] Geol. The mantle of loose material consisting of soils, sediments, broken rock, etc., overlaying the solid rock of the earth.

re·gorge' (rē·gôrj'), v. [F. regorger, fr. re- + gorger to gorge.] Transitive: 1. To vomit up; to disgorge; to throw back.

2. To swallow again; to swallow or suck back. Rare.

Tides at highest mark regorge the flood. Dryden.

——, Intransitive: To gush again; to be thrown back.

re·grade' (rē·grād'), v. i. & t. To grade or become graded again. — re'gra·da'tion (rē'grȧ·dā'shŭn), n.

re·grade' (rē·grād'), v. t. [LL. regradare.] To degrade. Rare. — v. i. [L. re- re- + gradi to go.] To retire. Rare.

re·grant' (rē·grȧnt'; 83), v. t. To grant back or again.

re·grant', n. A granting again, as back to a former proprietor, or by way of renewal of a grant.

re·grass' (rē·grȧs'), v. t. & i. To plant again with grass.

re·grate' (rē·grāt'), v. t.; -GRAT'ED (-grāt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119), -GRAT'ING (-grāt'ĭng). [OF. regrater to regrate provisions. Cf. GRATE to scrape.] 1. To buy in large quantities, as corn, provisions, etc., at a market or fair, with the intention of reselling, in or near the same place, at a profit, — a practice formerly treated as a public offense. Obs. exc. Hist.

2. To sell (commodities thus bought); to retail.

re·grate' (rē·grāt'), v. t. [F. regratter, lit., to scrape again. See GRATE to scrape.] Masonry. To remove the outer surface of, so as to freshen in appearance.

re·grate', v. t. & i. [See GRATE, v.] To grate upon; offend. Obs.

re·grate', v. t. & i. & n. [OF. regrater. See REGRET.] Lament; regret; sorrow. Obs. Scot.

re·grat'er (rē·grāt'ĕr), n. [OF. regratier (F. regrattier).] 1. One who regrates; specif., Eng., a middleman who goes about the country buying farm products for market.

2. One who by retailing, plagiarizing, etc. gets the profits or credit due to the producer, author, etc.

Becoming a sort of regrater of other men's gallantries, to his own aggrandizement. Hardy.

re·grede' (rē·grēd'), v. i. [L. regredi to go back. See REGRESS.] To go back; retrograde. Rare.

re·greet' (rē·grēt'), v. t. & i. To greet again or in return; to return a salutation to; to greet.

re·greet' (rē·grēt'), n. A greeting in return; a return salutation; pl., greetings. Obs.

re'gress (rē'grĕs), n. [L. regressus, fr. regredi, regressus, to go back, fr. re- re- + gradi to go. See GRADE; cf. RETROGRADE, TRANSGRESS.] 1. Act or privilege of going or coming back; withdrawal; egress; as, to provide free ingress and regress for ships; also, Rare exc. in Law, re-entry.

2. Retrogression; retrogradation.

The progress or regress of man. F. Harrison.

3. Act of a reasoning backward, as from effect to cause.

4. Astron. = RETROGRESSION a.

5. Law. a Rare. The right or power of falling back on another as primarily liable; recourse.

On the other hand, he has a right of contribution, regress, against the other. T. E. Holland.

b Re-entry, as upon lands redeemed from some forfeiture or default, upon a vacated benefice, etc.

re·gress' (rē·grĕs'), v. i.; -GRESSED (-grĕst'); -GRESS'ING. [L. regressus, past part. of regredi.] To make or undergo regress; to retrograde.

re·gres'sion (rē·grĕsh'ŭn), n. [L. regressio.] 1. Act or fact of regressing; regress; retrogression; reversion.

2. Biol. The correlation between parents and offspring when used as a measure of inheritance.

3. Math. a The fact that in associated or correlated pairs, on selecting one member with a given value for its character, the second has on the average a less value, regressing towards the value for the mean of all members (of the class). In statistics, the regression of y on x is defined by the line (or the curve) describing the relation between mean value of y and x. b Contrary flexure; inflection; also, the backward course of a curve from a cusp. c A discrete series which has a last element but no first.

4. Photog. A gradual spontaneous diminution or fading of the latent or developed image.

5. Psychoanalysis. Relapse into childishness; the return of the libido, upon encountering difficulties, to earlier stages of development or to infantile objects of attachment. Cf. FIXATION.

6. Psychol. Gradual loss of memories and acquired skills, as in old age. According to Ribot's law, the order of development is reversed so that the most recent memories are lost first and the earliest acquisitions are the last to go.

re·gres'sive (rē·grĕs'ĭv), adj. 1. That regresses or tends to regress; retrogressive; also, retroactive.

2. Characterized by, or derived from, reasoning backward, as from effect to cause or from observed facts to a principle.

3. Micros. Designating, or pertaining to, a technique of staining in which the stain is applied to excess and the excess later removed.

— re·gres'sive·ly, adv. — re·gres'sive·ness, n.

regressive accent. Recessive accent.

regressive assimilation. Phonet. See ASSIMILATION, 4. regressive differential coefficient. Math. See DIFFERENTIAL COEFFICIENT.

regressive metamorphism. Biol. a Retrograde development. b = CATABOLISM.

regressive sorites. See SORITES.

regressive staining. Micros. In staining technique, the practice of staining excessively and later removing the excess stain.

regressive taxation. A form of taxation upon incomes in which the tax rate decreases as the amount of the income increases.

re'gres·siv'i·ty (rē'grĕ·sĭv'ĭ·tĭ), n. Condition or quality of being regressive; tendency toward regression.

re·gres'sor (rē·grĕs'ĕr), n. One who regresses or is regressing.

re·gret' (rē·grĕt'), v.; -GRET'TED; -GRET'TING. [OF. regreter, regrater (F. regretter), orig., to lament the dead, of Teut. origin; cf. ON. grāta to weep. See GREET to lament.] Transitive: 1. To remember with sorrow or grief; to mourn the loss or death of; to miss poignantly.

For that fair lady whom thou dost regret. Shelley.

2. To have dissatisfaction, misgivings, or distress of mind concerning; to be keenly sorry for; as, to regret one's mistakes or the election of C —; I regret my inability to be present.

Little to praise, and nothing to regret. Wordsworth.

——, Intransitive: To experience regret.

reg'is·ter·a·ble. Var. of REGISTRABLE.

reg'is·terd. Registered. Ref. Sp.

reg'is·ter·ing, pres. part. & verbal n. of REGISTER.

reg'is·ter·ship', n. = REGISTRARSHIP. See -SHIP.

reg'i·tive (rĕj'ĭ·tĭv), adj. [OF. regitif.] Ruling; governing. Obs.

re·give', v. t., re·glad'den, v. t., re·glair', v. t., re·glaze', v. t. See RE-, 2.

‖re'gle·ment' (rȧ'gl'mȧN'), n. [F.] A regulation. Also, Obs., re'gle·ment (rĕg'l·mĕnt).

re·glo'ri·fied, adj., re·gloss', v. t., re·glove', v. t., re·glue', v. t. See RE-, 2.

reg·na'tion, n. [OF. regnacion, or ML. regnatio.] Reigning. Obs.

‖reg'nat po'pu·lus (rĕg'nȧt pŏp'ū·lŭs). [L.] The people rule; — the motto of Arkansas.

reg'ni·cide, n. [L. regnum kingdom + -cide.] A destroyer of a kingdom. Obs.

re·gov'ern, v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·gra'ci·a·to'ry, n. [ML. regratiare to thank.] A returning or giving of thanks. Obs.

re·gra'cy, n. t. [OF. regracier (four syllables).] To thank. Obs.

re'gra·da'tion (rē'grȧ·dā'shŭn), n., re·grad'u·ate, v. t. & i., re'·grad·u·a'tion, n., re·graft', v. t., re·grasp', v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·grat'i·fy, v. t. To gratify in return. Obs. — re'grat·i·fi·ca'tion, n. Obs.

re·grat'ing (rē·grāt'ĭng), pres. part. & verbal n. of REGRATE. — re·grat'ing·ly, adv. Rare.

re·gra'tor (rē·grā'tĕr), n. [OF. regrateor.] = REGRATER.

re·gra'tress (rē·grā'trĕs; -trĭs; 119), n. Fem. of REGRATER.

re·grat'u·late, v. i. & i. To make a return to or for; repay. Obs.

re·grav'el, v. i. See RE-, 2.

re·gre'di·ence, n. Returning. Obs.

re·green', v. i. See RE-, 2.

re·gres'sion·ist, n. See -IST.

re·gres'siv. Regressive. Ref. Sp.

re·grest'. Regressed. Ref. Sp.

re·gret' (rē-grĕt'), n. [F., fr. regretter. See REGRET, v.] 1. Obs. a Lamentation. b Dislike; aversion.
2. Sorrow aroused by circumstances beyond one's control or power to repair; grief or pain tinged with disappointment, dissatisfaction, longing, remorse, or the like; as, a scene that awakens regrets; to suffer keen regret for past deeds.
3. An expression of sorrow, disappointment, etc.; as, to weary one with vain regrets; specif., often pl., a note politely declining an invitation; as, to forget to send regrets.
Syn. — Grief, sorrow, repining; self-reproach, self-condemnation, repentance, penitence. — REGRET, COMPUNCTION, REMORSE. REGRET, the most general term, often refers to that over which one has had no control; as, "There are few . . . who have not cause to look back with regret on the days of infancy" (Cowper). As here compared, regret implies sorrow mingled with dissatisfaction on account of something done or left undone; as, "Love is hurt with jar and fret; love is made a vague regret" (Tennyson). Compunction and remorse always imply personal responsibility; COMPUNCTION denotes regretful self-reproach or misgiving, esp. for pain caused or wrong done to another; REMORSE, the strongest term, denotes acute, often hopeless, distress of conscience, as for something irreparable; as, "Virtuous love . . . shall . . . pluck the thorn from compunction" (Sheridan); "Richard . . . was open to persuasion on two sides. Compunction was one: you could touch him on the heart" (M. Hewlett); "Keen Remorse with blood defiled" (Gray). Cf. CONTRITION.

re·gret'ful (-fŏŏl; -fl), adj. Full of regret; indulging in regrets; repining. — re·gret'ful·ly, adv. — re·gret'ful·ness, n.

re·gret'ta·ble (rē-grĕt'ȧ-b'l), adj. [F.] Admitting of, deserving, or demanding, regret. — re·gret'ta·ble·ness, n. — re·gret'ta·bly, adv.

re·gret'ter (-ẽr), n. One who regrets.

reg'u·la (rĕg'ū-lȧ), n.; pl. -LAE (-lē). [L., a ruler, rule. See REGULAR.] Arch. A band or fillet, esp. one of a series beneath the taenia in a Doric architrave, each corresponding to a triglyph above and having a row of six guttae on its lower side.

reg'u·la·ble (rĕg'ū-lȧ-b'l), adj. Capable of being regulated.

reg'u·lar (-lẽr), adj. [ME. reguler, fr. OF. reguler (F. régulier), fr. L. regularis, fr. regula a rule, fr. regere to guide. See RULE; cf. RAIL a bar.] 1. Eccl. Belonging to a religious or monastic order or community; under, or pertaining to, a religious rule; — opposed to secular; as, regular clergy.
2. Formed, built, arranged, etc., according to some established rule, law, principle, or type; harmonious in form, structure, etc.; symmetrical; as, a regular piece of music; regular verse; regular features; a regular building.
3. Steady or uniform in course, practice, or occurrence; not subject to unexplained or irrational variation; returning or recurring at stated or fixed times or uniform intervals; as, a regular pulse; steadily pursued; usually or generally received, used, etc.; orderly; methodical; of the bowels, operating at proper intervals; as, regular habits.
4. Constituted, selected, conducted, made, etc., in conformity with established or prescribed usages, rules, or discipline; duly authorized or constituted; properly qualified or educated; as, a regular meeting; a regular physician; a regular nomination.
5. Great Britain. Designating a marriage notified by proclamation of banns or legal publication of intention to marry in the parish registry of births, deaths, and marriages, and celebrated in conformity to the order of a church; — opposed to irregular or clandestine.
6. Normal; standard; correct; hence: a Undeviating in conformance to a standard as set by convention, a party, etc. b Colloq. Thorough; unmitigated, out-and-out; as, a regular humbug. c Slang, U. S. Like other good fellows in views and ways.
7. Bot. Having the members of each whorl symmetrical with respect to form; — applied to flowers.
8. Cryst. Isometric.
9. Gram. a Of a word or inflection, conforming to the normal or usual manner of inflection, as English nouns taking -s or -es for the plural. b Sometimes, specif. = WEAK, 8 a.
10. Internat. Law. Designating soldiers properly recognized as legitimate combatants in war. These have been defined in a convention of the Hague Conference as follows: Art. I. The laws, rights, and duties of war apply not only to armies, but also to militia and volunteer corps fulfilling the following conditions: (a) To be commanded by a person responsible for his subordinates; (b) to have a fixed distinctive emblem recognizable at a distance; (c) to carry arms openly; and (d) to conduct their operations in accordance with the laws and customs of war. . . .
Art. II. The population of a territory which has not been occupied, who, on the enemy's approach, spontaneously take up arms . . . without having time to organize themselves in accordance with Article I, shall be regarded as belligerent if they respect the laws and customs of war.
11. Math. a Analytic; — said of a function of a complex variable. b Of a polygon, both equilateral and equiangular; of a polyhedron, having faces exactly the same in size, shape, number, and relative position at each summit; as, a regular pentagon, hexagon, tetrahedron, or hexahedron. In both cases the figure is commonly understood to enwrap the center once only. Cf. REGULAR BODY.
12. Mil. Pertaining to or designating the regular army (which see) of a state; as, a regular soldier.
13. N. Y. Stock Exchange. Of or pertaining to, or designating, transactions for which delivery of the securities is to be made at or before 2.15 o'clock on the following day.
Syn. — Even; ordered; constant, systematic, uniform; ordinary. REGULAR, NORMAL, TYPICAL. That is REGULAR (opposed to irregular), as here compared, which conforms to an established or prescribed rule or standard; NORMAL (opposed to abnormal) is more limited and exact in its application, and implies strict accordance with what is to be expected if regular processes are followed or proper functions performed; as, to apply the regular tests, his actions are not those of a wholly normal person; a regular verb; his temperature is normal. That is TYPICAL, as here compared, which exhibits the regular or normal characteristics of a given type; as, a typical example of Browning's style, a typical Greek. Cf. COMMON, USUAL.
Ant. — Anomalous, unsymmetrical; exceptional, unusual. See IRREGULAR.

reg'u·lar (rĕg'ū-lẽr), n. [See REGULAR, adj.] 1. A regulator. Obs. Scot.
2. a A regular physician (Obs.), employee, customer, party member, etc. b Slang. One pursuing or recurring in a regular routine.
3. Astrol. Any of several fixed numbers variously used in chronological calculations. Obs.
4. Eccl. A member of any religious order or community following a rule; one of the regular clergy.
5. Gram. A regular noun. Rare.
6. Mil. A regular soldier, esp. one in the regular army.

reg'u·lar (-lẽr), adv. Regularly (see FLAT, adj., 11). Chiefly Dial.

☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are:
regular-bred, regular-featured, regular-shaped, regular-built, regular-growing, regular-sized.

regular army. Mil. a The permanently organized body constituting the army of a state, often identical with the standing army. Cf. REGULAR, adj., 6 b. b [caps.] In the United States, a component of the Army of the United States which is maintained at operative strength by the Federal government. It consists of Infantry, Cavalry, Field Artillery, Coast Artillery Corps, Air Corps, Corps of Engineers, Signal Corps, General Staff Corps, Adjutant General's Department, Inspector General's Department, Judge Advocate General's Department, Quartermaster Corps, Finance Department, Medical Department, Ordnance Department, Chemical Warfare Service, the officers of the Bureau of Insular Affairs, the officers and enlisted men under the jurisdiction of the Militia Bureau, the chaplains, professors, and cadets of the United States Military Academy, detached officers, detached enlisted men, unassigned recruits, the Indian Scouts, the officers and enlisted men of the retired lists, and such other officers and enlisted men as may hereafter be provided for. (Act of June 4, 1920.) regular Baptists. See BAPTIST, n., 2. regular body. Math. A polyhedron in which the relations of faces and edges at each summit are the same. Pythagoras is said to have named the five ordinary regular polyhedrons, namely, the regular tetrahedron, octahedron, hexahedron or cube, icosahedron, and dodecahedron.
regular canoness. See CANONESS, 1. regular canons. = CANONS REGULAR.
regular canons of St. Austin. = AUGUSTINIAN CANONS. regular cleavage. See CLEAVAGE, 3. regular clerks. = CLERKS REGULAR.
Regular Clerks of St. Paul. See BARNABITE.
Regular Clerks of the Faith of Jesus. See PACCANARIST. regular continued fraction. Math. See CONTINUED FRACTION. regular curve. A curve composed of a chain of smooth curves.
Reg'u·la'res (rĕg'ū-lā'rēz; 79), n. pl. [NL., fr. L. regularis regular.] Paleontol. A group (formerly ranked as an order) comprising all symmetrical Blastoidea. regular function. Math. = ANALYTIC FUNCTION. regular group. Math. A transitive group (of order n) of permutations (of n symbols).
Reg'u·la'ri·a (-lā'rĭ·ȧ; 79), n. pl. [NL.] Zool. A division of Echinoidea including the ordinary sea urchins, having a more or less globular shell with twenty meridional rows of plates and the mouth and anus at opposite poles.
regular integral (of a linear differential equation). Math. An integral valid in the neighborhood of a regular singularity of the differential equation.
reg'u·lar'i·ty (rĕg'ū-lăr'ĭ·tĭ), n.; pl. -TIES (-tĭz). [F. régularité.] State or quality of being regular; as, regularity of outline or habits; also, that which is regular.
reg'u·lar·ize (rĕg'ū-lẽr-īz), v. t. To make regular, or conformable to law, rules, or the like; to make steady or uniform. — reg'u·lar·i·za'tion (-ĭ·zā'shŭn; -ī·zā'shŭn), n. — reg'u·lar·iz'er (-īz'ẽr), n.
regular lay. Ropemaking. See 6th LAY, 9 b. reg'u·lar–lay' rope. A wire rope having the wires in the strands twisted in opposite directions to the strands in the rope.

Regular-lay Rope.

regular lot. The number or amount regularly intended when the number or amount is not specified. For various things the regular lot is as follows: a On the N. Y. Stock Exchange, 100 shares of stock, $1,000 (face value) of bonds. b For various commodities: grain, 5,000 bushels; lard, 250 tierces, or 85,000 lbs.; short ribs, 50,000 lbs.; pork, 250 barrels; cotton, 100 bales, 50,000 lbs.; coffee, 250 bags, 32,500 lbs.; silver bullion, 1,000 oz. c On the London Stock Exchange, stock of the total par value of £1,000.
reg'u·lar·ly, adv. In a regular, orderly, lawful, or methodical way; symmetrically; correctly; properly.
regular ode. See ODE, n., 1. regular peloria. See PELORIA. regular point (of a function of a complex variable). Math. A point at which the function is analytic.
regular pyramid. Math. A pyramid whose base is a regular polygon and whose vertex is on the perpendicular to the base through its center.
regular reflection. Photom. Reflection such that the angle of reflection of the light is equal to the angle of incidence, and on the opposite side of the normal to the point of incidence. See REFLECTION.
regular sequence. Math. A sequence possessing a limit; a convergent sequence. regular sonnet. See SONNET, 2. regular substitution group. Math. A transitive group for which the substitution group obtained by omitting any letter reduces to the identity.
regular sweep. See WOODWORKING CHISEL. regular syllogism. Logic. A syllogism stated in strict logical form. regular troops. Troops of a standing or permanent army; — opposed to militia or volunteers. Cf. REGULAR ARMY. regular way. N. Y. Stock Exchange. The way of buying stocks in which delivery is to be made at or before 2.15 o'clock on the day after purchase. regular year. See JEWISH CALENDAR.

reg'u·late (rĕg'ū-lāt), v.; -LAT'ED (-lāt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -LAT'ING (-lāt'ĭng). [L. regulatus, past part. of regulare, fr. regula. See REGULAR.] Transitive: 1. To govern or direct according to rule; as, laws which regulate the succession of seasons; more narrowly, to bring under the control of law or constituted authority; to make regulations for or concerning; as, to regulate the industries of a country or the production of wheat.
2. To reduce to order, method, or uniformity; to regularize; as, to regulate one's habits or the operations of the bowels; also, Obs., to discipline.
3. To fix the time, amount, degree, or rate of, by adjusting, rectifying, etc.; as, to regulate temperature, pressure, or speed; also, to adjust so as to work accurately or regularly; as, to regulate a clock, a carburetor, or a meter.
—, Intransitive: To make regulations.
Syn. — Adjust, dispose, methodize, arrange, direct, order, rule, govern, control.
Ant. — Disorder, upset, disarrange.

reg'u·late (rĕg'ū-lȧt), adj. Regulated. Obs.

reg'u·lat'ed (-lāt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119), past tense & past part. of REGULATE.

regulated company. Any of various mercantile associations, such as the Hansards, the merchants of the staple, the Levant (Turkey), Russia, Eastland, and East India companies, etc., formerly holding, by government charter, the exclusive right of trade with certain countries. The members were subject to certain regulations intended to limit the trade so as to keep up prices, and were entitled to certain privileges, but each traded on his own separate capital. They were mostly formed in the 15th century, and had become of little or no importance by the year 1800.

reg'u·lat'ing (rĕg'ū-lāt'ĭng), pres. part. & verbal n. of REGULATE.

Regulating Act. Eng. An act (13 Geo. III. c. 63, 1773) regulating the governing powers of the East India Company.

regulating box. Elec. A rheostat for regulating the current passing through the field-magnet coils of a dynamo or motor.

regulating button, rail, screw. See PIANO, Illust.

reg'u·la'tion (-lā'shŭn), n. 1. Act of regulating, or state of being regulated; as, the regulation of one's mind; business suffering from undue regulation.
2. A regulating principle or law; specif., a rule or restriction prescribed and enforced by constituted authority for the sake of order, uniformity, discipline, etc.; as, the regulations of a school or a society.
3. Mach. The percentage variation in some characteristic quantity (as voltage, current, or speed) as a machine or apparatus becomes loaded; also, the ratio of deviation of such a quantity at rated load to its normal value at no load.
Syn. — Precept, rule, law; control, direction.

reg'u·la'tion, v. t. To prescribe or control by regulations.

reg'u·la'tion, adj. Prescribed by regulations; as, the regulation cap of a nurse; hence, usual; customary; as, the regulation accompaniments of a Thanksgiving dinner.

regulation provinces. In India, the provinces formerly governed by the East India Company under the regulations as to legislation, etc., of the different Charter Acts governing the East India Company. Cf. NONREGULATION.

reg'u·la'tive (rĕg'ū-lā'tĭv), n. A regulative principle, enactment, or the like.

reg'u·la'tive, adj. 1. Tending to regulate; having regulation for its aim; regulating; as, a regulative statute.
2. Philos. a Directing or regulating in the manner of a rule to be followed or an end to be attained. See REGULATIVE PRINCIPLE. b Kantianism. Designating the ideas of reason, such as First Cause, which arise in the mind because ideal knowledge requires the conception of the totality of conditions for anything given as conditioned. Such ideas validly direct our knowledge toward an always higher and more inclusive synthesis, but they are not, like the categories of the understanding, conditions of the possibility of knowledge; — opposed to constitutive.

regulative faculty. The faculty of the regulative principles of mind. Sir Wm. Hamilton.

regulative principle. Logic. A rule or principle of procedure; specif.: a Formerly, the principle underlying syllogistic inference, or in accordance with which any particular inference is drawn. b A rule of procedure to which there is no alternative if the desired end is to be secured, although it cannot itself assure attainment.

reg'u·la'tor (rĕg'ū-lā'tẽr), n. 1. One who regulates; specif.: a Eng. Hist. One of a board of seven appointed by King James II in 1687 with powers to appoint and remove officers and freemen at their discretion, for the purpose of influencing the election of members of Parliament. b [cap.] In North Carolina, a member of any of a number of associations of the poorer people, existing from 1767 to 1771, formed to resist official extortion. They not only refused to pay taxes, but committed many deeds of violence. c In the United States, a member of any of various bands or volunteer committees formed in newly occupied or settled regions before the establishment of local government, to preserve order, prevent crime, and administer justice.
2. A thing that regulates; as: a Chem. A substance added in a reaction to regulate the amount of another substance formed. b Elec. An automatic device for maintaining the current, voltage, speed, etc., of a machine, transformer, or the like at a specified value or for adjusting these quantities at will. c Horol. (1) A lever or index in a watch for altering the effective length of the hairspring to make the watch go faster or slower. (2) A standard clock used for timing watches and clocks. See ASTRONOMICAL CLOCK a. d Mach. A governor. e Mining. A sliding door for controlling ventilation. f Steam Engin. (1) A balance valve for controlling the admission of steam to the steam chest in a locomotive. (2) A reducing valve or steam-pressure regulating device.
3. One who regulates mechanisms (as clocks or pianos) or conditions (as of traffic).

reg'u·la'tor·ship, n. See -SHIP.

reg'u·la·to'ry (-lȧ-tō'rĭ or, esp. Brit., -lā-tẽr-ĭ; 68), adj. Of or pert. to regulation; making regulations; regulative; as, regulatory measures or bodies.

reg'u·line (rĕg'ū-lĭn; -līn), adj. [Cf. F. régulin. See REGULUS.] Chem. & Metal. Of, pertaining to, or of the nature of, a regulus; as, reguline silver; a reguline deposit.

reg'u·line (rĕg'ū-lĭn; -līn), n. Electroplating. A smooth coherent electrodeposit of metal.

reg'u·lize (rĕg'ū-līz), v. t. Old Chem. To reduce to regulus; to separate, as a metal from extraneous matter. Rare.

reg'u·lus (rĕg'ū-lŭs), n.; pl. -LUSES (-lŭs-ĕz; -lz); -LI (-lī). [L., a petty king, prince, dim. of rex, regis, a king. See REGAL.] 1. A petty king; a ruler of little power or consequence.
2. A popular medieval name for a snake of Nubia which was supposed to kill its victim by its hiss, as told by Peter of Abano, c. 1303. Cf. BASILISK, COCKATRICE.
3. [cap.] Astron. A first-magnitude star in the constellation Leo; — called also Cor Leonis, and, by astronomers, Alpha (α) Leonis. See STAR, Table.
4. [ML.] Chem. & Metal. The more or less impure button, globule, or mass of metal, formed beneath the slag in smelting and reducing ores; — first applied by alchemists to metal re·gret'a·ble. Var. of REGRETTABLE. re·gret'less, adj. See -LESS.

---

re·gret'ting·ly, adv. of regretting, pres. part.
re·grind', v. t., re·grind'er, n., re·grip', v. t., re·group', v. t., re·group'ment, n., re·grow', v. i. & t., re·growth', n. See RE-, 2. re'guar·an·tee', v. t. See RE-, 1. re·guard', v. t. See RE-, 2. re·guard'ant (rē-gär'dȧnt), adj. Her. = REGARDANT, 2. [Obs.] re·guer'don, n. [OF.] A reward. re·guer'don, v. t. [OF. reguerdonner. See GUERDON.] To reward. Obs. — re·guer'don·ment, n. Obs.
re·guide', v. t. See RE-, 2. reg'u·lar·ness, n. See -NESS. reg'u·lat'a·ble (rĕg'ū-lāt'ȧ-b'l), adj. See -ABLE.
reg'u·la·tion·ist, n. See -IST. reg'u·la'tion·proof' (66), adj. See -PROOF. reg'u·la'tiv. Regulative. Ref. Sp.
reg'u·la'tive·ly, adv. of REGULATIVE. reg'u·la'tress (rĕg'ū-lā'trĕs; -trĭs; 119), n. Fem. of REGULATOR. reg'u·li, n., pl. of REGULUS.

lic antimony on account of its ready alloying with gold. Also, the material of such a mass; coarse metal; matte.
5. Math. A simply infinite system of right lines, in which consecutive lines do not in general intersect; specif., one set of generators or rulings of a quadric surface.
6. [cap.] Zool. The genus consisting of the kinglets. regulus of Venus. Old Chem. A violet alloy of copper and antimony, Cu_4Sb. re'gur (rē'gŭr; rā'-), n. [Hind. regar.] A rich black loam occurring in India, similar to the Russian chernozem. re·gur'gi·tant (rē-gûr'jĭ-tănt), adj. Med. Throwing or flowing back; regurgitating.
re·gur'gi·tate (-tāt), v. i.; -TAT'ED (-tāt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -TAT'ING (-tāt'ĭng). [ML. regurgitare, regurgitatum, fr. re- re- + LL. gurgitare. See GURGITATION.] To be thrown or poured back; to gush, rush, or surge back.
The food may regurgitate from the stomach into the esophagus and mouth. Quain.
— v. t. To throw, cast, or pour back or out again, as from a cavity; often, to vomit.
re·gur'gi·ta'tion (-tā'shŭn), n. [ML. regurgitatio.] Act of flowing, pouring, or gushing back or out again; specif., Biol. & Med., the reversal of the natural direction in which the current or contents flow through a tube or cavity of the body, as the casting up of incompletely digested food (as by certain birds feeding their young) or the backward flow of blood to the heart.
reh (rā), n. [AS. hrēoh.] Geol. A mixture of soluble sodium salts appearing as an efflorescence on the ground in arid or semiarid regions in India; the "alkali" of the western United States.
re'ha·bil'i·tate (rē'hă·bĭl'ĭ·tāt), v. t.; -TAT'ED (-tāt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -TAT'ING (-tāt'ĭng). [ML. rehabilitare. See HABILITATE.] 1. To invest or clothe again with some right, authority, or dignity; to restore to a former capacity; to reinstate; to qualify again; to restore, as a delinquent, to a former right, rank, or privilege lost or forfeited; — a term primarily of civil and canon law.
2. To restore to good repute by vindicating; to clear of unjust or unfounded charges; to re-establish the good name of; as, Joan of Arc was formally rehabilitated in 1456.
3. To restore to a former state of solvency, efficiency, or the like; as, to rehabilitate a company financially.
4. To put on a proper basis or into a previous good state again; to restore; to re-establish; specif., to restore a person, as a disabled soldier, to a status of independent earning power through a course of instruction under state supervision, esp. along vocational lines.
5. To discharge (a bankrupt) from his debts. S. Africa.
Syn. — Restore, re-establish, reinstall.
re'ha·bil'i·ta'tion (-tā'shŭn), n. [ML. rehabilitatio.] Act, process, or result of rehabilitating; the state of being rehabilitated; restoration of a right, one's good name, one's health and efficiency, etc.
re·hair' (rē-hâr'), v. t. Music. To attach new hair to (a bow).
re·han'dling (-hăn'dlĭng), n. A new and different treatment of a subject or theme, esp. one that has been much used.
re·har'mo·nize (rē-här'mō-nīz), v. t. To harmonize again or anew; specif., Music, to provide, as a melody or passage, with a different harmony.
re·hash' (rē-hăsh'), v. t. To hash over again; to present or use again in another form; to restate, as old arguments.
re'hash (rē'hăsh), n. The action or product of rehashing; something rehashed and given a new name; as, his second book is a rehash of his first.
re·hear'ing (rē-hēr'ĭng), verbal n. A hearing again or anew; specif., Law, a second or repeated hearing, as of a trial or of an argument on appeal.
re·hears'al (rē-hûr'săl; -s'l), n. Act of rehearsing; recital; narration, repetition; specif., a private recital, performance, or season of practice, in preparation for a public exhibition or exercise; as, a rehearsal of a play.
In rehearsal of our Lord's Prayer. Hooker.
Rehearsal, The. A farce (1671) by George Villiers, Duke of Buckingham. See BAYES. re·hearse' (rē-hûrs'), v.; -HEARSED' (-hûrst'); -HEARS'ING (-hûr'sĭng). [ME. rehercen, rehersen, fr. OF. rehercier, to harrow over again, to repeat, fr. re- re- + hercier to harrow, fr. herce a harrow (F. herse). See HEARSE.] Transitive: 1. To repeat, as what has been already said; to recite aloud formally; to say over, as a poem; to tell over.
When the words were heard which David spake, they rehearsed them before Saul. 1 Sam. xvii. 31.
2. To recount or mention one by one; to enumerate.
3. To narrate; recount; relate; tell. Now Rare.
Rehearse the righteous acts of the Lord. Judg. v. 11.
4. a To recite, repeat, or go through, in private in preparation for a more formal and public representation; as, to rehearse a tragedy or a solo. b To train or instruct by rehearsal.
He has been rehearsed by Madame Defarge as to his having seen her. Dickens.
5. Obs. a To say; to speak. b To mention; to cite; to quote.
—, Intransitive: 1. To make mention; — with of. Obs.
2. To recite something, esp. for practice; to engage in a rehearsal. "There will we rehearse." Shak.
Syn. — Recite, recapitulate, detail, describe. re·hearse', n. Rehearsal. Obs.
re·hears'er (-hûr'sĕr), n. One who conducts rehearsals; one who rehearses.
re·heat' (rē·hēt'), v. t. To heat again.
re·heat'er, n. 1. One who reheats, as a furnaceman who reheats metal.
2. A device or apparatus for reheating. Specif.: a In a compound engine, a receiver furnished with means for heating the steam. b An apparatus for reheating compressed air before use to prevent excessively low temperatures due to expansion.
re·heat'ing fur'nace. In steel making, a furnace in which bars are reheated before being rolled.
Reh'fuss tube (rā'fŏŏs). [After M. E. Rehfuss (b. 1887), Am. physician.] Med. A thin flexible rubber tube, to be swallowed by the patient, for aspiration of the contents of the stomach or duodenum or for introduction of material into them.
Re'ho·bo'am (rē'hō·bō'ăm; rē'ō·bō'ăm), n. [Heb. Rĕhabh'ām, lit., the clan is enlarged.] 1. Bib. The last king of the old kingdom of Israel and, on account of the revolt under Jeroboam and the formation of the new kingdom of Northern Israel, the first king of Judah. 1 Kings xii–xiv. See JEROBOAM, 1 a.
2. A shovel hat. C. Brontë.
3. A very large flagon or bowl; a double jeroboam. It usually holds 16 quarts. Slang, Eng.
Re'ho·both (rā'hō·bŏth), n. Also Rehoboth (-hĕ·bŏth). A member of a community or company of peoples in Southwest Africa, of mixed European and native, esp. Herero, origin.
Re·ho'both (rē·hō'bŏth; -bŏth). Bib.
Re'ho·bo'than (rā'hō·bō'thăn), adj. Of or pertaining to the Rehoboths of South Africa.
re·house' (rē·houz'), v. t. To replace in a house, or to place in a new house.
‖Reich (rīk), n. [G.] a The German Empire. b Germany; the German state; as, the Reich government of 1928; the borders of the new Reich.
Rei'chert num'ber or val'ue (rī'ĸĕrt). [After Carl Reichert.] Anal. Chem. A value used in appraising butter and other fats, expressed as the number of cubic centimeters of decinormal alkali required to neutralize the volatile water-soluble fatty acids obtained from 2.5 grams of the fat or oil by a certain method of saponification and distillation. Similarly, the Rei'chert–Meis'sl (-mīs'l) and the Rei'chert–Woll'ny (-vŏl'nĭ) numbers or values are the numbers required for 5 grams, the methods varying slightly. The Reichert-Meissl number of butter is relatively high (21–34), of coconut fat 5–8, and of most other edible fats and oils, less than one.
Reichs'bank' (rīks'băngk'; G. -băngk'), n. [G.] The state bank of Germany 1875–1946.
Reichs'ge·richt' (-gĕ·rĭkt'), n. [G.] The supreme court of Germany until 1945. reichs'gul'den (rīks'gŏŏl'dĕn), n. [G.] A former German coin equal to ⅔ reichstaler.
Reichs'land' (rīks'lănt'), n. [G.] Crownland; specif., Alsace-Lorraine, when part of Germany (1871–1919). — Reichs'land'er (-lăn'dĕr), n. reichs'mark' (rīks'märk'), n.; pl. -MARKS, -MARK. [G.] The monetary unit of Germany from 1924, when it was established as equal at par to 23.8 cents, to 1948. See COIN, Table. reichs'pfen'nig (-pfĕn'ĭg), n.; pl. -NIGS (-ĭgz), -NICE (-ĭ·gĕ). [G.] A minor bronze coin of Germany from 1924 to 1948 worth 1/100 reichsmark. See COIN, Table.
‖Reichs'prä'si·dent' (-prā'zĭ·dĕnt'), n. [G.] The president of Germany 1919–34.
Reichs'stadt' (-shtät'), n. [G.] A free city of the former German Empire. reichs'ta'ler, or -tha'ler (-tä'lĕr), n. [G.] A rix-dollar.
‖Reichs'wehr' (rīks'vār'), n. [G.] A military force organized in Germany in 1919 out of voluntary units for the defense of the realm. At first it numbered 500,000, but by 1921 it had been reduced to 100,000, the number allowed by the Treaty of Versailles for the German army. Cf. BLACK REICHSWEHR.
‖Reichs'wirt'schafts·rat' (rīks'vĭrt'shäfts·rät'), n. [G.] The Federal (or National) Economic Council, organized under Art. 165 of the constitution of the German Reich (1919), to provide a nonpolitical body (326 in 1926) of representatives of workers and employers, chosen on an occupational basis, to advise the government on social and economic matters. It ceased to exist in 1934.
reif (rĕf), n. [AS. rēaf.] Robbery; plunder. Chiefly Scot.
re'i·fi·ca'tion (rē'ĭ·fĭ·kā'shŭn), n. [L. res thing + E. -fication.] The process or result of reifying; hypostatization.
re'i·fy (rē'ĭ·fī), v. t.; -FIED (-fīd); -FY'ING (-fī'ĭng). [L. res thing + E. -fy.] To regard (an abstraction, a mental construction, etc.) as a thing; to materialize; to convert into something concrete or objective; as, to reify space and time. reign (rān), n. [ME. reyn, regne, fr. OF. reigne, regne (F. règne), fr. L. regnum, fr. regere to guide, rule. See REGENT, RIGHT, adj.] 1. Royal authority; supreme power; sovereignty; rule; dominion; sway; also, time during which a sovereign rules; as, it happened in the reign of Elizabeth.
2. The territory or sphere which is reigned over; kingdom; empire; realm. Now Rare. Spenser.
3. Bible. pl. [cap.] In the Vulgate and Douay versions, the title of four historical books in the old Testament. See 1st KING, 7. reign (rān), v.; REIGNED (rānd); REIGN'ING. [ME. reinen, regnen, fr. OF. regner (F. régner), fr. L. regnare, fr. regnum. See REIGN, n.] Intransitive: 1. To possess or exercise sovereign power or authority; to govern as king, emperor, or other royal ruler; to hold supreme power or dignity in a kingdom or empire; to hold sway; to rule; as, Queen Victoria reigned 64 years; an emperor who reigned but never ruled. "Spirit here that reignest!" Keats.
2. To continue to be or live (in); also, to flourish. Obs.
3. To be predominant or prevalent; to prevail; to predominate, as in number; as, evils flourish where ignorance reigns; in this forest pine trees reign.
—, Transitive: 1. To rule; govern. Obs.
2. To affect or cause by reigning; as, to reign down evil. R.
Reign of Terror. Fr. Hist. A period of anarchy, bloodshed, and confiscation, in the French Revolution, during which the country was under the sway of an actual terror inspired by the ferocious measures of its temporary rulers. The Reign of Terror began in the spring of 1793, and practically ended with the fall of Robespierre, July 27, 1794.
‖Rei'hen·grä'ber (rī'ĕn·grä'bĕr), n. pl. [G., lit., graves in rows.] The long barrows found in southern Germany. See 1st BARROW, 2. — adj. Designating the race, probably early Teutons, buried in the Reihengräber. reik (rĕk). Var. of REAK, prank. Scot. reik (rĕk). Scot. & N. of Eng. var. of REACH. reik (dial. rēk, rāk). Var. of REEK. Obs. exc. Dial. re'im·burs'a·ble (rē'ĭm·bûr'sȧ·b'l), adj. [Cf. F. remboursable.] Repayable. re'im·burse' (rē'ĭm·bûrs'), v. t.; -BURSED' (-bûrst'); -BURS'ING (-bûr'sĭng). [Pre- + imburse, after F. rembourser. Cf. SPORRAN.] 1. Literally, to replace in a purse (an equivalent for that taken, lost, or expended); hence, to pay back; repay; Obs., to refund; as, to reimburse the expenses of a war.
2. To make restoration or payment of an equivalent to (a person); to indemnify; as, to reimburse one for his losses.
Syn. — See PAY.
— re'im·burse'ment, n. — re'im·burs'er (-bûr'sĕr), n. re'im·bush' (rē'ĭm·bŏŏsh'), v. t. [Cf. F. rembucher, and E. AMBUSH.] Hunt. To cause to enter again into the bushes or thicket. Rare. re'im·bush'ment (-mĕnt), n. Hunt. A re-entering into a thicket. Rare.
Rei'mer–Tie'mann re·ac'tion (rī'mĕr·tē'măn). [After Carl L. Reimer and Ferdinand Tiemann.] Chem. a A reaction for producing aromatic hydroxy aldehydes by the action of chloroform and caustic alkali on phenols. b A similar reaction for producing aromatic hydroxy acids from carbon tetrachloride, alkali, and phenols. reim'ken'nar (rīm'kĕn'ĕr), n. [G. reim rime + kenner knower.] One who knows magic rhymes or spells; a sorcerer or sorceress. Scot.
re·im'mi·grant (rē·ĭm'ĭ·grănt), n. One who immigrates to a country from which he formerly emigrated.
re'im·mi·gra'tion (rē'ĭm·ĭ·grā'shŭn), n. Immigration to the country from which one has formerly emigrated.
re'im·pel' (rē'ĭm·pĕl'), v. t. To impel again or anew.
re'im·plant' (rē'ĭm·plănt'; 83), v. t. To implant again.
re'im·plan·ta'tion (rē'ĭm·plăn·tā'shŭn), n. A reimplanting, as, Dent., of a drawn tooth in its socket.
re'im·port' (rē'ĭm·pōrt'; 181), v. t. To import again; to import (something previously exported); bring back, as in a manufactured state. — n. Reimportation.
re'im·por·ta'tion (rē'ĭm·pôr·tā'shŭn), n. Act of reimporting; also, that which is reimported.
re'im·pose' (rē'ĭm·pōz'), v. t. [Cf. F. réimposer.] 1. To impose again.
2. Rare. a To tax again. b To reprint.
— re'im·po·si'tion (-pō·zĭsh'ŭn), n. — re'im·po'sure (rē'-ĭm·pō'zhĕr), n.
re'im·pres'sion (rē'ĭm·prĕsh'ŭn), n. [Cf. F. réimpression.] A second or repeated impression, as of a book without change, or a reprint as distinguished from a new edition.
Reims and Dou'ay' Bi'ble (rēmz, dōō'ā'). = DOUAY BIBLE.
Reims New Testament. See BIBLE, 2. rein (rān), n. A kidney. See REINS. rein (rān), n. [ME. reyn, rene, fr. OF. rene, resne, regne (F. rêne), fr. (assumed) VL. retina, fr. L. retinere to hold back. The vowel was perh. influenced by that in the verb reign. See RETAIN.] 1. The strap of a bridle, fastened to the curb or snaffle on each side, by which the rider or driver governs a horse or other animal; — usually in the pl.; also, any similar device for this purpose. See HARNESS, Illust.
2. Often pl. Figurative senses: a A curbing or restraining; check; hindrance. "Let their eyes move without rein." Milton. b Controlling or guiding power; position of command; as, to take the reins of government.
3. a Eng. Either of the handles of a blacksmith's tongs. b The bent-out part of each of the handles of a pair of tongs for handling steel rails.
— to give reins, allow rein, etc. To give freedom, unlimited scope, or full course (to); as, to give reins to one's imagination.
rein (rān), v.; REINED (rānd); REIN'ING. Transitive: 1. To fasten or tie up by the rein or reins. Obs.
2. To provide with a rein or reins.
Canvas-wing'd, cable-rein'd Steeds of the Ocean . . . George Darley.
3. To check or stop by or as by a pull at the reins; to pull or check and hold by or as by means of reins; to restrain; — often with back, in, or up.
Edyrn reined his charger at her side. Tennyson.
4. To control, direct, or turn, with or as with the reins; to guide; as, to rein a horse to the left.
—, Intrans.: 1. To submit or yield to the use of reins. Rare.
He will bear you easily, and reins well. Shak.
2. To stop or slow up one's horse, oneself, etc., by or as by pulling the reins; — with back, in, or up; as, the cavalrymen reined up; we reined in to a jog.
3. To move or pull, in or as in response to tightened reins; — with back, in, or up.
rein (rān), n. [ON. hreinn, Nor. rein. See REINDEER.] Reindeer. rei'na (rā'nȧ), n. [Sp., queen.] A California rockfish (Hispaniscus elongatus). re'in·car'nate (rē'ĭn·kär'nāt), v. t. To incarnate again.
re'in·car·na'tion (rē'ĭn·kär·nā'shŭn), n. 1. A reincarnating, or state of being reincarnated.
2. The belief involved in various doctrines of metempsychosis and transmigration of souls, that the souls of the dead successively return to earth in new forms or bodies; hence, a rebirth of a soul in a new, esp. a human, body.
re'in·car·na'tion·ism, n. See -ISM. — re'in·car·na'tion·ist, n. re'in·cense' (rē'ĭn·sĕns'), v. t. [See RE-, 2; 3d INCENSE.] To perfume in return. Rare.

---

re·gurge', re·gush', v. i. See RE-, 2.
Re'ha·bi'ah (rē'hȧ·bī'ȧ). Bib.
re·hale', v. t., re·hal'low, v. t., re·ham'mer, v. t., re·hand'i·cap, v. t., re·han'dle, v. t., re·han'dler, n., re·hang', v. t., re·hap'pen, v. i., re·hard'en, v. t. & i., re·harm', v. t., re·har'ness, v. t., re·har'row, v. t., re·har'vest, v. t., re·hasl', v. t. See RE-, 2.
re·have', v. t. To have or get again. Obs. re·hayte', v. i. [Cf. REHETE to cheer.] To make merry; behave noisily. Obs.
re·haz'ard, v. t. See RE-, 2. reh'boc', reh'bok'. Vars. of REBOK.
re·head', v. t., re·heal', v. t., re·heap', v. t., re·hear', v. t. See RE-, 2. re·hearst'. Rehearsed. Ref. Sp.
re·heart'en, v. t. See RE-, 2.
Re'he·both. Var. of 1st REHOBOTH. re·hedge', v. t., re·heel', v. t., re·height'en, v. t. See RE-, 2. re'-Hel·len·i·za'tion, n. See RE-, 2. — re·Hel'len·ize, v. t. re·helm', v. t. To arm again with a helmet. Obs.
reherce. † REHEARSE. re·herse'. Var. of REHEARSE. Obs. exc. Ref. Sp. re·herst'. Rehearsed. Ref. Sp. re·hete', v. t. [OF. rehaitier.] To cheer; encourage; refresh. Obs. re·hete', v. i. & i. [Origin uncert.] To annoy; scold; rebuke. Obs. re'hi·bi'tion, re·hib'i·to'ry. Erroneous vars. of REDHIBITION, etc. re·hide', v. t., re·hinge', v. t., re·hire', v. t. & n., re·hob', v. t. See RE-, 2.
Re'hob (rē'hŏb). Bib.
re·hoe', v. t., re·hoist', v. t., re·hol'low, v. t., re·hon'or or -our, v. t., re·hood', v. t., re·hook', v. t., re·hoop', v. t. See RE-, 2.
Re'hu (rē'hū). Bib.
Re'hum (rē'hŭm). Bib.
re·hu'man·ize, v. t., re·hum'ble, v. t. See RE-, 2.
re'hu·mil'i·a'tion, n. See RE-, 2. — re'hu·mil'i·a'tion, n.
re·hung', past tense & past part. of REHANG. re·hy'brid·ize, v. t. See RE-, 2. re·hy'drate, v. t. See RE-, 2. — re·hy·dra'tion, n.
re·hy'poth'e·cate (rē'hī·pŏth'ē·kāt; -hĭ-), v. t., re·hy·poth'e·ca'tion (-kā'shŭn), n., re·hy·poth'e·ca'tor (-pŏth'ē·kā'tĕr), n. See RE-, 2. rei (rā), n. Incorrect Eng. sing. for Portuguese real (coin), pl. REIS. See REIS.
Re'i (rē'ĭ). Bib.
Re·i'a (rē·ī'ȧ). D. Bib. re·ice', v. t. See RE-, 2.
Reich'en·bach phenomena (rīk'ĕn·bŏk). See OD.
‖Reichs'rat' (rīks'rät'), n. Also Reichs'rath' (-rät'). [G.] See LEGISLATURE.
‖Reichs'tag' (-täk'), n. [G.] Germany. See LEGISLATURE & 3d DIET, 3 f. reid. Scot. var. of RED.
reid. Scot. & N. of Eng. var. of REDD, to clear. reid (rēd). Var. of READ, stomach; REED. Obs. exc. Dial.
re'i·den'ti·fy, v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'i·den'ti·fi·ca'tion, n. reigh, n. [AS. reohhe.] The ray (fish). Obs. reign. † RAIN, v.; REIN. reignd. Reigned. Ref. Sp. reign'er, n. A ruler. Obs. re'ig·nite', v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'ig·ni'tion, n.
re'ig·nore', v. t. See RE-, 2.
‖Reih'en (rī'ĕn), n. pl. [G.] See RALLS. reike. † REEK, seaweed. reik'ie. Scot. var. of REEKY. reile. † RAIL. reill. † REEL.
re'il·lume', v. t., re'il·lu'mi·nate, v. t., re'il·lu'mi·na'tion, n., re'il·lu'mine, v. t. See RE-, 2. re'il·lus·trate, v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'il·lus·tra'tion, n. [REIM.] reim (rēm), n. [D. riem.] = re·im'age, v. t., re'im·ag'ine, v. t. & i., re'im·ag·i·na'tion, n., re'im·bark', v. t. & i., re·im'bar·ka'tion, n., re'im·bibe', v. t., re'im·body', v. t. & i., re'im·boak', v. i. (Obs.). See RE-, 2.
Rei'mer re·ac'tion (rī'mĕr). = REIMER-TIEMANN REACTION a. re'im·merge', v. i., re'im·merse', v. t., re'im·mer'sion, n., re·im'pact, n., re'im·park', v. t., re'im·part', v. t. See RE-, 2. re'im·pa'ri·date, v. t. See RE-, 1. — re'im·pa'ri·a'tion, n.
re'im·ply', v. t. See RE-, 1. re'im·por'tu·nate, v. i. (Obs.).
re'im·por·tune', v. t., re'im·preg'nate, v. t., re'im·press', v. t., re'im·print', v. t., re'im·pris'on, v. t., re'im·pris'on·ment, n. See RE-, 2. re'im·prove', v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'im·prove'ment, n.
re·im'pulse, n. See RE-, 1. re'in·a·bil'i·ty, n. See RE-, 2. re'in·an'i·mate, v. t. (re- + ist in- + animate.) To reanimate. Obs.
re'in·au'gu·ra'tion, n. See RE-, 2. — re'in·au'gu·ra'tion, n.
re'in·ca'pa·ble, adj., re'in·car'na·dine, v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·in'ci·dence (rē·ĭn'sĭ·dĕns), n. [re- + incidence.] Canon Law. Falling under censure again through failure to observe conditions of previous absolution.

re·in'ci·den·cy (-dĕn·sĭ), n. Relapse. Rare.

re'in·cru'date (rē'ĭn·krōō'dāt), v. t. To make crude again. Rare. — re'in·cru·da'tion (rē'ĭn·krōō·dā'shŭn), n. Rare.

rein'deer' (rān'dēr'), n. [ON. hreindȳri, fr. hreinn reindeer + dȳr deer. See DEER, ON. hreinn is perh. of Lapp or Finnish origin; cf. Lappish reino pasturage.] 1. sing. & pl. Any of several species of deer of the genus Rangifer inhabiting the northern parts of Europe, Asia, and America. Antlers are present in both sexes; those of the male long, sweeping, often somewhat palmate at the ends, and with broad, greatly developed brow tines; those of the female much smaller and simpler. The hoofs are large and crescentic and the dewclaws very large. The European species R. tarandus is domesticated in Lapland and other parts of the Old World, and has been introduced into Alaska also. It is used for drawing sleds. American species are called caribou.

European Reindeer (Rangifer tarandus).

2. [cap.] Astron. An early constellation between Cassiopeia and Camelopard. Obs.

Reindeer age, epoch, or period. Paleethnol. A part of the Paleolithic era when the reindeer was common over central Europe, about equivalent to the Magdalenian period.

reindeer flower. A white-flowered buttercup (Ranunculus glacialis) of northern and arctic regions, said to be a food of reindeer.

reindeer lichen. = REINDEER MOSS.

reindeer moss. A gray, erect, tufted and much-branched lichen (Cladonia rangiferina) which forms extensive patches on the ground in arctic and even in north temperate regions. It forms a large part of the food of reindeer (caribou) in the far north, esp. in Lapland, and is sometimes eaten by man.

reindeer pest. An infectious bacillary disease of reindeer, characterized by excitement, lack of appetite, staggering gait, difficult respiration, and edematous swellings.

re·in·dict'ment (rē'ĭn·dīt'mĕnt), n. A second indictment.

Rei'neck·e Fuchs' (rī'nĕ·kĕ fōōks'). The German form of the medieval beast epic Reynard the Fox. The earliest German version is that of Heinrich der Glichesäre (1180), which Goethe rendered into modern German. See REYNARD.

rei·nette' (rĕ·nĕt'), n. [F.] A type of apple; — applied to many varieties.

‖re in·fec'ta (rē ĭn·fĕk'tä). [L.] The business being unfinished.

re'in·fec'tion (rē'ĭn·fĕk'shŭn), n. Med. An additional infection following recovery from, or superimposed on, a previous infection of the same type. — re'in·fect' (-fĕkt'), v. t. — re'in·fec'tious (-fĕk'shŭs), adj.

re'in·force' (rē'ĭn·fōrs'; 181), v. t. [re- + enforce; cf. F. renforcer.] To strengthen with new force, assistance, material, or support; as, to reinforce an argument; to reinforce a garment; specif., to strengthen with additional troops as an army or a fort, or with additional ships, as a fleet; also, Obs., to reassemble (troops, etc.). — v. i. To seek or get reinforcements. Rare.

Syn. — Strengthen, support, back.

Ant. — Weaken, undermine.

re'in·force', n. [See REINFORCE, v.; cf. RANFORCE.] Something which reinforces or strengthens. Specif.: a The wrought-iron or steel band shrunk on over the chamber and rear part of the bore of cast-iron guns; sometimes, the enlarged, similarly located part of a modern built-up gun. b An additional thickness of material around an eyelet, buttonhole, etc.

re'in·forced' bow (-fōrst'). See 3d BOW, 2.

reinforced concrete. Concrete in which metal, usually steel, is embedded in such a manner that the two materials act together in resisting forces; — called also armored concrete. — re'in·forced'-con'crete (66), adj.

re'in·force'ment (rē'ĭn·fōrs'mĕnt; 181), n. [Cf. F. renforcement.] 1. Act of reinforcing, or state of being reinforced.

2. That which reinforces; additional force; esp., pl., additional troops to augment the strength of an army, or ships to strengthen a navy or fleet.

3. Physiol. The strengthening of the response to one stimulus by the concurrent action of another stimulus.

re'in·forc'er (-fōr'sĕr; 181), n. One who or that which reinforces.

rein'less (rān'lĕs; -lĭs; 119), adj. Not having, or not governed by, reins; hence, not checked or restrained.

rein orchis. Any orchid of the genus Gymnadeniopsis or of related genera; — so called in allusion to the kidney-shaped lip in some species.

reins (rānz), n. pl. [OF., fr. L. ren, pl. renes. Cf. RENAL.] Archaic. 1. The kidneys or their region; hence, the loins.

He hath caused the arrows . . . to enter into my reins. Lam. iii. 13.

2. The seat of the feelings, affections, or passions, which were formerly thought to be localized in the loins.

I am he which searcheth the reins and hearts. Rev. ii. 23.

Reinsch test (rīnsh). [After Hugo Reinsch (1809–84), Ger. chemist.] Anal. Chem. A test for arsenic, in which a clean strip of copper foil is placed in an acidified solution of the substance to be tested. If a gray film of copper arsenide is formed on the copper, arsenic is present.

reins'man (rānz'măn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). A driver of horses, esp. a skillful driver.

reins of a vault. Arch. The parts between the crown and the spring or abutment, including the loading or filling behind the vault shell, — like haunches of an arch.

re'in·state' (rē'ĭn·stāt'), v. t.; -STAT'ED (-stāt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -STAT'ING (-stāt'ĭng). 1. To instate again; to place again (in possession, or in a former position); to reinstall; as, to reinstate a deposed king or discharged official.

2. To restore to a fresh or proper condition or state.

All the ceilings had been whitewashed, all the rooms papered, the broken glass hacked out and reinstated. S. Butler.

re'in·state'ment (-mĕnt), n. 1. Act of reinstating, as in a post, position, etc., formerly held but relinquished; restoration; as, the President's reinstatement of the postmaster at X; also, the act of restoring the effectiveness of; replacement, as of something damaged, worn out, lapsed, etc.; as, when he paid his past-due premium, the company took steps for the reinstatement of his insurance.

2. Condition of being reinstated, or restored, as to a post, position, etc., formerly held but relinquished; as, his reinstatement in popular favor quickly followed.

re'in·sta'tion (-stā'shŭn), n. Reinstatement.

re'in·sta'tor (rē'ĭn·stā'tĕr), n. One who reinstates.

re'in·sur'ance (rē'ĭn·shōōr'ăns; 242), or re'as·sur'ance (-ă·shōōr'ăns), n. Act of reinsuring, or the amount protected by reinsuring, esp. by an insurer or underwriter to protect himself against risk already incurred. Reinsurance is known as excess reinsurance, when the reinsuring company (reinsurance, or reassurance, company) assumes liability on the risk only for that amount of insurance which is over and above a stated sum, the principle of contribution applying in payment of losses; excess loss reinsurance, when the reinsuring company agrees to bear any loss, often with some maximum limitation, in excess of a stipulated amount; facultative reinsurance, when a separate reinsurance agreement is drawn up for a single risk; flat reinsurance, esp. in marine insurance, when the reinsurance agreement is not subject to cancellation or change; and treaty reinsurance, when a general agreement automatically reinsures, in accordance with its terms, all risks of a given class to a predetermined extent as soon as they are insured by the direct underwriter.

re'in·sure' (rē'ĭn·shōōr') or re'as·sure' (-ă·shōōr'), v. t. To insure again; to transfer to another insurance company the liability, in whole or in part, assumed by the direct writing company; also, to assume the liability, in whole or in part, of an insurance company which is already covering the risk. — re'in·sur'er (-shōōr'ĕr), n.

re·in'te·grate (rē·ĭn'tĕ·grāt), v. t. [ML. reintegrare. Cf. REDINTEGRATE.] 1. To reinstate; to restore, as to one's rightful place or condition; renew. Now Rare.

2. To integrate, or make whole again; to restore to unity after disintegration; as, to reintegrate a nation.

re·in'te·grate (-grăt), adj. Reintegrated. Obs.

re·in'te·gra'tion (-grā'shŭn), n. [ML. reintegratio.] Repeated or renewed integration.

re'in·throne' (rē'ĭn·thrōn'), v. t. To re-enthrone.

re'in·ver'sion (rē'ĭn·vûr'shŭn; -zhŭn), n. Act of inverting again; specif., Med., restoration of an inverted organ, esp. the uterus, to its normal position.

re'in·vest' (-ĭn·vĕst'), v. t. & v. i. To invest again or anew; specif., Finance, to purchase additional securities with the income or repaid capital from old investments; to invest a part of earnings in a business instead of distributing it as dividends or profits. — re'in·vest'ment (-mĕnt), n.

re'in·ves'ti·ture (-vĕs'tĭ·tŭr), n. Act of reinvesting, or state of being reinvested.

Rein·wardt'i·a (rīn·wär'tĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., after K. G. K. Reinwardt (1773–1854), Dutch botanist.] Bot. A small genus of East Indian undershrubs of the flax family (Linaceae) having alternate, rather large leaves, and yellow flowers with fugacious petals. R. indica, with flowers two inches or less wide, is cultivated for ornament.

re'i per·se·cu·to·ri·a (rē'ī pûr'sĕ·kū·tō'rĭ·ȧ). [ML.] Civil Law. A recuperatory action.

reis (rās), n.; pl.; sing. REAL (rä·äl'). [Pg., pl. of real. See REAL coin.] a A former Portuguese money of account, with a value in 1911 (when discontinued) of about ½ o cent (½od.) for one real. See MILREIS a; 2d ESCUDO. b A former Brazilian money of account, of which 1000 reis (1 milreis) in gold was equal (Jan. 1942) to about $0.06 (3d.). In the paper currency, which was chiefly used, the value of the real was lower than this. One hundred reis was written $100. See MILREIS b.

reis (rīs). Var. of RAIS.

Reis' Ef·fen'di (rīs' ĕ·fĕn'dĭ). [See RAIS; EFFENDI.] A title formerly given to one of the chief Turkish officers of state. He was chancellor of the empire, etc.

reis'ner work (rīs'nĕr). [After Reisner (17th century), Ger. cabinetmaker.] Wooden inlaid work of different colors.

Reiss'ner's fi'ber (rīs'nĕrz). [After E. Reissner (1824–78), Ger. anatomist.] Zool. In many vertebrates, a band of fibers arising from the roof of the midbrain, passing along the aqueduct and fourth ventricle to enter the central canal of the spinal cord, and ending in the regions of the spinal nerves. It is especially large in fishes. By some it is regarded as taking part in visual reflexes; by others, as regulating flexion of the body.

Reissner's membrane. = MEMBRANE OF REISSNER.

re·is'sue (rē·ĭsh'ū; -ōō), n. 1. A second or repeated issue, esp. of a publication with change only in price or form.

2. Philately. A new issue of stamps for use as postage printed from old plates; — disting. from reprint.

reis'ter (rīs'tĕr), n. [MF. reistre (F. reître), fr. G. reiter.] Reiter. Obs.

reit (rēt), n. Sedge; seaweed; — chiefly in pl. Now Dial.

reit'bok' (rēt'bŏk'), n.; pl. -BOK, sometimes -BOKS (-bŏks'). See PLURAL, Note. Also reit'boc'. [D. rietbok, fr. riet reed + bok buck. See REED; BUCK. Cf. REEDBUCK.] A reedbuck, esp. Redunca (syn. Cervicapra) arundinum of South Africa. Its tail is bushy; the horns (present only in the male) are small, ringed, and curved forward.

rei'ter (rī'tĕr), n. [G., rider.] A German cavalry soldier. Obs. exc. Hist.

re·it'er (rē·ĭt'ĕr), v. i. [F. réitérer, fr. L. reiterare.] To reiterate. Obs.

re·it'er·a·ble (rē·ĭt'ĕr·ȧ·b'l), adj. That may be reiterated.

re·it'er·ance (-ăns), n. Reiteration.

re·it'er·ant (-ănt), adj. [L. reiterans, pres. part.] Reiterating; also, repeated.

re·it'er·ate (rē·ĭt'ĕr·āt), v. t.; -AT'ED (-āt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -AT'ING (-āt'ĭng). [L. reiteratus, past part. of reiterare. See RE-; ITERATE.] 1. To repeat; to say or do over again or repeatedly.

You never spoke what did become you less Than this: which to reiterate were sin. Shak.

2. To walk along again. Herrick.

Syn. — Recapitulate, rehearse. See REPEAT.

re·it'er·ate (-ăt), adj. Reiterated.

re·it'er·a'tion (-ā'shŭn), n. [L. reiteratio.] 1. Act of reiterating; repetition; that which is reiterated.

2. Print. Act of printing on the reverse of a sheet printed on one side, or the matter so printed. Chiefly British.

re·it'er·a'tive (rē·ĭt'ĕr·ā'tĭv), adj. Exhibiting, or marked by, reiteration. — re·it'er·a'tive·ly, adv.

re·it'er·a'tive, n. Gram. a A word expressing repeated or reiterated action. b A word formed from another, or used to form another, by repetition (dillydally).

‖re'ja (rē'hä; 162), n. [Sp.] In Spain, a grille, or screen, usually of wrought or cast metal, used to protect a window in a house, or to enclose a chapel, tomb, etc., in a church.

Re·jang' (rā·zhăng'), n. One of a Malayo-Javanese people of southern Sumatra; also, their language. See AUSTRONESIAN LANGUAGES, Table.

re·ject' (rē·jĕkt'), v.; RE·JECT'ED; RE·JECT'ING. [L. rejectus, past part. of reicere, rejicere, fr. re- re- + jacere to throw; cf. F. rejeter, formerly also rejecter. See JET, v.] Transitive: 1. To refuse to acknowledge, adopt, believe, receive, etc.; to decline to accept; to refuse.

Because thou hast rejected knowledge, I will also reject thee, that thou shalt be no priest to me. Hos. iv. 6.

2. To refuse to have or use; to cast or throw away, as useless, unsatisfactory, etc.; to discard; relegate.

Therefore all the exercise of hunting . . . the Utopians have rejected to their butchers. Robinson (More's Utopia).

3. To refuse to hear, receive, etc. (a person); to repel; specif., of a woman, to refuse to marry (a man).

4. To refuse to grant, consider, or accede to; as, to reject a prayer or request.

5. To eject or spew out, as from the mouth or stomach.

6. To throw or cast back; also, to cut off (from). Archaic.

7. To cast off; to reprobate; to forsake. Obs.

Reprobate silver shall men call them, because the Lord hath rejected them. Jer. vi. 30.

—, Intrans.: Rare. To reject someone or something; as: a To refuse a suitor. b To disobey. c To vomit.

Syn. — Spurn, repel, repudiate; refuse, dismiss. See DISCARD.

Ant. — Accept, receive. See TAKE.

re·ject', adj. Rejected. Archaic.

re'ject (rē'jĕkt), n. A person or thing rejected as not wanted, unsatisfactory, or not fulfilling standard requirements; as, army rejects; factory rejects; specif.: a Archaeol. A partly chipped flint, rejected by the maker of stone implements. b Obs. In theology, one of those not of the elect.

re·ject'age (rē·jĕk'tĭj), n. Rejects collectively.

re·jec'ta·men'ta (rē·jĕk'tȧ·mĕn'tȧ), n. pl. [NL., fr. L. rejectare, v. intens. fr. rejicere. See REJECT.] Rejects; rubbish; refuse; wrack; specif., excrement.

re'ject back. A back veneer, as of a table top, concealed from view and having specified allowable imperfections, open joints, etc.

re·ject'ed con·di'tion (rē·jĕk'tĕd; -tĭd; 119). Gram. Condition contrary to fact.

re·ject'er (-jĕk'tĕr), n. One who rejects.

re·jec'tion (rē·jĕk'shŭn), n. [F. or L.; F. réjection, fr. L. rejectio.] Act of rejecting, or state of being rejected; also, that which is rejected; a reject; specif., pl., excrement.

re·jec'tive (rē·jĕk'tĭv), adj. Rejecting, or tending to reject.

re·jec'tor (-tĕr), n. 1. One who or that which rejects.

2. Radio. A combination of capacity and inductance which permits ready reception of all frequencies except those close to a particular one. Cf. ACCEPTOR, FILTER, WAVE TRAP.

re·joice' (rē·jois'), v.; -JOICED' (-joist'); -JOIC'ING (-jois'ĭng). [ME. rejoissen, fr. OF. resjoïr (3d pl. pres. resjoïssent), F. réjouir, fr. re- re- + OF. esjoïr, F. éjouir, to rejoice, fr. es- (L. ex-) + OF. joïr, F. jouir, fr. L. gaudere to rejoice. See JOY.] Transitive: 1. To enjoy use or possession of; specif., to wed or copulate with. Obs.

2. To give joy to; to make joyful; to gladden; as, to rejoice one's heart; to be rejoiced by the news.

3. To be joyful because of; to feel joy at. Obs.

—, Intransitive: To feel joy or great delight; to experience gladness or pleasurable satisfaction; as, to rejoice at the good news or in another's success.

Syn. — Delight, cheer. Ant. — Depress, grieve. See DISTRESS.

rejoice in. To have; to own.

---

re'in·cen'tive, n. See RE-, 1.

re'in·cite', v. t., re'in·cline', v. t., re'in·cli·na'tion, n. See RE-, 2.

re'in·close', v. t., re'in·clo'sure, n. Vars. of RE-ENCLOSE, RE-ENCLOSURE.

re'in·clude', v. t., re'in·clu'sion, n., re'in·cor'po·rate, v. t. & adj., re'in·cor'po·ra'tion, n., re'in·crease', v. i., re'in·cul'cate, v. t., re'in·cur', v. i. See RE-, 2.

reind Reined. Ref. Sp.

re'in·debt'ed, adj. See RE-, 2. — re'in·debt'ed·ness, n.

re'in·de·pend'ence, n. See RE-, 2.

re'in·di·cate, v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'in·di·ca'tion, n.

re'in·dict', v. t., re'in·dif'fer·ent, adj., re'in·dorse', v. t., re'in·duce', v. t., re'in·duce'ment, n., re'in·due', v. t. See RE-, 2.

re'in·dulge', v. i. See RE-, 2. — re'in·dul'gence, n.

Reims Claude (răn klōd; klōd). [F. reine-claude, lit. prune de reine Claude plum of Queen Claude (wife of Francis I).] A greengage plum. See GREENGAGE.

re'in·fer', v. t. See RE-, 1.

re'in·fest', v. t., re'in·fes·ta'tion, n., re'in·flame', v. t., re'in·flate', v. t., re'in·fla'tion, n., re'in·flict', v. t., re'in·flic'tion, n., re'in·flu'ence, v. t. See RE-, 2.

re'in·flu·ence, v. t. See RE-, 1.

re'in·form', v. t. See RE-, 2.

re'in·fund', v. t. [re- + L. infundere to pour in.] To flow in anew. Obs. [in·fu'sion, n.]

re'in·fuse', v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'-/-reinge (rēn). Scot. var. of RINSE.

re'in·graft', v. t., re'in·gra'ti·ate, v. t. See RE-, 2.

re'in·grave', Var. of RE-ENGRAVE.

re'in·gress, n. See RE-, 2.

re'in·hab'it, v. t. & i., re'in·hab'i·ta'tion, n. See RE-, 2.

re'in·heart'en. Var. of RE-ENHEARTEN. Obs.

re'in·her'it, v. t., re'in·i'ti·ate (rē'ĭn·ĭsh'ĭ·āt), v. t., re'in·i'ti·a'tion (-ĭ'ŭ·shŭn), n., re'in·ject', v. t., re'in·jure, v. t., re·ink', v. t., re'in·oc'u·late, v. t., re'in·oc'u·la'tion, n., re'in·quire', v. i., re'in·quiry, n., re'in·sane', adj., re'in·sa'ni·ty, n., re'in·scribe', v. t., re'in·sert', v. t., re'in·ser'tion, n., re'in·stat', v. t., re'in·spect', v. t., re'in·spec'tion, n., re'in·spec'tor, n., re'in·sphere', v. t., re'in·spi·ra'tion, n., re'in·spire', v. t., re'in·spir'it, v. t., re'in·stall', v. t., re'in·stal·la'tion, n., re'in·stall'ment, re'in·stal'ment, n., re'in·sau·ra'tion, n., re'in·still', re'in·stil', v. t., re'in·sti·tute', v. t., re'in·sti·tu'tion, n., re'in·struct', v. t., re'in·struc'tion, n. See RE-, 2.

re'in·sult', v. i. See RE-, 1.

reinsurance fund. Insurance. = RESERVE, n., 13.

re'in·tend', v. t., re'in·ter', v. t., re'in·ter·cede', v. i., re'in·ter·ces'sion, n., re·in'ter·change', n., re'in·ter·change', v., re·in'ter·ject', v. t., re·in'ter·jure, v. i., re·in'ter·fere', v. i. & i., re'in·ter·fer'ence, n., re'in·ter'ment, n., re'in·ter'pret, v. t., re'in·ter'pre·ta'tion, n., re'in·ter'ro·gate, v. t., re'in·ter'ro·ga'tion, n. See RE-, 2.

re'in·ter·rupt', v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'in·ter·rup'tion, n.

re'in·ter·vene', v. i. See RE-, 2. — re'in·ter·ven'tion, n.

re·in·ter'view, v. t. See RE-, 2.

re'in·thron'ize (rē'ĭn·thrōn'īz), v. t. To re-enthrone. Obs.

re'in·ti·mate, v. t., re'in·ti·ma'tion, n. See RE-, 2.

re'in·ti'tle. Var. of RE-ENTITLE.

re'in·tit'ule, v. t. See RE-, 2.

re'in·tomb'. Var. of RE-ENTOMB.

re'in·trench', v. t., re'in·tro·duce', v. t., re'in·tro·duc'tion, n., re'in·trude', v. i. & i., re'in·tru'sion, n., re'in·tu·i'tion, n., re'in·tu'i·tive, adj., re'in·vade', v. i., re'in·va'sion, n., re'in·vent', v. t., re'in·ven'tion, n., re'in·ven'tor, n., re'in·vert', v. t., re'in·ves'ti·gate, v. i., re'in·ves'ti·ga'tion, n., re'in·vig'or·ate, v. t., re'in·vig'or·a'tion, n., re'in·vi·ta'tion, n., re'in·vite', v. t., re'in·voice', v. t., re'in·volve', v. t. See RE-, 2.

reird. Scot. var. of READ.

re·ir'ri·gate, v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'ir·ri·ga'tion, n.

reise, n. & v. i. [From MLG. or MHG. reise, perh. through OF. reise.] Journey; raid. Obs.

reize (rīs). Var. of RAIZE, a twig.

rei'shle, reis'sle. Scot. vars. of REESHLE.

re'i·so·la'tion, n., re·is'su·a·ble, adj., re·is'sue, v. t. & i., re·is'sue·ment, n., re·is'su·er, n. See RE-, 2.

reist (rēst). Scot. & N. of Eng. var. of RERST, REST.

reist'y. Var. of REASTY. [BOK.]

reit'buck' (rēt'bŭk'), n. See REITre·it'tem·ize, v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·it'er·at'ed, past tense & past part. of REITERATE. — re·it'er·at'ed·ly, adv. — re·it'er·at'ed·ness, n.

reithe. ✝ RETHE.

reive (rēv). Scot., Ir., & N. of Eng. var. of RIVE.

reive, reiv'er. Vars. of REAVE, REAVER. Now Scot. & N. of Eng.

re·jag'ged, adj. Tattered. Obs.

re·jail', v. i. See RE-, 2.

re·ject'a·ble, adj. See -ABLE. — re·ject'a·ble·ness, n.

re'jec·ta'ne·ous (rē'jĕk·tā'nē·ŭs), adj. [L. rejectaneus.] To be rejected; rejectable. Obs.

re·ject'i·ble, adj. Rejectable. Obs.

re·ject'ing·ly, adv. See -LY.

re·jec'ti'tious (rē'jĕk·tĭsh'ŭs), adj. Implying or requiring rejection; rejectable. Obs.

re·ject'ment, n. See -MENT. Rare.

re·jerk', v. t. To jerk back. Obs.

re·joice' (rē·jois'), n. Rejoicing; a cause of rejoicing. Obs.
re·joice'ful (-fōōl), adj. Joyful.
re·joice'ment (-mĕnt), n. Rejoicing.
re·joic'er (rē·jois'ĕr), n. One who rejoices.
re·joic'ing (-jois'ĭng), pres. part. & verbal n. of REJOICE. Hence: n. 1. Act of one who rejoices; joy; also, an occasion or expression of joy; a festivity.

Mobs, riots, or rejoicings? Wordsworth.

2. That which causes to rejoice; occasion of joy. Obs.

They are the rejoicing of my heart. Ps. cxix. 111.

re·join' (rē·join'), v.; RE·JOINED' (-joind'); RE·JOIN'ING. [F. rejoindre, fr. re- re- + joindre to join. See JOIN; cf. REJOINDER.] Intransitive: 1. Law. To answer, as the defendant to the plaintiff's replication.
2. To answer to a reply; also, to answer. Obs.
3. (pron. rē-) To join or come together again; to reunite.
—, Transitive: 1. (rē-) To join again; also, Obs., to join or unite.
2. To say as an answer or rejoinder.
re·join'der (-join'dĕr), n. [F. rejoindre, inf. as n. See REJOIN.] 1. Law. The defendant's answer to the replication.
2. An answer to a reply; in general, an answer; reply.
Syn. — Answer, response, replication. See REPLY. re·join'der, v. i. To make a rejoinder. Obs.
re·joint' (rē·joint'), v. t. To reunite the joints of; to join or unite anew; specif., Arch., to fill up the joints of, as stones in buildings when the mortar has been dislodged.
re·jolt' (rē·jōlt'), v. t. To jolt again or back.
re·jolt', n. A reacting jolt or shock. Obs.
‖re·jo'ne·a·dor' (rā·hō'nā·ä·thôr'; 112; 162), n. [Sp.] In bullfighting, the mounted man who thrusts his lance (rejón) into the neck of the bull at one stage in the performance.
re·judge' (rē·jŭj'), v. t. To judge again; to re-examine; to review; to deliver a new judgment upon.
re·junc'tion (rē·jŭngk'shŭn), n. A reuniting. Rare.
re·ju've·nant (rē·jōō'vē·nănt; 242), adj. Rejuvenating. Rare.
re·ju've·nate (-nāt), v.; -NAT'ED (-nāt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -NAT'ING (-nāt'ĭng). [re- re- + L. juvenis young, youthful.] Transitive: 1. To render young or youthful again; to reinvigorate; to impart renewed vitality to.

We do not find dead men alive again, effete civilizations rejuvenated, denuded continents again restored as of yore. James Ward.

2. Med. To restore to a more youthful condition; specif., to restore sexual vigor in, as by an operation.
3. Phys. Geog. a To stimulate, as by uplift, to renewed erosive activity; — said of streams. b To develop youthful features of topography in (an area previously worn down nearly to base level). Cf. RIVER.
—, Intransitive: To undergo rejuvenation.
re·ju've·na'tion (-nā'shŭn), n. 1. Act of rejuvenating or state of being rejuvenated; restoration of youthful vigor.
2. Hort. The restoration of vigor to a tree by pruning, spraying, soil treatment, or other means.
re·ju've·na'tive (rē·jōō'vē·nā'tĭv), adj. Rejuvenating; tending to rejuvenation.
re·ju've·na'tor (-nā'tĕr), n. One who or that which rejuvenates.
re·ju've·nesce' (-nĕs'), v. i. & t. [ML. rejuvenescere.] To rejuvenate; to become young or youthful again.
re·ju've·nes'cence (-nĕs'ĕns; -'ns), n. [re- + L. juvenis young + E. -escence.] 1. A renewing of youth; a rejuvenation.
2. Biol. A method of cell formation in which the entire protoplasm of an old cell escapes by rupture of the cell wall, and then develops a new cell wall. It occurs frequently in the lower algae, in the formation of zoospores, etc.
3. Zool. The presumable renewal of vitality which occurs after conjugation in Protozoa.
re·ju've·nes'cent (-ĕnt; -'nt), adj. Rejuvenating; becoming youthful again; growing young.
re·ju've·nize (rē·jōō'vē·nīz; 242), v. t. To rejuvenate.
Rekh'ta (rāk'tä), n. [Hind. (fr. Per.).] See Citation. "Rekhta (i.e., 'scattered' or 'crumbled') is the form which Urdu takes when used for poetry. The name is derived from the manner in which Persian words are 'scattered' through it. When poems are written in the special dialect used by women, it is known as Rekh'ti (-tē)." Census of India, 1901.
Re'ki (rā'kē), n. sing. & pl. One of a group of nomadic tribes in the deserts of Baluchistan.
re·kin'dle (rē·kĭn'd'l), v. t. & i. To kindle again; to ignite anew; to arouse again.
re·kin'dler (-dlĕr), n. One who or that which rekindles.
rel (rĕl), n. [From reluctance.] Elec. A unit of reluctance equal to one ampere turn per maxwell.
‖re·lâche' (rē·lăsh'), n. [F.] Literally, relaxation; intermission; Theat., no performance.
re·lais' (rē·lā'), n. [F.] Fort. A narrow ditch between a rampart and the encircling fosse, intended to catch any earth that washes or crumbles from the face of the rampart.
re·lapse' (rē·lăps'), v.; -LAPSED' (-lăpst'), -LAPS'ING (-lăp'sĭng). [L. relapsus, past part. of relabi to slip back, to relapse, fr. re- re- + labi to fall, slip, slide. See LAPSE.] Intransitive: 1. To slip or fall back into a former state or condition after a change for the better; specif., to become ill again after convalescing, to revert to evil habits after amendment, or the like; as, he relapsed when allowed out of bed; reformed drunkards often relapse.
2. To sink; to subside; to lapse; as, to relapse into silence, a stupor, or sleep.
3. Obs. a To slip; to fall. b To withdraw (from one).
4. Theol. To fall back into paganism, evil, error, heresy, or unbelief; to backslide.
—, Transitive: To cause to slip or fall back. Obs.
re·lapse', n. [From the v. See RELAPSE, v.] 1. The act or fact of relapsing, backsliding, becoming worse, or subsiding; as, a race's relapse into paganism.
2. A recurrence, esp. of an illness, after improvement or amendment; state of one who has relapsed; as, relapses often occur in this disease; to succumb in a relapse.
re·lapse', n. [L. relapsus past part.; F. relaps.] One who has relapsed; a backslider. Now Rare.
re·laps'er (rē·lăp'sĕr), n. One who relapses.
re·laps'ing ap·pen'di·ci'tis. See APPENDICITIS. relapsing fever. Med. Any of several forms of acute, epidemic, infectious disease marked by sudden, recurring paroxysms of high fever lasting from five to seven days, articular and muscular pains, and sudden crisis, caused by certain spirochetes, which are found in the circulating blood during the paroxysms. The tick Ornithodoros moubata and various lice transmit the disease.
re·last' (rē·lăst'; 83), v. t. To put (boots or shoes) on the second, or finishing, last. — re·last'er (-lăs'tĕr), n.
re·la'ta (rē·lā'tä), n.; pl. of RELATUM (-tŭm). [L.] Specif., two or more things between which relations exist.
re·lat'a·ble (rē·lāt'ä·b'l), adj. That may be related. — re·lat'a·bil'i·ty (-bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n.
re·late' (rē·lāt'), v.; -LAT'ED (-lāt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -LAT'ING (-lāt'ĭng). [In part fr. earlier relation, relative; in part fr. F. relater to recount, report, ML. relatare, fr. L. relatus, used as past part. of referre. See RELATION.] Transitive: 1. To give an account of; to recount; narrate; as, to relate one's story willingly; also (now in passive), to say; assert; as, by some, Plato is related to have been a Theban.
2. Rare. a To bring back; restore. Spenser. b To relieve (oneself) by utterance. Bacon. c To describe. d = REFER, 3. e To ascribe, as to a source. Fuller.
3. To connect or bring into relation; to show the relation of; to establish relationship between; as, to relate one word to another from the same stem; these events cannot be related by any reasoning.
—, Intransitive: 1. To tell; report. Obs.
2. To refer; to have or make reference. Now Rare.
3. To stand in some relation; to have relationship; to pertain; — with to.

All negative or privative words relate to positive ideas. Locke.

4. To apply or take effect retroactively. Chiefly Law.
Syn. — Tell, recite, rehearse, report, detail, describe. re·late' (rē·lāt'), n. [L. relatus, past part.] Something related to something else; esp., the first term or being in a relationship, the second or reciprocal term being the correlate. Now Rare.
re·lat'ed (rē·lāt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj. 1. Narrated; recounted; also, said.
2. Having relationship, as to or with something expressed or implied or with each other; connected by reason of an established or discoverable relation; as, a closely related subject; all related species of quartz; an event in no way related to this occurrence.
3. Allied by kindred; connected by blood or alliance, esp. by consanguinity; as, persons related in the first degree.
4. Music. Having a close melodic or harmonic connection; — said of tones, chords, or tonalities. related keys or scales. Keys or scales having many tones in common, and hence admitting of ready modulation; esp., those whose tonic chords are triads of a given scale or key, as the keys of the dominant and subdominant of the key, together with their relative minors. Thus the keys related to C major are F and G major, and A, D, and E minor. See 2d KEY, 25 d. Called also attendant keys, and opposed to remote keys.
re·lat'ed·ness, n. The state or character of being related. Specif., Philos., a particular manner of being related or of being constituted by relations; esp., the manner of being related which characterizes a type of reality or level of existence; as, the specific relatedness of the organic.
re·lat'er (rē·lāt'ĕr), n. One who or that which relates; esp., a narrator.
re·la'tion (rē·lā'shŭn), n. [ME. relacion, fr. OF. relation, or fr. L. relatio, fr. L. relatus, used as past part. of referre to report, to relate, to refer (cf. REFER), but fr. a different root. See RE-, TOLERATE. Cf. RELATE.] 1. Act of relating, or telling; also, that which is related; recital; account; narration.

The poet's relation doth well figure them. Bacon.

2. An extended account or report; esp. [sometimes cap.], one of the reports of the early French and Spanish missionaries to the American Indians; as, the Jesuit Relations.
3. a A person connected by consanguinity or affinity; a relative; a kinsman or kinswoman; specif., as technically construed in law (as in the interpretation of wills, statutes affecting the descent of property, etc.), a person who in case of intestacy would be entitled to a share of the property of the intestate under the statute of distributions in force in the jurisdiction in question. See CONSANGUINITY. Thus, the word not only varies in its inclusiveness according to the terms of the statute in question, but may also, according to the evident intent of the user, be construed more or less widely as meaning next of kin, relations by blood, or family relations whether by blood or marriage. b Connection by consanguinity or affinity; kinship.
4. a Any aspect or quality which can be predicated only of two or more things taken together, as direction, resemblance, or of one thing considered as a factor of itself, as self-identity. Metaphysically, relations have been considered: (1) as purely subjective, or between ideas alone, — the nominalistic and skeptic view; (2) as referring to some real quality or essence of things by which they may be connected with one another, and hence as designating universals, or general characters of reality, — the realistic view, — or as the essential being of reality itself, which is but a sum of relations, — the view of absolute idealism; and (3) as those aspects in which things have to do with one another, considered especially from the general point of view of interest, efficiency, or purpose, — the view of pragmatism. Relations are sometimes divided into those which are internal, or essential to the nature of the thing related, and those which are external or nonessential. See RELATIVITY OF KNOWLEDGE. b State of being related or of referring; what is apprehended as appertaining to a being or quality, in considering it in its bearing upon something else; the being such and such with respect to some other thing; connection; as, the relation of master to servant.

Any sort of connection which is perceived or imagined between two or more things, or any comparison which is made by the mind, is a relation. I. Taylor.

5. Reference; respect; — esp. in phrase, in relation to.

I have been importuned to make some observations on this art in relation to its agreement with poetry. Dryden.

6. The mode in which one thing stands to another, or the mode in which two or more things stand to one another; as, the relation of father to son; the relation of members of the same community.
7. State of being mutually or reciprocally interested, as in social or commercial matters; also, pl., dealings; affairs; as, the foreign relations of a country.
8. Law. a The referring of an act to a prior date as the time of its taking effect; the giving force or operation to an act or proceeding as of some previous date or time, by a sort of fiction, as if it had happened or begun at that time. In such case the act is said to "have relation" to the prior date, or to "take effect by relation." b The act of a relator at whose instance a suit is begun.
Syn. — Rehearsal, telling, tale; relationship; kin.
— in, or with, relation to. In reference to; as regards.
re·la'tion (rē·lā'shŭn), v. i. To discover or establish relations. H. Spencer.
re·la'tion·al (rē·lā'shŭn·ăl; -'l), adj. 1. Of or pertaining to kinship.
2. Of, pertaining to, or specifying, a relation in general. See WORD, n.
3. Characterized by or constituted by relations; such that relations belong to its essential nature; as, the theory that space is not a substantive thing but purely relational.
4. Gram. Pertaining to or designating a word, as is, shall, who, in which the meaning consists chiefly in indicating a relation of syntax; — distinguished from notional.

Relational words, as prepositions, auxiliaries, etc. R. Morris.

— re·la'tion·al'i·ty (-ăl'ĭ·tĭ), n. — re·la'tion·al·ly, adv.
re·la'tion·ar'y (rē·lā'shŭn·ĕr'ĭ or, esp. Brit., -ĕr·ĭ), adj. Relational. Rare.
re·la'tion·ism (-ĭz'm), n. Philos. a = RELATIVITY OF KNOWLEDGE. b The doctrine that relations exist as real entities. — re·la'tion·ist, n.
re·la'tion·ship, n. 1. The state or character of being related or interrelated; a connection by way of relation; as, to show the relationship between two things; this book's relationship to that is obvious but difficult to account for; to study language relationships.
2. Kinship; consanguinity; affinity; as, to claim relationship; also, a specific instance or type of this; as, a list of family relationships.
3. A state of affairs existing between those having relations, or dealings; as, to improve church relationships; a psychologist's study of the mother-child relationship.
Syn. — See AFFINITY. relation word. Gram. A relational word.
rel'a·ti'val (rĕl'ä·tī'vŭl; rĕl'ä·tĭv·ăl), adj. Pertaining to relatives; relational. rel'a·tive (rĕl'ä·tĭv), adj. [F. or L.; F. relatif, fr. L. relativus. See RELATE.] 1. Having relationship one to another; mutually related or connected; also, corresponding.
2. Having relation, reference, or application; referring; having or standing in connection; in respect or with reference (to); proportionate (to); pertaining; pertinent; relevant; as, arguments not relative to the subject.
3. Arising from relation; resulting from, or existing in, connection with, or reference to, something else; comparative; not absolute or independent.

Every thing sustains both an absolute and a relative capacity; an absolute, as it is such a thing, endued with such a nature; and a relative, as it is a part of the universe, and so stands in such a relation to the whole. South.

4. Offered or paid indirectly, as by means of an image; — said of worship.
5. Gram. a Referring to an antecedent; introducing a subordinate clause qualifying an expressed or implied antecedent; as, a relative connective. Also, introduced by such a connective; as, a relative clause (see below). b Rare. Needing some term related as adjunct or object to complete its sense; relational or nearly so. c See COMPARATIVE, n., 1; SUPERLATIVE, n., 1.
6. Involving or implying relationship; dependent for signification on relationship to some other thing or person; — said of names, terms, etc. See TIME, n., 24.
7. Law. Designating a duty or right of one person correlating with a right or duty in another.
8. Music. Having the same key signature; — said of major and minor keys and scales; as, G major and E minor are relative keys.
Syn. — Pertinent, apposite; allied.
Ant. — Disconnected, irrelevant.
rel'a·tive (rĕl'ä·tĭv), n. 1. A thing, or, Obs., a person, relative to, connected with, or dependent on, another; also, the quality or character of being relative; a being or object posited by virtue of its relationship or relationships.
2. a A person connected with another by blood or affinity; strictly, one allied by blood; a relation; a kinsman or kinswoman. "Confining our care . . . to ourselves and relatives." Bp. Fell. b Obs. Relationship.
3. Any one of two or more related things or substances, as chemical compounds derived from a common parent.
4. Gram. A relative pronoun or other word.
5. Logic. A relative term.
relative accommodation. Physiol. & Optics. The change in accommodation that is possible with a fixed amount of convergence. relative adjective, relative adverb. See RELATIVE PRONOUN. relative aperture. See APERTURE, 3. relative asymmetry. Chem. See ASYMMETRY, 2 b. relative bearing. Naut. Direction observed, or direction expressed, in relation to the head of the vessel. See BEARING, n., 14 a. relative clause. Gram. A clause adjunct introduced by a relative pronoun (expressed or implied) and having either a purely descriptive force (John, who tells fibs) or a limiting one (boys who tell fibs = such boys as tell fibs). See NONRESTRICTIVE CLAUSE, RESTRICTIVE CLAUSE.
relative degree. Gram. Comparative degree. See COMPARATIVE, n., 1; COMPARATIVE, adj., 5. relative electron affinity. See ELECTRON AFFINITY. relative error. Math. The quotient of an error in a measured or calculated quantity by the magnitude of that quantity; when expressed as a percentage it is called percentage error.
relative ethics. See ETHICS, 2. relative humidity. See HUMIDITY. relative impediment. Law. See IMPEDIMENT, n., 6. relative inclinometer. See INCLINOMETER, 3 a. relative index of refraction. See INDEX OF REFRACTION.
rel'a·tive–in–law', n. A connection by marriage; a relative of one's husband or wife.
relative key. Music. See 2d KEY, 25 d. relative location. Libraries. The marking and arrangement of books with relation to each other, not to particular shelves, thus permitting indefinite intercalation.

re·joic'ing·ly, adv. of rejoicing, pres. part. [SINHATH TORAH.] Rejoicing over the Law. See RE-JOIND'. Rejoined. Ref. Sp. re·join'dure, n. [Cf. REJOINDER, n.] A joining again. Obs. re·joist'. Rejoiced. Ref. Sp. re·jounce', v. i. [re- + jounce.] To occur or recur (to the mind); also, prob., to recoil. Obs. re·journ', v. i. [Cf. F. rajourner. See RE-; ADJOURN.] To adjourn; put off; refer. Obs. — v. t. To return; reply. Obs. re·jour'ney, v. t. See RE-, 2. Rare. re·journ'ment, n. Adjournment. Obs. re·joy', v. i. & t. To rejoice. Obs.
re·jum'ble, v. t. See RE-, 2. re·jus'ti·fy, v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'jus·ti·fi·ca'tion, n. re·ju've·nes'cen·cy (rē·jōō'vē·nĕs'ĕn·sĭ; -'n·sĭ), n. Rejuvenescence. Obs. reke, v. t. [ME. reken; akin to MD. reken to rake, Goth. rikan to heap up, and E. RAKE implement.] To bury. Obs. reke (dial. rēk). Var. of RICK. Obs. exc. Dial.
reke. † REACH, RECK, REEK.
Re'kem (rē'kĕm). Bib.
re·kick', v. t. & i., re·kill', v. t. See RE-, 2.
re·kin'dle·ment, n. See -MENT. re·king', v. i., re·kiss', v. t., re·knit', v. t., re·know', v. t. See RE-, 2.
re·know'edge, v. t. To acknowledge; examine; recognize. Obs.
re·la'bel, v. t. See RE-, 2. re·lace', v. t. See RE-, 2.
‖re'la·ción' (rā'lä·thyōn'; 103), n.; pl. RELACIONES (-thyō'nās). [Sp.] = RELATION, n., 2.
re·lac'quer, v. t., re·lade', v. t. & i., re·lad'en, part. adj., re'la·ment', v. t., re·lamp', v. t. & i., re·land', v. t. & i., re·lap', v. t., re·lap'per, n. See RE-, 2.
re·laps'a·ble (rē·lăp'sä·b'l), adj. See -ABLE.
re·lapse'proof', adj. See -PROOF.
re·laps'ing, pres. part. & verbal n. of RELAPSE. re·lapst'. Relapsed. Ref. Sp.
re·latch', v. t. See RE-, 2. re·lat'ed·ness, n. See -NESS. re'lat·in·i·za'tion, n. See RE-, 1. re·la'tion·less, adj. See -LESS.

rel'a·tive·ly, adv. In a relative manner; in relation or respect to something else; not absolutely.

relative maxima and minima problems. Math. Problems in which is sought a curve that renders $\int_{x_0}^{x} F dx$ a maximum or minimum while keeping $\int_{x_0}^{x} \phi dx$ constant, F and ϕ being functions of x, y, and $\frac{dy}{dx}$, including those problems in which it is sought to find a curve of fixed length that possesses some maximum or minimum property.

relative maximum or minimum. Math. A maximum or minimum of a function of two or more arguments connected by one or more conditions.

relative multiplication. Logic. The compounding of relations; formation of a logical product of relations; thus, the relative multiplication of "brother of" and "father of" gives "brother of the father of."

relative nullity. See NULLITY, 1 a. relative orbit. Astron. In a lunar eclipse, the apparent path of the moon relative to the earth's shadow, as if the latter were at rest.

relative permittivity. Elec. Specific inductive capacity.

relative personal equation. See PERSONAL EQUATION.

relative pitch. See 4th PITCH, 19 a. relative pronoun, adjective, or adverb. Gram. A pronoun, adjective, or adverb that introduces a clause qualifying an antecedent, expressed or implied (the man who would be king; he came Monday, during which day it rained; the season when roses bloom).

relative rank. Mil. & Nav. The rank in another service or branch of the service than an officer's own, which corresponds with the rank actually held by him and carries the same precedence and advantages, but not the same, nor necessarily any, command. See RANK, n., 3; PRECEDENCE, n., 3.

relative refractive index. See INDEX OF REFRACTION.

relative syllogism. Logic. A syllogism involving relative terms.

relative term. Logic. A term which names either a relationship or an object as standing in a certain relation (father; predecessor; employee); also, sometimes, a relative phrase (father of) is called a relative term, or relative rhema; — opposed to absolute term (see ABSOLUTE, adj.).

relative wind. Aeronautics. The motion of the air with reference to a moving body. Its direction and velocity are found by adding two vectors, one being the velocity of the air with reference to the earth, the other being equal and opposite to the velocity of the body with reference to the earth.

rel'a·tiv·ism (rĕl'ȧ·tĭv·ĭz'm), n. A doctrine of relationism or of relativity, esp. relativity of knowledge. Cf. RELATIVITY OF KNOWLEDGE.

rel'a·tiv·ist (rĕl'ȧ·tĭv·ĭst), n. A believer in relativity.

rel'a·tiv·is'tic (-ĭs'tĭk), adj. Of or pertaining to relativity.

relativistic shift. = RED SHIFT.

rel'a·tiv'i·ty (rĕl'ȧ·tĭv'ĭ·tĭ), n. 1. State of being relative; also, Rare, something relative, rather than absolute.

2. Philos. The fact or condition of being relative as opposed to absolute or independent; state of being dependent for existence or determined in nature, value, or some other quality by relation to something else. Specif.: a The quality of variability arising from necessary connection with or reference to something contingent; as, the relativity of beauty to taste or of rights to law. b The mutual dependence or concomitant variability of two or more related things. c Dependence on the subjective nature of man, or upon limitations and peculiar character of individuals; as, the relativity of knowledge (which see).

3. Physics. As formulated by Einstein, a mathematical development of the two postulates: (a) If two systems are in relative motion with a uniform linear velocity, it is impossible for observers in either system by observation and measurement of phenomena in the other to learn anything more about the motion than the fact that there is this relative motion; (b) measurements of the velocity of light in either system, regardless of the position of the source of light, always give the same numerical value. This development forms the special, or restricted, theory of relativity; it leads to many conclusions, all of which are in accord with experience. Einstein extended the special theory so as to include the discussion of gravitation by stating the principle of equivalence, which is: for any one particle in a gravitational field it is possible to replace the effect of the field by a mathematical transformation of axes; in other words, the gravitational field will vanish for an observer who himself has the acceleration of the particle, and to him phenomena will seem to obey the simple Galilean laws of motion. As an illustration, an observer in a box falling with the acceleration of gravity would not realize he was falling, that is, he would not be conscious that the force of gravitation was acting on him; if he were to release a ball from his hand, the ball would not fall to the bottom of the box but would stay in the same position with reference to him; hence if he were to throw a ball, he would observe that its path, owing to the absence of the force of gravitation, was a straight line. But, of course, a path that he would describe as a straight line would be described as a curved line by an observer in a different system, as one on the earth. By mathematical deduction from this principle Einstein developed formulas for the motion of the planets, the deflection of a beam of light passing near a large body like the sun, the change of frequency of an atom when in a gravitational field, and others. This extended development forms the general theory of relativity.

relativity doublet. Physics. Certain doublet terms and spectral lines of optical and X-ray spectra whose separations are due partly to the relativity change of mass of the electron with velocity, though mostly to the interaction of the intrinsic magnetic moment of the electron and that due to its motion about the nucleus.

relativity of force. See principle of equivalence, under RELATIVITY.

relativity of knowledge. The doctrine that knowledge is relative to the limited nature of the mind and the conditions of knowing and hence not true to the nature of independent reality. The doctrine has three forms which distinguish the schools of philosophy which accept it: (1) absolutely true knowledge is impossible because of the limitations and variability of sense perceptions; (2) reality as it is in itself cannot be known by mind whose modes of thinking and perception are essentially subjective; (3) thinking and perception seize relations (of one thing to another) only, and not the intrinsic nature of an object, and, hence, are merely symbolic.

relativity of space. The principle that a body moving rapidly relative to an observer appears different in size and dimensions to the observer, and to him is different, from what it appears to a second observer moving uniformly with, or less rapidly relative to, the body under observation. To the first observer, the dimensions of the body in the direction of motion will appear shorter than they appear to the second observer; the dimensions at right angles to this direction will appear the same to both observers; the dimensions in intermediate directions will appear to have lengths proportional to the extremes. Thus, a surface having what appears to be a circular outline to the second observer will appear to have an elliptical outline to the other. This does not imply any change in the body, but describes how the same body appears to different observers.

relativity shift. = RED SHIFT.

re·la'tor (rē·lā'tĕr), n. [L.; cf. F. relateur. See RELATE.] 1. One who relates; a relater; narrator. Fuller.

2. Law. A private person at whose relation, or in whose behalf, the attorney general allows an information in the nature of a quo warranto to be filed.

re·la'trix (rē·lā'trĭks), n. [L.] Law. A female relator.

re·la'tum (rē·lā'tŭm), n. [L., neut. past part.] Thing or term related; one of a group of relata, or related things; specif., Logic, the second term of a relation, the first being called the referent. See REFERENT, n., 2.

re·lax' (rē·lăks'), v.; -LAXED' (-lăkst'); -LAX'ING. [L. relaxare, fr. re- re- + laxare to loose, to slacken, fr. laxus loose. See LAX; cf. RELEASE.] Transitive: 1. To make less close in structure, texture, or formation; to lessen the density or compactness of. Obs.

Nor served it to relax their serried files. Milton.

2. To make less firm, rigid, or tense; to lessen the tension or speed of; to slacken; as, to relax one's hold, muscles, face, or attention.

3. To make less severe or strict; to lessen the stringency, austerity, or harshness of; to mollify; as, to relax discipline, a rule, or ascetic practices.

4. To make lax, soft, or enervated; to deprive of energy, zeal, etc. "A mind thus relaxed by prosperity and indulgence was incapable of rising to that magnanimity." Gibbon.

5. To cause (one, oneself, etc.) to relax physically, morally, or mentally, or become so relaxed; as, he is much relaxed by the treatment; forces that were unable to relax the opposition.

6. To relieve from constipation; to loosen; open.

7. To release (a person) from ecclesiastical jurisdiction for execution by the civil authorities; — used with reference to the methods of the Inquisition. Obs. exc. Hist.

8. Law. To release, as from restraint, punishment, etc. Scot.

—, Intransitive: 1. To become lax, weak, or loose; to abate in tensity; as, to let one's grasp relax.

2. To abate in severity; to become less rigorous; as, one who never relaxed in his opposition; the fury of the storm relaxed and the ship made port.

3. To remit attention or effort; to become less diligent; to unbend; to seek recreation or rest; as, it is time for us to relax and have tea.

Syn. — Loose; remit, abate; mitigate, unbend, divert.

Ant. — Tighten, contract, tense, strain; increase, intensify.

re·lax', n. Relaxation. Obs.

re·lax', adj. Relaxed; lax. Rare.

re·lax'ant (rē·lăk's'ȧnt), n. [L. relaxans, pres. part. of relaxare.] Med. A medicine that relaxes; a laxative. — adj. Of, pertaining to, or causing, relaxation.

re'lax·a'tion (rē'lăk·sā'shŭn; rĕl'ăk-), n. [L. relaxatio.] 1. Act or fact of relaxing, or state of being relaxed; as, relaxation of the muscles, of discipline, of a law.

2. Abatement or remission, as of a penalty, duty, grievance, payment, etc.; as, to ask for relaxation in the matter of reparations.

3. A relaxing or recreative state, pursuit, or pastime; diversion; recreation; as, his relaxations were work to other men; to seek relaxation in the country.

4. Surrender (of a person) to the civil authorities for execution. Cf. RELAX, v. t., 7. Hist.

5. Scots Law. Release from, or cancellation of, legal restriction or penalty, esp. a penalty judicially imposed, as outlawry. "Relaxations from entail." Erskine's Principles.

Syn. — Abatement, slackening; rest, ease.

Ant. — Tightening, strain, tension.

re·lax'a·tive (rē·lăk'sȧ·tĭv), adj. That relaxes or tends to relax; laxative. — n. A relaxative medicine or agency.

re·lax'a·to·ry (-tō'rĭ or, esp. Brit., -tĕr·ĭ), adj. Relaxative; laxative. Rare.

re·laxed' (rē·lăkst'), past tense & past part. of RELAX. Specif.: adj. 1. Not strict, exact, or severe; lacking in precision, restraint, etc.; also, not strictly enforced, observed, or interpreted; as, to be relaxed in one's morale; relaxed enforcement of law; relaxed rules.

2. Of the rule of certain religious orders, mitigated in austerity; of religious, observing a mitigated rule; as, relaxed Carmelites.

3. Given to relaxation.

Spending relaxed hours in . . . companionship. Edna Ferber.

— re·lax'ed·ly (-lăk's'ĕd·lĭ; -sĭd·lĭ; 119), adv. — re·lax'ed·ness, n.

re·lax'er (rē·lăk'sĕr), n. One who or that which relaxes.

re·lay' (rē·lā'; rē'lā), n. [OF. relai (F. relais), fr. relaier (F. relayer), fr. laier to leave, let. See RE-; 1st DELAY.]

1. A supply arranged beforehand for successive relief. Specif.: a A supply of hunting horses, or formerly dogs, kept in readiness at certain places to relieve the tired horses, or dogs, and to continue the pursuit of the game if it comes that way. b A supply of horses placed at stations to be ready to relieve others, so that a traveler may proceed without delay. Also, the post or station at which the fresh supply is obtained. c A number of men who relieve others in carrying on some work.

2. Athletics. Short for RELAY RACE; also, one of the legs, or divisions, of a relay race.

3. Elec. An electromagnetic device operated by a variation in conditions of an electric circuit, and which, when so operated, operates, in turn, other devices, as a switch, in the same or a different circuit. Thus, in a telegraph system, a current too weak to operate a sounder may, by means of a delicate relay, communicate the signals to a local current of any desired strength. An auxiliary relay assists another relay in the performance of its function; it operates in response to the opening or closing of the operating circuit. A control relay controls the open-coil or closed-coil current of the device so that the main operating current does not pass through the control switch. A current relay, as an overcurrent or undercurrent relay, functions at a predetermined value of current. A differential relay operates when the difference between two quantities, as current and voltage, exceeds a specified amount. A protective relay is a relay for protecting electric apparatus or an electric plant, in case abnormal conditions arise, by isolating automatically the faulty member. A frequency relay, as an underfrequency or overfrequency relay, Relay, 3.

A Typical Relay for use with a photoelectric cell; B Circuit diagram for same. When a photoelectric cell is connected across the Terminals (1), a relatively weak current flows through the Winding (2) attracting the Armature (3) to Iron Core (4). As the armature swings on Pivot (5), the Contacts (6) are closed, completing a secondary circuit through the Output Terminals (8). 7 Tension Springs for breaking secondary circuit; 9 Electric Motor supplied from a Power Source 10. C Telephone Relay for use in a manual switchboard, a relay being associated with each subscriber's line. When the subscriber's receiver is lifted, current flows through the Winding (1) attracting the Armature (2) to Iron Core (3). An Insulating Button (4), attached to the armature, presses Springs 5 and 6 into contact, thus closing a circuit which lights lamp on operator's switchboard. 7 Relay Terminals.

functions at a predetermined value of frequency. A line relay has its coil nominally in the line circuit. A locking relay locks another relay or device under predetermined conditions. An open-phase relay functions when one phase of a polyphase circuit is opened. An overload relay is an overcurrent relay located in a motor circuit for the purpose of disconnecting the motor from the line at a predetermined current value. A phase-rotation relay functions in accordance with the direction of phase rotation. A power relay, as an overpower or underpower relay, functions at a predetermined value of watts. A power-directional relay functions in conformance with the direction of power. A polarity-directional relay functions on a change in the direction of polarity. A signal relay operates an audible or visible signal. A step-back relay limits motor current peaks when the armature or line current increases, and may also remove the cause of the limitation when the current decreases. A temperature relay functions at a predetermined temperature of the protected apparatus. A time-delay relay operates only after a delay of a predetermined definite time after the occurrence of a particular action. A trip-free relay prevents an electrically operated device, as a circuit breaker, from being held in when an abnormal condition exists on the line. A voltage relay, as an overvoltage or undervoltage relay, functions at a predetermined value of voltage.

4. Mach. A relay apparatus; a servomotor.

re·lay' (rē·lā'), v.; RE-LAYED' (-lād'); RE-LAY'ING. [OF. relaier to place relays (F. relayer). See RELAY, n.] Transitive: 1. Venery. To loose (a relay of hounds) on the track of a deer; also, to hunt (a deer) with a relay of hounds. Obs.

2. To place as, or replace with, a relay; also, to pass on as if by relays; as, to relay news.

3. Elec. To control or operate (the current or the like) by a relay.

—, Intransitive: 1. To obtain a fresh relay.

2. Elec. To operate the contacts of a relay.

re·lay' (rē·lā'; rē'lā; 66), adj. Mach. Relating to, or having the characteristics of, an auxiliary apparatus put into action by a feeble force but itself capable of exerting greater force, used to control a comparatively powerful machine or appliance. Cf. SERVOMOTOR.

re·lay' (rē·lā'), v. t. See RE-, 2. — re·lay'er (-ĕr), n.

relay broadcast. Radio. = REBROADCAST.

relayer rail. Worn rail suitable for use in track.

relay governor. A speed regulator, as a water-wheel governor, embodying the relay principle.

re·lay'man (rē·lā'mȧn), v. t. To make a layman of again or anew. Rare.

relay race. Athletics. A race between groups of competitors each one of whom covers a specified portion of the entire course. Cf. BATON, n., 4; MEDLEY RACE.

rel'bun (rĕl'bŭn), n. [Sp. relbun, relbún, relvun, fr. Araucan relvun.] The roots of the Chilean plant Calceolaria arachnoidea, used as a crimson dyestuff.

re·learn' (rē·lûrn'), v. t. To learn again what has been partly or completely forgotten.

re·lease' (rē·lēs'), v. t. [re- + lease to let.] To lease again; to grant a new lease of; to let back.

re·lease' (rē·lēs'), v.; RE-LEASED' (rē·lēst'); RE-LEAS'ING (-lēs'ĭng). [ME. relessen, fr. OF. relaissier to release, to let free, fr. L. relaxare. See RELAX; cf. RE-LEASE to lease again, RELISH a taste.] Transitive: 1. To loosen or destroy the force of; to remove the obligation or effect of; hence, to alleviate or remove; as, to release a statute, a sentence, pain. Obs.

2. To let loose again; to set free from restraint, confinement, or servitude; to set at liberty; to let go.

Now at that feast he released unto them one prisoner, whomsoever they desired. Mark xv. 6.

3. To relieve from something that confines, burdens, or oppresses, as from pain, trouble, obligation, penalty.

4. To relinquish as by surrendering or resigning.

5. To permit, at a specified date, but not before, the public performance, exhibition, publication, or sale of, as a copyrighted play, photoplay, book, newspaper feature, phonograph record, or the like, which has been previously distributed.

6. Obs. a To remit, as a payment, tax, etc.; to give remission for, as for sins. b To relax; to mitigate.

7. Law. To let go or give up, as a legal claim; to discharge or relinquish a right to, as lands or tenements, by conveying to another who has some right or estate in possession, as when the person in remainder releases his right to the tenant in possession; to quit.

—, Intransitive: 1. To set one free. Rare.

2. Law. To relinquish a claim.

Syn. — RELEASE, DELIVER, DISCHARGE, LIBERATE, FREE. To RELEASE is to set free from restraint of any kind; DELIVER implies esp. release from bondage (lit. and fig.) or from impending evil of any sort; DISCHARGE, as here compared, suggests esp. legal release from custody; as, "Re- ŏut, oil; cūbe, ŭnite, ûrn, ŭp, circŭs, menü; chair; go; sing; ŧhen, thin; natūre, verdūre (249); K = ch in G. ich, ach (109); bon; yet; zh = z in azure.

Numbers within pronunciation parentheses here and in vocabulary refer to §§ in Pron., preceding the Vocabulary.

N O P Q R

lease me from my bands With the help of your good hands" (Shak.); "Surely he shall deliver thee from the snare of the fowler, and from the noisome pestilence" (Ps. xci. 3); to discharge a prisoner. To LIBERATE is to set at liberty; the word does not necessarily, like deliver, carry the implication of rescue from evil or peril; FREE is less formal than liberate, and often implies the granting of freedom; as, to liberate a captive, to free one's slaves. Liberate is also used in the sense of disengage, and free sometimes has the sense of rid or unburden; as, in the process certain gases were liberated; to free a gas from impurities, to free one's mind. Cf. EMANCIPATE, FREEDOM, DELIVERANCE, SAVE.

Ant. — Bind, curb, tie, restrain, fasten; imprison, confine, constrict; burden, oppress, suppress.

re·lease' (rē-lēs'), n. [ME. reles, fr. OF. reles, relais, fr. relaissier. See RELEASE to let go.] 1. Deliverance or relief from care, pain, trouble, or the like.
2. Discharge from obligation or responsibility, as from a debt, penalty, or claim; a giving up or relinquishment, as of a right or claim; as, release from obligations.
3. Act of liberating or freeing, or state of being liberated or freed; liberation or discharge from restraint. "Release from hell." Milton. Also: a An instrument formally discharging from restraint or custody. b A device for letting loose or freeing (something fixed or confined).
4. A releasing for publication, circulation, or performance; also, that, as a speech, play, or record, which has been designated for such release.
5. Engin. The act of permitting the working fluid, as steam, to escape from the cylinder at the end of the working stroke; also, the point in the cycle of operations, or on the corresponding indicator diagram, at which this act occurs; also, the period during exhaust from the point of release (as above) to where the pressure of the exhausting fluid is sensibly that of the condenser or of the outside air.
6. Law. Any act or instrument by which a legal right is discharged; specif., a conveyance of a man's right in lands or tenements to another having an estate in possession; a quitclaim. Cf. ACQUITTANCE.
7. Mach. A device adapted to hold or release a device or mechanism as required; specif.: Elec. A catch on a motor-starting rheostat, which automatically releases the rheostat arm and so stops the motor in case of a break in the field circuit; also, the catch on an electromagnetic circuit breaker for a motor, which acts in case of an overload.
8. Phonet. The act or manner of ending a sound; the movement of one or more vocal organs in quitting the position required for a speech sound; an off-glide.
9. Railroads. In the block-signaling system, a printed card conveying information and instructions to be used at intermediate sidings or offices without telegraphic stations.
Syn. — Liberation, freedom, discharge, acquittance.
Ant. — Restraint, imprisonment, bondage.
— out of, or without, release. Without cessation. Obs.

release date. Journalism. The time set for the publication of a particular article. Cf. PRESS RELEASE.

re·leased' rate (rē-lēst'). Railroads. A rate reduced on account of partial release of the carrier from liability.

released valuation. Railroads. A value reduced in order to get a released rate.

re·leas'ee' (rē-lēs'ē'), n. One to whom a release is given.

re·lease'ment (rē-lēs'mĕnt), n. 1. Act of releasing, or fact of being released.
2. Obs. Relaxation; a remitting.

re·leas'er (-lēs'ĕr), n. One who or that which releases.

re·leas'ing die head. Mach. See DIE HEAD.

re·lea'sor (rē-lē'sôr), n. One by whom a release is given.

re·lec'tion (rē-lĕk'shŭn), n. [L. relectus, past part. of relegere to read again. See LECTION.] Rare. a A rereading; a revised reading. b A division of Francesco de Vitoria's Relectiones Undecim (1565).

rel'e·ga·ble (rĕl'ē-gȧ·b'l), adj. That may be relegated.

rel'e·gate (rĕl'ē-gāt), v. t.; -GAT'ED (-gāt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -GAT'ING (-gāt'ĭng). [L. relegatus, past part. of relegare, fr. re- re- + legare to send with a commission or charge. See LEGATE.] 1. To exile (one); to banish; to deport (see RELEGATION, 1); hence, to remove, send away, or dismiss (a person or thing) thereby putting (such) out of sight or mind, or consigning (such) to insignificance, oblivion, etc.; — with to, into, or out of; as, to relegate certain details to footnotes; to relegate religion into the background of one's consciousness or out of one's life.

But relegated, not imprisoned, Sirs! Browning.

2. To assign, as to a class or sphere; to consign by classifying or appraising; as, to relegate a tradition to the sphere of legend; to relegate a new species to a given family.
3. To submit for decision or judgment; to hand over for execution; to delegate; to refer; as, to relegate certain duties to subordinates.

You relegate these points, then, to the gods? Browning.

Syn. — See COMMIT.

rel'e·ga'tion (rĕl'ē-gā'shŭn), n. [L. relegatio.] 1. Act of relegating, or state of being relegated; removal; banishment.
2. Assignment; delegation.
3. Roman Law. A milder form of banishment, not entailing, like deportation, loss of property or civil rights.

re·lent' (rē-lĕnt'), v.; RE-LENT'ED; RE-LENT'ING. [re- + L. lentus pliant, flexible, slow; cf. F. ralentir to slacken. See LITHE.] Intransitive: 1. To soften; dissolve; hence, to mollify; to cause to be less harsh or severe.
2. To slacken; abate; also, to give up; abandon.

And oftentimes he would relent his pace. Spenser.

3. To regret; to sorrow for.

re·lent', n. A relenting or yielding; also, a slackening. Obs.

re·lent'ing, adj. That relents. — re·lent'ing·ly, adv.

re·lent'less (rē-lĕnt'lĕs; -lĭs; 119), adj. That cannot or does not relent, or give way to appeals or to pity; mercilessly hard or harsh; immovably stern or persistent; as, a relentless avenger, judge, or investigator; relentless criticism.
Syn. — See INFLEXIBLE.
Ant. — Merciful, lenient, compassionate.
— re·lent'less·ly, adv. — re·lent'less·ness, n.

re·lent'ment (-mĕnt), n. A relenting.

re·les'see' (rē-lēs'ē'), n. A releasee. Rare.

re·les'sor' (-ôr'), n. A releasor. Rare.

rel'e·vant (rĕl'ē-vȧnt), adj. [ML. relevans, pres. part., in L., raising, lifting up. See RELIEVE.] 1. Bearing upon, or properly applying to, the case in hand; of a nature to afford evidence tending to prove or to disprove the matters in issue; pertinent; as, relevant testimony or details.
2. Rare. a Remedial; relieving. b Correspondent; commensurate.
3. Scots Law. Pertinent; sufficient.
Syn. — See PERTINENT. Ant. — Irrelevant, unrelated.
— rel'e·vance (-vȧns), n. — rel'e·van·cy (-vȧn·sĭ), n. — rel'e·vant·ly, adv.

rel'e·vate (rĕl'ē-vāt), v. t. [L. relevatus, past part. of relevare.] To raise; relieve; esp., to restore to good spirits. — rel'e·va'tion (-vā'shŭn), n. — rel'e·va'tor (rĕl'ē-vā'tĕr), n.

‖re·le·vé' (rĕ-l'-vā'), n. [F.] A remove (sense 6).

re·li'a·bil'i·ty co'ef·fi'cient (rē-lī'ȧ·bĭl'ĭ·tĭ). Statistics. A measure of the accuracy of a test or measuring instrument, obtained by measuring the same individuals twice and computing the correlation of the two sets of measures.

re·li'a·ble (rē-lī'ȧ·b'l), adj. Suitable or fit to be relied on; worthy of dependence or reliance; trustworthy; as, a reliable witness, authority, medicine, test, or history.
Syn. — RELIABLE, TRUSTWORTHY, TRUSTY, TRIED. Reliable and trustworthy are often used with little distinction. But RELIABLE often suggests qualities that can be relied or depended on, TRUSTWORTHY, those which merit trust or confidence; as, he is a reliable man (i.e., he can be counted on to do what he says he will do); he is a trustworthy person (i.e., one can repose confidence in his integrity, veracity, discretion, etc.). Moreover, reliable is oftener applied to things, trustworthy to persons; as, a trustworthy witness, reliable testimony. TRUSTY is more familiar than trustworthy; that is TRIED whose trustworthiness has been tested by experience; as, "his trusty sword" (Spenser); "his tried expedients" (Bagehot). Cf. TRUST.
Ant. — Unreliable, untrustworthy; capricious, fickle.
— re·li'a·bil'i·ty (rē-lī'ȧ·bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n. — re·li'a·ble·ness, n. — re·li'a·bly, adv.

re·li'ance (rē-lī'ȧns), n. [From RELY.] 1. Act of relying.
2. State, mood, or attitude of one who relies; dependence; confidence; trust.

In reliance on promises . . . of very little value. Macaulay.

3. Someone or something relied upon; ground of confidence; a mainstay; as, the boat was our sole reliance.
Syn. — See TRUST. Ant. — Independence; distrust.

re·li'ant (-ȧnt), adj. 1. That places reliance on something or in someone; confident. "My mind is hopeful and reliant." Kane.
2. Dependent; confiding; trusting; — opposed to self-reliant; as, she has grown too reliant.
— re·li'ant·ly, adv.

rel'ic (rĕl'ĭk), n. [ME. relike, fr. OF. relique, fr. L. reliquiae, pl.; akin to L. relinquere to leave behind. See RELINQUISH.] 1. That which remains; specif., the remains; a corpse or a part of such; — usually pl. Now Poetic. "Scooped from the sacred earth where his dear relics lie." Wordsworth.
2. An object which is esteemed and venerated by the faithful because of its association with a saint or other sacred person, as a fragment of his skeleton, of one of his garments, or of some article of personal use.

There are very few treasuries of relics in Italy that have not a tooth or bone of this saint. Addison.

3. That left after decay, disintegration, disappearance of a type, class, or race, etc.; a fragment; remnant; in pl.: a Ruins; residue; surviving specimens. "The relics of a weed-inwoven cot." Shelley. b Now Rare. Remains of food; scraps.
4. A survival; a trace of some past or outmoded custom, belief, etc.; a vestige.
5. Something that serves as a memorial of a person or event; a souvenir; memento; often, a monument of the past; an antiquity; as, relics of one's youth.
☞ COMBINATIONS are:
relic-covered, relicmonger, relic-vending, adj.

rel'i·car'y (rĕl'ĭ·kĕr'ĭ or, esp. Brit., -kēr·ĭ), n. [Sp. relicario.] A reliquary.

re·lict' (rē-lĭkt'), adj. [See RELICT, n.] 1. Left, esp. by death; specif., widowed. Obs.
2. Of land, left bare by reliction; of a lake, etc., formed on relict land; of a mountain, etc., formed by erosion and later reliction, as a monadnock.
3. That is a relic, or survivor, esp. of a vanishing race, type, or species; belonging to a nearly extinct class, etc.; specif., persisting endemically; as, a relict species.
4. Geol. Left behind in a process of change; as, relict sulphides in a partly oxidized ore body; residual.

rel'ict (rĕl'ĭkt), n. [L. relictus, fem. relicta, past part. of relinquere. See RELINQUISH.] 1. A relic, as of a saint, an event, etc. Now Rare.
2. A widow; — usually followed by of.
3. pl. Remains, specif. of a deceased person.
4. Someone or something which survives; a survivor or survival, esp. of a vanishing race, species, etc.

The tropical fauna, a relict of which — the crocodile — still remains in the oases. Geographical Review.

5. Geol. Anything relict.
6. Phytogeog. A living remnant of an otherwise extinct type of plants, as Sequoia, and certain Australian cycads.

re·lict'ed (rē-lĭk'tĕd; -tĭd; 119), adj. = RELICT, adj., 2. R.

re·lic'tion (rē-lĭk'shŭn), n. [L. relictio a leaving behind.] Law. A recession of the sea or other water leaving land uncovered; also, the land so left uncovered; dereliction.

re·lief' (rē-lēf'), n. [ME. relef, fr. OF. relief.] Remainder; remains. Obs.

re·lief' (rē-lēf'), n. [ME. relef, fr. OF. relief, prop., a lifting up, fr. the v., relever. See RELIEVE; cf. BAS-RELIEF, RELIEVO.] 1. Act of relieving, or state of being relieved; the removal, or partial removal, of any evil, or of anything oppressive or burdensome, by which some ease is obtained; succor; alleviation; comfort; ease.

He sees the dire contagion spread so fast,
That, where it seizes, all relief is vain. Dryden.

2. Specif.: a Aid in the form of money or necessities for indigent persons. b Obs. Supply of food and drink; sustenance. c Aid in time of danger or extreme difficulty, esp. in war; as, an army sent to his relief; also, a relieving force at such a time. d Relaxation or amusement, serving to ease or relieve the mind.
3. Release from a post, or from the performance of duty, by the intervention of others, by discharge, or by relay; as, a relief of a sentry.
4. That which removes or lessens evil, pain, discomfort, uneasiness, etc.; that which gives succor, aid, or comfort.
5. The person who relieves from performance of duty by taking the place of another; a relay.
6. [Cf. It. rilievo.] In sculpture, the projection of figures, ornament, etc., from a background; hence, a work of art so produced. The relief may be obtained by modeling in soft material, hammering (see REPOUSSÉ) in thin plates of metal, or carving, as in wood or stone. The kinds of relief and works in relief are named according to the degree of projection. In high relief (alto-rilievo) this is half or more than half the natural circumference. In low relief (basso-rilievo, bas-relief) it is slight, no part being entirely detached. Intermediate degrees of projection are sometimes called half relief (mezzo-rilievo). Very low relief, as on modern coins, is termed stiacciato. Hollow relief (cavo-rilievo, intaglio rilevato, coelanaglyphic sculpture), much used by the Egyptians, is relief in which the background, instead of being cut away, is left in the plane of the highest areas of the figure or object represented.

Relief, 6. 1 High Relief, Head of Cupid by Banco; 2 Low Relief, St. Cecilia by Donatello; 3 Egyptian Hollow Relief.

7. In a work on a plane surface, as in drawing, painting, etc., the suggestion of spatial dimensions and relations communicated by the arrangement of lines, shadings, colors, etc. Hence, in general, vividness or sharpness of outline due to contrast, as of color, shading, etc.; as, the roof stood out in bold relief against the sky.
8. Cartography. The parts of a map, collectively, which represent the configuration of the ground.
9. Feudal Law. A fine or money composition, as a year's rent or a fixed sum, which the heir of a deceased tenant paid to his lord for the privilege of taking up the landed estate, which, on strict feudal principles, had escheated. Also, sometimes, an acknowledgment made by the heir of his vassal tenure of the lord as a condition of being received or had as a vassal. Reliefs are abolished in England, and in Scotland as to all feus granted since September 30, 1874.
10. Fort. The difference of level between the highest part of the works and the bottom of the ditch.
11. Hunting. Feeding; pasturing. Obs.
12. Law. a Remedy; redress. b Scots Law. Release from an obligation.
13. Mach. a A passage in a tailstock center for the facing or parting tool, — made by cutting away one side of the center so that the tool may be advanced to or almost to the center of the work. b The angle of relief of a cutting tool. c A slight modification in the dimension of a part of a machine to secure clearance. d The lessening of excessive pressure, as of a tool, a moving part, a confined gas, etc.; — often used attributively; as, a relief ring. Cf. RELIEF MOTION.
14. Mineral. The character of the surface of a mineral section as observed under the microscope, depending upon its refractive power relative to that of the medium (for example, Canada balsam) in which it is embedded.
15. Phys. Geog. The elevations or inequalities of a land surface, considered collectively; also, the difference in elevation between the hill tops or summits and the lowlands of a region.
Syn. — Easement, mitigation; aid, deliverance, help, assistance; remedy, redress, indemnification.
Ant. — Aggravation, irritation; injury, hurt, harm, detriment.

Relief Act. Any one of several acts (esp. of 1778 and 1791) by which Parliament gradually restored civil and political rights to Roman Catholics in England.

Relief Church or Kirk. Scot. Eccl. Hist. A church founded (as the Relief Presbytery, which later became the Relief Synod) by Thomas Gillespie and two other ministers of the Church of Scotland in 1761, to afford "relief" from the evils of patronage. In 1847 it joined with the United Secession to form the United Presbyterian Church (of Scotland). See PRESBYTERIAN, adj.

relief frame. Steam Engines. A frame or ring interposed between the back of a slide valve and the inside of the steam-chest cover in some large engines, to prevent access of the steam to the greater part of the valve, thereby relieving the pressure on the valve and materially reducing friction; — called also equilibrium ring.

relief map. A model of an area in which its inequalities of surface are shown in relief; also, a representation in perspective of such a model.

relief motion, ring, tool block, etc. Mach. Any of various devices to remove the pressure of the tool point from the work during a return (or noncutting) stroke.

relief pallet. Organ Building. One of various devices for relieving the pressure on a pallet so as to make the key action easier.

relief printing. Printing by any process which employs a raised printing surface, as type, wood blocks, halftone plates, etc. Cf. INTAGLIO PRINTING; SURFACE PRINTING.

relief ship. A ship sent, either periodically (as to lighthouses) or in emergency, with stores or aid to supply relief, esp. in arctic exploration.

relief valve. Mach. A valve for the escape of steam or fluid under excessive pressure.

relief well. A vertical drain used for the drainage of a deep pervious stratum to relieve waterlogging of the surface soil.

re·li'er (rē-lī'ĕr), n. One who or that which relies.

re·lieve' (rē-lēv'), v.; RE-LIEVED' (-lēvd'); RE-LIEV'ING (-lēv'ĭng). [ME. releven, fr. OF. relever (3d sing. pres. relieve) to raise again, discharge, relieve, fr. L. relevare to lift up, raise, make light, relieve, fr. re- re- + levare to raise. See LEVITY; cf. RELEVANT, RELIEF.] Transitive: 1. To free, wholly or partly, from any burden, trial, evil, distress, or the like; to give ease, comfort, or consolation to; to give aid, help, or succor to; to strengthen or deliver; as, to relieve a besieged town; to relieve the poor.

2. To raise or remove, as anything which depresses, weighs down, or crushes; to render less burdensome or afflicting; to alleviate; abate; mitigate; lessen; as, to relieve pain, pressure, want.
3. To release from a post, station, or duty; to put another in place of, or to take the place of, in the bearing of any burden, or discharge of any duty; as, to relieve a sentry.
4. To ease of any imposition, burden, wrong, or oppression, by judicial or legislative interposition, as by the removal of a grievance, by indemnification, etc.; to right.
5. To remove the monotony of, as by contrast and variety; as, brown hills, relieved by patches of gay foliage.
6. To cause to seem to rise; to put in relief; to give prominence or conspicuousness to; to set off by contrast.
Her tall figure, relieved against the blue sky. Scott.
7. To raise, or cause to be raised, in relief.
The discovery that relieving the characters [on stone, in lithography] was altogether unnecessary. Encyc. Americana.
8. Obs. a To supply with munitions, food, or the like. b To lift up; to raise again.
9. Feudal Law. To acquire or take (an estate) by paying or rendering a relief.
10. Law. To set free from an obligation.
11. Mach. a To furnish with an angle of relief, as a cutting tool. b To free from tightness, as between parts having relative movement. c To free from excessive pressure; as, to relieve a valve. d To cut away a small amount of material from a part of (a machine), to obtain clearance.
——, Intransitive: 1. To bring or give relief.
2. To stand out in relief.
3. Obs. a To rise again. b To return; rally.
4. Law. To clear one from a legal obligation.
Syn. — Assuage, ease; succor, assist, aid, help; support, sustain; lighten, diminish, remove, free; remedy, redress.
Ant. — Aggravate, increase; help, harm, burden, oppress.

re·lieved′ (rē-lēvd′), adj. Given relief, esp. from worry or pent-up emotion; hence, manifesting release from such; as, to speak in a relieved tone. — re·liev′ed·ly (-lēv′ĕd-lĭ; -ĭd-lĭ; 119), adv.

re·liev′er (rē-lēv′ĕr), n. 1. One who or that which relieves; specif., any of various mechanical devices for relieving strain.
2. [cap.] A member of the Relief Church. Colloq., Scot.

re·liev′ing (-ĭng), adj. Serving or tending to relieve. — re·liev′ing·ly, adv.

relieving arch. Arch. A discharging arch.

relieving lathe. See 2d LATHE, 1.

relieving tackle. Naut. a A temporary tackle rigged to the tiller during gales or in battle, in case of accident to the steering gear. b A tackle to a careened vessel, to prevent her from going over entirely, and to assist in righting her.

re·lie′vo (rē-lē′vō), n.; pl. -VOS (-vōz). [It. rilievo.] Relief (sense 6).

rel′i·gate (rĕl′ĭ-gāt), v. t. & i. [L. religatus, past part. of religare to bind up.] To bind together; to constrain. — rel′i·ga′tion (-gā′shŭn), n.

‖re·li′gieux′ (rē-lē′zhyû′), n. masc., sing. & pl.; ‖re·li′gieuse′ (-zhyûz′), pl. -GIEUSES (-zhyûz′), fem. [F.] A religious; (masc.) a monk, or (fem.) a nun.

‖re·li′gi·o (rē-lĭj′ĭ-ō), n. [L.] Primitive awe inspired by events or phenomena which man cannot explain; hence, religion.

re·lig′i·o- (rē-lĭj′ĭ-ō-). A combining form for religion, denoting religious and, as in:
religio-educational religio-military religio-political religio-magical religio-philosophical religio-scientific

‖Re·li′gi·o La′i·ci (rē-lĭj′ĭ-ō lā′ĭ-sī). [LL., a layman's religion.] Title of a poem (1682) by Dryden, defending Anglicanism.

‖ re·li′gi·o lo′ci (lō′sī) [L.] The religious sanctity of a place. Vergil (Aeneid, VIII. 349).

Re·li′gi·o Med′i·ci (rē-lĭj′ĭ-ō mĕd′ĭ-sī). [L., religion of a physician.] A treatise on religion (1642) by Sir Thomas Browne, enunciating a creed that was liberal for its day.

re·li′gion (rē-lĭj′ŭn), n. [OF., fr. L. religio, prop., taboo, restraint; akin to L. religare to hold back, bind fast, ligare to bind. See RE-; LIGATURE. Cf. RELY.] 1. The service and adoration of God or a god as expressed in forms of worship, in obedience to divine commands, esp. as found in accepted sacred writings or as declared by recognized teachers and in the pursuit of a way of life regarded as incumbent on true believers; as, ministers of religion.
You shall afflict your souls by a perpetual religion.
Levificus xvi. 31 (D.V.).
Pure religion and undefiled before God and the Father is this, To visit the fatherless and widows in their affliction, and to keep himself unspotted from the world. James i. 27.
2. The state of life of a religious; as, to enter or retire into religion; also, Now Rare, a religious, or monastic, order or mode of life.
3. One of the systems of faith and worship; a form of theism; a religious faith; as, Christian or monotheistic religions; tolerant of all religions.
4. The profession or practice of religious beliefs; religious observances collectively; pl., rites.
The kernel of his practical religion was that it was respectable, and beneficial to one's business, to be seen going to services. Sinclair Lewis.
5. Devotion or fidelity; scrupulous conformity; conscientiousness.
Those [legal practices] . . . are still continued with much religion. Sir M. Hale.
6. An apprehension, awareness, or conviction of the existence of a supreme being, or more widely, of supernatural powers or influences controlling one's own, humanity's, or nature's destiny; also, such an apprehension, etc., accompanied by or arousing reverence, love, gratitude, the will to obey and serve, and the like; religious experience or insight; often, specif., the awakening of religious belief, convictions, etc., as in conversion; as, one without religion; man only is capable of religion; to get religion.
7. [cap.] Religious faith and practice personified.
8. a A pursuit, an object of pursuit, a principle, or the like, arousing in one religious convictions and feelings such as great faith, devotion, or fervor, or followed with religious zeal, conscientiousness or fidelity; as, patriotism was to him a religion. b Acceptance of and devotion to such an ideal as a standard for one's life.
An artist whose religion is his art. Browning.
Men of science do well enough with no other religion than the love of truth. John Burroughs.
9. Obs. a A religious. b Religious obligation. c Awe. d [cap., with the.] Protestantism.

re·li·gion·ar′y (rē-lĭj′ŭn-ĕr′ĭ or, esp. Brit., -ĕr-ĭ), n. [Cf. F. religionnaire.] Obs. a One whose vocation is religion. b A Protestant.

re·li·gion·ar′y (rē-lĭj′ŭn-ĕr′ĭ or, esp. Brit., -ĕr-ĭ), adj. Religious. Now Rare.

re·li·gion·ate (-āt), v. t. To make religious. Rare.

re·li·gion·er (-ĕr), n. A religionist.

re·li·gion·ism (-ĭz′m), n. Strict practice of, or devotion to, religion; also, affectation or pretense of religion.

re·li·gion·ist (-ĭst), n. One earnestly devoted or attached to a religion; a religious zealot. — re·li·gion·ist, adj. — re·li·gion·is′tic (-ĭs′tĭk), adj.

re·li·gion·ize (-īz), v. t. To make religious. — v. i. To practice religionism.

religion of humanity. A religion founded upon positivism as a philosophical basis; — sometimes so called.

re·lig′i·ose′ (rē-lĭj′ĭ-ōs′), adj. Morbidly religious.

re·lig′i·os′i·ty (-ŏs′ĭ-tĭ), n. [L. religiositas, cf. F. religiosité.] Religiousness, esp. when intense, excessive, or affected; also, a religious service.

‖re·li·gi′so (rā′lē-jō′sō), adj. [It., religious.] Music. Religious in style and feeling; — used as a direction.

re·li′gious (rē-lĭj′ŭs), adj. [OF. religius, religious (F. religieux), fr. L. religiosus. See RELIGION.] 1. Manifesting devotion to, or the influence of, religion; pious; godly; as, a religious man, life, behavior, etc.
A man may be moral without being religious, but he cannot be religious without being moral. F. Myers.
2. Living in religion (sense 2); belonging to, or followed by, an order of religious; as, a religious monk or friar; the religious life. "One of them is religious." Chaucer.
3. Of or pertaining to religion or religions; concerned with religion; teaching, or setting forth, religion; set apart to religion; also, sacred; as, a religious society, sect, place; religious subjects, books, teachers, houses, wars, orders, or rites; religious liberty.
4. Scrupulously faithful or exact; strict; conscientious; zealous; fervent; devout; as, to follow one's advice with religious care.
Syn. — Holy, devout, devotional, spiritual; rigid, exact, scrupulous.
Ant. — Irreligious, profane, impious; casual, careless, haphazard, lax.
— re·li′gious·ly, adv. — re·li′gious·ness, n.

re·li′gious (rē-lĭj′ŭs), n., sing. & pl. Those or one bound by monastic vows, or sequestered from secular concerns, and devoted to a life of piety and religion; a monk or friar; a nun. Cf. RELIGIEUX.

re·li′gious a′pri·o′rĭ (ā′ prĭ-ō′rĭ; prī-ō′rĭ; ä′ prĭ-ō′rē). That in the native constitution of man's mind by virtue of which he is religious and interprets his experience religiously. See A PRIORI.

religious education. a Instruction in religion as a subject of general education. b Training to conformance with religious principles in thought, feeling, and conduct.

religious house. A monastery or convent.

Religious of Our Lady of the Cenacle. See CENACLE, 2.

Religious of the Sacred Heart. See SACRED HEART, SOCIETY OF THE.

Religious Peace of Augsburg. A treaty (1555) between the Catholic and Lutheran princes of the Holy Roman Empire, by which it was provided that any state might set up either form of faith as its state religion to which the people must conform, permission being given to dissentients to dispose of their estates and emigrate.

Religious Society of Friends. See FRIEND, 6.

re·lin′quent (rē-lĭng′kwĕnt), adj. [L. relinquens, pres. part. of relinquere.] Relinquishing. Rare. — n. A relinquisher. Rare.

re·lin′quish (rē-lĭng′kwĭsh), v.; RE·LIN′QUISHED (-kwĭsht); RE·LIN′QUISH·ING. [OF. relinquir, relenquir, fr. L. relinquere to leave behind, fr. re- RE- + linquere to leave. See LOAN; 2d -ISH. Cf. DERELICT, RELIC, RELICT.] Transitive: 1. To withdraw from; to leave behind; to desist from; to abandon; quit; as, to relinquish a pursuit, a hope, or an idea; a position relinquished by the enemy.
2. To give up; to renounce a claim to; to resign; as, to relinquish a debt, a right, or one's inheritance.
3. Obs. a To forsake. b To leave behind. c To cancel. d To release.
——, Intransitive: To go away; disappear. Rare.
Syn. — Yield; leave, renounce; forsake, desert. — RELINQUISH, RESIGN, WAIVE, FORGO, SURRENDER, agree in the idea of giving up (cf. ABANDON). RELINQUISH implies that the thing given up is desired or desirable, or is abandoned with feelings of regret or loss; as, to relinquish one's command, the hope of recovery. RESIGN (cf. ABDICATE) suggests somewhat more definitely a deliberate, sometimes a formal, act; as, to resign a position or office, to resign oneself to fate. WAIVE implies a refusal to insist on or claim a right; as, to waive one's right to be heard in one's own defense. FORGO implies abstention from something already enjoyed, or (more frequently) within reach, or anticipated; as, to forgo the pleasure of a friend's company, the honor of an appointment. SURRENDER implies that possession is yielded upon some sort of compulsion or demand; as, to surrender an office to one's successor. Cf. RENOUNCE.
I only have relinquished one delight To live beneath your more habitual sway. Wordsworth.
With a most mixed feeling, wherein joy has no part, she resigns herself to a day she hoped never to have seen. Carlyle.
He waived the ceremony of introduction. Mme. d'Arblay.
I am unarm'd; forgo this vantage, Greek. Shak.
If we do not surrender our wills to the overtures of his goodness, we must submit our backs to the strokes of his anger. Barrow.
Ant. — Keep, maintain, retain; pursue, continue; assert.

re·lin′quish·er (-ĕr), n. One who relinquishes.

re·lin′quish·ment (rē-lĭng′kwĭsh-mĕnt), n. 1. Act of relinquishing; a giving up; surrender; renunciation.
2. Relinquished, or abandoned, land. U. S. Rare.

rel′i·quaire′ (rĕl′ĭ-kwâr′), n. [F.] A reliquary.

rel′i·quar′y (rĕl′ĭ-kwĕr′ĭ or, esp. Brit., -kwĕr-ĭ), n.; pl. -IES (-īz). [F. reliquaire; cf. ML. reliquiarium. See RELIC.] A small box, casket, shrine, or the like, for keeping or exhibiting a relic or relics.

rel′i·quar′y, adj. Of or pertaining to a relic or relics.

re·liq′ui·ae (rē-lĭk′wĭ-ē), n. pl. [L. See RELIC.] 1. Remains of the dead; organic remains; relics.
2. Bot. Induviae.

re·liq′ui·an (rē-lĭk′wĭ-ăn), adj. Of the nature of a relic.

rel′i·quism (rĕl′ĭ-kwĭz′m), n. Addiction to relics.

rel′ish (rĕl′ĭsh), n. [Cf. RELISH taste.] A grace or embellishment in old music. — v. t. To sing; to warble, esp. with embellishments. Obs.

rel′ish (rĕl′ĭsh), n. [ME. reles, fr. OF. reles, relais, what is left, remainder, fr. relaissier to leave behind. See RELEASE, n. & v.] 1. A taste; characteristic flavor; now esp., a pleasing or zestful flavor; tang; savor.
She found one roots of relish sweet. Keats.
2. A quantity just sufficient to flavor; a taste; a dash.
3. Taste, or power to discern and appreciate; often, personal taste; liking.
Minds that have been formed
And tutored with a relish more exact,
But none without some relish, none unmoved. Cowper.
4. a Enjoyment of, or delight in, that which satisfies one's tastes, inclinations, etc.; gratification.
Yet has so keen a relish of its pleasures? Burns.
b Appetite; inclination; as, relish for one's company.
5. That which is used to impart a flavor; specif., something taken with food to render it more palatable or to stimulate the appetite; a condiment; hors d'oeuvre.
Syn. — RELISH, GUSTO, ZEST are here compared in their fig. uses. RELISH implies keen, GUSTO, hearty, appreciation or enjoyment; ZEST connotes eagerness or avidity; as, "I was reading 'The Provoked Husband' with the highest relish" (Hazlitt); "a man of . . . a quick relish for pleasure" (Macaulay); "He read me, though with too much gusto, some little poems of his own" (Pepys); "There is an indescribable gusto in his voice" (Keats); "The Elizabethan theater had its cause in an ardent zest for life and living" (M. Arnold); "Now with the stars, and now with equal zest tracing the eccentric orbit of a jest" (Lowell). Relish and zest are also used in the sense of (esp. piquant) flavor; as, "the full flavor, the whole relish of delight" (H. W. Beecher); "One wit, like a knuckle of ham in soup, gives a zest and flavor to the dish" (Smollett). See TASTE.
Ant. — Apathy, indifference, dullness, boredom.

rel′ish (rĕl′ĭsh), v.; REL′ISHED (-ĭsht); REL′ISH·ING. [See RELISH a taste.] Transitive: 1. To add a relish, flavor, or zest, to; to serve as a condiment to.
A savory bit that served to relish wine. Dryden.
2. To be pleased or gratified by; to enjoy; to like or care for; as, not to relish advice.
Something of mine he relished, some review. Browning.
3. To receive in a specified manner; — usually in passive; as, one cannot say how the news will be relished.
4. To appreciate with taste or discernment. W. Pater.
5. To eat or drink with pleasure; to like the taste of; as, so hungry that he will relish plain fare.
6. Obs. a To take a taste of; to distinguish by tasting. b To delight (esp., one's palate, taste, etc.). c To have a savor, or suggestion of; to smack of; to approach in quality. d To feel. Shak.
——, Intransitive: To have a characteristic, pleasing, or appetizing, taste; to have a flavor; hence, to give gratification; to be pleasurable or acceptable.
A theory, which, how much soever it may relish of wit and invention, hath no foundation in nature. Woodward.

rel′ish (rĕl′ĭsh), n. [OF. relais a projecting part of a wall.] Carp. The projection or shoulder at the side of, or around, a tenon. Cf. MORTISE, Illust. — v. t. Carp. To cut the shoulder on (tenons). — rel′ish·er (-ĕr), n.

rel′ished (rĕl′ĭsht), adj. Having relish or flavor. Obs.

rel′ish·ing, adj. That relishes or gives a relish. — rel′ish·ing·ly, adv.

rel′ish·y (rĕl′ĭsh-ĭ), adj. Having relish. Rare.

re·live′ (rē-lĭv′), v. t.; RE·LIVED′ (-lĭvd′); RE·LIV′ING (-lĭv′ĭng). Formerly, to recall to life; to revive; now, to live again; as, to relive one's life. — v. i. To come back to life; to live again or anew.

Rel′ly·an (rĕl′ĭ-ăn), adj. Of, pert. to, or named after, James Relly (1720–78), a fellow worker with Whitefield and the organizer of a Universalist congregation in London soon after 1750; of or pert. to his doctrines, the chief being that through their corporate presence in Christ as the second Adam (Rom. v. 12–21) and head of the race, all men, not the elect only, had been freed from sin and from liability to further punishment. The Rellyans were a minority group among Universalists, and did not long exist as a distinct body. — Rel′ly·an, n. — Rel′ly·an·ism (-ĭz′m), n. — Rel′ly·an·ite (-ĭt), n.

re·lo′ca·ble (rē-lō′kă-b'l), adj. [LL. relocare to replace.] Capable of being placed again in a situation, office, etc. Rare.

re·lo′cate (rē-lō′kāt), v. t.; -CAT·ED (-kāt-ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -CAT·ING. To locate or allocate again.

re′lo·ca′tion (rē′lō-kā′shŭn), n. 1. A second location; a locating again.
2. [LL. relocare to relet; cf. F. relocation.] Rom. & Civil Law. Renewal of a lease. See TACIT RELOCATION.

re·lo′ca·tor (rē-lō′kā-tĕr; rē′lō-kā′tĕr), n. One who or that which relocates; specif.: a Mil. An instrument used in seacoast fortifications for obtaining the range and position of a target, from the range and position as determined with respect to the end of the base line. b Mining. One who relocates an abandoned or forfeited mining claim.

re·lu′cent (rē-lū′sĕnt; -s'nt), adj. [L. relucens, pres. part. of relucere. See LUCENT.] Reflecting light; shining; radiant; refulgent.

re·luct′ (rē-lŭkt′), v. i. [L. reluctari, past part. reluctatus, to struggle, fr. re- RE- + luctari to struggle, fr. lucta a wrestling; akin to Gr. lygizein to bend, twist, and E. LOCK.] 1. To make a determined resistance; to struggle; fight.
2. To feel or show repugnance or reluctance; to revolt.
Apt to relict at the excesses of it [passion]. Walton.

re·luc′tance (rē-lŭk′tăns), n. [See RELUCTANT.] 1. Act of struggling against or opposing; opposition. Now Rare.
2. State or quality of being reluctant; repugnance; aversion; unwillingness; — often followed by an infinitive, or by to and a noun, formerly sometimes by against; as, to obey with reluctance; reluctance to serve.
3. Elec. Magnetic resistance, being equal to the ratio of magnetomotive force to magnetic flux. Cf. PERMEANCE.
Syn. — Disinclination, indisposition.
Ant. — Eagerness, avidity.

re·luc′tan·cy (rē-lŭk′tăn-sĭ), n. 1. Obs. a A mental conflict. b Opposition or resistance. c Regret.
2. Reluctance, or disinclination; repugnance.

re·luc′tant (-tănt), adj. [L. reluctans, -antis, pres. part. of reluctari. See RELUCT.] 1. Struggling against; resisting.

---

re·lieve′ment, n. [OF. relevement a lifting up.] Relief. Obs.
re·lift′, v. t. See RE-, 2. re·light′, v. t. & i. See RE-, 2. — re·light′a·ble, adj. See -ABLE.
re·light′en, v. t. See RE-, 2. — re·light′en·er, n.
re·light′er, n.
re·lig′ion·less, adj. See -LESS.
re·lime′, v. t. See RE-, 2. re·lim′it, v. t., re′lim·i·ta′tion, n.
re·line′, v. t. See RE-, 2. — re·lin′er (rē-līn′ĕr), n.
re·link′, v. t. See RE-, 2. re·linque′, v. t. [L. relinquere, or OF. relinquir.] To relinquish. Obs. re·lin′quisht. Relinquished. Ref. Sp. re·lique (rĕl′ĭk; rĭ-lēk′). Var. of RELIC.
re·liq′ue·fy (rē-lĭk′wĕ-fī), v. t. See RE-, 2.
Reliques of Ancient English Poetry. See PERCY'S RELIQUES. re·liq′ui·date, v. t., re′liq·ui·da′tion, n. See RE-, 2.
re·liq′uies (rĕl′ĭ-kwĭz), n. pl. [L. reliquiae.] Relics. Obs.
rel′ish·a·ble, adj. See -ABLE.
rel′ish·some, adj. See -SOME. Obs. rel′isht. Relished. Ref. Sp.
re·list′, v. t. See RE-, 2.
re·lis′ten (rē-lĭs′'n), v. i., re·lit′i·gate, v. t. See RE-, 2.
re·liv′er, v. t. [OF. relivrer.] To restore. Obs.
re·lim. Realm. Ref. Sp.
re·load′, v. & n., re·loan′, v. & n. See RE-, 2.
re·lock′, v. t., re·lodge′, v. t. See RE-, 2. re·long′, v. t. [See RE-, LONG; cf. PROLONG.] To prolong; postpone. Obs.
re·look′, v. i., re·lose′, v. i., re·lost′, v. i., relot′, v. i. See RE-, 2.
re·love′, v. i. & i. See RE-, 1. re·low′er, v. i. See RE-, 2.
re·luce′, v. i. To reflect light. Obs.

N O P Q R

2. Characterized by or manifesting reluctance; loath to act, give, produce, etc.; hesitant; averse; unwilling; disinclined; as, reluctant to leave; reluctant followers, service, or promises; the reluctant soil.
Syn. — RELUCTANT, LOATH, AVERSE agree in the idea of disinclination. RELUCTANT often implies an internal struggle; as, "I cannot go; — I pause; — I hesitate; my feet reluctant linger at the gate" (Longfellow); "the agony of reluctant tears" (Byron). One is LOATH to do what one dislikes or hates to do; AVERSE (cf. ADVERSE) implies habitual or rooted repugnance; as, "half loath and half consenting" (Dryden); "She would have been loath to confess how more than once she had ripped a seam for the mere delight of sewing it together again" (Mary Wilkins); "The Beefsteak and October Clubs are neither of them averse to eating and drinking" (Spectator). Cf. ANTIPATHY, REPELLENT.
Ant. — Eager, avid, willing, desirous. re·luc'tate (rē·lŭk'tāt), v. i. [See RELUCT.] To reluct; oppose. — v. t. To struggle against; repudiate; repel. rel'uc·ta'tion (rĕl'ŭk·tā'shŭn), n. Reluctance; reluctancy. rel'uc·tiv'i·ty (rĕl'ŭk·tĭv'ĭ·tĭ), n. Elec. Specific reluctance; the reluctance of a mass of the material one centimeter long and one square centimeter in cross section.
re·lume' (rē·lūm'), v. t.; RE·LUMED' (-lūmd'); RE·LUM'ING (-lūm'ĭng). [Cf. F. rallumer, LL. reluminare. Cf. REILLUME.] To rekindle; to light or light up again; reillumine.
Jets of affection which relume a young world for me. Emerson.
re·lume', n. A reluming. Rare.
re·lu'mine (rē·lū'mĭn), v. t. [LL. reluminare.] To relume. re·ly' (rē·lī'), v.; -LIED' (-līd'); -LY'ING. [ME. relien to rally, fr. OF. relier to bind, bind together, bind again, fr. L. religare, fr. re- + ligare to bind. See LIGAMENT.] Intransitive: 1. Obs. a To reassemble; to rally; — esp. of an army. b To trust, hold, belong, or cleave; — with to. c To consist; subsist; — with in. d To lean or rest; — with on or upon.
2. To rest with confidence, as when satisfied of the veracity, integrity, or ability of persons, or of the certainty of facts or of evidence; to have confidence; to trust; to depend; — with on, formerly also with in, or, rarely, to; as, to rely on a friend, on one's own efforts, or upon a man's word.
—, Transitive: Obs. 1. To rally; gather.
2. To repose; rest; base.
Syn. — Confide, repose, count, reckon. re·main' (rē·mān'), v.; RE·MAINED' (-mānd'); RE·MAIN'ING. [OF. remaindre, remanoir (3d sing. pres. remaint), fr. L. remanere, fr. re- re- + manere to stay, remain. See MANSION; cf. REMAINDER, REMNANT.] Intransitive: 1. To be left after others have been removed or destroyed; to be left after a number or quantity has been subtracted or cut off.
Gather up the fragments that remain. John vi. 12.
2. To be left as not included or comprised; to be left as a portion not treated; as, that remains to be proved.
3. To stay behind while others withdraw.
4. To continue unchanged in place, form, or condition, or undiminished in quantity; to abide; endure; last; continue.
Childless thou art; childless remain. Milton.
5. To reside; live; dwell. Obs.
6. Law. To stay or continue for the benefit of another than the grantor; — said of land. See REMAINDER, 5. Obs.
—, Transitive: To await. Rare.
Syn. — Continue, rest; tarry, stay, endure. See RESIDE.
Ant. — See RESIDE.
re·main' (rē·mān'), n. [OF. See REMAIN, v.] 1. State of remaining; stay. Obs. "My here remain in England." Shak.
2. The portion surviving or abiding after a part has been destroyed or removed; specif.: a The persons remaining; those left; — used in pl., or, Obs., collectively; as, he himself comprised the sole remains of a large family; the remains of an army after battle; the remain amounted to sixty or seventy men. b Obs. The balance of a sum of money remaining due. c A fragment; remnant; remaining part; relic; remainder; — chiefly in pl. "The remains of old Rome." Addison.
When this remain of horror has entirely subsided. Burke.
3. pl. a Posthumous works; productions, esp. literary works, of one who is dead; as, Cecil's Remains. b That which is left of a human being after the life is gone; relics; a dead body.
4. Math. = REMAINDER, 6. Obs. re·main'der (rē·mān'dĕr), n. [OF. remaindre, inf. as n. See REMAIN, v.] 1. Time of remaining; stay. Rare.
2. a The portion of a thing remaining, or left, after the separation and removal of a part; residue; remnant. b pl. = REMAIN, n., 2 c.
3. The person or persons of a company, family, or the like, remaining after the departure or removal of a portion; — chiefly collective of a number of persons; as, the remainder of us took another road.
4. Copies of a book remaining in the publisher's stock when sales have ceased or become unprofitable.
5. Law. An estate in expectancy, generally in land, which becomes an estate in possession upon the determination of a particular prior estate, created at the same time, and by the same instrument; for example, if land be conveyed to A for life, and on his death to B, A's life interest is a particular estate, and B's interest is a remainder; — disting. from a reversion, in which the residual interest is reserved by the grantor. Historically the remainder was so called not as being the residual estate remaining after granting another estate, but because the land or fee was said to "remain," or continue, to some designated person upon the termination of the particular estate.
6. Math. That which is left after subtraction or any deduction; the undivided part, less or lower in degree than the divisor, left after division.
7. pl. Philately. Supplies of stamps left on hand after demonetization.
Syn. — Leavings, balance, rest, surplus. — REMAINDER, RESIDUUM, REMNANT. REMAINDER is the general term for what is left after something is taken away; a RESIDUUM is a remainder after a process, esp. of analysis, resolution, purification, or the like; as, "The remainder [of the meat offering] shall Aaron and his sons eat" (Lev. vi. 16); "scarce seven, the thin remainder of my fleet" (Dryden); "In its [philosophy's] experiments there has always remained, in the last analysis, a residuum it could not resolve" (Emerson); "a suspicion that one's intellect is . . . exhaling . . . like ether out of a vial; so that, at every glance, you find a smaller and smaller residuum" (Hawthorne). REMNANT, in modern usage, commonly implies a small or fragmentary remainder; as, "No remnant of the exterminated faith survived" (Shelley); a remnant of ribbon.
re·main'der (rē·mān'dĕr), adj. Remaining; not taken, used, or the like; left over.
Which is as they as the remainder biscuit, After a voyage. Shak.
re·main'der, v. t. To sell the remainders of (a publication) at a lowered price.
re·main'der·man (-măn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). Law. One who holds or is entitled to a remainder. remainder theorem. Math. The theorem that if $f(x)$ is a rational integral algebraic function of x, then the remainder on dividing $f(x)$ by $x - a$ is $f(a)$. A particular case of this is the factor theorem, that $f(a)$ vanishes when $x - a$ is a factor of $f(x)$. re·main'er (rē·mān'ĕr), n. [OF. remaneir to remain (inf. as n.), fr. L. remanere.] Remainder. Obs.
re·main'er, n. One who remains. re·man' (rē·măn'), v. t. 1. To man again or anew, as a ship or gun.
2. To reimbue with courage or manliness. rem'a·na'tion (rĕm'ȧ·nā'shŭn), n. [L. remanare to flow back.] Buddhism. Reabsorption. Rare.
re·man'ci·pate (rē·măn'sĭ·pāt), v. t. [L. remancipare.] Roman Law. To reconvey (a person or thing) by mancipation to the mancipant. — re·man'ci·pa'tion (-pā'shŭn), n.
re·mand' (rē·mănd'; see Pron., § 83), v. t.; RE·MAND'ED; RE·MAND'ING. [F. remander to send word again, fr. LL. remandare, fr. re- re- + mandare to commit, order, send word. See MANDATE.] 1. To recommit; to send back; specif., to recommit (a prisoner) temporarily.
2. To commit or consign; to remit.
Remand the residue to the flask once more. Browning.
3. To command or summon to return; to recall. Archaic.
4. Obs. a To demand the return of. b To countermand.
re·mand', n. Act of remanding, or state of being remanded; also, a remanded prisoner.
rem'a·nence (rĕm'ȧ·nĕns), n. [See REMANENT, adj.]
1. Remainder; residue.
2. Property of being remanent, residual, or abiding.
3. Residual magnetism.
rem'a·nen·cy (-nĕn·sĭ), n. Remanence. Rare. rem'a·nent (rĕm'ȧ·nĕnt), adj. [L. remanens, pres. part. of remanere. See REMAIN; cf. REMNANT.] 1. Permanent; lasting; enduring. Obs.
2. Left after the rest has been used, removed, done, etc.; remaining; residual; as, remanent sugar in new wine.
3. Supplementary; further; additional. Chiefly Scot. rem'a·nent (-nĕnt), n. [See REMANENT, adj.] Remainder; remnant; residue; pl., remains. Obs. remanent magnetism. Physics. Residual magnetism. rem'a·net (rĕm'ȧ·nĕt), n. [L., it remains.] 1. A remainder.
2. Law. a Legal Practice. A case or proceeding the hearing of which is postponed. b Eng. A parliamentary bill carried over to another session.
‖re·ma'mi'ê' (rē·mȧ'nyā'), n. [F., reworked, lit., rehandled. See RE-; MAINPRISE.] Any part or fragment of an older formation, as a pebble or fossil, incorporated in a younger deposit; a relict or residual. — ‖re·ma'mi'ê', adj.
re·mar'gin (rē·mär'jĭn), v. Transitive: 1. To put a fresh margin on (a leaf, or the leaves, of a book).
2. To make good the margin on; as, to remargin a loan.
—, Intransitive: To replenish or add to an existing margin, usually one decreased by a change in prices.
re·mark' (rē·märk'), v.; RE·MARKED' (-märkt'); RE·MARK'ING. [F. remarquer, fr. re- re- + marquer to mark, of Teut. origin. See MARK, v. & n., sign.] Transitive: 1. To mark in a notable manner; to distinguish clearly; also, to point out; to direct attention to. Obs.
His manacles remark him; there he sits. Milton.
2. To take notice of, or to observe; perceive; as, to remark the manner of a speaker.
3. To express in speech or writing, as observed or noticed; to state; say; — often with an object clause; as, he remarked that it was time to go.
—, Intransitive: To make a remark or remarks; to comment; — with on.
Syn. — Observe, notice, heed, regard, note; comment. re·mark' (rē·märk'), n. [F. remarque.] 1. Quality or state of deserving special consideration; importance. Obs.
2. Act of remarking, or noticing; notice or observation.
The cause, though worth the search, may yet elude Conjecture and remark, however shrewd. Cowper.
3. The expression, in speech or writing, of something remarked or noticed; the mention of that which deserves attention or notice; comment; hence, also, a casual observation, comment, or statement; as, a pertinent remark.
4. Obs. a A notable sign or characteristic; an indicative mark; as, a day without remark. b Token; indication; as, a remark of power. c Something noteworthy.
5. Engraving & Etching. A remarque. See PROOF, n., 10.
Syn. — REMARK, OBSERVATION, COMMENT, NOTE, ANNOTATION, GLOSS. A REMARK is a more or less casual expression of an opinion or judgment; OBSERVATION, the more formal term, suggests the embodiment of a somewhat attentive or critical scrutiny; as, "Perhaps . . . you may now and then amuse yourself with my translation Should your remarks reach me . . . they shall be all most welcome" (Cowper); "I do not love . . . criticism, and think even a bad verse as good a thing or better than the best observation that ever was made upon it" (Gray). A COMMENT is a critical or explanatory remark upon a particular point; a NOTE is commonly, an ANNOTATION always, appended to the passage which is the subject of remark; as, "The more she reads, the more perplext, the comment ruining the text" (Prior); "The author . . . was advised . . . to subjoin some few explanatory notes; but had too much respect for the understanding of his readers to take that liberty" (Gray); "the numerous manuscript . . . annotations on the blank leaves and margins of the books" (B. Silliman). A GLOSS, as here compared, is an explanatory comment, frequently marginal or interlinear; as, "The gloss with which [The Ancient Mariner] was subsequently accompanied" (Wordsworth). re·mark'a·ble (rē·mär'kȧ·b'l), adj. [F. remarquable.] 1. Worthy of being, or likely to be, remarked or noticed; noticeable; conspicuous; hence, uncommon; extraordinary; as, remarkable for his generosity; the remarkable features of a place; remarkable beauty or industry.
2. That can be seen or observed; discernible. Obs.
Syn. — Observable, unusual, strange, wonderful, notable.
Ant. — Usual, ordinary, commonplace.
— re·mark'a·bil'i·ty (-bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), re·mark'a·ble·ness, n. — re·mark'a·bly, adv.
re·mark'a·ble (rē·mär'kȧ·b'l), n. A remarkable thing or occurrence; — chiefly pl. Archaic.
re·mark'er (rē·mär'kĕr), n. One who or that which remarks.
re·marque' (rē·märk'), n. [F.] Engraving. a A small design etched on the margin of a plate and supposed to be removed after the earliest proofs have been taken; also, any feature distinguishing a particular stage of the plate. b A print or proof so distinguished; — commonly called a remarque proof. See PROOF, n., 10. — re·marque', v. t. & i.
re·mar'riage (rē·mär'ĭj), n. Act or instance of remarrying; state of being remarried.
re·mar'ry (-ĭ), v. t. & i.; RE·MAR'RIED (-ĭd); RE·MAR'RYING. To marry again; as: a To unite again in wedlock. b To take a second husband or wife.
‖rem'blai' (răn'blĕ'), n. [F., fr. remblayer to fill up an excavation, to embank.] Excavated materials made into a bank.
rem'ble (rĕm'b'l), v. t. To move or stir. N. of Eng.
Rem'brandt (rĕm'brănt), n. [See REMBRANDTESQUE.] A brown, red-yellow in hue, of low saturation and low brilliance. Cf. COLOR.
Rem'brandt·esque' (rĕm'brăn·tĕsk'), adj. Like the style or manner of the Dutch painter Rembrandt, esp. having his system of strongly contrasted light and shade.
Rem'brandt·ish (rĕm'brăn·tĭsh), adj. Rembrandtesque.
Rem'brandt·ism (rĕm'brănt·ĭz'm), n. Rembrandtesque style. reme (rēm), v. i. [AS. hrēman, hrȳman.] To shout; scream. Obs. re'me·ant (rē'mē·ănt), adj. [L. remeans, -antis, pres. part. of remeare to go or come back.] Returning. R.
re·mede' (rē·mēd'), n. & v. [F. remède.] Remedy; redress. Chiefly Scot. & Archaic. re·me'di·a·ble (rē·mē'dĭ·ȧ·b'l; 159), adj. [F. remédiable, fr. L. remediabilis.] 1. Capable of remedying. Obs.
2. Capable of being remedied.
— re·me'di·a·ble·ness, n. — re·me'di·a·bly, adv.
re·me'di·al (-ăl), adj. [L. remedialis.] Affording a remedy; intended for a remedy, or for the removal or abatement of an evil; as, remedial treatment. — re·me'di·al·ly, adv.
re·me'di·al (rē·mē'dĭ·ăl), n. Something used as a remedy.
remedial loan society. Banking. A bank or other financial institution which lends small sums to needy borrowers at a fair rate of interest.
remedial right. Law. See RIGHT, n., 2. re·me'di·a'tion (rē·mē'dĭ·ā'shŭn), n. Act of remedying. R.
rem'e·di·less (rĕm'ē·dĭ·lĕs or, esp. formerly, rē·mēd'ĭ·lĕs; -lĭs; 119), adj. 1. Without hope of assistance or relief; beyond help. Obs.
2. Not admitting of remedy; irremediable; irreparable.
Syn. — Cureless, irremediable, irrecoverable, irretrievable, hopeless. Ant. — Remediable, curable.
— rem'e·di·less, adv. Obs. — rem'e·di·less·ly, adv. — rem'e·di·less·ness, n.
rem'e·dy (rĕm'ē·dĭ), n.; pl. -DIES (-dĭz). [AF. (F. remède), fr. L. remedium. See MEDICAL.] 1. That which relieves or cures a disease; any medicine or application which puts an end to disease and restores health.
2. That which corrects or counteracts an evil of any kind; a corrective; counteractive; reparation; cure; as, a remedy for social evils.
3. At certain English schools, a half holiday.
4. Coinage. = TOLERANCE, 3 a.
5. Law. The legal means to recover a right, or to prevent, or obtain redress for, a WRONG.
Syn. — Medicine; relief, aid, help, assistance.
Ant. — Disease, malady; aggravation.
— there is no remedy but. There is no alternative but.
rem'e·dy, v. t.; REM'E·DIED (-dĭd); REM'E·DY·ING. [OF. remedier, fr. L. remediare, remediari. See REMEDY, n.]
1. To give legal redress to; to render justice to. Obs.
2. To provide or serve as a remedy for; to cure; relieve; correct; repair; as, the doctor will remedy the condition in time; these measures remedied the situation.
Syn. — See CURE. Ant. — Aggravate. re·mem'ber (rē·mĕm'bĕr), v.; RE·MEM'BERED (-bĕrd); RE·MEM'BER·ING. [OF. remembrer, fr. LL. rememorari, fr. re- re- + memorare to bring to remembrance, fr. memor mindful. See MEMORY.] Transitive: 1. To have (a notion or idea) come into the mind again, as previously perceived, known, or felt; to have a renewed apprehension of; to bring to mind again; to think of again; to recollect; as, to remember events of one's childhood; to remember dates.
2. a Archaic. To take thought of or bethink (oneself).
Now, I remember me, I'm married. Congreve.
b To put in mind; to bring to recollect; to remind; — also used impersonally. "Remembering them the truth of what they themselves know." Milton.
3. To hold in memory with some (certain) feeling, esp. a gracious or kindly one; to keep the recollection of; specif.: a To keep in mind so as to bestow attention or consideration upon; to be continually thoughtful or regardful of; as, to remember one's friends at Christmas.
Remember the Sabbath day, to keep it holy. Ex. xx. 8.
b To keep in mind as deserving a reward; hence, to reward; as, he was remembered in the will.
4. To hold or bear in mind; to retain in the memory.
Remember what I warn thee; shun to taste. Milton.
5. To recall to the mind of another; put in mind; as, remember me to him, if you please.
6. To mention; record; commemorate. Obs.
—, Intransitive: 1. To exercise or have the power of memory; as, some remember better than others.
2. To have a recollection or remembrance; — with of; — now regarded as incorrect. "I remember of such a time." Shak.
Syn. — REMEMBER, RECOLLECT, RECALL. REMEMBER does not necessarily imply volition; RECOLLECT commonly suggests a conscious effort to remember; RECALL is less for-re·luc'tant·ly, adv. of RELUCTANT.

‖rem a'cu te'ti·gis'ti (tĕ'tĭ·jĭs'tĭ). [L.] You have touched the thing with a needle; i.e., you have hit the nail on the head. Plautus (Rudens, V. ii. 19).
re·made'. Past tense and past part. of REMAKE. re·mag'net·ize, v. t. See RE-, 2. — re·mag·net·i·za'tion, n.
re·mag'ni·fy, v. t. See RE-, 1. — re'mag·ni·fi·ca'tion, n.
re·mail', v. t. See RE-, 2. re·main'ant, adj. [See REMNANT, adj.] Remaining. Obs. — n. Remainder; pl., remains. Obs. re·maind'. Remained. Ref. Sp.
re·maind'er·ship, n. See -SHIP.
re·main'ing, pres. part. & verbal n. of REMAIN.
re·main·tain', v. t. See RE-, 2.
— re·main'te·nance, n.
re·make', v. t. & i. See RE-, 2. — re·mak'er, n.
Rem'a·li'ah (rĕm'ȧ·lī'ȧ). Bib. re·man'age, v. t. See RE-, 2. — re·man'age·ment, n.
re·mand'ment, n. See -MENT. re'ma·nip'u·late, v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'ma·nip'u·la'tion, n.
re·man'tle, v. t., re'man·u·fac'ture, v. t. & n., re'ma·nure', v. t., re·map', v. t., re·march', v. & n., re·mark', v. t. See RE-, 2.
re·mark'a·bl. Remarkable. Ref. Sp. [past part.
re·mark'ed·ly, adv. of remarked, re·mar'ket, v. t. See RE-, 2. re·markt'. Remarked. Ref. Sp.
re·mar'shal, v. t., re·mask', v. t., re·mass', v. t., re·mast', v. t., re·mas'ti·cate, v. t., re'mas·ti·ca'tion, n., re·match', v. t. See RE-, 2.
re'ma·te'ri·al·ize, v. t. & i. See RE-, 1. rem'berge. ✝ RAMBERGE. remblere, n. A puzzle. Obs.
reme. ✝ REALM, REAM, RIM.
re·mead'. Var. of REMEDE. re·meas'ure (rē·mĕzh'ẽr), v. t.
re·meas'ure·ment (-mĕnt), n. See RE-, 2. re·me'di·ate, adj. [See REMEDY, v.] Remedial. Obs. rem'e·did. Remedied. Ref. Sp.
re·med'i·tate, v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'med·i·ta'tion, n.
rem'e·dy-proof' (66), adj. See -PROOF. re·meed'. Var. of REMEDE. re·meet', v. t. & i. See RE-, 2.
Re'me·i'a (rē'mē·ī'ȧ). D. Bib.
re·meid'. Var. of REMEDE.
re·melt', v. t. & n., re·mem'ber v. t. See RE-, 2.

mal than recollect; as, "Beasts do remember, but they do not remember that they remember, . . . which is that that constitutes memory" (Donne); "I will try to recollect something of what I have seen; for indeed it requires . . . an act of volition" (Shelley); "trying to recollect a name" (Coleridge); I don't recall your name. Cf. MEMORY.

Ant. — Forget, omit.

re·mem'ber·a·ble (rē·mĕm'bĕr·ȧ·b'l), adj. Memorable. — re·mem'ber·a·bil'i·ty (-bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n. — re·mem'ber·a·bly, adv.

re·mem'ber·er (-ĕr), n. One who remembers.

re·mem'brance (rē·mĕm'brȧns), n. [OF., memory, memorandum.] 1. Act of remembering; a holding in mind, or bringing to mind; recollecting.

Lest fierce remembrance wake my sudden rage. Milton.

2. State of being remembered, or held in mind; memory; recollection; as, to hold one in fond remembrance.

3. (One's) memory or ability to remember; hence, the reach of personal knowledge; period over which one's memory extends. "Ere my remembrance." Milton.

4. That which serves to keep in or bring to mind; a reminder. Specif.: a A token; memento; souvenir. b Now Rare. A memorial.

5. Greetings recalling or betokening friendship; as, give my remembrances to them; — chiefly in pl.

6. Obs. a Mention; reference; allusion; notice; also, a mention or notice, spoken or written, in memory of some thing or person; a memorial discourse or inscription. b Power or faculty of remembering. c A note of something to be remembered; a memorandum. d Act of reminding. e Quality of being mindful; consideration.

Syn. — See MEMORY.

re·mem'brance, v. t. To cause to remember. Rare.

Remembrance Day. See HOLIDAY, n., 3. Canada.

re·mem'branc·er (rē·mĕm'brȧn·sĕr), n. 1. [usually cap.] Any of several officials of the Court of Exchequer in England, having various functions, their duty originally being to bring certain matters to the attention of the proper persons. The only one now surviving is the King's (or Queen's) Remembrancer, now an officer of the Supreme Court, responsible for the collection of debts due to the sovereign. Formerly there were also the Lord Treasurer's Remembrancer and the Remembrancer of the First Fruits, responsible for the collection of all compositions for first fruits (see FIRST FRUITS b) and tenths, or tithes.

2. [cap.] Short for CITY REMEMBRANCER. Eng.

3. A person who brings things to the mind of another; esp., formerly, one appointed to do so; one who reminds.

Ye that are the Lord's remembrancers. Is. lxii. 6 (Rev. Ver.).

4. A thing that serves to bring to, or keep in, mind; a reminder; memento; memorial; rarely, a memorandum book.

re·mem'o·rate (rē·mĕm'ō·rāt), v. t. & i. [LL. rememoratus, past part. of rememorari. See REMEMBER.] To remind; remember. — re·mem'o·ra'tion (-rā'shŭn), n. — re·mem'o·ra'tive (-mĕm'ō·rā'tĭv), adj. & n. All Obs.

Re'mi (rē'mī), n. pl. [L.] An ancient people in Gaul, a division of the Belgae, from which the name Reims is derived. They were allies of Caesar in the campaign of 57 B.C.

rem'i- (rĕm'ĭ-). A combining form from Latin remus, oar, as in rem'i·form. See -FORM.

rem'i·cle (rĕm'ĭ·k'l), n. [See REMEX; -CLE.] A small remex.

rem'i·gate (rĕm'ĭ·gāt), v. i. [L. remigare to row, fr. remex rower.] To row. R. — rem'i·ga'tion (-gā'shŭn), n. R.

rem'i·ges (rĕm'ĭ·jēz), n. pl.; sing. REMEX (rē'mĕks). [L. remex, -igis, an oarsman.] The quill feathers of the wing of a bird, comprising the primaries, secondaries, and tertials. See BIRD, Illust. — re·mig'i·al (rē·mĭj'ĭ·ȧl), adj.

rem'i·grant (rĕm'ĭ·grȧnt; -grănt), n. [re- + migrant. Cf. REMIGRATE.] A migrant who returns; specif., an aphid of the winged generation that returns to its former host.

rem'i·grate (-grāt), v. i. [L. remigrare. See MIGRATE.] To change back. Obs.

re·mi'grate (rē·mī'grāt), v. i. To migrate again or back. — re·mi·gra'tion (rē·mĭ·grā'shŭn), n.

Re·mij'i·a (rē·mĭj'ĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., after a surgeon, Remijo.] Bot. A genus of tropical South American shrubs and trees of the madder family (Rubiaceae), having leaves with large stipules, and racemes of small white woolly flowers. See CUPREA BARK.

re·mind' (rē·mīnd'), v. t. & i.; RE·MIND'ED; RE·MIND'ING. 1. To remember; recall. Obs.

2. To put (one) in mind (of something); to cause to remember; as, to remind one of a duty.

re·mind'al (rē·mīn'dȧl; -d'l), n. A reminder.

re·mind'er (-mīn'dĕr), n. Something that reminds, or is designed to remind; a memento; also, a person who reminds.

re·mind'ful (-mīnd'fŏŏl; -f'l), adj. Of persons, mindful; regardful; of things, awakening memories; — with of.

Rem'ing·ton gun (rĕm'ĭng·tŭn). [After Philo Remington, American inventor.] Orig., a breech-loading, single-shot, rifled small arm of the rotating block system, motion to open the chamber being to the rear and downward about a horizontal axis. Now, usually, any of various sporting rifles or shotguns made by the manufacturers of this arm.

rem'i·nisce' (rĕm'ĭ·nĭs'), v. t. & i. [From REMINISCENCE.] To remember; to indulge in or give oneself up to reminiscences.

rem'i·nis'cence (rĕm'ĭ·nĭs'ĕns; -'ns), n. [F. réminiscence, fr. LL. reminiscentia.] 1. Act, power, or fact, of recalling past, esp. forgotten, experience: recollection.

2. A recollection or mental evocation of something past or forgotten; sometimes, a remembrance unrecognized as such; as, unable to distinguish his discoveries and his reminiscences.

3. a The act or habit of thinking about or relating one's past experiences; as, to indulge in reminiscence. b pl. An oral or written account of one's memorable experiences; as, to publish G—'s reminiscences.

4. A phrase, a custom, a feature, etc., so suggestive of another as to be regarded as an unconscious repetition or imitation, a survival, or the like.

5. Philos. In Platonism, the apprehension of perfect forms (ideas); — so called because it occurs as if one had known these in a previous existence.

6. Psychol. Improvement of the memory of an experience with the lapse of time since that experience.

Syn. — See MEMORY.

rem'i·nis'cence (rĕm'ĭ·nĭs'ĕns; -'ns), v. i. To reminisce. — rem'i·nis'cenc·er (-ĕn·sĕr), n. Rare.

rem'i·nis'cent (rĕm'ĭ·nĭs'ĕnt; -'nt), adj. [L. reminiscens, -entis, pres. part. of reminisci to recall to mind, to recollect, fr. re- + a word akin to L. mens mind, memini I remember. See MIND; cf. SUMMON.] 1. Of the nature of, pertaining to, or marked by, reminiscence; also, having reminiscence, esp. of something previously known or experienced.

Some other state of existence of which we have been previously conscious, and are now reminiscent. Sir W. Hamilton.

2. Given to or indulging in reminiscences; characterized by reminiscing; abounding in reminiscences; as, reminiscent old men or talk; a reminiscent mood or essay.

3. That reminds one, as of something previously seen or known; as, a scene reminiscent of Bruges.

rem'i·nis'cent, n. A relarter of reminiscences (sense 3 b).

rem'i·nis·cen'tial (rĕm'ĭ·nĭ·sĕn'shăl), adj. Reminiscent. — rem'i·nis·cen'tial·ly, adv.

Rem'i·nis'ce·re Sun'day (rĕm'ĭ·nĭs'ē·rē). [L. reminiscere remember thou, imper. of reminisci.] Eccl. The second Sunday in Lent; — from the first word of the Introit for the day.

rem'i·nis'ci·to·ry (rĕm'ĭ·nĭs'ĭ·tō·rĭ or, esp. Brit., -tēr·ĭ), adj. Reminiscential.

rem'i·ped (rĕm'ĭ·pĕd), adj. [F. rémipède, fr. L. remus oar + pes, pedis, foot.] Zool. Having feet or legs that are used as oars; — said of certain crustaceans and insects. — n. A remiped animal.

re·mise' (rē·mīz'; in senses 3 & 4 as mod. French rē·mēz'), n. [F., fr. remettre to put back, deliver, remit, fr. L. remittere. See REMIT.] 1. Law. A giving or granting; surrender or release, as of a claim.

2. Obs. a Respite; remission. b Remittance, as of money.

3. A carriage house; hence, a livery carriage of a superior kind; — so called because kept in a remise. Now Rare.

4. Fencing. The second of two thrusts delivered on the same lunge, as on failure of the opponent to riposte.

re·mise' (rē·mīz'), v.; -MISED' (-mīzd'); -MIS'ING (-mīz'ĭng). [From REMISE, n.; or fr. F. remis, past part. of remettre.] Transitive: 1. To return; send or put back; replace. Obs.

2. Law. To give, grant, or release a claim to; to make over or surrender by deed. "Remise, release, and forever quit claim" are the ordinary operative words in a release, and in the United States are operative to convey title in a primary conveyance.

—, Intransitive: Fencing. To make a remise.

re·miss' (rē·mĭs'), adj. [L. remissus, past part. of remittere to send back, relax. See REMIT.] 1. Liquefied; dissolved; also, diluted; pale, as in color; faint, as in sound. Obs.

2. Negligent in the performance of one's work, duty, or duties; careless; slack; inattentive; as, a remiss correspondent or housekeeper; remiss in paying one's bills.

3. Manifesting lack of energy, care, due strictness, etc.; formerly, lazy, languid, unduly lenient, etc.; as, in one's remiss hours; remiss discipline; now usually, showing neglect or inattention; negligently performed; lax; as, the service in this hotel is very remiss.

4. Moderate; mild; gentle; relaxed. Obs.

Syn. — Neglectful, inattentive, heedless, thoughtless; dilatory. Ant. — Punctilious, scrupulous, exact; prompt.

re·miss', v. t. [L. remissus, past part. of remittere.] To remit; also, Law, to remise. Rare.

re·miss'ful (-fŏŏl; -f'l), adj. 1. Merciful; lenient. Rare.

2. Remiss; careless.

re·mis'si·ble (rē·mĭs'ĭ·b'l), adj. [F. rémissible, fr. L. remissibilis. See REMIT.] That may be remitted or forgiven. — re·mis'si·bil'i·ty (-bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), re·mis'si·ble·ness, n.

re·mis'sion (rē·mĭsh'ŭn), n. [OF., fr. L. remissio. See REMIT.] 1. Act of remitting or forgiving; pardon; esp., remission of sin (which see).

2. Act of remitting, surrendering, resigning, or giving up; as: a Cancellation or relinquishment of the whole or a part of a claim, right, tax, debt, etc. b Diminution of force or intensity, as of cold or heat.

3. Pardon granted for a legal offense. Obs. exc. Hist.

4. a Act of remitting or sending back; a return; remittal. b Act of sending in payment, as money; remittance.

5. Obs. a Deliverance; release; also, respite; rest. b Slackening of strain or tensity; relaxation.

6. Med. A temporary and incomplete subsidence of the force or violence of a disease or of pain.

remission of sin or sins. Forgiveness of sin or sins; specif., R.C.Ch., the remitting of due or merited punishment for one's sins through the sacrament of penance.

Remission Thursday. Maundy Thursday.

re·mis'sive (rē·mĭs'ĭv), adj. [ML. remissivus.] 1. Remiss; careless. Obs.

2. Granting or bringing about remission or pardon. Rare.

3. Causing or permitting abatement; moderating; abating; also, marked by diminution or abatement.

— re·mis'sive·ly, adv. — re·mis'sive·ness, n.

re·miss'ness, n. Quality or state of being remiss.

Syn. and Ant. — See NEGLIGENCE.

re·mis'so·ry (rē·mĭs'ō·rĭ), adj. Serving or tending to remit, or to secure remission; remissive. Now Rare.

re·mit' (rē·mĭt'), v.; -MIT'TED; -MIT'TING. [L. remittere, remissum, to send back, relax, fr. re- re- + mittere to send. See MISSION; cf. REMISE, REMISS, SURMISE.] Transitive: 1. To forgive; to pardon; as, to remit sins.

2. a Now Rare. To give up or over; to lay aside partly or wholly; desist from; abandon.

So willingly doth God remit his ire. Milton.

b To let slacken or relax; mitigate; abate.

Do not remit your care. Johnson.

c To refer, assign, or allot (to).

3. a To submit or refer (something) for consideration, judgment, decision, action, etc., now esp. to one in authority. b To refer or direct (one) for information, help, etc.

4. To send back, esp. to custody; recommit. Now Rare.

5. To refrain from exacting, inflicting, or enforcing; as, to remit a penalty or the performance of an obligation.

6. To restore, as to a former title or status; to readmit or put back (into a previous state, right, or the like).

The archbishop was . . . remitted to his liberty. Hayward

7. To put off; to postpone; defer; as, to remit the consideration of a matter until the next session.

8. Obs. a To surrender or resign. b To set free; liberate; release, as a prisoner. c To insert or enter (in or into a book).

9. Com. To transmit or send, esp. to a distance, as money in payment of a demand, account, draft, etc.

10. Law. To send back (a cause or proceeding) to an inferior court for further action.

—, Intransitive: 1. To abate in force or in intensity; to become moderated; relax; as, his energy never remits.

2. To send money, as in payment; as, please remit promptly.

Syn. — Excuse; cancel, abrogate; suspend.

re·mit' (rē·mĭt'), n. Act of remitting; as: a Obs. Pardon. b A reference or transfer, as of a legal cause or proceeding by one person or authority to another. c Chiefly New Zealand. A formal reference by a deliberative body for consideration or judgment. See REMIT, v. t., 3 a. re·mit'ment, n. 1. Remission; forgiveness; pardon. Obs.

2. Remittance. Now Rare.

re·mit'ta·ble (rē·mĭt'ȧ·b'l), adj. That may be remitted.

re·mit'tal (rē·mĭt'ăl; -'l), n. 1. Remission, as of a penalty.

2. Law. Act of remitting to another court to be heard.

re·mit'tance (-ȧns), n. Transmittal of money, bills, etc., esp. to a distant place; also, the thing, esp. money, remitted.

remittance man. One in a foreign country, esp. in a British colony or dominion, as in Australia or Canada, living chiefly on remittances from home.

re·mit'tanc·er (rē·mĭt'ȧn·sĕr), n. A remitter, as of money.

re·mit'tee' (rē·mĭt'ē'), n One to whom a remittance is sent.

re·mit'tent (rē·mĭt'ĕnt; 128), adj. [L. remittens, pres. part.] Remitting; esp., temporarily abating or moderating. — re·mit'tence (-ĕns), re·mit'ten·cy (-ĕn·sĭ), n. — re·mit'tent·ly, adv.

re·mit'tent, n. A remittent fever.

remittent fever. Med. A fever in which the symptoms temporarily abate at regular intervals. See MALARIA, 3.

re·mit'ter (rē·mĭt'ĕr), n. [After the analogy of nouns in -er fr. OF. inf. as n., as trover, rejoinder. See REMIT.] Law. a The principle or operation of law by which a person who obtains possession of property under a defective title is placed in the same legal position as if he had entered under some prior and more valid title which he holds. b The act of remitting a cause or proceeding to another court. c Restoration, as to a former title, status, or condition.

re·mit'ter (-ĕr), n. One who remits. Specif.: a One who pardons. b One who makes remittance.

re·mit'ti·tur (-ĭ·tĕr), n. [L., (it) is remitted.] Law. a A remission or surrender, — remittitur damnum being a remission of excess of damages. b A sending back, as when a record is remitted by a superior to an inferior court.

re·mit'tor (-ĕr), n. One who makes a remittance.

rem'nant (rĕm'nȧnt), n. [OF. remenant, remanant. See REMNANT, adj.] 1. That which remains after a part is removed, gone, lost, etc.; residue; remainder; often, a small remaining part, group, piece, etc.; a leftover; as, the remnant of a defeated army; the remnants of a picnic lunch.

2. a A small portion; a fragment; a little bit; a scrap.

Picking the scattered remnants of its wood. Shelley.

b An unsold end of piece goods, as of cloth.

3. A surviving trace or suggestion, as of a quality, custom, state, etc.; as, no remnant of its former greatness.

Syn. — Rest, remains; suggestion, trace. See REMAINDER.

— the remnant. The surviving few who preserve the traditions of culture. M. Arnold.

rem'nant (rĕm'nȧnt), adj. [OF. remenant, remanant, pres. part. of remanoir, remaindre. See REMANENT.] Remaining; yet left. "The remnant dregs of his disease." Fuller.

rem'nant·al (rĕm'nȧn·tăl; -t'l), adj. Of the nature of a remnant.

Rem'o·both (rĕm'ō·bŏth; -bōth), n. pl. The Sarabaites.

re·mod'el (rē·mŏd''l), v. t. To model anew; to reconstruct. — re·mod'el·er, re·mod'el·ler (-ĕr), n. — re·mod'el·ment (-mĕnt), n.

re'mo·lade' (rā'mō·lȧd'), re'mou·lade' (rā'mōō-), n. [F.] 1. An ointment used in veterinary medicine.

2. A piquant sauce or salad dressing resembling mayonnaise, and made usually with cooked egg yolks.

re·mon'e·tize (rē·mŏn'ē·tīz; -mŭn'-), v. t. To restore to use as legal tender; as, to remonetize silver. — re·mon'e·ti·za'tion (-tĭ·zā'shŭn; -tī·zā'shŭn), n.

re·mon'strance (rē·mŏn'strȧns), n. [OF. (F. remonstrance). See REMONSTRATE.] 1. Act or instance of remonstrating; expostulation.

2. Earnest presentation of reasons in opposition to something; protest; expostulation. Obs. exc. Hist.

3. Obs. a A pointing out; proof; demonstration. b A representation; also, a likeness.

4. a [cap.] Eccl. Hist. The protest to the States of Holland of the Dutch Arminians in 1610. See REMONSTRANT, n., a. b R.C.Ch. A monstrance.

— the Remonstrance. = GRAND REMONSTRANCE.

re·mon'strant (-strȧnt), adj. [ML. remonstrans, -antis, pres. part. of remonstrare.] 1. Remonstrating; making a protest; vigorously objecting or opposing; expostulatory.

2. [cap.] Eccl. Hist. Of or pert. to the Remonstrants.

re·mon'strant, n. One who remonstrates; specif. [cap.]: a Eccl. Hist. One of the Arminians who in 1610 addressed a remonstrance to the States of Holland and Friesland containing five articles and showing their differences from the strict Calvinists. The articles were condemned by the Synod of Dort in 1619 (see ARMINIANISM). A small sect descended from these Remonstrants still exists in Holland. b Scot. Hist. A Protester.

re·mon'strate (rē·mŏn'strāt), v.; -STRAT·ED (-strāt·ĕd; -'d; 119); -STRAT·ING (-strāt·ĭng). [ML. remonstratus, past part. of remonstrare to demonstrate, fr. L. re- + monstrare. See MONSTER.] Transitive: 1. To point out; to demonstrate; also, to declare. Obs.

2. To call attention to, as a fault, wrong, or aggrieving condition, by way of censure, complaint, or protest. Obs.

3. To say or plead in protest, reproof, etc.; — usually with object clause.

—, Intransitive: To present and urge reasons in opposition, as to an act, measure, or any proceedings; to expostulate; as, to remonstrate with a person regarding his habits.

---

re·mem'berd. Remembered. Ref. Sp. [-SHIP.

re·mem'branc·er·ship', n. See re·mem'bra·tive, adj. That reminds; mindful. Obs. — n. A reminder. Obs.

re·mem'o·rise, v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·men'ace, v. t. See RE-, 2.

rem'e·nant, n. Remainder. Obs.

re·mend', v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·mene', v. t. [Appar. fr. OF. remenier to bring back.] To put in mind; commemorate; liken; explain. Obs.

re·mer'cy, v. t. [F. remercier, fr. re- + mercier to thank, fr. merci.] To thank. Obs. — n. Thanks. Obs. — re·mer'ci·ment, n. Obs. [RE-, 2.]

re·merge' (rē·mûrj'), v. t. See re·met'al, v. t. See RE-, 2.

Re'meth (rē'mĕth; rĕm'ĕth). Bib.

re·mew', ✝ REMUE, REMOVE.

re'mex, n., sing. of REMIGES.

re·mi'ca, v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·mi'cate (rē·mī'kāt), v. t. See RE-, 2. — re·mi·ca'tion (rē'mĭ·kā'shŭn), n.

re·mill', v. t., re·mim'ic, v. t. See RE-, 2. [ing, pres. part.]

re·mind'ing·ly, adv. of remind- re·min'er·al·ize, v. t. See RE-, 2.

— re·min·er·al·i·za'tion, n.

re·min'gle, v. t. See RE-, 2.

rem'i·nis'cence·ful, adj. See -FUL.

rem'i·nis'cen·cy (rĕm'ĭ·nĭs'ĕn·sĭ), n. = REMINISCENCE, 1.

rem'i·nis'cent·ly, adv. of REMINISCENT.

rem'i·nis'cer (rĕm'ĭ·nĭs'ĕr), n. = REMINISCENT, n.

rem'i·nis'cion, n. Reminiscence. Obs.

re·mint', v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·mir'ror, v. t. See RE-, 1.

re'mis·rep're·sent', v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'mis·rep're·sen·ta'tion, n.

re·mis'sailes, n. pl. [OF. remassilles, remesilles, fr. L. remansum, past part. of remanere to remain.] Remains; leavings. Obs.

re·mis'si·bl. Remissible. Ref. Sp.

re·miss'ly, adv. of REMISS.

‖re·mis'so a·ni·mo (kō'nĭ·mō). [L.] With mind remiss; remissly.

re'mis·un'der·stand', v. t. See RE-, 2.

‖re'mis re·lis'que. [L.] With oars and sails; with all one's might.

re·mix', v. t. See RE-, 2. — re·mix'ture, n.

Rem'mon (rĕm'ŏn). Bib.

Rem'mon meth'o·ar (mĕth'ō·ăr; mē·thō'ăr). Bib.

Rem·mo'no (rĕm·mō'nō). D. Bib. [rēz). D. Bib.

Rem'non·pha'res (rĕm'ŏn·fā'- re·mo'bi·lise, v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'mo·bi·li·za'tion, n.

re·mock', v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·mod'i·fy (rē·mŏd'ĭ·fī), v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'mod·i·fi·ca'tion (-ĭ·kā'shŭn), n. [RE-, 2.]

re·mold', re·mould', v. t. See re·mol'li·ent, adj. & n. Also re·mol'li·tive. [L. remolliens, pres. part.] Emollient. Obs.

re·mon'stra·ble (rē·mŏn'strȧ·b'l), adj. Demonstrable. Obs.

re·mon'strance·er, n. Remonstrant. Obs.

re·mon'strant·ly, adv. of RE-MONSTRANT.

Syn. — REMONSTRATE, EXPOSTULATE. To REMONSTRATE is to protest or to urge reasons against something; EXPOSTULATE implies earnest but kindly or friendly remonstrance; as, "It is a proper business of a divine to . . . remonstrate against any growing corruptions in practice" (Waterland); "the priestly brotherhood, . . . prompt to persuade, expostulate, and warn" (Cowper). Cf. REPROVE.

re·mon'strat·ing (rē·mŏn'strāt·ĭng), adj. That remonstrates. — re·mon'strat·ing·ly, adv.

re'mon·stra'tion (rĕ'mŏn·strā'shŭn; rĕm'ŏn-), n. [MF. remonstration, or ML. remonstratio.] Act or an instance of remonstrating; specif., remonstrance; protest.

re·mon'stra·tive (rē·mŏn'strā·tĭv), adj. Having the character of a remonstrance; expressing remonstrance. — re·mon'stra·tive·ly, adv.

re·mon'stra·tor (rē·mŏn'strā·tĕr), n. A remonstrant.

re·mon'stra·to'ry (-strā·tō'rĭ; -tĕr·ĭ), adj. Remonstrant.

re'mon·ta'do (rā'mŏn·tä'dō), n. [Sp.] One who has fled to the mountains; a native who has abandoned civilization. Cf. BUKIDNON a. Phil. I.

re·mon'tant (rē·mŏn'tănt), adj. [F., pres. part. See REMOUNT.] Hort. Flowering again; — applied to roses which bloom more than once in a season. — n. A remontant rose.

rem'on·toir' (rĕm'ŏn·twär'; rē·mŏn'twär'), n. [F.] Horol. A device to give a uniform impulse to a pendulum or balance, as in a remontoir escapement (see ESCAPEMENT, 3).

rem'o·ra (rĕm'ō·rȧ), n. [L., hindrance.] 1. a Any of several fishes belonging to Echeneis, Remora, and related genera constituting the family Echeneididae. They have the anterior dorsal fin converted into an oval, transversely lamellated, suctorial disc situated on the top of the head, and by means of it adhere firmly to sharks and other large a Remora (Echeneis naucrates), clinging to a Sand Shark (b) (Odontaspis littoralis). Drawn from living specimens.

fishes and to vessels, letting go at will. They are distributed throughout tropical and warm temperate seas. By the ancients the remora was fabled to be able to check or stop vessels. The common American species are Echeneis naucrates and Remora remora. b [cap.] Zool. A genus of such fishes.

2. Something that holds back or delays; a clog; a drag.

re·mord' (rē·môrd'), v. t. [OF. remordre, fr. L. remordere. See REMORSE.] Obs. a To afflict. b To excite to remorse; also, to rebuke. c To remember remorsefully; to ponder.

re·mord', n. [From REMORD, v.] Remorse; taint; censure. Obs.

re·morse' (rē·môrs'), n. [ME. remors, fr. OF. remors (F. remords), fr. LL. remorsus, fr. L. remordere, remorsum, to bite again or back, to torment, fr. re- re- + mordere to bite. See MORSEL.] 1. a Distress, like gnawing pain, excited by a sense of guilt; compunction of conscience for sins, crimes, or wrongs committed by one; repentant regret; — formerly often called remorse of conscience. b An attack of such distress; as, bitter remorse.

2. Sympathetic sorrow; pity; compassion. Now Rare.

3. Obs. a Serious consideration or remembrance, esp. of something past, accompanied by regret or repentance. b A cause for, or matter of, regret. c Act of biting or piercing.

Syn. — Compunction, penitence. See REGRET.

re·morse', v. t. & i. To feel, or cause to feel, remorse. Obs.

re·morse'ful (rē·môrs'fŏŏl; -f'l), adj. 1. Full of remorse; springing from, or characterized by, remorse; as, remorseful parents, self-denial, or confessions.

2. a Obs. Compassionate; pitiful. b Pitiable.

— re·morse'ful·ly, adv. — re·morse'ful·ness, n.

re·morse'less, adj. Being without remorse or pity; merciless; as, the remorseless enemy; remorseless cruelty.

Syn. — Unpitying, pitiless, relentless, unrelenting, implacable, unmerciful. Cf. INFLEXIBLE.

Ant. — Remorseful, contrite, penitent; gentle, merciful.

— re·morse'less·ly, adv. — re·morse'less·ness, n.

re·mote' (rē·mōt'), adj.; RE·MOT'ER (-mōt'ĕr); RE·MOT'EST (-mōt'ĕst; -ĭst; 119). [L. remotus, past part. of removere to remove. See REMOVE.] 1. Removed to, or situated at, a distance; not near; far away or apart; distant; as, remote ages, lands, ancestors. Also, out of the way; secluded.

Places remote enough are in Bohemia. Shak.

2. Not connected or alike; — in various figurative or extended uses; as: a Foreign; alien; not agreeing; markedly divergent; as, an attitude remote from kindness. b Not nearly or closely related or connected; as, this consideration is remote from our purpose; specif., not closely akin; as, a remote kinsman. c Separate; abstracted; hence, aloof; inaccessible. d Not proximate or acting directly; not primary; distant; also, not arising from the effect of that which is primary or proximate in its action; as, remote damages (cf. CONSEQUENTIAL DAMAGES). e Not obvious or striking; slight; as, a remote resemblance.

3. Bot. a Separated by intervals greater than usual. b In fungi, not extending the full distance from the margin of the pileus to the stipe.

4. Psychol. a Arising elsewhere than from the part of the body that makes a movement; — opposed to resident. b Not present to the senses at the moment.

Syn. and Ant. — See DISTANT.

— re·mote'ly, adv. — re·mote'ness, n.

re·mote', n. One who or that which is remote.

re·mote', adv. At a distance.

remote control. Control, esp. of operation, from a point at some distance removed, as by a switch or switchboard, by a movable actuating device electrically connected by telephone wire to a radio broadcasting station, or the like.

— re·mote'-con·trol', re·mote'-con·trolled', adj.

remote keys. Music. Keys having few tones in common; — opposed to related keys. See KEY, n., 25.

remote matter. See MATTER OF A SYLLOGISM.

re·mo'tion (rē·mō'shŭn), n. [L. remotio. See REMOVE.] 1. Act of removing; removal; as, the remotion of bodies from each other; also, Obs., recurrent motion.

2. The state of being remote; remoteness. Now Rare.

3. Obs. a Process of reaching or defining a conception by the successive elimination of what is extraneous. b Departure. c Commotion.

re·mo'tive (rē·mō'tĭv), adj. Removing; also, removable.

remotive proposition. Logic. A privative proposition, esp., one which asserts the absence of something to be of the essence of the subject.

re·mount' (rē·mount'), v. t. & i. [F. remonter. See MOUNT, v.] To mount again, in any sense of the verb; specif., Mil., to furnish fresh horses to (cavalry, etc.).

re·mount' (rē·mount'; rē'mount'), n. [Cf. F. remonte.] A fresh horse to take the place of one lost or disabled; also, a supply of such horses. — re·mount', adj.

re·mount' (rē·mount'), v. i. [Sp. remontarse.] To become a remontado. Phil. I.

re'mount' cav'al·ry (rē'mount'). An organization in some armies charged with the purchase and training of remounts.

re·mov'a·ble (rē·mōōv'ȧ·b'l), adj. Admitting of, or subject to, being removed, displaced, transferred, dismissed, or eradicated; as, a removable partition, bed, judge, or evil. — re·mov'a·bil'i·ty (-ȧ·bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), re·mov'a·ble·ness, n. — re·mov'a·bly, adv.

re·mov'a·ble, n. One subject to removal; specif., R.C.Ch., a parish priest who holds office at the will of the diocesan; also, a benefice so held.

removable truck–type switchboard. See SWITCHBOARD.

re·mov'al (rē·mōōv'ăl), n. Act of removing; fact of being removed; dismissal; transference; change of residence.

removal cutting. Forestry. A cutting of mature trees for the benefit of young ones.

removal of causes. Law, U. S. The taking of pending cases from a State to a Federal court because of diversity of citizenship or because of a Federal question.

re·move' (rē·mōōv'), v.; RE·MOVED' (-mōōvd'); RE·MOV'ING (-mōōv'ĭng). [OF. removoir, remouvoir (3d pl. pres. remuevent; cf. ME. remeven), fr. L. removere, remotum, fr. re- re- + movere to move. See MOVE.] Transitive: 1. To change or shift the location, position, station, or residence, of; to transfer, esp. in order to re-establish; — usually with to and specified place; as, to remove the troops to the front, one's family to the seashore.

2. To move by lifting, pushing aside, taking away or off, or the like; to put aside, apart, or elsewhere; as, to remove one's shoes, a book from a shelf, one's eyes from a scene, or oneself from a place.

He bears a load which nothing can remove. Shelley.

3. To force (one) to leave a place or to go away; specif.: a To dismiss from office; as, to remove a postmaster. b To assassinate. c To take away by death.

Such this man was; who now from earth removed. Pope.

4. To get rid of, as though by moving; to eradicate; to eliminate; as, to remove the causes of poverty.

Oh! you that are in love, and cannot it remove. Burns.

5. Formerly: a Obs. To raise (a siege). b Now Rare. To move by argument; to persuade. c Now Rare. To replace (a dish) by a remove, or other course.

—, Intransitive: 1. To change one's location, station, or, esp., residence; as, to remove from Fifth Avenue or to the country.

Till Birnam wood remove to Dunsinane. Shak.

2. To depart; to go away; disappear.

Ye trees that fade when autumn heats remove. Pope.

3. Obs. a To shift one's position. b To stir.

Syn. — REMOVE, MOVE. MOVE is the generic term; REMOVE commonly applies to a change of station or position.

re·move' (rē·mōōv'), n. 1. Act or removing (in various senses); state of being removed; as, the remove of one's furniture; the remove of one from office. Now Rare.

2. Specif.: a The transfer of one's business, or of one's domestic belongings, from one location or dwelling house to another; — in the United States usually called a move.

Three removes are as bad as a fire. Franklin.

b Now Dial. The act of resetting a horse's shoe.

3. The distance, space, or interval through which anything is removed or by which it is remote; hence, a step or degree in any scale of gradation; as, his feelings were many removes from affection; his ideas are at a far remove from mine; a cousin in the first remove.

4. Absence. Rare. "In our remove." Shak.

5. In some English schools: a An intermediate class or form between two others. b Promotion.

6. A dish at a meal replaced by or replacing another, esp., a roast. Eng.

re·moved' (rē·mōōvd'), past tense & past part. of REMOVE. Changed in location; moved; dismissed; eradicated. Specif.: adj. 1. Distant in relation or in degree of relationship; — used esp. in stating the relationship of a cousin's (first, second, etc.) descendants to a particular person; as, a first cousin twice removed (a first cousin's grandchild); a second cousin once removed (a second cousin's child). Cf. COUSIN.

2. Remote; far away; now, with from, distant in space, character, degree of development, etc.; separated; apart; as, considerations entirely removed from politics.

— re·mov'ed·ly, adv. — re·mov'ed·ness (rē·mōōv'ĕd·nĕs; -ĭd·nĕs; -nĭs; 119), n.

re·move'less, adj. That cannot be removed. Obs.

re·move'ment, n. Removal.

re·mov'er (rē·mōōv'ĕr), n. 1. One who or that which removes something; specif.: a A solvent for removing paint and varnish. b Brit. One whose occupation is the moving of furniture. c A contractor or porter who moves furniture; also, one who removes snow, soil, etc. d Textile Mfg. A scavenger; also, a carrier.

2. A changeable or unsettled person. Obs.

3. Law. Transfer of a proceeding from one tribunal to another.

Rem'phan (rĕm'făn), n. Bib. Name of a Babylonian god (Raiphan, prob. corrupted from Kaiphan, Saturn), mentioned in Acts vii. 43. Cf. Amos v. 26.

‖re·mu'da (rā·mōō'thä; 112; Angl. rē·mū'dȧ), n. [Sp.] The saddle horses collectively from which are chosen those to be used for the day; a relay of remounts.

re·mu'ner·a·ble (rē·mū'nĕr·ȧ·b'l), adj. [See REMUNERATE.] Admitting or worthy of remuneration. — re·mu'ner·a·bly, adv. — re·mu'ner·a·bil'i·ty (-bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n.

re·mu'ner·ate (-āt), v. t. & i.; -AT'ED (-āt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -AT'ING (-āt'ĭng). [L. remuneratus, past part. of remunerare, remunerari, fr. re- re- + munerare, munerari, to give, present, fr. munus, muneris, a gift, present. See MUNIFICENT.] To pay an equivalent for (any service, loss, expense, etc.), or to pay an equivalent to (one) for such service, etc.; to recompense; requite; compensate; pay; as, to remunerate a man for his trouble, sacrifice, or labor.

Syn. — Reward, satisfy, repay, reimburse. See PAY.

re·mu'ner·a'tion (rē·mū'nĕr·ā'shŭn), n. [From L. remuneratio, perh. through F. rémunération.] Act or fact of remunerating; also, that which remunerates; recompense; pay.

Syn. — Payment, reimbursement, satisfaction.

re·mu'ner·a'tive (rē·mū'nĕr·ā'tĭv; -ȧ·tĭv), adj. 1. Serving to remunerate; rewarding; as, remunerative justice.

2. Affording remuneration; profitable; gainful; as, a remunerative business; a remunerative salary.

— re·mu'ner·a'tive·ly, adv. — re·mu'ner·a'tive·ness, n.

re·mu'ner·a'tor (rē·mū'nĕr·ā'tĕr), n. One who remunerates.

re·mu'ner·a·to'ry (-ȧ·tō'rĭ; -tĕr·ĭ), adj. [Cf. F. rémunératoire.] Remunerative. Rare.

re·mur'mur (rē·mûr'mĕr), v. t. & i. [L. remurmurare.] To murmur repeatedly; to repeat, echo, utter again, or reply, in murmurs. Poetic.

re'mu·ta'tion (rē'mū·tā'shŭn), n. A changing back. Rare.

ren'a·ble (rĕn'ȧ·b'l), adj. [OF. resnable, fr. L. rationabilis reasonable.] Fluent; eloquent; ready; glib. — ren'a·bly, adv. Both Obs. exc. Dial.

re·nail' (rē·nāl'), v. t. To nail again or anew.

ren'ais·sance' (rĕn'ē·zäns'; -sāns'; rē·nā'sȧns; 277), n. [F., fr. renaître be born again. See RENASCENT; cf. RENASCENCE.] 1. A new birth or revival. Specif.: [cap.] a The transitional movement in Europe between the medieval and the modern, marked especially by the revival of classical influence; also, the period during which this occurred. Its beginnings are associated with Petrarch and the humanists of the 14th century in Italy, where it led to great advances in expressional painting and sculpture, and to a return to classical design in architecture. The movement, stimulated by the fall of Constantinople, which drove Byzantine scholars with the literature of Greece into western Europe, the invention of printing, and the discovery of America, spread in the 16th century to France and northern Europe. In France it developed esp. in art and letters under Louis XII and Francis I; in England the movement was most notable in literature, esp. after the impulse to classical learning given by Erasmus, Colet, More, and others; in Germany it became associated with the Reformation. By some writers the early Italian revival of the 14th and 15th centuries is distinguished as the Risorgimento (literally, "new arising"), the term Renaissance being restricted to its 16th-century development in western and northern Europe. b The neoclassic style of art which prevailed at this epoch.

2. Any period similarly characterized by enthusiastic and vigorous activity along literary, artistic, or other lines; strictly, such a period when distinguished by a revival of interest in the past or a return to old masters for inspiration; as, the Irish Renaissance.

3. A return of youthful vigor, freshness, zest, or productivity; a rebirth, or renewal of life.

Nations have gone through a renaissance. A. E. Wiggam.

Renaissance architecture. The style of building and decoration that arose in the early 15th century in Italy, based on the study and adaptation of the Roman classic orders and design. It spread later through western Europe, succeeding the Gothic style. See ARCHITECTURE, Chart.

Renaissance furniture. The style of furniture developed early in the Renaissance, further distinguished in its national types; as, Flemish and English Renaissance furniture. In general, it is of oak or walnut, is richly carved, massive and palatial in structure, and uses classical motives in decoration.

Renaissance lace. A guipure of braid joined by lace stitches, often having thread-covered rings stitched into the design. Called also Battenberg lace.

Ren'ais·sanc'ist (rĕn'ē·zän'sĭst; -sän'-), n. [See -IST.] One whose field of study is the Renaissance.

Ren'ais·sant' (rĕn'ē·zänt'; -sänt'; rē·nā'sȧnt), adj. [F., pres. part. of renaître.] Of or pertaining to the Renaissance.

re'nal (rē'nȧl; -n'l), adj. [F. or L.; F. rénal, fr. L. renalis, fr. renes the kidneys, or reins. Cf. REINS.] Anat. Of or pertaining to the kidneys; in the region of the kidneys.

renal arteries. Anat. The branches of the abdominal aorta which supply the kidneys. In man there is one to each kidney, arising immediately below the origin of the superior mesenteric artery. Each divides into four or five branches which enter the hilum of the kidney. Smaller branches are sent to the ureter, suprarenal body, etc.

renal ballottement. See BALLOTTEMENT.

renal calculus. See CALCULUS.

renal capsules or glands. The suprarenal glands.

renal cast. Med. See CAST, n., 22.

renal colic. The severe pain produced by the passage of a calculus from the kidney through the ureter.

renal glycosuria or diabetes. Med. Glycosuria from increased permeability of the kidneys without increased sugar concentration in the blood.

renal plexus. Anat. The sympathetic plexus supplying the kidney.

renal portal veins. Zool. Veins carrying blood from some of the posterior parts of the body to the kidneys in vertebrates having a renal portal system. In typical cases there are two trunks, one to each kidney, formed by the bifurcation of the caudal vein, but these receive, or are largely replaced by, branches from the hind limbs in many of the higher forms. In birds they do not break up into capillaries in the kidneys, but pass through them to join the femoral veins.

renal splanchnic nerve. See SPLANCHNIC NERVES.

renal threshold. Physiol. The concentration level up to which a substance, as glucose, in the blood is prevented from passing through the kidneys into the urine.

renal veins. Anat. The veins which return the blood from the kidneys to the vena cava. In man there is one from each kidney, and they lie in front of the renal arteries.

re·name' (rē·nām'), v. t. To name again or anew.

Ren'ard·ine (rĕn'ĕr·dĭn), adj. Of or pertaining to Reynard, the fox, or tales concerning him.

re·nas'cence (rē·năs'ĕns; -'ns), n. [See RENASCENT; cf. REINASSANCE.] 1. Rebirth; revival. 2. [cap.] The Renaissance.

re·nas'cen·cy (-ĕn·sĭ; -'n·sĭ), n. Renascence. Obs.

re·nas'cent (-ĕnt; -'nt), adj. [L. renascens, pres. part. of renasci to be born again; fr. re- re- + nasci to be born. See NASCENT.] Springing or rising again into being or vigor; being born again, or reproduced; as, renascent paganism.

re·nas'ci·ble (-ĭ·b'l), adj. [L. renasci to be born again.] Capable of undergoing renascence. — re·nas'ci·ble·ness, n. Both Rare.

re·na'ture (rē·nā'tûr), v. t. To restore to its original nature, as alcohol that has been denatured.

---

re·mon'stra·tiv. Remonstrative. Ref. Sp.

rem'on·toire' Var. of REMONTOIR.

re·mop', v. t. See RE-, 2. remorce. † REMORSE.

re·mord'er, n. One who censures. Obs.

re·more', n. & v. [See REMORA; cf. L. remorari to delay.] Delay. Obs.

re·more'proof' (66), adj. See [-PROOF.]

re·morse'proof' (66), adj. See re·mort'gage (rē·môr'gĭj), v. i. See RE-, 2.

re·mote'-con·trol' switch'board'. See SWITCHBOARD.

re·mot'ed, adj. Remote. Obs.

re'mou·lade'. Var. of REMOLADE.

re·mould'. Var. of REMOLD.

re·mov'ing (rē·mōōv'ĭng), pres. part. & verbal n. of REMOVE.

rem·pare', v. t. [F. remparre.] To fortify. Obs.

re·mu'a·ble, adj. [F. See REMUE.] Unstable; movable. Obs.

re·mu'ant, adj. [F., pres. part. of remuer to move.] Given to change. Obs.

re·mue' (rē·mū'), v. i. & i. [F. remuer. See MEW to molt.] Obs. To move or remove.

re·mul'ti·ply, v. i. & i. See RE-, 2. — re·mul·ti·pli·ca'tion, n.

re·mu'ner·a'tiv. Remunerative. Ref. Sp.

remuneratory sanction. See [SANCTION.]

Re'mus (rē'mŭs), n. [L.] See ROMULUS. [MUS.]

Remus, Uncle. See UNCLE RE-re·mus'ter, v. i. See RE-, 2.

re'na (rā'nȧ). Var. of REINA.

re·nague' (rē·nāg'). Var. of RENEGE.

Reu'ard (rĕn'ĕrd). Var. of REYNARD.

re·nate' (rē·nāt'), v. t. & i. [L. renatus, past part. of renasci to be born again.] To reincarnate. Obs

— adj. Born again. Obs ren·con'tre (rĕn·kŏn'tĕr; F. rän'kôn'tr'), n. [F.] Rencounter.

ren·con'tre, v. t. [F. rencontrer.] To encounter; go against. Obs.

ren·coun'ter (rĕn·koun'tĕr), v. t. & i.; REN·COUN'TERED (-tĕrd); REN·COUN'TER·ING. [F. rencontrer, fr. re- + OF. encontrer to encounter. See ENCOUNTER.] 1. Obs. a To meet in hostility; to encounter in combat or fight. b To meet forcibly; to collide with.

2. To meet, esp. casually, as a friend. Now Rare.

ren·coun'ter, n. [F. rencontre, fr. rencontrer to meet.] 1. A hostile meeting between forces or individuals; a combat, action, or duel. Archaic.

2. A personal contest of any sort, esp. in debate or repartee; as, a lively rencounter of two famous wits.

3. A casual meeting with a person or thing; as, a lucky rencounter with a friend.

4. A sudden meeting or collision of two bodies. Obs.

Syn. — Fight, conflict, collision, clash.

rend (rĕnd), v.; RENT (rĕnt); REND'ING. [ME. renden, fr. AS. rendan; akin to OFris. renda, randa, Fris. renne, ranne, to cut, rend, and perh. Skr. randhra a slit, split, opening, defect. Cf. 3d RENT, RIND.] Transitive: 1. To remove or tear out by forcibly dragging, pulling, or wrenching; to take from its place by a violent effort; to wrest, uproot, etc., by force; — usually with away, down, from, off, or up. "Rend off thy silver hair." Shak. "When all disguises shall be rent away." Cowper.

2. To tear violently apart or asunder; to split; to cleave; as, a tree rent by lightning; to rend the rock in blasting; also, to tear forcibly to pieces; as, the lion rends its prey.

3. To tear (clothes) from one's body or (hair) from one's head in a frenzy. Poetic.

4. To affect as by tearing or splitting; to lacerate, as the heart; to pierce (often with earsplitting noise); to divide or disintegrate, as a nation, through dissension; to make a breach between, as church and state.

5. a To convert straight-grained wood into (laths) by splitting. b To bark (trees).

——, Intransitive: To cause destruction, disintegration, etc., by violently tearing out, apart, to pieces, etc.; to split; burst; tear.

Syn. — Break, rupture, fracture. See TEAR.

rend (rĕnd), n. A rent, or split; specif., Naut., a seam opened in or between planks by exposure. Now Rare.

‖rende'ment' (F. räND'mäN'), n. [F.] Chem. The yield of crystallizable sugar obtainable from a raw sugar.

rend'er (rĕn'dĕr), n. [From REND.] One who rends.

ren'der (rĕn'dĕr), v.; REN'DERED (-dĕrd); REN'DER·ING. [OF. rendre to give up, give back, translate, cause to become, fr. (assumed) VL. rendere (after L. prendere to take), fr. L. reddere, redditum, fr. red-, re-, re- + dare to give. See DATE time; cf. REDDITION, RENDER a surrender, RENDEZVOUS, 4th RENT.] Transitive: 1. To give; deliver; transmit; as, to render a message; to render the price of a purchase.

2. a To melt down; to extract or clarify by melting; as, to render lard, oil, wax, etc. b To treat so as to extract the fat; as, to render garbage.

3. To give up; to yield; surrender; as, to render a city; to render one's life.

4. To give or inflict in return or requital; as, to render evil for evil; to render thanks for blessings.

5. To furnish for consideration or as the result of consideration; to state; deliver; as, to render an account of money or actions; to render judgment; to render a bill.

6. To return; to pay back; to restore; as, to render anything loaned; hence, to give back by reflection, or the like; as, a mirror renders one's face; a cliff renders back a shout.

7. To pay as due, esp. as rent, tribute, or the like; as, to render homage or honor.

Render to Caesar the things that are Caesar's. Mark xii. 17.

8. To cause to be or to become; as, to render a person more safe or more unsafe; to render a fortress secure; also, Rare, with in or into, to cause to be in some state.

9. To furnish; contribute; as, to render assistance to one.

10. To represent or depict, as by painting, music, or the like; as, the music well renders the sentiment; a painter renders a landscape well; hence, of a musician or actor, to interpret or perform; as, to render the role of Hamlet.

11. To translate from one language into another; as, to render Latin into English.

12. To present (oneself) at a certain place; as, to render oneself at court. Archaic.

13. Obs. a To repeat; recite. b To emit, as an odor. c To describe or represent as of certain character, or in a certain condition.

14. Arch. Drawing. To apply a medium, as ink or crayon, to (a drawing) so as to bring out form and modeling.

15. Law. In a fine of lands, to return (the lands granted) to the cognizor; — said of the cognizee.

16. Naut. a To cause (a rope) to pass, or run, through a block, loop, or the like, as by slackening it off. b To coil (a rope) so that it will run off smoothly when wanted.

17. Plastering. To apply a first coat to (a wall, etc.).

——, Intransitive: 1. To give recompense. "Shall not he render to every man according to his works?" Prov. xxiv. 12.

2. Obs. a To surrender. b To give an account; to explain or confess.

3. Naut. To pass or run smoothly, as a rope through a block, off a coil, etc.; as, a rope renders well.

Syn. — Pay, return, requite; make; put; translate.

ren'der, n. [See RENDER, v.] 1. Surrender. Obs.

2. A return in kind, services, or money, esp. in kind or service, as by a tenant to his superior.

3. A coat of plaster, etc., applied directly on a wall.

4. A giving account; an account; a statement. Obs.

5. Law. A return or conveyance made by the cognizee to the cognizor in a fine.

ren'der·a·ble (rĕn'dĕr·ȧ·b'l), adj. Capable of being rendered.

ren'der·er (-ĕr), n. One who or that which renders; a vessel for rendering lard, etc.

ren'der·ing, n. Act of one who renders; rendition; also, that which is rendered. Specif.: a A version; translation. b In art, the presentation, expression, or interpretation of an idea, theme, or part. c Act of laying the first coat of plaster on brickwork or stonework; also, the coat of plaster laid on. d The free running of a rope or line, as through a pulley or from a reel. e The process of trying out or extracting lard, tallow, etc.

ren'der·ing, adj. That renders.

ren'der·set' (rĕn'dĕr·sĕt'), adj. Plastering. Designating work in which there are only two coats.

ren'dez·vous (rän'dĕ·vōō; rĕn'-; 277), n.; pl. -VOUS (-vōōz), formerly also -VOUSES (-vōō'zĕz). [F. rendez-vous, prop., render yourselves, repair to a place. See RENDER.] 1. A place appointed for a meeting; also, one at which persons customarily meet.

An inn, the free rendezvous of all travelers. Scott.

2. Formerly, a compact to meet each other, esp. regularly, or a habit of meeting; now, usually, a meeting by appointment; as, to arrange a rendezvous.

3. Obs. a A retreat; refuge. b A gathering or assemblage of persons or things. c Nav. A recruiting office and impressment station.

4. Mil. & Nav. a An appointed place for troops, or for ships of a fleet, to assemble. b The home station of a unit, at which its personnel mobilizes upon receipt of mobilization orders.

Syn. — Tryst, meeting, appointment.

ren'dez·vous (rän'dĕ·vōō; rĕn'-), v. i. & t.; -VOUSED (-vōōd); -VOUS'ING (-vōō'ĭng). To assemble, meet, or bring together at a place, esp. by appointment; also, Obs., to mobilize one's forces.

ren·di'tion (rĕn·dĭsh'ŭn), n. [MF. See RENDER; cf. REDDITION.] Act or result of rendering; surrender; translation.

Syn. — Surrender, delivery; interpretation; performance.

ren'dle·wood' (rĕn'(d)'l·wŏŏd'), n. Wood, esp. oak, with the bark off. Dial. Eng.

rend'rock' (rĕnd'rŏk'), n. A kind of dynamite used in blasting, consisting of nitroglycerin, potassium nitrate, wood pulp, and paraffin or pitch.

‖ren'du' (räN'dü'), adj. [F.] Literally, rendered; esp., artistically expressed. — n. A rendering; also, a rendered project.

Ren'e·al'mi·a (rĕn'ē·ăl'mĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., after Paul Renealme, French botanist.] A large genus of tropical American and African herbs of the ginger family (Zingiberaceae), having leafy or naked stems and racemose, often showy, flowers. R. exaltata is well known in cultivation.

ren'e·gade (rĕn'ē·gād), n. [Sp. renegado, fr. ML. renegatus, fr. renegare to deny, fr. L. re- re- + negare to deny. See NEGATION; cf. RUNAGATE.] 1. An apostate from Christianity or from any form of religious faith.

2. A deserter of or from a cause, principle, party, or allegiance to another, esp. a hostile one; a turncoat; a traitor.

Syn. — See PERVERT.

Ant. — Supporter, adherent, partisan.

ren'e·gade, v. i. To become a renegade.

ren'e·gade, adj. Traitorous; apostate; having deserted a cause, or the like, for a hostile one.

ren'e·ga'tion (rĕn'ē·gā'shŭn), n. Act or fact of renegading. Rare.

re·nege' (rē·nēg'; rē·nĕg'; popularly rē·nĭg'; cf. RENEG, RENIG), v. i.; RE·NEGED' (-nēgd'; -nĕgd'; -nĭgd'); RE·NEG'ING (-nēg'ĭng; -nĕg'ĭng; -nĭg'ĭng). [ML. renegare. See RENEGADE.] Transitive: To deny; renounce; desert; as, to renege one's country; also, Rare, to decline.

——, Intransitive: 1. To deny. Obs.

2. Card Playing. To fail to follow suit when able to do so, in violation of the rules of the game; to revoke.

3. Colloq. a To cheat; to practice deceit. b To break one's word; to go back upon a promise.

I swear to God I'll wed him, and I'll not renege. J. M. Synge.

re·nege', n. Act or fact of reneging.

re·neg'er (rē·nĕg'ĕr; -nēg'ĕr; -nĭg'ĕr), n. One who reneges.

re·nerve' (rē·nûrv'), v. t. To nerve again; to reinvigorate.

re'nes (rē'nēz), n. [L., pl., kidneys.] Med. An extract of pig or sheep kidneys, used in nephritis.

re·new' (rē·nū'), v.; RE·NEWED' (-nūd'); RE·NEW'ING. [re- + new. Cf. RENOVATE.] Transitive: 1. To make new again; to restore to freshness, perfection, or vigor; also, to gain again as new; to reassume; as, to renew one's strength.

2. To make new spiritually; to regenerate.

Be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind. Rom. xii. 2.

3. To restore to existence; re-establish; re-create; rebuild; as, to renew the old splendor of a palace; to revive; resuscitate; as, to renew the sentiments of youth.

4. To repeat; to go over again; to make or do again.

The birds their notes renew. Milton.

5. To begin again; to recommence; to resume.

The last great age . . . renews its finished course. Dryden.

6. To replace; also, to restore to fullness or sufficiency; as, to renew water in a tank; to renew one's equipment.

7. To grant or obtain an extension of; to continue in force for a fresh period; as, to renew a note or a lease.

——, Intransitive: 1. To become new, or as new; to grow again; to revive.

2. To begin again; to resume; as, their friendship renewed.

3. To make a renewal, as of a lease.

4. To come back, as to a fresh attack. Obs.

Syn. — Refresh, invigorate; restore. — RENEW, RENOVATE. To RENEW is esp. to make new, to remake, or to begin (something) afresh; to RENOVATE (which commonly applies to material things) is esp. to restore to freshness by cleansing or repairing; as, "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength" (Is. xl. 31); to renew a lease, to renew an acquaintance; to renovate a house or the blood. Cf. MEND, NEW.

re·new' (rē·nū'), n. Renewal; novelty. Obs.

re·new'al (-ăl), n. A renewing, or state of being renewed. Cf. FORBEARANCE, 2.

re·new'er (-ĕr), n. One who or that which renews.

re·new'ment, n. Renewal. Rare.

‖ren'gue (rĕn'gā), n. [Sp.] A coarse kind of piña cloth. Phil. I.

ren'i- (rĕn'ĭ-; rē'nĭ-). A combining form from Latin ren, renis, meaning kidney, as in ren'i·form, ren·i·punc'ture. See -FORM, PUNCTURE; cf., Zool., nephridial and, as in ren'i·car'di·ac, ren·i·per'i·car'di·al.

‖re·nic'u·lus (rē·nĭk'ū·lŭs), n. [LL. & NL. dim. See REINS.] Anat. A pyramid of the kidney with its associated cortex, comprising a lobule or unit of the kidney.

Re·nil'la (rē·nĭl'ȧ), n. [NL., dim. fr. L. ren, renis, kidney.] Zool. a A genus of Pennatulacea in which the colony has the form of a reniform leaf with the zooids on the upper side, supported on a hollow stem below. It constitutes a family, Re·nil'li·dae (-ĭ·dē), b [not cap.] Any species of this genus.

Renilla (R. amethystina) from California. p Stem.

ren'i·por'tal (rĕn'ĭ·pōr'tăl; rē'nĭ-; -t'l), adj. Renal portal. See PORTAL, adj.

ren'ish (rĕn'ĭsh), adj. Uncouth; furious; wild. — ren'ish·ly, adv. Both Obs. exc. Dial.

re·ni'tence (rē·nī'tĕns; rĕn'ĭ·tĕns), n. [F. rénitence.] Reniteney.

re·ni'ten·cy (rē·nī'tĕn·sĭ; rĕn'ĭ·tĕn·sĭ), n. State or quality of being renitent; resistance; opposition; reluctance.

We find a reniency in ourselves to ascribe life and irritability to the cold and motionless fibers of plants. E. Darwin.

re·ni'tent (rē·nī'tĕnt; rĕn'ĭ·tĕnt), adj. [F. or L.; F. rénitant, fr. L. renitens, -entis, pres. part. of reniti to strive or struggle against, resist, fr. re- re- + niti to struggle or strive.] 1. Resisting pressure or the effect of it; acting against impulse by elastic force. "[Muscles] soft, and yet renitent." Ray.

2. Persistently opposed; recalcitrant.

renk (rĕngk), n. Coal Mining. An average or standard distance for putting coal at a stated price. Eng.

renk'y (rĕngk'ĭ), adj. Large; robust; also, lanky. Dial. Eng.

rennet (rĕn'ĕt; -ĭt; 119), n. [ME., fr. rennen to run; cf. AS gerinnan to curdle, coagulate, E. dial. run to curdle. See RUN, v.] 1. The contents of the stomach of an unweaned calf or other animal, or the lining membrane of the stomach (esp. of the fourth stomach of ruminants), used for curdling milk; hence, also, any preparation of the stomach of animals which is used for that purpose. Rennet rapidly loses its properties when heated above 60° C. Rennet extract is usually prepared from the fourth stomach of calves.

2. Anything used to curdle milk.

3. Biochem. Rennin.

ren'net, v. t. To treat, or supply, with rennet. Obs.

ren'net (rĕn'ĕt; -ĭt; 119), n. [F. rainette, reinette, of uncert. origin.] An old variety of apple. Eng.

rennet bag or stomach. The abomasum of ruminants.

rennet casein. Biochem. See CASEIN b.

rennet ferment. Biochem. Rennin.

ren'nin (rĕn'ĭn), n. [From RENNET.] Biochem. An enzyme that coagulates milk. It is found in gastric juice, and also in various lower animals and plants.

ren·nin'o·gen (rĕ·nĭn'ō·jĕn), n. [rennin + -gen.] Biochem. The antecedent or zymogen of the enzyme rennin; chymosinogen.

reno-. A combining form from Latin ren, kidney, used to denote: a The kidney, as in re·nog'ra·phy. See -GRAPHY. b Renal and, as in ren'o·cu·ta'ne·ous (rĕn'ō·kū·tā'nē·ŭs; rē'nō-), ren'o·gas'tric, ren'o·in·tes'ti·nal, ren'o·pul'mo·nar'y. See CUTANEOUS, etc.

re·nom'i·nate (rē·nŏm'ĭ·nāt), v. t. To nominate again or anew, esp. for a term of office in immediate succession. — re·nom'i·na'tion (-nā'shŭn), n.

‖re·nom'mé' (rē·nō'mā'), adj. masc., ‖re·nom'mée' (-mā'), fem. [F.] Renowned; celebrated.

‖Re'nom·mist' (rā'nō·mĭst'), n. [G.] A braggart; a swaggerer; a renowner (sense 2).

ren'o·per'i·car'di·al (rĕn'ō·pĕr'ĭ·kär'dĭ·ăl; rē'nō-), adj. Renipericardial.

re·nounce' (rē·nouns'; 232), v.; -NOUNCED' (-nounst'); -NOUNC'ING (-noun'sĭng). [ME. renouncen, fr. OF. renoncier (F. renoncer), fr. L. renuntiare to bring back word, announce, revoke, retract, renounce, fr. re- re- + nuntiare to announce, fr. nuncius, nuntius, a messenger. See NUNCIO; cf. RENUNCIATION.] Transitive: 1. To announce; declare; proclaim. Obs.

2. To announce one's abandonment of the ownership of; to give up, abandon, or resign, usually formally (something possessed); as, to renounce a title, a claim.

3. To give up or abandon (something practiced, professed, intended, or the like); as, to renounce faith, a purpose, or one's errors.

4. To disclaim; to repudiate; cast off; to refuse further to follow, obey, recognize, etc.; as, to renounce one's son or the authority of the church.

5. Card Playing. To disclaim having a card of (the suit led) by playing a card of another suit. Cf. REVOKE, v. i., 2.

——, Intransitive: 1. To make renunciation or a renunciation.

2. Card Playing. a Not to follow suit, because holding no cards of the suit led. b Obs. = RENEGE, v. i., 2.

3. Law. To decline or resign formally some right or trust, esp. the right to act as executor or heir.

Syn. — Forgo, waive, surrender, relinquish, reject, cede, disown, forsake, deny. — RENOUNCE, ABJURE, FORSWEAR; RECANT, RETRACT, REPUDIATE agree in the idea of abandoning a former state, opinion, or assertion (cf. RELINQUISH). To RENOUNCE is to make an affirmative declaration of abandonment; as, to renounce a claim. To ABJURE (less commonly FORSWEAR) is to renounce with, or as with, the solemnity of an oath; as, to abjure allegiance. To RECANT is to renounce or abjure, often formally or publicly, a proposition previously affirmed or maintained; as, to recant one's heresies. To RETRACT is to take back or withdraw an asser-

Re·naud' (rē·nō'), n. See AYMON.

re·nav'i·gate (rē·năv'ĭ·gāt), v. i. See RE-, 2. — re·nav·i·ga'tion (rē'nĭv·ĭ·gā'shŭn), n.

re·nay', v. t. [OF. renoier (F. renier), fr. VL. renegare, fr. L. re- re- + negare to deny. See RENEGADE.] To renounce; deny; disown; recant; refuse. Obs.

rench (rĕnch). Var. of RINSE. Now Dial.

ren'cu·lus (rĕng'kū·lŭs), n. = RENICULUS. [Scot.] ren'dal (rĕn'ᵈᵗ), n. See RUNDALE.

rend'ed. Archaic and poetic past tense & past part. of REND.

ren'der-and-set', adj. = RENDER-SET.

ren'derd. Rendered. Ref. Sp.

ren'di·ble (rĕn'dĭ·b'l), adj. See -ABLE. — ren'di·bil'ĭ·ty, n.

rendoun. ✝ RANDOM.

ren'dry, n. [render + -ry.] Surrender. Obs.

ren'dy, n. [See RENDEZVOUS.] Rendezvous. Obs.

rene. ✝ REIN, RUN.

re·neague' (rē·nēg'; -nāg'), re·neg' (rē·nĕg'). Vars. of RENEGE.

re'ne·cas'si·tate, v. t. See RE-, 2.

ren'e·gad'ism (rĕn'ē·găd'ĭz'm), n. See -ISM.

ren'e·ga'do (rĕn'ē·gā'dō), n., adj., & v. [Sp.] = RENEGADE.

ren'e·gate (rĕn'ē·gāt), n. & adj. [ML. renegatus. See RENEGADE.] = RENEGADE. Obs. exc. Dial.

re'neg·lect', v. t. See RE-, 2.

re'ne·go'ti·ate, v. i. See RE-, 2. — re·ne·go'ti·a'tions, n.

re·negue', Var. of RENEGE.

ren'et. Var. of 1st RENNET.

re·new'a·ble, adj. See -ABLE. — re·new'a·bil'ĭ·ty (rē·nū'ᵈᵃ·bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n. — re·new'a·bly, adv.

renewable fuse. Elec. See FUSE, n., 2.

re·newd'. Renewed. Ref. Sp.

renewed bark. See NATURAL BARK.

Renewed Church of the United Brethren. See MORAVIAN, n., 2.

re·new'ed·ly, adv. of renewed, past part.

re·new'ed·ness, n. See -NESS.

reneye. ✝ RENAY.

ren·fierce', v. i. [See FIERCE; cf. RENFORCE.] To make fierce in turn. Obs.

ren·force', v. t. [F. renforcer.] To reinforce; enforce. Obs. — ren·force'er, n. Obs.

renge, n. A sieve; strainer. Obs.

renge, v. t. & i. [OF. rengier to put in ranks. See RANGE, v.] To range; to arrange. Obs.

renge, n. [See RANGE.] A rank; a row. Obs.

ren·grade', v. t. [ren- (fr. F. ren-, fr. re- + en-) + grade.] To reinstate after degradation. Obs.

re·nick'el, v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·nid'ĭ·fy (rē·nĭd'ĭ·fī), v. i. See RE-, 2. — re'nid·i·fi·ca'tion (rē'nĭd·ĭ·fĭ·kā'shŭn), n.

re·nig' (rē·nĭg'). Var. of RENEGE. Colloq.

ren'ne. ✝ RUN.

renne, v. t. In phr. raps and renne. See RAPE, v. t., to handle.

ren'ner. ✝ RUNNER.

ren'net-ing, n. = 3d RENNET.

ren'ni·ble. ✝ RENABLE.

re·no'ble, v. t. To renounce. Obs.

re·nome', n. [See RENOWN.] = RENOMÉE. Obs.

re·nomed', adj. [OF. renomé (F. renommé).] Renowned. Obs.

re'no·mee', n. [OF. renomée (F. renommée), fr. renommer. See RENOWN, v.] Renown. Obs.

renone. ✝ RENOWN.

re·nor'mal·ize, v. t., re'no·ta'tion, n., re·no'tice, v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·no'ti·fy, v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'no·ti·fi·ca'tion, n.

N O P Q R

tion or opinion; as, to retract a charge. To REPUDIATE is to disavow or disclaim responsibility for, or to reject as not authoritative or not binding; as, to repudiate a doctrine, one's debts. Cf. ABANDON, DISCARD.

I did renounce the world, its pride and greed, Palace, farm, villa, shop, and banking house. R. Browning.
Either to die the death, or to abjure Forever the society of man. Shak.
For know that you recanted all you said. Tennyson.
I can neither retract nor apologize for a charge of falsehood which I never advanced. Byron.
Dr. Savage repudiates the stories about the gorillas. Huxley.

Ant. — Assert, maintain; espouse, adopt, own. See ACKNOWLEDGE.

renounce the world. To withdraw from worldly concerns and activities or from engrossment in them; specif., to take the monastic vows.

re·nounce' (rē·nouns'), n. [F. renonce.] Cards. Act of renouncing; also, ability to renounce through voidness in a suit.

re·nounce'ment (rē·nouns'mĕnt), n. [F. renoncement.] Act of renouncing: renunciation.

re·nounc'er (rē·noun'sĕr), n. One who renounces.

ren'o·vate (rĕn'ō·vāt), v.; -VAT'ED (-vāt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -VAT'ING (-vāt'ĭng). [L. renovatus, past part. of renovare, fr. re- re- + novare to make new, fr. novus new. See NEW; cf. RENEW.] Transitive: 1. To begin again; to resume. Obs. 2. To restore to life, vigor, activity, etc.; to revive; also, to regenerate, as the soul.

Winds . . . that renovate the insect tribes. Shelley.

3. To renew, make over, or repair; to restore to freshness, purity, a sound state, newness of appearance, etc.; as, to renovate draperies, or a house; circulating blood is renovated.

4. Hort. a To prune old shrubs or trees so that subsequently all the old wood is replaced by new growth. b To invigorate old plantations or lawns by fertilizing or cultivating them.

——, Intransitive: To become renewed; to revive.

Syn. — See RENEW.

ren'o·vate, adj. Renovated.

ren'o·vat'ed but'ter (-vāt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119). Inferior butter which has been melted, refined, and reworked, usually with the addition of milk or cream; — called also process butter.

ren'o·vat'er (rĕn'ō·vāt'ĕr), n. A renovator. Rare.

ren'o·va'tion (-vā'shŭn), n. [F. or L.; F. rénovation, fr. L. renovatio.] 1. Act or process of renovating, or state of being renovated, renewed, or revived; revival; also, Obs., resumption.

There is something inexpressibly pleasing in the annual renovation of the world. Rambler.

2. Theol. Spiritual renewal.

ren'o·va'tive (rĕn'ō·vā'tĭv), adj. Renovating.

ren'o·va'tor (rĕn'ō·vā'tĕr), n. [L.] One who or that which renovates, as worn or damaged articles; specif., a nozzle attachment for the suction pipe of a vacuum cleaner.

ren'o·va·to'ry (rĕn'ō·vȧ·tō'rĭ), n. [See 2d -ORY.] An establishment for cleansing and repairing clothes. Local, U. S.

ren'o·vize (rĕn'ō·vīz), v. t. & i. To renovate.

re·nown' (rē·noun'), n. [ME. renoun, fr. OF. renon (F. renom), fr. renomer (F. renommer) to make famous. See RENOWN, v. t.] 1. The character, fact, or condition, of being widely acclaimed and held in very high honor; illustrious reputation; exalted fame; celebrity with distinction; as, a poet of great renown; the increasing renown of Washington; to win renown by a deed of heroism.

2. Obs. a Report; rumor; also, good report. b Reputation; also, Rare, notoriety.

3. Something renowned, as a deed. Rare.

He sang the renowns of the deathless Gods. Andrew Lang.

Syn. — See REPUTATION.

re·nown' (rē·noun'), v. t. [F. renommer to name again, celebrate, fr. OF. renomer, fr. re- re- + nommer to name, fr. L. nominare, fr. nomen a name. The final n is due to the influence of the noun. See NOUN.] To give renown to; to make renowned. Now Rare.

re·nown', v. i. [After G. renommieren.] To seek notoriety; to swagger; to indulge in boasting; — applied to German students.

re·nowned' (rē·nound'), adj. [Prop. past part.] Having renown; of illustrious fame; celebrated; as, a renowned king.

These were the renowned of the congregation. Num. i. 61.

Syn. — Famed, distinguished, noted, eminent, illustrious.

Ant. — Obscure, inglorious, undistinguished, humble.

—re·nown'ed·ly (-noun'ĕd·lĭ), adv.—re·nown'ed·ness, n.

re·nown'er (rē·noun'ĕr), n. 1. One who gives renown.

2. One who renowns or brags; a braggart. A Germanism.

re·nown'ful (-fŏŏl; -fl), adj. Renowned. Rare.

rens'se·laer·ite (rĕn'sĕ·lĕr·īt; rĕn'sĕ·lā'rĭt; 79), n. [After Stephen Van Rensselaer, Am. statesman.] Mineral. A soft, compact variety of talc, being an altered pyroxene. It is often worked in a lathe into inkstands and other articles.

rent (rĕnt), past tense & past part. of REND. Specif.: part. adj. Torn; also, wearing tattered garments.

rent, v. t. & i. To rend; tear. See REND. Obs. exc. Dial.

rent (rĕnt), n. [From RENT to rend.] 1. An opening made by or as if by rending or tearing; specif., a tear in cloth, a cleft in the earth, a gorge, a crack in wood, or the like.

I widen the rent in my wind-built tent. Shelley.
They looked at each other through a rent in the veil of life. Dorothy Canfield Fisher.

2. A schism; a rupture; a split in a party or organized group.

3. Act or an instance of rending.

By violence, at one decisive rent. Wordsworth.

Syn. — Fissure, breach, rupture, tear, slit.

rent (rĕnt), n. [OF. rente, fr. (assumed) VL. rendita, fr. rendere. See RENDER; cf. ARRENT.] 1. A render; a return or payment receivable from another or chargeable on land, as an annuity or corody; also, the property charged with such a payment; hence, revenue; income. Obs.

Catel had they enough and rent. Chaucer.

2. Pay; reward; share; tribute; toll. Obs.

3. A piece of real property that is rented, or let out by the owner; a tenement. Obs. exc. Colloq., U. S.

4. Com. & Law. a The return made by the tenant or occupant of land or corporal hereditaments to the owner for the use thereof; a certain periodical profit, whether in money, provisions, chattels, or services, issuing out of lands and tenements in payment for the use; commonly, a certain pecuniary sum agreed upon between a tenant and his landlord, and paid at fixed intervals by the tenant to the landlord, for the use of land or its appendages; as, rent for a farm, a house, a park, etc. b The return made by a hirer or user of personal property, as farming stock, machinery, etc., to the owner for the use thereof, whether combined with rent for land (sense a) or not.

5. Econ. a That portion of the produce of the earth paid to the landlord for the use of the "original and indestructible powers of the soil"; the excess of the return from a given piece of cultivated land over that from land of equal area at the margin of cultivation (which see). Called also economic, or Ricardian, rent. Economic rent is due partly to differences of productivity, but chiefly to advantages of location; it is equivalent to ordinary or commercial rent less interest on improvements, and nearly equivalent to ground rent (sense 1). b Loosely, a return or profit from a differential advantage for production, as in case of income or earnings due to rare natural gifts creating a natural monopoly. Cf. PRODUCER'S SURPLUS.

☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are:

rent-collecting	rent-paying	rent-raising rent-free	rent-producing	rent-reducing

—for rent. U. S. a To let. See 3d LET, v. t., 2, Note. b Offered for hire.

rent (rĕnt), adj. Of or pert. to rent or its payment; also, rent-paying; as, rent days, collectors; a rent farmer.

rent, v.; RENT'ED; RENT'ING. [OF. renter, fr. rente. See 4th RENT.] Transitive: 1. To give revenues or an endowment to; to endow. Obs.

2. To take and hold under an agreement to pay rent; to pay rent for; as, the tenant rents the house from the college.

3. To grant the possession and enjoyment of for rent; to lease; to let or hire out; as, the owner rents the house at a reasonable figure.

4. To charge rent to (a person); impose a rental charge upon.

——, Intransitive: To be leased, or let for rent; as, the apartment rents for five hundred dollars a year.

rent'age (rĕn'tĭj), n. Rent; rental; thing rented. Rare.

rent'al (rĕn'tăl; -t'l), n. [AF. (Anglo-Lat. rentale). See 4th RENT.] 1. A schedule, account, or list of rents, with the names of the tenants, etc.; a rent roll.

2. A sum total of rents; the amount of a rent or rents.

3. A lease or leasehold right or estate; specif.: A form of lease or tack, usually for life, for a low customary rent, formerly granted to tenants called, in Scots law, rentalers or kindly tenants, being lineal descendants of holders of ancient heritable rights or persons favored as such. They are now obsolete in England and mostly so in Scotland.

4. = RENT, 4 a. Colloq.

rent'al, adj. Of or pertaining to rent; as, rental value, the amount for which a property will rent, generally stated on an annual basis.

rent'al, v. t. To lease on a rental. Rare. Scot.

rent charge; pl. RENTS CHARGE. Often printed as one word, rent'charge' (rĕnt'chärj'). A rent or periodical payment made a charge upon land by reservation in a conveyance of land for life or in fee simple or granted by deed, and expressly giving to the holder the right of distress for arrears. Cf. RENT SECK. Now, sometimes in England, loosely, an annual sum charged on land, or payable out of the income of land, to which the Conveyancing Act of 1881 (sec. 44) attaches a power of distress for arrears.

rent charger. The owner of a rent charge.

‖rente (rȧnt), n. [F. See 4th RENT.] In France, in general, annual income, such as those forms of income called, in English, rents charge, rents seck, and annuities; specif., pl. (rentes sur l'état [rȧnt' sür lȧ'tȧ']), interests payable by the government on the consolidated debt; also, the bonds, stocks, etc., which represent this indebtedness. Similar government securities of other European countries are also sometimes called rentes.

rent'ed (rĕn'tĕd; -tĭd; 119), adj. 1. Having property which yields an income. Obs.

2. Let for a rent.

rent'ee' (rĕn'tē'), n. [See -EE.] A tenant.

‖Ren'ten·mark' (rĕn'tĕn·märk'), n. [G.] Any note for one gold mark issued by the German Ren'ten·bank' (-bȧngk') (established 1923) and secured by mortgages on German industries and landed property. In 1924 the new Reichsbank assumed the obligations of the Rentenbank, and undertook the withdrawal of Rentenmarks.

rent'er (rĕn'tĕr), n. 1. One who rents lands, tenements, or other property; — usually said of a lessee or tenant.

2. A collector or farmer of rents or taxes. Hist.

3. A stockholder in a theatrical enterprise. Rare.

rent'er, n. One who rents, rends, or tears.

ren'ter (rĕn'tĕr), v. t. [F. rentraire, fr. L. re- re- + in into, in + trahere to draw.] Needlework. To sew up or repair with skill and nicety; to fine-draw.

rent'-free' (66), adj. Free from a charge for rent; — without hyphen when used predicatively; as, a rent-free house; the estate is held rent free.

‖ren'tier' (rȧn'tyā'), n. [F. See 4th RENT.] One who owns rentes; hence, one who receives a fixed income from any source, as from land, stocks, bonds, etc.

rent insurance. See INSURANCE, n., 1.

rent'less (rĕnt'lĕs; -lĭs; 119), adj. a Obs. Not yielding rent. b Rare. Rent-free. c Unrentable. rent'less, adj. Not torn. See -LESS.

rentless land. Econ. Land yielding no economic rent because at or below the margin of cultivation. See RENT, 5 a.

rent of assize. Early Eng. Law. A fixed rent, as that paid by freeholders or ancient copyholders of a manor.

ren'trant' (rȧn'trȧn'), n. A player who takes the place of a loser whom he has been backing, as in écarté or bezique.

‖ren'trée' (rȧn'trā'), n. [F.] Re-entry; reopening; reappearance.

rent resolute. O. Eng. Law. Crown rents from lands formerly in possession of (now dissolved) religious bodies.

rent'-roll', n. A rental (sense 1); also, one's income from rentals.

rents and profits of land. Law. The total received by way of rent or otherwise from a tract of land. See PROFIT, n., 4 b.

rent seck (sĕk); pl. RENTS SECK. Often as one word, rent' seck'. [AF. rente seque, lit., dry rent. See 4th RENT; SECK.] A form of rent reserved or granted like a rent charge, but without the right of distress. See RENT CHARGE. A power of distress was annexed to rent seck by 4 Geo. II. c. 28 (1730).

rent service. Eng. Law. Rent reserved out of land held by fealty or other corporeal service; — so called from such service being incident to it. The common law attaches the right of distress to such rent.

re·nu'mer·ate (rē·nū'mĕr·āt), v. t. [L. renumeratus, past part. of renumerare to recount, fr. re- re- + numerare to count. See NUMERATE.] To enumerate again; recount. — re·nu'mer·a'tion (-ā'shŭn), n.

re·nun'ci·a·ble (rē·nŭn'shĭ·ȧ·b'l), adj. Capable of being renunciated, or renounced.

re·nun'ci·ance (-ȧns), n. Renunciation. Carlyle.

re·nun'ci·ant (-ȧnt), adj. [L. renuntians, -antis, pres. part.] Renunciative. Pater. — n. One who renounces, esp. the world.

re·nun'ci·ate (-āt), v. t. [L. renuntiatus, past part. of renuntiare.] To renounce. Rare.

re·nun'ci·a'tion (rē·nŭn'sĭ·ā'shŭn; -shĭ·ā'shŭn; 277), n. [OF. renonciation, fr. L. renuntiatio. See RENOUNCE.] 1. Act or an instance of renouncing, or giving up, sacrificing, rejecting, repudiating, etc.; renouncement; as, the renunciation of a title, of one's ambitions, of an administratorship, or of allegiance.

2. As a moral act, a sacrificing of one's personal or selfish ambitions, desires, pleasures, etc., for the sake of others or of attaining what one holds to be the highest good; often, a renouncing of the world.

Syn. — Disavowal, disclaimer, rejection, abjuration, denial, abandonment, relinquishment.

Ant. — Assertion; embrace, acceptance, adoption.

re·nun'ci·a'tive (rē·nŭn'shĭ·ā'tĭv; -sĭ·ā'tĭv; -ȧ·tĭv), adj. 1. Announcing. Obs.

2. Marked by, or expressive of, renunciation.

re·nun'ci·a'tor (-ā'tĕr), n. Renouncer.

re·nun'ci·a·to'ry (-ȧ·tō'rĭ or, esp. Brit., -tĕr·ĭ), adj. Of or pertaining to renunciation; renunciative.

ren·verse' (rĕn·vŭrs'), v. t., [F. renverser, fr. L. re- re- + in in, into + versare, v. intens. fr. vertere to turn.] To reverse; overturn; turn back; overthrow. — n. The reverse side. Both Obs.

ren'ver'sé' (rȧn'vĕr'sā'), adj. [F.] Her. Upside down, as a chevron with the point downward or a beast on its back.

‖ren'verse'ment' (rȧn'vĕrs'mȧn'), n. [F.] A reversing; hence, overthrow.

ren·voi', ren·voy' (rĕn·voi'), n. [F. renvoi.] Law. 1. The return by a government of an alien to his own country; — used, in distinction from deportation, to cover any such expulsion, as the dismissal of a diplomat.

2. Reference; — used in the doctrine of renvoi of the reference of a case to the laws of a country other than that wherein it is pending.

ren·voy', v. t. [F. renvoyer.] To send back. Obs.

re·oil' (rē·oil'), v. t. To oil again; specif., to refuel with oil.

re·o'pen (rē·ō'pĕn), v. Transitive: 1. To open again.

2. To resume; recommence; as, to reopen a discussion; to reopen an artillery assault; also, to resume the discussion or consideration of; as, to reopen a subject.

——, Intransitive: To open again.

re·or'der (rē·ôr'dĕr), n. Com. A subsequent order for goods given to the same person or dealer, esp. within a short time.

re·or'der (rē·ôr'dĕr), v. t. & i. To order again. Specif.: a To rearrange. b Com. To give a reorder for (goods or merchandise).

re'or·di·na'tion (rē'ôr·dĭ·nā'shŭn), n. [ML. reordinatio.] A second or repeated ordination.

re'or·gan·i·za'tion (rē'ôr·gȧn·ĭ·zā'shŭn; -ĭ·zā'shŭn), n. 1. Act of reorganizing, or state of being reorganized.

2. Finance. The reconstruction or rehabilitation of the finances of a corporation or business concern, usually rendered necessary by an actual or anticipated receivership. Cf. READJUSTMENT.

re·or'gan·ize (rē·ôr'gȧn·īz), v. t. & i. To organize again or anew; to effect a reorganization of; as, to reorganize a business, a society, an army. —re·or'gan·iz'er (-īz'ĕr), n.

Re·or'gan·ized Church of Je'sus Christ of Lat'ter Day Saints (-īzd). A sect organized in 1852, accepting some of the revelations said to have been given through Joseph Smith, the Mormon prophet, but rejecting others. It has never countenanced plural marriage. Its headquarters are at Independence, Mo. re·o'ri·ent (rē·ō'rĭ·ĕnt), v. t. To orient again or anew.

re·o'ri·ent (rē·ō'rĭ·ĕnt), adj. Rising again. Rare.

re'o·ri·en·ta'tion (rē'ō·rĭ·ĕn·tā'shŭn), n. [re- + orientation.] A changed adjustment to the environment.

rep (rĕp), n. [From reprobate. Cf. REP in this sense.] An immoral man; also, formerly, a lewd woman. Cf. DEMIREP.

rep, repp (rĕp), n. [Also reps, fr. F. reps, fr. E. ribs, pl. of rib; cf. (all fr. E.) Nor. ribs, rips, reps, rep, D. rips, G. rips, ripps. See RIB.] A fabric of silk or wool, or both, having a transversely corded or ribbed surface; also, any of various fabrics having transverse line markings on the face and having only the warp showing on this side.

rep, n. Short for REPERTORY, REPETITION, REPRESENTATIVE, REPUTATION. Slang.

rep. Var. of REAP. Now Dial.

re·pace' (rē·pās'), v. t. To pace again or in a contrary direction.

re·paint' (rē·pānt'), v. t. & i. To paint again. — n. Anything, esp. a portion of a picture, which has been repainted.

re·pair' (rē·pâr'), v.; -PAIRED' (-pârd'); -PAIR'ING. [ME. repairen, fr. OF. repairer, fr. LL. repatriare to return to one's country, to go home again, fr. re- re- + patria native land, fr. pater father. See FATHER; cf. REPATRIATE.] Intransitive: 1. To go; to betake oneself; to resort; as, to repair to a sanctuary for safety. "Many Americans and English repair every year to France." Amy Lowell.

2. To return. "If to sleep you would repair As peaceful as you woke." E. St. V. Millay.

3. To be present, or to stay; to dwell. Obs.

——, Transitive: To draw or bring back. Obs.

re·nounce'a·ble, adj. See -ABLE.
re·nounst'. Renounced. Ref. Sp.
re·nour'ish, v. t. See RE-, 1. ren'o·vat'ing·ly, adv. of renovating, pres. part.
re·nove', v. t. & i. [OF. renover.] To renew. Obs. re·nov'el, v. t. & i. [OF. renoveler (F. renouveler).] To renew; renovate. Obs. — re·nov'el·ance, n. Obs. re·nownd'. Renowned. Ref. Sp. renownee, n. [From renown, after renomee.] Renown. Obs.
re·nown'less, adj. See -LESS. rensh. Dial. var. of RINSE. rent'a·ble, adj. See -ABLE. — rent'a·bil'i·ty, n.
rental boll. = TEIND BOLL. rent'al·er, rent'al·ler. See RENTAL, 3. rental value insurance. See INSURANCE, n., 1. rent'-rack', v. t. = RACK-RENT. Obs. ren'tra'yeuse', n. = PIQUÈRE.
re·num'ber, v. t. See RE-, 2.
re·nun'cu·lus (rē·nŭng'kū·lŭs), n. = RENICULUS. re'ob·ject', v. i. See RE-, 1. re'ob·jec'tiv·ize, v. t. See RE-, 1. — re'ob·jec'tiv·i·za'tion, n.
re·ob'li·gate, v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'ob·li·ga'tion, n.
re'o·bliqu', v. i., re'ob·scure', v. i., re'ob·ser·va'tion, n., re'ob·serve', v. t., re'ob·tain', v. t., re'ob·tain'a·ble, adj., re'ob·tain'ment, n., re'oc·ca'sion, v. t., re'oc·cu·pa'tion, n., re·oc'cu·py, v. t., re'oc·cur', v. i., re'oc·cur'rence, n., re'of·fend', v. t., re'offense', n., re·of'fer, v. & n. See RE-, 2. re'off·set', v. t. See RE-, 1.
re·om'e·ter (rē·ŏm'ē·tĕr). Var. of RHEOMETER. re'o·mit', v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'o·mis'sion, n. re·op'er·ate, v. i. See RE-, 2. — re'op·er·a'tion, n.
re'o·phore, re'o·stat, etc. Vars. of RHEOPHORE, RHEOSTAT, etc. re'op·pose', v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'op·po·si'tion, n. re'op·press', v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'op·pres'sion, n.
re·or'ches·trate, v. t., re'ordain', v. t., re·or'di·nate, v. t. See RE-, 2. re'or·gan·i·za'tion·ist, n. See -IST.
re·or'na·ment, v. t., re·out'fit, v. t., re·out'line', v. t., re·out'put', n., re·out'rage, v. t., re'o·ver·charge', v. t., re'o·ver·flow', v. t., re'o·ver·take', v. t., re'o·ver·work', v. t., re·own', v. t., re'ox·i·da'tion, n., re·ox'i·dize, v. t., etc., re·ox'y·gen·ate, re·ox'y·gen·ize, v. t., re'pac·i·fi·ca'tion (rē'pȧs·ĭ·fĭ·kā'shŭn; rē'pȧ·sĭ'fĭ·kā'shŭn), n., re·pac'i·fy (rē·pȧs'ĭ·fī), v. t., re·pack', v. t. & i., re·pack'age, n., re·pack'er, n., re'pa·gan·i·za'tion, n., re·pa'gan·ize, v. t., re·pa'gan·iz'er, n., re·page', v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·pair' (rē·pâr'), n. [OF. repaire (F. repaire, repère). See REPAIR to go.] 1. Act or fact of repairing to a place; resort. Archaic.

Proclamation for their repair to their houses. Clarendon.

2. A place of resort; a haunt; as, a repair for old and young.

3. A repairing in numbers, as over a road or to a place; a concourse; a flocking. Now Chiefly Scot.

He could not abide any repair of people. Crockett.

4. A retinue; train. Obs. Hall.

5. pl. Accounting. The sum total of renewals and replacements during a given period.

re·pair' (rē·pâr'), v. [OF. reparer, fr. L. reparare, fr. re- re- + parare to prepare. See PARE; cf. REPARATION.] Transitive: 1. To restore to a sound or good state after decay, injury, dilapidation, or partial destruction; as, to repair a house, a road, a shoe; also, to renew, revive, or rebuild, after exhaustion, loss, etc.; as, to repair the tissues of the body.

2. To restore or reinstate, as in former standing. Obs.

3. To remedy, heal, make right, or mend; as, to repair a break, a wound, a defeat, a loss, a damage.

4. To make amends or reparation for (an injury, injustice, etc.). Now Rare.

——, Intransitive: To make repairs or reparation.

Syn. — Fix; restore, renew, amend, correct, remedy.

Ant. — Damage, injure, harm, impair.

re·pair' (rē·pâr'), n. 1. Act or process of repairing; restoration to a sound or good state after decay, dilapidation, injury, loss, waste, etc.; also, an instance or a result of repairing; as, to hasten the repair of a house; to make extensive repairs; barely noticeable repairs.

2. The state of being repaired, or in good or sound condition; as, the house is in repair or out of repair; also, condition with respect to soundness or need of repairing; as, in good, bad, or excellent repair.

re·pair'er (rē·pâr'ēr), n. One who or that which repairs; specif., one whose work is repairing a (specified) thing, as in road repairer, watch repairer.

re·pair'man (-măn; -măn'), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn; -mĕn'). One who repairs; specif., one whose occupation is to make repairs or readjustments in a mechanism; as, an automobile or typewriter repairman.

repair ship. A naval auxiliary vessel fitted with shops for the handling of repairs to naval vessels.

repair shop. An establishment where repairs are made, esp. on automobiles, bicycles, etc.

re·pand' (rē·pănd'), adj. [L. repandus bent backward, turned up, fr. re- re- + pandus bent, crooked.] Bot. Having a slightly undulating margin; — said of leaves. See LEAF, Illust. — re·pand'ly, adv.

re·pan'do- (rē·păn'dō-). Bot. A combining form for repand, denoting repandly, as in re·pan'do·den'tate, re·pan'do·den·tic'u·late, re·pan'do·lo'bate. See -DENTATE, etc.

re·pand'ous (rē·păn'dŭs), adj. [See REPAND.] Bent with the convexity upward. — re·pand'ous·ness, n. Both Rare.

rep'a·ra·ble (rĕp'ȧ·rȧ·b'l), adj. [F. réparable, fr. L. reparabilis.] 1. Capable of being repaired, mended, amended, remedied, or made good; as, a reparable injury or loss.

2. That is to be, or should be, repaired (by one specified); — of roads, etc. Brit.

— rep'a·ra·bil'i·ty (-bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n. — rep'a·ra·bly, adv.

rep'a·rate (rĕp'ȧ·rāt), v. t. & i. [From REPARATION.] To make reparation (of).

rep'a·ra'tion (rĕp'ȧ·rā'shŭn), n. [ME. reparacion, fr. OF. reparacion (F. réparation), fr. LL. reparatio. See REPAIR to mend.] 1. Act or process of repairing or restoring, etc., or state of being repaired or restored; a repairing or keeping in repair; as, the reparation of wasted tissue; a church in need of constant reparation.

2. pl. An instance or result of repairing; repairs. Rare.

3. Act of making amends or giving satisfaction or compensation for a wrong, injury, etc.; also, the thing done or given; amends; satisfaction; compensation.

I am sensible of the scandal I have given by my loose writings, and make what reparation I am able. Dryden.

4. Specif. [usually in pl.], compensation either in money or in materials, commodities, capital equipment, merchant vessels, and the like, payable by a defeated nation as war indemnity for direct damages and for loss from war expenditures, occupation costs, etc., sustained as a result of aggression by the defeated nation.

5. R.C.Ch. Expiation offered by men to God for their own sins or the sins of others; — used frequently in titles of religious orders.

Syn. — Recompense, restitution, reward, indemnity. — REPARATION, REDRESS, AMENDS, REQUITAL agree in the idea of a return for something received or suffered. REPARATION is now applied chiefly to compensation or recompense for wrong, loss, or injury; REDRESS heightens the implication of satisfaction, or (sometimes) remedy; AMENDS (chiefly in the phrase "to make amends") implies less formal satisfaction than redress or reparation; as, "After such wrong as he had suffered there is no reparation" (Hawthorne); "Redress is always to be had against oppression, by punishing the immediate agents" (Johnson); "If I did take the kingdom from your sons, to make amends I'll give it to your daughters" (Shak.). REQUITAL (cf. REQUITAL) may denote either retaliation for injury or (more frequently) a return for benefits or services; as, a blow in requital of (or for) an insult; "If she puts a constraint on herself for my sake, I can only say, in requital, God bless her" (Scott). Cf. PAY.

re·par'a·tive (rē·păr'ȧ·tĭv), adj. 1. Repairing, or tending to repair; pertaining to repair; as, reparative powers.

2. Tending or pertaining to reparation, or making amends.

re·par'a·to'ry (rē·păr'ȧ·tō'rĭ; -tĕr·ĭ), adj. Reparative. R.

re·part'a·ble (-pär'tȧ·b'l), adj. Divisible; distributable.

rep'ar·tee' (rĕp'ēr·tē'), n. [F. repartie, fr. repartir to reply, depart again, fr. re- re- + partir to part, depart. See PART, v.] A clever, ready, and witty reply or retort; also, skill in making such replies; clever retorts collectively; as, a much-quoted repartee; noted for repartee.

Syn. — See REPLY.

rep'ar·tee', v. t. To say in ready and witty reply, or to answer in such a way. Obs. — v. i. To make ready and witty replies. Now Rare.

‖re·par'ti·mien'to (rā·pär'tē·myĕn'tō), n. [Sp., fr. repartir to divide.] A partition or distribution; esp.: a Sp. Amer., Phil. I., etc. A grant of land in conquered territory, including the right to exploit the labor of the natives living on or near it, awarded as a fief to Spanish soldiers, priests, etc. See ENCOMIENDA b. b An assessment of taxes.

re·par·ti'tion (rē'pär·tĭsh'ŭn; rē'pĕr-), n. 1. Act, fact, or result, of partitioning or distributing; distribution.

The relative repartition of land and water is very different from what prevails on the earth. Pop. Sci. Monthly.

2. A second or an additional partition, separation into parts, or distribution; as, the repartition of Poland.

re'par·ti'tion (rē'pär·tĭsh'ŭn; rē'pĕr-), v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·par·ti'tion, adj. Of, pertaining to, or having to do with, repartition; as, a repartition treaty.

re·pass' (rē·pȧs'; 83), v. [F. repasser. See RE-; PASS, v.] Transitive: 1. To pass through, over, or by way of, again, esp. in returning; to cross again; as, to repass a desert or sea.

2. To pass, or go past, again; as, to repass a house.

3. To cause to pass again, as a needle through cloth.

4. To pass, or adopt, again; as, to repass a bill after a veto.

——, Intransitive: To pass again, or in the opposite direction; also, to go back; to return; as, troops passing and repassing.

re·pass' (rē·pȧs'), v. i. [MF. repasser to cure.] To repair. Obs.

re·pass' (rē·pȧs'), n. See RE-, 2. Obs.

re·pas'sage (rē·pȧs'ĭj), n. Act of repassing; passage back; freedom to repass.

re·pass'er (-pȧs'ēr), n. One who repasses.

re·past' (rē·pȧst'; see Pron., § 83), n. [OF. (F. repas), fr. past food, meal, fr. L. pastus, fr. pascere, pastum, to feed, with re- after OF. repaistre (F. repaître) to feed. See PASTOR.] 1. That which is taken as food; food or supply of food, now only that composing a meal; hence, a meal; feast. "Go and get me some repast." Shak.

And frequent cups prolong the rich repast. Pope.

2. Act of taking food; also, mealtime; as, after their noon repast.

From dance to sweet repast they turn. Milton.

3. Refreshment of body; also, repose. Obs.

re·past', v. t. & i. To supply food to; to feast; feed. Rare.

re·pas'ture (rē·pȧs'tŭr), n. [See REPAST.] Food; entertainment. Rare.

re·pa'ten·cy (rē·pā'tĕn·sĭ; rē·pāt'-), n. [re- + patency.] Med. The state of being open after temporary closure.

re·pa'tri·ate (rē·pā'trĭ·āt; esp. Brit., -păt'rĭ-), v. t. & i.; -AT'ED (-āt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -AT'ING (-āt'ĭng). [LL. repatriare. See 1st REPAIR.] To restore or return to one's own country, allegiance, or citizenship; as, to repatriate prisoners of war on the conclusion of peace; to restore to the country of origin; as, to repatriate gold. — re·pa'tri·a·ble (-ȧ·b'l), adj.

re·pa'tri·ate, n. One who is repatriated.

re·pa'tri·a'tion (-ā'shŭn), n. [ML. repatriatio.] Act of restoring to one's own country or place of origin; state of being repatriated.

re·pay' (rē·pā'), n. Repayment. Rare.

re·pay' (rē·pā'), v.; -PAID' (-pād'); -PAY'ING. [OF. repaier (F. repayer). See RE-; PAY, v.] Transitive: 1. To pay back; refund; also, to make requital for; to recompense; return; as, to repay a loan, a kindness.

2. To pay back what is owed or due to (one); to compensate; to requite; as, to repay one fully for his favors; to be well repaid for one's efforts.

3. To give or inflict in payment, return, or requital.

Ye lovesick Bards, repay her scorn for scorn. Keats.

——, Intransitive: To make payment, return, or requital.

Syn. — Restore, return, compensate, remunerate, reimburse, requite.

re·pay'a·ble (-ȧ·b'l), adj. That may be, or is to be, repaid.

re·pay'al (-ăl), n. Repayment.

re·pay'ing, adj. Remunerative; profitable.

re·pay'ment (rē·pā'mĕnt), n. A repaying; reimbursement; also, act of requiting, returning, or recompensing.

re·peal' (rē·pēl'), v. t.; -PEALED' (-pēld'); -PEAL'ING. [OF. rapeler to call back (F. rappeler), fr. re- re- + apeler (F. appeler), to call, fr. L. appellare. See APPEAL.] 1. To recall, as a deed, grant, will, law, sentence, or statute; to revoke; to rescind or abrogate by authority, as by act of the legislature; as, to repeal a law.

2. To recall; to summon to return, as from exile. Obs.

I here forget all former griefs, Cancel all grudge, repeal thee home again. Shak.

3. To abandon; forgo; to renounce; to retract. Now Rare.

All past forgivenesses it repealed. Wordsworth.

Syn. — Rescind, annul, cancel, reverse. See ABOLISH.

Ant. — Confirm; enforce; enact, execute.

re·peal', n. [OF. rapel (F. rappel), fr. the v.] 1. Recall, as from exile. Obs.

When she for thy repeal was suppliant. Shak.

2. Revocation; rescission; abrogation; as, the repeal of a statute; the repeal of a law. Specif., Eng. Hist., annulment of the Articles of Union (1800) between Great Britain and Ireland, as demanded by various Irish parties.

3. Means of escape or release. Rare.

re·peal'a·ble (rē·pēl'ȧ·b'l), adj. Capable of being repealed. — re·peal'a·bil'i·ty (-bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), re·peal'a·ble·ness, n.

re·peal'er (-ēr) n. a One who repeals; one who seeks a repeal; specif. [cap.], Eng. Hist., an advocate for repeal of the Articles of Union between Great Britain and Ireland. b U. S. A legislative bill that abrogates an earlier law.

re·peal'ist (-ĭst), n. One who advocates repeal, as of some specific legislative measure.

re·peat' (rē·pēt'), v.; -PEAT'ED; -PEAT'ING. [OF. repeter, fr. L. repetere, fr. re- re- + petere to fall upon, attack, seek. See PETITION.] Transitive: 1. To say or utter again; to reiterate; as, to repeat a command, or a question.

2. Obs. a To seek, undergo, or encounter again. b To demand or require restitution of.

3. To make, do, or perform, again; as, to repeat an attempt or a feat; to present, go over, cover, etc., again; as, to repeat a play or a grade in school.

4. To say over from memory; to recite; also, to say or utter after another; as, to repeat a poem or a teacher's words.

5. Formerly, to relate; to recount; now, to divulge by relating again; as, this confidence must not be repeated; the child repeats everything she hears at home.

6. To cause to recur or appear again, esp. at regular intervals; as, to repeat a figure in a design.

——, Intransitive: To say, utter, or do, again what has been said, uttered, or done; specif.: a Of a timepiece, to strike, when properly manipulated, the hour and, often, the half, quarter, or smaller division of an hour last struck or past. b U. S. To vote more than once at an election, in violation of law. c To recur. d Of a firearm, to fire or be capable of firing many shots in rapid succession without reloading. e To be enrolled as a repeater.

Syn. — REPEAT, REITERATE. To REPEAT is to say or do something over again; REITERATE applies to words more frequently than to actions, and sometimes suggests repetition again and again; as, to repeat a successful performance; to repeat a question; reiterated protestations of regret.

repeat oneself. a To appear again in the same character. b To do or say what one has already done or said.

re·peat' (rē·pēt'), n. 1. Act of repeating; repetition.

2. A repetition or that which is repeated, as a reorder of merchandise, a repeated telegraph message, a repeated figure in a textile design.

3. Obs. a A recital; account. b A part occurring repeatedly, as a refrain.

4. Music a A passage to be repeated in performance. b A sign consisting of a vertical series of two or four dots, placed before and after, or often only at the end of, a passage to be repeated. A passage or piece to be partly repeated may be also marked D. C. (da capo) or D. S. (dal segno) to (𝄋) be repeated "from the beginning" or "from the sign (𝄋)," and the repetition may end at a point marked fine or 𝄐.

Repeat, 4.

5. Weaving. The number of threads necessary to make each repeated figure.

re·peat'a·ble (rē·pēt'ȧ·b'l), adj. That may be repeated; esp., said or told again; specif., admitting publication. — re·peat'a·bil'i·ty (-bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n.

re·peat'al (-ăl; -l), n. Repetition. Rare.

re·peat'ed (rē·pēt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj. That is repeated; said, done, performed, etc., again or frequently; happening, appearing, etc., again and again; as, a repeated performance, course, or design; repeated changes of plans. — re·peat'ed·ly, adv.

re·peat'er (-ēr), n. 1. One who or that which repeats; as: a One who relates or recites. b U. S. One who repeats at an election. Cf. FLOATER, 13 c. c In an audience, one who has attended the production before.

2. Arith. A repeating decimal.

3. Criminol. A recidivist.

4. Educ. A student enrolled in a grade, class, or course for the second (or a subsequent) time.

5. Firearms. A rapid-firing small arm, as a rifle, with a reservoir of cartridges, which is drawn upon from shot to shot, and when empty refilled by a clip (see 2d CLIP, 7). It has no cutoff. Cf. MAGAZINE GUN.

6. Gambling. At roulette, a number that comes up twice or more in succession.

7. Horol. A watch with a striking apparatus which, upon pressure of a spring, will indicate the time, usually in hours and quarters.

8. Naut. In a gyrocompass, a device having a compass card and lubber's line, and receiving electrically the indications from the master compass.

9. Nav. a Now Rare. A ship which repeats a signal made by one vessel, usually the flagship, to another. In former times, a frigate attached to the flagship for this duty. b A pennant used to repeat a flag above it in signal hoist, so that no two flags in one hoist are the same.

10. Rolling Mills. A trough-shaped, semicircular, horizontal guide to deflect the rod from one pass into the next.

11. Sports. An animal or athlete who duplicates or repeats a feat.

12. Teleg. An arrangement for receiving signals from one line and retransmitting corresponding signals into another line. See TRANSLATION.

13. Telephony. a A vacuum-tube amplifier, inserted at proper intervals in long-distance telephone transmission lines, which is capable of delivering to the line an amplified copy of the received message. b Teleg. A solenoid-operated relay or repeater, inserted in a telegraph line at proper locations, which receives the incoming message and delivers to the line an amplified copy.

re·peat'er, v. t. Teleg. To join (two telegraphic circuits) by means of a repeater so as to transmit a through long-distance message.

re·peat'ing, pres. part. & verbal n. of REPEAT.

repeating circle. Astron. & Surv. See CIRCLE, n., 12; REPEATING METHOD.

repeating coil. Elec. A transformer used in a telephone system to associate two circuits. Cf. RELAY, n., 3. repeating decimal. Math. A decimal fraction in which only a single figure recurs or is repeated ad infinitum, as .133333 + ; also, sometimes, a circulating decimal. See CIRCULATE, v. i., 3; REPETEND, 1.

repeating firearm. A firearm that may be discharged many times in quick succession; esp.: a A form of firearm so constructed that by the action of the mechanism the charges are successively introduced from a chamber containing them into the breech of the barrel, and fired. b A form in which the charges are held in, and discharged from, a revolving chamber at the breech of the barrel. See REVOLVER, 1; RIFLE.

repeating instrument. Astron. & Surv. An instrument for observing angles by the repeating method (see below).

repeating method. Astron. & Surv. A method of measuring an angle, with instruments of only moderate precision, in which several measurements are taken on as many adjacent portions of the graduated arc. This whole angle, divided by the number of observations, will give the required angle with the graduation error of the instrument and other errors considerably reduced.

repeating ship. Nav. = REPEATER, 9 a.

repeating watch. = REPEATER, 7.

repeat order. A reorder. Colloq.

re·pel' (rē·pĕl'), v.; -PELLED' (-pĕld'); -PEL'LING. [L. repellere, repulsum, fr. re- re- + pellere to drive. See 2d PULSE; cf. REPULSE.] Transitive: 1. To drive away, remove; extinguish. Obs.

2. To drive back; to force to return; to check the advance of; to repulse; as, to repel an enemy or an assailant.

3. To resist or oppose effectually; as, to repel an assault, an encroachment, or an argument. Also, Rare, to ward off; as, to repel a sword thrust or a wound.

---

re·pair'a·ble, adj. See -ABLE. — re·pair'a·ble·ness, n.

re·paird'. Repaired. Ref. Sp.

re·pair'ment, n. [OF. reparement.] A repairing, or renewing. Obs.

re·pale', v. t., re·pan'el, v. t., re·pa'par, v. t. & i. See RE-, 2.

rep'a·ra·bl. Reparable. Ref. Sp.

re·par'a·graph, v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·par'a·tiv. Reparative. Ref. Sp.

re·par'el, n. [OF. reparcil a repairing. See RE-; APPAREL.] Apparel; fittings. Obs.

re·par'el, v. t. [OF. reparaillier.] To repair; recover; restore; array; contrive. Obs.

re·park', v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·part', v. t. [F. répartir.] To distribute. Obs.

re'par·take', v. t. See RE-, 2.

re'par·tic'i·pate, v. i. See RE-, 2. — re'par·tic'i·pa'tion, n.

repartite, v. t. [From repartition.] Distribute; allot. Obs.

re'par·ti'tion·a·ble, adj. See -ABLE.

re·pass'a·ble, adj. See -ABLE.

re·pas'sion, n. [re- + passion; cf. OF. repassion.] Effect of an action reacting on the agent. Obs.

re·pasto', v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·past'er, n. One who takes a repast. Obs.

re·pas'ti·nate (rē·pȧs'tĭ·nāt), v. t. [L. repastinatus, past part. of repastinare.] To dig (about something) again; to cultivate (sense 1). Obs. — re·pas'ti·na'tion (-nā'shŭn), n. Obs.

re·patch', v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·pat'ent, v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·pa'tron·ize, v. t., re·pat'tern, v. t., re·pave', v. t., re·pave'ment, n., re·pawn', v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·peald'. Repealed. Ref. Sp.

re·peal'less, adj. See -LESS.

re·peal'ment, n. Recall, as from banishment. Obs.

re·pease', v. t. [OF. repaisier, rapaisier.] To appease. Obs.

repeated twinning. Cryst. See TWIN, n., 5.

re·peg', v. t. See RE-, 2.

4. To turn away; to refuse to receive, to reject; repulse; as, to repel a suit or suitor; to repel a dogma; to repel a suggestion. "I did repel his letters." Shak.
5. To be incapable of adhering to, mixing with, or the like, as mercury to glass or oil with water.
6. To cause aversion in; as, the prospect repelled him.
They repelled each other strongly. Macaulay.
7. To restrain; debar; shut out. Obs.
8. Med. To force back into the system or check the development of, as tumors, eruptions, or the like. Now Rare.
9. Physics. To force or drive away or apart, or tend to do so, by mutual action at a distance; as, two like electric charges repel one another; — opposed to attract.
—, Intransitive: To act with force in opposition to force exerted; to exercise repulsion; to cause aversion.
Syn. — Rebuff; refuse; disgust, revolt.
Ant. — Court; attract, fascinate, lure. re·pel'len·cy (rē·pĕl'ĕn·sĭ), n. Also re·pel'lence (-ĕns). The quality or capacity of repelling; repulsion.
re·pel'lent (-ĕnt), adj. [L. repellens, -entis, pres. part.] 1. That repels or tends to repel, esp. by driving away or warding off; as, a mosquito-repellent spray; a moisture-repellent fabric.
2. That repels, or checks, advances or interest; arousing aversion or repugnance; forbidding; as, a repellent attitude; to make religion unlovely and repellent.
Syn. — Repellent, repulsive, revolting, are arranged in the order of strength; as, "He saw the beautiful city for the first time as if sheathed austerely in repellent armor" (W. Pater); "Burns is a beast, with splendid gleams, and the medium in which he lived, Scotch peasants . . . and Scotch drink, is repulsive" (M. Arnold); a revolting crime.
re·pel'lent, n. That which repels; specif.: a Med. A medicine, as an application, which serves to repel (see REPEL, v. t., 8). b A kind of waterproof cloth. c A substance obnoxious to insects and employed to prevent their attacks; as, naphthalene is a repellent for the clothes moth.
re·pel'ler (-ĕr), n. One who or that which repels. re'pent (rē'pĕnt), adj. [L. repens, -entis, creeping, pres. part. of repere to creep. See REPTILE.] Bot. & Zool. Creeping; prostrate; reptant. re·pent' (rē·pĕnt'), v.; -PENT'ED; -PENT'ING. [OF. repentir, fr. L. re- re- + poenitere to make repent, poenitet me it repents me, I repent. See PENITENT.] Intransitive: 1. Theol. To amend or resolve to amend one's life as a result of contrition for one's sins.
Except ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish. Luke xiii. 3.
2. To change one's mind or one's heart with regard to past or intended action, conduct, etc., on account of regret or dissatisfaction; as, do it before he repents.
3. To feel regret, contrition, or compunction, for what one has done or omitted to do; as, to marry in haste and repent at leisure; — also with of.
I never did repent for doing good, nor shall not now. Shak.
—, Transitive: 1. To cause (one or oneself) to repent; to bring to repentance, regret, or change of heart. Archaic.
And it repented the Lord that he had made man on earth. Gen. vi. 6.
2. To have repentance for; to do penance for; as, to repent his sins in sackcloth and ashes.
3. To feel sorrow, regret, or compunction for; to be dissatisfied or regretful about; as, to repent a bargain, a course of action, or one's rashness.
My loss I mourn, but not repent it. Burns. re·pent', adj. & n. Repenting. Obs.
re·pent'ance (rē·pĕn'tăns), n. [OF.] Act of repenting, or state of being penitent; specif., contrition for sins with amendment of life.
For what is true repentance but in thought —
Not ev'n in unmost thought to think again
The sins that made the past so pleasant to us. Tennyson.
Syn. — Regret, penitence, compunction. See CONTRITION. re·pent'ant (-tănt), n. A penitent. Rare.
re·pent'ant (-tănt), adj. [OF., pres. part.] 1. That repents, esp. for one's sins; penitent.
2. Expressing or showing repentance; as, repentant tears.
re·pent'er (-tĕr), n. One who repents.
re·peo'ple (rē·pē'p'l), v. t. [F. repeupler.] To people anew; also, to restock, as with animals.
re·per'cept (rē·pûr'sĕpt), n. A repetition of a percept. R.
re'per·co·la'tion (rē'pûr·kō·lā'shŭn), n. Percolation again or anew; specif., Pharm., the process of repeatedly percolating the same menstruum through fresh material. re'per·cuss' (rē'pĕr·kŭs'), v. t.; -CUSSED' (-kŭst'); -CUSS'ING. [L. repercussus, past part. of repercutere to drive back, fr. re- re- + percutere. See PERCUSSION.] To drive or beat back; hence, to reflect; reverberate. Now Rare.
re'per·cus'sion (-kŭsh'ŭn), n. [F. or L.; F. répercussion, fr. L. repercussio.] 1. A driving or forcing back of one thing by another, or the state of being driven back; repulse; recoil; as, the repercussion of waves from a sea wall; also, reflection; reverberation; as, the repercussion of sound.
2. An impact, blow, or the like, given in return; hence, a reciprocal action or effect; as, repercussions of the Treaty of Versailles.
3. Obs. a Return, as of a blow. b A reflection; also, a color resulting from reflection.
4. Med. The action of a repellent in causing the subsidence of a swelling or the like; also, a repellent or repercussive.
5. Music. a The reiteration of a tone or chord. b The dominant in a Gregorian chant. c The re-entrance of a fugue subject and answer after the development or an episode.
6. Obstetrics. Ballottement. re'per·cus'sive (-kŭs'ĭv), adj. [F. répercussif.] 1. Med. Repellent. Obs.
2. That causes or can cause repercussion; reverberating.
Ye repercussive rocks! repeat the sound. W. Pattison.
3. Driven back; resounding; reverberated; reflected.
Rages loud the repercussive roar. Thomson.
— re'per·cus'sive·ly, adv. — re'per·cus'sive·ness, n.
re'per·cus'sive, n. A repellent. Obs. re'per·cus'sor (-ĕr), n. Med. A repellent. Obs.
re'per·cu'tient (rē'pĕr·kū'shĕnt), adj. [L. repercutiens, -entis, pres. part. of repercutere.] Med. a Obs. Repellent. b Obstetrics. Causing or pertaining to repercussion.

rep'er·i·ble (rĕp'ĕr·ĭ·b'l), adj. [L. reperire find.] Discoverable. Rare.
rep'er·toire (rĕp'ĕr·twär; -twōr; 277), or ‖re'per'toire' (F. rā'pĕr'twär'), n. [F. répertoire. See REPERTORY.] A list of dramas, operas, pieces, parts, etc., which a company or a person has thoroughly rehearsed and is prepared to perform; a repertory. rep'er·to'ri·al (rĕp'ĕr·tō'rĭ·ăl; 181), adj. Of or pertaining to a repertory.
rep'er·to'ri·ly (-rĭ·lĭ), adv. In the manner of a play performed as a part of a repertory; hence, in a stock fashion. rep'er·to'ri·um (rĕp'ĕr·tō'rĭ·ŭm; 181), n. [LL.] A repository; repertory. Rare.
rep'er·to'ry (rĕp'ĕr·tō'rĭ or, esp. Brit., -tĕr·ĭ), n.; pl. -RIES (-rĭz). [LL. repertorium, fr. reperire to find, find out, acquire, partly fr. re- + -periri (as in experiri to try, experience), and partly fr. re- + pario I obtain, produce. See RE-; EXPERIENCE, PARE.] 1. A list, index, catalogue, or calendar. Obs. exc. Canadian French Law.
2. A treasury; magazine; storehouse; a collection.
3. = REPERTOIRE.
4. Libraries. A union catalogue. repertory theater. A theater housing a permanent company which plays in repertoire.
rep'e·tend (rĕp'ē·tĕnd; rēp'ē·tĕnd'), n. [L. repetendus to be repeated, fr. repetere to repeat.] 1. Math. A group of one or more digits (including 0), which repeated indefinitely always in the same order constitutes a repeating or circulating decimal; thus, .333 . . . is a repeating and .03205205 . . . is a circulating decimal, the repetends being 3 and 205. Such decimals are usually indicated by dots over the repetend, thus: .3̇ and .0320̇5̇.
2. A refrain; a repeated or recurrent tone, sound, or phrase.
"Subtle and haunting repetends." Atlantic Monthly.
3. Rhet. The partial repetition of a word or phrase, as in he read the readings.
rep'e·tend, adj. Of the nature of, or characterized by, a repetend. rep'e·ti'tion (rĕp'ē·tĭsh'ŭn), n. [F. répétition, fr. L. repetitio. See REPEAT.] 1. Act of repeating; act of doing or saying, or fact of occurring, appearing, or the like, again or repeatedly; as, repetition of a feat or of a figure in a design.
2. Act of repeating in order to learn, as a lesson or a role.
3. Act of reciting, as something learned; that which is to be recited; also, recital; mention; as, spare us a repetition of our faults.
4. A copy; a reproduction; a replica.
5. Rehearsal. Obs.
6. Astron. & Surv. Measurement of an angle by the repeating method (which see).
7. Music. a The reiteration of a note or chord for a sustained effect, as in pianoforte playing. b In a musical instrument, the ability to repeat a tone in rapid succession; as, an organ defective in repetition.
8. Rhet. Reiteration; also, repeating of the same word.
9. Scots Law. Claim of restitution or repayment; also, loosely, restitution, recovery, or restoration.
Syn. — Iteration, reiteration, recapitulation. rep'e·ti'tion, v. t. See RE-, 2. rep'e·ti'tion·al (rĕp'ē·tĭsh'ŭn·ăl; -'l), rep'e·ti'tion·ar'y (-ĕr'ĭ or, esp. Brit., -ĕr·ĭ), adj. Of the nature of, or containing, repetition. Rare.
rep'e·ti'tious (rĕp'ē·tĭsh'ŭs), adj. That repeats; containing repetition; esp., characterized by repetitions; tediously repeating. — rep'e·ti'tious·ly, adv. — rep'e·ti'tious·ness, n.
re·pet'i·tive (rē·pĕt'ĭ·tĭv), adj. Containing repetition; repeating; repetitious. — re·pet'i·tive·ly, adv. — re·pet'i·tive·ness, n.
re·pet'i·to'ry (-tō'rĭ or, esp. Brit., -tĕr·ĭ), adj. That summarizes or instructs in the manner of a repetitor; informative.
Reph'a·im (rĕf'ā·ĭm; rē·fā'ĭm), n. pl. [Heb. rĕphā'īm shades, ghosts.] Bib. A race of reputed ancient giants inhabiting Palestine. A valley southwest of Jerusalem was known as the Valley of Rephaim. 2 Sam. v. 18.
re·phrase' (rē·frāz'), v. t. To phrase anew or in a new form.
re·pine' (rē·pīn'), v.; -PINED' (-pīnd'); -PIN'ING (-pīn'ĭng). [re- + pine to languish.] Intransitive: 1. To feel or express dejection or discontent; to complain; fret; grumble; as, to repine at one's lot; to waste time repining.
What if the head, the eye, or ear repined
To serve mere engines to the ruling mind. Pope.
2. To fail; to wane. Spenser.
—, Transitive: To regard or think of with regret or discontent; to complain of; to lament.
re·pine', n. Vexation; repining; complaint. Obs.
re·pine'ment (-mĕnt), n. Repining. Rare.
re·pin'er (rē·pīn'ĕr), n. One who repines. re·pique' (rē·pēk'), n. [F. repic.] In piquet, a scoring of thirty or more points before leading a card and before one's opponent has scored. Its value is sixty points.
re·pique', v. t.; -PIQUED' (rē·pēkt'); -PI'QUING (-pē'kĭng). To make a repique against. — v. i. To make a repique. rep'kie (rĕp'kĭ), n. [Perh. fr. Alaskan Ind., but cf. Russ. repeĭ bur, burdock.] Any edible sea urchin. Alaska.
re·place' (rē·plās'), v. t.; -PLACED' (-plāst'); -PLAC'ING (-plās'ĭng). [re- + place; cf. F. replacer.] 1. To place again; to restore to a former place, position, condition, or the like; as, to replace a card in a file.
2. To take the place of; to serve as a substitute for, or successor of; supplant; as, paper money replaced specie; the new servant replaced one long in service.
3. To fill the place of; to supply an equivalent for; as, unable to replace a lost book.
4. To restore; to pay back; as, to replace stolen money.
Syn. — REPLACE, SUPERSEDE, SUPPLANT. To REPLACE is merely to take or fill the place of something; SUPERSEDE commonly implies the setting aside of that which is replaced; to SUPPLANT is to supersede, esp. by stratagem or underhand means; as, to replace a servant; to replace a lost book; he was superseded by an officer whom he had once outranked; "Thy brother came with subtilty, and hath taken away thy blessing. And he said, Is not he rightly named Jacob? for he hath supplanted me these two times" (Gen. xxvii. 35, 36). Cf. DISPLACE.

re·placed' crys'tal (rē·plāst'). Cryst. A crystal the like edges or angles of whose dominant form are replaced by the faces of some other form.
re·place'ment (rē·plās'mĕnt), n. 1. Act of replacing, or state of being replaced.
2. Cryst. The removal of an edge or an angle by one or more faces.
3. Something which replaces that which is worn out, discarded, etc.; also, pl., the cost of such replacements.

Replacement (1) of the Angles of a Cube by Octahedral Faces; (2) of the Angles of an Octahedron by Cubic Faces (c, c).

4. Accounting. A new fixed asset, or portion of an asset, which takes the place of a discarded asset, or portion of an asset.
5. Mil. A trained individual available for assignment to a unit to replace a loss or complete a quota.
replacement cost. Accounting. The cost of replacing an asset with a new one of equal effectiveness. replacement vein, or replacement deposit. Geol. A substitution vein or deposit.
re·plac'er (rē·plās'ĕr), n. One who or that which replaces; specif., Railroads, a wrecking frog, or an inclined platform answering the same purpose.
re·plant' (rē·plănt'; 83), v. t. [Cf. F. replanter.] To plant again or anew. — re·plant'er (-plăn'tĕr), n.
re·plant', n. Something planted again or anew; specif., Hort., a plant used to fill a vacancy in a row or planting, esp. after the first or initial planting.
re'plan·ta'tion (rē'plăn·tā'shŭn), n. 1. A planting again.
2. Dentistry. = REIMPLANTATION. re·plead'er (rē·plēd'ĕr), n. [re- + obs. pleader, fr. F. plaider, inf. as n., or in imitation of similar nouns.] Law. A second pleading, or course of pleadings; also, the right of pleading again.
re·pledge' (rē·plĕj'), v. t. [OF. replegier.] To pledge again or anew; specif., Obs. exc. Hist., to take upon giving of surety or pledge, as in taking a person or cause from another court (formerly in Scots Law), replevying, etc. — re·pledg'er (-plĕj'ĕr), n.
re·plen'ish (rē·plĕn'ĭsh), v.; RE·PLEN'ISHED (-ĭsht); RE·PLEN'ISH·ING. [ME. replenissen, fr. OF. replenir, fr. L. re- re- + plenus full. See PLENTY; cf. 2d -ISH.] Transitive: 1. To fill or stock with persons, animals, or both; to people. "Multiply and replenish the earth." Gen. i. 28.
2. To fill completely, throughout, or to repletion. Specif.: a Obs. To occupy or pervade all parts of. "She saw the blood his cheeks replenish." Shak. b To fill (the soul, heart, a person) with inspiration, power, transport, or the like.
Reaching, that Heaven might so replenish him, Above and through his art. Browning.
3. To supply fully; to perfect, as by equipping completely.
For his hive had so long been replenished with honey. Wordsworth.
4. To fill again, esp. after having been emptied; to stock anew; to refill; as, to replenish one's purse.
5. Finance. To remargin (a loan).
—, Intransitive: To become full, full-grown, etc.; to fill up again. Rare.
re·plen'ish, n. A replenishing. Rare.
re·plen'ish·er (-ĕr), n. One who or that which replenishes; specif., Elec., a small electrostatic influence, or induction, machine used to maintain the charge of an electrometer or other device.
re·plen'ish·ment (-mĕnt), n. 1. Act of replenishing, or state of being replenished.
2. That which replenishes; supply.
re·plete' (rē·plēt'), adj. [OF. replet, fr. L. repletus, past part. of replere to fill again, fill up, fr. re- re- + plere to fill; akin to L. plenus full. See REPLENISH; cf. SUPPLY.] 1. Filled; filled to capacity; of persons, sated or gorged with food or drink; surfeited.
When he of wine was replet at his feast. Chaucer.
2. Provided fully or abundantly; copiously supplied; fully or richly charged, impregnated, imbued, etc.; as, a biography replete with shrewd comments; a book replete with wisdom.
3. Filled out; bloated; fat; stout.
A family of replete and bilious ogres. Owen Wister.
4. Entirely perfect; complete. Rare.
Syn. — See FULL. Ant. — Wanting, lacking. re·plete', n. Among ants, a worker capable of greatly distending its abdomen and serving as a reservoir of liquid food for the rest of the colony. See HONEY ANT.
re·plete', v. t. 1. To fill, esp. to satiety; stock; supply. Obs.
2. To replenish. Rare.
re·ple'tion (rē·plē'shŭn), n. [OF., fr. LL. repletio a filling up. See REPLETE.] 1. Act of making, or state of being, replete; esp., the condition of being fully satisfied, surfeited, overfed, overcrowded, or the like; as, to eat to repletion; a hall filled to repletion.
2. Med. Fullness of blood; plethora. re·ple'tive (-tĭv), adj. [F. réplétif.] Tending to make replete; filling. — re·ple'tive·ly, adv.
re·ple'to·ry (-tō·rĭ), adj. Repletive. Rare.
re·plev'i·a·ble (rē·plĕv'ĭ·ă·b'l), adj. Capable of being replevied.
re·plev'in (rē·plĕv'ĭn), n. [AF. replevine, fr. OF. replevir to protect, give security for, fr. re- re- + plevir to pledge, fr. same source as OF. pleige guaranty. See PLEDGE; cf. REPLEVY, PLEVIN.] Law. a The return to, or recovery by, a person of goods or chattels wrongfully taken or detained (originally of those taken by wrongful distress, but now generally of any goods wrongfully taken or detained) upon giving security to try the matter in court and return the goods if defeated in the action. b The writ by, or the action in, which goods and chattels are replevied. c Act of bailing a person, or the bail given.
re·plev'in, v. t. 1. Law. To replevy.
2. To recover by seizure. Rare.
re·plev'i·sa·ble (-ĭ·sä·b'l), adj. [AF. replevissable.] Replevyable. Now Rare.
re·plev'i·sor (rē·plĕv'ĭ·sĕr), n. One who makes replevin.
re·plev'y (-ĭ), v. t.; -PLEV'IED (-ĭd); -PLEV'Y·ING. [OF. replevir. See REPLEVIN.] Law. a Obs. To bail, or admit re·peld'. Repelled. Ref. Sp.

re·pel'lance, re·pel'lant. = REPELLENCE, etc.
re·pel'lent·ly, adv. of REPELLENT. re·pel'ling, pres. part. & verbal n. of REPEL. — re·pel'ling·ly, adv. — re·pel'ling·ness, n.
re·pen', v. i., re·pen'e·trate, v. t., re·pen'sion, v. t. See RE-, 2.
re·pent'a·ble, adj. See -ABLE.
repentance, or repenting, stool. = STOOL OF REPENTANCE. [ANT.] re·pent'ant·ly, adv. of REPENTrep'en·tine, adj. [L. repentinus; cf. OF. repentin.] Sudden. Obs.
re·pent'ing·ly, adv. of repenting, pres. part.
re·pen'tive, adj. Repentant. Obs.
re'per·ceive', v. t., re'per·cep'tion, n., re'per·form', v. t., re'per·form'ance, n., re'per·fume', v. t. See RE-, 2. re'per·mit', v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'per·mis'sion, n.
re'per·plex', v. t. See RE-, 2. re'per·son·al·ize, v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'per·son·al·i·za'tion, n. re'per·suade', v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'per·sua'sion, n.
re'pe·ruse', v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'pe·rus'al (rē'pē·rōōz'ăl), n.
re·pet'ti·coat, v. t. See RE-, 1. re·pew', v. t. See RE-, 2.
Re'pha·el (rē'fā·ĕl; rĕf'ā-). Bib.
Re'phah (rē'fä). Bib.
Re·pha'ish (rē·fā'yĭ; -fī'ä). Bib.
Reph'a·ims (rĕf'ā·ĭmz; rē·fā'-). Bib. See REPHAIM. [PHAN. Bib.
Re'phan (rē'făn). Var. of REM-] re·phase', v. t. See RE-, 2.
Reph'i·dim (rĕf'ĭ·dĭm). Bib.
re·pho'nate, v. t., re'phos·phor·i·za'tion, n., re·phos'phor·ize, v. t., re·pho'to·graph, v. t. See RE-, 2.
re·pic' (rē·pēk'), n. & v. [F.] = REPIQUE. re·pick', v. t., re·pic'ture, v. t., re·piece', v. t. See RE-, 2. repier. + REPFLER. [RE-, 2.] re·pile', v. t., re·pin', v. t. See re·pine'ful, adj. See -FUL. re·pin'ing·ly, adv. of repining, pres. part. [RE-, 2.] re·pipe', v. t., re·pitch', v. t. See re·place'a·ble, adj. See -ABLE. — re·place'a·bil'i·ty, n.
re·plait', v. t., re·plan', v. t., re·plane', v. t. See RE-, 2.
re·plant'a·ble, adj. See -ABLE.
re·plas'ter, v. t., re·plate', v. t. & i., re·play', v. t. & n., re·plead', v. t. & i., re·pleat', v. t. See RE-, 2. re·ple'gi·a're, n. [ML., int. to replevy.] Law. Replevin. Obs. re·pleg'i·a·tion (rē·plē'jĭ·ā'shŭn), n. [ML. replegiatio.] Scots Law. Replegging. Obs.
re·plen'ish·ing·ly, adv. of replenishing, pres. part. [Sp.] Ref. re·plen'ished. Replenished. Ref.
re·plete'ly, adv. of REPLETE.
re·plete'ness, n. See -NESS. re·ple'tiv. Repletive. Ref. Sp. repletive ubiety. See UBIETY. re·pleve', v. t. & i. [Cf. REPLEVY.] To replevy. Obs. repleven. + REPLEVIN. re·plev'id. Replevied. Ref. Sp. re·plev'ind. Replevined. Ref. Sp. re·plev'ish, v. t. [OF. replevir, 3d pl. pres. replevissent.] To replevy. Obs. re·plev'ish, v. t. Errcn. for REPLENISH. Obs.

to bail. b To take or get back by a writ for replevin. See REPLEVIN a. c To seize under a writ of replevin; — said of a sheriff or bailiff. — v. i. Law. To recover goods by replevin. Also, of a sheriff or bailiff, to execute a writ of replevin.

re·plev'y (rē·plĕv'ĭ), n. Law. Replevin.

re·pli'ant (rē·plī'ănt), n. [F.] One who makes replication.

rep'li·ca (rĕp'lĭ·kȧ), n. [It., fr. replicare to repeat, reply. See REPLY, v. & n.] 1. Fine Arts. A reproduction, facsimile, or copy, as of a picture or statue, by the maker of the original and assumed to be of equal value.
2. A facsimile or very close copy; as, the son was a replica of the father.
3. Music. A passage to be repeated; a repeat.
Syn. — See DUPLICATE.

replica grating. Physics. A diffraction grating formed by molding a film of collodion, etc., on an original ruled grating.

rep'li·cate (rĕp'lĭ·kĭt), adj. Also rep'li·cat'ed (-kāt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119). [L. replicatus, past part. of replicare. See REPLY.] 1. Folded over or backward; folded back upon itself.
2. Multifold; manifold; repeated.
3. Agric. Repeated. See REPLICATION, 6. rep'li·cate (-kāt), v.; -CAT'ED (-kāt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -CAT'ING (-kāt'ĭng). [L. replicatus, past part. of replicare. See REPLY.] Transitive: 1. To reply. Rare.

2. To duplicate; repeat; to repeat frequently.
3. To fold or bend back, as a leaf.
—, Intransitive: To duplicate; to be a replica. Rare.

rep'li·cate (-kĭt), n. [See REPLICATE, v.] Music. A repeated tone one or more octaves above or below a given tone.

re·plic'a·tile (rē·plĭk'ȧ·tĭl), adj. [See REPLICATE, v.] Zool. Capable of being folded back on itself, as the wing of some insects.

rep'li·ca'tion (rĕp'lĭ·kā'shŭn), n. [OF., fr. L. replicatio. See REPLY.] 1. A folding; fold. Rare.
2. Reply; an answer; specif., a rejoinder.
3. Return or repercussion, as of sound; echo.
4. Act or result of reproducing; a reproduction; copy.
5. Act of repeating; repetition. Obs.
6. Agric. The systematic repetition of test rows or plats to reduce errors due to variation in soil, etc.
7. Pleading. The plaintiff's or complainant's reply in matters of fact to the defendant's plea or answer.
8. Roman Law. See FORMULA, 8.

rep'li·ca'tive (rĕp'lĭ·kā'tĭv), adj. Of or pertaining to replication; replicate; also, Rare, repletive. — rep'li·ca'tive·ly, adv.

rep'li·ca·to'ry (rĕp'lĭ·kȧ·tō'rĭ), adj. Serving as, or of the nature of, a reply. Rare.

re·pli'er (rē·plī'ĕr), n. One who replies.

re·plot' (rē·plŏt'), v. t. To plot out again. — re·plot'ment (-mĕnt), n.

re·plot'ter (rē·plŏt'ĕr), n. One who or that which replots; specif., Gun., a device for finding quickly the distance and direction of the target from its distance and direction as observed from the range finder.

rep'lum (rĕp'lŭm; rē'plŭm), n. [L., a bolt for covering the commissure of the folding door.] Bot. The placental framework, or thin false dissepiment, separating the two valves of some monocarpellary fruits, as siliques and some legumes, from which the valves fall away at maturity.

re·plume' (rē·plōōm'; 242), v. t. To plume anew; to preen.

re·ply' (rē·plī'), v.; -PLIED' (-plīd'); -PLY'ING (-plī'ĭng). [ME. replien, fr. OF. replier, reploier, to bend back, F. replier (cf. F. répliquer to reply), fr. L. replicare to fold back, make a reply, fr. re- re- + plicare to fold. See PLY; cf. REPLICA.] Intransitive: 1. To make answer in words or writing; to respond; hence, to echo.

O man, who art thou that repliest against God? Rom. ix. 20.

2. To do something as response to something done; as, to reply to a signal; to reply to the fire of a battery.
3. Law. To answer a defendant's plea.
—, Transitive: 1. To return as an answer; — usually with object clause.
2. Obs. a To fold back. b To retract. c To re-echo or repeat (a cry, etc.).
Syn. — Answer, respond, rejoin.

re·ply', n.; pl. REPLIES (-plīz'). [See REPLY, v.] 1. That which is said, written, or done in answer to what is said, written, or done by another; an answer; a response.
2. Law. A replication; — now used only in Scots Law or code pleading Syn. — ANSWER, REPLY, REJOINDER, RETORT, REPARTEE are here compared in their nontechnical senses. An ANSWER is a response in speech or writing to a question, to a communication, or to an objection or opposing argument; REPLY is somewhat more formal than answer; as, "Will your answer serve fit to all questions?" (Shak.); "A soft answer turneth away wrath" (Prov. xv. 1.); an answer to a letter; "grave doubts and answers here proposed" (Tennyson); "Who is here so vile that will not love his country? — I pause for a reply" (Shak.); a reply to a charge. A REJOINDER is strictly a reply to a reply; as, "The new sacred word is ——; the reply ——; the rejoinder ——" (Byron); "Read some of Bowles's dispute about Pope, with all the replies and rejoinders" (id.). But rejoinder is often merely equivalent to reply; as, "'And what of the lady?' said she, in a tone of voice that admitted of no pacific rejoinder" (Trollope). A RETORT is a short and pointed reply, esp. one which turns the tables on an assailant; a REPARTEE (cf. BANTER) is a witty or clever, but good-natured, retort; as, "He sent me word, if I said his beard was not cut well, he was in the mind it was: this is called the Retort Courteous" (Shak.); cf. "What if thy son prove disobedient, and, reproved, retort, 'Wherefore didst thou beget me?'" (Milton); "that brilliant society which quoted, criticized, and exchanged repartees" (Macaulay); "I . . . may blunder on the borders of a repartee for half an hour together without striking it out" (Jane Austen).
Ant. — Question, query, interrogation.

reply card, or reply postal card. Post Office. A double (folded) postal card, each part bearing a printed stamp, the initial half used for addressing by the mailer, the other half for mailing in reply by the addressee.

reply coupon. = INTERNATIONAL REPLY COUPON.

rep'o·lon' (rĕp'ō·lŏn'), n. [F. repolon or It. repolone.] Manège. A kind of volt or demivolt. Rare.

‖ré'pon'dez' s'il vous plaît' (rā'pôn'dā' sēl vōō plĕ'). [F.] Answer, if you please. Abbr. R. S. V. P.

re·pone' (rē·pōn'), v. t. [L. reponere, fr. re- re- + ponere to place.] 1. Scots Law. To restore to former standing or office, as a minister to a former charge or a defaulting party in an action so that he may proceed; to replace.
2. To answer; to reply. Obs.

re·pope' (rē·pōp'), v. t. To make pope again. Browning.

re·port' (rē·pōrt'; 181), v.; -PORT'ED; -PORT'ING. [ME. reporten, fr. OF. reporter to carry back, carry (cf. F. rapporter to report; see RAPPORT), fr. L. reportare to bear or bring back, fr. re- re- + portare to bear or bring. See PORT to carry; cf. SUPPORT.] Transitive: 1. To give an account of; to relate; tell; narrate; Obs., describe; to circulate publicly.

Why does the world report that Kate doth limp? Shak.

2. To repeat, as something heard, said, or received as a message; hence, specif., to make minutes of, as a speech or debate; also, to prepare, as for publication, an account of; as, a reporter assigned to report a trial, a fire, etc.
3. To give a formal or official account or statement of; to state formally; as, a treasurer reports the receipts and expenditures; the general reports 10,000 men available.
4. To announce or relate, as what has been discovered by a person sent to examine, explore, or investigate; as, a detective reports his discoveries to his employer.
5. To prefer a charge of misconduct against (one) to a superior; as, to report a servant to his employer.
6. Obs. a To refer (another or oneself) for aid, information, confirmation, or credit; — used with to. b To re-echo or cause to re-echo.
7. Fireworks. To supply with a report.
8. Parl. Practice. To return or present (a matter officially referred) with the conclusions reached thereon; as, the committee reported the bill with amendments. See NOTE, Syn.
—, Intransitive: 1. a To give an account (of a person or thing); to tell; relate. "Of Salisbury, who can report of him, That winter lion?" Shak. b To give an account of oneself, one's whereabouts, condition, etc.; as, promising to report weekly by letter.
2. To make, issue, or submit, a report, esp. a formal report or statement; — often with on; as, the committee will report at twelve o'clock; he is now ready to report on the condition of the mine.
3. To act as a reporter; to furnish newspaper reports; as, Brown will report for the Times and Jones for the News.
4. To make one's presence, arrival, readiness for service, etc., known to the proper authority by presenting oneself; as, to report for duty; to report at Headquarters.
Syn. — Recite, describe, state.
— to be reported, to be reported of. To be spoken of; to be mentioned, whether favorably or unfavorably. Acts xvi. 2. — to report oneself. = REPORT, v. i., 4.

re·port' (rē·pōrt'; 181), n. [OF. report, or raport (F. rapport). See REPORT, v.] 1. Common talk or a story or statement circulating by common talk; rumor; a rumor; hence, fame; repute; reputation.

Cornelius the centurion, a just man . . . of good report among all the nation of the Jews. Acts x. 22.

2. a An account or relation, esp. of some matter specially investigated; as, the report of an expert upon a mine. b A sketch, or a fully written account, as of a speech, debate, or the proceedings of a public assembly, etc. c An official statement of facts, oral or written; as, the report of a Committee to the Senate. d A statement in writing of proceedings and facts exhibited by an officer to his superiors; as, the reports of the heads of departments to Congress, of a referee to the court. e A statement of misconduct; as, the monitor submitted reports against three boys.
3. An explosive noise; as, the report of a gun.
4. Rapport; relation; connection; reference. Obs.
5. Fireworks. An explosive charge of a rocket, etc.
6. Law. An account or statement of a judicial opinion or decision, or of a case argued and determined in a court of law, chancery, etc.; also, in the pl., the volumes containing such reports; as, Coke's Reports. In the complete and accurate form a report of a case contains a short statement of fact by the reporter or editor, a summary of the arguments of counsel, and the opinion or opinions of the court or judges, to all of which a syllabus is customarily prefixed. Cf. PRECEDENT, 4; JUDGE-MADE, adj.; STARE DECISIS. In the United States and some British Dominions most law reports are prepared and published under authority of law. In Great Britain and for the most part in British Dominions they are prepared and published by some organization of the bar.
7. Music. A responding note or part.
Syn. — Hearsay; narration, recital, narrative, story. See NOTE.

re·port'a·ble (rē·pōr'tȧ·b'l; 181), adj. a Admitting of or meriting a report, esp. a newspaper report. b That must be reported to the proper authorities; as, reportable accidents in industries.

re·port'age (rē·pōr'tĭj; 181), n. 1. Report; reputation. Obs. Webster.
2. Writing of a journalistic character; reportorial or gossipy style of writing.

report card. A card containing a report; specif., a card, periodically submitted by a school, exhibiting a pupil's record to his parents or guardian.

re·port'er (rē·pōr'tĕr; 181), n. [Cf. OF. reporteur, rapporteur (F. rapporteur).] One who or that which reports. Specif.: a An officer or person who makes authorized statements of law proceedings and decisions, or of legislative debates. b One who reports speeches, public proceedings, news, etc., for a newspaper or other periodical; also, one who gathers news or who investigates and collects information for publication in a newspaper. c One who receives and transmits reports of trains. d Obs. A kind of fireworks. e Slang. A pistol.

re·port'ing·ly, adv. Rare. a By report. Shak. b By re-echoing, or rhyming.

rep'or·to'ri·al (rĕp'ôr·tō'rĭ·ȧl; rē'pôr-; 181; 277), adj. Of, pertaining to, or characteristic of, a reporter or reporters. — rep'or·to'ri·al·ly, adv.

report stage. Parl. Practice. That period in the course of a bill when it is laid before the House of Commons (second reading) in amended and reprinted form after having been considered by a committee (see COMMITTEE STAGE). It is then debated until ready for its third reading. See REPORT, v. t., 8. Eng.

re·pos'al (rē·pōz'ȧl; -'l), n. Obs. a Act of reposing, or of placing, as of trust. b Act or state of reposing, or resting. c That on which one reposes.

re·pose' (rē·pōz'), v. t.; -POSED' (-pōzd'); -POS'ING (-pōz'ĭng). [From L. repositus, past part. of reponere, after verbs in -pose (see 2d POSE). See REPOSIT.] 1. To replace; restore. Obs.
2. To lay in a place; to place; deposit. Now Rare.
3. To place, rest, or set (trust, hope, etc.); — with in.

Father repose great confidence in me. P. B. Kyne.

4. To place for management, safekeeping, or the like; as, to repose one's affairs in an agent.
repose oneself. To rely; to repose one's confidence; — used with on or in. Obs.

re·pose' (rē·pōz'), v. [F. reposer, fr. LL. repausare, fr. L. re- re- + pausare to pause. See PAUSE, 2d POSE.] Transitive: 1. To lay at rest; to place in a restful or resting position; to rest; as, to repose oneself on a couch, or one's head on one's mother's lap.

Who now upon that cottage bench reposed his limbs. Wordsworth.

2. To give rest to; to refresh by rest. Now Rare.

We will repose us here, tomorrow. Shak.

3. To cause to be calm or quiet; to compose. Rare.
—, Intransitive: 1. To lie or be at rest; to take rest; to cease from activity, exertion, or the like; also, to lie buried.

When weary meteor lamps repose,
And languid storms their pinions close. Shelley.

2. To rest in confidence; to confide; rely.

It is upon these that the soul may repose. I. Taylor.

3. To lie; to be supported; as, his head reposing on a cushion; — often fig; as, a system reposing upon credit.
Syn. — Lie, recline; rest, sleep.

re·pose' (rē·pōz'), n. [F. repos, but influenced by repose, v. See 2d REPOSE.] 1. State of reposing, or resting, after exertion, trouble, or the like; relief from toil, agitation, etc., in quiet, inactivity, or esp., sleep; as, hours of repose.
2. Freedom from that which excites, disturbs, or stirs up; peace; tranquillity; calm; also, cessation or absence of activity or movement; acquiescent state; as, fears that destroy a country's repose; an interesting face in repose; Etna is now in repose.
3. A place or a state of rest. Now Rare, exc., specif., R.C. Ch. a The repository. See REPOSITORY, n. b Rest in Heaven; release from Purgatory; as, to pray for the repose of a soul.
4. Relief; restful change; relaxation.

There turns for glad repose the weary eye. Wordsworth.

5. Composure of manner; quiet ease and dignity of bearing; as, well-bred repose.
6. Fine Arts. a Harmony in the disposition of parts, colors, etc., such as gives rest to the eye or ear. b Obs. = REPOSOIR. c Moderation, as opposed to overstraining after effect.
Syn. — Ease, quietness, peace; relaxation. See REST.
Ant. — Restlessness, agitation, perturbation, disquiet.

re·posed' (rē·pōzd'), adj. Enjoying or characterized by repose; calm; tranquil. — re·pos'ed·ly (rē·pōz'ĕd·lĭ; -ĭd·lĭ; 119), adv. — re·pos'ed·ness, n.

re·pose'ful (rē·pōz'fŏl; -f'l), adj. Full of repose; quiet. — re·pose'ful·ly, adv. — re·pose'ful·ness, n.

re·pose'ful, adj. Reliable; responsible. Obs.

re·pos'er (rē·pōz'ĕr), n. One who reposes.

re·pos'it (rē·pŏz'ĭt), v. t.; -POS'IT·ED; -POS'IT·ING. [L. repositus, past part. of reponere to put back, fr. re- re- + ponere to put. See POSITION; cf. 1st REPOSE, SUPPOSITION.] To lay away; to deposit, as for safety; store; also, to replace.

re'po·si'tion (rĕ'pŏ·zĭsh'ŭn; rĕp'ō-), n. [LL. repositio.]
1. The act of repositing, or state of being reposited. Rare.
2. Replacement, as by a surgical operation.
3. Restoration to a position, possession, or office; reinstatement. Archaic. Scot.

re·pos'i·tor (rē·pŏz'ĭ·tĕr), n. One who or that which reposits; specif., Surg., an instrument to replace a displaced organ or part, as the cord in labor.

re·pos'i·to'ry (-tō'rĭ or, esp. Brit., -tĕr·ĭ), n.; pl. -RIES (-rĭz). [L. repositorium. See REPOSIT.] 1. A place, room, compartment, vessel, or the like, where things are or may be reposited, or laid up, as for safety; a depository.
2. Specif.: a A place, building, or the like, for the exhibition of a collection; a museum. b Obs. An abiding place for souls. c A burial vault. d An auction room, salesroom, market, or the like; as, a carriage repository.
3. Something or someone regarded as a storehouse or treasure house; a place or thing containing rich deposits; as, Blackstone was a repository of legal learning; parts of Alaska are repositories of gold.
4. A person to whom one confides or entrusts; as, she was the repository of his hopes and fears.
5. R.C.Ch. An elaborately adorned chapel or side altar of repose where the consecrated host is deposited from Maundy Thursday until the Mass of the Presanctified on Good Friday; — sometimes called sepulcher.

re·pos'i·to'ry, adj. Of or pertaining to repositing.

‖re·po'soir' (rē·pō'zwȧr'), n. [F., a place to rest.] An altar set up in a street for the procession of the Corpus Christi; hence, a temporary stopping place.

re'pos·sess' (rē'pŏ·zĕs'), v. t.; -SESSED' (-zĕst'); -SESS'ING.
1. To possess again; to regain or recover possession of; as, to repossess the land.
2. To restore to possession; as, to repossess one of an estate; also, Scot., to reinstate; — used with in or of.
3. Specif., to resume possession of (goods sold on an installment purchase agreement) in default of the payment of installments due.
— re'pos·ses'sor (-zĕs'ĕr), n.

re'pos·ses'sion (-zĕsh'ŭn), n. a Act or state of possessing again; recovery; restoration; specif., the act of resuming possession of property when the purchaser fails to keep up payments on it.

re'post·pone' (rē'pōst·pōn') v. t. To postpone again or anew.

re·po'sure (rē·pō'zhĕr), n. [See 2d REPOSE.] Rest; quiet. Obs.

‖re·pous'sage' (rē·pōō'sȧzh'), n. [F. See REPOUSSÉ.] Art. Art or process of hammering out or pressing thin metal from the reverse side: (1) in producing repoussé work; (2) in Etching, the hammering out from behind to level up any part of a plate that has been worked into a depression.

‖re·pous'sé' (rē·pōō'sā'), adj. [F., past part. of repousser to thrust back, fr. re- + pousser to push. See PUSH.] Formed in relief, as a pattern on thin metal beaten up from the reverse side and modeled or decorated by working mainly from the obverse side; also, shaped or ornamented with patterns in relief made by hammering or pressing on the reverse side; — said of thin metal, or of a piece so made. — n. Repoussé work.

repped (rĕpt), adj. Resembling rep; ribbed or corded.

---

re·pli'al, n. Reply. Obs. rep'li·ca·ble, adj. That may be replied to. Obs. rep'li·cant, n. [L. replicans, pres. part.] Applicant; also, a repliler. Obs.
re·plight', v. t. See RE-, 2. re·plique', n., & v. t. & i. [F. réplique, n.; répliquer, v.] Reply; answer. Obs.
re·plod', v. i. & t. See RE-, 2. re·plow', re·plough', v. t. See RE-, 2.
re·plum'der, v. t., re·plunge', v. & n. See RE-, 2. [pres. part.
re·ply'ing·ly, adv. of replying, re·pock'et, v. t. See RE-, 2. re·poin', v. i. [MF. repoindre to prick again (for mesning cf. REMORSE.] Repent; repine. Obs.
re·point', v. t., re·pol'ish, v. t. & i. & n., re·poll', n. & v. re'pol·lute', v. t., See RE-, 2.
re·pol'y·mer·ize, v. t. & i. Chem. See RE-, 2. — re'pol·y·mer·i·za'tion, n.
re·pon'der, v. t. See RE-, 2. re·pope'ness, n. Repopedness. Obs.
re·pop'u·la'tion, n.
re·port'ed·ly, adv. of reported, past part. [PORTER.
re·port'er·ess, n. Fem. of REPre·port'er·ism, n. See -ISM. Rare.
re·port'er·ship, n. See -SHIP. re·por'tion, v. t. See RE-, 2. re·pose'ness, n. Repopedness. Obs.
re·pos'i·tar'y (rē·pŏz'ĭ·tĕr'ĭ; -tĕr·ĭ), adj. & n. = REPOSITORY. re·pos'i·ture, n. [ML. repositura.] Reposition. Obs. re'pos·sede', v. t. [Cf. F. reposséder.] To repossess. Obs. re·post', v. & n. = REPOSIT.
re·pot', v. t., re·pound', v. t., re·pour', v. t., re·pow'der, v. t. See RE-, 2. repp. Var. of REP, fabric.

rep're·hend' (rĕp'rē·hĕnd'), v. t.; -HEND'ED; -HEND'ING. [L. reprehendere, reprehensum, to hold back, seize, check, blame, fr. re- re- + prehendere to lay hold of. See PREHENSILE; cf. REPRISAL.] 1. To make charge of fault against; to reprimand; reprove; chide; blame; censure.

I nor advise nor reprehend the choice. J. Philips.

2. To show to be false; disprove. Bacon.

rep're·hend'a·to'ry (-hĕn'dā·tō'rĭ or, esp. Brit., -tĕr·ĭ), adj. Censuring. Rare.

rep're·hend'er (-dĕr), n. One who reprehends.

rep're·hen'si·ble (-hĕn'sĭ·b'l), adj. [LL. reprehensibilis.] Worthy of reprehension; culpable; censurable; blamable. — rep're·hen'si·bil'i·ty (-bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), rep're·hen'si·ble·ness, n. — rep're·hen'si·bly, adv.

Syn. — Blameworthy, reprovable.

Ant. — Commendable, laudatory; blameless.

rep're·hen'sion (-shŭn), n. [L. reprehensio.] Act or an instance of reprehending; reproof; blame.

Syn. — Censure, blame, reproof, reprimand.

rep're·hen'sive (-sĭv), adj. [Cf. F. répréhensif.] That reprehends or conveys reprehension or reproof. Now Rare. — rep're·hen'sive·ly, adv.

rep're·hen'so·ry (-hĕn'sō·rĭ), adj. Reprehensive. Now Rare.

rep're·sent' (rĕp'rē·zĕnt'), v.; -SENT'ED; -SENT'ING. [OF. representer, fr. L. repraesentare, repraesentatum, fr. re- re- + praesentare to place before, present. See PRESENT, v.] Transitive: 1. To bring clearly before the mind; to cause to be known, felt, or apprehended; to present; as, Christ represented many truths to his followers in parables. 2. To present by means of something standing in the place of; to exhibit or be the counterpart or image of; to typify; also, to serve as a sign or symbol of; as, a national flag represents the nation; mathematical symbols represent quantities or relations; words represent ideas or things. 3. To portray or depict by pictorial, plastic, or, rarely, musical, art; also, of the work of art, to exhibit by such portrayal or depiction; as, to represent a landscape in a painting, a figure in bronze. 4. To exhibit dramatically; esp.: a Now Rare. To produce on the stage; as, to represent a play. b To act the part or role of; to personate in acting; as, to represent Hamlet 5. To exhibit (a fact) to another mind in language; as, to represent to one the danger of delay; to give one's own impressions and judgment of; to state or set forth with advocacy or with the design of affecting action or judgment; as, he represented himself to be starving. 6. To stand in the place of; to be the equivalent of; as, let x represent the momentum. 7. To supply the place, perform the duties, exercise the rights, or receive the share, of; to act the part of (another); as, an heir represents his ancestor; an attorney represents his client. 8. To serve with delegated or deputed authority, resulting from an election, as in a legislative body; to deliberate and act for a constituency; as, the State was represented in Congress by six Republicans and two Democrats. 9. a To correspond to in kind; as, the yak represents our ox. b To serve as a specimen, example, or instance of; as, a dozen nationalities were represented in the steerage. c To give evidence of; betoken; as, what the profits represent. 10. Obs. a To present, or cause to be present, before someone else; also, to present as a gift. b To make manifest, exhibit, or display; to show; as, to represent a smile to one; to represent bad temper. 11. Philos. To form an image or representation of in the mind; to apprehend (an object) by means of an idea; also, to recall in memory (an object of previous experience).

—, Intransitive: 1. To act (on the stage). 2. To present objections; to protest.

rep're·sent' (rĕp'rē·zĕnt'), n. A representation. Obs.

re'·pre·sent' (rē'prē·zĕnt'), v. t. To present again, anew, or through the medium of art.

rep're·sen·ta'men (rĕp'rē·zĕn·tā'mĕn), n. [From REPRESENT, after L. nouns in -men, as imitamen.] Philos. The product, as distinguished from the act, of representation. See REPRESENTATION, 8 a.

rep're·sent'ant (-zĕn'tănt), adj. [Cf. F. représentant.] Representative; representing. — n. A representative. Both Rare.

rep're·sen·ta'tion (-zĕn·tā'shŭn), n. [F. représentation, fr. L. repraesentatio.] 1. Act or instance of representing (in various senses); state of being represented; exhibition; symbolization; substitution; also, simulation. 2. A likeness, picture, model, image, or other reproduction; as, a representation of the human face, or figure. 3. A dramatic production or performance. 4. Act of exhibiting or setting forth by a statement, account, or the like, esp. with a view to affecting action; also, such a statement or account so made; as, he made earnest representations in his behalf; sometimes, specif., a statement or argument against something; a protest. 5. a The representing of a certain number, class, or interest in a legislative body; also, the system of choosing delegates to represent constituents, as in a legislature; as, no taxation without representation. See PROPORTIONAL REPRESENTATION. b Delegates representing a constituency, collectively. 6. Obs. a Presence. b Appearance. 7. Law. a A statement of fact incidental or collateral to a contract, made orally or in writing or by implication, on the faith of which the contract is entered into. Falsity of a representation as to a material fact will avoid the contract. In insurance law a representation is distinguished from a warranty in that it is not a part of the contract, and need be only substantially true. See AFFIRMATIVE, adj., 4; PROMISSORY, adj., 2; WARRANTY. b The act or fact of one person standing for another so as to have, to a greater or less extent, the rights and obligations of the person represented; specif., the relation of an heir to his predecessor when both the rights and the obligations of the predecessor devolve upon the heir, as in the Roman law and in most other primitive systems. c The substitution of an individual, or of a class of individuals, in place of a person, as when a child or children take the share that would have fallen to a deceased parent. 8. Philos. a The act or process by which the mind forms an image or idea of an object; also, the image or idea thus formed. b An idea conceived as the direct object of thought and as the mental counterpart or transcript of the object known by means of it. c Recurrent, as opposed to simple, presentation.

Syn. — Delineation, portraiture, portrayal, depiction, reproduction; exhibition, show; avowal, profession.

re'·pre·sen'ta·tion (rē'prē·zĕn·tā'shŭn), n. A presentation again or anew. See RE-, 2.

rep're·sen·ta'tion·al (rĕp'rē·zĕn·tā'shŭn·ăl; 'l), adj. Of or pertaining to representation or representationism. — rep'·re·sen·ta'tion·al·ly, adv.

rep're·sen·ta'tion·ar'y (-ĕr'ĭ or, esp. Brit., -ĕr·ĭ), adj. Representative. Rare.

rep're·sen·ta'tion·ism (-ĭz'm), n. Also rep're·sen·ta'tion·al·ism (-ăl·ĭz'm). Philos. The doctrine that the immediate or direct object of knowledge is an idea in the mind, distinct from the external or independent object which is the occasion of our perception. This doctrine has two varieties: (1) the conception, as of Descartes, that the idea is a mental counterpart or true copy of the external object; — often called the copy-theory of knowledge; (2) the conception that the idea is a modification of consciousness determined in part by the nature of the independent object and in part by the nature or limitations of the mind. — rep'·re·sen·ta'tion·ist, rep're·sen·ta'tion·al·ist, n. & adj.

Representation of the People Act. Eng. A Reform Act passed Feb. 6, 1918. It established virtual manhood suffrage, gave suffrage to women, safeguarded rights of men in active service, and provided for various other franchise reforms, together with a redistribution of seats in Great Britain.

rep're·sent'a·tive (rĕp'rē·zĕn'tă·tĭv), adj. [F. représentatif, ML. repraesentativus.] 1. Representing, portraying, typifying, or the like; as, a painting representative of a battle. 2. Being, or acting as, the agent for another, esp. through delegated authority; as, a representative council; representative character (see DIPLOMATIC AGENT). 3. Pert. to, or founded on, representation of the many by delegates; as, a representative government, system. 4. Typical; serving as a characteristic example; illustrative of or illustrating a class; as, this is not a representative poem of Keats; a representative modern play or collection of plays. 5. Philos. a Having the character of a mental representation. See REPRESENTATION, 8. b Of or pertaining to the doctrine of representationism (which see); as, the representative theory of knowledge.

rep're·sent'a·tive (rĕp'rē·zĕn'tă·tĭv), n. 1. One who or that which represents; specif.: a A person or thing that represents, or stands for, a number or class of persons or things, or that in some way corresponds to, stands for, replaces, or is equivalent to, another person or thing; a typical embodiment; type.

A statue of Rumor, whispering an idiot in the ear, who was the representative of Credulity. Addison.

b One who represents others or another in a special capacity; an agent, deputy, or substitute; esp.: (1) One who represents a people or community in its legislative or governing capacity; in Great Britain, a member of Parliament; in the United States, a member of the lower or popular house in the national Congress, or in a State legislature. See HOUSE OF COMMONS; HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES; at large h, under LARGE, n.; Forms of Address in Appendix; PRECEDENCE. (2) One who represents another as agent, substitute, successor, etc., as one appointed to represent a sovereign or government abroad. (3) Law. One who represents, or stands in the place of, another, as the heir under some systems of law, an executor, an administrator, etc. In English and American law, the terms representative, legal representative, and personal representative are indifferently used primarily to designate the executor or administrator of a deceased person, and the heir is distinctively sometimes called the real, or natural, representative of his deceased ancestor. But representative, legal representative, and personal representative are often used indifferently, esp. in, or in connection with, wills or statutes of distribution, to designate executors, administrators, children, next of kin, distributees, and in some connections trustees, receivers, or other such persons who are successors in interest to another, the sense intended being disclosed by the context and circumstances. See HEIR, 1 e; EXECUTOR; ADMINISTRATOR. 2. Obs. a A representative body. b Representation. 3. A successor; heir; one representing a line or tradition. Now Rare.

representative art. Art or a form of fine art concerned with the representation, esp. the realistic or verisimilar representation, of nature or life; also, one of a group of fine arts characteristically concerned with this end, and including painting, sculpture, and literature.

representative character. See DIPLOMATIC AGENT.

representative democracy. See DEMOCRACY.

representative knowledge. See KNOWLEDGE, 4.

representative money. Finance & Econ. All forms of money which are not standard, as, in the United States, all forms except gold coin; credit instruments, esp. bills of exchange, bank accounts, and checks, which take the place of money (in the narrower sense) in many transactions, and by some are considered to be properly called money.

representative peer. Gr. Brit. In the House of Lords any one of the (28) Irish peers, selected for life to represent the Irish peerage in Parliament, or of the (16) Scottish peers selected for the duration of a single parliament. See HOUSE OF LORDS.

rep're·sent'a·tiv'i·ty (rĕp'rē·zĕn'tă·tĭv'ĭ·tĭ), n. Representative quality or character. Rare.

rep're·sent'er (-zĕn'tĕr), n. One that represents; specif., Obs., an exhibitor, actor, exponent, or representative.

rep're·sent'ment (-zĕnt'mĕnt), n. Representation, as by portrayal, discourse, etc. Rare.

re'·pre·sent'ment (rē'prē·zĕnt'mĕnt), n. Presentment again or anew. See RE-, 2.

re·press' (rē·prĕs'), v. t. [re- + press.] To press, or compress, over again, as bricks in a mold after coming from the brick machine and before drying.

re·press', n. A machine for repressing brick.

re·press' (rē·prĕs'), v.; -PRESSED' (-prĕst'); -PRESS'ING. [L. repressus, past part. of reprimere. See REPRIMAND.] Transitive: 1. To keep or hold in check by or as by pressure; to restrain, as from spreading, increasing, or doing harm; to curb; as to repress bleeding, an evil tendency, or a meddler; this child cannot be repressed. 2. To suppress by exercising force; to put down; to quell; as, to repress sedition or rioting; also, to subdue; to reduce to subjection; as, to repress one's subjects. Now Rare. 3. To keep under by self-control; to restrain oneself from showing, feeling, uttering, etc.; as, to repress one's curiosity or rage; to repress a curt reply. 4. To prevent the natural or normal expression, activity, or development of; to cause repression (sense 1) of or in; as, motives that repress all selfish desire; teaching that represses individuality. 5. Psychoanalysis. To exclude from consciousness; to subject to repression.

—, Intransitive: To cause repression; as, an environment that represses.

Syn. — Crush, overpower, put down; quell, curb, check. See SUPPRESS. Ant. — Express, utter, vent; liberate, free.

re·press' (rē·prĕs'), n. Act of repressing; repression. Obs.

re·pressed' (rē·prĕst'), adj. Suppressed; specif., Psychoanalysis, affected by psychoanalytic repression. — re·press'ed·ly (-prĕs'ĕd·lĭ; -ĭd·lĭ; 119), adv.

re·press'er (rē·prĕs'ĕr), n. One who or that which represses.

re·press'i·ble (rē·prĕs'ĭ·b'l), adj. That can be repressed. Rare. — re·press'i·bly, adv. Rare.

re·pres'sion (rē·prĕsh'ŭn), n. [Cf. F. répression.] 1. Act or an instance of repressing; state of being repressed. 2. Psychoanalysis. The unconscious process by which a desire or impulse unacceptable to one's ego is excluded from conscious admission and prevented from being directed to its specific goal and object and, thus denied direct satisfaction, is left to operate in the unconscious.

re·pres'sion·ar'y (-ĕr'ĭ or, esp. Brit., -ĕr·ĭ), adj. Pertaining to, or of the nature of, repression.

re·pres'sive (rē·prĕs'ĭv), adj. [Cf. F. répressif, ML. repressivus.] Having power or tending to repress; causing repression; as, repressive acts. — re·pres'sive·ly, adv. — re·pres'sive·ness, n.

re·pres'sor (rē·prĕs'ĕr), n. [L.] One who represses.

re·pres'so·ry (-ō·rĭ), adj. [See 1st -ORY.] Pertaining to repression; repressive.

re·pres'sure (rē·prĕsh'ĕr), v. t. Petroleum. To raise the pressure of; — said of an oil-bearing formation into which air or gas is pumped to force out additional oil.

re·priev'al (rē·prēv'ăl), n. Reprieve. Now Rare.

re·prieve' (rē·prēv'), v. t.; -PRIEVED' (-prēvd'); -PRIEV'ING (-prēv'ĭng). [From earlier repry, fr. F. repris, past part. of reprendre (see REPRISE), but influenced, by ME. repreven, reproven (see REPROVE).] 1. To remand to prison. Obs. 2. To delay; postpone, esp. something evil. 3. To delay the punishment of; to suspend the execution of sentence on; to respite (or, Obs., to set free), as a condemned prisoner. 4. To give relief or deliverance to for a time; to preserve temporarily.

Whose hard hand reprieved The Empire from its fate. Browning.

re·prieve', n. 1. Act of reprieving, or state of being reprieved; a temporary suspension of the execution of a sentence, esp. of a sentence of death, or the order or warrant for such suspension. 2. A respite or temporary escape, as from death or pain.

And take a sweet reprieve From little cares. Keats.

re·priev'er (rē·prēv'ĕr), n. One who or that which reprieves.

rep'ri·mand (rĕp'rĭ·mănd; 83), n. [F. réprimande, fr. L. reprimendus, fem. reprimenda, that is to be checked or suppressed, fr. reprimere to check, repress, fr. re- re- + premere to press. See PRESS; cf. REPRESS.] A severe or formal reproof; a censure, esp. one given with authority.

rep'ri·mand (rĕp'rĭ·mănd; rĕp'rĭ·mănd'; 83), v. t.; REP'RI·MAND'ED (rĕp'rĭ·măn'dĕd; rĕp'rĭ·măn'dĕd; -dĭd; 119); REP'RI·MAND'ING. [F. réprimander. See REPRIMAND, n.] To reprove severely; to reprehend; to chide for a fault; to censure formally, esp. with authority.

Germanicus was severely reprimanded by Tiberius for traveling into Egypt without his permission. Arbuthnot.

Syn. and Ant. — See REPROVE.

rep'ri·mand'er (rĕp'rĭ·măn'dĕr; rĕp'rĭ·măn'dĕr), n. One who reprimands.

rep'ri·mand'ing, adj. That reprimands or is given to rebuking. — rep'ri·mand'ing·ly, adv.

re·prime' (rē·prīm'), v. t. [L. reprimere.] To repress; subdue. Rare.

re·prime' (rē·prīm'), v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·prim'er (rē·prīm'ĕr), n. Firearms. A recapper.

re·print' (rē·prĭnt'), v. t.; -PRINT'ED; -PRINT'ING. 1. To print again; to print a second or a new edition of; sometimes, specif., to print an exact copy of. 2. To renew the impression of; to impress again.

The whole business of our redemption is . . . to reprint God's image upon the soul. South.

re'print' (rē'prĭnt'; rē·prĭnt'), n. 1. A second or a new impression of a printed work or of printed matter; specif.: a A facsimile copy. b An article, extract, or the like, issued separately after being first published as part of a collection, or in a periodical, etc.; an offprint. 2. Print. Printed text used as copy. 3. Bibliography. A second or later printing of a published book without change in the text. 4. Philately. a A stamp printed from an old plate, usually with different paper, ink, perforation, etc., and not intended for postal use. Cf. REISSUE, n., 2. b A demonetized stamp printed from an old plate after it has been sold by a government to a private individual.

— re'print', adj.

re·print'er (rē·prĭn'tĕr), n. One who reprints or publishes a reprint.

re·pris'al (rē·prīz'ăl; -'l), n. [OF. reprisaille. See REPRISE.] 1. Internat. Law. The act or practice of resorting to force, short of war, to procure redress of grievances, orig., by seizing the property or persons of subjects of the enemy; also, an act or instance of this. Although a reprisal may furnish a casus belli, it is not in intent a making war upon the enemy. Reprisals are either general, when the state is the aggrieved party and its action is directed against the property and persons of the other state wherever found, or special, when an individual is the injured person and is authorized, by letters or a commission of reprisals or marque to enforce his redress. Acts of reprisal may be by embargo, sequestration, forcible seizure, retortion, or retaliatory acts of the nature of those complained of. 2. That which is taken in reprisal; a prize. Shak. 3. A regaining, by recapture or reception. Now Rare. 4. Any act of retaliation, public or private; esp., in war, an act of retaliation, usually of the same kind as acts committed by the enemy, and if possible directed against the actual wrongdoer committed against an enemy to compel him to cease unlawful acts of war and to conform to the customs and laws of war. 5. That given or paid as compensation or in restitution.

Syn. — See REQUITAL.

re·pris'al (rē·prīz'ăl; -'l), v. i. To make reprisals. Obs.

---

re·prac'tice, v. t., re·pray', v. i. & t., re·preach', v. t., re·pre·cip'i·tate, v. t., re·pre·cip'i·ta·tion, n., re·pre·dict', v. t., re·pre·fer', v. t. See RE-, 2. repreffe. † REPROOF.

rep're·hend'a·ble (rĕp'rē·hĕn'dă·b'l), adj. See -ABLE. [Ref. Sp.] rep're·hen'siv. Reprehensive. re'·pre·pare', v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'·prep·a·ra'tion, n.
re'·pre·scribe', v. t. See RE-, 2.

rep're·sent'a·ble (rĕp'rē·zĕn'tă·b'l), adj. See -ABLE. — rep're·sent'a·bil'i·ty (-bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n. rep're·sent'a·tiv. Representative. Ref. Sp.
re'·pre·sent'a·tive·e·lect', n. See [ELECT, adj., 2.]

rep're·sent'a·tive·ly, adv. of REPRESENTATIVE. rep're·sent'a·tive·ness, n. See -NESS. rep're·sent'a·tive·ship', n. See [-SHIP.] rep're·sen·ta'tor, n. [LL. repraesentator.] Representer. Obs. rep're·sen'tor, n. A representer. Obs.
re'·pre·side', v. i. See RE-, 2.
re'·pre·sion·ist, n. See -IST.
re'·pre·ment, n. See -MENT.

re·prest'. Repressed. Ref. Sp.
re·preve'. † REPROOF, REPROVE. re·price', v. i. See RE-, 2. re·priev'. Reprieve. Ref. Sp. re·priev'd'. Reprieved. Ref. Sp.
re·pris'al·ist, n. See -IST.

re·prise' (rē·prīz'), n. [OF. reprise, fr. reprendre, repris, to take back, fr. L. reprehendere. See REPREHEND; cf. REPRIEVE, SURPRISE.] 1. Obs. a A taking back, or that taken back; hence, loss; cost. b = REPRISAL, 5. c Reprisal; a retaliatory act; specif., the recapture of a vessel; also, the vessel recaptured.
2. A recurrence or renewal of action. Now Rare.
3. Arch. A return in an internal angle. See RETURN, n., 10.
4. (pron. rē·prēz') Fencing. A redoubling of an attack.
Egerton Castle.
5. Law. A deduction or charge to be made yearly out of a manor or estate, such as rent charge, rent seck, pensions, annuities, and the like; — usually in pl.
6. (pron. rē·prīz'; rē·prēz') Music. A repetition; specif., a recapitulation (see SONATA FORM).

re·prise' (rē·prīz'), v. t. & i. [F. repris, past part. See REPRISE, n.] 1. Obs. a To take up again; recommence; reassume. b To reprehend.
2. Now Rare. a To recover, esp. forcibly. b To withdraw or withhold; also, to reprieve.
3. To compensate. Archaic.

re·pris'ti·nate (rē·prĭs'tĭ·nāt), v. t. [re- + pristine.] To restore as to an original state; to revive. Rare. — re·pris'ti·na'tion (-nā'shŭn), n. Rare.

re·proach' (rē·prōch'), v. t.; -PROACHED' (-prōcht'); -PROACH'ING. [F. reprocher, fr. (assumed) VL. repropriare. See RE-; APPROACH.] 1. To cast up (something) as deserving reproach; to make a matter of reproach; — often with against; as, to reproach filibusters against Congress.
2. To utter a reproach or reproaches for or against; to rebuke, censure; upbraid; as, they reproached him bitterly for cowardice; to reproach his cowardice; also, sometimes, to chide gently or in a friendly spirit; to reprove constructively and helpfully.
3. To cast reproach upon (one, one's life, character, repute, etc.); to bring into discredit; to be a cause of reproach to; as, nothing to reproach an honorable career.

Syn. — Blame, chide, condemn, revile, vilify. See CENSURE.

re·proach' (rē·prōch'), n. [F. reproche. See REPROACH, v.] 1. A cause or occasion of blame, censure, disgrace, or discredit; hence, disgrace, shame, blame, discredit, or the like, incurred; as, the bad paving was a reproach to the town. "God hath taken away my reproach." Gen. xxx. 23.
2. Censure or blame, esp. as uttered or expressed; rebuke; an upbraiding; a reproof; as, overwhelmed with reproaches; a look of reproach; "despot" is now always a term of reproach.
3. One subjected to censure or scorn; a byword.
Come, and let us build up the wall of Jerusalem, that we be no more a reproach. Neh. ii. 17.

Syn. — Disrepute, dishonor, opprobrium, contumely; invective, reviling, abuse, vilification, scurrility.
Ant. — Credit, honor; commendation, praise.
— The Reproaches. Eccl. A service, or part of a service, for Good Friday, consisting of a series of antiphons, after each of which the Trisagion is sung as a respond. The antiphons are made up of sentences which are represented as addressed by Christ to his people to remind them of what he had done for them, their ingratitude, etc. The service is used in the Roman Catholic Church and in some Anglican churches. Also called (R.C.Ch.) improperia.

re·proach'a·ble (rē·prōch'ȧ·b'l), adj. [F. reprochable.]
1. Deserving reproach; censurable.
2. Reproachful; rarely, opprobrious; scurrilous. Obs.
— re·proach'a·ble·ness, n. — re·proach'a·bly, adv.

re·proach'er (-ēr), n. One who reproaches.

re·proach'ful (rē·prōch'fŏŏl; -fl), adj. 1. Involving or incurring reproach, shame, or censure; shameful; blameworthy. Obs.
He [Christ], . . . by coming in the flesh
To a reproachful life and cursèd death. Milton.
2. Full of reproach or reproaches; expressing censure or rebuke; also, Obs., abusive; as, a reproachful word, glance, or letter.
— re·proach'ful·ly, adv. — re·proach'ful·ness, n.

rep'ro·ba·cy (rĕp'rō·bȧ·sĭ), n. State or character of being reprobate.

rep'ro·bance (rĕp'rō·bȧns), n. Theol. Reprobation. Shak.

rep'ro·bate (rĕp'rō·bāt or, esp. Brit., -bĭt), adj. [LL. reprobatus, past part. of reprobare to disapprove, condemn. See REPROVE.] 1. Rejected as not enduring proof or trial; not of standard purity or fineness; disallowed; condemned. Archaic.
Reprobate silver shall men call them, because the Lord hath rejected them. Jer. vi. 30.
2. Of, pertaining to, or characteristic of, a reprobate, or scoundrel; unprincipled; vicious; corrupt; also, in milder sense, blameworthy; as, conduct so reprobate; reprobate officers of the law.
3. Expressing or involving reprobation or reproach; as, the reprobate sense of a word.
4. Theol. Condemned or rejected by God's decree. Hence, morally abandoned; depraved; — said of persons.

Syn. — Hardened, reprehensible. See ABANDONED.
Ant. — Virtuous, moral, righteous.

rep'ro·bate (rĕp'rō·bāt or, esp. Brit., -bĭt), n. 1. One rejected or foreordained to condemnation by God; one not of the elect; a lost soul. Archaic.
2. A depraved, vicious, or unprincipled person; a scoundrel; sometimes, in milder sense, a scamp; as, the reprobate of his family.

rep'ro·bate (-bāt), v. t.; -BAT'ED (-bāt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -BAT'ING (-bāt'ĭng). [LL. reprobatus, past part. of reprobare. See REPROVE.] 1. To disapprove of; to condemn as unworthy or worthless; to discontenance.
And doth He reprobate . . . The use of His own bounty? Cowper.
2. To reject; to refuse to accept.
Every scheme, every person, recommended by one of them, was reprobated by the other. Macaulay.
3. To set aside; to disallow or put away; to take exception to. Now Chiefly Scots Law.
4. Theol. Of God, to reject, or foreordain to damnation.

Syn. — Reprehend; disown, abandon, reject. See CENSURE.
Ant. — Approve; accept.

rep'ro·bat'er (-bāt'ĕr), n. One who reprobates.

rep'ro·ba'tion (rĕp'rō·bā'shŭn), n. [LL. reprobatio.]
1. Act of reprobating; state or status of being reprobated; now usually, severe disapproval; censure; as, his course met with general reprobation. "A brand of reprobation on clipped poetry and false coin." Dryden.
2. Rejection or condemnation as inferior or worthless. Now Rare.
3. Theol. Rejection by God's decree; predestination or foreordination to eternal damnation. See PRETERITION, 4.

rep'ro·ba'tion·ar'y (rĕp'rō·bā'shŭn·ĕr'ĭ or, esp. Brit., -ĕr·ĭ), adj. Pertaining to, or of the nature of, reprobation.

rep'ro·ba'tion·er (-ĕr), n. Theol. A believer in reprobation. See REPROBATION, 3. Rare.

rep'ro·ba'tive (rĕp'rō·bā'tĭv), adj. Pertaining to or expressing reprobation. — rep'ro·ba'tive·ly, adv.

rep'ro·ba'tor (rĕp'rō·bā'tĕr), n. [See REPROBATORY.] Scots Law. A proceeding, now obsolete, to disqualify or reject a witness.

rep'ro·ba'to·ry (-bā'tō·rĭ), adj. Reprobative.

re'pro·duce' (rē'prō·dūs'), v. t. To produce again; specif.: a To produce again by generation or the like; to cause the existence of (something of the same class, kind, or nature as another thing); as, to reproduce a rose; some animals are reproduced by gemmation; an animal which can reproduce a lost part. b To cause to exist again or anew; as, to reproduce happiness. c To cause to be or seem to be repeated; to repeat; as, Napoleon tried to reproduce the glories of Rome. d To make an image, a copy, or other representation of; to portray; to cause to exist in the mind or imagination; as, to reproduce a face on canvas; to reproduce a design or a former civilization. e To bring forward, present, or exhibit again; as, to reproduce a witness, a play, a printed article. f To revive mentally; to have a mental image of; to remember; to recite; as, to reproduce an experience; to reproduce what one has learned.
— v. i. To reproduce its kind; to produce offspring; also, to turn out (as specified) when reproduced.

Syn. — Copy, duplicate; multiply, propagate.

re'pro·duce'a·ble (-ȧ·b'l), adj. Reproducible. Rare.

re'pro·duc'er (rē'prō·dūs'ĕr), n. One who or that which reproduces; as: a A sound box or other device that reproduces sounds, as in a phonograph, radio, or sound motion pictures. One form of reproducer is a pickup device consisting essentially of a piezoelectric crystal, a moving iron or coil, or an electrostatic arrangement which reproduces the original sounds through the generation of a fluctuating voltage, whose instantaneous values are proportional to those of the air pressures impressed by sounds directed upon a recording microphone. Another form is a device consisting essentially of a photoelectric cell, a source of light, and an amplifier, so arranged that when a photographic film, on which variations in sound pressure have been recorded (see RECORDER, 5 b), is passed between the cell and source of light, an electric current is produced which may be amplified into a powerful audio-frequency current. Cf. RECORDER, 5b; PHONOGRAPH, 3. b In a manograph, a device for reproducing the engine stroke on a reduced scale.

re'pro·duc'i·ble (-ĭ·b'l), adj. That may be reproduced. — re'pro·duc'i·bil'i·ty (-bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n.

re'pro·duc'tion (rē'prō·dŭk'shŭn), n. [Cf. F. reproduction.] 1. Act or process of reproducing; as, the reproduction of wealth or of destroyed tissue; a mental reproduction of a past experience.
2. A copy, likeness, counterpart, or reconstruction; a representation in another form or medium; as, to sell reproductions of the great masters; to make a reproduction of the Elizabethan theater.
3. Biol. The process by which plants and animals give rise to offspring. Essentially it consists of the separation or setting apart of a portion of the living substance of the parent's body, and its subsequent growth and differentiation into a new individual. The reproduction of animals may be asexual, the offspring being derived from a single parent, as by the cleavage or fission of the parent's body into two or more parts, or by a process of gemmation (which see). The usual and normal method of reproduction is, however, sexual, the offspring being derived from two parents. Even those animals which habitually reproduce asexually appear to require to resort to this method at intervals, and in many cases, as also among the higher plants, sexual and asexual reproduction occur regularly in alternate generations. In multicellular animals and plants, ordinary sexual reproduction involves the fusion or union of two sex or germ cells, one, the egg, derived from the female parent, and the other, the sperm or spermatozoon, from the male parent. From the cell thus produced (the fertilized egg) the offspring develops. In unicellular organisms a modification of the process occurs, a temporary or permanent union (conjugation) of the parents preceding a period of active multiplication by cell division. In certain modifications of sexual reproduction the offspring may be derived from only one parent. See FERTILIZATION, 2; CONJUGATION, 3; HERMAPHRODITE, 1; PARTHENOGENESIS.
4. Psychol. The revival of what has been previously learned or experienced; recall.

reproduction cost. Accounting. The estimated expense of replacing or duplicating an asset with a new one of equal effectiveness. See PHYSICAL VALUE.

re'pro·duc'tion·ist (rē'prō·dŭk'shŭn·ĭst), n. One who makes reproductions, or copies.

re'pro·duc'tive (rē'prō·dŭk'tĭv), adj. That reproduces or tends to reproduce; of the nature of, pertaining to, tending toward, or employed in, reproduction; as, highly reproductive species; the reproductive imagination. — re'pro·duc'tive·ly, adv. — re'pro·duc'tive·ness, n.

reproductive function (of *n*th order). Math. A function that is multiplied by a^n when its argument is multiplied by a constant a. If n be 0, the function is irreproductive.

reproductive imagination. See IMAGINATION, 1.

reproductive selection. The tendency of a plant or animal variety or species to undergo change in consequence of differences in the net fertility of different strains.

re'pro·duc·tiv'i·ty (rē'prō·dŭk·tĭv'ĭ·tĭ), n. 1. Reproductiveness.
2. Math. The constant c in a reproductive function $f(cx) = c^n f(x)$.

re'pro·duc'to·ry (-dŭk'tō·rĭ), adj. Reproductive. Rare.

re·prof'fer (rē·prŏf'ĕr), v. t. Venery. Of a deer, to re-enter the water. Obs.

re·proof' (rē·prōōf'), n. [ME. reproef, repreef, repreve, reprove, fr. OF. reprueve. See PROOF, REPROVE.] 1. Reproach; disgrace; also, obloquy; contumely. Obs.
2. Censure for a fault; an expression of censure; a reprimand; rebuke; as, to fear reproof; a gentle reproof.
3. Refutation; confutation; disproof. Now Rare.

Syn. — Admonition, reprehension, chiding.
Ant. — Praise, compliment.

re·proof' (rē·prōōf'), v. t. To proof, as powder, again; to waterproof again or anew.

re·prov'a·ble (rē·prōōv'ȧ·b'l), adj. [OF. reprouvable, F. réprouvable.] Deserving reproof or censure.

Syn. — Reprehensible, censurable, blameworthy.
Ant. — Commendable, praiseworthy.
— re·prov'a·ble·ness, n. — re·prov'a·bly, adv.

re·prov'al (rē·prōōv'ȧl), n. Reproof.

re·prove' (rē·prōōv'), v. t.; -PROVED' (-prōōvd'); -PROV'ING (-prōōv'ĭng). [ME. reproven, fr. OF. reprover (3d sing. pres. reprueve; cf. ME. repreven), F. réprouver, fr. LL. reprobare to disapprove, fr. re- + probare to test, prove. See PROVE; cf. REPROBATE, REPROOF.] 1. To reject, or reprobate. Obs.
2. To chide as blameworthy; to administer a rebuke to.
3. To express disapprobation of; to censure; now, often, to reproach by implication, contrast, etc.
Whose rage the gentle skies in vain reprove. Wordsworth.
4. To convince; convict. Obs.
When he is come, he will reprove the world of sin, and of righteousness, and of judgment. John xvi. 8.
5. To disprove; refute. Obs.
Reprove my allegation, if you can. Shak.

Syn. — Correct; blame, reproach, reprehend, objurgate. — REPROVE, REBUKE, REPRIMAND, ADMONISH, CHIDE, UPBRAID, SCOLD, RATE, BERATE agree in the idea of reprehension. To REPROVE is to express blame or censure, often kindly or without harshness; REBUKE implies sharp or stern reproof; REPRIMAND suggests reproof that is formal, and often public or official; as, "Marcus with blushes owns he loves, and Brutus tenderly reproves" (Pope); cf. "I have not lacked thy mild reproof" (Tennyson); "He rebuked Peter, saying, Get thee behind me, Satan" (Mark viii. 33); cf. "The Lord will come with fire . . . to render his anger with fury, and his rebuke with flames of fire" (Is. lxvi. 15); "a word . . which the Duke of Wellington, or Admiral Stopford, would use in reprimanding an officer" (Macaulay). ADMONISH adds to reprove the implication of warning or counsel, as, "Count him not as an enemy, but admonish him as a brother" (2 Thess. iii. 15); cf. "sincere acknowledgments to both my private and public censors for their friendly admonitions" (Coleridge). CHIDE implies dissatisfaction or displeasure; UPBRAID suggests sharp or violent reproach; as, "to serve . . . my Maker, and present my true account, lest He returning chide" (Milton); "He . . . upbraided them with their unbelief and hardness of heart" (Mark xvi. 14). To SCOLD is to chide rudely, clamorously, or with vituperation; to RATE or BERATE is to rebuke angrily or with vehemence or to assail with abusive language; as, "You may scold a carpenter who has made you a bad table" (Johnson); "Warning has steadily heated toward denunciation, and remonstrance soured toward scolding" (Lowell); "She [Elizabeth] rated great nobles as if they were schoolboys" (J. R. Green). Cf. ANIMADVERSION, WARN, REMONSTRATE.
Ant. — Praise, commend, extol.

re·prove' (rē·prōōv'), v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·prov'er (rē·prōōv'ĕr), n. One who reproves.

reps (rĕps), n. = REP, fabric.

rep'tant (rĕp'tȧnt), adj. [L. reptans, -antis, pres. part. of reptare, v. intens. fr. repere. See REPTILE.] Creeping; repent.

rep·ta'tion (rĕp·tā'shŭn), n. [L. reptatio.] A creeping.

rep'ta·to'ri·al (rĕp'tȧ·tō'rĭ·ȧl; 181), rep'ta·to'ry (rĕp'tȧ·tō'rĭ or, esp. Brit., -tĕr·ĭ), adj. Creeping; reptant.

rep'tile (rĕp'tĭl; -tīl), n. [LL., prop. neut. of reptilis reptant, fr. L. repere, reptum, to creep; akin to Lith. rėpliotì, and perh. ult. to L. serpere. See SERPENT.]
1. An animal that crawls, or moves on its belly, as snakes, or on small, short legs, as lizards and the like.
2. One of the Reptilia or, in popular usage, of the Amphibia.
3. A groveling or very mean or despicable person.

rep'tile (rĕp'tĭl; -tīl), adj. [LL. reptilus. See REPTILE, n.] 1. Creeping; reptant; moving on the belly, or by means of small and short legs.
2. Groveling; low; malignant; despicable; as, a reptile race or crew; reptile vices.
There is also a false, reptile prudence, the result not of caution, but of fear. Burke.
3. Of the nature of, or pertaining to, a reptile or reptiles.

reptili-. A combining form for reptile, as in rep'til·if'er·ous, rep·til'i·form, rep'ti·liv'o·rous. See -FEROUS, etc.

Rep·til'i·a (rĕp·tĭl'ĭ·ȧ), n. pl. [NL.] Zool. A class of air-breathing vertebrates which includes the alligators and crocodiles, lizards, snakes, turtles, and their extinct allies; the reptiles. Of the 4,300 modern species, 25 are crocodilians, nearly 300 turtles, and about 2,000 each lizards and snakes. They have a completely ossified skeleton, a single occipital condyle, a distinct quadrate bone, which, however, is usually immovably articulated with the skull, and ribs which are attached to the sternum. In existing reptiles the body is nearly always covered with scales or bony plates. The heart has two auricles and one ventricle, but the latter is imperfectly divided into two chambers. Existing reptiles are cold-blooded and oviparous or ovoviviparous. The embryo has an amnion and an allantois and does not pass through a metamorphosis. In older classifications the Amphibia were included. Reptiles came into existence in the Carboniferous, attained their maximum in the Mesozoic, when they were represented by many gigantic forms, and have since, except snakes and lizards, steadily declined. The orders of Reptilia are:
I. RHYNCHOCEPHALIA. Lizardlike reptiles, extinct with the exception of the tuatara.
II. SQUAMATA. Lizards, snakes, and their extinct allies.
III. ICHTHYOSAURIA. Large, extinct, fishlike marine reptiles.
IV. SAUROPTERYGIA. Extinct aquatic long-necked reptiles.
V. THEROMORPHA. Extinct mammallike land reptiles.
VI. CHELONIA. Turtles.
VII. CROCODILIA. Crocodiles, alligators, and allied forms.
VIII. DINOSAURIA. Extinct long-necked and long-tailed land reptiles, usually of large size.
IX. PTEROSAURIA. Extinct flying reptiles.

rep·til'i·an (rĕp·tĭl'ĭ·ȧn), adj. Of or pertaining to, like, or characteristic of, the Reptilia, a reptile, or reptiles. — n. A reptile; one of the Reptilia.

reptilian age. Geol. The Mesozoic era.

rep·til'i·ar'y (rĕp·tĭl'ĭ·ĕr·ĭ; -ĕr·ĭ), adj. Reptilian.

rep·til'i·ous (rĕp·tĭl'ĭ·ŭs), adj. Like a reptile. Rare. — rep·til'i·ous·ness, n.

rep'til·ism (rĕp'tĭl·ĭz'm; -tīl-), n. Reptile character, habit, or conduct.

---

re·prive'. ‡ REPRIEVE, REPROVE.
re·priv'i·lege, v. t. See RE-, 2.
re·proach'ing·ly, adv. of reproaching, pres. part.
re·proach'less, adj. See -LESS. re·proach'less·ness, n. [Sp.] re·proach't'. Reproached. Ref. re·prob'a·ble, adj. [ML. reprobabilis.] To be reprobated; reprobate. Obs. rep'ro·bate·ness, n. See -NESS. rep'ro·ba'tive. Reprobative. Ref. Sp.
re'pro·ceed', v. i., re·proc'ess, v. t., re'pro·hib'it, v. t., re·prom'ise, v. t., re'pro·mis'sion (rē'prō·mĭsh'ŭn), n. (Obs.), re'pro·mul'gate, v. t., re'pro·mul·ga'tion, n. See RE-, 2. re'pro·nounce', v. t. See RE-, 2. re'pro·duc'tiv. Reproductive. Ref. Sp.
re·prop'a·gate, v. i., re'pro·fess', v. t., re'pro·hib'it, v. t., re·prom'ise, v. t., re'pro·mis'sion (rē'prō·mĭsh'ŭn), n. (Obs.), re'pro·mul'gate, v. t., re'pro·mul·ga'tion, n. See RE-, 2. re'pro·pose', v. i. See RE-, 2. re'pro·pos'al, n.
re·pros'e·cute, v. t. See RE-, 2.
— re'pro·nun'ci·a'tion, n.
re·proof'less, adj. See -LESS.
re·prop'a·gate, v. i. See RE-, 1. re'pro·pi'ti·ate, v. i. See RE-, 2.
— re'pro·pi'ti·a'tion, n.
re'pro·por'tion, v. t. See RE-, 2. re'pro·pose', v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'pro·pos'al, n.
re·pros'e·cu'tion, n.
re·pros'per, v. i. See RE-, 2. re'pro·tect', v. i. See RE-, 2. — re'pro·tec'tion, n.
re·pro'test, n., re'pro·test', v., re'pro·vide', v. i. See RE-, 2.
re·prov'ing·ly, adv. of reproving, pres. part.
re'pro·vi'sion (rē'prō·vĭzh'ŭn), n. re'pro·voke', v. i. See RE-, 2. — re'prov·o·ca'tion, n.
re·prune', v. t. See RE-, 2. re·pry', v. i. [Origin uncert. Cf. REPRIEVE.] Obs. a To remand to prison. b To put off; delay.
c To redeem.
rep'tile·dom, n. See -DOM. rep'tile·like', adj. See -LIKE.

N O P Q R

rep·til'i·ty (rĕp·tĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n. Reptilism.

rep'til·oid (rĕp'tĭl·oid), adj. [reptile + -oid.] Zool. Resembling a reptile.

re·pub'lic (rē·pŭb'lĭk), n. [F. république, fr. L. respublica commonwealth, fr. res thing, affair + publicus, publica, public. See REAL, adj.; PUBLIC.] 1. Commonweal; the state. Obs.

2. A state in which the sovereign power resides in a certain body of the people (the electorate), and is exercised by representatives elected by, and (in theory at least) responsible to, them; a commonwealth; also, the form of government by which such a state is governed. The term republic is used to designate states differing widely in their constitution; as, the ancient Roman Republic, which was originally an aristocracy under the control of the patrician class; the republics of ancient Greece and of modern Switzerland, democracies with the political power vested in all the citizens (who in the former consisted of a select class, in the latter the whole body of freemen); the medieval Italian republics, which were limited oligarchies; the modern republics of the United States and France, which are essentially free democracies. Republic now often specifically implies such a free popular government in which there are no classes having any exclusive political privileges and in which the electorate includes at least the great body of adult inhabitants (universal suffrage in most republics) under constitutional restrictions.

3. An organization modeled after the George Junior Republic (which see).

Republic, The. = REPUBLIC OF PLATO.

re·pub'lic, re·pub'li·cal (rē·pŭb'lĭ·kăl), adj. Republican. Obs.

re·pub'li·can (-lĭ·kăn), adj. [Cf. F. républicain.] 1. Of or pertaining to, or having the form or characteristics of, a republic; as, a republican government, institutions.

2. Consonant with, or favoring, the principles of a republic; as, republican sentiments, orators, measures.

3. Of, pertaining to, designating, or connected with a political party called republican; specif., U. S., designating or pertaining to the Republican party (which see); as, the republican policy as contrasted with the democratic.

re·pub'li·can (rē·pŭb'lĭ·kăn), n. 1. One who favors or supports a republican form of government.

2. A member of a political party called republican; specif. [cap.], U. S. Politics, a member of the Republican party.

3. Any of certain birds that nest in communities, esp. the cliff swallow and the African sociable weaverbird; — a book name.

Republican calendar, Republican era. Fr. Hist. The calendar and era adopted by the first French republic. It began Sept. 22, 1792. See REVOLUTIONARY CALENDAR.

re·pub'li·can·ism (rē·pŭb'lĭ·kăn·ĭz'm), n. [Cf. F. républicanisme.] 1. A republican form or system of government; the principles or theory of republican government.

2. Attachment to, or political sympathy for, a republican form of government. Burke.

3. [cap.] The principles and policy of the Republican party. U. S.

re·pub'li·can·ize (-īz), v. t. & i.; -IZED (-īzd); -IZ'ING (-īz'-ĭng). [Cf. F. républicaniser.] To make republican in character, form, or principle; to change, as a state, into a republic; as, France was republicanized; to republicanize the rising generation. — re·pub'li·can·i·za'tion (-ĭ·zā'-shŭn; -ĭ·zā'shŭn), n. — re·pub'li·can·iz'er (rē·pŭb'lĭ·kăn-īz'ĕr), n.

Republican marriage. Fr. Hist. A method of execution practiced by J. B. Carrier at Nantes in 1793, consisting of binding a man and woman together and throwing them into the Loire.

Republican party. U. S. Politics. a The Democratic-Republican party; — so called by Jefferson and his followers. b One of the existing great parties. It was organized in 1854–56 by a combination of voters from other parties, notably the Free-Soil party, for the purpose of opposing the extension of slavery, and in 1860 it elected Abraham Lincoln president. Andrew Johnson, a Democrat, who had been elected vice-president by the Republicans in 1864, succeeded Lincoln on the latter's assassination and served until 1869. Since that time, the presidents elected by the Republican party have been as follows: Ulysses S. Grant (1869–73 and 1873–77); Rutherford B. Hayes (1877–81); James A. Garfield (assassinated in 1881; succeeded by Chester A. Arthur, then vice-president); Benjamin Harrison (1889–93); William McKinley (1897–1901 and 1901–; assassinated in 1901; succeeded by Theodore Roosevelt, then vice-president); Theodore Roosevelt (1905–09); William H. Taft (1909–13); Warren G. Harding (1921–23; died 1923; succeeded by Calvin Coolidge, then vice-president); Calvin Coolidge (1925–29); and Herbert C. Hoover (1929–33). [Among the policies with which the Republican party has been especially identified are: a liberal construction of the Constitution, esp. in the direction of federal power; specie payments; the maintenance of a gold standard; the retention of acquired territory; a protective tariff system; and, since the World War, opposition to entrance into the League of Nations.

Republican Pawnee. = KITAKEHAHKI. See PAWNEE.

re'pub·li·ca'tion (rē'pŭb·lĭ·kā'shŭn), n. Act of republishing; also, something republished. Specif.: a A new or second publication, or promulgation, as of a will, a code, a religion, a law, or the like. b A republished book, literary work, or the like.

republic of letters. The collective body of literary or learned men; also, the field of literature; as, a work that has attained a high position in the republic of letters.

Republic of Plato, The. Familiar title of the dialogue generally regarded as the greatest of Plato's works. It is a search for justice in the construction of an ideal state.

re·pub'lish (rē·pŭb'lĭsh), v. t. To publish anew; specif.: a To publish a reprint of (a book). b To publish or promulgate anew, as a will, by re-execution or codicil, etc.

re·pub'lish·er (-ĕr), n. One who republishes.

re·pu'di·a·ble (rē·pū'dĭ·ȧ·b'l), adj. [See REPUDIATE.] Admitting of repudiation.

re·pu'di·ate (rē·pū'dĭ·āt), v. t.; -AT'ED (-āt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -AT'ING (-āt'ĭng). [L. repudiatus, past part. of repudiare to repudiate, reject, fr. repudium separation, divorce, fr. re- re- + (prob.) the root of pudere to be ashamed. See PUDIC.] 1. To divorce, put away, or discard, as a wife.

2. To cast off; disown; to refuse to have anything to do with; to renounce; as, to repudiate a son, a gift.

3. To refuse to accept as true, just, of rightful authority or obligation, or the like; as, to repudiate a pretender's claims; to repudiate authority in matters of belief.

4. To refuse approval or belief to; as, to repudiate a charge, a tale, or a dogma.

5. To refuse to acknowledge or to pay; to disclaim; as, the State has repudiated its debts.

Syn. — Discard, reject; disavow. See RENOUNCE.

Ant. — Acknowledge, own, recognize; approve.

re·pu'di·ate (rē·pū'dĭ·ăt), adj. [L. repudiatus, past part.] Repudiated; divorced. Obs.

re·pu'di·a'tion (-ā'shŭn), n. [L. repudiatio.] Act of repudiating, or state of being repudiated; as, repudiation of a charge, a doctrine, a claim. Specif.: a Hist. Divorce (of a woman). b Canon Law. Act of refusing a benefice. c Act of refusing to acknowledge or pay a debt; as, an era of repudiation; specif., such action on the part of public authorities, against whom no claim can be enforced.

re·pu'di·a'tion·ist, n. One who favors repudiation, esp. of a public debt.

re·pu'di·a'tive (rē·pū'dĭ·ā'tĭv), adj. That repudiates or is inclined to repudiate. Rare.

re·pu'di·a'tor (rē·pū'dĭ·ā'tĕr), n. [LL.] One who repudiates or advocates repudiation.

re·pu'di·a·to'ry (-ȧ·tō'rĭ; -tĕr·ĭ), adj. Of, pertaining to, or supporting, repudiation.

re·pugn' (rē·pūn'), v. [OF. repugner, fr. L. repugnare, repugnatum, fr. re- + pugnare to fight. See PUGNACIOUS; cf. SPONTOON.] Transitive: 1. To fight against; oppose; resist. Archaic.

Stubbornly he did repugn the truth. Shak.

2. To be contrary to or inconsistent with. Obs.

3. To cause repugnance in; to repel. Rare.

—, Intransitive: 1. To be contradictory, at variance, inconsistent, contrary, or opposed. Obs.

2. To make resistance; oppose; fight or strive (against); offer objection or resistance (to). Now Rare.

re·pug'na·ble (rē·pŭg'nȧ·b'l; rē·pūn'ȧ·b'l), adj. [MF.] Capable of being repugned; also, repugnant; contrary. Obs.

re·pug'nance (rē·pŭg'nĕns), n. [OF., fr. L. repugnantia.] 1. The quality or fact of being opposed, or esp., reciprocally opposed; opposition; now, usually, of statements, opinions, etc., inconsistency, incompatibility, incongruity, or an instance of such; as, repugnance between the Gospel narratives.

You . . . are . . . a greater skeptic, and maintain more paradoxes and repugnances to common sense, than I. Berkeley.

2. Deep-rooted antagonism; settled aversion; strong antipathy; as, unable to overcome one's repugnance to snakes; to feel repugnance against capital punishment.

Syn. — Loathing, abhorrence, disgust; reluctance. See ANTIPATHY.

re·pug'nan·cy (-năn·sĭ), n. Repugnance.

re·pug'nant (rē·pŭg'nănt), adj. [OF., fr. L. repugnans, -antis, pres. part. of repugnare. See REPUGN.] 1. Opposed or reciprocally opposed; contradictory; irreconcilable; — sometimes followed by with or, now esp., to; as, chemically repugnant properties; a principle repugnant to constitutional law.

2. That resists or offers resistance; hostile; refractory.

Tempering the repugnant mass with liquid love. Shelley.

3. Distasteful; offensive; repulsive; as, an act repugnant to one's sense of honor.

Syn. — Opposed, adverse, irreconcilable, incompatible, inimical; repulsive, repellent.

Ant. — Consonant; agreeable, pleasing, attractive.

re·pug'nate (-nāt), v. t. & i. [L. repugnare. See REPUGN.] To oppose; combat. Rare.

re·pug'na·to'ri·al (rē·pŭg'nȧ·tō'rĭ·ăl; 181), adj. [L. repugnatorius. See REPUGN.] Zool. Serving to repel enemies, as the repugnatorial pores of millipedes, and repugnatorial glands of certain insects, which emit an offensive secretion or vapor.

re·pugn'er (rē·pūn'ĕr), n. One who repugns. Rare.

re·pul'lu·late (rē·pŭl'ū·lāt), v. i. [L. repullulare, repullulatum. See PULLULATE.] 1. To bud or sprout again. Now Rare.

2. Med. To recur or return, as a disease. Now Rare.

— re·pul'lu·la'tion (-lā'shŭn), n. — re·pul'lu·la'tive (-lā'-tĭv), adj. — re·pul'lu·les'cent (-lĕs'ĕnt; -ĭnt), adj. All Rare.

re·pul'pit (rē·pŏŏl'pĭt), v. t. To reinstate in a pulpit. Tennyson.

re·pulse' (rē·pŭls'), v. t.; -PULSED (-pŭlst'); -PULS'ING (-pŭl'-sĭng). [L. repulsus, past part. of repellere. See REPEL.] 1. To repel, as an assault or an enemy; to beat or drive back.

2. To repel by discourtesy, coldness, or denial; to rebuff; reject; as, to repulse a suitor; also, Obs., to exclude.

re·pulse', n. [L. repulsa, fr. repellere, repulsum.] 1. Act of repelling, or fact of being repelled, in hostile encounter.

2. Refusal; denial; rejection; rebuff; as, to risk a repulse.

3. A forcing or driving back; — opposed to impulse. Obs.

re·pulse'less, adj. That cannot be repulsed.

re·puls'er (rē·pŭl'sĕr), n. One who repulses.

re·pul'sion (rē·pŭl'shŭn), n. [LL. repulsio.] 1. Divorce; repudiation. Obs.

2. Act of repulsing, or driving back, off, or away, or fact of being repulsed, or driven back, off, or away.

3. A feeling of aversion; strong dislike; repugnance.

4. Biol. In genetics, a tendency for two characters or genes to be independent rather than linked in their inheritance.

5. Physics. Act of repelling, or the force with which bodies, particles, or like forces, repel one another. See REPEL, v. t., 9.

re·pul'sive (rē·pŭl'sĭv), adj. [Cf. F. répulsif.] 1. Serving, or able, to repulse, or repel; characterized by repulsion; as, a repulsive force.

2. Repelling or rejecting advances; forbidding.

His reserve may be a little repulsive. Jane Austen.

3. Arousing aversion or disgust; offensive; disgusting; as, a repulsive sore, character, or deed.

Syn. — See REPELLENT. Ant. — Attractive, pleasing.

— re·pul'sive·ly, adv. — re·pul'sive·ness, n.

re·pul'sive (rē·pŭl'sĭv), n. That which repels; Med., a repellent. Obs.

re·pul'so·ry (rē·pŭl'sō·rĭ), adj. & n. [LL. repulsorius.] Repulsive. Rare.

re·pur'chase (rē·pŭr'chĭs), v. t. To buy back or again; to regain by purchase. — n. A repurchasing.

re·pur'chas·er (-chĭs·ĕr), n. One who repurchases.

re·pub'li·can'i·an, adj. & n. Republican. Obs.

re·pub'lish·ment, n. See -MENT.

re·pub'lisht. Republished. Ref. Sp.

re·pud'dle, v. t. See RE-, 2. [Sp.] re·pu'di·a'tiv. Repudiative. Ref.

rep'u·dy, n. [L. repudium.] Repudiation; divorce. Obs. — v. t. [F. répudier.] To repudiate. Obs.

re·puff', v. t. See RE-, 1.

repugnant condition. Law. See CONDITION, 9. [NANT.]

re·pug'nant·ly, adv. of REPUG-re·pug'nant·ness, n. See -NESS. Rare.

re·pulse'proof', adj. See -PROOF.

re·pul'siv. Repulsive. Ref. Sp.

re·pul'st'. Repulsed. Ref. Sp.

re·pul'ver·ize, v. t., re·pump', v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·pun'ish, v. t. See RE-, 2. — re·pun'ish·ment, n.

re·pure', v. t. Repurify. Obs.

re·pur'gate, v. t. [L. repurgatus, past part. of repurgare.] To repurge. Obs. — re·pur·ga'tion (rē'pŭr·gā'shŭn; rē'pŭr·ĭ-), n. Obs.

re·pur'ge', v. t., re'pu·ri·fi·ca'tion, n., re·pu'ri·fy, v. t., re·Pu'ri·tan·ize, v. i. & t., re·pur'ple, v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·pur'pose, v. t. See RE-, 2.

re'pur·suе', v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'pur·suit', n.

rep'u·ta'tion·less, adj. See -LESS.

re·put'ed·ly (rē·pūt'ĕd·lĭ; -ĭd·lĭ; 119), adv. of REPUTED.

re·qual'i·fy, v. t. & i. See RE-, 2. — re'qual·i·fi·ca'tion, n.

re·quar'an·tine, v. t., re·quench', v. t. See RE-, 2.

rep'u·ta·bil'i·ty (rĕp'ū·tȧ·bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n. Quality or state of being reputable, or enjoying good repute.

rep'u·ta·ble (rĕp'ū·tȧ·b'l), adj. [From REPUTE; cf. MF. reputable.] 1. Enjoying good repute; of excellent reputation; held in esteem; honorable; estimable; as, a reputable citizen, firm, or calling; reputable conduct.

2. Of words or their use, employed widely or sanctioned by good writers.

Syn. — Respectable, creditable, worthy.

Ant. — Disreputable, dishonorable.

— rep'u·ta·ble·ness, n. — rep'u·ta·bly, adv.

rep'u·ta'tion (rĕp'ū·tā'shŭn), n. [L. reputatio a reckoning, consideration; cf. F. réputation. See REPUTE, v.] 1. Opinion; estimation; account. Obs.

2. The estimation in which one is generally held; the character commonly imputed to a person or thing; one's reputed as distinct from one's inherent or real character; as, to enjoy a good, or suffer from a bad, reputation; an honorable man in spite of his reputation.

3. Repute, or public esteem, either attained or in process of attainment; fame; celebrity; note; distinction; name; as, a man of reputation; one's growing reputation; the poem will make his reputation.

4. Good name; place in public esteem or regard; as, to save or lose one's reputation.

5. A particular character ascribed or credited to one in public opinion or popular belief; — with the and followed by of; as, to have the reputation of being a spy or of slighting one's work.

Syn. — REPUTATION, FAME, RENOWN, HONOR, GLORY, CONSIDERATION, DISTINCTION. REPUTATION is the estimation in which one is held, esp. on some particular account; FAME is wide celebrity; as, "Authors think their reputation safe" (Pope); a reputation for wit; "Popularity is neither fame nor greatness" (Hazlitt); "Had he lived . . . his public fame would have been as great as his private reputation" (Macaulay); "As fame is to reputation, so heaven is to an . . . immediate advantage" (Coleridge). RENOWN is exalted or widespread fame; HONOR, as here compared, emphasizes the element of respect or esteem (for its distinction from virtue see HONOR, sense 5 a); GLORY is signal and brilliant renown; as, "Those other two, equaled with me in fate, so were I equaled with them in renown" (Milton); "Length of days is in her right hand; and in her left hand riches and honor" (Prov. iii. 16); "The paths of glory lead but to the grave" (Gray); "The path of duty was the way to glory" (Tennyson). CONSIDERATION emphasizes the idea of regard, esp. as based on sterling qualities; DISTINCTION, as here compared, is honorable pre-eminence, as, "Consideration is not reputation, still less celebrity, fame, or glory; . . . it is the reward given to constancy in duty, to probity of conduct. It is a little more than esteem, and a little less than admiration" (Mrs. Humphry Ward); "William's special distinction is that he treats them [politics] with his soul" (M. Arnold). Cf. EMINENT, REVERENCE.

re·put'a·tive (rē·pūt'ȧ·tĭv), adj. Putative. — re·put'a·tive·ly, adv. Both Now Rare.

re·pute' (rē·pūt'), v.; -PUT'ED (-pūt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -PUT'ING (-pūt'ĭng). [OF. or L.; OF. reputer, fr. L. reputare to count over, think over, impute, repute, fr. re- re- + putare to count, think. See PUTATIVE.] Transitive: 1. To hold in thought; to account; esteem; hold; think; reckon; — now usually in passive; as, he is reputed to be worth millions.

Ingratitude, which Rome reputes to be a heinous sin. Shak.

2. To attribute; impute; as, the sacrifice shall be reputed to him for righteousness. Obs.

3. To have a good repute, or opinion, of. Obs.

—, Intransitive: To hold an appraising opinion; — with of; as, to repute highly of one. Obs. Shak.

re·pute', n. 1. Opinion; estimation; judgment. Obs.

2. Reputation, or the character, status, etc., commonly or popularly ascribed to one; as, a man of evil repute; to persevere through good or ill repute.

3. The state, character, or fact, of being publicly known, spoken of, estimated, or esteemed; fame; note; as, a book of no little repute; a scientist of repute; also, favor or degree of favor generally accorded; public esteem; as, a painting held in high repute.

4. Report; common talk; popular ascription.

Our painter was his pupil, by repute. Browning.

re·pute', adj. [Cf. F. réputé, past part.] Scots Law. Reputed; — chiefly in the phrase habit and repute, held and reputed (to be).

re·put'ed (rē·pūt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj. 1. Having repute, esp. high repute; reputable; — now often highly reputed.

He became a member of a reputed legal firm. Edith Wharton.

2. That has the reputation of being popularly supposed; generally accepted; putative; — in the attributive position; as, his reputed father; a reputed success.

reputed manor, or manor by reputation. A manor that has lost its manorial status by expiry of some necessary adjunct. Oxf. E. D.

reputed parish. See PARISH, n., 1 d.

re·pute'less, adj. Not of good repute; inglorious. Obs.

re·queen' (rē·kwēn'), v. t. & i. Beekeeping. To replace an old queen (of a hive of bees) with a young one of the same season's raising to prevent swarming.

re·quest' (rē·kwĕst'), n. [ME. requeste, fr. OF. requeste (F. requête), fr. (assumed) VL. requaestīta, fr. past part. of requaerēre. See REQUIRE; cf. QUEST.] 1. Act or an instance of asking for something or some action desired; expression of desire; entreaty; petition; as, a request for aid.

I will marry her, sir, at your request. Shak.

2. That which is asked for; as, to grant a request.

3. The condition or the fact of being requested; as, tickets will be issued only upon request; also, in phrases at or by request, in compliance with or response to a requesting.

4. A state of being asked for or held in such estimation as to be sought after; demand; as, a book in great request.

Syn. — Petition, supplication, suit, demand.

re·quest' (rē·kwĕst'), v.; -QUEST'ED; -QUEST'ING. [OF. requester (F. requêter).] Transitive: 1. To ask for (something) or, Now Rare, for permission or opportunity (to do, see, hear, etc., something); to solicit; as, to request a loan, one's presence, or permission to speak; to request to hear one sing or to meet one.

2. To make a request to or of (one); — followed by an infinitive; as, to request him to act as best man.

3. To ask (a person) to come, go, or act; — followed by to (a place) or against (one). Obs.

—, Intransitive: To make a request.

Syn. — Beg, entreat, pray. See ASK.

re·quest'er (rē-kwĕs'tĕr), n. One who requests.

request note. Law. A request directed to a revenue officer for permission to remove goods subject to excise. Eng.

re'qui·em (rē'kwĭ-ĕm; rĕk'wĭ-ĕm; 277), n. [Acc. of L. requies rest, the first words of the Introit of the Mass being "Requiem aeternam dona eis, Domine," give eternal rest to them, O Lord, fr. re- re- + quies quiet. See QUIET.] 1. [usually cap.] R.C.Ch. A Mass for the repose of a departed soul or souls; also, the Introit of this Mass. See Ety., above.
2. [usually cap.] Music. A setting of the Mass for the dead, usually including the Requiem, Kyrie, several stanzas of the hymn Dies Irae, the Domine Jesu Christe, Sanctus, Benedictus, Agnus Dei, and the Lux Aeterna. Also, a piece of like character on other words, from Scripture or elsewhere; as, Brahms's "German Requiem." Hence, any grand musical service or hymn in honor of the dead.
3. Rest; quiet; peace. Now Rare.
4. A song or chant inviting rest or repose for living or dead; sometimes, a dirge.

Still would'st thou sing, and I have ears in vain,
To thy high requiem become a sod. Keats.

re'qui·em, n., or requiem shark. A requin shark.

Req'ui·e'ni·a (rĕk'wĭ-ē'nĭ-ȧ), n. [NL. after Esprit Requien, French conchologist.] Paleontol. A genus of Cretaceous lamellibranch mollusks of the family Chamidae having the left valve spiral and the right valve small and fitting on the other like an operculum.

‖re'qui·es'cat (rĕk'wĭ-ĕs'kăt), n. [L., fr. the phrase requiescat in pace may he (or she) rest in peace.] A prayer for the repose of a dead person.

req'ui·es'cence (rĕk'wĭ-ĕs'ĕns; -'nĕs), n. Repose.

re'quin (rē'kwĭn), n.; pl. REQUIN, sometimes REQUINS (-kwĭnz). See PLURAL, Note. Also requin shark. [F.] Any of various voracious sharks of the family Carchariidae, esp. the cub sharks; sometimes, the man-eater.

re·quir'a·ble (rē-kwīr'ȧ-b'l), adj. [Cf. ME. (fr. OF.) requerable.] Capable of being required; requisite.

re·quire' (rē-kwīr'), v.; -QUIRED' (-kwīrd'); -QUIR'ING (-kwīr'ĭng). [ME. requiren, requeren, fr. OF. requerre (3d sing. pres. requiert), F. requérir, fr. (assumed) VL. requaerĕre, for L. requirere, requisitum, fr. re- re- + quaerere to ask. See QUERY; cf. REQUEST, REQUISITE.] Transitive:
1. To demand; to claim as by right and authority; to exact; as, to require the surrender of property.

This night thy soul shall be required of thee. Luke xii. 20.

2. To demand or exact as necessary or appropriate; hence, to want; to need; call for; as, the matter requires haste; experience is required to write well; the dress requires six yards of cloth; public policy requires the treaty.

Just gave what life required, and gave no more. Goldsmith.

3. To ask for as a favor; to request. Archaic.
I was ashamed to require of the king a band of soldiers and horsemen to help us against the enemy in the way. Ezra viii. 22.
4. To impose a command or compulsion upon (one) to do something; as, to require a man to serve in the army.
5. Obs. a To ask (a person) a question; to inquire of. b To ask (a person) for or to do something. c To search for as needed or wanted; to seek; as, a shepherd requiring a lost sheep.
—, Intransitive: 1. To make request; to ask. Now Rare.
2. To be necessary or requisite. Now Rare.
3. To need; to be under a necessity; as, man requires to feed or to be fed; a fact requires to be stated.
Syn. — Claim; necessitate; ask; enjoin; compel, force.

re·quire', n. Requirement. Rare.

re·quire'ment (rē-kwīr'mĕnt), n. 1. Act of requiring, esp. of making requisition. Rare.
2. That which is required; specif.: a A requisite or essential condition; a required quality, course, kind of training, etc.; as, to fulfill the requirements for college entrance. b A necessity; a need.
God gave her the child, and gave her too an instinctive knowledge of its nature and requirements. Hawthorne.
Syn. — REQUIREMENT, REQUISITE are sometimes interchangeable. But REQUIREMENT commonly emphasizes the idea of something demanded or expected; REQUISITE, the implication of something indispensable or essential; as, "Marriage, like religion and erudition, . . . was fated to become an outward requirement, and Edward Casaubon was bent on fulfilling unimpeachably all requirements" (G. Eliot); "The first requisite of good writing is to have an earnest and definite purpose" (Lowell); the requirements for entrance to college. Cf. NEEDFUL.

re·quir'er (rē-kwīr'ĕr), n. One who requires.

req'ui·site (rĕk'wĭ-zĭt), adj. [L. requisitus, past part. of requirere, fr. re- re- + quaerere to ask. See REQUIRE.] Required by the nature of things, by circumstances, or by the end in view; necessary.

All truth requisite for men to know. Milton.

Syn. and Ant. — See NEEDFUL.
— req'ui·site·ly, adv. — req'ui·site·ness, n.

req'ui·site (rĕk'wĭ-zĭt), n. A required or necessary quality or thing; something indispensable or essential; as, to gather all requisites for the trip; good breeding is a requisite in a teacher.
Syn. — See REQUIREMENT. Ant. — Nonessential.

req'ui·si'tion (-zĭsh'ŭn), n. [F. réquisition, fr. L. requisitio a searching.] 1. Act of requiring, or requesting. Obs.
2. Act of requiring, or demanding, as of right; a demand or application made as by authority; specif., a formal application made by one officer or department to another for things needed in the service or business; as, a requisition for clothing, troops, money.
3. State of being demanded, called for, or put into service or use; — used with in or into; as, to put an orator in requisition in a political campaign.
4. That which is required; a requirement; as, the requisitions of a position, a religion, a science.
5. International Law. A formal demand made by one state or government upon another for the surrender or extradition of a fugitive from justice. See EXTRADITION.
6. Law. A formal demand for the performance of an obligation, esp. one made through a notary.
7. Mil. A demand by the invader upon the people of an invaded country for supplies or labor (a demand for money being usually called a contribution).

req'ui·si'tion, (rĕk'wĭ-zĭsh'ŭn), v. t.; -SI'TIONED (-zĭsh'ŭnd); -SI'TION·ING. [Cf. F. réquisitionner.] 1. To make a requisition or authoritative demand for, esp. for military purposes; to put in requisition; hence, to demand; to press into service; as, to requisition horses for troops.
2. To make a requisition or demand upon; as, to requisition a town for horses.

req'ui·si'tion·ar'y (-ĕr'ĭ; -ĕr·ĭ), adj. Pertaining to, or of the nature of, requisition.

req'ui·si'tion·ist, n. One who makes or signs a requisition.

re·quis'i·tor (rē-kwĭz'ĭ·tĕr), n. A requisitionist. Rare. — re·quis'i·to'ri·al (-tō'rĭ·ȧl; 181), adj. Rare.

re·quis'i·to'ry (rē-kwĭz'ĭ·tō'rĭ; -tĕr·ĭ), adj. Containing or making a requisition or requisitions; requisitioning.

re·quis'i·tor·ry, n. French Law. The public prosecutor's formal demand for the punishment of an accused person.

re·quit'a·ble (rē-kwĭt'ȧ-b'l), adj. That may be requited.

re·quit'al (rē-kwĭt'ăl; -'l), n. [From REQUITE.] 1. Act of requiting or fact of being required; as, to suffer with no hope of requital.
2. That which requites; something given in return, compensation, or retaliation; recompense, reward, or retribution; as, to seek requital for his losses; a poor requital for his self-sacrifice.
Syn. — REQUITAL, RETALIATION, REPRISAL, REVENGE, VENGEANCE, RETRIBUTION. REQUITAL, as here compared (see REPARATION), denotes a return of any sort for injuries received; RETALIATION implies more specifically a rendering of evil for evil; REPRISAL is applied esp. to retaliation in warfare, whether by forcible seizure of property or by the infliction of injuries similar to those received. REVENGE is retaliation esp. for personal wrong or injury, and usually implies resentment, spite, or malice; VENGEANCE is sometimes used of passionate revenge, but more frequently implies stern or righteous indignation, and often suggests an avenging of others' wrongs; as, "A man that studieth revenge keeps his own wounds green" (Bacon); "Vengeance is mine, I will repay, saith the Lord" (Rom. xii. 19). RETRIBUTION is condign punishment; as, "Vice received her retribution due" (Cowper). Cf. AVENGE, VINDICTIVE.

re·quit'a·tive (rē-kwĭt'ȧ-tĭv), adj. Requiting. Rare.

re·quite' (rē-kwīt'), v. t.; -QUIT'ED (-kwīt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -QUIT'ING (-kwīt'ĭng). [re- + quit.] 1. To repay (as a benefit or injury); to make return or retaliation for; to reward, recompense, or avenge; as, to requite one's services; to requite evil with good.
2. To repay (a person, community, etc.) for a benefit, injury, or the like; to recompense; reward; to retaliate upon; as, to requite one handsomely for his services, or a traitor with death.
3. To give, pay, or do in return; to return; as, to requite evil for evil. Now Rare.
4. To compensate or make up for; as, the charms of travel more than requite its inconveniences.
Syn. — Repay, pay, compensate, make up for, satisfy.

re·quite', n. Requital. Rare.

re·quite'less, adj. Unrequited. Obs.

re·quite'ment, n. Requital.

re·quit'er (rē-kwĭt'ĕr), n. One who requites.

re'ra·di·a'tion (rē'rā·dĭ·ā'shŭn), n. Radiation again or anew; specif., Physics, radiation emitted by a body or system as a result of its absorbing radiation incident on it.

re·rail' (rē-rāl'), v. t. To replace on the rails, as an engine.

rere- (rēr-), = REAR-, as in *rere*dos. Archaic.

rere'brace' (rēr'brās'), n. [Cf. F. arrière-bras. See RERE-; BRACE.] In medieval armor, plate armor for the upper part of the arm.

a Rerebrace; b Cubitiere; c Vambrace.

re'–re·cord' (rē'rē·kôrd'), v. t. [re- + record.] To record again or anew; specif., Motion Pictures, to prepare electrically one sound record from (another).

rere'–coun'ty, n. [AF. rerecounté. See RERE-; COUNTY.] Eng. Law. A subsidiary county court held by the sheriff on the day after the regular one. Obs. Oxf. E. D.

rere'dos (rēr'dŏs), n. [AF. rere- + dos back. See RERE-; DOSSER.] 1. Arch. a Eccl. A screen or partition wall, usually ornamental, behind an altar; sometimes, inaccurately, a choir screen. b Archaic. The back of a fireplace, or of an open hearth, as that upon which fires were lighted, immediately under the louver, in the center of ancient halls.
2. A wall drapery back of an altar. Obs.
3. A backplate in ancient armor. Obs.

re·ree' (rē-rē'), n. [Nepali ghore.] The narrow-leaved cattail (Typha angustifolia). India.

re'–re·join'der (rē'rē·join'dĕr), n. A surrejoinder. Rare.

rere'mouse' (rēr'mous'), n.; pl. -MICE (-mīs'). [AS. hrere-mūs, prob. fr. hrēran to move + mūs mouse. See UPROAR.] A bat. Now Dial.

rere'sup'per (rēr'sŭp'ĕr), n. [AF. rere-super. See RERE-; SUPPER.] A late or second supper. Archaic.

re·roll' (rē·rōl'; rē'rōl'), n. Piano Mfg. In a piano player, the device for rewinding the roll after use. — (pron. rē·rōl') v. t. To roll again or anew; specif., to rewind on a reroll.

‖re'rum cog·no'sce·re cau'sas (rē'rŭm kŏg·nōs'ē·rē kô'zăs). [L.] See FELIX QUI POTUIT RERUM COGNOSCERE CAUSAS.

re·rum'mage (rē·rŭm'ĭj), v. t. To search (a vessel) when taking in export cargo; — used of the customs officials. Eng.

Re'rum no·va'rum. [L.] An encyclical on the social order with reference to the condition of labor, issued by Pope Leo XIII in 1891; — from its opening words.

‖re'rum pri·mor'di·a. [L.] The first beginnings of things.

re·run' (rē·rŭn'; rē'rŭn'), n. Act or an instance of rerunning; specif., the presentation of a motion picture after its first run; also, the picture itself when so exhibited.

re·run' (rē·rŭn'), v. t. See RE-, 2.

‖res (rēz), n.; pl. RES. [L. See REAL, adj.] A thing; the particular thing; a matter; a point; — used esp. in various Latin phrases, chiefly legal.

re·sa'ca (rē·zä'kȧ), n. [Pg.] A rebounding billow.

re·sa'ca (rā·sä'kȧ), n. [Amer. Sp., fr. Sp. resaca undertow, outgoing wave.] A former course or channel of a stream. Southwestern U. S.

‖res ad·ju'di·ca'ta (ă.·jōō'dĭ·kā'tȧ; 242). [L.] A thing or matter finally decided on its merits by a court of competent jurisdiction. Such a matter cannot be litigated again between the same parties. Called also former adjudication.

re·sail' (rē·sāl'), v. t. & i. To sail again; also, to sail back.

re·sal'a·ble (rē·sāl'ȧ-b'l), adj. That may be sold again.

re·sale' (rē·sāl'; rē'sāl'; 66), n. Act of selling again; also, a sale at second hand or at retail, or a second sale.

‖res a'li·cu'jus (rēz ăl'ĭ·kū'jŭs). [L.] Rom. & Civil Law. Things of a particular person or body of persons.

‖res a'li·e'nae (ā'lĭ·ē'nē). [L.] Things belonging to others.

re·saw' (rē·sô'), v. t. To saw over again; specif., to saw into boards, or dimension lumber. — n. A machine for resawing.

re·saw'er, n. One who operates a resaw; a resawyer.

re·saw'yer (rē·sô'yĕr), n. One who resaws.

re·say' (-sā'), v. t. To say in answer; to reply; also, to say again; repeat. Rare.

re·scind' (rē·sĭnd'), v. t.; -SCIND'ED; -SCIND'ING. [L. rescindere, rescissum, fr. re- re- + scindere to cut, split. See SHED, v.; cf. ABSCIND.] 1. To cut off or remove (usually something immaterial); as, to rescind needless outlay. Now Rare.
2. To abrogate; annul; cancel.
Pakenham . . . would . . . not rescind his first orders. G. E. King.
3. Specif.: To vacate or make void, as an act, by the enacting authority or by superior authority; to repeal; as, to rescind a law, a resolution, or a vote; to rescind a decree or a judgment. In the law of contracts the technical rescinding of a contract avoids the contract ab initio and requires that both parties be put as far as possible in the same position as before making the contract.
Syn. — See ABOLISH. Ant. — Confirm; execute.

re·scind'er, n. One who or that which rescinds.

re·scis'si·ble (rē·sĭs'ĭ·b'l), adj. Capable of being rescinded.

re·scis'sion (rē·sĭzh'ŭn), n. [LL. rescissio. See RESCIND.] 1. Act of cutting off. Obs.
2. Act of rescinding, abrogating, annulling, or vacating.

re·scis'so·ry (rē·sĭs'ō·rĭ; rē·sĭz'-), adj. [LL. rescissorius.] Tending to, or having the effect of, rescission; revoking; as, a rescissory action; — often specif. applied, Scots Hist., to the act passed by the Scottish Parliament in 1661 rescinding all the acts of the parliaments from 1633.

‖res com·mu'nes (rēz kŏ·mū'nēz). [L.] Rom. & Civil Law. Things owned by no one and subject to use by all; that is, things incapable of entire exclusive appropriation, such as light, air, the sea and running water.

‖res com·ple'ta (rēz kŏm·plē'tȧ). [L.] A complete thing.

re·score' (rē·skōr'; 181), v. t. To score again or anew; specif., Music, to arrange (an ensemble instrumental composition) for a different combination of instruments.

‖res cor'po·ra'les (rēz kôr'pō·rā'lēz). [L.] Rom. & Civil Law. Corporeal or tangible things. re·scribe' (rē·skrīb'), v. t. [L. rescribere, fr. re- re- + scribere to write. See SCRIBE.] 1. To write in reply. Obs.

2. To write over again, to rewrite. Now Rare.

re'script (rē'skrĭpt), n. [L. rescriptum, prop., past part. neut. See RESCRIBE.] 1. Roman & Civil Law. The written answer of a Roman emperor or of a sovereign, or of the Pope, to an inquiry upon some matter of law or state. A rescript was often specifically called an annotation, subnotation, or subscription when given in reply to a private citizen, and a letter or epistle when given in reply to a magistrate; and a pragmatic sanction when given in reply to a municipality, to the citizens of a province, etc.
2. R.C.Ch. An official written answer of the Pope upon a question of private canon law.
3. An official or authoritative order, decree, or the like.
4. Act of rewriting; also, that which is rewritten; a rewriting.
5. A counterpart. Rare.

---

re·ques'tion, v. i., re·quick'en, v. t. & i. See RE-, 2.

‖re'qui·es'cat in pa'ce (rĕk'wĭ·ĕs'kăt). [L.] May he (or she) rest in peace; — abbr. R. I. P. re·quir'ant (rē·kwīr'ănt), n. A suitor. Obs. [mand. Obs.] re·quir'y (-ĭ), n. Request; dere·quite', v. i. [P. requis, fem. requite, past part. of OF. requerre.] To require. Obs.

req'ui·sit. Requisite. Ref. Sp.

req'ui·si'tiond. Requisitioned. Ref. Sp. [TIONIST.]

req'ui·si'tion·er, n. = REQUISIre·quit', v. i. To requite. Obs.

re·quit', v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·quite'ful, adj. Requiting. Obs.

re·quiz', v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·quote', v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'quo·ta'tion, n.

re·rack', v. t. See RE-, 2. — re·rack'er, n.

re·ra'di·ate, v. t. & i. See RE-, 1. rer'age, n. = ARREARAGE. Obs.

re·raise', v. t., re·rake', v. t., re·rank', v. t., re·rate', v. t. See RE-, 2.

rerd, rerde, n. & v. [AS. rœrd speech, voice, rœrdian to speak.] Cry; clamor; noise; roar. Obs.

rere. Var. of REAR. Now Dial.

rere'-ac·count', n. [rere- + account.] An afterreckoning. Obs. exc. Hist.

re'·re·ac'tion, n. See RE-, 1.

re·read', v. t. & i. See RE-, 2. — re·read'er, n.

rere'-arch'. Var. of REAR ARCH.

rere'-band'. ✝ ARRIÈRE-BAN.

rere'-ban'quet, n. [See RERE-SUPPER.] A repast taken after the noon or evening meal. Obs.

re'·re·bel', v. i. See RE-, 2.

re'·re·ceive', v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'·re·cep'tion, n.

re'·re·cite', v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'·re·cit'al, n.

re·reck'on, v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·rec'og·nize, v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'·rec·og·ni'tion, n.

re'·rec·ol·lect', v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'·rec·ol·lec'tion, n.

re'·rec·om·mend', v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'·rec·om·men·da'tion, n.

re·rec'on·cile, v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'·rec·on·cil'i·a'tion, n.

re'·re·cov'er, v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·rec'ti·fy, v. t. See RE-, 2. — re·rec'ti·fi·ca'tion, n.

rere'de·main', n. [F. arrière back + de of + main hand; cf. F. arrière-main a backward stroke.] A backward stroke. Obs.

re'·re·duce', v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'·re·duc'tion, n.

re'·reel', v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·reeve', v. t. See RE-, 2.

re'·re·fer', v. t. See RE-, 2. — re·ref'er·ence, n. [FIER.]

rere'·fief', n. [OF.] = ARRIÈREre'·re·fine', v. t., re'·re·flect', v. i., re'·re·flec'tion, n., re'·re·form', v. t., re'·ref·or·ma'tion (rē'rĕf·ôr·mā'shŭn), n. See RE-, 2.

re'·re·fuse', v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'·re·fus'al, n.

re'·re·gen'er·ate, v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'·re·gen'er·a'tion, n.

re·reg'is·ter, v. & n., re'·reg·is·tra'tion, n., re'·reign' (rē'rān'), v. i., re'·re·it'er·ate, v. t., re'·re·it'er·a'tion, n. See RE-, 2.

re·reg'u·late, v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'·reg·u·la'tion, n.

re'·re·hearse', v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'·re·hears'al, n.

re'·re·ject', v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'·re·jec'tion, n.

re'·re·late', v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'·re·la'tion, n.

re'·re·lease', n. & v., re·rel'ish, v. t., re'·re·ly', v. i. See RE-, 2.

rere'main, n. = REREDEMAIN. Obs.

re'·re·mem'ber, v. t., re'·re·mind', v. t. See RE-, 2.

re'·re·mit', v. t. See RE-, 1.

re'·re·move', v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'·re·mov'al, n.

re·ren'der, v. t., re'·ren·di'tion, n., re·rent', v. t., re·rent'al, n., re'·re·peat', v. t., re'·re·pent', v. i., re'·re·plev'in, v. t., re'·re·ply', v. i. & i., re'·re·port', n. & v. t. & i. See RE-, 2.

re'·rep·re·sent', v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'·rep·re·sen·ta'tion, n.

re'·re·proach', v. t., re'·re·quest', v. t. See RE-, 2.

re'·re·quire', v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'·re·quire'ment, n.

re·res'cue, v. t. See RE-, 2.

re'·re·sent', v. t. See RE-, 1. — re'·re·sent'ment, n.

re'·re·serve', v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'·res·er·va'tion, n.

re'·re·side', v. i. See RE-, 2. — re·res'i·dence, n., 2.

re'·re·sign', v. t. & i. See RE-, 2. — re'·res·ig·na'tion, n.

re'·re·solve', v. t. & i., re'·res·o·lu'tion, n., re'·res·tri·tu'tion, n. See RE-, 2.

re'·re·spond', v. i., re'·re·sponse', n. See RE-, 1.

re'·re·store', v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'·res·to·ra'tion, n.

re'·re·strain', v. i. See RE-, 2. — re'·re·straint', n.

re'·re·strict', v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'·re·stric'tion, n.

re'·re·tire', v. i. See RE-, 1. — re'·re·tire'ment, n.

re'·re·turn', n. & v. t. & i., re'·re·veal', v. t., re'·rev·e·la'tion, n., re'·re·venge', n. & v. t., re'·rev·ver'sal, n., re'·re·verse', v. t. & n., re'·re·vise', n. & v. t., re'·re·vi'sion, n. See RE-, 2.

rere'ward. Var. of REARWARD.

re·rig', v. t. & i., re·ring', v. i., re·rise', v. i., re·ri'val, v. t., re·rivet', v. t., re·rob', v. t., re·robe', v. t., re·rob'o·rate, v. t. (Obs.), re'·ro·man·i·za'tion, n., re·Ro'man·ize, v. t., re·root', v. t., re·rope', v. t., re·route', v. t. & i., re·row', v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·roy'al·ize, v. t. See RE-, 1.

re·rub', v. t., re·rack', v. t. See RE-, 2. [& 2.]

re·sac'ri·fice, n. & v. See RE-, 1 re·sad'dle, v. t. & i. See RE-, 2.

re·sai' (rē'zī'). Var. of REZAI.

re·sal'gar (rē·săl'gĕr), n. [ME.; cf. Pg. resalgar, rosalgar. See REALGAR.] Realgar. Obs.

re·salt', v. t. See RE-, 2.

re'sal·u·ta'tion, n. (Rare), re'sa·lute', v. i., re·sal'vage, v. i., re·sam'ple, n. i., re·sanc'ti·fy, v. i., re·sanc'tion, v. i. See RE-, 2.

re·sat'is·fy, v. i. See RE-, 1. — re'·sat·is·fac'tion, n. [See RE-, 2.]

re·scan', v. i., re·sched'ule, v. i.

re·scind'a·ble, adj. See -ABLE.

re·scind'ment, n. See -MENT.

res·coun'ter, n. [It. riscontro encounter, comparison, verification.] Encounter; also, settlement of accounts. Obs.

res·coun'ter, v. i. [It. riscontrare.] To settle, as accounts. Obs.

res·cours', n. & v. [See RESCOUS.] Rescue. Obs.

res'cous (rĕs'kŭs), n. [ME., fr. OF. rescousse, fr. rescourre, past part. rescous, to rescue. See RESCUE.] 1. Rescue; aid.
2. Law. = RESCUE, n., 2.

res'cous, v. t. [From the n., or fr. OF. rescousser.] To rescue. Obs.

re·scram'ble, v. i., re·scratch', v. i. See RE-, 2.

N O P Q R

re·scrip'tion (rē·skrĭp'shŭn), n. [LL rescriptio. See RESCRIBE.] 1. Obs. a A rescript, or rewriting. b A reply in writing.
2. A kind of promissory note or warrant, issued by a government. Obs. exc. Hist.

re·scrip'tive (rē·skrĭp'tĭv), adj. Pertaining to, or serving for, a rescript; hence, deciding; settling. — re·scrip'tive·ly, adv. Both Rare.

res'cu·a·ble (rĕs'kū·ȧ·b'l), adj. That may be rescued.

res'cue (rĕs'kū), v. t.; RES'CUED (-kūd); RES'CU·ING (-kū·ĭng). [ME. rescouen, fr. OF. rescourre, rescorre (F. recourre), fr. re- re- + escorre to move, shake, fr. L. excutere to shake or drive out. See EXCUSS.] 1. To free from any confinement, violence, danger, or evil; to liberate from actual restraint; to save; deliver; as, to rescue a prisoner of war; to rescue the crew of a sinking ship.
2. Law. To take forcibly from the custody of the law.
3. To regain, or recover, by force; specif., International Law, to effect a rescue of (a prize).
4. Bridge. To take (one's partner) out with a bid not warranted by one's hand.
Syn. — Redeem, recover; extricate, free, deliver, liberate, release. See SAVE.
Ant. — Lose, surrender, forfeit, abandon.

res'cue (rĕs'kū), n. [From RESCUE, v.; cf. RESCOUS.] 1. A rescuing; deliverance or aid in delivering from restraint, violence, or danger; as, to have three rescues to his credit; to come to their rescue.
2. Law. a The forcible taking of a person or goods from the custody of the law, — as in retaking, or taking away, against law, of things lawfully distrained, or in the forcible liberation of a person from an arrest or imprisonment. In general the rescuer of a person is liable to the punishment or penalty belonging to the offense for which the person rescued was held. b Internat. Law. The retaking of a prize by those captured with it. In case of a rescue the property rescued is restored to the owner by the effect of the right of postliminium, this not being so in case of a recapture. Sometimes rescue is applied to the succor rendered by the arrival of outside help before the succored party is entirely overcome. Cf. RECAPTURE.

rescue grass. [Origin uncert.] A tall American brome grass (Bromus unioloides) somewhat like chess, cultivated for hay and forage in the southern United States and also in Australia.

Rescue Grass.

res'cu·er (rĕs'kū·ẽr), n. 1. One who rescues.
2. [cap.] Astron. = PERSEUS, 2. Rare.

‖res do'mi·nans (rēz dŏm'ĭ·nănz). [L.] Law. See SERVITUDE, n.

rese (rēz), v. t. & i. [AS. hrisian.] To shake; quake; tremble. Obs.

rese (rēs), n. [AS. rǣs. See 4th RACE.] Rush; onset; hence, hurry; rashness; impulse. Obs.

rese (rēz), v. i. [AS. rǣsan.] To make a rush, as in attacking; also, to rage. Obs.

re·seal' (rē·sēl'), v. t. To seal again or anew.

re·search' (rē·sûrch'; rē'sûrch; 66; 277), n. [MF. recerche (F. recherche).]
1. Careful or diligent search; a close searching; as, researches after hidden treasure.
2. Studious inquiry or examination; specif. and usually, critical and exhaustive investigation or experimentation having for its aim the discovery of new facts and their correct interpretation, the revision of accepted conclusions, theories, or laws, in the light of newly discovered facts, or the practical applications of such new or revised conclusions, etc.; also, a particular investigation of such a character, or a book, article, or the like, presenting the investigator's discoveries; as, to give one's full time to research; Pasteur's researches in disease prevention.
3. Capacity for, or inclination to, research; as, a scholar of great research.
Syn. — Investigation. See EXAMINATION.
☞ PHRASES are:
research laboratory — research study research material — research worker re·search' (rē·sûrch'; rē'sûrch), v. t. [MF. recercher (F. rechercher). See RE-; SEARCH.] To search or investigate exhaustively; to make researches into. — v. i. To make researches or investigations.

re–search' (rē·sûrch'), v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·search' (66), adj. Pertaining to, engaged in, or requiring, research; as, research facilities, problems.

research engineering. See ENGINEERING, n., 1. — research engineer.

re·search'er (rē·sûr'chẽr; rē'sûrch·ẽr), n. One who researches or one who devotes himself to research.

re·search'ful (rē·sûrch'fŏŏl; -f'l; 66), adj. Making researches or evincing research; scholarly.

re·search'ist (-ĭst), n. [See -IST.] One engaged in research; a researcher.

research professor. A professor in a college or university who is free to devote his whole time to investigation.

re·seat' (rē·sēt'), v. t. 1. To seat or set again.
2. To put a new seat, or new seats, in, as a theater.

‖ré'seau' (rā'zō'), n. [F.] A network; specif.: a Astron. A system of lines forming small squares of standard size, which is photographed, by a separate exposure, on the same plate with star images to facilitate measurements, detect changes of the film, etc. b Lacemaking. In lace, a net ground or foundation.

‖res ec·cle'si·as'ti·cae (rēz ĕ·klē'zĭ·ăs'tĭ·sē). [L.] Ecclesiastical matters or interests; the spiritual and temporal concerns of the church as an institution; — distinguished from res saeculares, secular matters or interests.

re·sect' (rē·sĕkt'), v. t.; -SECT'ED; -SECT'ING. [L. resectus, past part. of resecare to cut off, fr. re- re- + secare to cut.]
1. To cut or pare off, away, or out; to excise. Obs.
2. Surg. To perform the operation of resection.

re·sect' (rē·sĕkt'), past part. [L. resectus, past part.] Resected. Obs.

re·sec'tion (rē·sĕk'shŭn), n. [L. resectio.] 1 Act of cutting or paring off. Obs.
2. The surgical removal of part of an organ or structure; as, gastric resection; the resection of the articular end of a bone; — distinguished from excision, which usually implies the removal of the entire structure.
3. A method in surveying by which one determines his position on a map, after it has been properly oriented, by drawing lines from two or more distant objects through their plotted positions on the map.

re·sec'tion·al (-ăl; -'l), adj. Of or pertaining to resection.

Re·se'da (rē·sē'dȧ), n. [L., a kind of plant.] 1. Bot. A genus of Old World herbs, type of the Resedaceae, having racemose flowers with cleft petals, numerous stamens, and an urn-shaped horned capsule opening at the summit. R. odorata is the garden mignonette; R. lutea, one of the base rockets; R. luteola, the dyer's rocket.
2. [not cap.] The color of the mignonette flower, greenish-yellow in hue, of medium saturation and medium brilliance. It is of lower saturation than laurel green, and less green and of lower saturation and brilliance than moss green; — often written, as French, ré'sé'da' (rā'zā'dȧ'). Called also bladder green, mignonette green, sap green, verd vessie, willow green. Cf. COLOR.

re·se'da, adj. Of the color reseda.
With a sigh Magnolia donned her second best, the reseda sateen. Edna Ferber.

Res'e·da'ce·ae (rĕs'ē·dā'sē·ē), n. pl. [NL. See RESEDA.] Bot. A family of herbs (order Papaverales), the mignonette family, having alternate or fascicled leaves, glandular stipules, and racemose irregular flowers. There are 6 genera and about 65 species, mainly natives of the Mediterranean region. Reseda is the chief genus. — res'e·da'ceous (-shŭs), adj.

re·seize' (rē·sēz'), v. t. Also, in sense 2, re·seise'. [OF. resaisir (F. ressaisir). See RE-; SEIZE.] 1. To seize again, or a second time.
2. To put into possession, or seizin, again; to reinvest with seizin; — used with of, in, and sometimes with.

re·seiz'er, re·sels'er (rē·sēz'ẽr), n. [Prob. an AF. inf. as n., fr. OF. resaisir. See RESEIZE.] One who seizes again or anew; specif., Obs., Feudal Law, resumption of possession by the lord after a tenant's default.

re·sei'zure (rē·sē'zhẽr), n. Act of reseizing.

re·sell' (rē·sĕl'), v. t. To sell again. — re·sell'er, n.

re·sem'blance (rē·zĕm'blăns), n. [AF. See RESEMBLE.]
1. Quality or state of resembling; likeness; similitude; similarity; also, a point of likeness; as, there is no resemblance between the two; family resemblances.
2. A thing or, rarely, person resembling or suggesting another; a symbol; also, a simile or comparison. Obs.
3. A representation; image; copied likeness. Now Rare.
4. Characteristic appearance or nature; outward aspect or manifestation; semblance. Now Rare.
His resemblance being not like the Duke. Shak.
5. Rare. a A demonstration. Spenser. b Probability. Shak.
Syn. — LIKENESS, SIMILARITY, RESEMBLANCE, SEMBLANCE, ANALOGY, AGREEMENT, AFFINITY. LIKENESS commonly implies closer correspondence than SIMILARITY, which often applies to things which are merely somewhat alike; RESEMBLANCE suggests esp. similarity in appearance or in superficial or external qualities; as, "No description, however complete, could convey to my mind an exact likeness of a tune or an harmony which I have never heard . . . Generic resemblances . . . are indeed producible" (J. H. Newman); "We sometimes say of a picture that we doubt not its likeness to the original" (Cowper); "from the knowledge I had of this tree, and the similarity it bore to the spruce" (Cook). But the words are often used without clear distinction. SEMBLANCE frequently suggests mere outward show or seeming; as, "The face of Archie wore the wretched semblance of a smile" (Stevenson); "semblances and counterfeits of men" (Mrs. Humphry Ward). ANALOGY is similarity or (esp.) parallelism of relations; as, "this analogy between the world and the stage" (Fielding). AGREEMENT implies mutual conformity; AFFINITY, as here compared (cf. AFFINITY), suggests inherent agreement, or such similarity as arises from kinship in nature; as, "Expansion and duration have this further agreement" (Locke); "These fictions must have some affinity . . . with that little we really know of the character and customs of the people" (Gray). Cf. IDENTICAL, RECIPROCAL.
Ant. — Dissimilarity, unlikeness, disparity, difference.

re·sem'blance (-blănz), v. t. To resemble. Obs.

re·sem'blant (-blănt), adj. [OF.] Manifesting or characterized by resemblance; also, Rare, dealing with resemblances, or representations of things.

re·sem'ble (rē·zĕm'b'l), v.; -SEM'BLED (-b'ld); -SEM'BLING (-blĭng). [OF. resembler (F. ressembler), fr. re- re- + sembler to seem, resemble, fr. L. similare, simulare, to imitate, fr. similis like, similar. See SIMILAR.] Transitive: 1. To be like or similar to; to bear the similitude of, either in appearance or qualities; as, these brothers resemble each other.
2. To liken; to compare; to represent as like. Archaic.
When I resemble her to thee. Waller.
3. To make a likeness or image of; to represent; portray; depict; also, to symbolize. Obs.
4. To cause to be like; to make like. Now Rare.
5. To counterfeit; imitate; copy. Obs.
—, Intransitive: 1. To seem in outward show; to appear. Obs.
2. To be like; to bear a resemblance; — followed by to. Now Rare.
3. To be alike; to resemble each other; as, the two brothers resemble.

re·sem'ble (rē·sĕm'b'l), v. t. & i. [Cf. F. rassembler. See RE-; ASSEMBLE.] To assemble; collect. Obs.

re·sem'bler (rē·zĕm'blẽr), n. One who resembles.

re·sem'i·nate (rē·sĕm'ĭ·nāt), v. t. [L. reseminare, fr. re- re- + seminare to sow.] To produce again, as by means of seed. Rare.

re·send' (-sĕnd'), v. t. 1. To send again; also, to send back.
2. Teleg. To send on (a message) by means of a repeater.

res'ene (rĕz'ēn), n. [resin + -ene.] Chem. Any of a number of indifferent compounds containing carbon, hydrogen, and oxygen, found in natural resins; — an incorrectly formed name.

re·sent' (rē·zĕnt'), v.; -SENT'ED; -SENT'ING. [F. se ressentir de to feel the effects of, fr. L. re- re- + sentire to feel. See SENSE.] Transitive: 1. Obs. To be sensible of; to feel; as: a To receive with satisfaction, appreciation, pleasure, or the like; also, to remember gratefully. b To feel sorrow, pain, regret, repentance, or the like at; as, to resent a friend's death; to resent a failure. c To take (well or ill).
2. To feel, express, or exhibit indignant displeasure at; as, to resent undue familiarity.
3. Obs. a To give forth (an odor); hence, to suggest. b To recognize; to perceive, esp. by or as if by smelling; — associated in meaning with sent, the older spelling of scent to smell. See RESENT, v. i., 2.
—, Intransitive: 1. To feel or show resentment. Rare.
2. To give forth an odor; to smell; savor; hence, to have a suggestion (of). Obs.
resent oneself. Obs. a To feel pain, regret, or repentance. b To avenge oneself.

re·sent' (rē·zĕnt'), n. A lingering trace; also, resentment. Obs.

re·sent'er, n. One who resents; esp., Obs., one sensible of something; as, a resenter of a favor.

re·sent'ful (rē·zĕnt'fŏŏl; -f'l), adj. Full of resentment or inclined to resent; also, caused or marked by resentment; as, a resentful person, deed, or remark; a resentful temper. — re·sent'ful·ly, adv. — re·sent'ful·ness, n.

re·sen'tience (rē·sĕn'shĕns), n. [See RE-.] Restoration of sentience.

re·sen'tive (rē·zĕn'tĭv), adj. That resents or tends to resent. Obs.

re·sent'less, adj. Devoid of responsive feeling. Rare.

re·sent'ment (rē·zĕnt'mĕnt), n. [F. ressentiment.] 1. A state of resenting, or feeling an emotion, sentiment, or sensation, as of smell; sometimes, a keenly felt emotion; a sharp sense, perception, or realization; also, a specific emotion or expression of an emotion, as appreciation, interest, good will, etc. "So little resentment of their danger." Jer. Taylor. "The kind resentments you had upon the notice of mine [health]." Pepys.
2. Specif., a feeling of indignant displeasure because of something regarded as a wrong, insult, or the like; umbrage.
A feeling of outrage, of resentment, against Nature. Pater.
Syn. — Displeasure, choler, indignation; enmity, hatred, ill will, animosity, malignity. — RESENTMENT, DUDGEON, MALICE, SPITE, GRUDGE, RANCOR. RESENTMENT is indignant displeasure, often mingled with animosity, esp. as excited by a sense of affront or personal injury; DUDGEON (chiefly used in the phrases "in high dudgeon," "in deep dudgeon," etc.) adds the implication of pique or ruffled temper; as, "Catherine de Vausselles, for whom he entertained a short-lived affection, and an enduring and most unmanly resentment" (Stevenson); "It is very difficult to get up resentment towards persons whom one has never seen" (J. H. Newman); cf. "Men resent offenses against their virtue less than those against their understanding" (Spectator); "They'll . . . take it in more dudgeon to be slighted" (Beau. & Fl.). MALICE implies active or malignant ill will; SPITE is mean or petty malice; as, "the venomous malice of my swelling heart" (Shak.); "wit larded with malice" (id.); "As hags hold Sabbaths, less for joy than spite" (Pope); cf. "be it for nothing but to spite my wife" (Shak.). A GRUDGE is a cherished feeling of resentment or sullen hostility; RANCOR is deep-seated and inveterate malice or spite; as, "grudges and heartburnings" (Johnson); "this same inveterate grudge" (Hawthorne); "meanness enough to do an act of cruelty and injustice, to gratify the rancor of a capricious woman" (Smollett); "the unrelenting rancor against the popes" (Landor). Cf. ANGER, HOSTILITY, PIQUE, HATE, MALICIOUS.
Ant. — Pleasure, satisfaction, gratification, delight.

re·serv'a·ble (rē·zûr'vȧ·b'l), adj. That may be reserved.

re·serv'al (-văl), n. Reservation. Rare.

res'er·va'tion (rĕz'ẽr·vā'shŭn), n. [OF. See RESERVE.]
1. Act of reserving or keeping, esp. for oneself; as, the reservation of rights by the States of the United States.
2. A limiting condition; limitation; also, act of making such a condition or limitation; as, to yield without reservation; to agree to a plan with certain reservations. Cf. MENTAL RESERVATION.
3. A tract of the public land reserved for some special use, as for schools, for forests, for the use of Indians, etc. U. S.
4. Obs. a A withholding for later action or use. b Act of keeping, or that which is kept, concealed; withholding from disclosure; as, he answered, not frankly, but with reservations; also, formerly, a misleading reply. c Reserve of manner or speech. d Preservation.
5. Eccl. Act or practice of reserving or retaining; as: a Retention of tithes. b Retention of the right of nomination to a vacant benefice; — said of the Pope. c Retention of the power of absolution in certain cases; — said of a superior, as the Pope or a bishop. d Retention of a portion of the Eucharistic elements; also, Obs., the portion thus reserved.
6. Law. a The act or fact of a grantor's reserving some new thing out of the thing granted, and not in esse as such before; also, the right or interest reserved, or the clause by which it is reserved; — in this sense distinguished from an exception, which refers to and excludes a thing in esse as such at the time of the grant. b Loosely, an exception (the technical distinction being disregarded) or a proviso.

res'er·va'tion·ist (-ĭst), n. [See -IST.] One who believes in a reservation or limiting condition to a treaty.

re·serv'a·tive (rē·zûr'vȧ·tĭv), adj. That reserves or preserves. Obs.

re·serv'a·to'ry (-vȧ·tō'rĭ; -tĕr·ĭ), adj. Reserved; used for that reserved.

re·serv'a·to'ry, n. [ML. reservatorium.] A place in which things are kept, as a cupboard, a reservoir, a receptacle for fluids. Obs.

re·serve' (rē·zûrv'), v.; -SERVED' (-zûrvd'); -SERV'ING (-zûr'vĭng). [ME. reserven, fr. OF. reserver, fr. L. reservare, reservatum, fr. re- re- + servare to keep. See SERVE.] Transitive: 1. To keep in store for future or special use; to keep in reserve; to retain; to keep, as for oneself. Gen. xxvii. 35.
2. To keep back; to retain or hold over to a future time or place; not to deliver, make over, or disclose at once; to defer the discussion or determination of.
Reserve your kind looks and language for private hours. Swift.
3. To preserve; to keep or leave safe, sound, or intact; to spare; save. Now Rare.
4. To set aside or apart; to keep; — usually with for or to.
Reserved, and destined to eternal woe. Milton.
5. To secure by stipulation; as, reserved seats.

re·scrub', v. t. See RE-, 2. res'cue·less, adj. See -LESS.
re·seam', v. t. See RE-, 2. reseant. † RESIANT. res'e·cate, v. t. [L. resecatus, past part. of resecare.] To cut off or away. Obs. — res'e·ca'tion (rĕs'ē·kā'shŭn), n. Obs.
re·se·crete', v. t. See RE-, 2. — re·se·cre'tion, n.
re·see', v. t., re·seed', v. t., re·seek', v. t. See RE-, 2.
re·seg'ment, v. t. & i. See RE-, 2. — re'seg·men·ta'tion, n. re·se·lect', v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'se·lec'tion, n.
re·self', v. t. See RE-, 3. re·sem'bl. Resemble. Ref. Sp. re·sem'bla·ble (rē·zĕm'blȧ·b'l), adj. [OF. See RESEMBLE.] Comparable; like. Obs. re·sem'bld. Resembled. Ref. Sp.
re·sem'bling·ly, adv. of resembling, pres. part.
Re'sen (rē'sĕn). Bib. re'sen·sa'tion, n. See RE-, 2. re·se·ques'ter, v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'se·ques·tra'tion, n.
re·sen'tence, v. t. & n. See RE-, 2. re·sent'i·ment, n. Resentment. Obs.
re·sent'ing·ly, adv. of resenting, [pres. part.] re·sep'ul·cher, v. t. See RE-, 1. re·se'quent, adj. See RE-, 2. res'er·ance (rĕ·zûr'vȧns), res'er'an·cy (-vȧn·sĭ), n. [Cf. OF. reserance.] Reservation; reserve, ability to retain. Obs. re·serv'd'. Reserved. Obs. exc. Ref. Sp. re·se·rene', v. t. See RE-, 2. re·serv'. Reserve. Ref. Sp. re·serv'ance (rĕ·zûr'vȧns), re·serv'an·cy (-vȧn·sĭ), n. [Cf. OF. reserance.] Reservation; reserve, ability to retain. Obs.

6. Obs. a To maintain in the same state. b To make an exception of or in favor of; to except. c To continue to have or show; retain; preserve. d To keep from being known to others.
7. Eccl. To retain or set aside at the time of a celebration of the Eucharist (a portion of the consecrated elements) for future use, as for communion of the sick; to make or practice reservation of (the sacrament).
8. Law. To make legal reservation of; to withhold from the operation of a grant or agreement.
9. R.C.Ch. a To retain power of absolution of to oneself; — said of a superior, as the Pope or a bishop; to set apart (a case) for such action on the part of a superior. b Rare. To retain (a benefice) for papal presentation.
—, Intransitive: To remain or continue, as in existence or a specified condition; to keep. Obs.
Syn. — Withhold, save. See KEEP.
Ant. — Exhaust, expend, spend.

re·serve' (rē·zûrv'), n. [F. réserve.] 1. That which is reserved; something kept back or withheld, as for future use; a store; a stock; an extra supply.
2. Something reserved or set aside for a particular purpose, use, or reason, as a tree in a part of a wood that is to be felled, or a part of a lode; specif.: a A tract of land, esp. public land, reserved, or set apart, for a particular purpose; a reservation; as, forest reserves; game reserve. b In exhibitions, a distinction which indicates that the recipient will get a prize if another should be disqualified.
3. Act of reserving, or keeping back; that which is reserved or excepted; reservation; exception; restriction; qualification; — now Rare, except with reference to adherence to a principle, belief, or the like; as, a mental reserve.
Each has some darling lust, which pleads for a reserve. Rogers.
4. Self-restraint, closeness, or caution, in one's words and bearing towards others; self-control in the expression of one's thoughts, feelings, plans, etc.; lack of effusiveness or, sometimes, of cordiality.
The clergyman's shy and sensitive reserve. Hawthorne.
5. Forbearance from making a full explanation, complete disclosure, or free expression of one's mind; reticence; esp., in casuistry or religious instruction, intentional withholding or suppression of truth when it is regarded as inconvenient to disclose it, as from people who are regarded as unable to understand it or receive it with benefit. Cf. DISCIPLINE OF THE SECRET.
6. Obs. a A retained or remaining portion, as of a quality. b A place for storing or preserving. c Something to which one may resort; a refuge. d A case of withholding information or knowledge; a piece of information not fully disclosed; a secret.
7. Also reserve fund. Accounting. A fund, or a special liability account, set apart to meet a specific purpose — commonly to make good loss from depreciation. See DEPRECIATION CHARGE; cf. sense 12 b, below; also SECRET RESERVE; RESERVE ACCOUNT.
8. Banking. Usually, the uninvested cash kept on hand, called the real reserve. In Great Britain the ultimate real reserve is the gold kept on hand in the Bank of England, largely represented by the notes in hand in its own banking department; and any balance which a bank has with the Bank of England is a part of its reserve. In the United States the reserve of a national bank consists of the amount of lawful money it holds on hand against deposits, called till money, plus the legal reserves which are deposited in the Federal reserve bank of its district. The amount of legal reserve varies with the location of the national bank. See RESERVE CITY; CENTRAL RESERVE CITY; COUNTRY BANK; cf. sense 12 a, below.
9. Biochem. The capacity of a solution to neutralize alkali (acid reserve) or acid (alkali reserve) when its reaction is shifted from one hydrogen-ion concentration to another; — applied esp. to the capacity of blood or bacteriological media to react with acid or alkali within predetermined, usually physiological, limits of hydrogen-ion concentration. When the amount of acid or alkali reacting is large for a small change in hydrogen-ion concentration, the solution is said to be a buffer solution. Cf. 1st BUFFER, 3.
10. Calico Printing. A resist.
11. Electroplating. A preparation used on an object to fix the limits of the deposit.
12. Finance. a That part of the assets of a bank or other financial institution specially kept in cash or in a more or less liquid form as a reasonable provision for meeting all demands which may be made upon it. b That portion of the earnings of a corporation set aside to meet future losses or contingent liabilities. Cf. SURPLUS. c In an investment trust, the surplus value of the investments in its portfolio at the prices carried on its books over and above the value as computed from current market prices; — called also inner reserve.
13. Insurance. The portion of an insurance company's assets set aside for some special purpose, the intent being evidenced by showing the reserve as a liability on the books. A reserve is known as catastrophe reserve when it is created to meet some extraordinary disaster; loss reserve when it represents the discounted value of future payments to be made on losses which have already occurred; and unearned premium reserve when it is established at the end of any accounting period to represent premiums paid in advance for which protection is to be given in the future. In life insurance, specif., the reserve is the amount of funds or assets necessary for a company to have at any given time to enable it, with interest and premiums paid as they shall accrue, to meet all claims on the insurance then in force as they would mature according to the particular mortality table accepted. The reserve is always reckoned as a liability, and is calculated on net premiums. It is theoretically the difference between the present value (which see) of the total insurance and the present value of the future premiums on the insurance. Since standards governing its minimum amount are fixed by law, it is ordinarily called legal reserve. The reserve, being an amount for which another company could, theoretically, afford to take over the insurance, is also sometimes called the reinsurance fund. For the first year upon any policy the net premium is called the initial reserve, and the balance left at the end of the year including interest is the terminal reserve, their arithmetical average being known as the mean reserve. For subsequent years the initial reserve is the net premium, if any, plus the terminal reserve of the previous year. The portion of the reserve to be absorbed from the initial reserve in any year in payment of losses is sometimes called the insurance reserve, and the terminal reserve is then called the investment reserve.
14. Mil. a Usually pl. A force intended to be withheld temporarily from action so that it may be available to the commander when he desires to commit it to influence decisively the course of the engagement. See SUPPORT. b Forces not in the field for any reason, but available. c The military or naval forces of a country not serving with the colors; also, a member of these. See ARMY ORGANIZATION. d One of the two primary divisions of an advance guard.
15. R.C.Ch. a In canon law, reservation. b As to absolution, reservation. See RESERVE, v. t., 9 a.
16. Sports. A substitute.
Syn. — Fund; retention; limitation; coldness, constraint, restraint, shyness, diffidence.
Ant. — Deficit, lack; surrender; effusiveness, demonstrativeness.
— in reserve. In keeping for other or future use; in store; still available; as, he has arguments in reserve. — of reserve. Acting or intended as a reserve or support. Chiefly Mil. — on, or upon, reserve. Obs. a On the lookout; waiting developments. b Reserved; reticent. — without reserve. a Holding nothing back; giving complete information. b Without qualification, condition, or restriction; — chiefly used in auction sales as implying that the vendor will not buy in the property.

re·serve' (rē·zûrv'), adj. Constituting, or of the nature of, a reserve; as, a reserve supply; reserve strength.
re·serve' (rē·zûrv'), v. t. Often re–serve'. See RE-, 2.
re·serve' ac·count' (rē·zûrv'). Accounting. 1. A valuation account which shows the estimated decline in value of an asset and which loss has been considered an expense of operation, as reserve for depreciation, reserve for depletion, reserve for bad debts; — sometimes called provision account or allowance account.
2. An account which shows an accrued liability, usually estimated, such as reserve for taxes.
3. An account which shows profits or surplus segregated for a particular purpose; an appropriated surplus account.

reserve air. Physiol. = SUPPLEMENTAL AIR. reserve bank. Banking, U.S. 1. Any of the twelve Federal reserve banks.
2. Any bank designated by a State banking department as qualified to hold the reserves of banks chartered by the State. reserve bud. Bot. A dormant bud. See DORMANT, 3. reserve buoyancy. Naval Arch. The volume of the ship above the water plane which can be made watertight, and thus increase the ship's buoyancy. Called also reserve of buoyancy.
reserve city. Banking, U.S. Any of certain cities designated by the Federal Reserve Board in which national banks are required to keep reserves of 10 per cent against demand deposits, and 3 per cent against time deposits, as legal reserves deposited in the Federal reserve bank of the district in which the depositing bank is located.

re·served' (rē·zûrvd'), adj. 1. Obs. Excepted; — chiefly prepositional: a Except; save. b With proper respect for.
2. Kept or set apart or aside for future or special use, or for an exigency; as, reserved troops; a reserved seat.
3. Restrained in words or actions; backward, or cautious, in communicating one's thoughts and feelings.
To all obliging, yet reserved to all. Walsh.
4. Preserved; saved; spared. Obs.
5. Decorative Art. Left of the same color as the background, or as the original color of the surface of the material, as the pattern in some pieces of Chinese porcelain.
Syn. — Restrained, distant, cold; reticent, uncommunicative; saved, withheld. See SILENT.
Ant. — Emotional, effusive, demonstrative; talkative, loquacious.
— re·serv'ed·ly (-zûr'vĕd·lĭ; -vĭd·lĭ; 119), adv. — re·serv'ed·ness, n.

reserved case or sin. R.C.Ch. A case of sinning, or a sin, in which absolution is reserved. See RESERVE, v. t., 9 a. reserved list. Nav. A list of officers in the British Navy retired from active service on half pay, who might be called upon to serve in time of war or emergency.
reserved powers. U.S. Those powers, including esp. the police power, not mentioned in the Federal Constitution and so reserved to the States or to the people. They deal generally with the social and personal rights of citizens. Such powers prohibited to the Federal government are enumerated in Art. I, sect. ix and Amendments I–XI of the Constitution. Cf. IMPLIED POWERS.

re·ser'vee' (rē·zûr'vē'; rĕz'ĕr·vē'), n. One to or for whom anything is reserved. Rare.
reserve militia. See MILITIA, 4. reserve of buoyancy. Reserve buoyancy. reserve officer. An officer holding a commission in the Officers' Reserve Corps.
Reserve Officers' Training Corps. Mil. In the United States, a military training corps established at civil educational institutions by Act of Congress of June 4, 1920. It consists of a senior division at universities and colleges granting degrees, and of a junior division at other public and private educational institutions. Its work at any institution is under the direction of an officer of the Regular Army, who is known as the Professor of Military Science and Tactics. Its purpose is to provide systematic military training to qualify selected students for appointment as reserve officers in the military forces of the United States. The full course covers four years of instruction. reserve price. Auctions. An upset price announced as the least which will be entertained. Cf. BY-BIDDING.

re·serv'er (rē·zûr'vĕr), n. One who or that which reserves; specif., Obs., a reservoir (for water).

re·serv'er (rē·zûr'vĕr), n. A reservation; qualification. Rare.
reserve ratio. Banking, U.S. The ratio of reserves of banks to deposit liabilities or note issues or both, esp. the ratio of gold and other legal reserves to combined deposit liabilities and outstanding Federal Reserve notes of the Federal reserve banks.
reserve ration. Mil. A ration consisting of concentrated foods packed in a sealed container, to be used only in emergency; — formerly called emergency ration.

re·serv'er·y (rē·zûr'vĕr·ĭ), n. The training of a reservist; service as a reservist; also, the system of maintaining military reserves. Rare.

re·serv'ist (rē·zûr'vĭst), n. [F. réserviste.] Mil. & Nav. A member of the reserves of a military or naval organization.

res'er·voir (rĕz'ĕr·vwôr; -vwär; 277), n. [F. réservoir, fr. réserver. See RESERVE; cf. RESERVATORY.] 1. A place where anything is kept in store; specif.: a Esp., a place where water is collected and kept for use when wanted, now chiefly in a very large quantity, as to supply a city, to drive a mill wheel, etc. b A part of an apparatus in which a liquid is held; as, the reservoir of a student lamp.
2. A reserve; a store; an extra supply.
3. Bot. A small intercellular space, often containing resin, essential oil, or some other product of metabolism.
4. Geol. a A body of rock sufficiently porous to permit the accumulation of water, petroleum, or natural gas. b The gathering ground where snow collects to form a glacier; the area covered by the névé.
5. Organ Building. = STORAGE BELLOWS.

res'er·voir (rĕz'ĕr·vwôr; -vwär), v. t.; -VOIRED (-vwôrd; -vwärd); -VOIR'ING. 1. To provide with a reservoir.
2. To collect, store, or keep, in or as in a reservoir.

res'er·voir of Pec'quet' (pĕ'kĕ'). [After Jean Pecquet, French anatomist.] Anat. The cisterna chyli.

re·ser'voir (rē·zûr'vĕr; rē·zûr'vôr'; rĕz'ĕr·vôr'), n. One who reserves; a reserver. Rare.

re·set' (rē·sĕt'), v. t. To set again; as, to reset type, copy, a diamond, or a saw.

re·set' (rē·sĕt'; rē'sĕt'), n. 1. Act of resetting.
2. That which is reset; specif., Print., matter set up again.
3. Hort. A replant.

re·set' (rē·sĕt'), n. [ME., reset, fr. OF. recet, fr. L. receptus. See RECEIPT.] 1. Refuge; shelter; succor; help; also, a place of refuge or shelter; an abode; a resort. Obs.
2. One who shelters another; a resetter. Obs.
3. Receiving; receipt; also, a receptacle. Obs.
4. Scots Law. The receiving of goods obtained by theft, robbery, swindling, or embezzlement, with intent to deprive the owner of them, by one knowing the goods to have been so obtained; also, the harboring of an outlaw.

re·set', v. t. [OF. receter. Cf. RECEIPT, n.] Obs. exc. Scot. & Dial. Eng. To receive; give shelter to; welcome; Scots Law, to harbor or secrete, as stolen goods or a criminal.

re·set'ter (rē·sĕt'ĕr), n. One who resets, or sets again.

re·set'ter (rē·sĕt'ĕr), n. One who receives or entertains; specif.: a Obs. One who harbors or assists criminals. b A receiver of stolen goods.

‖res ex·ten'sa (rēz ĕks·tĕn'sȧ); pl. RES EXTENSAE (-sē). [L.] A thing which is extended; a thing that has spatial extent; hence, Philos., the spatially extended; material substance.

‖res ges'tae (rēz jĕs'tē). [L.] Things done; deeds; exploits; esp., Law, the facts which form the environment of a litigated issue; the things or matters accompanying and incident to a transaction or event. They are admissible in evidence as illustrating or explaining it.

resh (rĕsh), n. [Heb. rēsh, lit., head.] The twentieth letter [ר] of the Hebrew alphabet, corresponding to Eng. r. As a numeral, it stands for 200.

resh (rĕsh). Dial. var. of RUSH, a plant.

Re'sheph (rē'shĕf), n. [Heb.] Semitic Antiq. 1. Literally, a flame; a fiery bolt.
2. A Syrian deity.
3. A descendant of Ephraim. 1 Chron. vii. 25.

re·ship' (rē·shĭp'), v. t. To ship again; specif.: a To put on board of a vessel a second time; to transfer to another ship; as, to reship bonded merchandise. b Rare. To put in place or set up again. — v. i. To embark on a ship again or anew; to sign again or anew for service on a ship.

re·ship'ment (-mĕnt), n. Act of reshipping; also, that which is reshipped.

re·ship'per (-ĕr), n. 1. One who reships.
2. A container used for reshipping.

res'i·ance (rĕz'ĭ·ȧns), n. Also res'i·an·cy (-ȧn·sĭ). [MF. reseance. See RESIANT.] Residence; abode. Obs.

res'i·ant (-ȧnt), adj. [OF. reseant, resseant, fr. L. residens. See RESIDENT.] Resident; present; abiding in a place. Obs. — n. A resident. Now Rare.

re·sic'cate (rē·sĭk'ȧt), v. i. [re- + L. siccare to dry.] To make dry again. Rare.

re·side' (rē·zīd'), v. i.; -SID'ED (-zīd'ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -SID'ING (-zīd'ĭng). [F. résider, fr. L. residēre, fr. rē- re- + sedere to sit. See SIT; cf. RESIDUE.] 1. To settle oneself or a thing in a place; to be stationed; to remain or stay; to lie. Obs.
2. To dwell permanently or continuously; to have a settled abode for a time; to have one's residence or domicile; specif., to be in residence, as the incumbent of a benefice.
In no fixed place the happy souls reside. Dryden.
3. To have an abiding place; to be present as an element; to inhere as a quality; to be vested as a right; — chiefly with in; as, the power of decision resides in the electorate.
Tell me where these living thoughts reside. Shelley.
In such like acts, the duty and virtue of contentedness doth especially reside. Barrow.
Syn. — RESIDE, LIVE, DWELL, ABIDE, SOJOURN, STAY, REMAIN, LODGE agree in the idea of continuance in a given place. LIVE is the word in everyday use to express the general notion of having one's home in a place; RESIDE is more formal, and often implies certain relations to the community in which one lives; as, "A young woman . . . took lodgings opposite to the house in which he lived" (Boswell); "citizens of the United States and of the State wherein they reside" (Const. of U.S.). DWELL and ABIDE, in present usage, belong (except in dwelling house) to poetry or elevated prose, and connote continuance; dwell, however, is little more than a poetical synonym for live or reside, while abide implies more of fixedness, for a shorter or longer time; as, "She dwelt among the untrodden ways beside the springs of Dove" (Wordsworth); "I will abide in thy tabernacle forever" (Ps. lxi. 4). SOJOURN, on the other hand, is used of temporary residence; it is a somewhat bookish term, and STAY, REMAIN, LODGE (the last with special reference to sleeping quarters) are commoner in this sense; as, "few days' short sojourn" (Milton); "He remained at Stourbridge little more than a year" (Boswell); "the short stay of these strangers" (Gilbert White); "He said unto them, Lodge here this night" (Num. xxii. 8). Cf. HABITATION, INHABITANT.
Ant. — Remove, move; leave, depart.

re·side' (rē·zīd'), v. i. To sink; subside; settle. Obs.

res'i·dence (rĕz'ĭ·dĕns; 128), n. [OF. See RESIDENT.] 1. Act or fact of abiding or dwelling in a place for some time; act of making one's home in a place; as, a center of fashionable residence.
Where scepter'd angels held their residence. Milton.
2. Act or fact of living or regularly staying at or in some place, either in, or as a qualification for, the discharge of a duty or the enjoyment of a benefit; as, to be in residence.
3. The place where one actually lives or has his home; a person's dwelling place or place of habitation; an abode. A person's place of residence may or may not be identical with his domicile, though the term residence is ordinarily used and legally construed as merely implying the fact of actual abode without reference to the intent necessary to constitute that abode one's domicile (which see). Legally one's residence is often determined by some special circumstance, as whether it is the place to which one has the intention of returning after an absence, or whether it is the place where one goes habitually to sleep. The residence of a wife is that of her husband; of a child, that of its father or (the father being deceased) of its mother. The residence of a corporation is, for ordinary purposes, the place where its principal business office is located under its charter. The term legal residence means properly any residence recognized as such for legal purposes, but is sometimes used to designate a domicile legally recognized as such but not the place of actual residence at the time.

4. The house where one's home is; a dwelling house; often, one of a superior or pretentious character.

5. The place where anything rests permanently; esp., the seat of a power, prerogative, or the like.

But when a king sets himself to bandy against the highest court and residence of all his regal power, he then . . . fights against his own majesty and kingship. Milton.

6. The period or duration of one's abode in a place.

7. Continuance or insistence in action; persistence. Obs.

8. Eccl. The presence of an incumbent in his benefice.

9. Educ. a The period during which one is actively engaged in academic duties or study or research at a college or university. b In colleges, etc., a department of administration supervising the residence halls and students living in them; as, a dean of residence.

res'i·dence (rĕz'ĭ·dĕns), n. Obs. a That which falls or settles to the bottom of liquors; sediment; also, residuum. b Depositing of sediment; settling.

Syn. — Sojourn, stay; home, dwelling, domicile. See HABITATION.

res'i·denc·er (-dĕn·sĕr), n. [AF., fr. ML. residentiarius.] 1. Eccl. A clergyman in residence. Obs.

2. A resident representative or minister.

re'si·den'cia (rā'sē·dĕn'thyä; 103), n. [Sp.] In Spanish countries, a court or trial held, for a period of seventy days by a specially commissioned judge, to examine into the conduct of a retiring high official, as a viceroy, captain general, or governor.

res'i·den·cy (rĕz'ĭ·dĕn·sĭ), n.; pl. -CIES (-sĭz). [From RESIDENCE.] 1. A residing; residence. Obs.

2. Internat. Law. a The official residence of a resident diplomatic agent or governor. b A territory in a protected state in which the powers of the protecting state are executed by a resident agent; specif., such an administrative division in parts of the East Indies, as in India, Java, etc.

3. Med. The status or position of a resident.

res'i·dent (rĕz'ĭ·dĕnt; 128), adj. [OF., fr. L. residens, -entis, pres. part. of residēre. See RESIDE.] 1. Dwelling, or having an abode, for a continued length of time; residing, as on one's own estate; of officials, etc., in residence; — opposed to nonresident; as, to be resident at college; a resident landowner.

2. Present; inherent; as, energy resident in matter.

3. Resting; not moving; hence, fixed; stable; as, resident as a rock. Obs.

4. Of birds, not migratory; nonmigratory.

5. Psychol. Appertaining directly to a moving part of the body; — opposed to remote; as, resident sensations or images.

res'i·dent (rĕz'ĭ·dĕnt; 128), n. 1. One who resides in a place; one who dwells in a place for a period of more or less duration. Resident usually implies more or less permanence of abode, but is often distinguished from inhabitant as not implying as great fixity or permanency of abode.

An alien actually present in the United States who is not a mere transient or sojourner is a resident of the United States for purposes of the income tax. Income Tax Regulations, U.S.

2. A diplomatic agent residing at a foreign court or seat of government; usually, specif., such an agent of the third rank; called also minister resident. See DIPLOMATIC AGENT. ☞ In the Foreign Service of the United States there have been ministers resident at the capitals of Ethiopia and Liberia.

3. Eccl. An incumbent who is in residence.

4. Internat. Law. The governor of a residency.

5. Med. A physician of higher rank and greater responsibility than an intern, residing and taking training in a hospital.

res'i·den'tal (rĕz'ĭ·dĕn'tăl; -t'l), adj. Residential. Rare, U.S.

resident ambassador. See AMBASSADOR, 2.

resident commissioner. U.S. Govt. A representative of a dependency in the House of Representatives, having the right to speak but not to vote. One resident commissioner is elected for four years by the people of the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico.

res'i·dent'er (rĕz'ĭ·dĕn'tĕr; Scot. rĕz'ĭ·dĕn'tĕr), n. 1. Eccl. = RESIDENTIARY, n., 1. Rare.

2. A resident; inhabitant. Chiefly Scot. & Dial. U.S.

res'i·den'tial (rĕz'ĭ·dĕn'shăl), adj. 1. Used, serving, or designed as a residence or for occupation by residents; as, a residential hotel.

2. Adapted to, or occupied by, residences; as, a residential quarter.

3. Of, pertaining to, or connected with, residence or residences; as, residential trade, qualifications, or zones.

4. Of or pertaining to a resident (sense 2). Rare.

— res'i·den'ti·al'i·ty (-dĕn'shĭ·ăl'ĭ·tĭ), n. — res'i·den'tial·ly (-dĕn'shăl·ĭ), adv.

res'i·den'ti·ar'y (rĕz'ĭ·dĕn'shĭ·ĕr'ĭ; -shä·rĭ), adj. [ML. residentiarius.] 1. Having residence; residing; resident; as, a residentiary guardian; specif., Eccl., under obligation to be in residence for a certain time, as at a cathedral; as, a canon residentiary.

2. Residential; also, resident.

res'i·den'ti·ar'y, n.; pl. -IES (-ĭz). 1. An ecclesiastic who is or must be in residence, as for a certain time.

2. One who is resident; a resident.

re·sid'er (rē·zĭd'ĕr), n. One who resides; a resident.

re·sid'u·a (rē·zĭd'ū·ä), n., pl. of RESIDUUM.

re·sid'u·al (rē·zĭd'ū·ăl), adj. [See RESIDUE.] 1. Of, pertaining to, or of the nature of, a residue; remaining after a part is taken; left as a residuum.

2. Relating to, or like, a residue or remainder; as, residual analysis (Landen's name for the calculus of differences); residual calculus, figure, quantity, etc.

3. Residuary; — an erroneous use.

re·sid'u·al, n. A remainder; a residuum; specif.: a A residual product or substance. b Math. (1) The difference of the results obtained by observation, and by computation from a formula. (2) The difference between the mean of several observations and any one of them. (3) A residue. c Psychol. Any internal aftereffect of experience or activity, which influences later behavior; a memory trace; as, the residuals of past training.

residual abscess. Med. An abscess remaining in or about the site of a previous inflammation; also, an abscess whose contents have been almost absorbed.

residual affinity. Chem. = RESIDUAL VALENCE.

residual air. Physiol. The volume of air still remaining in the lungs after the most forcible expiration possible. It is usually 60 to 100 cubic inches. Cf. SUPPLEMENTAL AIR.

residual charge. Elec. A comparatively feeble charge which appears on a condenser, whose dielectric is not homogeneous, a short time after being discharged.

residual clay. See CLAY, n., 1.

residual curves (on a surface). Math. Two irreducible curves, without multiple points, which taken together form the complete intersection of two surfaces; as, one curve is residual to the other.

residual error. Math. See ERROR, 9.

residual estate. Law. A residuary estate.

residual groups of points (on an irreducible plane algebraic curve). Math. Two groups of points which taken together constitute the complete intersection, save for the intersections at the multiple points, of the curve and an adjoint curve.

residual magnetism or induction. Magnetism. The magnetic flux which exists in a material, usually iron, after the removal of the magnetizing force. See HYSTERESIS.

residual phenomena. Logic. The phenomena which remain to be explained after the effects of known causes are subtracted. See METHOD OF RESIDUES.

residual placer. Geol. A placer deposit consisting of decomposed rock or residual portions of such rock, lying at the locality of origin.

residual product. A by-product, as coke and coal tar from gasworks, etc.

residual ray. Optics. One of rays which remain in a beam of light, originally white, after a series of reflections from the surface of a definite substance.

residual soil. Geol. Soil formed in situ by rock decay and left as a residue after the leaching out of the more soluble products.

residual sound. Acous. & Arch. Echoing sound audible in a place after the source has become silent.

residual valence. Chem. Unemployed valence; specif., combining power that is not utilized when the elements combine to form simple molecules and so leads to such phenomena as association and hydration.

re·sid'u·ar'y (rē·zĭd'ū·ĕr'ĭ or, esp. Brit., -ĕr·ĭ), adj. [See RESIDUE.] Of, pert. to, consisting of, or of the nature of, a residue, residuum, or remainder; as, the residuary part of an estate.

re·sid'u·ar'y, n.; pl. -IES (-ĭz). 1. A residuary legatee. R.

2. Moham. Law. One of the second of the three classes of heirs. Residuaries are usually divided into three classes: (1) male agnates, (2) residuaries in another's right (including daughter, son's daughter, full sister, consanguine sister, — when they coexist with certain males); (3) residuaries together with another (including full sister and consanguine sister, — when they coexist with certain females). Cf. SHARER.

residuary clause. Law. That part of a testator's will in which the residue of his estate is disposed of to one or more persons (called by the term residuary devisee or legatee). Cf. BEQUEATH, 2.

residuary estate. Law. The residue of a testator's estate.

re·sid'u·a'tion (rē·zĭd'ū·ā'shŭn), n. The process of finding residuals, either by integration round a pole or by linear construction on a cubic curve.

res'i·due (rĕz'ĭ·dū), n. [OF. residu, fr. L. residuum, neut. of residuus that is left behind, remaining, fr. residēre to remain behind. See RESIDE; cf. RESIDUUM.] 1. That which remains after a part is taken, separated, removed, or designated; remnant; remainder; rest.

The residue of them will I deliver to the sword. Jer. xv. 9.

2. Technically, a residuum, or residual product; specif.: a (1) Obs. Arith. Remainder. (2) The integral, divided by $2\pi i$, of a function of a complex variable taken round a circuit enclosing one pole of the function; the coefficient of the first negative power of $(z - p)$ in the expansion of the function in the neighborhood of the pole p. (3) Theory of Numbers. The remainder after subtracting from any integer any multiple of a fixed integer called the modulus; thus, 22, 13, 4, —5, etc., are residues of 31 to the modulus 9. b Chem. That which remains of a molecule after the removal of a portion of its constituents; hence, an atom or group regarded as a portion of a molecule; — used as nearly equivalent to radical, but sometimes applied chiefly to inorganic groups. Cf. RADICAL, n., 4 b & c. c Pharm. = GRUFFS.

3. Law. The part of a testator's estate, or of any part thereof, remaining after the satisfaction of all debts and previous devises and bequests.

4. Logic. See METHOD OF RESIDUES.

Syn. — Remains, leavings, relics. Cf. REMAINDER.

res'i·due, adj. [L. residuus.] Residual. Rare.

re·sid'u·ent (rē·zĭd'ū·ĕnt), n. [See RESIDUE.] Chem. A by-product; a waste product.

re·sid'u·ous (rē·zĭd'ū·ŭs), adj. [L. residuus.] Remaining; residual. Now Rare.

re·sid'u·um (-ŭm), n.; pl. -UA (-ä). [L. See RESIDUE.] 1. That which remains after certain deductions are made; a residue; often, that left over; the leavings; also, a hangover.

Do I want that to be the residuum of an old impression, or a fresh thing altogether? Henry James.

2. Specif., a residual product, as the residue from the distillation of crude petroleum.

3. Law. = RESIDUE, 3.

Syn. — See REMAINDER.

re–sign' (rē·sīn'), v. t. [re- + sign.] To sign again; to affix one's signature to, a second time.

re·sign' (rē·zīn'), v.; -SIGNED' (-zīnd'); -SIGN'ING. [ME. resignen, fr. OF. resigner, fr. L. resignare to unseal, annul, assign, resign, fr. re- re- + signare to seal, stamp. See SIGN; cf. RESIGNATION.] Transitive: 1. To give up, as one's office, charge, possession, or aims; to surrender by a formal or deliberate act; to yield; to relinquish; as, to resign a position, the presidency, control of an estate, hopes of election.

Tomorrow yield up rule, resign my life. Shak.

2. To commit (oneself, another, a thing, etc.) as by confiding, yielding, or abandoning; to give (oneself, etc.) over or up; to consign; — with to or indirect object; as, to resign a ward to a new guardian, one to his fate, or one's mind to pleasant thoughts.

To stern Plantagenet resigned her keys. Wordsworth.

3. To abandon by giving way; refrain from. Obs.

Their vices they resign. Chaucer.

4. Chess & Checkers. To signify formally that one yields (a game) as lost.

—, Intransitive: 1. To give up one's office, position or charge; specif., Obs., to abdicate; also, U.S., to retire or withdraw (from) formally; as, the governor has resigned; he will resign from the commission in March.

2. To submit or yield, esp. oneself; to be resigned.

3. To surrender; make relinquishment. Rare.

Syn. — Yield, submit; abandon, quit, renounce. See ABDICATE, RELINQUISH.

Ant. — Maintain, keep.

re·sign' (rē·zīn'), n. Resignation. Obs.

re·sig'na·tar'y (rē·sĭg'nä·tĕr'ĭ or, esp. Brit., -tĕr·ĭ), n. [F. résignataire.] One in whose favor a resignation is made. Rare.

res'ig·na'tion (rĕz'ĭg·nā'shŭn; rĕs'ĭg-), n. [OF. See RESIGN.] 1. Act or fact of resigning, or giving up, as a claim, possession, office, or the like; surrender.

2. State of being resigned, or submissive; submission or acquiescence; esp., quiet or patient submission or acquiescence; as, resignation to the will of God.

3. Scots Law. The formal return by a vassal of a fee to the superior from whom it was held. Resignation ad remanentiam (to remain) restored the fee to the lord without condition. Resignation in favorem (for the benefit of) was a step in the transfer of the fee to a third party to whom the superior granted it after recovering it from the resigner.

Syn. — Relinquishment, abdication, renunciation; endurance. See PATIENCE.

Ant. — Rebellion, defiance, protest; impatience.

resignation bond. Eng. Eccl. Law. A bond given by a beneficed clergyman to secure resignation of his benefice on some contingency.

res'ig·na'tion·ism (rĕz'ĭg·nā'shŭn·ĭz'm; rĕs'ĭg-), n. Resignation as a mood, pose, or form of emotional indulgence.

re·signed' (rē·zīnd'), past tense & past part. of RESIGN. Hence: adj. Of a post, charge, etc., given up or surrendered; of a person, having resigned from office; being resigned (to something); characterized by resignation; submissive; acquiescent; uncomplaining. — re·sign'ed·ly (rē·zīn'ĕd·lĭ; -ĭd·lĭ; -zīnd'lĭ; 119), adv. — re·sign'ed·ness, n.

re·sign'ee' (rē·zīn'ē'), n. One to whom, or in whose favor, anything is resigned.

re·sign'er (rē·zīn'ĕr), n. One who resigns; specif., Scots Law, one who resigns a fee. See RESIGNATION, n., 3.

re·sign'ful (-fŏŏl; -fl), adj. Resigned; expressing resignation. Rare.

re·sign'ment (-zīn'mĕnt), n. Act of resigning; resignation. Now Rare.

re·sile' (rē·zīl'), v. i.; -SILED' (-zīld'); -SIL'ING (-zīl'ĭng). [MF. resiler, resilir (F. résilier), fr. L. resilire to leap or spring back, withdraw, fr. re- re- + salire to spring. See SALIENT; cf. RESULT.] To draw back; to recoil; retract; retreat; recede; rebound; to return to its original position, as an elastic body; as, to resile from an agreement or another's advances; to give a tube time to resile after being stretched.

re·sile'ment (-mĕnt), n. Act of resiling; receding.

re·sil'i·al (rē·zĭl'ĭ·ăl; 159), adj. Zool. Of or pert. to the resilium.

re·sil'i·ate (-āt), v. t. [F. résilier.] To cancel. Rare.

re·sil'i·ence (rē·zĭl'ĭ·ĕns; 159), n. 1. Act of resiling, rebounding, or springing back; rebound; recoil; elasticity, literally and figuratively; hence, capability of a strained body to recover its size and shape after deformation, esp. when the strain is caused by compressive stresses; — called also elastic resilience. Cf. ELASTICITY, 1.

2. Mech. The potential energy of an elastic body that is present as a result of applied stresses and which is recoverable when the stresses are removed. Thus, when a body is stressed within its elastic limit, it sustains a deformation, and the resilience of the body is the work the body is capable of doing in returning to its original shape and size, after the release of the stress. For a body of uniform cross section stretched within its elastic limit, the resilience is equal to $\frac{f^2}{2E}$ times the volume of the body, in which f = the stress and E = Young's modulus of elasticity. The quantity $\frac{f^2}{2E}$ is called the modulus of resilience, when f is the stress at the elastic limit.

re·sil'i·en·cy (-ĕn·sĭ), n. Property of being resilient; tendency to rebound or recoil; resilience; elasticity, literally or figuratively; power of recovery after strain, pressure, depression, etc.

re·sil'i·ent (-ĕnt), adj. [L. resiliens, pres. part. See RESILE.] 1. Leaping back; rebounding; recoiling; returning to, or resuming, the original position or shape; possessing resilience; specif., Mech., of a body, capable of withstanding shock without permanent deformation or rupture.

2. Possessing or manifesting resiliency; elastic; buoyant.

Syn. — See ELASTIC. Ant. — See LIMP.

re·sil'i·fer (rē·zĭl'ĭ·fĕr), n. [resilium + -fer.] Zool. In certain bivalve mollusks, as Mactra, a spoon-shaped process on the hinge plate supporting the resilium.

re·sil'i·om'e·ter (-ŏm'ē·tĕr), n. [resilience + -meter.] Mech. An instrument for testing resilience.

res'i·li'tion (rĕz'ĭ·lĭsh'ŭn), n. Resilience. Rare.

re·sil'i·um (rē·zĭl'ĭ·ŭm), n.; pl. RESILIA (-ä). [NL. See RESILE.] Zool. The internal part of the hinge ligament of a bivalve shell. See LIGAMENT, 4. It resembles in consistency (and is often called) cartilage, but is chitinous.

re·sil'ver (rē·sĭl'vĕr), v. t. To silver again or anew.

res'in (rĕz'ĭn; -'n), n. [F. résine, fr. L. resina, fr. Gr. rhētinē. Cf. ROSIN.] 1. a Any of various solid or semisolid organic substances, chiefly of vegetable origin, amorphous and yellowish to brown (usually), transparent or translucent, and soluble in ether, alcohol, etc., but not in water; specif., pine resin (see ROSIN). Resins soften and melt on heating and burn with a smoky flame. Electrically they are nonconductors. Many are produced as exudates from plants (esp. pine and fir trees) either alone or as mixtures with essential oils (oleoresins), with gums (gum resins), etc., being chiefly excretion products; they are found often as fossils (fossil resins) after the plants have decayed. Some are obtained from alcoholic extracts of plants by addition of water. Chemically resins differ widely, but all contain carbon, hydrogen, and oxygen. The chief constituents of resins are certain esters, resin acids, and "resenes." Resins are used in making varnishes and resin soap, in medicine, etc. Among the resins of commerce are amber, copal, dammar, guaiacum, lac, mastic, rosin, and sandarac. b Any of a large number of artificial products that possess most of the physical properties of natural resins; — usually called specif. synthetic resin, or resinoid. They are made by polymerization, as of coumarone (which see), by condensation of a phenol with an aldehyde (see BAKELITE), etc.

2. Pharm. A solid preparation consisting chiefly of the resinous principles of a drug or drugs extracted by means of solvents or prepared in other ways; as, resin of jalap; resin of scammony; resin of podophyllum.

res'in (rĕz'ĭn; -'n), v. t.; RES'INED (rĕz'ĭnd; -'nd); RES'IN-ING. To treat, as by rubbing or coating, with resin; to apply resin to.

re·sī'na (rē-sī'nȧ), n. [L.] Resin.

res'ī·na'ceous (rĕz'ĭ·nā'shŭs), adj. [L. resinaceus.] Resiniferous; resinous. Rare.

resin acid. Chem. Any of the acids, as abietic acid, found free or in the form of esters in natural resins.

resin alcohol. Chem. Any of the alcohols found in the form of esters in natural resins. See RESINOL.

res'in·ate (rĕz'ĭ·nāt), n. Chem. A salt or ester of a resin acid (or, loosely, of a mixture of such acids); specif., a colophonate.

res'in·ate (rĕz'ĭ·nāt), v. t. To impregnate or flavor with resin.

resin bee. A solitary bee (genus Anthidium) which uses resin as cement in constructing its nest.

res'in·bush' (rĕz'ĭn·bŏŏsh'; rĕz'n-), n. A low South African shrub (Euryops athanasiae), family Carduaceae, having smooth pinnately parted leaves and abounding in resin.

resin cerate. See BASILICON b.

‖res in·cor'po·ra'les (rēz ĭn·kôr'pô·rā'lēz). [L.] Rom. & Civil Law. Things incorporeal.

resin distiller. See DISTILLER.

res'in·er (rĕz'ĭ·nĕr), n. One who resins.

resin gnat. A small two-winged fly (Retinodiplosis resinicola) that injures pine trees, the larvae causing an exudation of resin in which they live.

resini-. A combining form for resin, as in res'in·if'er·ous, res'in·if'lu·ous, res'in·i·form'. See -FEROUS, etc.

re·sin'ic (rē·zĭn'ĭk; rĕ-), adj. Chem. Of, pertaining to, or obtained from, resin; as, the resinic acids (resin acids).

re·sin'i·fi·ca'tion (rē·zĭn'ĭ·fĭ·kā'shŭn), n. [F. résinification.] Act or process of resinifying.

res'in·i·fy (rĕz'ĭ·nĭ·fī), v. t.; -FIED (-fīd); -FY'ING (-fī'ĭng). [F. résinifier.] To convert into, or treat with, resin. — v. i. a To change into or become resin. b Petroleum. Loosely, to form a gummy material; — said of the evaporation of an oil to such a residue.

res'in·ize (rĕz'ĭ·nīz), v. t. To resin.

res'in·o- (rĕz'ĭ·nō-). A combining form for resin, denoting resinous and, as in res'in·o·e·lec'tric, res'in·o·ex·trac'tive, res'in·o·phore', res'in·o·vit're·ous.

resin of podophyllum. Pharm. A resinous preparation made from podophyllum by pouring an alcoholic tincture of the drug into cold acidified water, and used as a cholagogue, cathartic, and anthelmintic.

res'in·og'e·nous (rĕz'ĭ·nŏj'ē·nŭs), adj. [resino- + -genous.] Resiniferous.

res'in·oid (rĕz'ĭ·noid), adj. [resin + -oid.] Somewhat like resin; more or less resinous.

res'in·oid (rĕz'ĭ·noid), n. 1. A resinoid substance; specif., a synthetic resin.

2. Pharm. a Any of a class of resinlike preparations introduced by the eclectics and made by pouring a concentrated alcoholic extract of a drug into cold water, and separating and drying the precipitate formed. b = GUM RESIN. c Any of certain flower essences used in the perfume industry.

resin oil. An oil distilled from resin; specif., rosin oil.

res'in·ol (rĕz'ĭ·nōl; -nŏl), n. [resin + 1st -ol.] Any of various colorless alcohols found as esters in resins.

res'in·ol'ic ac'id (rĕz'ĭ·nŏl'ĭk). A resin acid.

resin opal. See OPAL, 1.

res'in·o'sis (rĕz'ĭ·nō'sĭs), n. [NL., fr. resin + -osis.] Plant Pathol. An excessive outflow of resin from coniferous plants, resulting from disease.

res'in·ous (rĕz'ĭ·nŭs), adj. [L. resinosus. See RESIN.] 1. Of, pertaining to, containing, characteristic of, of the nature of, like, or obtained from, resin.

2. Elec. Electronegative; of or pertaining to negative electricity (see ELECTRICITY, 2).

3. Mineral. & Petrog. Of or pertaining to a luster of certain minerals and rocks, which have a resinous appearance on fractured surfaces, as sphalerite, pitchstone, etc. — res'in·ous·ly, adv. — res'in·ous·ness, n.

resin plant. = PRAIRIE DOCK a.

resin soap. a Soap in the making of which resin partly replaces the fat (sodium, or potassium, resinates being formed); specif., common rosin soap. See SOAP, n., 1. b A soaplike substance formed from a resin (esp. rosin) and alkali, and consisting essentially of sodium or potassium resinates. It is used in sizing paper, as an insecticide, etc.

resin spirit. = ROSIN SPIRIT. See ROSIN OIL.

‖res in'te·gra (rēz ĭn'tē·grȧ). [L.] Lit., an untouched thing; — in law and diplomatic use, a case or a question that has not been examined or passed upon.

‖res in'ter a'li·os ac'ta (ĭn'tĕr ā'lĭ·ōs ăk'tȧ). [L.] Law. Lit., transactions among others; — acts of persons who are strangers to the matter under adjudication. Evidence of such acts is not admissible. In full form, res in'ter a'li·os ac'ta al'te·ri no'ce·re non de'bet (ăl'tĕ·rī nōs'ē·rē nŏn dē'bĕt), transactions among strangers ought not to injure persons not a party to them.

res'in·y (rĕz'ĭ·nĭ), adj. Resinous.

res'i·pis'cence (rĕs'ĭ·pĭs'ĕns; -'ns), n. [L. resipiscentia, fr. resipiscere to recover one's senses.] Change of mind or heart; reformation; often, return to a sane, sound, or correct view or position.

res'i·pis'cen·cy (rĕs'ĭ·pĭs'ĕn·sĭ), n. Resipiscence. Obs.

res'i·pis'cent (-ĕnt; -'nt), adj. [L. resipiscens, -entis, pres. part.] That has or manifests resipiscence. Rare.

‖res ip'sa lo'qui·tur (rēz ĭp'sȧ lŏk'wĭ·tĕr). [L.] The thing speaks [for] itself; — used specif., Law, with reference to cases where mere proof that an accident took place is sufficient under the circumstances to throw the burden upon the defendant of proving that it was not due to his negligence.

re·sist' (rē·zĭst'), v.; -SIST'ED; -SIST'ING. [OF. resister, fr. L. resistere, fr. re- re- + sistere to stand, cause to stand, v. causative of stare to stand. See STAND.] Transitive: 1. To withstand; to be proof against; to be able to repel, ward off, prevent, etc.; as, armor that resists attack; a constitution that resists disease.

2. To oppose by physical, mental, or moral power; to strive against; to exert oneself to counteract, defeat, or frustrate; as, to resist the onslaughts of the enemy without flinching; to resist temptation; to resist arrest.

3. Obs. a To prevent. b To be distasteful to. Shak.

4. To withstand the action of; as, the metal resists acid.

5. To print (a fabric) by means of a resist (sense 2 a).

—, Intransitive: 1. To make a stand (against); to exert force in opposition; to offer resistance.

2. To desist; to rest. Obs.

Syn. — See OPPOSE. Ant. — Accept; submit to; assist.

re·sist' (rē·zĭst'), n. 1. Resistance. Obs.

2. Something that resists or prevents a certain action; specif.: a Calico Printing. A substance used to prevent a color or mordant from fixing on parts of the fabric, either by mechanically covering the cloth, or by chemically changing the color so as to render it incapable of fixing itself in the fibers. b Electroplating. A substance applied to a surface to render it nonconducting and thus prevent deposition. c Photoengraving. The protective acidproof coating which covers the printing area of a plate while etching; — called also acid resist.

re·sist'a·ble (rē·zĭs'tȧ·b'l), adj. Resistible. — re·sist'a·bil'i·ty (-bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n. — re·sist'a·ble·ness, n. All Rare.

re·sist'ance (rē·zĭs'tȧns; 91), n. [ME. resistence, fr. OF. resistence (F. résistance), fr. LL. resistentia, fr. L. resistens, -entis, pres. part. See RESIST.] 1. Act or an instance of resisting; opposition, passive or active; also, a means or method of resisting.

Unfold to us some warlike resistance. Shak.

2. Power or capacity to resist; as, resistance to fever.

3. Biol. The opposition offered by an animal or plant to a disease; — opposed to susceptibility.

4. Elec. a The opposition offered by a substance or body to the passage through it of an electric current, converting electrical energy into heat; the reciprocal of conductance. True resistance varies directly as the length and inversely as the cross section and conductivity of the conductor. It may be measured by a balancing method (see WHEATSTONE'S BRIDGE), or by the ratio of the difference of potential to the current strength (see OHM'S LAW). The common symbol for resistance is R, and the practical unit, the ohm. Cf. IMPEDANCE, REACTANCE, SURFACE RESISTANCE, VOLUME RESISTANCE. b A source of resistance; esp., a resistance coil or some similar device (called also resistor). An inductive resistance is one possessing self-induction. A noninductive resistance possesses no self-induction and offers no greater opposition to a varying than to an unvarying current.

5. Naut. The retardation of a vessel passing through the water, due to: a The friction between the water and the wetted surface of the vessel; — called also frictional resistance. b The making of eddies, or dead water; — called also eddy resistance. c The formation of waves; — called also wave resistance.

6. Physics. Any opposing force; a force tending to prevent motion; as, the resistance of the air to a body passing through it; the resistance of a target to projectiles.

7. Psychoanalysis. Opposition displayed by the patient to attempts of the analyst to penetrate the unconscious.

Syn. — Opposition, hostility; rebuff.

Ant. — Acceptance; co-operation, assistance; submission.

resistance box. Elec. A rheostat consisting of a box or case containing a number of resistance coils which can be variously combined to afford known amounts of resistance.

resistance butt welding. See BUTT WELDING.

resistance coil. Elec. A coil of wire introduced into an electric circuit to increase the resistance. When intended for quantitative measurements, the coil is commonly made with a doubled wire to minimize the magnetic field.

resistance coupling. Radio. = RESISTIVE COUPLING. See COUPLING, 4.

resistance derivatives. Aeronautics. Quantities expressing the variation of the forces and moments on aircraft due to disturbance of steady motion.

resistance drop. The voltage drop in phase with the current. In a direct-current circuit only resistance drop is present. In an alternating-current circuit containing resistance and reactance in series, the voltage drop across the resistance is the resistance drop or inphase component. See IMPEDANCE DROP, REACTANCE DROP.

resistance frame. Elec. A rheostat consisting of an open frame on which are stretched spirals of wire. Being freely exposed to the air, they radiate heat rapidly.

resistance thermometer. See THERMOMETER.

resistance welding. A form of electric pressure welding in which the necessary heat is produced by a flow of current through the parts to be welded, sufficient pressure to make the weld being applied simultaneously with the flow of current. Cf. BUTT WELDING, PERCUSSIVE WELDING, SEAM WELDING, SPOT WELDING.

re·sist'ant (rē·zĭs'tȧnt; 91), adj. [F. résistant, pres. part. See RESIST.] Making resistance; resisting; as, a constitution resistant to disease. — n. One who or that which resists; specif., Calico Printing, a resist.

re·sist'er (-tĕr), n. One who or that which resists.

re·sist'ful (rē·zĭst'fŏŏl; -f'l), adj. Full of resistance; making much resistance.

re·sist'i·bil'i·ty (rē·zĭs'tĭ·bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n. 1. Quality of being resistible; resistibleness; as, the resistibility of divine grace.

2. Ability to resist; power of resistance; as, the resistibility of granite to erosion.

re·sist'i·ble (rē·zĭs'tĭ·b'l), adj. [Cf. F. résistible.] Capable of being resisted, withstood, opposed, or frustrated; as, a resistible attack or temptation. — re·sist'i·ble·ness, n. — re·sist'i·bly, adv.

re·sist'ing, pres. part. & verbal n. of RESIST. — re·sist'ing·ly, adv.

resisting medium. Astrophysics. A hypothetical substance imagined as filling interplanetary space, in order to account for an apparent diminution, formerly, in the periodic time of Encke's comet.

resisting moment. The moment of the internal forces which resist the bending moment at a section of a member, as a beam or girder.

re·sis'tive (rē·zĭs'tĭv), adj. Tending to resist; disposed to resistance; specif., Elec., pertaining to resistance. — re·sis'tive·ly, adv. — re·sis'tive·ness, n.

re·sis'tive, n. A nonconductor.

resistive conductor. See CONDUCTOR, 10.

resistive coupling. See COUPLING, 4.

re'sis·tiv'i·ty (rē'zĭs·tĭv'ĭ·tĭ), n. 1. Capacity for resisting; resistance, — chiefly in technical senses.

2. = SPECIFIC RELUCTANCE.

3. The flow of air through porous bodies. The resistivity of a porous substance is defined by the equation $\sigma = \frac{A(p_1 - p_2)}{Ql}$, where σ is the resistivity, A the area, p_1 and p_2 are the pressures on the incident and exit sides, Q is the volume of gas passing through per second, and l the thickness.

4. Elec. The electrical resistance of a cubic centimeter of any material offered to a steady current passing between opposite faces. It varies with the temperature.

re·sist'less, adj. 1. Incapable of being resisted; irresistible.

2. Having no power to resist; making no opposition. — re·sist'less·ly, adv. — re·sist'less·ness, n.

re·sis'tor (rē·zĭs'tĕr), n. Elec. A device possessing the property of electrical resistance used in an electric circuit for protection, operation or control, usually with a qualifying word, as control resistor, load indicating resistor, etc.

re·sit'ting (rē·sĭt'ĭng), n. A sitting a second time.

re·size' (rē·sīz'), v. t.; -SIZED' (-sīzd'); -SIZ'ING (-sīz'ĭng). To shape again to size; to bring again to a correct size after deformation; as, to resize a cartridge shell by driving it with a mallet into a hardened steel die.

re·siz'er (rē·sīz'ĕr), n. One who or that which resizes; specif., a die for resizing shells (see RESIZE, v. t.); also, a die through which a bullet, purposely made a trifle larger than standard size, is forced to bring it to a correct final shape and size.

‖res ju'di·ca'ta (rēz jōō'dĭ·kā'tȧ; 242). [L.] = RES ADJUDICATA.

‖res man'ci·pi (măn'sĭ·pī). [L.] Roman Law. See MANCIPATION, 2.

‖res mo'bi·les (mō'bĭ·lēz). [L.] Civil Law. Movable things.

‖res nec man'ci·pi (nĕk măn'sĭ·pī). [L.] Roman Law. Things not res mancipi.

‖res ni'hi·li or nul'li·us (nī'hĭ·lī, nŭl'ĭ·ŭs). [L.] A thing of naught; a nonentity.

‖res nul'li·us (nŭl'ĭ·ŭs). [L.] A thing belonging to no one, whether because never appropriated, as a wild animal, or because abandoned by its owner, but acquirable by appropriation.

re·sol'u·ble (rē·zŏl'ū·b'l; rĕz'ō·lū·b'l), adj. [LL. resolubilis. See RESOLVE; cf. RESOLVABLE.] Admitting of being resolved; soluble; as, bodies resoluble by fire. — re·sol'u·bil'i·ty (-bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n. — re·sol'u·ble·ness, n.

res'o·lute (rĕz'ō·lūt; 242), adj. [L. resolutus, past. part. of resolvere. See RESOLVE.] 1. Obs. a Dissolved. b Friable. c Dissolute. d Infirm; feeble; weak. e Paid. f Decided; positive.

2. Having, or characterized by, a decided purpose; determined; resolved; hence, bold; firm; steady.

Syn. — Decided, fixed, steadfast, inflexible, constant, persevering, unshaken.

Ant. — Weak, vacillating, irresolute, unsteady, wavering, infirm.

— res'o·lute·ly (66), adv. — res'o·lute·ness, n.

res'o·lute, n. 1. Obs. a Payment. b Redelivery; repayment.

2. One who is resolute, or daring; hence, a desperado.

res'o·lute, v. i. To resolve. Obs. exc. Colloq., U. S., to draw up, pass, or express a resolution.

res'o·lu'tion (-lū'shŭn), n. [OF., fr. L. resolutio. See RESOLVE.] 1. Dissolution. Obs.

2. Act or process of resolving, or reducing to simpler form; also, its result; as: a Act of analyzing or converting a complex notion into simpler ones or into its elements. b A result of being reduced in its form by dissolution, melting, etc.; esp., conversion into liquid; liquefaction.

3. Act of relaxing, or state of being relaxed; relaxation; — said of some part or organ of the body. Now Rare.

4. Act or result of resolving, or answering; solving; answer; solution; as, the resolution of a question or problem.

5. Act of, or quality of mind admitting or productive of, resolving or determining; decision of character; resoluteness; also, that which is resolved upon or decided upon; settled determination; firmness; constancy; determination.

Be it with resolution then to fight. Shak.

6. A statement or verdict; now, specif., a formal expression of the opinion or will of an official body or a public assembly, adopted by vote; as, a legislative resolution; the resolutions of a public meeting. See CONCURRENT RESOLUTION; JOINT RESOLUTION.

7. Obs. a Act of making, or state of being, certain or firm in opinion or thought; conviction; assurance. b An expository account. c A resolute or determined person.

8. Chem. Act of separating a compound into its elements or component parts; specif., separation of a racemic compound into its two components. See RACEMIC.

9. Gr. & Lat. Pros. The substitution for a long syllable of its two equivalent shorts; the foot or part thereof as modified by such a substitution. Thus, ⏑ – and – ⏑ become by resolution, ⏑ ⏑ ⏑ and ⏑ ⏑ ⏑.

10. Mech. Act or process of resolving a force, etc.; an instance of this.

11. Med. A breaking up, disappearance, or termination, as of a fever, esp. pneumonia; disappearance or termination of inflammation without suppuration.

12. Music. a The passing of a voice part from a dissonant to a consonant tone. b The consonant tone or consonance in which the dissonance is resolved. See SUSPENSION; RETARDATION, 5.

13. Optics. The act or property of rendering visible the separate parts of an object, or of distinguishing between different sources of light. See OPTICAL RESOLVING POWER, SPECTROSCOPIC RESOLVING POWER.

Syn. — Analysis, separation, disentanglement, simplification; perseverance, steadfastness, fortitude; purpose, strength, resolve. See DECISION.

re'-so·lu'tion (rē'sō·lū'shŭn), n. See RE-, 2.

res'o·lu'tion·er (rĕz'ō·lū'shŭn·ĕr), n. One who makes a resolution; one who joins with others in a declaration or resolution; specif. [usually cap.], Scot. Hist., one favoring the resolution of 1650. See PROTESTER b.

res'o·lu'tion·ist (-ĭst), n. One who makes or joins in a resolution.

resolution of a vector. Math. The analysis of a vector into two or more vectors of which it is the sum.

res'o·lu'tive (rĕz'ō·lū'tĭv), adj. [F. résolutif.] 1. Serving to dissolve or relax; dissolving, as a drug. Now Rare.

2. Operating to resolve or annul.

3. a Rare. Logic. Analytical. b Law. = RESOLUTORY, 2.

res'o·lu'tive, n. Med. A resolvent or discutient.

res'o·lu·to'ry (rĕz'ō·lū·tō'rĭ; 181), adj. 1. Resolving, or explaining; explanatory. Obs.

2. Law. Serving to resolve or make void; resolutive.

re·solv'an·cy (rē·zŏl'vȧn·sĭ), n. [See -ANCY.] State of being resolved.

re·solve' (rē·zŏlv'), v.; -SOLVED' (-zŏlvd'); -SOLV'ING (-zŏl'vĭng). [L. resolvere, resolutum, to untie, loosen, relax, enfeeble, fr. re- + solvere to loosen, dissolve. For the development of the English senses not found in L., cf. F. résoudre, fr. the same L. source. See SOLVE; cf. RESOLUTE, RESOLUTION.] Transitive: 1. To dissolve; to melt. Archaic.

N O P Q R

O, that this too too solid flesh would melt, Thaw, and resolve itself into a dew! Shak.

2. To separate the component parts of; to reduce to, or break up into, the constituent elements. Now Rare.
3. To separate or break up (into constituent parts or elements); to change or convert by disintegration (into); to transform, reduce, as by analysis, or convert (into, to); to analyze; as, to resolve a complex notion into its elements.
4. To determine or decide; to settle; to decide, determine, or settle on; as, he was resolved by an accident.
5. To answer or solve, as a question or problem; to make clear or certain; to free from doubt; to disentangle; unravel; explain; solve; hence, to clear up; dispel, or remove, as doubt or, Obs., fear; as, to resolve a riddle.
6. To free from doubt or the like; to acquaint; inform; convince; assure; to make certain; — now only reflexively.

Sir, be resolved. I must and will come. Beau. & Fl.

7. To express, as an opinion or determination, by resolution and vote; to declare or decide by a formal vote; — followed by a clause; as, the house resolved (or, it was resolved by the house) that no money should be appropriated (or, to appropriate no money).
8. Reflexively to change or convert by resolution or formal vote; as, the house resolved itself into a committee.
9. To relax; loosen; to set at ease; weaken. Obs.
10. Chem. To separate (a racemic compound) into its two components. See RACEMIC.
11. Math. To solve, as an equation. Obs.
12. Mech. To split up (a force, velocity, etc.) into two or more components, esp. in assigned directions; to find a component of (a force, etc.) in a given direction, usually with the assumption of one other component in a direction at right angles to this; as, resolve force AB along AC.
13. Med. To dispose or scatter; to dissipate (inflammation, tumors, pain, etc.); to cause resolution of.
14. Music. To make (one or more voice parts or the total harmony) progress from a discord into a concord.
15. Optics. To distinguish between, or render visible the separate parts of; as, to resolve lines in a spectrum; to resolve a nebula.

——, Intransitive: 1. To melt; to dissolve; to become fluid. Now Rare.
2. To be separated into its component parts or elements; to undergo resolution; to disintegrate; to be reduced as by dissolving or analysis.

Physiological processes ultimately resolve into the integration of matter and the dissipation of motion. James Ward.

3. To form a purpose or resolution; esp., to determine after reflection; as, to resolve on a better course of life.
4. Obs. a To flow out. b To become of opinion; to be convinced. c To consult; to deliberate. d To determine to start or leave (for).
5. Law. To become void; to lapse.
6. Med. To undergo resolution, as pneumonia.
7. Music. To progress from a discord to a concord; — said of a voice part or of the total harmony.

Syn. — Reduce; determine, decide, conclude, purpose.

re·solve' (rē·zŏlv'), n. 1. That which has been resolved; a determination; a resolution.

Rome attends her fate from our resolves. Addison.

2. Resolute quality; determination; fixity of purpose; resolution. "Nor is your firm resolve unknown." Shak.
3. A legal or official determination; esp., a legislative declaration; a formal resolution. Obs. exc. U. S.
4. Act of resolving, or expounding; solution. Obs.

re·solved' (rē·zŏlvd'), part. adj. of RESOLVE (in its various senses); now esp.: a Having a fixed purpose; determined; resolute.

That makes him a resolved enemy. Jer. Taylor.

b Settled; deliberate. c Persuaded; convinced; certain. d Melted; liquefied. e Obs. Relaxed. f Separated; analyzed. — re·solv'ed·ly (rē·zŏl'vĕd·lĭ; -vĭd·lĭ; 119), adv. — re·solv'ed·ness, n.

re·sol'vent (-zŏl'vĕnt), adj. [L. resolvens, pres. part. of resolvere. See RESOLVE.] Having power to resolve; causing solution; solvent. Chiefly Med.

re·sol'vent, n. 1. Med. That which has power to disperse inflammatory or other lesions; a discutient; anything which aids the absorption of effused products.
2. That which can resolve, or cause solution; a solvent.
3. A solution, or means of solving a difficulty, problem, etc.; a settlement.
4. Math. = RESOLVENT EQUATION.

re·sol'vent (of a given algebraic equation $f(x) = 0$). Math. An equation such that the adjunction of one of its roots to the field of the original equation reduces the group of the equation.

resolvent equation. Math. An irreducible equation whose solution is involved in the solution of another, generally of higher degree.

re·solv'er (rē·zŏl'vĕr), n. One who or that which resolves.

re·solv'i·ble (-vĭ·b'l), adj. Resolvable.

re·solv'ing pow'er. 1. Optics. The ability of an optical instrument to form distinguishable images of objects separated by small angular distances.
2. Photog. The ability of a film or plate to reproduce the fine detail of the optical image.

res'o·nance (rĕz'ō·năns), n. [F. résonance, fr. L. resonantia an echo. See RESONANT.] 1. Act of resounding; quality or state of being resonant.
2. Physics. The phenomenon which results when, in the case of a forced vibration, the period of the force equals that of a natural vibration of the system to which the force is applied. It consists of a vibration of large amplitude in the system. If the force is due to a tuning fork in vibration, and if the system is a second fork of the same pitch, the latter will be set in vibration as a result of the waves emitted by the former, and consequently the sound heard will be louder.
3. Elec. a The intensification of electric waves by the union of those due to the natural period of oscillation of an electric circuit or system and those due to impulses or alternating electromotive force of an equal, or nearly equal, period to which the circuit or system is subjected. b The state of adjustment of an electric circuit permitting a maximum flow of current when an electromotive force of a particular frequency is impressed.
4. Med. The sound elicited on percussion, esp. of the lungs.
5. Music. The intensification and enriching of a musical tone by supplementary vibration, either sympathetically or mechanically induced.
6. Phonet. A vibrating quality of a voice sound. See Pron., § 29.
7. Psychol. The complex of internal bodily processes which occur in emotion.

resonance box. A chamber in a musical instrument for increasing its sonority, as a violin body, or the box in which a tuning fork is sometimes fixed.

resonance cavity. Music. One of the cavities in the mouth or nose which together constitute the resonator of the human voice.

res'o·nance–coil' an·ten'na. = RESONANCE WAVE COIL.

resonance curve. Physics. A curve whose abscissas are frequencies lying near to and on both sides of the natural frequency of a vibrating system and whose ordinates are the corresponding amplitudes of the forced vibrations.

resonance form. The form or placement of the throat and mouth adapted to give resonance to the voice. See Pron., § 29.

resonance pipe. A pipe in a musical instrument, as an organ, for increasing its sonority.

resonance potential. Physical Chem. The energy in volts required to remove an electron from a normal orbit to the next nearest orbit.

resonance radiation. See FLUORESCENCE, 1. resonance spectrum. See SPECTRUM, 2.

resonance wave coil. Radio. A long coil used as an antenna, wound in the form of a helix, usually with provision for tuning to resonance by sliding a contact along the coil.

res'o·nan·cy (rĕz'ō·năn·sĭ), n.; pl. -CIES (-sĭz). Resonance. Rare.

res'o·nant (rĕz'ō·nănt), adj. [L. resonans, pres. part. of resonare to resound; cf. F. résonnant. See RESOUND.] 1. Returning, or capable of returning, sound; fitted to resound; resounding; ringing; echoing back.

The streets were resonant with female parties. De Quincey.

2. Intensified and enriched by or as if by resonance; as, the resonant quality of Caruso's voice.

The resonant blues in the water at his feet. Royal Cortissoz.

3. Physics. Pertaining to, or exhibiting, resonance; adjusted so as to respond to vibrations of a given frequency.
4. Phonet. Characterized by resonance in the nasal passage.

Syn. — Sonorous, vibrant, reverberant.

Ant. — Flat, toneless.

res'o·nant (rĕz'ō·nănt), n. 1. A sound characterized by resonance; a resonant sound; also, a resonant body.
2. Phonet. A nasal sound.

res'o·nate (-nāt), v. i.; -NAT'ED (-nāt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -NAT'ING (-nāt'ĭng). [L. resonare, resonatum, to resound.] 1. Physics. To exhibit resonance; to vibrate sympathetically with some source of sound or electric oscillations.
2. Hence, loosely, to respond as if by resonance; to re-echo.

It is impossible to say now how far Benham was an originator of this idea, and how far he simply resonated to its expression by others. H. G. Wells.

res'o·na'tor (rĕz'ō·nā'tĕr), n. [NL.] Anything that resounds or resonates; specif.: a An open cylinder, or a hollow brass ball with two apertures, contrived to intensify a musical tone by its resonance and designed for the study and analysis of complex sounds. b Elec. Any of various apparatus for exhibiting or utilizing the effects of resonance in connection with open circuits, as a device having an oscillating circuit which includes a helix of bare copper wire, a variable number of coils of which can be connected in circuit with a condenser and spark gap excited with an induction coil. c Music. Any device, such as a resonance box or a piano soundboard, for increasing the power or beauty of tone by sympathetic vibration; specif., the body of a stringed instrument. d Phonet. Any of the throat, mouth, or nose cavities that serve to reinforce certain tones in the formation of speech sounds. e Teleg. An open box for containing a sounder and designed to concentrate and amplify the sound. f Wireless Tel'eg., etc. The antenna system and other high-frequency circuits of a receiving apparatus.

Resonator a. The Cylinder a slides within the Cylinder b, making changes of size in the air space such that the Resonator may reinforce several tones. In use the Tube c is held to the ear, and the Opening d towards the sound.

res'o·na·to'ry (rĕz'ō·nā·tō'rĭ; 68), adj. Resonant.

re·sorb' (rē·sôrb'), v. t. [L. resorbere, fr. re- re- + sorbere to suck or drink in.] To swallow or suck in again; to reabsorb.

re·sorb'ent (-sôr'bĕnt), adj. [L. resorbens, pres. part.] Swallowing or sucking in again; reabsorbing. — re·sorb'ence (-bĕns), n.

res·or'cin·ism (rĕz·ôr'sĭ·nĭz'm), n. Med. Toxic condition due to excessive use of resorcinol.

res·or'cin·ol (rĕz·ôr'sĭ·nōl; -nŏl), res·or'cin (rĕz·ôr'sĭn), n. [resin + orcinol.] Chem. A sweetish, colorless, crystalline phenol, $C_6H_4(OH)_2$(m), turning pink in air, obtained from certain resins, as galbanum, asafetida, etc., by fusion with caustic alkalies, and also artificially; meta-dihydroxybenzene. It is isomeric with pyrocatechol and hydroquinone, and is used chiefly in making dyes, as fluorescein, eosin, and certain azo dyes, and in medicine as an antiseptic.

resorcinol monoacetate. Chem. & Pharm. A thick lemon-yellow liquid compound, $C_8H_8O_3$, used in the treatment of alopecia and seborrhea.

res·or'ci·num (rĕz·ôr'sĭ·nŭm), n. [NL.] Resorcinol.

res'or·cyl'ic (rĕz'ôr·sĭl'ĭk), adj. [resorcinol + -yl + -ic.] Chem. Pertaining to or designating any of three isomeric crystalline acids, $C_6H_2(OH)_3CO_2H$, carboxyl derivatives of resorcinol or, equally, dihydroxy derivatives of benzoic acid. They are distinguished by the letters α, β, and γ, according as the hydroxyl groups occupy the positions 3,5 or 2,4 or 2,6 with reference to carboxyl.

re·sorp'tion (rē·sôrp'shŭn), n. 1. Act or process of resorbing; act of absorbing again; reabsorption.
2. Specif., Petrog., the redissolving wholly or in part, in the molten magma of an igneous rock, of crystals previously formed. The dissolved material may again solidify, giving rise to a mass of small crystals, usually of a different kind.

resorption borders or rims. Petrog. Borders of one or more minerals around a central larger crystal. They represent recrystallizations of material dissolved by a molten magma from previously crystallized minerals. Called also corrosion borders. Cf. REACTION RIM.

re·sorp'tive (rē·sôrp'tĭv), adj. Pertaining or due to resorption; tending to cause resorption.

re·sort' (rē·zôrt'), v. [OF. resortir (F. ressortir), fr. re- re- + sortir to go out. See SORTIE.] Intransitive: 1. To reissue. Obs.
2. To go; to repair; to betake oneself; esp., to go or repair frequently, customarily, or usually.
3. To have recourse; to apply; to betake oneself for help, relief, or advantage.

The king thought it time to resort to other counsels. Clarendon.

4. To have one's place, abode, or the like. Now Rare.
5. Obs. a To fall back; to revert; to return. b To direct one's attention; to turn.

——, Transitive: To visit; frequent. Obs.

re·sort' (rē·zôrt'), n. [OF. resort (F. ressort), fr. the v. See RESORT, v.] 1. a That to which, or one to whom, one resorts or looks for help; resource; refuge; with last, last or final expedient, as orig., a judge or court from which there is no appeal. b Act of going to, or making application; act of seeking aid; recourse; as, to have resort to force.
2. Assemblage; company; persons who frequent a place; a crowd or throng.
3. Frequent, habitual, or general going or repairing to or visiting; as, a place of popular resort.
4. a A place to which one betakes himself or persons go habitually; a place of frequent assembly; a haunt.

Far from all resort of mirth. Milton.

b A popular place of entertainment or recreation.
5. Obs. a Assembling; frequenting in numbers; concourse. b A going or repairing of one person with others or to a place; company.
6. A mechanical spring; figuratively, motive power; cause; source. A Gallicism. Obs.

re–sort' (rē·sôrt'), v. t. To separate again; to classify anew.

re·sort'er (rē·zôr'tĕr), n. A frequenter of a resort.

re–sort'er (rē·sôr'tĕr), n. One who re-sorts.

res'o·ru'fin (rĕz'ō·rōō'fĭn), n. [resorcinol + L. rufus red.] Chem. A dark-red, crystalline compound, $C_{12}H_7NO_3$, yielding fluorescent red solutions. It is obtainable by action of nitrosylsulphuric acid on resorcinol.

re–sound' (rē·sound'), v. t. & i. [re- + sound.] To sound again or anew.

re·sound' (rē·zound'), v.; -SOUND'ED; -SOUND'ING. [ME. resounen, fr. OF. resoner (F. résonner), fr. L. resonare, fr. re- re- + sonare to sound. See SOUND to make a noise; cf. RESONANT.] Intransitive: 1. To be filled with sound; to ring; echo; reverberate; as, the earth resounded with his praise.
2. To sound or echo, as a cry; to produce an echo, as a horn or bugle.
3. To be proclaimed often, as one's name; to be renowned. Poetic.

——, Transitive: 1. To proclaim (one's praises, virtues, etc.); to celebrate in music, song, or story; to extol loudly. Poetic.

The man for wisdom's various arts renowned,
Long exercised in woes, O muse, resound. Pope.

2. To sound or utter in full, resonant tones.

The dismal coronach resound. Scott.

3. To echo; to reverberate; to re-echo.

The trembling earth resounds his tread. Burns.

Syn. — Re-echo, reverberate, sound.

re·sound' (rē·zound'), n. That which resounds; an echo; resonance.

re·sound'er (rē·zoun'dĕr), n. One who or that which resounds; specif., a monotelephone.

re·source' (rē·sôrs'; rē'sôrs; 181; 277), n. [F. ressource, fr. OF. resourdre to spring forth or up again, fr. L. resurgere, fr. re- re- + surgere to rise. See SOURCE.] 1. A new or a reserve source of supply or support; a fresh or additional stock or store available at need; something in reserve or ready if needed; as, to have exhausted every resource; to open up new resources to an impoverished race or culture.
2. pl. Specif.: Available means, as of a country or business; computable wealth in money, property, products, etc.; immediate and possible sources of revenue; as, America's rich natural resources; the book value of a company's resources.
3. That to which one has recourse in difficulty; means of resort in exigency; expedient, stratagem, etc.; as, her usual resource was confession, or a smile.
4. Possibility of relief or recovery; — chiefly in phrase without resource.
5. A means of spending or utilizing one's leisure time.

Boston at that time offered few healthy resources for boys or men. Henry Adams.

6. Capability of, or skill in, meeting a situation, rising to an occasion, or the like; resourcefulness.

The Spanish adventurers . . . displayed a fertility of resource to which history scarcely affords a parallel. Macaulay.

7. Accounting. In popular usage, an asset.

Syn. — Resort, means, contrivance. See EXPEDIENT.

re·source'ful (rē·sôrs'fŏŏl; -f'l), adj. Characterized by resource, or power of meeting situations; having great resources, or reserves; fertile in devising ways and means. — re·source'ful·ly, adv. — re·source'ful·ness, n.

resp (rĕsp), n. Red water in sheep. Dial. Eng.

resp. Var. of RASP. Obs. exc. Scot.

re·speak' (rē·spēk'), v. t. 1. To echo; to resound. Poetic.
2. To speak or utter again.

re·spect' (rē·spĕkt'), v.; -SPECT'ED; -SPECT'ING. [L. respectus, past part. of respicere to look back, respect, fr. re- re- + specere to look, to view; cf. F. respecter, L. respectare. See SPY; cf. RESPECT, n.] Transitive: 1. To respite; postpone; neglect. Obs.
2. To consider worthy of esteem; to regard or treat with honor, deference, or the like; esteem; value; hence, to refrain from obtruding upon or interfering with; as, to respect a person's privacy. "I do respect thee." Shak.
3. To have regard or reference to; to relate to; to be concerned with; as, the treaty respects our commerce.
4. Obs. a To regard; consider; deem; heed. b To look for; anticipate. c To look toward or at; to front upon or toward. d To look upon. e To toast, or drink the health of.
5. Her. To face, esp. each other.

——, Intransitive: To look, front, or face. Obs. exc. Her.

Syn. — Concern, regard; heed, observe; honor, revere, venerate. See ESTEEM.

Ant. — Disregard, ignore; violate; disdain. See DESPISE.

— as respects. As regards; with regard to; as to. Rare.

respect the person or persons. To consider a case, a question, etc., with reference to the person or persons involved and one's bias for or against such; also, formerly, to have regard to the rank, station, outward aspect, or the like, of a person or persons.

re·spect' (rē·spĕkt'), n. [L. respectus, fr. respicere, respectum; cf. F. respect. See RESPECT, v.; cf. RESPITE.] 1. Relation; relationship; reference; regard; — chiefly in phrases (see below).
2. A relation or relationship; an aspect; a reference; — now with to; as, a respect of parts to each other.

reson, resone. † REASON. res'o·nant·ly, adv. of RESONANT. res'o·nat'ing sys'tem. Wireless Teleg. = RESONATOR f. Rare.
re·soothe', v. t. See RE-, 2. resorcin acetate. = RESORCINOL MONOACETATE. resorcin brown. See DYE, Table.
res·or'cine (rĕz·ôr'sēn; -sĭn), n. = RESORCINOL. res·or'cin·ol·phthal'e·in (rĕz·ôr'sĭ·nōl·thăl'ē·ĭn; -ē·ĭn; -fthăl'-), n. [resorcinol + phthalein.] = FLUORESCEIN. [as a hare. Obs.] re·sore', v. t. To double again, re·sorp'tiv. Resorptive. Ref. Sp.
re·sought' (rē·sôt'), past tense & past part. of RESEEK. re·soun', v. i. & t. To resound. Obs.
re·sound'ing, pres. part. & verbal n. of RESOUND. — re·sound'ingly, adv. resoune. † RESOUND.
re·source'less, adj. See -LESS. — re·source'less·ness, n.
re·sow' (rē·sō'), v. t., re·space', v. t., re·spade', v. t., re·span', v. t., re·span'gle, v. t., re·spar'kle, v. t. See RE-, 2. respasse. † RASPIS, raspberry.

3. Act of noticing with attention; regard; the giving of particular attention to; consideration.

Nothing is good, I see, without respect. Shak.

4. Favor; esp., undue favor, consideration, or bias; partiality; discrimination; as, to show respect of persons.

It is not good to have respect of persons in judgment. Pro. xxiv. 23.

5. A point regarded; a particular; a detail; a point of view; as, in this respect; in any respect; in all respects.

6. Esteem; deferential regard; also, state of being esteemed; honor. "Served without respect." Prior.

7. pl. Expressions of respect or deference; regards; as, to send one's respects to another.

8. Obs. a A respite; delay; postponement. b Appearance; aspect; also, view; prospect. c A consideration; motive; interest; aim. d Heed; care; circumspection. e Standing; reputation; repute. f pl. Attention to divers matters. g pl. Courtesies.

Syn. — See DEFERENCE. Ant. — Disdain, contempt.

— for (the) respect of. Obs. a Because of. b As regards. — in respect. In comparison; relatively. Obs. — in respect of. a Obs. Also in respect to; in, or to, the respect of. In comparison with. Shak. b As to; as regards; with respect to; as, in respect of roads and buildings, the town was much improved. c Now Rare. In consideration of; on account of. — in respect that. Seeing that; since. — in respect to. a Obs. See in respect of a, above. b In relation to; with regard to; as respects. — to have respect to. a To have regard, relation, or reference to. b Archaic. To look at; take notice of; pay heed or consideration to. — without respect. Without consideration, regard, or discrimination; — now only with to. — with respect. In due proportion; relatively. Obs. — with respect to. Also, Rare, with respect of. As regards; with reference to; as to.

re·spect'a·bil'i·ty (rē·spĕk'tə·bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n.; pl. -TIES (-tĭz), 1. State or quality of being respectable; also, the status of being respectable, or of consequence.

2. A respectable person; respectable persons collectively; also, a decency, or respectable convention.

Her interment had deeply affected all the respectability of the town of Axe. Arnold Bennett.

re·spect'a·ble (rē·spĕk'tə·b'l), adj. [Cf. F. respectable, ML. respectabilis.] 1. Worthy of respect, or note; now, usually, having claims to respect, or consideration; of consequence or repute; as, to avoid slighting a large, and therefore respectable, minority.

Everything relating to bulls Is popular and respectable in Thebes. Shelley.

2. Worthy of respect, or esteem or deference; estimable; respected; as, a highly respectable authority. "No government . . . will long be respected, without being truly respectable." Madison.

3. Decent in behavior or character; morally estimable; as, a respectable innkeeper or servant; now often, that respects the decencies or proprieties; conventionally correct in conduct; as, many persons find it easier to be good than respectable.

4. Rather large, numerous, good, or the like; fair in size, quantity, or quality; tolerable; as, a respectable amount, beach, audience, or performance.

5. Presentable; decent in appearance; as, a respectable coat.

Syn. — Reputable, estimable, honorable; decent.

Ant. — Disreputable, scandalous, disgraceful.

— re·spect'a·ble·ness, n. — re·spect'a·bly, adv.

re·spect'a·ble, n. A respectable person.

re·spect'ant (rē·spĕk'tənt), adj. [F., pres. part. of respecter. See RESPECT.] 1. Her. Upright and facing one another; — said of fishes and tame animals. Cf. COMBATTANT; AFFRONTÉ a.

2. Looking back. Tennyson.

re·spect'er (-tĕr), n. One who respects; as, respecter of persons, one whose decisions, opinions, etc., are, or are likely to be, affected by bias toward persons.

God is no respecter of persons. Acts x. 34.

re·spect'ful (rē·spĕkt'fo͝ol; -fl), adj. Full of respect; specif.: a Obs. Heedful; careful; — usually with of. b Rare. Considerate. c Obs. Deserving or receiving respect. d Marked or characterized by respect; showing deference; as, respectful deportment; a respectful glance, bow, etc. — re·spect'ful·ly, adv. — re·spect'ful·ness, n.

Syn. — Deferential.

Ant. — Disrespectful, impudent, contemptuous.

re·spect'ing, prep. 1. Considering; in view of.

Respecting what a rancorous mind he bears. Shak.

2. With regard or relation to; regarding; concerning; as, respecting his conduct there is but one opinion.

re·spec'tive (rē·spĕk'tĭv), adj. [ML. respectivus, fr. L. respicere. See RESPECT.] 1. Noticing with attention; regardful; attentive; hence, careful; heedful. Now Rare.

2. Relative. Now Rare.

3. Relating to particular persons or things, each to each; particular; several; as, their respective homes.

4. Obs. a Having reference to; related; correspondent. b Regardful of particular persons or things; partial; discriminative. c Rendering respect; regardful; courteous. d Fitted to awaken respect; respectable. e Suitable; proper.

re·spec'tive·ly, adv. of RESPECTIVE. Specif.: a Obs. Regardfully; heedfully; carefully. b Obs. With respect; respectfully; regardfully. c Obs. Relatively; not absolutely. d As relating to each; in particular; each to each; each in the order given; as, these belong respectively to Mary, Bertha, and Grace; John, James, and Thomas were elected respectively president, secretary, and treasurer.

Syn. — See DISTRIBUTIVELY.

re·spect'less (rē·spĕkt'lĕs; -lĭs; 119), adj. Not having or not showing respect; careless; disrespectful; impartial. — re·spect'less·ly, adv. — re·spect'less·ness, n. All Obs.

re·spec'tu·ous (rē·spĕk'to͝o·ŭs), adj. [F. respectueux. See RESPECT, n.] Deserving or showing respect. Obs.

re·spect'wor'thy (rē·spĕkt'wûr'thĭ), adj. Worthy of respect.

re·spell' (rē·spĕl'), v. t.; -SPELLED' (-spĕld'), -SPELT' (-spĕlt'); -SPELL'ING. To spell again; specif., to spell in another way, according to a phonetic system; as, the words in this Dictionary are respelled to show the pronunciation.

‖res pe'ri·it do'mi·no (rēz pĕr'ĭ·ĭt dŏm'ĭ·nō). [L.] A thing perishes to its owner (that is, the loss falls on the owner at the time it perishes).

re·sper'sive (rē·spûr'sĭv), adj. Dispersive. Rare.

re·spir'a·ble (rē·spīr'ə·b'l; rĕs'pĭ·rə·b'l; 277), adj. [F.] Suitable for being breathed; adapted for respiration; also, capable of respiration. — re·spir'a·bil'i·ty (-bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n. — re·spir'a·ble·ness, n.

res'pi·ra'tion (rĕs'pĭ·rā'shŭn), n. [F., fr. L. respiratio. See RESPIRE.] 1. Act or process of breathing; inspiration and expiration; the drawing of air into the lungs for oxygenating and purifying the blood, and its subsequent exhalation. The term designates both a single inspiration with the following expiration, and the continued repetition of these acts which constitutes breathing. In ordinary inspiration the muscles chiefly used are the diaphragm, which enlarges the capacity of the chest by becoming flatter as it contracts and pressing down the abdominal viscera, and the external intercostals, levatores costarum, and others which raise the ribs. Expiration, unless forced, takes place chiefly by the return of the parts to their natural position of rest. Only a small part of the total air in the lungs is replaced in an ordinary respiration. See TIDAL AIR, RESIDUAL AIR, SUPPLEMENTAL AIR.

2. Physiol. The osmotic and chemical process or processes by which an organism (or its tissues) absorbs oxygen and gives off the products (esp. the carbon dioxide) formed by the oxidation which goes on in the tissues. Land animals take oxygen from the air, aquatic forms utilize that dissolved (not that chemically combined) in the water in which they live. In small and simple organisms there are no special breathing organs, and the process takes place over a whole or a part of the body surface. Larger and more complex animals have special organs (see LUNG; 4th GILL, 1) for this function, though some respiration may take place through the skin, and the blood carries the oxygen to, and the waste products from, the tissues. The reciprocal diffusion of the dissolved gases between the circulating medium and the cells within the body, occurring through the cell membranes, is distinguished as internal respiration. In plants the same gaseous diffusion and interchange occurs between the cells and the atmosphere in the intercellular spaces. Unlike photosynthesis, respiration in plants goes on in darkness as well as in light, and in all cells whether they contain chlorophyll or not.

3. A respite, or breathing space. Obs.

res'pi·ra'tion·al (rĕs'pĭ·rā'shŭn·əl; -l), adj. Of or pertaining to respiration; respiratory; as, respirational difficulties.

respiration calorimeter. Biochem. An apparatus for measuring the gaseous exchange between a man or animal and the surrounding atmosphere (particularly the oxygen consumed and carbon dioxide eliminated), and simultaneously the quantity of energy given out in the form of heat and work, to determine the relation of these factors to the food and drink consumed and to body activity.

re·spir'a·tive (rē·spīr'ə·tĭv), adj. Respiratory. Rare.

res'pi·ra'tor (rĕs'pĭ·rā'tĕr), n. [Cf. F. respirateur.] a A device, as of gauze or wire, covering the mouth or nose, to prevent the inhalation of noxious substances, as dust or smoke. Being warmed by the breath, it tempers cold air passing through it, and may also be used for the inhalation of medicated vapors. b A device for artificial respiration; a light, portable development of the pulmotor for inducing and maintaining artificial respiration. — res'pi·ra'tored (-tĕrd), adj.

re·spi'ra·to'ri·um (rē·spī'rə·tō'rĭ·ŭm; 181), n. [NL., fr. L. respirare, respiratum, to respire.] Zool. A tracheal gill.

re·spir'a·to'ry (rē·spīr'ə·tō'rĭ; rĕs'pĭ·rə-; 277), adj. Physiol. Of or pertaining to respiration; serving for respiration; as, the respiratory organs; respiratory nerves; the respiratory function, changes.

respiratory center. Physiol. & Anat. A region in the medulla oblongata which regulates respiratory movements.

respiratory leaf or leaflet. Zool. One of the leaves or lamina of a book lung.

respiratory nerve. Either of two pairs of nerves supplying muscles of respiration. The internal respiratory nerves are the phrenic nerves, the external are the posterior thoracic nerves.

respiratory pigment. Physiol. One of a class of colored substances, found mainly in the blood of animals, which have an affinity for oxygen and thus aid in respiration, as hemoglobin.

respiratory plate. Zool. A platelike expansion of the body wall of an insect larva or other aquatic invertebrate, serving as a gill.

respiratory quotient. Biochem. The ratio of the volume of carbon dioxide (CO_2) given off in respiration to that of the oxygen (O_2) consumed. It is near 1 when the body is burning chiefly carbohydrates, near .7 when chiefly fats, and near .8 when chiefly proteins. It may exceed 1 when carbohydrates are being changed to fats for storage.

respiratory tree. Zool. An internal, arborescent, usually paired, tubular appendage of the cloaca of certain holothurians. Also applied to the intestinal caeca of starfishes.

respiratory trumpet. Zool. One of the two trumpet-shaped projections, which bear the thoracic spiracles in the pupae of mosquitoes and midges.

re·spire' (rē·spīr'), v.; -SPIRED' (-spīrd'); -SPIR'ING (-spīr'-ing). [OF. respirer, fr. L. respirare, respiratum, fr. re- re- + spirare to breathe. See SPIRIT.] Intransitive: 1. To breathe; specif., to inhale air into the lungs, and exhale it from them, successively, to maintain the vitality of the blood.

2. To have or enjoy a breathing space, or respite; to revive; to recover hope or courage.

3. Obs. a To blow; — said of a wind. b To exhale, as a smell.

4. To take up oxygen and produce carbon dioxide through oxidation, as cells or tissues.

—, Transitive: 1. To breathe in and out; to inspire and expire, as air; to breathe.

2. To breathe out; to exhale. Now Rare.

re·spir'it (rē·spĭr'ĭt), v. t. To put new spirit or courage in.

res'pi·rom'e·ter (rĕs'pĭ·rŏm'ē·tĕr), n. [L. respirare to breathe + -meter.] 1. Physiol. An instrument for studying the character and extent of respiration.

2. A kind of diver's headdress having a receptacle for compressed oxygen for reoxygenating the expired air after its harmful ingredients have been chemically removed.

res'pite (rĕs'pĭt), n. [OF. respit (F. répit), fr. L. respectus respect, regard, delay. See RESPECT, n.] 1. A putting off of that which was appointed; extension of time; postponement or delay.

2. Temporary intermission of labor, or of any process or operation; interval of rest.

3. Obs. a Delay in acting. b Leisure; opportunity. c Respect; regard.

4. Law. a Temporary suspension of the execution of a capital offender; reprieve. b A delay of appearance at court granted to a jury. c Rare. One who is reprieved.

Syn. — Pause, interval, suspension; delay.

res'pite (rĕs'pĭt), v.; -PIT·ED (-pĭt·ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -PIT·ING. [OF. respitier, fr. L. respectare. See RESPITE, n., RESPECT, v.] Transitive: 1. To give or grant a respite to. Specif.: a To delay or postpone; to put off. b To keep back from execution; to reprieve.

Forty days longer we do respite you. Shak.

2. Obs. a To prolong. b To relieve by a pause or interval of rest. c To suspend temporarily the necessity for payment of. d To desist from; to forbear; suspend.

3. Mil. To have the pay of suspended; to suspend the giving of (pay); to withhold (pay). Now Rare.

—, Intransitive: To desist; also, to rest. Obs.

re·splend' (rē·splĕnd'), v. i. [L. resplendere.] To shine resplendently; to be resplendent. Now Rare.

re·splend'ence (-splĕn'dĕns), n. [LL. resplendentia.] State of being resplendent; brilliant luster; splendor.

re·splend'en·cy (-dĕn·sĭ), n. Resplendence.

The resplendency of his own almighty goodness. Dr. J. Scott.

re·splend'ent (-dĕnt), adj. [L. resplendens, -entis, pres. part. of resplendere to shine brightly, fr. re- re- + splendere to shine. See SPLENDID.] Shining brilliantly; lustrous; splendid. — re·splend'ent·ly, adv.

With royal arras and resplendent gold. Spenser.

re·spond' (rē·spŏnd'), v.; -SPOND'ED; -SPOND'ING. [OF. respondre (F. répondre), fr. L. respondere, responsum, fr. re- re- + spondere to promise. See SPOUSE; cf. CORRESPOND.] Intransitive: 1. To correspond; to accord. Rare.

2. To say something in return; to answer; to reply; specif., in liturgies, to make a respond or a response; as, to respond to a question or an argument; the choir responded.

3. To show some effect in return to a force or as a result of a stimulus; to act, behave, etc., in response.

She stood responding with a sparkling life to the brilliant scented morning. Hergesheimer.

4. To render satisfaction; to be answerable; as, the defendant is held to respond in damages. U. S.

—, Transitive: 1. To answer to; to correspond to. Obs.

2. To respond to; to answer; to satisfy. Rare. U. S.

re·spond' (rē·spŏnd'), n. 1. Eccl. In liturgies, anything sung or said after, or in reply to, the officiant; a response, as to a versicle; a responsory; specif., a short anthem sung at intervals during the reading of a lection. Cf. ANTIPHON, 1.

2. An answer; a response. Rare.

3. Arch. An engaged pillar supporting an arch or closing a colonnade or arcade; as, the nave arcade will be of nine pillars and two responds. Also, by extension, a corbel so used, or a pilaster which backs up a free column.

re·spon'de (rē·spŏn'dē), n. [L. imperative of respondere.] Scots Law. An entry formerly made in a book of record (the responde book) in chancery of a nonentry or relief duty payable by an heir taking a precept from chancery; also, the amount of the duties in an entry.

‖re·spon'de·at ous'ter (rē·spŏn'dē·ăt). [L. respondeat + OF. ouster.] Literally, let him make further answer; — a form of judgment or order used upon denial of a dilatory plea to direct the party now made it to plead to the merits.

‖re·spon'de·at su·pe'ri·or (sū·pē'rĭ·ôr). [L.] Law. Literally, let the superior answer; — a phrase used with reference to the responsibility of a principal for his agent's acts.

re·spond'ence (rē·spŏn'dĕns), n. Also re·spond'en·cy (-dĕn·sĭ). [MF.] Act of responding; state of being respondent; an answering; response; also, correspondence; agreement.

re·spond'ent (-dĕnt), adj. [L. respondens, -entis, pres. part. of respondere.] 1. Responding; corresponding. Obs.

2. Making response; answering; responsive; specif., Law, that is a respondent or defendant.

re·spond'ent, n. [Cf. F. répondant, OF. respondant, pres. part. See RESPONDENT, adj.] One who responds, or makes a reply. Specif.: a One who maintains a thesis in reply; — distinguished from opponent. b Law. One who answers in certain suits or proceedings, generally those not according to the course of the common law, as in equity and admiralty, etc.; — distinguished from appellant.

re'spon·den'ti·a (rē'spŏn·dĕn'shĭ·ə; rĕs'pŏn-), n. [NL. See RESPONDENCE.] Law. A loan upon goods laden on a ship conditioned to be repaid, with maritime interest, only in the event of the safe arrival of some part of the goods. It differs from bottomry, which is a loan on the ship itself.

re·spond'er (rē·spŏn'dĕr), n. 1. One who responds.

2. Specif.: a The main charge of an explosive, which requires an initiator to set it off. b Elec. A detector for electric waves.

re·spon'sa·ble (-sə·b'l), adj. Var. of RESPONSIBLE. Obs.

re·spon'sal (rē·spŏn'səl; -s'l), adj. [ML. responsalis.] Answerable; responsible; also, responsive. Obs.

re·spon'sal (rē·spŏn'səl; -s'l), n. [ML. responsalis.] Obs.

1. One who is answerable or responsible; a surety; also, the respondent in a disputation.

2. Response; answer, esp. in a liturgy. Obs. exc. Hist.

3. Eccl. One who gives answers; an apocrisiary.

‖re·spon'sa pru·den'ti·um (rē·spŏn'sä prōō·dĕn'shĭ·ŭm; 242). [L., lit., the answer of (those) knowing.] Rom. Law. The responses or opinions of eminent lawyers or professional jurists on legal questions addressed to them. Their number and conflicting character led to laws limiting the number that should be regarded as authoritative. Cf. JUS RESPONDENDI, OBITER DICTUM.

re·spon'sa·ry (rē·spŏn'sə·rĭ), n. [OF. responsaire.] A responsory; response.

re·sponse' (rē·spŏns'; 232), n. [OF. and L.; OF. respons, response (F. réponse, réponse), fr. L. responsum, fr. respondere, responsum, to answer. See RESPOND.] 1. Act of responding; an answer; a responsive or corresponding act or feeling.

2. Reply to an objection in formal disputation.

3. pl. Responsions. Univ. of Oxford.

4. Arch. A half pier or pillar to support an arch.

5. Biol. & Psychol. Any activity of an organism or of an effector organ or part, or the inhibition of previous activity, resulting from stimulation; a reaction; as, a motor response; a learned response; a native response.

6. Eccl. a A verse, sentence, phrase, or word sung or said by the people or choir after or in reply to the priest or clergyman, in the litany and other parts of divine service. A response is often indicated in liturgical books by R or ℟. b A kind of anthem sung after or during a lection; a respond or responsory.

7. Music. a = ANSWER, n., 8. b The chorus or refrain of a folk song or rhyme.

8. Roman & Civil Law. One of the responsa prudentium.

re·spon'ser (rē·spŏn'sĕr), n. Responder.

re·spect'a·bi·lize (rē·spĕk'tə·bĭ·līz), v. t. See -IZE.

re·spec'tion (rē·spĕk'shŭn), n. [LL. respectio.] A respecting; aspect; respect; regard. Obs.

re·spec'tiv. Respective. Ref. Sp.

re·spec'tive·ness, n. See -NESS.

re·spec'tiv·ist, n. A captious critic. Obs.

re·sperse' (rē·spûrs'), v. t. [L. respersus, past part. of respergere.] To sprinkle; asperse; scatter. Obs.

res'pet, n. & v. [See RESPITE.] Respite. Obs.

re·spew', v. t. (Obs.), re·sphere', v. t. See RE-, 2.

‖res'pi·ce, a'spi·ce, pro'spi·ce! (rĕs'pĭ·sē, ä'spĭ·sē, prō'spĭ·sē). [L.] Look to the past, the present, and the future;—motto of the College of the City of New York.

‖re'spi·ce fi'nem (fī'nĕm). [L.] Look to, or regard, the end.

re·spin', v. i. See RE-, 2. res'pit. Respite. Ref. Sp.

res'pite·less, adj. See -LESS.

re·splend'ant, adj. [OF.] Resplendent. Obs.

re·splen'dish, v. i. [F. resplendir.] = RESPLEND. Obs.

re·splen'dish·ant, adj. [F. resplendissant, pres. part.] Resplendent. Obs.

re·splen'dish·ing, adj. Resplendent. Obs.

re·splen'dour, n. [OF. resplendor.] Resplendency. Obs.

re·splen'dour, v. t. To make resplendent. Obs.

re·splice', v. t., re·slit', v. t. & i., re·spoke', v. i. See RE-, 2.

re·sponse'less, adj. See -LESS.

re·spon′si·bil′i·ty (rē·spŏn′sĭ·bĭl′ĭ·tĭ), n.; pl. -TIES (-tĭz). [Cf. F. responsabilité.] 1. State or quality of being responsible. Specif.: a Accountability; also, moral accountability; as, to assume the responsibility for another's debts; to prove the responsibility of the accused. b Reliability; trustworthiness; sometimes, ability to pay; as, to question the responsibility of one seeking a loan.
2. That for which any one is responsible or accountable; as, to seek relief from his responsibilities.
re·spon′si·ble (rē·spŏn′sĭ·b'l), adj. [MF., cf. F. responsable. See RESPOND.] 1. Correspondent; accordant. Obs.
2. Liable to respond; likely to be called upon to answer; accountable; answerable; amenable; as, a guardian is responsible to the court for his conduct in the office.
3. Able to respond or answer for one's conduct and obligations; trustworthy, financially or otherwise.
4. Of decent appearance; respectable; presentable.
5. Involving responsibility; involving a degree of accountability; as, a responsible office.
6. Answerable as the primary cause, motive, or agent, whether of evil or good; creditable or chargeable with the result; — with for. Chiefly U. S.
7. Ethics. Having the character of a free moral agent; capable of determining one's own acts; capable of being deterred by consideration of sanctions or consequences.
8. Polit. Sci. Politically answerable to the legislature; — said of a ministry or government or a member of it.
Syn. — RESPONSIBLE, ANSWERABLE, ACCOUNTABLE, AMENABLE, LIABLE, OBNOXIOUS are here compared in their ordinary senses; for legal uses, see defs. One is responsible, answerable, or accountable for something, often to some person or authority. RESPONSIBLE is the most general term; ANSWERABLE and AMENABLE often imply more immediate or specific responsibility; as, to be responsible for the payment of a debt, the safety of a deposit, to be responsible to a superior for the performance of a duty; "Your father takes it upon himself to be answerable for all consequences" (Richardson); "men in business, who are answerable with their fortunes for the consequences of their opinions" (Hazlitt); "We are held accountable, and God . . . will reckon with us roundly for the abuse of what he deems no mean or trivial trust" (Cowper). One is LIABLE (in the sense of responsible) for something, or (in the sense of subject) to something; one is AMENABLE to some authority, or (sometimes) to some charge, punishment, claim, etc.; one is OBNOXIOUS to some harm or injury; as, a surety is liable for the debts of his principal, ecclesiastical property is not liable to taxation; the king is not amenable to law; "She knew not . . . to what rigors or rudeness [her offense] might justly make her amenable" (Jane Austen); "all the perils that you are obnoxious to" (B. Jonson).
Ant. — Unaccountable; irresponsible, untrustworthy.
— re·spon′si·ble·ness, n. — re·spon′si·bly, adv.
re·spon′si·ble, n. An actor prepared to fill various important roles as occasion demands. re·spon′sion (rē·spŏn′shŭn), n. [F. or L.; F. responsion, fr. L. responsio. See RESPOND.] 1. Act of answering; an answer; a response. Now Rare.
2. A sum required to be paid, as, esp., an annual one from members of military orders. Hist.
3. pl. Univ. of Oxford. The first university examination for the B. A. degree; — the official term, the slang terms being little go and now more usually smalls. The term at Cambridge is previous examination. Cf. GREAT GO.
4. A public disputation at a university.
re·spon′sive (-sĭv), adj. [F. or L.; F. responsif, fr. LL. responsivus.] 1. That responds; answering; replying.
A responsive chime. Wordsworth.
2. Obs. a Correspondent; corresponding. b Responsible. Jer. Taylor.
3. Ready or inclined to respond, or react in sympathy; as, a responsive child; always responsive to affection; his eloquence stirred a responsive chord in his listeners.
4. Characterized by responses; as, responsive worship.
Syn. — Answering; sensitive, sympathetic.
Ant. — Unresponsive, cold, dull.
— re·spon′sive·ly, adv. — re′spon·siv′i·ty (rē′spŏn·sĭv′ĭ·tĭ), n.
re·spon′sive, n. 1. A response or reply. Obs.
2. Eccl. = RESPONSE, 6.
3. Gram. A word used by way of answer to stand for a sentence (yes; no). Rare.
re·spon′sive·ness, n. Quality of responding, or being responsive; specif., Mech., the rapidity with which a member, as an instrument pointer, comes to rest after a change of any kind.
re′spon·so′ri·al (rē′spŏn·sō′rĭ·ăl; 181), adj. 1. Responsive.
2. Pertaining to, or consisting of, responses; antiphonal.
re′spon·so′ri·al, n. [ML. responsoriale.] Eccl. A book of responsories.
re·spon′so·ry (rē·spŏn′sō·rĭ), n.; pl. -RIES (-rĭz). [ML. responsorium, fem. -oria.] 1. Eccl. A response; esp., an anthem sung or said after or during a lection.
2. An oracle. Rare.
re·spon′so·ry (rē·spŏn′sō·rĭ), adj. Pertaining to or of the nature of an answer; answering; responsive. Obs.
‖res·pu′bli·ca (rĕz·pŭb′lĭ·kä), n. [L.] Commonweal; commonwealth; state; republic.
‖res pu′bli·cae (rēz pŭb′lĭ·sē). [L.] Rom. & Civil Law. Things owned by no one but subject to use by the public.
re·spue′ (rē·spū′), v. t. [L. respuere.] To reject.
‖res sae′cu·la′res (rēz sĕk′ū·lā′rēz). See RES ECCLESIASTICAE. res′sai·dar′ (rĕs′ī·där′), n. [Hind. rasāīdār, fr. Per. rasāī skill + -dār holding.] Mil. A native subaltern officer in a ressala. Cf. RESSALDAR. India.
res·sa′la (rĕ·säl′lä), n. Also ri·sa′la (rē·säl′lä). [Hind. & Per. risālā troop, fr. Ar. risālah a mission.] Mil. In the Anglo-Indian army, a troop of native irregular cavalry.
res′sal·dar′ (rĕs′ăl·där′), n. [Hind. risāldār, fr. Per. risāla troop (fr. Ar. risālah a mission) + -dar holding, holder.] Mil. In the Anglo-Indian army, a native commander of a ressala.
res·saut′ (rĕ·sōt′; rĕ·sō′), n. [F.] Arch. Any projection from the plane of a wall or surface.
‖res sin′gu·lo′rum (rēz sĭng′gŭ·lō′rŭm; 181). [L.] Rom. & Civil Law. Things belonging to private individuals.
‖res·sort′ (rē·sôr′), n. [F.] 1. A mechanical spring. Obs.
2. Expedient; resort (which see, sense 1); — used with last.

rest (rĕst), v. i. Aphetic for ARREST. Now Dial. rest (rĕst), n. [ME., fr. arest. See 2d ARREST.] 1. Arrest; checking; specif., legal arrest. Obs.
2. Her. A charge now understood to represent an organ.
3. Medieval Armor. A projection from, or attachment on, the side of the breastplate to support the butt of the lance.

Rest, 2.

rest, n. [AS. rest, ræst, rest, bed, grave; akin to ON. röst the distance between two resting places, mile, Goth. rasta, OHG. rasta rest, a certain distance, G. rast, also to Goth. razn house, ON. rann, AS. ærn. Cf. BARN, RANSACK, SALTERN.] 1. A place where one may rest, either temporarily, as an inn, or wayside booth, or permanently, as an abode; abode; stopping place; specif., a place of shelter and lodging for a specified class of persons when out of work, off duty, or the like; as, a sailors' rest; travelers' rests.
In dust our final rest, and native home. Milton.
2. Repose or refreshment of body due to sleep; sleep; slumber; as, to go to, or take, one's rest.
Charge that no man shall disturb rest. Shak.
3. A cessation or intermission of motion, exertion, or labor; freedom from activity; quiet; tranquillity; as, rest from mental exertion; rest of body or mind.
4. Hence, freedom from anything that wearies, disturbs, or troubles; peace of mind or spirit.
5. The repose of death; death. Poetic.
6. Absence or cessation of motion considered as a physical phenomenon; continuance in the same place; as, a body will continue in a state of rest unless acted upon.
7. That on which anything rests or leans for support.
He made narrowed rests round about, that the beams should not be fastened in the walls of the house. 1 Kings vi. 6.
8. Renewed vigor. Rare. Shak.
9. Billiards & Pool. See BRIDGE, n., 7 b.
10. Firearms. A support for a gun when firing.
11. Mach. A part in a lathe, or similar machine, to support the cutting tool or steady the work.
12. Music. a A rhythmic silence in music or in one of its parts. b A character that stands for such silence. Rests are named, as notes are, according to their duration: whole rest, or semibreve, half rest, or minim, quarter rest, or crotchet, etc. Like notes, they may be prolonged by a dot, as 𝄽. (= 𝄽 𝅭), or by a hold, as 𝄐. The whole rest may be used as a measure rest in any kind of measure, or, with a figure over it, may denote a rest of a given number of measures.

Rest, 12 b.

13. Pros. A short pause in reading; a caesura.
☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are:

rest-cured	rest-ordained	rest-seeking rest-giving	rest-refreshed	rest-taking

Syn. — Interval, pause, intermission, stop; quietness, stillness, peacefulness, peace; support, prop, stay. — REST, REPOSE. REST implies cessation from labor or exertion; REPOSE suggests tranquillity or refreshing rest; as, "There the wicked cease from troubling; and there the weary be at rest" (Job iii. 17); "Sleep on now, and take your rest" (Matt. xxvi. 45); "the universal instinct of repose, the longing for confirmed tranquillity" (Wordsworth); "The quiet was more like the prostration of a spent giant than the repose of one who was renewing his strength" (Dickens). But the words are often interchangeable. Cf. EASE, STILL.
Ant. — Wakefulness, sleeplessness, restlessness; work; activity, bustle; motion, movement.
— at rest. a In repose, as of sleep, or, esp., death; hence, dead; as, he is at rest. b In a quiescent state; motionless; inactive; as, Vesuvius is seldom at rest. c In a state of freedom from anything disquieting, as fear or doubt; as, set your mind at rest. — without rest. Without cessation or delay.
rest (rĕst), v.; REST′ED; REST′ING. [AS. restan, ræstan; akin to OHG. restan, rastōn, G. rasten. See 3d REST.] Intransitive: 1. To take or get repose by lying down; esp., to get refreshment of body by sleep; to sleep; to slumber; also, to be in the repose of death; to be dead or in the grave.
2. To cease from action or motion; to desist from labor or exertion; to cease; to desist.
God . . . rested on the seventh day from all his work which he had made. Gen. ii. 2.
3. To be free from whatever wearies or disturbs; to be quiet or still; to remain the same or in the same place.
There rest, if any rest can harbor there. Milton.
4. To have place; to lie; to settle; to be fixed; to be supported; as, a slumber rested on him; a column rests on its pedestal; one wing of the army rested on the hills.
5. To remain confident; to put trust.
To rest in Heaven's determination. Addison.
6. To lean in confidence; to repose without anxiety; to trust; to rely; to depend; as, to rest on a man's promise; also, to be based or founded; — usually with on.
On him I rested, after long debate. Dryden.
7. To remain or lie for action or accomplishment; as, the maintenance of peace rests with him alone.
8. To be vested; also, to consist or lie. Obs.
9. Agric. To remain idle or uncropped; — said of land.
10. Law. In practice, to bring to an end voluntarily the introduction of evidence, the right to introduce fresh evidence, except in rebuttal, being thereupon lost.
—, Transitive: 1. To give rest or repose to; to refresh by repose; to lay or place at rest; to allow to remain inactive, quiet, or undisturbed; specif., Scot., to bank (a fire) for the night.
All needful rites, to rest my wandering shade. Dryden.
2. To set (one or oneself) at rest; — with adjectival complement and often, Archaic, in greetings. "God rest you merry, Sir." Shak. "Oh! rest thee tranquil; chase those fearful doubts." Shelley.
3. To place or lay, as on a support; to lean; settle.
Her weary head upon your bosom rest. Waller.
4. To base; to ground; as, to rest one's hopes on a person or one's case on a single argument.
5. Agric. To allow (land) to remain idle or uncropped.
6. Law. In practice, to desist voluntarily from introducing evidence on; as, defense rested its case. Cf. REST, v. i., 10, above.
Syn. — Refresh, renew; calm, quiet; set, lay; found, establish.
Ant. — Fatigue, weary; excite; remove. rest on the (or one's) oars. See to lie on the oars, under OAR, n. rest up. To get a complete rest. Colloq. rest (rĕst), v. i. [F. rester. See REST remainder.] 1. To remain unpaid. Obs.
2. To be left over or still; to remain; to continue to be. Now Rare.
The affairs of men rest still uncertain. Shak.
3. To owe. Chiefly Scot. rest (rĕst), n. [F. reste, fr. rester to remain, fr. L. restare to stay back, remain, fr. re- re- + stare to stand, stay. See STAND; cf. ARREST, RESTIVE.] 1. A remainder; a remnant. Obs.
2. pl. Remains; relics. Now Rare.
3. With the, that which is left or remains after removal of a part, either in fact or in contemplation; the remainder; residue; the others.
Plato and the rest of the philosophers. Bp. Stillingfleet.
Armed like the rest, the Trojan prince appears. Dryden.
4. An amount still unpaid; a balance due. Obs.
5. Accounting. The striking of a balance of an account or of accounts; the making of a balance sheet; also, the balance or amount of undivided profits thus ascertained.
6. Banking. A reserve consisting of profits remaining undivided after payment of dividends; surplus; — so called in bank statements, as of the Bank of England. Eng.
7. Card Playing. In primero, the reserve stakes, loss of which ends the game; also, the venture of them. Obs.
8. Gymnastics. A position, on any apparatus, in which the body is supported wholly or mainly by the hands or arms, the elbows being above the point of support and the center of gravity below the shoulders.
9. Med. A surviving mass of misplaced embryonic cells or fetal tissue; as, adrenal rests in the kidney.
10. Tennis, etc. A series of repeated returns; a spell of uninterrupted returning. Cf. RALLY.
Syn. — Balance, surplus. Cf. REMAINDER. res′tant (rĕs′tănt), adj. [F. See REST remainder.] Bot. Persistent. re·state′ (rē·stāt′), v. t. To state again or in a new form.
— re·state′ment (-mĕnt), n.
res·taur′ (rĕs·tôr′), n. [F. See RESTORE.] Law. a The recourse which insurers have against each other, according to the date of their insurance. b The recourse of an insurer against the master of a vessel if the loss occurs through his negligence; also, generally, the recourse of one against a guarantor or one under obligation to indemnify.
res′tau·rant (rĕs′tō·rănt; Brit. also rĕs′tō·răn; 277), n. [F., fr. restaurer. See RESTORE.] An establishment where refreshments or meals may be procured by the public; a public eating house.
res′tau·rate (rĕs′tō·rāt; rĕs′tô-), v. i. To eat at a restaurant; to partake of a meal.
res′tau·rate (rĕs′tō·rāt), v. t. [L. restauratus, past part. of restaurare.] To restore. Obs.
res′tau·ra·teur′ (rĕs′tō·rä·tûr′), n. [F.] The keeper of a restaurant; also, a restaurant.
res′tau·ra′tion (rĕs′tô·rā′shŭn), n. [OF., fr. LL. restauratio. See RESTORE; cf. RESTORATION.] 1. Restoration; specif., Obs.: a Restoration to, as to a former state of favor with God or of innocence, or to a former position, as that of king; esp. [cap.], the Restoration (1660). b Of the Jews, the being returned to Palestine. c A restorative.
2. (Ger. pron. rĕs′tō·rä·tsyōn′) [G.] A restaurant; also, restaurant service. Rare.
rest′balk′ (rĕst′bôk′), n. [See REST repose; BALK, n., 2.] A ridge of land between furrows. — v. t. To make rest-balks in.
rest cure. Med. Treatment of disease, as neurasthenia or tuberculosis, by rest and isolation in a good hygienic environment.
rest day. A day of rest; specif., the Sabbath.
rest′er (rĕs′tĕr), n. One who rests.
re·ster′i·lize (rē·stĕr′ĭ·līz), v. t. To sterilize again or anew.
rest′ful (rĕst′fŏŏl; -fl), adj. 1. Giving, characterized by, or of the nature of, rest; freeing from toil, trouble, etc.
Tired with all these, for restful death I cry. Shak.
2. Being at rest or in peace; tranquil; quiet; not restless; hence, tranquilizing.
Her lips were full and restful. Samuel Butler.
— rest′ful·ly, adv. — rest′ful·ness, n.
rest′har′row (rĕst′hăr′ō), n. [See 2d REST; HARROW.] A European woody herb (Ononis repens) with pink flowers, unifoliolate leaves, and long, tough roots. rest′house′ (-hous′), n., or rest house. A house or building for the rest and shelter of travelers; specif., a dak bungalow. Chiefly India & Ceylon.
res′ti·ad (rĕs′tĭ·ăd), n. A plant of the family Restionaceae. R.
res′ti·bra′chi·um (rĕs′tĭ·brā′kĭ·ŭm; -brăk′ĭ-), n.; pl. RESTIBRACHIA (-ä). [NL., fr. L. restis rope + brachium arm.] Anat. A restiform body.
res′ti·form (rĕs′tĭ·fôrm), adj. [L. restis a rope + -form.] Anat. Designating a pair of prominent cordlike masses (the restiform bodies) of nerve fibers on the dorsal surface of the medulla oblongata. They form part of the lateral boundaries of the fourth ventricle, and are continued upward as the inferior peduncles of the cerebellum.
rest′ing, pres. part. & verbal n. of REST. Hence: adj. Biol. & Hort. Dormant; quiescent; not in growing condition; as, a resting bulb; also, of or pertaining to dormancy; as, a resting period or resting stage. resting cell. A resting spore. resting egg. Zool. = WINTER EGG. resting nucleus. Biol. A cell nucleus in its ordinary condition when not undergoing mitosis. The chromatin granules are commonly arranged in a network, and a well-defined nuclear membrane is present. resting place. 1. A place where rest may be taken.
2. The place where a dead person is laid.
3. A landing in a staircase; a halfpace or quarterpace.
resting spore. Bot. A spore which remains dormant for a period before germination. Many zygospores are of this type; they are usually prepared for the resting period by re·spon′si·bl. Responsible. Ref. Sp. re·spon′siv. Responsive. Ref. Sp. re·spon′sure, n. A response. Obs. re·sport′, n. [OF.] Regard. Obs.

---

re·spot′, v. t. See RE-, 2. re·spoune′, v. t. [OF. respondre.] To respond. Obs.
re·spray′, v. t., re·spread′, v. t., re·spring′, v. t., re·sprout′, v. i., re·square′, v. t., re·squeak′, v. i. See RE-, 2.
‖res ser′vi·ens (rēz sûr′vĭ·ĕnz). [L., serving thing.] Law. See SERVITUDE, n., 8. [RIZZOM. res′sum (rĕs′ŭm). Scot. var. of rest′a·ble, adj. See -ABLE. re·stab′lish, v. t. [OF. restablir.] To re-establish. Obs.
re·stack′, v. t. See RE-, 2. re·staff′, v. t. See RE-, 2. re·stag′nant, adj. [L. restagnans, pres. part.] Stagnant. Obs. re·stag′nate, v. i. [L. restagnare to overflow.] To cease to flow; to stagnate. Obs. — v. t. To overflow. Obs. — re·stag·na′tion, n. Obs.
re·stain′, v. t. & i., re·stake′, v. t., re·stamp′, v. t. & i., re′stand·ard·i·za′tion, n., re·stand′ardize, v. t., re·start′, n. & v. See RE-, 2.
res′tau·ra′tive, adj. & n. [OF. restauratif.] Restorative. Obs. res′tau·ra′tor, n. [LL.] Restorer. Obs.
re·steal′, v. t. See RE-, 1. re·steel′, v. t., re·steep′, v. t., re·stem′, v. t., re·step′, v. t. See RE-, 2.
res′tes, n., pl. of RESTIS.
Res′ti·a′ce·ae (rĕs′tĭ·ā′sē·ē), n. pl. [NL. See RESTIO.] Syn. of RESTIONACEAE. — res′ti·a′ceous (-shŭs), adj. restie. + RESTY. res′tiff (rĕs′tĭf), adj. = RESTIVE, 3. — res′tiff·ness. Both Now Rare.
re·stiff′en, v. t. See RE-, 2. — re·stiff′en·er, n.
re·sti′fle, v. t. See RE-, 2. re·stig′ma·tize, v. t. See RE-, 2. rest′i·ly, adv. of RESTY. Obs. re·stim′u·late, v. t. See RE-, 2. — re′stim·u·la′tion, n. rest′i·ness (rĕs′tĭ·nĕs; 119), n. Restiveness; also, inertia; sluggishness. Obs.
rest′ing·ly, adv. of resting pres. part. of REST.

becoming invested with a thickened cell wall to withstand cold, heat, dryness, etc. Resting spores are common among the Thallophyta. See CHLAMYDOSPORE.

Res'ti·o (rĕs'tĭ-ō), n. [NL., fr. L. restis cord.] Bot. A large genus of leafless, South African and Australian herbs, typifying the family Restionaceae, distinguished by one-celled anthers, and many-flowered spikelets with imbricated glumes. They are called cordleaf and rope grass.

Res'ti·o·na'ce·ae (rĕs'tĭ-ō-nā'sē-ē), n. pl. [NL. See RESTIO.] Bot. A family of rushlike monocotyledonous herbs (order Xyridales), either without leaves or with tiny sheathing ones, and glumaceous panicled flowers resembling those of Juncaceae. — res'ti·o·na'ceous (-shŭs), adj.

res'tis (rĕs'tĭs), n.; pl. RESTES (-tēz). [NL., fr. L. restis a rope.] Anat. A restiform body.

res'ti·tute (rĕs'tĭ-tūt), v. t. [L. restitutus, past part. of restituere.] Now Rare. a To restore to a former state or position; to rehabilitate. b To restore; to give back; to refund.

‖res'ti·tu'ti·o in in'te·grum (rĕs'tĭ-tū'shĭ-ō ĭn ĭn'tē-grŭm). [L.] Rom. & Civil Law. Restoration to a whole or uninjured (i.e., previous) condition.

res'ti·tu'tion (rĕs'tĭ-tū'shŭn), n. [OF., fr. L. restitutio, fr. restituere to restore, fr. re- re- + statuere to put, place. See STATUTE.] 1. Act of restoring; restoration; specif.: a Restoration of anything to its rightful owner; act of making good, or of giving an equivalent for, loss, damage, etc.

A restitution of ancient rights unto the crown. Spenser.

b Restoration of persons to a former position or status; also, state of being so restored; reinstatement. c Restoration of a thing or institution to its original state or form. 2. Law. a Eng. Law. Restoration of conjugal rights; — an action to compel resumption of cohabitation between a husband and wife who have separated, now used only as preliminary to divorce in certain cases. See CONJUGAL RIGHTS. b Rom. Law. Restoration of citizenship. 3. Med. The movement of rotation which usually occurs in childbirth after the head has been delivered, and which causes it to point towards the side to which it was directed at the beginning of labor. 4. Physics. Return to, or recovering of, a former state; as, the restitution of an elastic body. 5. Theol. The final restoration of all things and persons to harmony with God's will.

Syn. — Return, recompense, reparation, compensation.

res'ti·tu'tion·ism (-Iz'm), n. Theol. Restorationism.

res'ti·tu'tion·ist (rĕs'tĭ-tū'shŭn-ĭst), n. 1. Theol. One who holds some form of the doctrine of the "restitution of all things" (Acts iii. 21); specif. [sometimes cap.], a restorationist. See ADVENTIST, Table. 2. A favorer of restitution (of property). Eng.

res'ti·tu'tive (rĕs'tĭ-tū'tĭv), adj. Of the nature of, or tending to, restitution.

res'ti·tu'tor (-tĕr), n. [L.] One who makes restitution. R.

re·stit'u·to'ry (rē-stĭt'ū-tō'rĭ; 181), adj. [LL. restitutorius.] Of or pertaining to, or aiming at, restitution.

restitutory right. See RIGHT, n., 2 b.

res'tive (rĕs'tĭv), adj. [OF. restif (F. rétif), fr. L. restare to stay back, withstand, resist. See REST remainder; cf. RUSTY surly.] 1. Disposed to rest; inactive; sluggish. Now Rare.

2. Persistent; stubborn; inflexible, as in an opinion. Now Rare.

3. Stubbornly resisting control or guidance; obstinate in refusal; of a horse, balky; hence, refractory; unmanageable.

If they [a summoned Parliament] prove restive? Browning.

4. Uneasy; fidgeting about; as, the crowd grew restive.

Syn. — RESTIVE, RESTLESS have etymologically no connection. RESTIVE (cf. OBSTINATE) now implies obstinacy, or impatience under restraint or coercion; RESTLESS implies continual agitation, eagerness to change, or discontent with existing conditions; as, "Your colonies become suspicious, restive, and untractable" (Burke); "He was as restless as a hyena" (De Quincey).

Ant. — Docile, tractable, submissive; quiet, patient.

— res'tive·ly, adv. — res'tive·ness, n.

rest'less, adj. [AS. restlēas.] 1. Deprived of rest or sleep; finding no rest; uneasy.

I restless lie frae e'en to morn. Burns.

2. Not affording rest; unrestful; as, a restless night.

Turning on a restless bed. Wordsworth.

3. Never resting; unquiet; continually moving or operating; never pausing; unceasing; as, the restless sea. Poetic.

4. Characterized by or manifesting unrest, esp. of mind; lacking in repose; averse to inaction; hence, changeful, unsettled, discontented, etc.

Syn. — Sleepless, reposeless; inquiet; unsettled, roving, wandering. See RESTIVE.

Ant. — Restful, reposeful, peaceful; motionless, still; calm, placid, settled.

— rest'less·ly, adv. — rest'less·ness, n.

restless cavy. The wild guinea pig (Cavia porcellus) of South America, from which the domestic varieties are supposed to be derived.

restless flycatcher or thrush. A small Australian flycatcher (Seisura inquieta) having peculiar notes; — called also grinder.

re·stock' (rē-stŏk'), v. t. & i. To stock again; to provide new stock for, as cutover land, a stream depleted of fish, etc.

re·stor'al (rē-stōr'ăl; 181), n. Restoration.

res'to·ra'tion (rĕs'tō-rā'shŭn), n. [ME. restauracion. See RESTAURATION.] 1. Act of restoring, or state or fact of being restored; specif.: a Bringing back to, or putting back into, a former position or condition; reinstatement; renewal; re-establishment; as, the restoration of peace.

Behold the different climes agree, Rejoicing in thy restoration. Dryden.

b Putting back into consciousness or health; recovery of health, strength, etc.; as, restoration from sickness. c The ultimate bringing of the whole universe, including all men, into harmony with the will of God; — called also final restoration. d Act of giving back something to one deprived of it; restitution. e Putting back into an unimpaired or much improved condition; as, the restoration of a painting. 2. That which is restored; specif., a representation of the original form, as of a fossil animal or of a building. 3. Arch. The process of putting a building back into nearly or quite the original form; also, the making of drawings or models, or both, designed to show the original form of a building, as a ruin.

Syn. — Recovery; repair, renovation; redintegration, return; revival; reparation.

Ant. — Decay, decadence, degeneration; impairment; mutilation, defacement, deprivation.

— the Restoration. a Eng. Hist. The return of King Charles II in 1660, and the re-establishment of monarchy; by extension, the period of his reign (1660–85); loosely, the period from 1660 to the accession of Queen Anne (1702). b Fr. Hist. The return of the Bourbons to power under Louis XVIII in 1814 and 1815 and the period following. It was divided by the Hundred Days into the First Restoration (April, 1814–March, 1815) and the Second Restoration (July, 1815–30). c Jap. Hist. The abolition of the shogunate (1868) and the accession of Mutsuhito as emperor.

res'to·ra'tion·er (rĕs'tō-rā'shŭn-ĕr), n. A restorationist.

res'to·ra'tion·ism (-Iz'm), n. The belief or doctrines of the restorationists. Cf. APOCATASTASIS b.

res'to·ra'tion·ist, n. 1. One who believes in a temporary future punishment and a final restoration of all to the favor and presence of God.

2. One who makes restorations of buildings.

re·stor'a·tive (rē-stōr'ă-tĭv; 181), adj. [F. restauratif.] Of or pertaining to restoration; having power to restore. — re·stor'a·tive·ly, adv. — re·stor'a·tive·ness, n.

re·stor'a·tive, n. Something, as a food or medicine, which serves to restore, esp. a person to consciousness or rapidly to normal vigor.

res'to·ra'tor (rĕs'tō-rā'tĕr), n. A restaurateur.

re·stor'a·to'ry (rē-stōr'ă-tō'rĭ; 181), adj. Restorative. R.

re·store' (rē-stōr'; 181), v.; RE·STORED' (-stōrd'); RE·STOR'ING (-stōr'ĭng). [ME. restoren, fr. OF. restorer (F. restaurer), fr. L. restaurare, fr. re- re- + staurare (in comp.) to place, fix; akin to Gr. stauros an upright pale or stake. See STEER to direct; cf. RESTAURANT, STORE.] Transitive: 1. To give back (something which has been lost, or taken away); to make restitution of; to return.

Now therefore restore the man his wife. Gen. xx. 7.

2. To renew; to re-establish; to put back into existence, use, or the like; as, to restore harmony among foes.

The father banished virtue shall restore. Dryden.

3. To bring back (to); as, to restore a person to health; to give reinstatement (to); to put (a person) again in possession (of an office or the like); to put back (into); to convey (to); as, to restore a king to the throne.

4. To bring back to, or put back into, the former or original state; to repair; to renew; specif.: a To rebuild; reconstruct. b To put back into, or replace in, a former state of favor or grace; to deliver from the consequences of sin; to reinstate in a former position, office, or the like; as, to restore a king. c To bring back to a healthy state; to cause to recover.

And his hand was restored whole as the other. Mark iii. 5.

d Now Rare. To make calm or tranquil in mind. e To bring back from a state of injury or decay, or from a changed condition, as by repairing or retouching; to renovate; as, to restore a painting. f To form a picture or model of the original form of, as of something lost or mutilated; to represent or reproduce in the original form; as, to restore a ruined building or a fossil animal. g To place in a text as conjecturally the original reading.

5. To make good the loss or damage due to; repair. Rare.

6. To put (itself) back into the original position or form, as an elastic body.

7. Obs. a To make amends or compensation for. b To recompense. c To store.

8. Arch. To make a restoration of; to repair and alter (a building) with the aim of putting it back into the original form; as, to restore a cathedral.

9. Metal. To bring back to normal condition, said of metal, esp. steel, damaged by overheating.

10. Scots Law. To give or make restitution to.

——, Intransitive: 1. To recover; to revive. Obs.

2. To restore a person or thing (in various senses).

Syn. — Replace; refund, repay; reinstate; revive, recover, heal, cure.

Ant. — Deprive, dispossess; overthrow, subvert; injure, destroy, demolish.

restore in blood. Law. To readmit (one) to rights, as of a title or inheritance, forfeited by attainder either of the person himself or of his ancestors. See CORRUPTION OF BLOOD.

re·store', n. [OF. restor.] Restoration. Obs.

re–store' (rē-stōr'), v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·stor'er (rē-stōr'ĕr; 181), n. One who or that which restores or makes restorations.

re·strain' (rē-strān'), v.; -STRAINED' (-strānd'); -STRAIN'ING. [ME. restreinen, fr. OF. restraindre, restreindre, fr. L. restringere, restrictum, fr. re- re- + stringere to draw, bind, or press together. See STRAIN, v.; cf. RESTRICT.] Transitive: 1. To draw back again; to hold back; to check; to keep in check; to hold back from acting, proceeding, or advancing, either by physical or moral force, or by any interposing obstacle; to repress or suppress; to curb.

Restrain in me the cursed thoughts that nature Gives way to in repose! Shak.

2. To limit, confine, restrict, as power, trade, or a title.

3. To place under restraint or arrest; to deprive of liberty.

4. To deprive by restraint; to abridge; — with of.

They two . . . restrained of their liberty. Clarendon.

5. Obs. a To withhold. b To draw back tightly, as a rein. c To forbear; forbid. d To confine; to bind. e To constrain.

——, Intransitive: 1. To refrain. Now Rare.

2. To restrain a person or thing (in various senses).

Syn. — Inhibit, arrest, bridle, control. — RESTRAIN, RESTRICT. RESTRAIN emphasizes the general idea of holding back or curbing; RESTRICT implies limitation or confinement within set bounds; as, to restrain one's eagerness, one's appetite; to restrict one's investigations, one's diet.

Ant. — Express; urge, impel, move; loose, free, liberate; expand, extend, enlarge, increase.

re·strain', n. Restraint. Obs.

re·strain' (rē-strān'), v. i. See RE-, 2.

re·strained' (rē-strānd'), past tense & past part. of RESTRAIN. Hence; adj. Marked by or manifesting restraint, esp. artistic restraint; devoid of excess or extravagance; disciplined. — re·strain'ed·ly (-strān'ĕd-lĭ; -ĭd-lĭ; -strānd'lĭ; 119), adv. — re·strain'ed·ness, n.

The frame of brown wood carved, with the light, restrained touch of a good period. Dorothy Canfield Fisher.

restrained beam. Engin. A beam built in at the supports; an encastré beam.

re·strain'er (rē-strān'ĕr), n. One who or that which restrains. Specif.: Photog. A substance, as potassium bromide, used to restrain the action of a developer or other reagent.

re·strain'ing (-ĭng), pres. part. & verbal n. of RESTRAIN. — re·strain'ing·ly, adv.

restraining order. Law. A preliminary order sometimes issued to keep a situation unchanged pending decision upon an application for an injunction.

re·straint' (rē-strānt'), n. [OF. restrainte, fr. restraindre. See RESTRAIN.] 1. Act, process, or means of restraining, or of holding back or hindering from motion or action, in any manner; restraining force or influence; a case of restraining or being restrained; as, unable to brook restraint; the restraints of civilization.

2. State of being restrained; esp., confinement; deprivation or abridgment of liberty; as, held in restraint.

3. Obs. a A prohibition. b A restricting; a limitation.

4. Control over one's thoughts, feelings, etc., or their expression; reserve; reticence; constraint; also, artistic economy; avoidance of excess, exuberance, or extravagance; as, an interview marked by restraint on both sides; Keats finally achieved restraint.

Syn. — Repression, check, stop, curb. See FORCE.

Ant. — Incitement, liberty, license. See FREEDOM.

restraint of marriage. A condition attached to a gift or bequest, or in a contract, nullifying the grant if the donee or grantee marries; — if such a condition is general and unlimited it is void.

restraint of princes. An embargo. Obs.

restraint of trade. Any attempt or intent to eliminate or stifle competition, to effect a monopoly, to maintain prices artificially, or otherwise to hamper or obstruct the course of trade and commerce as it would be if left to the control of natural and economic forces. Such restraint of trade by contract or combination is against the policy of the law and is forbidden both by Federal and by State legislation. It is also against public policy to contract not to exercise one's talents or to employ one's industry or capital generally or in any specified calling, trade, or undertaking, unless the agreement is reasonably limited as to time and area.

re·stress' (rē-strĕs'), v. t. Phonet. To stress (an unstressed, or weak, monosyllable) so as to make a new stressed, or strong, form. For example, by restressing, frŭm, the weak form of from, becomes frŭm, sometimes heard instead of frŏm, the original strong form. Likewise were (wŭr) is a restressed form of unstressed wĕr, the original stressed form being wûr. See Pron. §§ 71, 72.

re·strict' (rē-strĭkt'), v.; -STRICT'ED; -STRICT'ING. [L. restrictus, past part. of restringere. See RESTRAIN.] Transitive: 1. To restrain within bounds; to limit; to confine; as, to restrict words to a particular meaning; to restrict a patient to a certain diet.

2. Real Estate. To limit the free use of land. Hence, restricted district, a district in which the use of land is limited, as by zoning restrictions. See ZONE, v. t.

——, Intransitive: To place a person or thing under restriction; to impose restrictions.

Syn. — Bound, repress, curb, coerce. See RESTRAIN.

re·strict', adj. [L. restrictus, past part.] Strict; restricted. Obs.

re·stric'tion (rē-strĭk'shŭn), n. [F., fr. LL. restrictio.] 1. That which restricts; a limitation; a qualification; a regulation which restricts or restrains; as, to make restrictions; new restrictions for hunters.

2. Act of restricting, or state of being restricted; confinement within bounds; as, the restriction of children.

3. A reservation; a tacit or expressed qualification; as, a mental restriction.

4. A tightening; constriction. Rare.

5. Real Estate. A limitation on the free use of land.

re·stric'tion·ar'y (rē-strĭk'shŭn-ĕr'Y or, esp. Brit., -ĕr·ĭ), adj. Restrictive. Rare.

re·stric'tion·ist, n. An advocate of restriction, as of slavery, trade, or the sale of liquor; specif., in Canada, an advocate of a protective tariff.

re·stric'tive (rē-strĭk'tĭv), adj. [F. restrictif.] 1. Astringent; binding; styptic. Obs.

2. Serving or tending to restrict; conveying restrictions; as, a restrictive particle or tariff; restrictive regulations.

3. Gram. Expressing a limitation of the reference of the term which it qualifies; as, a restrictive adjective (this rose; some roses), relative, phrase, or clause.

4. Negotiable Instruments. Of an endorsement, prohibiting further negotiation, or giving authority to deal with the instrument as directed, but not to transfer ownership.

— re·stric'tive·ly, adv. — re·stric'tive·ness, n.

re·stric'tive (rē-strĭk'tĭv), n. 1. Med. An astringent or styptic. Obs.

2. A restrictive term or expression.

restrictive clause. Gram. An adjective clause so closely attached to its noun as to be essential to the definiteness of the noun's meaning (the boy who succeeded had worked hard); — called also a determinative or designative clause. See NONRESTRICTIVE CLAUSE.

restrictive covenant. Real Estate. A covenant generally running with the land, limiting the free use of land, as for residential purposes only.

restrictive interpretation. See DOCTRINAL INTERPRETATION, Citation.

re·strike' (rē-strĭk'), v. t. & i. To strike again or anew.

re·strike' (rē-strĭk'; rē'strĭk'), n. A second striking of a coin; also, a coin or medal struck from the original die, which had been unused for an interval, or of which the regular issues had ceased.

re·stringe' (rē-strĭnj'), v. t. [L. restringere. See RESTRAIN.] 1. To bind; astringe. Obs.

2. To confine; restrict. Now Rare.

re·strin'gen·cy (-strĭn'jĕn·sĭ), n. Quality or state of being restringent; astringency. Obs.

re·strin'gent (-jĕnt), adj. [L. restringens, pres. part.] Binding; astringent; styptic. Now Rare. — n. Obs. a A restrictive word. b Med. An astringent or styptic.

rest room. In a public or semipublic building or a business establishment, a room or suite of rooms provided with facilities for clients', visitors', or employees' rest or comfort.

rest treatment. = REST CURE.

rest'y (rĕs'tĭ), adj. [Var. of RESTIVE.] Sluggish; quiet; also, restive. Obs. exc. Dial.

rest'y, adj. [See REASTY.] Reasty; rancid. Obs.

---

re·stin'guish (rē-stĭng'gwĭsh), v. t. [L. restinguere, restinctum, fr. re- re- + stinguere to quench.] To quench or extinguish. Obs.

re·stip'u·late (rē-stĭp'ū-lāt), v. t. & i. — re'stip·u·la'tion, n. — re·stip'u·la·to'ry (-lă-tō'rĭ), adj., re·stir', v. t. & i., re·stitch', v. t. See RE-, 2.

res'ti·tue, v. t. & i. [F. restituer, L. restituere.] To restore; to make restitution. Obs.

res'tiv. Restive. Ref. Sp.

re·stop'per, v. t. See RE-, 2.

res·tor'. Var. of RESTAUR.

re·stor'a·ble (rē-stōr'ă-b'l; 181), adj. See -ABLE. — re·stor'a·ble·ness, n.

re·stor'ance, n. [OF.] Restoration. Obs.

re·store'ment, n. [OF.] Restoration. Obs. [2.]

re·stor'ing torque. See TORQUE, re·stor'i·tie, re·stor'i·ty, n. [Cf. RESTORATIVE.] A restorative. Obs.

restoring moment. See RIGHTING MOMENT.

re·stow', v. t. (hence re·stow'al, n.). See RE-, 2.

rest'proof' (66). See -PROOF.

re·straight'en, v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·straint'a·ble, adj. See -ABLE. — re·straint'a·bil'i·ty, n.

re·strained'. Restrained. Ref. Sp.

re·strain'ment, n. A restraining; restraint. Obs.

re·straint'ful, adj. See -FUL.

re·strap', v. t. See RE-, 2.

re'strat·i·fi·ca'tion, n. See RE-, 1.

re·stream', v. i., re·strength'en (rē-strĕng'thĕn), v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·stretch', v. t. See RE-, 1.

re·strick' (rē-strĭk'). Scot. var. of RESTRICT.

re·strict'ed, past tense & past part. of RESTRICT. — re·strict'ed·ly, adv. — re·strict'ed·ness, n.

restricted theory of relativity. See RELATIVITY, n., 3.

re·string', v. t., re·strip', v. t., re·strive', v. i., re·stroke', v. i., re·stud'y, v. t., re·stuff', v. t. See RE-, 2.

rest'ward, rest'wards, adv. See [-WARD.]

N O P Q R

re·style' (rē·stīl'), v. t. To refashion; to make in a new style; to design or set a new style for.

re'su·da'tion (rĕ'sū·dā'shŭn), n. [L. resudare to sweat again.] The exuding of sweat; perspiration. Obs.

re·sue' (rē·sū'), v. t. Mining. To mine (a very narrow vein) by resuing.

re·su'ing (-sū'ĭng), n. Mining. Mining a very narrow vein by first stoping the wall rock on one side of it and subsequently removing the ore.

re·sult' (rē·zŭlt'), v. i.; -SULT'ED; -SULT'ING. [ML. resultare, resultatum, to result, fr. L. resultare to spring or leap back, fr. re- re- + saltare to leap, v. intens. fr. salire. See RESILE.] 1. To proceed, spring, or arise, as a consequence, effect, or conclusion; to come out, or have an issue; to terminate; to end; — followed by from or in; as, this measure will result in good.
2. To leap or spring back; to rebound; recoil. Obs.
3. Law. a Now Rare. To revert; — with to; as, the estate will result to him. b Obs. To devolve, as a duty.
Syn. — Proceed, spring, rise, ensue; follow.

re·sult' (rē·zŭlt'), n. 1. A flying or springing back; recoil. Now Rare. Bacon.
2. A decision or resolution of a deliberative or legislative body. Obs.
3. That which results, as a consequence, effect, issue, or conclusion; as, to suffer from the results of the Great War; the causes and results of sleeping sickness; sometimes, beneficial or tangible effect; fruit; as, an inquiry without result; to get results from a new treatment.
4. Something obtained, achieved, brought about, etc., by calculation, investigation, or the like; an answer to a problem, knowledge gained by scientific inquiry, etc.; as, he added the long column of figures and offered the result; his thesis was the result of his study.
Syn. — Consequence, conclusion, end, issue, event. See EFFECT.
Ant. — Cause, source, origin, beginning.

re·sult'ance (rē·zŭl'tăns; 91), n. Also re·sult'an·cy (-tăn·sĭ). Obs. a Resolution; decision. b Combined result; aggregate; gist. c Emanation; also, reflection. d The fact or character of being resultant. e Result; outcome.

re·sult'ant (-tănt; 91), adj. [L. resultans, pres. part. See RESULT.] Resulting or issuing; that is derived from or consequent upon something else; having the character of a result or consequence; as, a resultant force or velocity; a resultant tone (= COMBINATION TONE).

re·sult'ant, n. That which results; resulting quality, character, condition, etc.; outcome. Specif.: a In evolution theory, an antecedently predictable transformation or result; an additive or mechanical result. b Chem. A substance formed in a chemical reaction; a product; — opposed to reactant. c Math. An eliminant. d Mech. A resultant force, etc. (see COMPOSITION OF FORCES). e Psychol. A mental compound which is not the mere sum of its elements but has properties not found in the elements.

re·sult'a·tive (rē·zŭl'tā·tĭv), adj. [See -ATIVE.] Resultant; specif., Gram., expressive of result; as, Ger. ergreifen is a resultative verb.

result clause. A subordinate clause conveying the consequence of the action or condition expressed by the modified clause; also, an infinitive phrase conveying such consequence (Ariovistus tantos sibi spiritus sumpserat ut ferendus non videretur, Ariovistus had put on such high airs that he seemed intolerable, or as to seem intolerable).

re·sult'ing, pres. part. & verbal n. of RESULT. — re·sult'ing·ly, adv.

resulting trust. Law. A trust raised by implication of law from the acts of the parties as being intended by them, as the trust raised for the benefit of a party who has granted property upon a trust that fails, or that raised for the benefit of a party who advances the purchase money of an estate, etc.; sometimes, any trust raised by implication or construction of law, although commonly one arising by operation of law independent of any such intention is called a constructive trust. See TRUST.

resulting use. Law. A use which, being limited by the deed, expires or cannot vest, and results or returns to him who raised it, after such expiration.

re·sul'tive (rē·zŭl'tĭv), adj. Resultant. Rare.

re·sume' (rē·zūm'; 242), v.; -SUMED' (-zūmd'); -SUM'ING (-zūm'ĭng). [F. résumer, fr. L. resumere, resumptum, fr. re- re- + sumere to take. See ASSUME; cf. SUMPTUOUS.] Transitive: 1. To assume or take again; to put on anew; to reoccupy.

Reason resumed her place, and Passion fled. Dryden.

2. To enter upon or begin again; to recommence, as something interrupted; as, to resume a game, a speech.
3. To take back to oneself.

Perhaps God will resume the blessing. Scott.

4. To take or pick up again; to go back to using.
5. To repeat, as a sentence; hence, to reiterate; to summarize; epitomize.
——, Intransitive: 1. To take possession again.
2. To recommence, as a discourse, work, or business.

ré'su·mé' (rā'zū·mā'; F. rā'zü'mā'), n. [F., past part. See RESUME.] A summing up; a condensed statement; an abridgment or summary.

ré'su·mé' (rā'zū·mā'; Brit. rĕz'ū·mā; rā'zū-), v. t.; RÉ'SU·MÉD' (-mād'); RÉ'SU·MÉ'ING (-mā'ĭng). To summarize.

re·sum'er (rē·zūm'ĕr), n. One who resumes.

re·sum'mon (rē·sŭm'ŭn), v. t. [Cf. OF. resemondre.] To summon again or anew.

re·sum'mons (-ŭnz), n. Law. A summons made on a person already once summoned.

re·sump'tion (rē·zŭmp'shŭn), n. [F. résumption, fr. LL. resumptio restoration, recovery, fr. resumere. See RESUME.] 1. Act or fact of resuming; as, the resumption of a grant, of a trial, of an argument, of specie payments, etc.
2. Recapitulation; summary; epitome. Rare.
3. Eng. Law. The taking again into the king's hands of such lands or tenements as he had granted to any man, theoretically on the ground of false suggestions or other error.
4. Welsh Pros. A device by which each verse of a poem begins with the same letter.

Resumption Act. U. S. Hist. An act of Congress, passed Jan. 14, 1875, providing for resumption in 1879 of specie payments, which were suspended Jan. 1, 1862.

re·sump'tive (rē·zŭmp'tĭv), adj. [Cf. LL. resumptivus restorative.] a Obs. Med. Restorative. b Summarizing; of the nature of a résumé. c Tending toward or indicating resumption. — n. Med. A restorative. Obs. — re·sump'tive·ly, adv.

‖res u'ni·ver'si·ta'tis (rēz ū'nĭ·vûr'sĭ·tā'tĭs). [L.] Rom. & Civil Law. Things belonging to a society, corporation, or university.

re·su'pi·nate (rē·sū'pĭ·nāt), adj. [L. resupinatus, past part. of resupinare to bend back. See RESUPINE.] Bot. a Inverted in position; appearing by a twist of the axis to be upside down or reversed, as the flowers of many orchids. b In fungi, having the hymenium on the upper surface of the pileus.

re·su'pi·nat'ed (-nāt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj. Resupinate.

re·su'pi·na'tion (-nā'shŭn), n. 1. Literally, a bending back; — applied to the apparent effect of height on the proportions of a figure to an observer near its base. Obs.
2. Act or state of lying on the back. Obs.
3. Bot. A turning or twisting to an inverted or apparently upside-down position; a resupinate condition.

re'su·pine' (rē'sū·pīn'), adj. [L. resupinus, fr. re- re- + supinus bent backward, supine.] 1. Apathetic. Rare.
2. Lying on the back; supine.

He spake, and, downward swayed, fell resupine. Cowper.

re·sur'face (rē·sûr'fĭs), v. t. To provide with a new or fresh surface; specif., to renew the surface pavement of; as, to resurface a street.

‖re·sur'gam (rē·sûr'găm). [L.] I shall rise again.

re·surge' (rē·sûrj'), v. i.; -SURGED' (-sûrjd'); -SURG'ING (-sûr'jĭng). [L. resurgere. See RESURRECTION.] To rise again; to be resurrected.

re·surge' (rē·sûrj'), v. i. & n. See RE-, 2.

re·sur'gence (rē·sûr'jĕns), n. A rising again into life or activity; revivification; renascence.

Under Pythagoras we have . . . a resurgence, as it were, of matriarchal conditions. Jane Harrison.

re·sur'gen·cy (rē·sûr'jĕn·sĭ), n. Resurgence. Rare.

re·sur'gent (-jĕnt), adj. [L. resurgens, -entis, pres. part. of resurgere. See RESURRECTION.] That rises again from death, torpor, decadence, etc.

Strong resurgent love towards her brother. G. Eliot.

re·sur'gent (rē·sûr'jĕnt), n. One who is resurgent.

resurgent water. Geol. Water which having once been at the surface of the earth has supposedly been incorporated in molten magma and again reached the surface by expulsion.

res'ur·rect' (rĕz'ū·rĕkt'), v. [From RESURRECTION.] Transitive: 1. To raise from the dead; to reanimate; to restore to life; to bring to view again (that which was forgotten or lost).
2. To disinter or exhume as a resurrectionist.
——, Intransitive: To be resurrected, or risen again from the dead. Rare.

res'ur·rect' (rĕz'ū·rĕkt'), n. [L. resurrectus.] One who has risen from the dead. Rare.

res'ur·rec'tion (rĕz'ū·rĕk'shŭn), n. [OF., fr. LL. resurrectio, fr. resurgere, resurrectum, to rise again, fr. re- re- + surgere to rise. See SOURCE.] 1. Act of resurrecting; rising again from the dead; resumption of life by the dead, whether by the reanimation and transformation of the physical body, or by the undiminished survival of individual personality with whatever instrument of expression this may necessarily involve; as, the resurrection of the body.
2. With the. Theol. a The rising again of all the human dead before the final judgment, as expected on the basis of certain New Testament expressions.

I have hope . . . that there shall be a resurrection of the dead, both of the just and the unjust. Acts. xxiv. 15.

b State of those so risen from the dead.

In the resurrection they neither marry nor are given in marriage. Matt. xxii. 30.

3. The cause or exemplar of a rising from the dead.

I am the resurrection, and the life. John xi. 25.

4. A representation of Christ's resurrection in art, or formerly, in drama.
5. A rising again; resumption of vigor; restoration; revival.

The resurrection of alliterative verse. Saintsbury.

6. A thing that has been resurrected or disinterred; specif., an exhumed corpse; — chiefly attrib.; as: resurrection man, a resurrectionist.
7. Christian Science. Spiritualization of thought; a new and higher idea of immortality, or spiritual existence; material belief yielding to spiritual understanding.

Mary Baker Eddy.

— the Resurrection. a The rising of Christ from the dead. b Easter, as commemorating this event.

res'ur·rec'tion (rĕz'ū·rĕk'shŭn), v. t. To resurrect.

res'ur·rec'tion·al (-ăl; -l), adj. Of or pert. to resurrection.

res'ur·rec'tion·ar'y (-ĕr'ĭ or, esp. Brit., -ĕr·ĭ), adj. Of the nature of resurrection; also, of or pert. to resurrectionism.

resurrection body. Man's body as restored at the general resurrection.

resurrection bolly. Resurrection pie. Slang.

resurrection fern. The gray polypody.

res'ur·rec'tion·ism (rĕz'ū·rĕk'shŭn·ĭz'm), n. The practice of resurrectionists, or body snatchers.

res'ur·rec'tion·ist, n. 1. One who steals bodies from graves to sell to anatomists; a body snatcher.
2. One who resurrects, restores to view, revives, etc.
3. One who believes in the resurrection of the body.

res'ur·rec'tion·ize (-shŭn·īz), v. t. To resurrect.

resurrection man; pl. RESURRECTION MEN. = RESURRECTIONIST, 1.

resurrection pie. A meat pie made of leftovers. Brit. Slang.

resurrection plant. a Any of several club mosses of the genus Selaginella (as S. convoluta and S. lepidophylla), which, when dry, close up so as to resemble a bird's nest, but expand again when moistened. b The rose of Jericho Anastatica hierochuntica. c The fig marigold Mesembryanthemum tripolium.

resurrection woman. A female resurrectionist.

res'ur·rec'tive (rĕz'ū·rĕk'tĭv), adj. Pertaining to, or causing, resurrection.

res'ur·rec'tor (-tĕr), n. One who resurrects.

re'sur·vey' (rē'sĕr·vā'), v. t. To survey again or anew.

re·sur'vey (rē·sûr'vā), n. A second or new survey.

re·sus'ci·ta·ble (rē·sŭs'ĭ·tə·b'l), adj. Capable of resuscitation.

re·sus'ci·tant (-tănt), adj. & n. [L. resuscitans, pres. part.] One who or that which resuscitates. Rare.

re·sus'ci·tate (rē·sŭs'ĭ·tāt), v. t.; -TAT'ED (-tāt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -TAT'ING (-tāt'ĭng). [L. resuscitatus, past part. of resuscitare. See RE-; SUSCITATE.] To revivify; revive; restore, esp. from apparent death or from unconsciousness; as, to resuscitate a drowned person; to resuscitate withered plants. — v. i. To come to life again; to revive.

re·sus'ci·tate (-tāt), adj. [L. resuscitatus, past part.] Restored to life; revived. Obs.

re·sus'ci·ta'tion (rē·sŭs'ĭ·tā'shŭn), n. [LL. resuscitatio.] Act of resuscitating, or state of being resuscitated; restoration; revival; renewal.

The subject of resuscitation by his sorceries. Scott.

re·sus'ci·ta'tive (rē·sŭs'ĭ·tā'tĭv), adj. Tending to resuscitate; reviving; revivifying.

resuscitative faculty. The faculty of the mind that reproduces previous states. Sir Wm. Hamilton.

re·sus'ci·ta'tor (-tā'tĕr), n. [LL.] One who or that which resuscitates.

re'sym·bol·i·za'tion (rē'sĭm·bŏl·ĭ·zā'shŭn; -ĭ·zā'-), n. [re- + symbolization.] Symbolization again or anew; specif., Psychol., a mental transformation either for better or for worse consisting in the finding of new meanings and new forms of expression for one's thoughts and desires.

re·syn'the·sis (rē·sĭn'thē·sĭs), n. The reuniting, usually in a new combination, of parts or elements which have been separated esp. by analysis.

ret (rĕt), v. t.; RET'TED; RET'TING. [ME. reten to soak; akin to D. reten, and E. ROT.] 1. To soak or expose to moisture, as flax, hemp, or timber.
2. To rot or injure by exposure.

ret, v. t. [ME. retten, fr. OF. reter to accuse, impute, fr. L. reputare. See REPUTE, v.] To impute; ascribe; reckon. Obs.

re·ta'ble (rĕ·tā'b'l), n. [F., for rere-table. See RERE-; TABLE.] Eccl. A raised shelf or ledge behind an altar, on which are placed the altar cross, the altar lights, vases of flowers, etc.; hence, a more or less elaborate framework in the same relation to the altar, and enclosing a panel or panels decorated with painting, sculpture, mosaic, or the like. Cf. PREDELLA.

re·ta'ble (rē·tā'b'l), v. t. See RE-, 2.

re'tail (rē'tāl; 66: formerly, and still in Scot., often re·tail', the orig. accentuation; cf. DETAIL, n.), n. [AF., fr. OF. retail a cutting, fr. retaillier to cut off, diminish, divide into pieces (F. retailler to cut again), fr. re re- + tailler to cut; cf. F. retaille piece cut off, shred. See TAILOR; cf. RETAIL, v., DETAIL.] 1. The sale of commodities in small quantities or parcels; — opposed to wholesale.
2. Detail (of a matter). Obs.
3. A retail merchant. Rare.

re'tail (rē'tāl), adj. Of, pert. to, engaged in, or connected with, retailing commodities; as, retail trade, grocer, or price re'tail (rē'tāl or, esp. in sense 2, and in Brit. use, rē·tāl'; 277), v.; -TAILED (-tāld); -TAIL'ING. [Cf. F. retailler to cut again. See RETAIL, n.] Transitive: 1. To sell in small quantities, as by the single yard, pound, gallon, etc.; to sell directly to the consumer; as, to retail cloth or groceries.

2. To relate in detail or to one person after another; to tell again or again and again; to repeat; as, to retail the slander all over town.
——, Intransitive: To sell at retail; as, the book retails for $10.

re'tail·er (rē'tāl·ĕr; rē·tāl'ĕr; 277), n. One who retails anything; as, a retailer of merchandise; a retailer of gossip.

re·tail'ment (rē·tāl'mĕnt), n. Act of retailing.

retail store. A store in which goods or commodities are sold at retail. Cf. 1st RETAIL, 1.

re·tain' (rē·tān'), v.; -TAINED' (-tānd'); -TAIN'ING. [ME. reteynen, retaynen, fr. OF. retenir, fr. (assumed) VL. retenere for L. retinere, fr. re- re- + tenere to hold, keep. See TENABLE, REIN of a bridle, RETENTION, RETINUE.] Transitive: 1. Obs. a To restrain; prevent. b To entertain; to act as host to.
2. To keep as in a fixed place or condition; to hold secure, intact, or the like; to prevent escape, loss, leakage, detachment, etc., of; as, this vessel will not retain liquids; lead retains heat.
3. To hold or continue to hold in possession or use; to continue to have, use, recognize, accept, etc.; to maintain in one's keeping; as, to retain part of the money, one's position, one's faculties.
4. To keep in pay or in one's service. Specif.: a To employ (a lawyer) by paying a retainer. b Obs. To hire.
5. To keep in mind or memory; to remember; as, to retain the air but not the words of a song.
——, Intransitive: 1. Obs. a To refrain; to forbear. b To serve as a retainer; to belong; to pertain.
2. To remember; to recollect; to hold in mind.
Syn. — Hold, preserve, maintain. See KEEP.
Ant. — Lose, surrender, relinquish.

re·tain', n. [From RETAIN, v.] Obs. a Retention. b Retinue.

re·tain'al (rē·tān'ăl; -l), n. Retention.

re·tain'er (rē·tān'ĕr), n. [OF. retenir, inf. used as n. See RETAIN.] 1. Law. a The act of a client by which he engages the services of a lawyer, counselor, or adviser; also, the document expressing such engagement, or the authority so conferred. b The act of withholding what one has in his hands by virtue of some right, as where a creditor pays his own claim out of the debtor's property that has come into his hands as representative of the debtor. c A fee paid to engage a lawyer or counselor to maintain a cause, or to any professional adviser to give advice, or to secure a prior claim upon his services in case of need; — called also retaining fee, and specifically: general retainer, when covering any case that may arise; special retainer, when for a specified case.
2. Engagement, as of a servant; employment.

re·tain'er, n. 1. One who retains; a maintainer.
2. One who is retained; a person attached or owing service to a household; Hist., an adherent or dependent who gives occasional service and wears his master's livery.

---

re'sub·ject', v. t., re'sub·jec'tion, n., re·sub'ju·gate, v. t., re'sub·li·ma'tion (rē'sŭb·lĭ·mā'shŭn), n., re'sub·lime', v. t. & i., re'sub·merge', v. t. & i., re'sub·mis'sion, n., re'sub·mit', v. t., re'sub·or'di·nate, v. t. See RE-, 2. re'sub·scribe', v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'sub·scrib'er, n. — re'sub·scrip'tion, n. re·sub'sti·tute, v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'sub·sti·tu'tion, n. re'suc·ceed', v. t. & i., re·suck', v. t., re·sul'fer, v. t., re·sul'fer·ance, n., re'sug·gest', v. t., re'sug·ges'tion, n., re·suit', v. t. See RE-, 2.
re·sult'ant·ly, adv. of RESULTANT. re·sultant tone. = COMBINATION TONE. re·sult'ate, n. A result. Obs. re·sult'ful, adj. See -FUL. — re·sult'ful·ly, adv.
re·sult'less, adj. See -LESS. — re·sult'less·ly, adv. — -less·ness, n. re·sum'a·ble (rē·zūm'ə·b'l), adj. See -ABLE. — re·sum'a·bil'i·ty (-bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n.
re·sump'tiv. Resumptive. Ref. Sp.
re·sun', v. i., re·sup', v. i., re'su·per·heat', v. t., re'su·per·vise', v. t., re·sup·ply', v. t. & n., re'sup·port', v. t. See RE-, 2. re'sup·pose', v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'su·po·si'tion, n. re'sup·press', v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'sup·pres'sion, n. re'sur·prise', n. & v. t. See RE-, 2. res'ur·rect'i·ble, adj. See -ABLE.
res'ur·rec'tion·er, n. = RESURRECTIONIST, 1. res'ur·rec'tion·ing, pres. part. & verbal n. of RESURRECT. re'sur·ren'der, v. & n., re'sur·round', v. t. See RE-, 2. re'sus. Rhesus. Ref. Sp.
re·sus'ci·ta·tiv. Resuscitative. Ref. Sp. re·sus'cite, v. t. [OF. resuscier, fr. L. resuscitare.] To resuscitate. Obs.
re'sus·pect', v. t. See RE-, 2. re'sus·pend', n. t. See RE-, 2. — re'sus·pen'sion, n.
re·swage', v. t., re·swal'low, v. t., re·sward', v. t., re·swarm', v. i., re·swear', v. t. & i., re·sweat', v. i., re·sweep', v. t., re·swell', v. i., re·swill', v. t., re·swim', v. i., re'syl·lab'i·fy·tion, n., re·sym'bo·lize, v. t., re·syn'the·size, v. t., re·tack', v. t., re·tack'le, v. t., re·tag', v. t. See RE-, 2. re'taild. Retailed. Ref. Sp.
retail' dealer. See DEALER, 1 e. re·tai'lor, v. t. See RE-, 2. re·tain'a·ble, adj. See -ABLE. — re·tain'a·bil'i·ty, re·tain'a·bleness, n. re·taind', v. t. Retained. Ref. Sp. re·tain'der, n. [Either fr. ag AF. retaindre, inf. as n., for F. retenir, or fr. E. retain, after attainder or as a similar form.] Obs.
1. Retention.
2. A token of retainership. Oxf. E. D.
3. Engagement, as of a servant; employment.
re·tain'der·ship, n. See -SHIP. Obs. retained object. Gram. See OBJECT, n., 6 a.

---

3. In a leaf spring, a rebound clip.
4. Mach. A cage or frame for keeping the balls or rollers in a ball or roller bearing properly spaced.

re·tain'ing (rē·tān'ĭng), pres. part. & verbal n. of RETAIN.

retaining fee. Law. A retainer.

retaining wall. A wall for sustaining a bank of earth liable to a landslide; — sometimes restricted to a wall supporting earth filled in after the wall has been built, as opposed to a breast wall or face wall which is built to sustain a natural bank of earth.

re·tain'ment (rē·tān'mĕnt), n. Act of retaining; retention; Obs., entertainment.

re·take' (rē·tāk'), v. t.; past tense -TOOK' (-tŏŏk'); past part. -TAK'EN (-tāk'ĕn); pres. part. & verbal n. -TAK'ING (-tāk'ĭng). 1. To take or receive again; to take back.
2. To take from a captor; to recapture.
3. Chess. To capture as compensating for a piece captured.
4. Motion Pictures. To rephotograph (a scene or scenes of a motion picture).

re'take' (rē'tāk'), n. Motion Pictures. A second photographing or photograph of a scene. Colloq.

re·tak'er (rē·tāk'ĕr), n. One who retakes.

re·tal'i·ate (rē·tăl'ĭ·āt), v. t.; -AT'ED (-āt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -AT'ING (-āt'ĭng). [L. retaliatus, past part. of retaliare to retaliate, fr. re- re- + a word akin to talio talion, retaliation. See TALION.] To return the like for; to repay or requite in kind, as an injury; to put or inflict in return (upon); as, to retaliate a wrong; ro retaliate a charge upon the accuser. Now Rare. — v. i. To return like for like; to make requital; esp., to return evil for evil; as, to retaliate upon an enemy.

re·tal'i·a'tion (-ā'shŭn), n. Act of retaliating; requital; now, esp., return of evil for evil.
Syn. — Reprisal, retribution, punishment. See REQUITAL.

re·tal'i·a'tion·ist (-ĭst), n. An advocate of retaliation.

re·tal'i·a'tive (rē·tăl'ĭ·ā'tĭv; -ə·tĭv), adj. Retaliatory.

re·tal'i·a'tor (-ā'tĕr), n. One who retaliates.

re·tal'i·a·to'ry (rē·tăl'ĭ·ə·tō'rĭ or, esp. Brit., -tĕr·ĭ), adj. Tending to, involving, or of the nature of, retaliation; retaliative.

re·ta'ma (rā·tä'mä; as Lat. rē·tä'mä), n. [NL., fr. Sp. retama, fr. Ar. ratamah, pl. ratam.] a [cap.] Syn. of GENISTA, 1 a, b The Jerusalem thorn Parkinsonia aculeata. c In Spanish America, any of several yellow-flowered shrubs or trees of the genera Cassia and Chamaecrista, and in northern Mexico, the spiny tree Cercidium floridum (family Caesalpiniaceae).

re·tard' (rē·tärd'), v.; -TARD'ED; -TARD'ING. [F. or L.; F. retarder, fr. L. retardare, retardatum, fr. re- re- + tardare to make slow, to delay, fr. tardus slow. See TARDY.] Transitive: 1. To make slow or slower; to delay or impede the progress, course, or event of; to slow up by preventing or hindering advance or accomplishment; to keep back; as, to retard the motion of a ship, an advancing army, one's mental development, or a rupture between nations.
2. To put off; postpone; as, to retard publication. Rare.
3. Educ. To delay the progress of (a pupil) by nonpromotion.
4. Hort. To restrain from growing; — opposed to force.
—, Intransitive: To be delayed; to undergo retardation.
Syn. — Slow, obstruct, detain, defer. See DELAY.
Ant. — Hasten, quicken, accelerate, speed.

re·tard' (rē·tärd'), n. [F.] Delay through being retarded; retardation.
— in retard. In the rear; behind; — with of.

re·tard'ance (rē·tär'dăns; 91), n. Also re·tard'ence (-dĕns). [MF.] Retardation.

re·tard'ant (rē·tär'dănt), adj. Also re·tard'ent (-dĕnt). Serving, or tending, to retard. — n. Something retardant.

re·tard'ate (-dāt), v. t. [L. retardatus, past part. of retardare.] To retard; impede.

re·tard'ate, n. [L. retardatus, past part.] Educ. A pupil who is retarded in school.

re'tar·da'tion (rē'tär·dā'shŭn), n. [F. or L.; F. retardation, fr. L. retardatio.] 1. The action or an instance of retarding; — opposed to acceleration.
2. The extent to which anything is retarded; the amount of retarding or delay; as, to compute the retardation of the tides.
3. That which retards; an obstacle; an obstruction. Rare.
Hills, sloughs, and other terrestrial retardations. Scott.
4. Educ. Backwardness in progress through school as a result of nonpromotion.
5. Music. A suspension which resolves upwards instead of downwards. See SUSPENSION.
6. Photog. The action of a restrainer.
7. Psychol. a An abnormal slowness of thought or action. b Slowness of development or progress; the act or process of falling behind the norm for one's age; also, the amount of such falling behind; as, a retardation of two years in intelligence.

retardation method. Mach. A method of determining losses in a machine by noting its change of speed over definite time intervals, as it slows down after the removal of the power.

retardation of the tide. Astron. a The lunitidal interval. b = RETARD OF THE TIDE. c = LAG OF THE TIDE.

re·tard'a·tive (rē·tär'dā·tĭv), adj. [Cf. F. ratardatif.] Relating to, expressing, or tending to cause, retardation.

re·tard'a·to'ry (-tō'rĭ or, esp. Brit., -tĕr·ĭ), adj. Retarding; retardative.

re·tard'ed (rē·tär'dĕd; -dĭd; 119), past tense & past part. of RETARD. Specif.: adj. Psychol. & Educ. Slow in development or progress. See RETARDATION, 4 & 7 b. retarded coke. Pulverized coke coated with a wash containing equal parts of lime and fire clay, or the like, supposed to retard its combustion. It was formerly used as a reducing agent for iron ore in a process for making openhearth steel.

re·tard'er (rē·tär'dĕr), n. One that retards. Specif.: a A substance which, when added to a cement or to gypsum plaster, increases the setting time. b Photog. A substance, as potassium bromide, added to a developer to retard its action; a restrainer. c Railroads. A power-operated braking device placed in the classification tracks of hump yards to control the speed of moving cars; a car retarder.

re·tar'dive (rē·tär'dĭv), adj. Retardative. Rare.

re·tard'ment (rē·tärd'mĕnt), n. [F. retardement.] Act of retarding; retardation.

retard of the tide. Astron. The interval between the moon's transit at which a tide originates and advent of the tide itself; age of the tide. It is found, in general, that any particular tide is not principally due to the moon's transit immediately preceding, but to a transit which has occurred some time before. See LUNITIDAL INTERVAL.

re·tar'dure (rē·tär'dĭŭr), n. Retardation. Rare.

retch (rĕch or, esp. Brit., rēch; 277), v. i.; RETCHED (rĕcht; rēcht); RETCH'ING. [AS. hrǣcan to clear the throat, hawk; akin to AS. hrāca expectoration, spittle, ON. hrækja to hawk, to spit, hrāki spittle.] To make an effort to vomit; to strain, as in vomiting. — v. t. To vomit; to throw up.

retch (rĕch), v. t. & i. [ME. recchen to stretch, fr. AS. reccan; akin to D. rekken, G. recken.] To reach; extend; stretch; expand. Obs. exc. Dial.

‖re'te (rē'tē), n.; pl. RETIA (-shĭ·ä; -tĭ·ä). [L., a net; prob. akin to Lith. rėtis sieve, and L. rarus loose, apart. See RARE thin; cf. RETICULE.] 1. A circular plate with many holes used on the astrolabe to indicate the positions of the principal fixed stars. Obs.
2. A graduated scale. Obs.
3. Anat. A net or network; a plexus, esp. one of blood vessels or nerves, a part resembling a network.

re·te'cious (rē·tē'shŭs), adj. [L. rete a net.] Retiform.

re·tell' (rē·tĕl'), v. t. To tell or count again; also, to tell in another form.

re·tell'ing, pres. part. & verbal n. of RETELL. Specif.: n. A new version of an old story.

re'tem (rē'tĕm), rae'tam (rē'tăm), n. [Ar. ratam, pl. See RETAMA.] A juniperlike desert shrub (Retama raetam) with tiny, white, genistalike flowers, found in Syria and Arabia. It is the juniper of the Old Testament.

‖re'te Mal·pi'ghi·i (rē'tē măl·pĭg'ĭ·ī). [NL.] Anat. The Malpighian layer of the epidermis.

‖re'te mi·ra'bi·le (mĭ·răb'ĭ·lē); pl. RETIA MIRABILIA (rē'·shĭ·ä mĭr'ä·bĭl'ĭ·ä; rē'tĭ·ä). [L., wonderful net.] Zool. A small but dense network of blood vessels formed by the breaking up of a larger vessel into branches, which usually unite again into one trunk.

‖re'te mu·co'sum (mū·kō'sŭm), [L., slimy net.] Anat. The Malpighian layer of the epidermis.

re'tene (rē'tēn; rēt'ēn), n. [Gr. rhētinē pine resin.] Chem. A white crystalline hydrocarbon, $C_{18}H_{18}$, obtained from pine tar, resin oil, certain fossil resins, etc. It is a methyl and isopropyl derivative of phenanthrene.

re·tent' (rē·tĕnt'), n. [L. retentum, neut. of retentus, past part. See RETAIN.] That which is retained, esp. in the mind.

re·tent', part. adj. [L. retentus, past part.] Retained; kept back. Obs.

re·ten'tion (rē·tĕn'shŭn), n. [OF., fr. L. retentio. See RETAIN.] 1. Act of retaining, or state of being retained; hence, continuance in use, as of a name or custom.
2. Retaining, or the ability to retain, things in mind; memory. "High in fancy, strong in retention." Boswell.
3. A keeping in one's own possession, control, or the like; as, the retention of the Philippines by the United States.
4. A retaining or holding fixed in some place or position; state of being kept in place.
5. Power or capacity of retaining; retentiveness.
6. Obs. a Detention; esp., forcible detention; restraint. b Restraint. c Self-restraint; self-control. d Restriction of expenditure.
7. Civil Law. A possessory lien.
8. Med. Abnormal retaining, in a canal or reservoir of the body, of a secretion which is to be voided; as, retention of urine or bile.
9. Psychol. The preservation of aftereffects of experience and learning so that recall or recognition is possible or that relearning is easier than the learning of new material.
Syn. — Holding, keeping, maintenance.
Ant. — Surrender, loss.

re·ten'tive (rē·tĕn'tĭv), adj. [OF. retentif.] Tending to retain; having the power, property, or capacity of retaining. Specif.: a Retaining knowledge; having a good memory; tenacious; as, a retentive mind, memory, or person. b Obs. Parsimonious. c That holds in place or custody; preventive of escape, loosening (as a bandage), etc.
Nor airless dungeon, nor strong links of iron, Can be retentive to the strength of spirit. Shak.
d Obs. Restrained; reticent. — re·ten'tive·ly, adv. — re·ten'tive·ness, n.

re·ten'tive, n. Obs. 1. Memory; also, retention.
2. That which retains or confines; a restraint.
3. pl. Organs that regulate the discharge of excretions.

re'ten·tiv'i·ty (rē'tĕn·tĭv'ĭ·tĭ), n. The power of retaining; retentive force. Specif.: Magnetism. The capacity for retaining magnetism after the action of the magnetizing force has ceased, measured by the ratio of the residual magnetism to the maximum previously attained. It is thus distinguished from coercive force, though by some used as synonymous with the latter. See COERCIVE FORCE.

re·ten'tor (rē·tĕn'tĕr), n. [L., a retainer.] Zool. A muscle which serves to retain a part in place, esp. when retracted.

‖re·te·nue' (as F. rĕ·t'nü'), n. [F.] Self-restraint; self-control; reserve; discretion.

Re·tep'o·ra (rē·tĕp'ō·rä), n. [NL., fr. L. rete net + porus pore.] Zool. A genus of ectoproctous bryozoans which form delicate, corallike colonies, usually composed of thin fenestrated fronds. It is the type of a family, Re'te·por'i·dae (rē'·tē·pŏr'ĭ·dē). — re'te·pore (rē'·tē·pōr; 181), n.

Retepora. Nat. size.

‖re'te tes'tis (rē'tē tĕs'tĭs). [NL.] The network of tubules in the mediastinum testis.

re·tex'ture (rē·tĕks'tŭr), n. Reweaving. Carlyle.

rethe (rēth), adj. [AS. rēthe.] Fierce; severe; cruel; also, Scot., ardent. Obs.

rethe'ness, n. [AS. rēthness.] Obs. a Ferocity; cruelty; rage. b Uproar.

re'ti·al (rē'shĭ·ăl), adj. Anat. & Zool. Pertaining to a rete.

Re'ti·a'ri·ae (rē'shĭ·ä'rĭ·ē; 79), n. pl. [NL. See RETIARY.] Zool. The spiders which spin a web to catch their prey.

re'ti·ar'i·an (-är'ĭ·ăn), adj. Made up of retiarii. — n. A retiarius.

re'ti·a'ri·us (rē'shĭ·ä'rĭ·ŭs; 79), n.; pl. -RII (-rĭ·ī). [L., fr. rete a net. See RETE.] Rom. Antiq. A gladiator armed with a net and a trident.

re'ti·ar'y (rē'shĭ·ĕr'ĭ or, esp. Brit., -ĕr·ĭ), adj. 1. Of or pertaining to nets, or the making of nets or the like; netlike.
2. Constructing a web to catch prey; — of a spider.
3. Armed with a net; hence, skillful to entangle.

re'ti·ar'y, n. [See RETIARIUS.] 1. A retiarius.
2. A retiary spider.

ret'i·cel'la (rĕt'ĭ·chĕl'ä), n. Also ret'i·cel'lo (-ō). [It. reticella little net.] A needle-point lace with geometrical designs which is also a form of cutwork, made in Italy as early as the 15th century. It is worked in buttonhole stitch on linen over drawn threads, the rest of the fabric then being cut away. Called also Greek lace or point, Roman lace or point.

ret'i·cence (rĕt'ĭ·sĕns; -s'ns), n. [F. or L.; F. réticence, fr. L. reticentia. See RETICENT.] Quality, state, or an instance, of being reticent, or of keeping silence; restraint in speaking or communicating; reserve; sometimes, a secret.
Such fine reserve and noble reticence. Tennyson.
Syn. — Reserve, secretiveness. Ant. — Ingenuousness, frankness; garrulousness, verbosity.

ret'i·cen·cy (rĕt'ĭ·sĕn·sĭ), n.; pl. -CIES (-sĭz). Reticence.

ret'i·cent (rĕt'ĭ·sĕnt; -s'nt), adj. [L. reticens, pres. part. of reticere to keep silence, fr. re- re- + tacere to be silent. See TACIT.] Inclined to keep silent or uncommunicative; given to reserve in speech. — ret'i·cent·ly, adv.
Syn. — See SILENT.
Ant. — Communicative. See TALKATIVE.

ret'i·cle (-k'l), n. [See RETICULE.] 1. A small net. Obs.
2. Optics. A system of lines, wires, or the like, in the focus of the eyepiece of an optical instrument; a reticule. Cf. CROSS HAIR.

re·tic'u·lar (rē·tĭk'ū·lĕr), adj. [NL. reticularis. See RETICULE.] 1. Reticulated; reticulate; netlike.
2. Like a net in operation or effect; intricate.
3. Anat. Pertaining to a reticulum.

reticular cartilage. Anat. Elastic cartilage.

reticular formation. Anat. See NEUROPILE a.

Re·tic'u·la·ri·a (rē·tĭk'ū·lā'rĭ·ä; 79), n. pl. [NL. See RETICULAR.] Zool. The Foraminifera. — re·tic'u·lar'i·an (-lâr'ĭ·ăn), adj. & n.

reticular layer (of the derma). Anat. The deeper layer of the derma formed of interlacing fasciculi of white fibrous tissue.

reticular theory (or protoplasm). See PROTOPLASM, n., c.

re·tic'u·lar'y (rē·tĭk'ū·lĕr'ĭ or, esp. Brit., -lĕr·ĭ), adj. Reticular. Carlyle.

re·tic'u·late (rē·tĭk'ū·lāt), adj. [L. reticulatus. See RETICULE.] 1. Resembling network; having the form or appearance of a net; netted; specif., having veins, fibers, or lines crossing like the threads or fibers of a network; as, a reticulate leaf or wing. See LEAF, Illust.
2. Zool. Of the tarsus (or part of the tarsus) of a bird, covered with small polygonal scales.

re·tic'u·late (-lāt), v. t. & i.; -LAT'ED (-lāt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -LAT'ING (-lāt'ĭng). 1. To divide, mark, or construct, so as to resemble or form network.
2. To provide or construct with a reticle.

re·tic'u·lat'ed (-lāt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119), past tense & past part. of RETICULATE. Specif.: adj. a Reticulate. b Having its lines, roads, or the like, intercrossed; forming or formed like a network or a web; as, reticulated canals; a reticulated system of transportation.

reticulated glass. Ornamental ware made from glass in which one set of white or colored lines seems to meet and interlace with another set.

reticulated micrometer. Optics. A micrometer having a reticle in the focus of the eyepiece.

reticulated python. See PYTHON, n., 4 b. reticulated tracery. = NET TRACERY.

reticulated vessel. Bot. A trachea, or vessel, having a reticulated surface.

reticulated work. Masonry. Work constructed, or faced, with diamond-shaped stones, or square stones placed diagonally.

re·tic'u·la'tion (rē·tĭk'ū·lā'shŭn), n. 1. Reticulated, or weblike, formation or appearance; network; hence, something reticulated, as a system of transportation.
2. Photog. A network of corrugations produced accidentally or intentionally by a treatment producing rapid expansion and shrinkage of the swollen gelatin in processing.

re·tic'u·la'to- (rē·tĭk'ū·lā'tō-). A combining form from Latin reticulatus, reticulate, denoting reticulately, as in re·tic'u·la'to·co'a·les'cent, re·tic'u·la'to·gran'u·late, re·tic'u·la'to·ra'mose, re·tic'u·la'to·ve'nose.

ret'i·cule (rĕt'ĭ·kūl), n. [F. réticule, fr. L. reticulum, dim. of rete a net. See RETE; cf. RETINA, RETICLE.]
1. Optics. = RETICLE, 2.
2. A small bag, originally of network, carried by women in the hand or on the arm as a workbag or pocket.
3. [cap.] Astron. = RETICULUM RHOMBOIDALIS.

ret'i·culed (rĕt'ĭ·kūld), adj. Reticulated. Rare.

re·tic'u·lin (rē·tĭk'ū·lĭn), n. Biochem. A protein substance held to be a constituent of reticular tissue. It is akin to collagen.

re·tic'u·li'tis (-lī'tĭs), n. [NL., fr. reticulum + -itis.] Veter. Inflammation of the reticulum of a ruminant.

re·tic'u·lo- (rē·tĭk'ū·lō-), reticul-. A combining form for reticulum, denoting: a The reticulum, as in reticulitis. b A reticulum, as in reticulocyte. c Reticulose and, as in re·tic'u·lo·ra'mose, re·tic'u·lo·ve'nose.

re·tic'u·lo·cyte' (rē·tĭk'ū·lō·sīt'), n. [reticulo- + -cyte.] Anat. & Med. An immature red blood corpuscle containing a fine basophilic reticulum. Reticulocytes are in the blood in large numbers during convalescence from anemia.

re·tic'u·lo·cy·to'sis (-sĭ·tō'sĭs), n. [NL., fr. reticulocyte + -osis.] Med. A condition marked by the presence of reticulocytes in the circulating blood, occurring in certain forms of anemia, and esp. after treatment of anemia by administering liver or liver extract.

re·tic'u·lo·en'do·the'li·al sys'tem. Anat. A widely diffused network of cells regarded as having endothelial properties, and found esp. in the liver, spleen, bone marrow, and lymphadenoid tissues.

Re·tic'u·lo'sa (rē·tĭk'ū·lō'sä), n. pl. [NL.] Zool. Syn. of RETICULARIA.

re·tic'u·lose (rē·tĭk'ū·lōs), adj. Reticulated.

---

re·tain'er·ship, n. See -SHIP.

re·tal'i·a'tiv. Retaliative. Ref. Sp.

retaliatory tariff. See TARIFF, [n., 1.]

re·talk', v. t. & i., re·tame', v. i., re·tan', v. t., re·tan'ner, n., re·tape', v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·tard'a·tiv. Retardative. Ref. Sp.

re·tard'ence, n. = RETARDANCE.

re·tard'ent, adj. & n. = RETARDANT.

re·tard'ing, pres. part. & verbal n. of RETARD. — re·tard'ing·ly, adv.

re·tare', v. t., re·tar'iff, v. t., re·taste', v. t., re·tat'tle, v. i., re·taunt', v. t., re·taunt', n. (Obs.). See RE-, 2.

re·tax', v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'·tax·a'tion, n.

retcht. Retched. Ref. Sp.

re·teach', v. See RE-, 2.

re'te·form. Var. of RETIFORM.

re·tel'e·graph, v. t., re·tel'e·phone, v. t., re·tem'per, v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·tempt', v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'temp·ta'tion, n.

ret'e·nance, n. [OF., a retaining, authority.] Retinue. Obs.

re·ten'ant, v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·ten'der, v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·ten'tion·ist, n. See -IST.

re·ten'tiv. Retentive. Ref. Sp.

re·test', n. & v. See RE-, 2.

re·thank', v. t., re·thatch', v. t., re·thaw', v. i. & t. See RE-, 2.

rether. † KOTHER.

re·thick'en, v. t. See RE-, 1 & 2.

re·think', v. t. & i. See RE-, 2.

re·thor'i·en, adj. [ME.] Rhetorical. Obs. — n. Rhetorician. Obs.

rethorike. † RHETORIC.

re·thrash', v. t., re·thread', v. t., re·threat'en, v. t., re·thresh', v. t., re·thresh'er, n., re·thrill', v. t., re·thrive', v. i., re·throne', v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·throw', v. t. See RE-, 1 & 2.

re·thrust', v. t. See RE-, 1.

re·thun'der, v. t. & i. See RE-, 2.

re'ti·a (rē'shĭ·ä; rē'tĭ·ä), n., pl. of RETE. [MIRABILE.]

re'ti·a mi'ra·bi'li·a. Pl. of RETE re·tick'et, v. t. See RE-, 2. reticul-. = RETICULO-.

re·tic'u·la. n. pl. of RETICULUM.

re·tic'u·lar·ly, adv. of RETICULAR.

re·tic'u·late·ly, adv. of RETICULATE.

N O P Q R

re·tic'u·lum (rē·tĭk'ū·lŭm), n.; pl. RETICULA (-lä). [L., dim. of rete a net. See RETE.] 1. Zool. The second stomach of ruminants, in which folds of the mucous membrane form hexagonal cells; — called also honeycomb stomach. See RUMINANTIA, Illust.; TRIPE, 2.
2. A netlike structure; a network. Specif.: a Anat. (1) Neuroglia. (2) An interstitial tissue composed of anastomosing branched cells, the extracellular fibrils of which form an intricate network, and differ chemically from white and elastic fibers. (3) A bony network filling long bones, as in the elephant and the ostrich. b Biol. The network of denser substance visible in the protoplasm, both of the cell body and nucleus, of many cells, and, according to the reticular theory, regarded as an essential structural part of the protoplasm. See PROTOPLASM. c Bot. The fibrous network found at the base of the petiole in certain palms.
3. [cap.] gen. RETICULI (-lī). Astron. A southern constellation between Hydrus and Dorado; the Net. Called formerly Re·tic'u·lum Rhom'boi·da'lis (rŏm'boi·dā'lĭs) from its rhomboidal shape.
re'ti·form (rē'tĭ·fôrm; rĕt'ĭ-), adj. [NL. retiformis. See RETE; -FORM.] Composed of crossing lines and interstices; reticular; netlike; specif., Anat., designating the connective tissue of the framework of the lymphatic glands.
-retin. Chem. A combining form from Greek rhētinē, resin, as in quinir*etin.*
ret'i·na (rĕt'ĭ·nä), n.; pl. RETINAS (-näz), RETINAE (-nē). [ML., fr. L. rete a net. See RETICULE.] Anat. & Zool. The sensitive membrane of the eye, which receives the image formed by the lens and is the immediate instrument of vision, being connected with the brain by the optic nerve. The retina of the human eye lines the posterior chamber. Its functional part extends forward nearly to the ciliary body and is composed of supporting tissue and nervous elements arranged in several layers (see Illust.), of which the sensory layer (layer of rods and cones) is almost the outermost, and is composed of small rodlike bodies interspersed with shorter conical bodies, both of which are the specialized terminal parts of elongated neuroepithelial cells. The cones alone are believed to serve in distinguishing colors. The most sensitive area on the human retina is a small yellow spot (macula lutea), having a central depression (the fovea centralis), in the middle back part of the eyeball. No rods, but only cones, are found in the fovea centralis; no fibers of the optic nerve overlie it; and upon it the image is focused for acute vision. See 1st EYE, 1 & 2d Illust. Cf. VISUAL PURPLE.

Section of Human Retina. a Inner Limiting Membrane; b Layer of Nerve Fibers (Branches of Optic Nerve); c Inner Reticular Layer; d Inner Nuclear Layer; e Outer Reticular Layer; f Outer Nuclear Layer; g Outer Limiting Membrane; h Rods and Cones; i Pigment Granules; y Blood Vessel; y, y Bases of Fibers of Müller; z, z Ganglion Cells.

ret'i·nac'u·lar (rĕt'ĭ·năk'ū·lĕr), adj. Pertaining to, or like, a retinaculum.
ret'i·nac'u·late (rĕt'ĭ·năk'ū·lāt), adj. Having a retinaculum. ret'i·nac'u·lum (-lŭm), n.; pl. -LA (-lä). [L., a holdfast, a band. See RETAIN.] 1. Anat. A connecting or retaining band; a frenum.
2. Bot. a One of the small glands or glandlike bodies at the base of the stalk of a pollinium. b The hooklike funicle of the seeds in plants of the Acanthaceae.
3. Zool. a A retractor muscle of the proboscis of certain worms. b A small structure on the forewings of many Lepidoptera for catching and holding the frenulum. c Zool. In Collembola, a small organ on the underside of the abdomen which articulates with the apex of the springtail. — ret'i·nac'u·lar (rĕt'ĭ·năk'ū·lĕr), adj. & n.
ret'i·nal (rĕt'ĭ·năl; -n'l), adj. Anat. Of or pertaining to the retina. re·tin'a·lite (rē·tĭn'ä·līt), n. [Gr. rhētinē resin + -lite.] Mineral. A massive variety of serpentine, of a honey-yellow or greenish color, and a waxy or resinous luster.
ret'in·as'phalt (rĕt'ĭn·ăs'fôlt; -fält), ret'in·as·phal'tum (-ăs·făl'tŭm), n. [Gr. rhētinē resin + asphaltos asphalt.] A kind of fossil resin.
ret'i·nerved' (rĕt'ĭ·nûrvd'), adj. [L. rete a net + E. nerve.] Bot. Reticulately nerved; net-veined. re·tin'i·an (rē·tĭn'ĭ·ăn; 159), adj. Retinal. Rare.
ret'i·nis'po·ra (rĕt'ĭ·nĭs'pō·rä), n. [NL., fr. Gr. rhētinē resin + spora seed.] a [cap.] Bot. Syn. of CHAMAECYPARIS. b Hort. Any one of various ornamental Japanese, dwarf, cypresslike shrubs of the genus Chamaecyparis, esp. those derived from C. pisifera, the sawara cypress, and from C. obtusa, the sun tree; also, any of several shrubs of the genus Thuja, the juvenile states of which are strikingly different from the adult parent species.
ret'i·nite (rĕt'ĭ·nīt), n. [Gr. rhētinē resin + -ite.] Mineral. A kind of fossil resin. ret'i·ni'tis (-nī'tĭs), n. [NL., fr. retina + -itis.] Med. Inflammation of the retina. ret'i·nize (rĕt'ĭ·nīz), v. t. [retina + -ize.] To read with the eye rather than with the mind; to read mechanically.
ret'i·no·blas·to'ma (rĕt'ĭ·nō·blăs·tō'mä), n. [NL., fr. retina + -blast + -oma.] Med. A tumor derived from the cells of the retina. ret'i·no·cho'ri·oid (-kō'rĭ·oid; 181), ret'i·no·cho'ri·oi'dal (-oi'dăl; -d'l), adj. Anat. Of or pertaining to the retina and the chorioid.
ret'i·no·cho'ri·oid·i'tis (-kō'rĭ·oid·ī'tĭs), n. [NL., fr. retina + chorioid + -itis.] Med. Inflammation of the retina and the chorioid.
ret'i·noid (rĕt'ĭ·noid), adj. [Gr. rhētinē resin + -oid.] Resinlike, or resiniform.
ret'i·nol (rĕt'ĭ·nōl; -nŏl), n. [Gr. rhētinē resin + 2d -ol.] A yellowish oil obtained by the distillation of resin; codol. It is used as a lubricant, as a solvent for phosphorus, Aristol, camphor, cocaine, codeine, etc., and in medicine as an antiseptic.
ret'i·no·pap'il·li'tis (rĕt'ĭ·nō·păp'ĭ·lī'tĭs), n. [NL., fr. retina + papilla + -itis.] Med. Inflammation of both the retina and the optic papilla. ret'i·no·phore' (rĕt'ĭ·nō·fōr'; 181), n. [NL. See RETINA; -PHORE.] Zool. One of a group of cells enclosing a crystalline cone in the distal portion of an ommatidium. — ret'i·noph'o·ral (-nŏf'ō·răl), adj.
ret'i·no·scope' (rĕt'ĭ·nō·skōp'), n. [retina + -scope.] An apparatus for viewing the retina; specif., an apparatus for retinoscopy.
ret'i·nos'co·py (-nŏs'kō·pĭ; -nō·skō'pĭ), n. [retina + -scopy.] Physiol. Observation of the retina of the eye; specif., a method of determining the state of refraction of the eye by illuminating the retina with a mirror and observing the direction of movement of the retinal illumination and adjacent shadow, when the mirror is turned; skiascopy. — ret'i·no·scop'ic (-nō·skŏp'ĭk), adj. — ret'i·no·scop'i·cal·ly (-ĭ·kăl·ĭ), adv. — ret'i·nos'co·pist (-pĭst), n. ret'i·nue (rĕt'ĭ·nū; formerly often re·tin'ue, as in Milton and Dryden), n. [ME. retenue, fr. OF. retenue, fr. retenu, fem. retenue, past part. of retenir to retain, engage, hire. See RETAIN.] 1. State of being retained in another's service; service. Obs.
2. The body of retainers who follow a prince or other distinguished person; a train of attendants; a suite.
> What followers, what retinue canst thou gain? Milton.

3. Retention. Obs.
— at one's retinue. In one's service; at one's command. Obs. ret'i·nue, v. t. To provide with a retinue; to attend.
re·tin'u·la (rē·tĭn'ū·lä), n.; pl. -ULAE (-lē). [NL., dim. of retina.] Zool. A group of sensory cells enclosing a rhabdom in an ommatidium. — re·tin'u·lar (-lĕr), adj.
ret'i·nule (rĕt'ĭ·nūl), n. [F.] The sentient part of an ommatidium.
re·tip' (rē·tĭp'), v. t. To tip again or anew.
re·tir'a·cied (rē·tīr'ä·sĭd), adj. Retired; secluded. Rare.
re·tir'a·cy (rē·tīr'ä·sĭ), n. U. S. a Retirement; seclusion. b Sufficient means or property to make possible retirement from business.
ret'i·rade' (rĕt'ĭ·räd'), n. [F., fr. It. ritirata retreat.] Fort. A retrenchment, usually of two faces making a re-entering angle. Now Rare.
re·tir'al (rē·tīr'ăl), n. Act of retiring. Specif.: a Retreat; withdrawal. b A retirement from office, business, etc. c A retiring of a bill when due.
re·tire' (rē·tīr'), v. RE·TIRED' (-tīrd'); RE·TIR'ING (-tīr'ĭng). [F. retirer, fr. re- re- + tirer to draw. Cf. TIRADE.] Intransitive: 1. To withdraw from action or danger; to retreat; as, to retire from battle.
2. To withdraw, go, or betake oneself, for the sake of privacy, seclusion, protection, or the like; to go into retreat; as, to retire to his home; to retire from the world.
3. To move, fall, or bend, back; to recede, or appear to do so; as, the shore of the sea retires in bays and gulfs.
4. To go away; to withdraw; to take oneself away.
> Set ye Uriah in the forefront of the hottest battle, and retire ye from him, that he may be smitten, and die. 2 Sam. xi. 15.

5. To withdraw from office, a public station, business, or the like; as, having made a large fortune, he retired.
6. To disappear; to vanish. Poetic.
7. To go to bed; as, he usually retires early.
8. To go or come back; to return. Obs.
9. Fencing. To give ground; to take a step or steps back.
—, Transitive: 1. To withdraw (oneself); to withdraw (a military force), esp. from before the enemy.
2. To draw or pull back; as, to retire a needle.
3. To withdraw from circulation, or from the market; to take up or pay; as, to retire bonds; to retire a note.
4. To cause to retire; specif., to designate as no longer qualified for active service; to place on the retired list; as, to retire a military or naval officer.
5. Obs. a To remove or bring by or as by leading. b To hold back; to restrain; to dissuade. c To get back; to recover.
6. Baseball, Cricket, etc. To put out (a batsman, side).
Syn. — Leave, depart; recede, retreat.
Ant. — Stay, remain; advance, progress.
re·tire', n. Retirement; withdrawal; retreat; also, a place to which one retires; a retreat. Now Rare.
re·tired' (rē·tīrd'), past tense & past part. of RETIRE. Specif.: adj. a Secluded; solitary; sequestered; quiet; as, a retired life or cottage.
> A retired part of the peninsula. Hawthorne.

b Now Rare. Withdrawn into oneself; reserved. c Of thoughts, etc., private; secret; inmost; of objects of thought, abstruse; recondite. d Withdrawn from active duty or business: as, a retired officer or physician. e Received by, or due to, a person on a retired status; as, retired pay, pension. — re·tired'ly, adv. — re·tired'ness, n.
retired flank. Fort. A flank, as of a bastion, bent inward toward the rear of the work.
retired list. Mil. & Nav. a A list of officers who, by reason of advanced age or other disability, are relieved from active service, but still receive pay. In the United States Army and Marine Corps a commissioned officer shall be retired: (1) After thirty years' service as officer or enlisted man, on his own application. (2) On reaching the age of sixty-four years. (3) On becoming disabled for service. In the United States Navy a commissioned officer shall be retired: (1) If below the rank of vice-admiral and above that of lieutenant commander, on reaching the age of sixty-two years. (2) If rejected for promotion for any cause not arising from his own misconduct. (3) On becoming disabled for service. b A similar list of enlisted men in the United States Army, Marine Corps, or Navy, retired at their own application on seventy-five per cent of their pay and allowances, after thirty years of service.
re·tire'ment (rē·tīr'mĕnt), n. [F.] 1. Act of retiring, or state of being retired. Specif.: a A falling back; retreat, as of an army. b A withdrawing into seclusion or retreat. c Withdrawal from office, active service, or the like; as, the retirement of an officer. d Secluded condition or state; withdrawal from society or publicity; privacy; also, a time or occasion of this. e Withdrawal from circulation; — said of currency.
2. A place of seclusion or privacy; a place to which one withdraws or retreats; a private abode; a retreat.
> Caprea had been the retirement of Augustus. Addison.

Syn. — Departure, retreat, withdrawal; seclusion, solitude.
re·tir'er (rē·tīr'ĕr), n. One who retires.
re·tir'ing (rē·tīr'ĭng), pres. part. & verbal n. of RETIRE. Specif.: adj. Reserved; shy; not forward or obtrusive; as, retiring manners. — re·tir'ing·ly, adv. — re·tir'ing·ness, n.
Syn. — Unobtrusive, modest, diffident.
Ant. — Bold, obtrusive. re·tol'er·ate (rē·tŏl'ĕr·āt), v. t. To tolerate again or anew. — re'tol·er·a'tion (rē'tŏl·ĕr·ā'shŭn), n.
re·tomb' (rē·tōōm'), v. t. To bury again or anew.
re'to·na'tion (rē'tō·nā'shŭn), n. [See RE-; TONE; -ATION.] Quality or condition of sending a sound back. retonation wave. A compressional wave propagated backward from the starting point of an explosion wave in a gaseous mixture.
re·tort' (rē·tôrt'), v.; -TORT'ED; -TORT'ING. [L. retortus, past part. of retorquere, fr. re- re- + torquere to turn, twist. See TORTURE; cf. RETORT, a vessel.] Transitive: 1. To return; to repay; to pay, cast, or hurl, back; as, to retort an accusation, wrong, censure, incivility, or the like.
2. To make a like reply to; to answer in kind; to say in reply; as, to retort a sarcasm; "It is false," he retorted.
3. To answer or meet, as an argument, by a counter argument of a like kind.
4. Obs. a To throw or hurl back, as a spear; to reverberate (a sound); reflect, as heat. b To reject (an appeal). c To turn, twist, or curve, back.
—, Intransitive: 1. To make retort; to return an argument or charge.
2. To retaliate. Rare.
3. To turn or spring back; to recoil. Obs.
re·tort' (rē·tôrt'), n. [From RETORT, v.] A quick, sharp, witty, cutting, or severe reply, esp. one which turns the first speaker's statement or argument against him or counters it; also, the act or practice of making such replies; as, a good retort; a man keen in retort; retort of abuse.
> The retort courteous. Shak.

Syn. — Repartee, answer. See REPLY.
re·tort' (rē·tôrt'), n. [F. retorte, fr. ML. retorta, fem., fr L. retortus, past part. of retorquere. So named from its bent shape. See RETORT, v.] Chem. & the Arts. A vessel in which substances are subjected to distillation or decomposition by heat. It is made of different forms and materials for different uses, as a bulb of glass with a curved beak to enter a receiver for general chemical operations, or a long semicylinder of cast iron or fire clay for the manufacture of coal gas.

1 Plain Retort; 2 Tubulated Retort with Receiver.

re·tort', v. t. To treat by heating in a retort, as gold amalgam to drive off the mercury and recover the gold. retort courteous. An answer, as to a criticism or suggestion, in a courteous and compliant vein; — from the use of the phrase in Shakespeare's As You Like It, V. iv. 75.
re·tort'ed (rē·tôrt'ĕd; -tĭd; 119), past tense & past part. of RETORT. Specif.: adj. a Twisted, turned, or bent, back; as, retorted pipes. "Retorted eyes." Pope. b Returned; thrown back. "With retorted scorn." Milton.
re·tort'er (-tĕr), n. One who retorts.
re·tor'tion (rē·tôr'shŭn), n. [ML. retortio. See RETORT, v.] 1. Act of retorting; a turning, twisting, bending, or throwing, back; reflection or turning back.
> It was, however, necessary to possess some single term expressive of this intellectual retortion. Sir W. Hamilton.

2. A retort, as in argument. Obs.
3. Law. Retaliation. Retortion is chiefly used in international law of acts by which the aggrieved state treats the subjects of the state giving provocation in a manner the same as, or analogous to, that in which the subjects of the state using retortion are treated by the state giving provocation. The term is often used specifically of acts within the strict right of the state, as the imposition of disabilities or other denial of comity, often called ‖ré'tor·sion' de droit' (rā'tôr'syōn' dē drwä'), — the direct infliction of injuries equal to those suffered, termed ‖re·tor'si·o fac'ti (rē·tôr'shĭ·ō făk'tī), included under the head of reprisal.
re·tor'tive (rē·tôr'tĭv), adj. 1. Turned backwards.
2. Of the nature of a retort.
retort stand. Chem. A stand for holding a retort. Cf. RING STAND. re·touch' (rē·tŭch'), v. [F. retoucher. See RE-; TOUCH.] Transitive: 1. To touch again, or rework, in order to improve; to amend by retouches; to touch up; as, to retouch a picture, an engraving plate, or an essay.
2. To touch upon or speak of again; to reintroduce. Rare.
3. Photog. To correct or change, as a negative or process plate, by handwork. Ordinary negatives, esp. those of portraits, are often retouched, usually with a hard lead pencil, to harmonize the light and shade, remove unnatural effects of detail, etc. In retouching photogravure plates, the roulette, burnisher, graver, etc., are used.
—, Intransitive: To make or give retouches.
re·touch', n. [F. retouche.] The act, process, or an instance of, retouching; also, a retouched detail or part.
re·touch'er (-ĕr), n. One who retouches.
re·touch'ing, pres. part. & verbal n. of RETOUCH. Specif.: n. Act or process of improving by touching up, as a painting, a photographic plate, etc.
re·touch'ment (-mĕnt), n. Retouching. Rare.
re·tour' (rē·tōōr'), n. [OF., a returning. See RETURN.]
1. Return. Archaic Scot.
2. Scots Law. The return made to the court of chancery on a brieve of inquest with the jury's verdict thereon as on one relative to the service of an heir, or one for determining the duties payable to a superior upon land or the land's annual value; also, a copy or extract of such return.
re·tour', v. t. Scots Law. To make a retour, or return, of; as, to retour a person as heir, land (as to its value), etc. — v. i. To return; to revert. Obs.
re–trace', re·trace' (rē·trās'), v. t. [re- + trace.] To trace over again, or renew the outline of, as a drawing re·trace' (rē·trās'), v. t. [F. retracer. See RE-; TRACE. Cf. RETRACT.] To trace again or back. Specif.: a To trace, or go back to, the origin or early history of, by tracing its previous steps; as, to retrace one's family line. b To go over again with the eyes; to reinspect closely. c To go over again in memory; to recall. d To go back upon (one's steps, etc.) or over (a previous course); to go over again in a reverse direction; as, to retrace one's way.

re·tie', v. t., re·tī'er, n., re·tier' (rē·tīr'), v. t., re·tight'en, v. t., re·tile', v. t., re·till', v. t., re·tim'ber, v. t., re·time', v. t., re·tin', v. t. See RE-, 2. retinal fatigue. = MINUTHESIS. retinal light. = IDIORETINAL LIGHT. retinal purple. = VISUAL PURPLE. retinal recovery. = AUXESIS, 2 b. retinal rivalry. = BINOCULAR RIVALRY. re·tinc'ture, v. t. See RE-, 2. ret'i·nen·cy (rĕt'ĭ·nĕn·sĭ), n. Retention; retentiveness. Obs.
re·tink'er, v. t. See RE-, 2.
Ret'i·nos'po·ra. Var. of RETINISPORA. See RETINISPORA a.
Ré·ti'a o'pen·ing (rā'tē'ä). [After Richard Réti (1889–1929), Slovakian chess player.] See CHESS. ret'i·stene (rĕt'ĭ·stēn), n. [G. retisten, fr. reten retene.] Chem. = RETENE. re·toast', v. t. See RE-, 2. re·told' (rē·tōld'), past tense & past part. of RETELL. re·took', past tense of RETAKE. re·tool', v. t., re·tooth' (rē·tōōth'), v. t., re·tooth'er (-ĕr), n. See RE-, 2. ret'or·nel'la. † RITORNELLO. re·torqued', adj. [L. retorquere, or F. rétorquer.] Twisted or turned back. Obs.
re·tor'sĭ·o fac'ti. See RETORTION, 3. re·tor'sion (rē·tôr'shŭn). Var. of RETORTION.
‖ré'tor·sion' de droit'. See RETORTION, 3.
re·tor't'a·ble (rē·tôr't'ä·b'l), adj. See -ABLE.
retort drawer. See DRAWER.
re·tor'ture, v. t., re·toss', v. t., re·to'tal, v. t. See RE-, 2. re·tour'a·ble (rē·tōōr'ä·b'l), adj. Scots Law. See -ABLE.
re·trace'a·ble, adj. See -ABLE.

re·trace′ment (rē·trās′mĕnt), n. Act or result of retracing.

re·tract′ (rē·trăkt′), v.; -TRACT′ED; -TRACT′ING. [F. rétracter, fr. L. retractare, retractatum, to handle again, reconsider, retract, fr. retrahere, retractum, to draw back. In senses 1 & 2 fr. L. retractus, past part. of retrahere. See RETREAT.] Transitive: 1. To draw or pull back or in; as, the cat can retract its claws; to retract the tongue. 2. Obs. a To draw or bring (a person) back. b To hold back; to prevent; to restrain. c To take away; remove. 3. To withdraw (an accusation, promise, or the like); to recall; recant; disavow; take back.

4. Phonet. In uttering a speech sound, to place (the tongue) farther back; thus, in sounding the vowel of ask, some speakers retract the tongue more than others; to utter with the tongue drawn back. Cf. ADVANCE, v. i., 11.

—, Intransitive: 1. To retire; to retreat. Obs.

2. To draw back; to undergo retraction.

3. To withdraw an accusation, promise, or the like.

> She will, and she will not; she grants, denies, > Consents, retracts, advances, and then flies. Granville.

Syn. — Rescind, abjure, repudiate, disown. See RENOUNCE. Ant. — Reaffirm, repeat, reiterate.

re·tract′ (rē·trăkt′), n. Obs. 1. a Retractation. b Retreat.

2. The pricking of a horse's foot in nailing on a shoe.

re′trac·ta′tion (rē′trăk·tā′shŭn), n. [Cf. F. rétractation, L. retractatio a revision, reconsideration.] 1. A revision; rehandling; — used esp. [cap.] in the pl. as the title of a work by St. Augustine containing a new treatment, with corrections, of subjects contained in previous books.

2. A retraction, or recantation, or revocation of a promise.

re·tract′ed (rē·trăk′tĕd; -tĭd; 119), past tense & past part. of RETRACT. Specif.: adj. Drawn, pulled, or moved, back; withdrawn; recanted.

retracted accent. a A syllabic accent that has been moved back. Bal′cony, formerly balco′ny, is an example. b = RECESSIVE ACCENT.

re·trac′tile (rē·trăk′tĭl; 155), adj. [Cf. F. rétractile.] Capable of, or exhibiting, retraction; capable of being drawn back or in; as, the claws of a cat are retractile; a retractile spring. — re′trac·til′i·ty (rē′trăk·tĭl′ĭ·tĭ), n.

re·trac′tion (rē·trăk′shŭn), n. [Cf. F. rétraction, L. retractio a drawing back, hesitation.] 1. Act of withdrawing a declaration, accusation, promise, etc.; recantation; revocation; recall; also, a statement made by one retracting; as, a retraction of a charge or decree; to insist upon a retraction.

2. = RETRACTATION, 1; — used [cap. & pl.] as a title. Obs.

3. Act of retracting, or drawing back or in; state of being retracted; retractile power; as, the retraction of claws.

4. Act of taking away; detraction. Obs.

re·trac′tive (-tĭv), adj. 1. Serving to retract; that retracts.

2. Disposed to draw back. Rare.

— re·trac′tive·ly, adv. — re·trac′tive·ness, n. Rare.

re·trac′tive, n. That which withdraws; a dissuasive. Obs.

re·trac′tor (rē·trăk′tĕr), n. [NL.] One who or that which retracts. Specif.: a = EXTRACTOR b. b Surg. (1) An instrument to hold apart the edges of a wound during an operation. (2) A bandage to protect the soft parts from the saw during amputation. c Anat. & Zool. A muscle serving to draw in any organ or part; — opposed to protractor.

re′trad (rē′trăd; rĕt′răd), adv. [L. retro backward + -ad.] Anat. Backward or posteriorly.

re′tra·di′tion (rē′trə·dĭsh′ŭn), n. [LL. retradere to give back.] Reconveyance, as of land. Rare.

re′tra·hent (rē′trə·hĕnt), adj. [L. retrahens, -entis, pres. part. of retrahere. See RETREAT, n.] That retracts, or draws back; — of a muscle.

re′tral (rē′trăl), adj. [L. retro backward + -al.] 1. Situated at or toward the back; posterior.

2. Backward; retrograde.

— re′tral·ly, adv.

re·traz′it (rē·trăk′sĭt), n. [L., (he) has withdrawn.] Common Law. The withdrawing of a suit in court by the plaintiff personally, by which he lost his right of action.

re·tread′ (rē·trĕd′), n. A new tread on a tire.

re·tread′, v. t. To furnish (a tire, as for an automobile) with a new tread.

re–tread′ (rē·trĕd′), v. t. & i. See RE-, 2. — re–tread′er, n.

re·treat′ (rē·trēt′), n. [OF. retret, retrait, retraite, fr. retraire to withdraw, fr. L. retrahere, fr. re- re- + trahere to draw. See TRACE; cf. RETRACT, RETRACE.] 1. Act of retiring, or withdrawing, as from what is difficult, dangerous, or disagreeable, or, sometimes, into privacy from business, public life, or society.

2. The place to which anyone retires; a place of seclusion, privacy, safety, or resort; a retired place or abode; a refuge; an asylum; a hiding place; a den.

3. An asylum for insane persons, inebriates, etc.

4. Aeronautics. The extent to which a plane, wing tip, or the like retreats.

5. Arch. A retirement; a recess, as of one surface behind another in panel; recessed work; a retired part; a recess. A building or part of a building withdrawn from a principal line, as of a façade, is said to be in retreat.

6. Eccl. A special season of seclusion, often with withdrawal to a religious house, during which religious exercises are engaged in exclusively. Cf. QUIET DAY.

7. Mil. a The withdrawal, esp. when forced, of troops from the presence of an enemy, or from ground occupied to ground farther from the enemy, or from an advanced position. A retreat is properly an orderly march, in which circumstance it differs from a flight, rout, etc. It differs from a retirement in that it is not voluntary. b A signal for retreating or retiring. c A signal given in the army, by drum, trumpet, or the like, following evening roll call or parade and immediately followed by the sunset gun.

8. Nav. The withdrawing of a ship or fleet from an enemy to avoid an engagement, for strategic reasons, or to escape after defeat.

9. Veter. = RETRACT, n., 2. Obs.

Syn. — Retirement, departure, withdrawal; seclusion, solitude, privacy; shelter, refuge.

Ant. — Advance, advancement, progress.

re·treat′ (rē·trēt′), v.; -TREAT′ED; -TREAT′ING. Intransitive: 1. To make a retreat; to retire from any position or place; to withdraw; to recede; as, the army retreated.

2. Aeronautics. To slope backward; — said of a plane, wing tip, etc.

—, Transitive: 1. To draw or lead back; to withdraw; to remove; specif., Chess, to move (a piece) back.

2. To retrace; also, to reduce. Obs. or Rare.

3. To retract; reverse; rescind; revoke. Obs. Scot.

re–treat′ (rē·trēt′), v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·treat′al (rē·trēt′ăl; -l), adj. Of or pert. to retreat.

re·treat′ant (-ănt), n. Eccl. One who is in retreat.

re·treat′er (-ĕr), n. 1. One who retreats.

2. Eccl. = RETREATANT.

re·treat′ful (-fŏŏl; -fl), adj. Furnishing, or serving as, a retreat. Rare.

re·treat′ing, pres. part. & verbal n. of RETREAT. Specif.: adj. a That recedes, or slopes backward; as, a retreating chin. b That retreats, or fades away.—re·treat′ing·ness, n.

> Her little retreating voice. Margaret Deland.

re·treat′ive (rē·trēt′ĭv), adj. [retreat + -ive.] Tending to retreat; retreating; indicative of retreat, or withdrawal.

re·treat′ment (-mĕnt), n. Act of retreating; retreat. Rare.

re–treat′ment (rē·trēt′mĕnt), n. See RE-, 2.

re·tree′ (rē·trē′), n. [Prob. fr. F. retrait withdrawal, shrinkage, fr. retraire to withdraw.] Imperfect or slightly damaged paper, such as paper with dirty specks, stains, pinholes, etc., occurring in the process of manufacture; — often marked R in the United States and XX in England, on packages and in the invoices. Called also retree paper.

re·trench′ (rē·trĕnch′; 105), v.; -TRENCHED′ (-trĕncht′); -TRENCH′ING. [MF. retrencher (F. retrancher). See RE-; TRENCH, v.] Transitive: 1. Obs. a To cut short; to repress. b To cut off; to intercept.

2. To cut down; to lessen; reduce; diminish; curtail; as, to retrench superfluities or expenses.

> But this thy glory shall be soon retrenched. Milton.

3. To cut out; excise; omit, as a paragraph. Rare.

4. To cut off; to pare away; to remove; to do away with.

5. Fort. To furnish with a retrenchment.

—, Intransitive: To make retrenchments or reductions; specif., to cut down living expenses; to economize.

Syn. — See ABRIDGE. Ant. — See INCREASE.

re–trench′ (rē·trĕnch′; 105), v. t. To trench again.

re·trench′er (rē·trĕn′chĕr), n. One who retrenches.

re·trench′ment (-trĕnch′mĕnt), n. [MF. retrenchement (F. retranchement).] 1. Act or process of retrenching; reduction; curtailment; excision; cutting down of expenses.

2. Fort. A work, usually a simple traverse or parapet and ditch, constructed within another, to prolong the defense when the enemy has gained the outer work.

Syn. — Lessening, diminution, cut, abridgment.

Ant. — Increase, expansion, enlargement.

re·tri′al (rē·trī′ăl), n. A second trial, experiment, or test; a second judicial trial, as of an accused person.

re·trib′ute (rē·trĭb′ūt; rĕt′rĭ·būt; cf. ATTRIBUTE, v. t.), v. t.; -UT·ED (-ū·tĕd; -tĭd; 119); -UT·ING. [L. retributus, past part. of retribuere to retribute, fr. re- + tribuere to bestow, assign, pay. See TRIBUTE.] To pay back; to give in return; to requite. Now Rare. — v. i. To make requital. Rare.

ret′ri·bu′tion (rĕt′rĭ·bū′shŭn), n. [OF., fr. L. retributio.] 1. Recompense; return; reward; as, to be denied just retribution for his service. Now Rare.

2. The dispensing or receiving of reward or punishment according to the deserts of the individual, esp. in the hereafter; often, specif., the Last Judgment; as, the power of retribution; the day of retribution.

3. That given or exacted in recompense; specif., punishment; esp., condign punishment in the hereafter.

> Provoked a retribution, too severe. Wordsworth.

Syn. — See REQUITAL.

re·trib′u·tive (rē·trĭb′ū·tĭv), adj. Of, pert. to, or of the nature of, retribution; involving retribution, or condign punishment; as, retributive justice. — re·trib′u·tive·ly, adv.

re·trib′u·tor (-ū·tĕr), n. One who exacts or who pays retribution.

re·trib′u·to′ry (-tō′rĭ or, esp. Brit., -tĕr·ĭ), adj. Involving, causing, or characterized by, retribution; retributive.

re·tricked′ (rē·trĭkt′), adj. Tricked out anew; renewed; renovated.

re·trieve′al (rē·trēv′ăl; -l), n. Act of retrieving; also, possibility of being retrieved or of recovering; as, beyond retrieval.

re·trieve′ (rē·trēv′), v.; -TRIEVED′ (-trēvd′); -TRIEV′ING (-trēv′ĭng). [For older retreve, fr. OF. retrover to find again, recover (3d sing. pres. il retrueve), F. retrouver, fr. re- re- + OF. trover to find. See TROVER; cf. CONTRIVE.] Transitive: 1. Hunt. a Obs. To discover again (game once sprung); esp., to flush (partridges) a second time; — said of dogs. b To discover and bring in (killed or wounded game).

2. To recover, as by study or an effort of memory; to call to mind again; to find again.

3. To recover; regain; as, to retrieve freedom.

> With late repentance now they would retrieve
> The bodies they forsook, and wish to live. Dryden.

4. To bring back; to make return; to recall. Obs.

5. To restore; revive; as, to retrieve one's character.

6. To remedy the evil consequences of; to make good; to repair, as a loss or damage.

> Accept my sorrow, and retrieve my fall. Prior.

—, Intransitive: 1. Hunting. To retrieve game.

2. To recover; to recuperate. Obs.

re·trieve′ (rē·trēv′), n. 1. The rediscovery or second flushing of game, esp. birds, once sprung. Obs.

2. Retrieval; esp., possibility of being retrieved.

3. Act or process of retrieving, or drawing back, something; as, on the retrieve, this mechanical bait travels at a constant depth with a zigzag motion.

Retriever. 1/30

re·trieve′less (-lĕs; -lĭs; 119), adj. Irretrievable.

re·trieve′ment (-mĕnt), n. Retrieval.

re·triev′er (rē·trēv′ĕr), n. 1. Any dog used for retrieving; specif., an active, medium-sized dog of a breed of uncertain origin long used for this purpose. It has a shapely head of large brain capacity, straight forelegs, and strong hind quarters, and weighs from 60 to 70 pounds. Four varieties are distinguished, chiefly by the color and texture of the coat: (1) curly-coated retriever, with a coat of short, crisp curls; (2) flat-coated retriever, with a dense, very flat coat of fine texture, black or liver in color like that of the curly-coated variety, and well-feathered legs; (3) golden retriever, with a rich golden flat or wavy coat, dense undercoat and water-resisting outer coat; (4) Labrador retriever, with a short, dense, hard, unwaved black coat, and wider head, chest, and ribs than the other varieties have.

2. One who retrieves.

3. Electric Cars. Short for TROLLEY RETRIEVER.

re·trim′ (rē·trĭm′), v. t. To trim again or anew. See RE-, 2. — re·trim′mer (-ĕr), n.

ret′ro- (rĕt′rō- or, esp. in physiological terms, rē′trō-). [L., fr. retro, adv., backward, back, orig. compar. fr. re-. Cf. RE-.] A prefix signifying: a Backward, back, as in retroact, to act backward; retrospect, a looking back. b Situated behind, as in retrochoir. c Med. Retrograde, contrary to the usual or natural course, as in retroinfection, retrovaccination. d Anat. Situated behind a (specified) part, as in:

retroauricular	retroinsular	retropharyngeal retroauricular	retroiridian	retroplacental retrobronchial	retrojugular	retropulmonary retrobuccal	retrolabyrinthine	retrorectal retrobulbar	retrolaryngeal	retrorenal retrocardiac	retrolingual	retrosplenic retrocervical	retromammary	retrosternal retroclavicular	retromammillary	retrotarsal retrocolic	retromandibular	retrotemporal retrocostal	retromastoid	retrothyroid retrodural	retromaxillary	retrotracheal retroesophageal	retronasal	retrotympanic retrofrontal	retro-ocular	retro-umbilical retrogastric	retro-omental	retro-uterine retrohepatic	retro-oral	retroxiphoid

‖re′tro (rē′trō; rĕt′rō), adv. [L.] Backward; to the rear; — used esp. with or without vade as a command, in allusion to Mark viii, 33, in the Vulgate, Vade retro me, satana (get thee behind me, Satan).

> But the sacred work says to Fate: > Retro, Satanas! This comrade is not your puppet. Galsworthy.

ret′ro·act′ (rĕt′rō·ăkt′; rē′trō-; 277), v. i. To act backward, or in return or opposition; to react or reciprocate.

ret′ro·ac′tion (-ăk′shŭn), n. [Cf. F. rétroaction.] 1. Retroactive operation as of a law, or going into effect, as a tax.

2. A return, or reciprocal, action; reaction.

ret′ro·ac′tive (-tĭv), adj. [Cf. F. rétroactif.] 1. Having relation or reference to, or efficacy in, a prior time; specif., taking effect prior to enactment, promulgation, imposition, or the like; as, the retroactive effect of the Redemption; a retroactive law, decree, or tax.

2. Reactive. Rare.

— ret′ro·ac′tive·ly, adv.

retroactive coil. Elec. A reactor.

retroactive law or statute. Law. One operating to make criminal or punishable, or in any way expressly to affect, acts done prior to the passing of the law. Cf. EX POST FACTO LAW.

ret′ro·ac·tiv′i·ty (-ăk·tĭv′ĭ·tĭ), n. Quality or state of being retroactive.

ret′ro·cae′cal, -ce′cal (rĕt′rō·sē′kăl; rē′trō-), adj. [retro- + caecal.] Anat. Behind the caecum; as, the retrocaecal fossa, a peritoneal recess below and behind the caecum; the retrocaecal appendix, the vermiform appendix when directed upward behind the caecum.

ret′ro·cede′ (rĕt′rō·sēd′; rē′trō-; 277), v. i. [L. retrocedere, fr. retro backward, back + cedere to go. See CEDE.] To go back; to recede; Med., to go from the surface to the interior, as in certain diseases where internal manifestations supervene on external ones.

re′tro·cede′ (rē′trō·sēd′; rĕt′rō-), v. t. [F. rétrocéder.] To cede or grant back.

ret′ro·ced′ence (rĕt′rō·sēd′ĕns; rē′trō-), n. Retrocession.

ret′ro·ced′ent (-sēd′ĕnt), adj. [L. retrocedens, pres. part.] a Astron. Retrograde. b Med. Retroceding.

ret′ro·ces′sion (rĕt′rō·sĕsh′ŭn; rē′trō-), n. [LL. retrocessio.] Act of retroceding; recession; retrogression; specif.: a Obs. Precession (of the equinoxes). Astron. b Med. Metastasis of a disease, an eruption, or a tumor, from the surface to the interior of the body.

ret′ro·ces′sion, n. [F. rétrocession.] 1. Scots Law. The assignment by an assignee of a right to the cedent, or assignor, to him.

2. Act of receding, or ceding back.

ret′ro·ces′sion·al (-sĕsh′ŭn·ăl; -l), adj. & n. Recessional.

ret′ro·ces′sion·ist (-ĭst), n. An advocate of retrocession.

ret′ro·ces′sive (-sĕs′ĭv), adj. 1. Retrograde.

2. Of or pertaining to retrocession or ceding back.

re′tro·choir (rē′trō·kwīr; rĕt′rō-), n. [retro- + choir.] Arch. The space left in a church behind the high altar or choir enclosure, sometimes used as a chapel, and occasionally containing a second choir enclosure; also, in an apsidal church, all the space beyond the line of the back or eastern face of the altar.

re′tro·clu′sion (-klōō′zhŭn; 242), n. [retro- + occlusion.] Surg. A form of acupressure in which the needle is passed just above, and then below, the artery, being turned so that it comes out near the point of entrance.

re′tro·cog·ni′tion (-kŏg·nĭsh′ŭn), n. [retro- + cognition.] Occult mediumistic knowledge of past events, not accounted for by memory or normal sources of information.

re′tro·cop′u·lant (-kŏp′ū·lănt), adj. Copulating backward. — re′tro·cop′u·la′tion (-lā′shŭn), n.

ret′ro·curved′ (rĕt′rō·kûrvd′; rē′trō-), adj. Recurved.

ret′ro·date′ (rĕt′rō·dāt′; rē′trō-; 66), v. t. To date back.

re′tro·de′vi·a′tion (rē′trō·dē′vĭ·ā′shŭn; rĕt′rō-), n. [retro- + deviation.] Med. Backward displacement, as of an organ.

re′tro·dis·place′ment (-dĭs·plās′mĕnt), n. [retro- + displacement.] Med. Displacement backwards of a part.

re′tro·duc′tion (-dŭk′shŭn), n. [L. retroducere, retroductum, to lead or bring back.] A leading or bringing back.

ret′ro·flect′ed (rĕt′rō·flĕk′tĕd; -tĭd; 119), adj. Retroflexed; turned or bent backward.

ret′ro·flec′tion (-flĕk′shŭn), n. Med. Retroflexion.

ret′ro·flex (rĕt′rō·flĕks; rē′trō-), v. i. To turn or bend backward.

---

re·track′, v. i. See RE-, 2.

re·tract′a·ble (rē·trăk′tə·bl), adj. See -ABLE. — re·tract′a·bil′i·ty (-tə·bĭl′ĭ·tĭ), n.

re·trac′tate, v. t. [L. retractatus, past part. of retractare. See RETRACT.] To retract; recant. Obs.

re·tract′i·ble (rē·trăk′tĭ·b'l), adj. [F. rétractible.] See -ABLE. — re·tract′i·bil′i·ty (-bĭl′ĭ·tĭ), n.

re·trac′til. Retractile. Ref. Sp.

re·trade′, v. i. & n. See RE-, 2.

re·traict′, n. & v. Retreat. Obs.

re·train′, v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·trait′, n. [It. ritratto, fr. ritrarre to draw back, draw, fr. L. retrahere. See RETRACT.] A portrait; a likeness. Obs.

re·trait′, n. & v. Retreat. Obs.

re·tramp′, v. i. & i., re·tram·p′le, v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·tranch′, v. t. [F. retrancher.] To retrench; cut down. Obs.

re·tran′quil·ize, v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·tran·scribe′, v. t. See RE-, 2.

— re·tran·scrip′tion, n.

re·trans′fer, n. re·trans·fer′, v. t., re·trans·fer′ence, n., re·trans·fig′ure, v. t., re·trans·form′, v. t., re′trans·for·ma′tion, n., re·trans·fuse′, v. t., re·trans′it, v. i. & i., re·trans·late′, v. t., re′trans·la′tion, n., re·trans·mis′sion, n., re·trans·mis′sive, adj., re·trans·mit′, v. t., re′trans·mute′, v. t., re·trans·plant′, v. t., re·trans·port′, v. t., re′trans·por·ta′tion, n., re·trav′el, v. t., re′tra·verse′, v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·tray′, v. t. & i. [F. retraire.] To withdraw. Obs.

re·treat′a·ble, adj. Withdrawable. Obs. [See ANABASIS, 2.]

Retreat of the Ten Thousand.

re·trench′a·ble, adj. See -ABLE.

retribute, v. t. [F. retribuer, fr. L. retribuere.] To requite. Obs.

re·trib′u·tar′y. Var. of RETRIBUTORY.

re·trib′u·tiv. Retributive. Ref. Sp.

retributive damages. See EXEMPLARY DAMAGES.

re·triev′. Retrieve. Ref. Sp.

re·triev′a·bl. Retrievable. R. S.

re·triev′a·ble (rē·trēv′ə·b'l), adj. See -ABLE. — re·triev′a·bil′i·ty (-bĭl′ĭ·tĭ), n. — re·triev′a·ble·ness, n. — re·triev′a·bly, adv.

re·trievd′. Retrieved. Ref. Sp.

re·triev′er·ish, adj. See -ISH.

re·trip′, n. See RE-, 2.

re′tro·cog′ni·tive, adj., re′tro·con′scious·ness, n., re′tro·cou′ple, v. t., re′tro·cou′pler, n. See RETRO-, 1 a.

N O P Q R

ret'ro·flex (rĕt'rō·flĕks; rē'trō-), ret'ro·flexed' (-flĕkst'), adj. [retro- + L. flexus, past part. of flectere to bend, to turn.] 1. Reflexed; bent or turned abruptly backward. 2. Phonet. Of the tongue, having the tip raised and bent back; of sounds, formed thus, as in one form of r or of the vowel in fur. See Pron., §§ 43 (4), 120 f, 211. 3. Psychol. Designating, pertaining to, instrumental in, or associated with, the facilitation of beneceptive responses and the elimination of nociceptive responses.

ret'ro·flex, n. Psychol. A retroflex action.

ret'ro·flex'ion (rĕt'rō·flĕk'shŭn), n. Act of reflexing, or state of being retroflexed; specif., Med., the bending back of an organ upon itself. In retroflexion of the uterus, the fundus is bent back upon the cervix, the latter being little if at all out of its normal axis. Cf. RETROVERSION, 2.

ret'ro·fract (rĕt'rō·frăkt; rē'trō-), ret'ro·fract'ed (-frăk'tĕd; -tĭd; 119), adj. [retro- + L. fractus.] Bot. Refracted.

re'tro·gen'er·a'tive (rē'trō·jĕn'ĕr·ā'tĭv; rĕt'rō-), adj. Begetting young by retrocopulation. Rare.

ret'ro·gra·da'tion (rĕt'rō·grā·dā'shŭn; rē'trō-), n. [LL. retrogradatio. See RETROGRADE.] Act of retrograding, or state of being retrograde; specif.: a Astron. = RETROGRESSION. b A going back in investigation or reasoning.

ret'ro·gra'da·to'ry (rĕt'rō·grā'dā·tō'rĭ; rē'trō-), adj. Causing retrogradation.

ret'ro·grade (rĕt'rō·grād; rē'trō-; 277), adj. [ME. retrograd, fr. L. retrogradus, fr. retrogradi, -gressus, to retrograde, fr. retro + gradi to step. See REGRESS.] 1. Astron. a Having a direction contrary to that of the general planetary course and the order of the signs; directed from east to west; — said of apparent or real motion of a celestial body. b Exhibiting such motion, as a planet.
2. Moving or going backward, literally.
3. Going, or inclined to go, from a better to a worse state; declining; as, a retrograde people; retrograde ideas.
4. Directed backward, or having a backward direction, motion, or tendency; contrary to the previous direction; as, a retrograde motion; — opposed to progressive.
5. Inverse; inverted; as, retrograde order.
6. Obs. a Opposed; contrary. b Backward; slow.
7. Biol. Characterized by retrogression.
8. Med. Catabolic.
9. Zool. Habitually walking or swimming backwards.
Syn. — Backward, rearward; decadent.
Ant. — Forward; progressive.
— ret'ro·grade'ly, adv.

ret'ro·grade (rĕt'rō·grād; rē'trō-; 277), v.; -GRAD'ED (-grād'ĕd); -GRAD'ING (-grād'ĭng). [L. retrogradi (past part. retrogressus), LL. retrogradare.] Intransitive: 1. To go in a retrograde direction; to go, move, or appear to move, backward; to recede; as, a planet or a glacier retrogrades.
2. To decline from a better to a worse condition, as in morals or intelligence; to degenerate.
3. To go back to an earlier or former time or position.
—, Transitive: To turn back; to reverse. Now Rare.

ret'ro·grade, n. 1. One who declines or degenerates.
2. Retrogression.

ret'ro·grade, adv. Backward; reversely.

retrograde amnesia. See AMNESIA.

retrograde evolution. Biol. Evolution which, instead of producing higher or more specialized organisms, has produced degraded or more generalized ones; evolution toward lower or less specialized forms. Cf. ASCIDIAN.

retrograde imitation. Music. Contrapuntal imitation in which the theme or subject is repeated backwards.

ret'ro·gra'di·ent (rĕt'rō·grā'dĭ·ĕnt; rē'trō-), adj. [L. retrogradiens, pres. part.] Astrol. Retrograde. Obs.

ret'ro·grad·ism (rĕt'rō·grăd·ĭz'm; rē'trō-), n. Reactionary principles. — ret'ro·grad'ist (-grăd'ĭst), n.

ret'ro·gress (rĕt'rō·grĕs; rē'trō-; 66), v. i. [L. retrogressus, past part. of retrogradi.] To move backwards; to revert to an earlier state or condition.

ret'ro·gress, n. [L. retrogressus.] Retrogression.

ret'ro·gres'sion (-grĕsh'ŭn), n. [Cf. F. rétrogression. See RETROGRADE, v. & adj.; cf. DIGRESSION.] 1. Act or process of retrograding; as: Astron. The apparent backward movement of a planet; motion, or a movement, from east to west among the stars.
2. A going back in development or condition; esp.: Biol. a A passing from a higher to a lower state or type of organization or structure, in the course of the development of an animal. b Med. Atrophy or degeneration, specif. of a tissue, often with replacement by a less specialized tissue, as connective tissue, or by inert material, as calcium salts. c Music. Retrograde imitation.

ret'ro·gres'sion·ist (-ĭst), n. A person inclined to retrogression.

ret'ro·gres'sive (-grĕs'ĭv), adj. Retrograding or tending to retrograde; going, moving, or directed, backward; going back, as in investigation; going from a better to a worse state; retrograde; declining. Specif.: Biol. Passing from a higher to a lower organization; exhibiting retrogression. — ret'ro·gres'sive·ly, adv.

ret'ro·gres'sive (rĕt'rō·grĕs'ĭv), n. A retrogressionist.

retrogressive substitution. Chem. Substitution resulting in the reconversion of a compound into a simpler one from which it is regarded as derived; specif., in organic chemistry, replacement of an atom or radical by hydrogen.

re'tro·in·fec'tion (rē'trō·ĭn·fĕk'shŭn; rĕt'rō-), n. Infection contrary to what would be considered the natural course; specif., infection communicated to a mother by her fetus.

ret'ro·ject (rĕt'rō·jĕkt; rē'trō-), v. t. [retro- + -ject as in reject.] To throw or cast back.

ret'ro·jec'tion (-jĕk'shŭn), n. A retrojecting; specif.: a A setting back to an earlier date. b Med. A mode of cleansing a cavity by washing it, as with a spray, from within.

re'tro·lo·ca'tion (rē'trō·lō·kā'shŭn; rĕt'rō-), n. Retroposition; a replacing, or placing back again.

ret'ro·mi·gra'tion (rĕt'rō·mī·grā'shŭn; rē'trō-), n. A migration back.

re'tro·min'gent (rē'trō·mĭn'jĕnt; rĕt'rō-), adj. [retro- + L. mingens, pres. part. of mingere to urinate.] Urinating backward. — n. Zool. A retromingent animal. — re'tro·min'gent·ly, adv.

re'tro·mor'phosed (-môr'phōzd; -fōst), adj. Physiol. Characterized or affected by retromorphosis.

re'tro·mor'pho·sis (-môr'fō·sĭs), n. [NL.] Physiol. Metamorphosis accompanied by degeneration; catabolism.

ret'ro–op'er·a'tive (rĕt'rō·ŏp'ĕr·ā'tĭv; rē'trō-), adj. Retroactive.

re'tro·per'i·to·ne'al (rē'trō·pĕr'ĭ·tō·nē'ăl; rĕt'rō-), adj. Behind the peritoneum. — ·per'i·to·ne'al·ly, adv.

re'tro·phar'yn·gi'tis (rē'trō·făr'ĭn·jī'tĭs; rĕt'rō-), n. [NL. See RETRO-; PHARYNGITIS.] Med. Inflammation of the retropharyngeal tissues.

re'tro·posed (rē'trō·pōzd; rĕt'rō-), adj. [retro- + posed, past part. of pose, v.] Med. Displaced backward, without version or flection. — re'tro·po·si'tion (-pō·zĭsh'ŭn), n.

re'tro·pu'bic (-pū'bĭk), adj. [retro- + pubic.] Anat. Behind the pubis; specif., designating a pad of fat behind the symphysis pubis.

re'tro·pul'sion (-pŭl'shŭn), n. [retro- + pulsion.] Literally, a driving or pushing back. Specif.: Med. a Obs. = 1st RETROCESSION b. b A forcing or pushing back of the fetal head in labor. c A disorder of locomotion marked by a tendency to walk backwards, attending paralysis agitans.

re'tro·pul'sive (-pŭl'sĭv), adj. [retro- + L. pellere, pulsum, to impel.] Repelling.

re·trorse' (rē·trôrs'), adj. [L. retrorsus, retroversus, fr. retro back + vertere, versum, to turn. Cf. RETROVERT.] Bent backward or downward. — re·trorse'ly, adv.

re'tro·ser'rate (rē'trō·sĕr'āt; rĕt'rō-), adj. Bot. & Zool. Having retrorse teeth or barbs. — re'tro·ser'ru·late (-sĕr'ōō·lāt), adj.

ret'ro·spect (rĕt'rō·spĕkt; rē'trō-; 277), v. [L. retrospicere, fr. retro back + specere, spectum, to look. See SPY; cf. EXPECT.] Intransitive: 1. To practice retrospection.
2. To look back; hence, to refer (to); to reflect (on). Now Rare.

It may be useful to retrospect to an early period. A. Hamilton.

—, Transitive: To go back over in thought; to consider or think of with reference to the past.

You and I have often retrospected the faces and minds of grown people. Richardson.

ret'ro·spect, n. A looking back. Specif.: a A regard or reference to something prior; — usually with to. Now Rare. b A looking back on things past; a review of the past; as, to see things in retrospect; to give a short retrospect of recent legislation. c Rare. Retroactive application.

ret'ro·spect, adj. Retrospective.

ret'ro·spec'tion (rĕt'rō·spĕk'shŭn; rē'trō-), n. 1. A looking back; reference or allusion, as to the past or to something past. Now Rare.
2. Retroactive application or enforcement. Rare.
3. Act, power, or mood, of recollecting the past; also, a review or contemplation of past events, etc.; a retrospect; as, to indulge in retrospection; an interesting retrospection of the Victorian era.
4. Psychol. Observation of mental processes immediately after their occurrence, through primary memory.

ret'ro·spec'tive (rĕt'rō·spĕk'tĭv; rē'trō-), adj. 1. That is directed backwards or to the past; contemplative of or relative to things past; — opposed to prospective; as, a retrospective view; retrospective considerations.
2. Retroactive; affecting things past. Cf. EX POST FACTO.
3. Characterized by, given to, or indulging in, retrospection; as, a retrospective mood, octogenarian, or remark.
— ret'ro·spec'tive·ly, adv. — ret'ro·spec'tive·ness, n.

ret'ro·spec'tive, n. A retrospective view. — ret'ro·spec·tiv'i·ty (-spĕk·tĭv'ĭ·tĭ), n.

re'tro·stal'sis (rē'trō·stăl'sĭs; rĕt'rō-), n. [NL., fr. retro- + peristalsis.] Med. Backward motion of the intestines; reversed peristalsis. — re'tro·stal'tic (-tĭk), adj.

‖re·trous'sage' (rĕ·trōō'sȧzh'), n. [F., prop., a turning up.] Act or process of wiping, with a cloth, an engraved plate, after it has been inked and before printing, in such a way as to draw up a slight amount of ink to the edges of the filled lines and so soften the definition of the lines when printed.

ret'rous·sé' (rĕt'rōō·sā'; Brit. usu. rē·trōō'sā; F. rē·trōō'sā'), adj. [F., past part. of retroussser to turn up.] Turned up; — said chiefly of the nose.

re'tro·vac'ci·nate (rē'trō·văk'sĭ·nāt; rĕt'rō-), v. t. [retro- + vaccinate.] Med. To vaccinate (a human being) with virus from a cow inoculated with smallpox virus.

re'tro·vac'ci·na'tion (-nā'shŭn), n. 1. Act or process of retrovaccinating.
2. Immunol. Vaccination in which smallpox virus from human vesicles is used as seed virus in producing smallpox vaccine in cattle. This vaccine, for human use, is called re'tro·vac'cine (-văk'sĭn; -sēn).

ret'ro·verse' (rĕt'rō·vûrs'; rē'trō-; 66), adj. [L. retroversus.] Turned backward.

ret'ro·ver'sion (-vûr'shŭn), n. [Cf. F. rétroversion. See RETROVERT, VERSION.] 1. Literally, a turning or bending backward: a Obs. Scot. Reversal; annulment. b A turning or looking back. c Translation back into the original language.
2. State of being turned backward; displacement backwards; as, retroversion of the uterus, in which the organ's axis is changed, the fundus pointing toward the sacrum and the cervix toward the symphysis pubis. Cf. RETROFLEXION.

ret'ro·vert' (rĕt'rō·vûrt'; rē'trō-; 66; 277), v. t.; -VERT'ED; -VERT'ING. [retro- + L. vertere to turn. Cf. RETRORSE.] To turn back; revert.

re·trude' (rē·trōōd'), v. t. [L. retrudere, retrusum, fr. re- + trudere to thrust. See THREAT.] To thrust back. — re·tru'sion (rē·trōō'zhŭn), n.

re·trus'i·ble (-trōōs'ĭ·b'l), adj. [L. retrusus, past part. See RETRUDE.] Admitting retrusion or retraction.

re·tru'sion (-trōō'zhŭn), n. [See RETRUSIBLE.] 1. Act or process of moving back or away.
2. Dent. a A condition in which a tooth is posterior to its proper occlusal position. b The act of moving a tooth posteriorly.

ret'ter (rĕt'ĕr), n. One who rets, as flax.

ret'ter·y (rĕt'ĕr·ĭ), n.; pl. -TERIES (-ĭz). Also ret'to·ry (-ō·rĭ). A place or establishment where flax is retted. See RET, v. t., 1.

ret'ting (rĕt'ĭng), pres. part. & verbal n. of RET. Specif.: n. Act or process, essentially of fermentation, of separating the bast fibers of flax, hemp, etc., from the surrounding woody and other stem tissues, involving exposure to weather (dew retting) or to water in tanks, ponds, or streams (water retting).

re·tund' (rē·tŭnd'), v. t.; -TUND'ED; -TUND'ING. [L. retundere, retusum, fr. re- re- + tundere to beat.] To beat or drive back; to render impotent, ineffective, weak, or useless; usually in specif. senses, as, to attenuate, blunt, dull, subdue, or refute. Obs.

re·turn' (rē·tûrn'), v.; -TURNED' (-tûrnd'); -TURN'ING. [ME. returnen, retornen, retournen, fr. OF. retourner. See RE-; TURN.] Intransitive: 1. To go or come back again to a place, person, or condition; as, return to your home.

Dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return. Gen. iii. 19.

2. To go back or revert in thought, narration, argument, or practice. "But to return to my story." Fielding.
3. To revert; to go, come, or pass, back, as in possession.

And Jeroboam said in his heart, Now shall the kingdom return to the house of David. 1 Kings xii. 26.

4. To speak in answer; to reply; respond; retort.
5. To turn round, back, or away. Obs.
—, Transitive: 1. To turn; to make go or come back; to turn round or back; to reverse. Obs.
2. To render, as an account, usually an official account, to a superior; to report officially by a list or statement; as, to return a list of jurors, of stores, of killed or wounded; to return the result of an election. Hence, Eng., to elect according to the official report, or returns.
3. To bring or send back to a tribunal or office, with a certificate of what has been done; to make return of, as a writ.
4. To bring, carry, put, or send, back; as, to return a borrowed book, or a hired horse.
5. To restore, as to a formal state or normalcy.
6. To turn or direct back, as the eyes.
7. To send back (upon or on); to visit. Now Rare.

The Lord shall return thy wickedness upon thine own head. 1 Kings ii. 44.

8. To give in requital or recompense; to repay; to respond to similarly; reciprocate; as, to return a present, one's love, or a courtesy.
9. To bring back in return for goods sent out as a venture; hence, to produce in return; to yield.
10. To give back; to send in return or reply; to say in reply or response; as, to return a thing lent, an answer, thanks.
11. To cause to continue in a different direction, chiefly at a right angle; to turn at an angle, as a wall.
12. To reflect, as light or sound.
13. Obs. a To retort, as an accusation. b To recall. c To send in or deliver into official custody, or to a general depository. Clarendon.
14. Card Playing. To lead in response to the lead of one's partner; as, to return a trump. Specif., in return a lead, to lead a suit already led by another player.
15. Games. To play back (the ball) to the one who delivered it.
16. Mil. To replace (a weapon) in its receptacle.
Syn. — Render, requite, repay; report; reply, answer; revert, recur. Ant. — Leave, abandon.

return to one's muttons, or sheep. [a translation of revenons à nos moutons, let us return to our sheep, from the French farce, Maître Patelin] To return to one's topic of discussion. Humorous.

return with one's shield or upon it. See under SHIELD, n.

re·turn' (rē·tûrn'), n. [ME. retorn, fr. the v.; cf. F. retour.] 1. Act of returning, or coming back, to or from a place or condition; as, the return of one long absent; the return of health.
2. Act of returning something or sending or bringing it back to the same place or condition; also, that which is so returned. Specif.: a Restoration; restitution. b A giving in recompense, acknowledgment, or the like; repayment; requital; that which is so given; a requital. c An answer; a retort. d An answering thrust, volley, or the like.

Is no return due from a grateful breast? Dryden.

3. a A quantity of goods, consignment, cargo, or the like, which comes back in exchange for goods sent out as a mercantile venture. b The value of, or profit from, such; now more widely, the profit on, or advantage from, labor, an investment, undertaking, etc.; income or profit in relation to its source; — often in pl., proceeds; results.
4. Recurrence, or coming round or on again; as, the return of an illness, the seasons, an anniversary.
5. A bend or turn, as in a rod, stream, or gallery; a portion between two bends.
6. An account, or formal report, of an action performed, of a duty discharged, of facts or statistics, and the like; as, election returns; a return of goods produced or sold; esp. (pl.), a set of tabulated statistics prepared for general information.
7. A person or thing sent back; — usually in pl.
8. Elliptically, a return ticket.
9. Arch. The continuation in a different direction, most often at a right angle, of the face of a building, or any member, as a colonnade, molding, or mold; — applied to the shorter in contradistinction to the longer; as, a façade of sixty feet east has a return of twenty feet north.
10. Art. In decorative work of various kinds, the carrying of a molding or group of moldings at an angle, usually a right angle, as when a picture frame is mitered at the corners, or a door trim at the end of an architrave.
11. Card Playing. A lead answering to a previous lead of one's partner.
12. Com. In the London Bankers' Clearing House, a check, draft, or other paper, calling for payment returned to the clearinghouse by the bank to which it is presented because of lack of funds, insufficient endorsement, or other defect.
13. Cricket, Tennis, etc. Act of returning the ball; a ball returned. See RETURN, v. t., 15.
14. Econ. Specif., the rate of yield of product in any given process of production per unit of cost, esp. in an industrial process. This is said to obey: the law of constant return, as when an increase of the scale of production gives a proportionate increase of return, as when an increase in area of land cultivated requires a proportionate increase in outlay for labor, etc.; the law of increasing return, as when increasingly intensive cultivation gives an increase in product proportionately greater than the increase of cost; or the law of diminishing return, as when increasingly intensive cultivation gives an increase in product proportionately smaller than the increase in cost.

☞ The term law of increasing return was formerly much used to explain the contrast between the effects of increased production in agriculture and in manufactures; but it is now passing out of use because a large part of the difference is due to other and more complex causes.

15. Elec. The conductor that conveys a current to the source after its energy is utilized.
16. Far. = BAR, n., 15 b.
17. Fort. & Mining. a The turnings and windings of a trench or gallery. b A short branch track, usually in a gallery, to hold returning trucks as others pass on the main track.
18. Law. a The rendering back or delivery of a writ, precept, or execution, to the proper officer or court. This is now usually done by filing the document, properly endorsed, in the clerk's office. b The certificate of an officer stating what he has done in or about the execution of a writ, precept, etc., endorsed on the document. c The sending back of a commission with the certificate of the commissioners. d Short for RETURN DAY. e Moham. Law. The addition to the sharers' portion of any residue remaining when there are no residuaries after satisfaction of the sharers' claims as such.

19. Mil. & Nav. An official report, or statement, rendered to the commander or other superior officer.
20. Mining. A return airway.
21. Tobacco. pl. (1) Refuse tobacco made up of fragments and siftings. (2) A kind prepared by returning shag for recutting. Eng.
Syn. — RETURN, RECURRENCE. RETURN denotes a coming back, whether to a place or a condition; RECURRENCE implies fresh occurrence; it often suggests repetition, sometimes at stated intervals; as, the return of the prodigal, the return of spring; the constant recurrence of the same topics of conversation, the daily recurrence of the delirium.

re·turn′ (rē·tûrn′), adj. 1. Having or formed by a return, or change of direction; as, a return façade or angle; also, turned back, or doubled upon itself; as, a return flue.
2. Of, pertaining to, causing, or permitting, a return to a place or condition; returning or returned; recurring; as, return orders, or smoke.
3. Played, delivered, or given, in return; as, a return game or blow.
4. Used or taken in returning or on a trip back; as, a return cargo, journey, passenger.
5. That returns or permits return; as, a return current or valve.

re·turn′a·bil′i·ty (rē·tûr′nə·bĭl′ĭ·tĭ), n. Quality or state of being returnable.

re·turn′a·ble (rē·tûr′nə·b'l), adj. 1. Law. Legally required to be returned, delivered, or rendered; as, a writ returnable at a certain day; a verdict returnable to the court.
2. That must be or may be returned; to be returned; as, returnable fees or deposits; hats are not returnable in many shops.
3. That can be returned, or restored to normal condition, former owners, etc. Now Rare.
4. Able to return. Rare.

return address. An address given at which articles, esp. mail, may be returned to the sender.

return ball. A child's ball held by an elastic string so that it returns to the hand or cup from which it is thrown.

return bead. A bead nearly a complete circle in section. Cf. BEAD, 4 a. return bend. A bend, as one in a pipe fitting, that alters the direction of its center line 180°.

return block. A snatch block.

return card. Advertising. A card sent out with other printed matter to be filled in, as with an order, and returned to the advertiser.

re·turn′–cocked′, adj. Arch. Designating a bead projecting from an angle and not flanked by grooves.

return connecting rod. Mach. A connecting rod having its crankpin end on the same side of the crosshead as the engine cylinder. Cf. STEEPLE ENGINE, Illust.

return crease. See 2d CRICKET, n.

return day. Law. The day when return is to be made. Specif.: a The day on which the defendant in an action or proceeding is to appear in court and answer the writ or other mandate therein which is to be then returned. b A day fixed for the return of all writs issued subsequent to the next prior return day.

re·turned′ (rē·tûrnd′), past tense & past part. of RETURN. Specif.: adj. 1. Turned or bent back; made with a return.
2. That has come back; as, a returned clergyman, a colonial clergyman who has come back to Great Britain.
3. Sent or brought back.
4. Given in the official returns or record.

returned archivolt. Arch. An archivolt in which the band formed by the archivolt proper is returned at an angle nearly or exactly ninety degrees and carried horizontally.

returned connecting rod. = RETURN CONNECTING ROD.

returned shipment rate. Railroads. A reduced rate on containers returned empty.

re·turn′er (rē·tûr′nĕr), n. One who returns.

return game, return match. A second game or match played by the same contestants, in order to give the losers of the first a chance to recoup their loss.

re·turn′ing board. U. S. Govt. An official body, usually State officers or a court, designated by law to canvass election returns.

returning officer. Eng. Govt. A government official, as a mayor or sheriff, designated to receive nominations and to conduct and report on elections.

re·turn′less, adj. Without, or not admitting of, return. — re·turn′less·ly, adv.

Return of the Native, The. A novel (1878) of Wessex life, by Thomas Hardy.

return piece. Theater. Either of two wings, connected to an interior setting, which turn off the stage back of each side of the proscenium opening.

return shock. Meteorol. An electric shock following electric discharge from a cloud, and due to the sudden release of electricity induced on bodies on the earth by the charge of the cloud.

return ticket. A ticket good for a return journey; also, a round-trip ticket.

return trap. A trap in a return pipe.

return wall. A wall making a decided angle with an outer wall of a building, and having approximately the same height as it; — distinguished legally from mere partitions or low walls carrying partitions.

re·tuse′ (rē·tūs′), adj. [L. retusus, past part. See RETUND.] Bot. Having the apex rounded or obtuse, with a slight notch, as a leaf.

retz′i·an (rĕt′sĭ·ən), n. [After R. J. Retzian (1742–1821), Sw. naturalist.] Mineral. A basic arsenate of manganese, calcium and the yttrium earths, occurring in brown orthorhombic crystals.

Ret′zi·us's space (rĕt′sĭ·ŭs·ĭz). [After A. A. Retzius (1796–1860), Sw. anatomist.] = SPACE OF RETZIUS.

Retzius's veins. Anat. Veins in the dorsal part of the abdomen, forming anastomoses between the inferior vena cava and the superior and inferior mesenteric veins.

Reu′ben (rōō′bĕn; -bĭn; 119), n. [Heb. Rĕ'ū'bēn.] Literally, behold, a son; — masc. proper name. Hence: Bib. a The eldest son of Jacob. b The tribe named after Reuben.

Reuch·lin′i·an (roĭk·lĭn′ĭ·ən), adj. Of or pertaining to Johann Reuchlin, the first great Greek scholar of the Renaissance in Germany; — used chiefly to designate a method of pronouncing classic Greek as living Greek of the Middle Ages, in general use in western Europe up to about 1600. Cf. ERASMIAN PRONUNCIATION. — n. A follower of Reuchlin.

Reuch′lin·ism (roĭk′lĭ·nĭz′m), n. [See REUCHLINIAN.] Itacism.

Reu′el (rōō′ĕl), n. [Heb. Rĕ'ū'ēl.] Literally, God is his friend; — masc. proper name.

re·une′ (rē·ūn′), v. t. [F. réunir. See UNITE.] To reunite. Obs.

re·une′ (rē·ūn′), v. i. [From REUNION.] To hold a reunion. Colloq.

re·un′ion (rē·ūn′yŭn), n. [re- + union; cf. F. réunion.]
1. Act of reuniting, or state of being reunited; a second union; union formed anew after separation or discord; as, reunion of parties; Christian reunion.
2. A reuniting of persons after separation; a meeting together or an assembly of persons once forming a group but now dispersed; as, a family, class, or regimental reunion.

re·un′ion, v. i. = 2d REUNE. Colloq.

re·un′ion·ist (-Ĭst), n. An advocate of reunion; specif. [usually cap.], an advocate of the reunion of the Anglican Church with the Roman Catholic Church. — re·un′ion·ism (-Iz′m), n. — re·un′ion·is′tic (-Is′tĭk), adj.

re′u·nite′ (rē′ū·nīt′), v. [ML. reunire.] Transitive:
1. To unite again; to bring together after separation.
2. Hindu Law. To restore the coparceners of a joint family, between whom partition has been made, to their prior position as coparceners.
——, Intransitive: To unite again; to rejoin.

re′u·nit′er (-nīt′ĕr), n. One who reunites.

re′u·ni′tion (-nĭsh′ŭn), n. Reunion. Rare.

re′u·ni′tive (rē′ū·nĭ′tĭv), adj. Characterized by, or causing, reunion.

re·up′ (rē·ŭp′), v. i. To re-enlist. U. S. Army Slang.

‖re′us (rē′ŭs), n. masc., re′a (rē′ȧ), fem.; pl. masc. REI (-ī), fem. REAE (-ē). [L.] Law. A defendant.

re·use′ (rē·ūz′), v. t.; RE-USED′ (-ūzd′); RE-US′ING (-ūz′ĭng). To use again, as a box. — re·use′ (ūs′), n.

Reu′ter's News Agency (roĭ′tĕrz). A news agency founded at London, England, about 1851, by Baron Paul J. von Reuter (1821–99). Hence, Reuter message, telegram, etc.

re·vac′ci·nate (rē·văk′sĭ·nāt), v. t. To vaccinate a second time or again. — re′vac·ci·na′tion (rē′văk·sĭ·nā′shŭn), n.

rev′a·len′ta, or rev′a·len′ta A·rab′i·ca (rĕv′ə·lĕn′tȧ ȧ·răb′ĭ·kȧ). [NL., fr. earlier ervalenta (fr. L. ervum a kind of pulse + lens, lentis, lentil), combined with the trade name F. revalescière du Barry (cf. L. revalescere to regain strength).] Com. Lentil meal, used as invalids' food.

rev′a·les′cence (rĕv′ȧ·lĕs′ĕns; -ns), n. Convalescence.

rev′a·les′cent (-ĕnt; -nt), adj. [L. revalescens, -entis, pres. part. of revalescere, fr. re- re- + valescere, v. incho. fr. valere to be well.] Growing well; convalescent.

re·val′i·date (rē·văl′ĭ·dāt), v. t. To restore validity to; to renew; specif., Pat. Law, to reissue a canceled patent, as to give effect in one country to a patent granted in another; — not in use in English or American law. — re′val·i·da′tion (rē′văl·ĭ·dā′shŭn), n.

re·val′or·ize (-văl′ĕr·īz), v. t. [See RE-; VALORIZATION.] Finance. To restore, in whole or in part, the value of a monetary unit or, less frequently, of special classes of private claims. — re′val·or·i·za′tion (rē′văl·ĕr·ĭ·zā′shŭn; -ĭ·zā′-), n.

re·val′u·ate (-văl′ū·āt), v. t. To valuate again; to set a different valuation upon.

re′val·u·a′tion (rē′văl·ū·ā′shŭn), n. 1. Act or process of revaluating; a new valuation; as, the revaluation of property.
2. [After G. umwertung.] Philol. A semantic change in the emotional content or quality of a word, as in mistress, or witch.

re·val′ue (rē·văl′ū), v. t. To value again or anew; to make a second or fresh valuation of.

re·vamp′ (rē·vămp′), v. t. To vamp again or anew; also, Colloq., to give a new form to but using the old materials; to revise by bringing up to date or by fitting to another need. — re·vamp′er (-ĕr), n. — re·vamp′ment (-mĕnt), n.

‖re·vanche′ (rē·vänsh′), n. [See REVENGE.] a Revenge; — esp. the policy of a government intent on recovering lost territory, as of France with regard to Alsace and Lorraine (1871–1919). b Colloq. A return favor.

reve (rēv), v. i. [F. rêver to dream.] To muse in reverie. Rare.

reve. Var. of REAVE, REEVE. Obs. exc. Dial.

re·veal′ (rē·vēl′), v. t.; -VEALED′ (-vēld′); -VEAL′ING. [OF. reveler, fr. L. revelare, revelatum, to unveil, reveal, fr. re- re- + velare to veil, fr. velum a veil. See VEIL; cf. REVELATION.] 1. To communicate or impart by supernatural means or agency; to make known or manifest through divine inspiration, a vision, or the like.
Sacred laws . . . unto him revealed in vision. Spenser.
2. To divulge (something secret or hidden); to disclose; as, to reveal a confidence.
3. To open up to view; to show plainly or clearly; to display; exhibit; as, the rising curtain revealed a street scene; the painting reveals the painter.
Syn. — REVEAL, DISCOVER, DISCLOSE, DIVULGE. To REVEAL is to exhibit or make known what was previously concealed; DISCOVER, once common as a synonym for reveal, is now rare in this sense; as, "Words, like Nature, half reveal and half conceal the soul within" (Tennyson); "Once it was reckoned graceful, half to discover and half conceal the mind" (Gray); "The flame arose, discovering once again a scene of peace and humble happiness" (Hawthorne). To DISCLOSE is to expose to view what has been concealed from sight, or (esp.) to reveal what has been kept secret; to DIVULGE is to communicate or make public (esp. a secret or other private matter); as, "The confessions of Saint Austin and Rousseau disclose the secrets of the human heart" (Gibbon); "Horace . . . declares in sober sadness that he would not for all the world get into a boat with a man who had divulged the Eleusinian mysteries" (Cowper); "I believe it is a true observation, that few secrets are divulged to one person only" (Fielding). Cf. COMMUNICATE, EXHIBIT, DISCOVER.
Ant. — Conceal, hide, mask, cover.

re·veal′ (rē·vēl′), n. A revelation; disclosure. Rare.

re·veal′, n. 1. Arch. The side of an opening for a window, doorway, or the like, between the doorframe or window frame and the outer surface of the wall; or, where the opening is not filled with a door, etc., the whole thickness of the wall; the jamb.
2. Automobiles. The border surrounding a window of an automobile.

re·vealed′ re·lĭ′gion (rē·vēld′). That which is based on belief in a direct communication of God's will to mankind; esp., the Christian religion, based on the revelations of the Old and New Testaments. Cf. NATURAL RELIGION.

revealed theology. Theology learned only from revelation.

re·veal′er (rē·vēl′ĕr), n. One who or that which reveals.

re·veal′ment (-mĕnt), n. [Cf. OF. revelement.] Revelation.

rev′e·hent (rĕv′ē·hĕnt; rē·vē′-), adj. [L. revehens, -hentis, pres. part.] Carrying back.

rev′el·le (rĕv′ĕ·lĭ; now rare, rē·văl′yĭ; Brit. rē·vĕl′ĭ, -văl′ĭ; 277; see below), n. [F. réveillez-vous, imper. of se réveiller to get awake, fr. réveiller to awaken, arouse, fr. re- re- + éveiller, fr. OF. esveillier to rouse, to watch, fr. (assumed) VL. exvigilare, fr. L. evigilare, fr. e-, ex- + vigilare, to watch, wake. See EX-; VIGILANT.] Mil. & Nav. A signal, usually sounded by bugle, fife, or drum, at about sunrise, summoning soldiers or sailors to the day's duties and notifying sentinels that they may refrain from challenging. It is immediately preceded by a single gun.
☞ The usual pron. in the U. S. service is rĕv′ĕ·lĭ, and this is also common in general use in America; in the British service rē·vĕl′ĭ (or rē·văl′ĭ) is usual.

‖rā′veil′lon′ (rā′vā′yôN′), n. [F., fr. réveiller. See REVEILLE.] A festive supper during the night; esp. [often cap.], one following Christmas Midnight Mass.

rev′el (rĕv′ĕl; -'l), n. [OF., rebellion, disorder, feast, sport, fr. reveler. See REVEL, v. i.] 1. Merrymaking; revelry; carousing; conviviality.
He fishes, drinks, and wastes The lamps of night in revel. Shak.
2. A merry or noisy celebration of a feast, wedding, or the like; also, pl., the entertainment provided, as dances, games, pageants, and masques.
Being gloomy-minded, haters of fair revels. Keats.
3. Disorder; riot. Obs.
4. A parish festival; a wake. Now Dial. Eng.
Syn. — See FEAST.

rev′el (rĕv′ĕl; -'l), n. Arch. = REVEAL. Rare.

re·vel′ (rē·vĕl′), v. t. [L. revellere, fr. re- + vellere to pluck, pull.] To draw back; to withdraw. Obs.

rev′e·la·bil′i·ty (rĕv′ĕ·lə·bĭl′ĭ·tĭ), n. Quality or state of being revealable.

rev′e·lant (rĕv′ĕ·lănt), adj. That reveals, or makes manifest; clear; intelligible. Rare.

rev′e·la′tion (rĕv′ĕ·lā′shŭn), n. [OF., fr. LL. revelatio. See REVEAL.] 1. Act of revealing; the disclosing or discovering to others of what was before unknown to them; also, that which is revealed; a disclosure.
2. Theol. a Act of revealing or communicating divine truth; specif., disclosure or manifestation of himself or of his will by God to man, as through some wondrous act that awes and impresses, through oracular words, signs, laws, etc., or through the inspiration of the Holy Spirit; as, the revelation to the Jews assembled around Mount Sinai. [The earliest sense.] b That which is revealed by God to man. c That which contains or affords such revelation or that purports to do so; — often in the pl. in titles of writings; as, the Revelations of Bartholomew; specif., the Bible.
3. [cap.] The last of the canonical books of the Bible; the Apocalypse; — often, Colloq. or Erron., in the pl. See NEW TESTAMENT.
4. Something surpassingly good, excellent, delicious, etc.; as, her cookies were revelations. Colloq.
Syn. — Disclosure, discovery.
Ant. — Concealment, hiding.

rev′e·la′tion·al (-ăl; -'l), adj. Of or pertaining to revelation.

rev′e·la′tion·er (-ĕr), n. One who makes revelations.

rev′e·la′tion·ist (-Ĭst), n. 1. One who makes a revelation; esp., the author of the Revelation, or Apocalypse.
2. One who accepts revelation, esp. the Scriptural account of the Creation.

Revelation of St. John the Divine. = REVELATION, 3.

rev′e·la′tive (rĕv′ĕ·lā′tĭv), adj. Revealing.

rev′e·la′tor (rĕv′ĕ·lā′tĕr), n. [LL.] A revealer.

rev′e·la·to′ry (rĕv′ĕ·lə·tō′rĭ or, esp. Brit., -tĕr·ĭ), adj. Pertaining to, or of the nature of, revelation; specif., serving to disclose character, conditions, etc.; as, revelatory glimpses of their home life; a revelatory poem.

rev′el·er, rev′el·ler (rĕv′ĕl·ĕr; rĕv′'l-), n. One who revels.

re·vel′lent (rē·vĕl′ĕnt), adj. [L. revellens, pres. part. of revellere. See REVEL, v. t.] Causing revulsion; revulsive. — n. Med. A revulsive medicine.

re·vel′ry (rē·vĕl′rĭ), n. Revelling.

rev′el·ment (rĕv′ĕl·mĕnt; rĕv′'l-), n. Act of reveling; revelry.

rev′el·ous (-ŭs), adj. [OF.] Reveling. Obs.

rev′el·rout′ (-rout′), n. [See ROUT.] 1. Revelry; carousal; also, a revel. Obs.
2. A troop of revelers. Archaic.

rev′el·ry (rĕv′ĕl·rĭ; rĕv′'l-), n. [See REVEL, v. i. & n.] Act of reveling; revels collectively; boisterous merrymaking.
There was a sound of revelry by night. Byron.
Syn. — Carnival, carousal, joy.
Ant. — Mourning, lamentation.

Rev′els Of′fice (rĕv′ĕlz; -'lz). Also the Rev′els. Formerly, an office in the royal household the holder (Master of Revels) of which had charge of court entertainment.

re·turnd′. Returned. Ref. Sp.

ret′ur·nel′lo. ✝ RITORNELLO.

re·turn′ing, pres. part. & verbal n. of RETURN. [BOILER, 6.]

re·turn′-tu′bu·lar boil′er. See re·twine′, v. t., re·twist′, v. t., re·ty′ing, n., re·type′, v. t. See RE-, 2.

Re′u (rē′ū; rōō). Bib.

Reub, n. = RUBE.

Reu′ben·ites, n. pl. Bib.

reul (rūl). Var. of RULE. Obs. exc. Dial.

re·ul′cer·ate, v. t. & i. See RE-, 2. Obs.

Reu′leaux′ di′a·gram (rōō′lō′). See VALVE DIAGRAM.

reum. Rheum. Ref. Sp.

Reu′mah (rōō′mȧ). Bib. [Sp.]

reu′ma·tism. Rheumatism. Ref.

re′un·der·cut′, v. t., re′un·der·go′, v. i., re′un·der·take′, v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·un′du·late, v. t. & i. See RE-, 2. — re′un·du·la′tion, n.

re′un·fold′, v. t., re′u·ni·fi·ca′tion, n., re·u′ni·fy, v. t. See RE-.

re′u·nit′a·ble (rē′ū·nīt′ə·b'l), adj. See -ABLE.

re′u·nit′ed·ly, adv. of reunited, past part.

re′un·pack′, v. t., re′up·hold′, v. t., re′up·hol′ster, v. t., re′up·lift′, v. t., re′urge′, v. t., re·use′, n. & v. t. See RE-, 2.

reus. ✝ ROOSE. Scot.

reut, reuth. ✝ RUTH.

re·u′ti·lize, v. t. See RE-, 2. — re′u·ti·li·za′tion, n.

re·ut′ter, v. t. See RE-, 2. — re·ut′ter·ance, n.

re·va′cate, v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·vampt′. Revamped. Ref. Sp.

re′va·por·i·za′tion, n., re·va′por·ize, v. t. & i., re·var′nish, v. t., re·var′y, v. t. & i. See RE-, 2.

re·vay′, re·vaye′, v. i. [ONF. riveier, fr. rive bank, fr. L. ripa.] To go hunting or hawking, esp. for waterfowl along the bank of a river. Obs.

re·veal′a·ble, adj. See -ABLE. — re·veal′a·bil′i·ty, re·veal′a·bleness, n.

re·veald′. Revealed. Ref. Sp.

re·vealed′ (rē·vēld′), past tense & past part. of REVEAL. — re·veal′ed·ly, adv.

re·veal′ing, pres. part. & verbal n. of REVEAL. — re·veal′ing·ly, adv. — re·veal′ing·ness, n.

re·veg′e·tate (rē·vĕj′ē·tāt), v. i. See RE-, 2. — re′veg·e·ta′tion, n.

re·vell′, v. t. See RE-, 2.

‖re′veil′ (F. rā′vĕy′). Also re·veil′ (rē·vēl′). = REVEILLE.

reve′land. Var. of REEVELAND. Obs. exc. Hist.

re′ve·la′tion·ize, v. t. See -IZE.

re′vel·ler, rev′el·ling, etc. Var. of REVELER, REVELING, etc.

Revel Master. See MASTER OF THE REVELS.

rev'e·nant (rĕv'ĕ·nănt), n. [F., pres. part. of revenir to return.] One who or that which returns; esp., a person who returns after a long absence or after death; hence, a ghost; a specter; an apparition.

‖re·ve·nant' (rĕ·vᵊ·năn'), adj. [F., fr. revenir to return.] Recurring, esp. to memory.

re·ven'di·cate (rĕ·vĕn'dĭ·kāt), v. t.; -CAT'ED (-kāt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -CAT'ING (-kāt'ĭng). [After F. revendiquer. See REVINDICATE.] 1. To reclaim; to recover by a formal demand for restoration. Rare.
2. Civil Law. To bring a real action to enforce rights in immovables. b To proceed to recover goods sold for which the price has not been paid. Cf. STOPPAGE IN TRANSITU.

re·ven'di·ca'tion (-kā'shŭn), n. [F.] 1. A revendicating. R.
2. Civil Law. a A real action. b A reclaiming of goods sold and out of the possession of the buyer where the price is unpaid.

re've·neer' (rē'vĕ·nēr'), v. t. To veneer again or anew.

re·venge' (rē·vĕnj'; 140), v.; RE·VENGED' (-vĕnjd'); RE·VENG'ING (-vĕn'jĭng). [OF. revengier, revenchier (F. revancher), fr. re- re- + vengier, venchier, to avenge, revenge (F. venger), fr. L. vindicare. See VINDICATE, VENGEANCE; cf. REVINDICATE.] Transitive: 1. To inflict harm or injury in return for, as an injury, insult, etc.; to exact satisfaction for, under a sense of injury; to vindicate by avenging; as, to revenge his father's murder.

The gods are just, and will revenge our cause. Dryden.

2. To avenge or seek vengeance for a wrong done (oneself or another); as, to revenge oneself on one's enemies. Now Rare.
3. To punish. Obs.
—, Intransitive: To take vengeance; — with upon. Archaic. "A bird that will revenge upon you all." Shak.
Syn. — Retaliate, requite. See AVENGE.
Ant. — See EXCUSE.

re·venge', n. [MF. (F. revanche). See REVENGE, v.] 1. Act or instance of revenging, or returning evil for evil; vindictive retaliation; vengeance; as, a terrible revenge.
2. The disposition or desire to seek vengeance; also, the gratification of such a desire; as, a prey to revenge.
3. Obs. a An avenging.

None would strike a stroke in his revenge. Shak.

b Punishment.
4. An opportunity of getting satisfaction or retrieving oneself, as a return match; as, to give one his revenge.
Syn. — See REQUITAL. Ant. — Forgiveness, pardon.

Re·venge', n. a See SHIP, Table. b With The, a poem (1878) by Tennyson, which he called "A Ballad of the Fleet." It tells of a battle between Spanish ships and "The Revenge," commanded by Sir Richard Grenville, off Flores, in 1591.

re·venge'a·ble (rē·vĕn'jä·b'l), adj. Obs. a Revengeful. b Capable of being revenged; as, revengeable wrong.

re·venge'ful (rē·vĕnj'fŏŏl; -f'l), adj. Full of, or prone to, revenge; vindictive; desirous of vengeance.

If thy revengeful heart cannot forgive. Shak.

Syn. — Vengeful. See VINDICTIVE. Ant. — Forgiving. — re·venge'ful·ly, adv. — re·venge'ful·ness, n.

re·venge'ment (-mĕnt), n. Revenge. Now Rare.

re·veng'er (rē·vĕn'jĕr), n. One who revenges; an avenger.

rev'e·nu'al (rĕv'ĕ·nū'ăl; rē·vĕn'ū·ăl), adj. Of or pertaining to revenue.

rev'e·nue (rĕv'ĕ·nū; formerly also, and still occas. in Brit. use, rē·vĕn'ū), n. [OF. revenu, revenue (F. revenu) prop. past part. of revenir to return, fr. L. revenire, fr. re- re- + venire to come. See COME.] 1. Return; coming back. Obs.
2. Return; yield, as of land; profit; — with of. Obs.
3. That which returns, or comes back, from an investment; the annual or periodical rents, profits, interest, or issues, of any species of property, real or personal; income.

Do not anticipate your revenues. Gray.

4. An item of income; a source of revenue.
5. The annual or periodical yield of taxes, excise, customs, duties, rents, etc., which a nation, state, or municipality collects and receives into the treasury for public use; public income of whatever kind.
6. The government department concerned with the collection of the national revenue.

revenue account. = INCOME ACCOUNT.

revenue bond. A bond issued by a public agency authorized to build or acquire a revenue-producing project and payable solely out of revenue derived from the project.

revenue cutter. An armed government vessel employed to enforce revenue laws, prevent smuggling, etc. In the Revenue Cutter Service (now a part of the Coast Guard; see COAST GUARD c) of the United States the officers are commissioned and its sailors enlisted as in the Navy, and any part of the service may be ordered by the President to co-operate with the Navy.

rev'e·nued (rĕv'ĕ·nūd), adj. Provided with a revenue.

revenue expenditure. Accounting. Expenses which add nothing to the permanent value or capital of the business.

rev'e·nu'er (rĕv'ĕ·nū'ĕr), n. A revenue officer or cutter. Slang, U. S.

revenue stamp. A stamp provided for raising money, as in prepayment of a tax on documents, proprietary articles, leases, mortgages, etc., and not valid for postage; — called also a fiscal.

revenue tariff. See TARIFF, n., 1.

re·verb' (rē·vûrb'), v. t. & i. [See REVERBERATE.] To reverberate.

re·ver'ba·to'ry (rē·vûr'bä·tō'rĭ; -tĕr·ĭ), adj. Reverberatory.

re·ver'ber·ant (rē·vûr'bĕr·ănt), adj. [L. reverberans, pres. part. See REVERBERATE.] Reverberating; resonant.

re·ver'ber·ate (-āt), v.; -AT'ED (-āt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -AT'ING (-āt'ĭng). [L. reverberare to strike back, repel, fr. re- re- + verberare to lash, whip, beat, fr. verber a lash, whip, rod. See VERVAIN.] Transitive: 1. To return or send back; to force or drive back; to repel; to echo, as sound; to reflect, as light or heat; to repel from side to side, as flame in a furnace; — now chiefly of sound.
2. To strike upon, as the ear. Obs.
3. To subject to the action of a reverberatory furnace; to fuse by reverberated heat.
—, Intransitive: 1. To be driven back; to rebound; to recoil; to be reflected or repelled, as rays of light.
2. To turn or bend back. Obs. & Rare.
3. To resound; to echo; to continue or be repeated, like a series of echoes; — said esp. of sound.
4. To be forced to strike (upon) or go (over), as flames.
5. To cause or undergo reverberation.

re·ver'ber·ate, adj. [See REVERBERATE, v.] 1. Reverberant. Obs.
2. Driven back, as sound; reflected.

re·ver'ber·a'tion (rē·vûr'bĕr·ā'shŭn), n. [OF.] 1. Act of reverberating; reflection; echo; as, the reverberation of rays from a mirror; the reverberation of voices; the reverberation of heat or flame in a furnace. Specif.: a Obs. Act of causing reflection of light, heat, or sound. b Act of reflecting light or heat, re-echoing sound, etc.; also, state of being reflected or re-echoed. c Subjection to the action of a reverberatory furnace.
2. That which is reverberated; as: a A sound persisting because of repeated reflections after the source has been cut off; — distinguished from echo. b A reflected light or color; reflection.

re·ver'ber·a'tive (rē·vûr'bĕr·ā'tĭv; -ä·tĭv), adj. Of the nature of reverberation; tending to reverberate; reflective.

re·ver'ber·a'tor (-ā'tĕr), n. Something that produces reverberation; specif., a reflecting lamp.

re·ver'ber·a·to'ry (-ä·tō'rĭ or, esp. Brit., -tĕr·ĭ), adj. 1. Acting by reverberation; forced back or diverted, as flame or heat on the material to be subjected to it.
2. Designating a furnace (reverberatory furnace), kiln, etc., in which the heat is reflected from the roof on the material treated.

Reverberatory Furnace for smelting copper ore. a Roof; b Hearth; c Hoppers for introducing ore; d Fire Grate; e Opening for discharging slag; f Flue; g Door for feeding fire.

re·ver'ber·a·to'ry, n. A reverberatory furnace, kiln, or the like.

re·ver'brate (rē·vûr'brāt), v. i. To reverberate. — adj. Reverberating; resounding; echoing. Both Archaic or Poetic.

re·ver'dure (rē·vûr'dûr), v. t. To cover again with verdure. Rare.

re·vere' (rē·vēr'), n. A revers.

re·vere' (rē·vēr'), v. t.; -VERED' (-vērd'); -VER'ING (-vēr'ĭng). [F. or L.; F. révérer, fr. L. revereri, fr. re- re- + vereri to fear. See WARY.] To regard with reverence, or profound respect and affection; to venerate.

Marcus Aurelius, whom he rather revered as his father than treated as his partner in the empire. Addison.

Syn. — Honor, adore. Ant. — Scorn, loathe.

re·vered' (rē·vērd'), adj. Designating a method of ornamenting handkerchiefs, linens, etc., with a kind of drawn work.

rev'er·ence (rĕv'ĕr·ĕns), n. [OF. or L.; OF. reverence, fr. L. reverentia. See REVERENT.] 1. Honor or respect felt or manifested; deference.

A seemly reverence may be paid to power. Wordsworth.

2. Profound respect mingled with love and awe, as for a holy being or place or an exalted thing; as, to pray with reverence.

The religious reverence of even the most unworldly American women for the social advantages of dress. Edith Wharton.

3. A gesture of reverence or respect, as an obeisance, bow, or curtsy. "And she will pass me by . . . with some cold reverence." Tennyson.
4. The character or state of being revered or honored; dignity; exalted position.

If thou be poor, farewell thy reverence. Chaucer.

5. One called Reverend or entitled to reverence; — chiefly in phrases, as: your Reverence, a form of address to a clergyman (Chiefly Dial. Irish); his Reverence, a clergyman (Chiefly Humorous); saving your (or one's) reverence, with all due respect to you, etc.
6. Something reverenced or held in honor. Rare.

She became the tutelary divinity of all his old traditions and reverences. Edith Wharton.

Syn. — REVERENCE, VENERATION, AWE, DREAD, ADORATION, WORSHIP. REVERENCE is a strong sentiment of respect and esteem, sometimes with a trace of fear; VENERATION is deep or exalted reverence; AWE adds to reverence the implication of solemn wonder, mingled with dread, in view of something great or terrible, sublime or sacred; as, "Towards Johnson . . . his [Boswell's] feeling was not sycophancy, which is the lowest, but reverence, which is the highest of human feelings" (Carlyle); "To both [Johnson and Jowett] language was a sacred gift and to be used with reverence" (Evelyn Abbott); "For Socrates he [Gray] had an almost religious veneration" (N. Nicholls); "certain broken toys . . . taken forth now and then with almost religious veneration, with trembling hands and renewal of old grief, to his wondering awe at the greatness of men's sorrows" (W. Pater); "I have been reading Comus and Lycidas with wonder and a sort of awe" (E. FitzGerald); "Nor can I ever without awe stay long under a great Alpine cliff" (Ruskin). DREAD, as here compared (cf. FEAR), sometimes implies profound awe mingled with anxiety or concern; as, "He [Johnson] had indeed an awful dread of death" (Boswell). ADORATION adds to veneration the idea of homage or personal devotion; WORSHIP is adoration paid esp. to God; the word is also used in strong hyperbole with reference to other objects; as, "The mind sinks under [the good and evil of eternity] in passive helplessness, content with calm belief and humble adoration" (Johnson); "The holy time is quiet as a nun breathless with adoration" (Wordsworth); "eternity . . . spent in worship" (Milton); "the barbarizing plutolatry which seems to be so rapidly supplanting the worship of what alone is lovely and enduring" (Lowell). See DEFERENCE.
Ant. — Irreverence, disrespect; loathing, detestation, contempt, disdain.
— at (the) reverence of. In honor of; out of respect for. Obs. — to pay, or, Obs., do or make, reverence. To show reverence or honor; to perform an act of reverence.

Now lies he there,
And none so poor to do him reverence. Shak.

rev'er·ence (rĕv'ĕr·ĕns), v. t.; -ENCED (-ĕnst); -ENC·ING (-ĕn·sĭng). [From REVERENCE, n.] To regard or treat with reverence, respect, honor, or veneration; to show reverence to or respect for; to esteem highly; as, to reverence the gods, the King, the laws of one's country, or the honest poor.

rev'er·enc·er (rĕv'ĕr·ĕn·sĕr), n. One who reverences.

rev'er·end (rĕv'ĕr·ĕnd), adj. [L. reverendus, gerundive of revereri; cf. F. révérend, OF. reverent. See REVERE.] 1. Worthy of reverence; entitled to respect or honor, as on account of age or position; inspiring reverence; revered. "The reverend walls." Tennyson. "A reverend sire." Milton. This word is commonly given as a title of respect to ecclesiastics. A clergyman is styled the reverend; a dean, vicar-general, president of a seminary or college, superior of a religious house, canon, prior, etc., the very reverend; an abbot, monsignor, or prothonotary apostolic, the right reverend; a bishop, an archbishop, the most reverend.
2. Sacred; holy. Obs.
3. Reverent. Now Rare.
4. Of, pertaining to, or characteristic of, the clergy.

rev'er·end (rĕv'ĕr·ĕnd), n. A clergyman. Colloq.

rev'er·end·ly, adv. 1. Reverently. Obs.
2. In a manner to inspire reverence.

rev'er·ent (rĕv'ĕr·ĕnt), adj. [L. reverens, -entis, pres. part. of revereri. See REVERE.] 1. [OF.] = REVEREND, 1 & 4. Obs.
2. Disposed to revere; expressing, or characterized by, reverence, or veneration; reverential; very or profoundly respectful; as, reverent disciples, words, or behavior.
3. Strong; — said of whisky. Dial. U. S.
— rev'er·ent·ly, adv. — rev'er·ent·ness, n.

rev'er·en'tial (-ĕn'shăl), adj. [Cf. F. révérenciel, MF. -tial. See REVERENCE.] 1. Proceeding from, or expressing, reverence; having a reverent quality; reverent; as, reverential awe. "A reverential esteem of things sacred." South.
2. Inspiring reverence; reverend. Rare.
— rev'er·en'ti·al'i·ty (-shĭ·ăl'ĭ·tĭ), n. — rev'er·en'tial·ly, adv. — rev'er·en'tial·ness, n.

re·ver'er (rē·vēr'ĕr), n. One who reveres.

rev'er·ie (rĕv'ĕr·ĭ), rev'er·y (rĕv'ĕr·ĭ), n.; pl. REVERIES (-Iz). [F. rêverie, fr. rêver to dream, rave, be lightheaded. See RAVE, v.] 1. Obs. a State of joy; rejoicing. b Wantonness; revelry. c Annoyance; rage. d Rough or rude speech.
2. a State of being lost in thought or abstracted musing. "Rapt in nameless reverie." Tennyson. b A sequence of thoughts or images, not purposively directed.
3. An extravagant or fanciful product of the mind; a theory or notion, usually strange or impractical; a vision.

There are infinite reveries and numberless extravagancies pass through both [wise and foolish minds]. Addison.

4. A rumor. Scot.
Syn. — See DREAM. Ant. — Actuality, reality.

re·ver'i·fy (rĕ·vĕr'ĭ·fī), v. t. To verify again or anew.

rev'er·ist (rĕv'ĕr·ĭst), n. One who indulges in reveries.

re·vers' (rē·vēr'; rē·vâr'), n. sing. & pl. [F. See REVERSE, n.] Dressmaking, Tailoring, etc. A part turned or folded back so as to show the inside, or a piece put on in imitation of such a part, as the lapel of a coat.

re·ver'sal (rē·vûr'săl; -s'l), n. [From REVERSE.] 1. Act or process of reversing. Specif.: a Law. A change or overthrowing; as, the reversal of a judgment; the reversal of an attainder, or of an outlawry, by which the sentence is rendered void. b The causing to move or face in an opposite direction, or to appear in an inverted position; as, the reversal of a rotation; the reversal of objects by a lens. c (1) A method of testing or determining the collimation, as of a transit, by reversing the telescope in its supports. (2) The changing of a dark line in a spectrum into a bright one, or vice versa, by absorption. d Rare. Reversion; return.
2. An exception to the regular progression of a series of values. In a reversal of the first order, there is an actual decline in place of an expected increase; in a reversal of the second order, the rate of change declines.
3. Photog. a Solarization. b The conversion of a positive into a negative or a negative into a positive. c The lateral inversion of the image as by the use of a prism on the lens.

re·verse' (rē·vûrs'), adj. [ME. revers, fr. OF. revers, fr. L. reversus, past part. of revertere. See REVERT.] 1. Turned back; opposite or contrary; as, the reverse order or direction; specif., having the back presented to the observer or opponent. See OBVERSE.
2. Acting or operating in a manner opposite or contrary.
3. Reversing; effecting reverse movement or operation; as, a reverse gear.
4. Obs. a Adverse; contrary; as, reverse winds. b Backhanded; — said of thrusts, blows, or the like. c Inverse.
5. Mil. Pertaining to, facing, or commanding, the rear.

re·verse' (rē·vûrs'), n. [ME. revers, fr. OF. revers. See REVERSE, adj.] 1. That which is directly opposite or contrary to something else; contrary; opposite.

And then mistook reverse of wrong for right. Pope.

2. Act of reversing; specif.: a Now Chiefly Dancing. Reversal; a turning completely about; complete change.

By a reverse of fortune, Stephen becomes rich. Lamb.

b A change from better to worse; misfortune; a check or defeat; as, the enemy met with a reverse.
3. That which appears or is presented when anything is reverted, or is turned or viewed oppositely to the position or direction in which it is ordinarily seen; the back; — opposed to obverse; as, the reverse of a leaf or trench; specif.: a The side of a coin, medal, etc., opposite to the obverse (which see); also, the design on this side. b The back of a book leaf; verso. c Rare. Butt (sense 1 b). d An inverted phrase, sentence, etc.
4. = REVERS. Rare. Thackeray.
5. Card Playing. a = REVERSI a. b pl. = REVERSI b.
6. Fencing. A backhanded thrust, cut, or stroke. Obs. Shak.
7. Mech. A reversing gear, movement, etc.
8. Mil. The rear.
9. Surg. A turn or fold made in bandaging, by which the direction of the bandage is changed.
Syn. — See CONVERSE.

re·verse' (rē·vûrs'), v.; -VERSED' (-vûrst'); -VERS'ING (-vûr'sĭng). [OF. reverser, fr. LL. reversare to turn round, fr. re- re- + versare to turn. See VERSATILE; cf. REVERSE, adj.] Transitive: 1. To cause to return. Obs.
2. To turn upside down; to invert.

His shield revers'd o'er the fallen warrior lies. Pope.

3. To turn completely about in position or direction; to change to the opposite as regards position; to transpose; as, to reverse a negative for photomechanical printing.
4. To revoke; to annul; specif., Law, to overthrow by a contrary decision; to make void; to undo or annul for error; as, to reverse a judgment, sentence, or decree.
5. To change to the contrary in character or trend; as, to reverse a policy.
6. To cause to go or move in the opposite direction; as, to reverse an electric current; specif., Mach., to cause (an engine, machine, etc.) to perform its revolutions or action in the opposite direction.
7. To use, do, etc., in the opposite way, as an experiment.
8. Obs. a To overthrow; to subvert. b To face (a garment), as with velvet. c To oppose; also, to contradict. d To turn away; to remove; to cause to depart.

——, Intransitive: 1. Obs. a To draw or move back; to recoil; to turn away. b To fall down; to turn over. c To return.

2. To turn or move in the opposite direction, as in waltzing; to be or become reversed.

3. To put an engine, machine, etc., in reverse.

Syn. — Overturn, upset; repeal, revoke. — REVERSE, INVERT agree in the idea of change to the contrary or opposite. REVERSE is the more general term, and denotes alteration to the opposite; it applies to position, direction, order, sequence, relation, bearing; as, to reverse a coin, an electric current, an engine, relative values, a decision; "having his shield reversed" (Scott). INVERT denotes primarily a turning upside down; as, to invert a tumbler, inverted commas; "the lake . . . reflecting inverted tops of mountains" (Gray). In its secondary senses it approaches reverse, but applies within narrower limits; as, to invert the order of words in a sentence, the relation of cause and effect, an inverted chord. See ABOLISH.

Motives by excess reverse their very nature, and instead of exciting, stun and stupefy the mind. Coleridge.

The custom . . . to invert now and then the order of the class, so as to make the highest and lowest boys change places. Moore.

re·verse' (rē·vûrs'), adv. Reversely.

reverse arms. Mil. A position of a soldier (not now used in the United States Army) in which the piece was held between the right elbow and the body at an angle of 45°, barrel downward, muzzle down and to the rear.

reverse bar. Shipbuilding. A portion or section of a reverse frame; also, a reverse frame.

reverse battery, fire, etc. Mil. A battery, fire, etc., stationed in, or coming from, the rear.

reverse bearing. Surv. The bearing resulting from a backsight.

reverse curve. Railroads. An S-shaped curve made by joining two simple curves turning in opposite directions; sometimes, erroneously, a stretch formed of two oppositely turning simple curves joined by a tangent.

re·versed' (rē·vûrst'), adj. 1. Turned backward or the contrary way; turned side for side, or end for end; as: a Bot. Resupinate. b Zool. Sinistral, as certain univalve shells. 2. Having the edges turned back to give the appearance of greater thickness; — said of sheet-metal work.

3. Law. Set aside, annulled, or vacated.

— re·vers'ed·ly (-vûr'sĕd·lĭ; -sĭd-; -vûrst'lĭ), adv.

reversed line. Also reversed spectrum line. Physics. A strong line in an emission spectrum which has a dark line down its middle due to absorption by the colder vapor which surrounds the central luminous vapor. If the amount of material in the source, as an arc, is large, a bright emission line may appear in the middle of the absorption line. This is called double reversal.

reverse English. See ENGLISH, n., 5. U. S.

reverse fault. Geol. See FAULT, n., 6.

reverse frame. Shipbuilding. A part of the frame formed by an angle iron placed opposite the frame proper, but with its flanges reversed in direction from those forming the frame, in an iron or steel ship.

re·verse'ful (rē·vûrs'fŏŏl; -fĭ·l), adj. Full of reverses.

reverse indention. Print. = HANGING INDENTION.

reverse keys Mech. An arrangement of keys or wedges resembling the stonemason's plug and feather, used for forcing apart two pieces previously fastened by a key or cotter.

re·verse'less (rē·vûrs'lĕs; -lĭs; 119), adj. Irreversible. Rare.

re·verse'ment (-mĕnt), n. Reversal.

reverse of the medal. The other side of the affair or question, usually connoting a less favorable aspect.

re·verse'-phase' re'lay. Elec. A phase-rotation relay. See RELAY, n., 3.

re·vers'er (rē·vûr'sĕr), n. 1. One who or that which reverses.

2. Elec. a A device for reversing a current or polarity. b A switching device for interchanging electrical circuits to reverse the direction of motor rotation.

3. Scots Law. A reversioner; also, a mortgagor.

reverse shot, reverse-angle shot. Motion Pictures. See SHOT, n., 17.

reverse side. Eng. Billiards. Check side. See ENGLISH, n., 5.

reverse spelling. An unphonetic and unetymological spelling imitating the same spelling in words where it is etymological but no longer phonetic, as limb (from lim), cf. lamb, where b is etymological; delight (from delit), cf. light; Swanage (from Swanwich -swŏn'ĭj), cf. savage.

reverse turn. Aviation. A rapid maneuver to reverse the direction of flight of an airplane, performed by making a half loop and half roll.

re·ver'si' (rē·vĕr'sē'; rē·vûr'sē), n. [F., fr. earlier reversin, fr. It. rovescino, fr. rovesciare to invert. Cf. REVERSE.] Games. a An old card game in which the player who made the fewest points and took the fewest tricks won. b A game for two players, played upon a checkerboard with 64 men, which are one color on one side and another on the other. The men are placed one at a time on the board, and each player turns, or reverses, any men of the opposite color in a line with, and enclosed by, two of his.

re·vers'i·bil'i·ty (rē·vûr'sĭ·bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n. Quality or state of being reversible.

re·vers'i·ble (rē·vûr'sĭ·b'l), adj. [Cf. F. réversible.] 1. Capable of being reversed or of reversing; as, a chair or seat having a reversible back; a reversible judgment or sentence.

2. Capable of going through a series of movements, changes, etc., in either direction, backward or forward; as, in chemistry, a reversible reaction; in thermodynamics, a reversible process.

3. Hence, having a pattern or a finished surface on both sides, so that either may be used; — said of fabrics.

4. Math. Establishing a one-to-one correspondence between the points in the two planes (or extents) transformed; — said of a transformation.

— re·vers'i·ble·ness, n. — re·vers'i·bly, adv.

re·vers'i·ble, n. A reversible cloth. See REVERSIBLE, adj., 3.

reversible adiabatic process. See ADIABATIC PROCESS a.

reversible cell or element. Elec. A cell the chemical action in which can be reversed by passing through it a current opposite in direction to that generated by the cell.

reversible colloid. Physical Chem. A colloid which may be precipitated and then again dispersed.

re·vers'i·ble-disk' plow. See PLOW, n., 1.

reversible electrode. Physical Chem. A metallic electrode which will dissolve when a current is passed from it into the solution and which will have plated on it metal from the solution when the current is passed in the reverse direction. The relation between the amount of chemical action which occurs and the electromotive force is exactly reversible, that is, the electrode is nonpolarizable.

reversible engine. a An engine that may be reversed. b Thermodynamics. A heat engine which, if forced to trace out its indicator diagram in a reversed direction, so that the work which would be done by the engine, when running direct, is actually spent upon it, will reject to the source of heat the same quantity of heat as, when running direct, it would take from the source, and will take from the receiver of heat the same quantity as, when running direct, it would reject to the receiver. J. A. A. Ewing.

reversible lock. A lock that may be applied to a door opening in either direction, or hinged to either jamb.

reversible process. Thermodyn. An imaginary process or series of changes of a system in which the system is in complete equilibrium at each stage of the process. When such a process is reversed, the complete series of changes, both internal and external, is reversed.

reversible reaction. Chem. A reaction which occurs in either direction, according to conditions. Thus, hydriodic acid is formed by the union of hydrogen and iodine, and also breaks up into these elements, as represented in the equation: $H_2 + I_2 \leftrightarrows 2HI$.

reversible steering gear. Mach. A steering gear for a vehicle, the road wheels of which are capable of being deflected by obstructions. — reversible steering.

re·vers'ing (rē·vûr'sĭng), pres. part. & verbal n. of REVERSE. — re·vers'ing·ly, adv.

reversing eyepiece. Astron. An eyepiece provided with a reversing prism. See REVERSING PRISM.

reversing layer. Astron. A gaseous atmospheric shell, a few hundred miles in depth, enveloping the sun, in which occurs that absorption which causes the Fraunhofer lines.

reversing link. Mach. The slotted link of a link motion, esp. of a Stephenson's link motion. Cf. LINK MOTION.

reversing prism. A right-angled prism which reverses in one co-ordinate the apparent position of objects viewed through it in the direction parallel to the hypotenuse side of the prism.

re·ver'sion (rē·vûr'shŭn; -zhŭn; 277), n. [OF., fr. L. reversio a turning back. See REVERT.] 1. Law. a The returning of an estate to the grantor or his heirs, by operation of law, after the grant has terminated; hence, the residue of an estate left in the proprietor or owner thereof, to take effect in possession, by operation of law, after the termination of a limited or less estate carved out of it and conveyed by him. Cf. REMAINDER; ESCHEAT. b Scots Law. A power to redeem lands from a wadset or encumbrance, or the period during which the power may be exercised. The seven years allowed by Act of 1649 to a debtor to redeem apprised lands is called the legal reversion, or legal.

2. Right of succession or future possession or enjoyment.

That scorns the dull reversion of a throne. Pope.

3. Act or instance of coming back, or returning, as to a former condition or faith; reconversion.

4. Act of reversing, or turning the opposite way, or state of being so turned; as, reversions of dip, of breezes.

5. Obs. a That which remains; remainder; remains; residue. b Act of returning, or coming back; return.

6. Alg. Act of reverting a series. See under REVERT, v.

7. Annuities. A reversionary annuity (see ANNUITY, 2).

8. Biol. a A return toward some ancestral type or condition; the reappearance of an ancestral character or characters; atavism. b An organism or individual possessing such a character; a throwback.

9. Chem. Return to a former state, as of soluble phosphates to an insoluble form. See PHOSPHORIC ACID, 1.

10. Plant Pathol. A virus disease of black currants transmitted by the gall mite causing big bud (which see), characterized by changed form of the leaves, abnormal flowers, and partial or complete sterility.

re·ver'sion (rē·vûr'shŭn; -zhŭn), n. Retranslation; retroversion.

re·ver'sion·a·ble (-ə·b'l), adj. Capable of reversion.

re·ver'sion·al (-əl; -'l), adj. Of, pertaining to, or of the nature of, a reversion; reversionary. — re·ver'sion·al·ly, adv.

re·ver'sion·ar'y (-ĕr'ĭ or, esp. Brit., -ēr·ĭ), adj. Of, pertaining to, or of the nature of, a reversion; involving a reversion; specif.: a Law. Of, pert. to, or involving, a legal reversion, to be enjoyed in succession, or after the termination of a particular estate; as, a reversionary interest or right. b Biol. Of, pertaining to, or involving, reversion; atavistic.

re·ver'sion·ar'y, n. Law. a That which is to be received in reversion. b Rare. A reversioner.

reversionary addition. Life Ins. = PAID-UP ADDITION.

reversionary annuity. See ANNUITY, 2.

reversion duty. A duty levied on lessors at the termination of a long lease, based on increase of property valuation.

re·ver'sion·er (rē·vûr'shŭn·ĕr; -zhŭn·ĕr), n. Law. One who has a reversion, or is entitled to a reversion; loosely, anyone having a vested right to a future estate.

re·ver'sion·ist (-ĭst), n. A reversioner.

reversion pendulum. = KATER'S PENDULUM.

reversion spectroscope. A spectroscope presenting two spectra with colors in opposite order, and provided with means for bringing any corresponding line in the two spectra into the same vertical line.

reversion to type. a Biol. = REVERSION, 8 a. b A returning to customs, practices, or ideas one has outgrown.

re·ver'sist (rē·vûr'sĭst), n. A player of reversi.

re·ver'sive (-sĭv), adj. [reverse + -ive.] Pertaining to reversion; tending to reverse or revert; atavistic.

re·ver'so (rē·vûr'sō), n.; pl. -SOS (-sōz). [It. riverso.] 1. = REVERSE, n., 3. Obs.

2. Print. A verso.

re·vert' (rē·vûrt'), v.; -VERT'ED; -VERT'ING. [OF. revertir, fr. (assumed) VL. revertire, for L. revertere, reversum, fr. re- re- + vertere to turn. See VERSION; cf. REVERSE, v.] Intransitive: 1. To regain consciousness; to come to; to recover; to revive. Obs.

2. To return; to come or go back, as to a place, person, condition, or topic; as, a people that reverted to savagery.

3. Biol. To undergo reversion; to return toward some ancestral type.

4. Chem. To return to a former state; — said esp. of phosphates in certain fertilizers which become insoluble again. See PHOSPHORIC ACID, 1.

5. Law. To return to the proprietor or his heirs or assigns after the termination of a particular estate or reversion granted by him.

——, Transitive: 1. Obs. a To cause to return; esp., to restore. b To turn, force, or throw, back. c To revoke; to reverse; to annul.

2. To turn to the contrary; to reverse; to invert. Rare.

Till happy chance revert the cruel scene. Prior.

3. To turn or direct back or to the rear, as the eyes.

4. Chem. To cause to revert. See REVERT, v. i., 4.

Syn. — See ADVERT. Ant. — Advance, proceed, progress.

revert a series. Alg. To so treat an infinite series, as $y = a + bx + cx^2 +$ etc., as to find x in a series in powers of y.

re·vert' (rē·vûrt'), n. One who or that which reverts or is reverted; specif.: a Obs. Music. A return; antistrophe. b One who returns to a former faith.

re·vert', adj. Reverted.

re·vert'al (rē·vûr'tăl; -t'l), n. Reversion. Rare.

re·vert'ed (-tĕd; -tĭd; 119), adj. Turned back or the wrong way; directed back, as the eyes; reversed.

reverted cellulose. See VISCOSE.

reverted phosphate. See PHOSPHORIC ACID, 1. reverted phosphoric acid. Agric. Chem. See PHOSPHORIC ACID, 2.

reverted train. Kinematics. An epicyclic train in which the first and last wheels revolve on the same axis. When these two wheels are nearly equal, a very slow relative rotation is secured.

re·vert'er (rē·vûr'tĕr), n. One who or that which reverts.

re·vert'er (-tĕr), n. [AF. reverter to return, inf. used as n., for OF. revertir to return. See REVERT.] Law. Reversion.

re·vert'i·ble (rē·vûr'tĭ·b'l), adj. That may revert or be reverted. — re·vert'i·bil'i·ty (-bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n.

re·ver'tive (rē·vûr'tĭv), adj. Reverting, or tending to revert; returning. — re·ver'tive·ly, adv.

re·vest' (rē·vĕst'), v. [OF. revestir (F. revêtir), fr. L. re vestire, fr. re- re- + vestire to clothe, fr. vestis a garment. See VEST; cf. REVET.] Transitive: 1. To clothe, esp. with vestments; to attire; dress; robe. Obs.

2. To put on (clothing); to clothe (oneself) again.

3. To vest (senses 3 & 4) again; to reinstate; to reinvest; as, to revest a king in his kingdom, or lands in a former owner.

——, Intransitive: To take effect or vest again, as a title; to revert to a former owner; as, the title revested in A.

‖re·ves'ti·a'ri·us (rē·vĕs'tĭ·ā'rĭ·ŭs; 79), n. [ML.] The assistant sacrist, in charge of the vestments and church hangings. Hist.

re·ves'try (rē·vĕs'trĭ), n. [See REVESTIARY, VESTRY.] A place for vesting of priests; a vestry. Now Rare.

re·vet' (rē·vĕt'), v. t.; -VET'TED; -VET'TING. [F. revêtir, prop., to clothe. See REVEST.] Mil. & Civil Engin. To face, as an embankment, with a revetment.

re·vet'ment (-mĕnt), n. [F. revêtement, fr. revêtir to clothe. See REVET.] Fort. & Engin. A facing of stone, concrete, fascines, or any other material, to sustain an embankment; also, a retaining wall.

re·vict'ual (rē·vĭt'l), v. t. & i.; -UALED, -UALLED (-'ld); -UAL·ING, -UAL·LING. [re- + victual.] To victual again. — re·vict'ual·ment, n.

re·vie' (rē·vī'), v. Obs. Transitive: 1. To vie with, or challenge, in return.

2. Card Playing. To meet a wager on, as on the taking of a trick, with a higher wager.

——, Intransitive: Obs. 1. Card Playing. To exceed an adversary's wager.

2. To make a retort; to bandy words.

re·vie', n. Obs. 1. Card Playing. A higher wager than an adversary's.

2. A repetition; reinspection; review.

re·view' (rē·vū'; in senses 1 & 2, rē-), v.; RE·VIEWED' (-vūd'); RE·VIEW'ING. [re- + view; cf. F. revoir, past part. revu. See REVIEW, n.] Transitive: 1. To view or see again. Obs. "I shall review Sicilia." Shak.

2. To view or examine again; as, the officers viewed and reviewed the fortifications.

3. To take a view of; to survey.

Shall I the long, laborious scene review? Pope.

4. To look back on; to take a retrospective view of.

5. [From REVIEW, n.; cf. F. revoir.] To go over or examine critically or deliberately. Specif.: a Obs. To reconsider; to revise, as a manuscript before printing it, or a book for a new edition. b To go over with critical examination, in order to discover excellences or defects; hence, to write a critical examination of; as, to review a new novel.

6. Law. To re-examine judicially; as, a higher court may review the proceedings and judgments of a lower one.

7. Mil. To make a formal or official examination of the state of, as troops or the like; to hold a review of; as to review a regiment.

——, Intransitive: To write reviews; to be a reviewer.

re·view' (rē·vū'), n. [MF. reveue (F. revue), fr. revoir to see again (past part. revu), fr. L. revidere, fr. re- re- + videre to see. See VIEW; cf. REVISE.] 1. A looking over or examination with a view to amendment or improvement; revision; as, an author's review of his works. Now Rare.

2. A general survey or view, as of the events of a period; as, to take a review of the war; to pass one's life in review.

3. An examination or inspection.

4. A second or repeated view; a re-examination.

5. A retrospective view or survey, as of one's life.

6. An explanatory and critical account of a publication, dramatic production, exhibition, or the like, usually in a periodical; a criticism; a critique.

7. A periodical containing critical articles primarily.

8. Drama. A revue.

9. Educ. A repetition of a lesson or series of lessons some time after its first assignment.

10. Law. Judicial re-examination, as of the proceedings of a lower tribunal of any kind by a higher.

11. Mil. & Nav. An inspection, as of troops under arms or of a naval force, by a high officer for the purpose of ascertaining the state of discipline, equipments etc.; specif., a march past the reviewing officer, usually following an inspection.

Syn. — REVIEW, CRITIQUE, CRITICISM all denote a critical essay. REVIEW emphasizes the idea of critical examination or exposition; CRITIQUE and CRITICISM lay stress rather upon the expression of critical judgments. Cf. ANIMADVERSION.

re·verse'-cur'rent cir'cuit break'er. Elec. See CIRCUIT BREAKER.

reverse discard. Whist. = DOWN-AND-OUT, n., 2.

re·verse'ly, adv. of REVERSE.

re·verse'ways', re·verse'wise', adv. See -WAYS, -WISE.

re·vers'i·bl. Reversible. Ref. Sp.

re·ver'si·fy, v. i. See RE-, 2. — re·ver·si·fi·ca'tion, n. — re·ver'si·fi'er, n.

reversing switch. Elec. See SWITCH, n., 5.

re·ver'sia (rē·vûr'zhə), n. [F.] = REVERSI a. re·ver'ture, n. Reversion. Obs.

rev'er·y (rĕv'ĕr·ĭ). Var. of REVERIE. [VEST, to dress. Obs.] re·vesche', re·vesh', v. t. = RE-VEST, v. t. = REVEST, to dress. Obs.

re·ves'ti·ar'y (rē·vĕs'tĭ·ĕr'ĭ; -ēr·ĭ), n. [ML. revestiarium; cf. F. revêtiaire. See REVEST.] = REVESTRY. Hist.

re·vête' (rē·vāt'), v. t. Also re·vete'. [F. revêtir.] = REVET.

re·vête'ment' (rē·vāt'mĭnt'; rē·vāt'mĕnt), n. Also re·vete'ment. [F. revêtement.] = REVETMENT.

re·vi'brate, v. i. & t. See RE-, 2. — re·vi·bra'tion (rĕ'vĭ·brā'shŭn), n. — re·vi·bra'tion·al, adj.

re·vic'to·ri·ous, adj. See RE-, 2.

re·vic'to·ry, n. See RE-, 2.

N O P Q R

re·view'age (rē-vū'ĭj), n. Reviewing, as of books.
re·view'al (-ăl), n. Act of reviewing; revision; a review.
re·view'er (-ēr), n. One who reviews or re-examines; specif.: a One who examines publications critically, and publishes his opinion of them; a professional critic of books; a review writer. b Obs. A reviser. c Obs. One who looks back.
re·vig'or, -vig'our (rē-vĭg'ĕr), v. t. & i. To regain, or restore to, vigor. Obs.
re·vig'or·ate (-āt), v. t. To reinvigorate. — re·vig·or·a'tion (rē'vĭg·ĕr·ā'shŭn), n.
re·vig'or·ate (rē-vĭg'ĕr·ăt), adj. [ML. revigoratus, past part.] Reinvigorated. Rare.
re·vile' (rē-vīl'), v.; RE·VILED' (-vīld'); RE·VIL'ING (-vīl'-ĭng). [OF. reviler to despise, regard as vile, fr. re- re- + vil vile. See VILE.] Transitive: 1. To debase. Obs. 2. To subject to abuse, now only in speech; to address or assail with opprobrious language; to rail at.
—, Intransitive: To use contemptuous or opprobrious language; to rail.
Who, when he was reviled, reviled not again. 1 Pet. ii. 23.
Syn. and Ant. — See VILIFY. re·vile' (rē-vīl'), n. A reviling remark or speech; also, reviling. Obs.
re·vile'ment (-mĕnt), n. Act, practice, or instance of reviling. re·vil'er (-vīl'ĕr), n. One who reviles. re·vil'ing (rē-vīl'ĭng), adj. Abusive. Cf. REVILE, v. — re·vil'ing·ly, adv. re·vince' (rē-vĭns'), v. t. [See REVICT.] To refute. Obs. re·vin'di·cate (rē-vĭn'dĭ·kāt), v. t. [re- + vindicate. Cf. REVENDICATE, REVENGE.] To vindicate again; to reclaim; to demand and take back. — re'vin·di·ca'tion (rē'vĭn·dĭ·kā'shŭn), n. rev'i·res'cence (rĕv'ĭ·rĕs'ĕns; -'ns), n. Quality or fact of being revirescent. Rare.
rev'i·res'cent (-ĕnt; -'nt), adj. [L. revirescens, pres. part. of revirescere to grow green again.] Growing fresh or young again; reviving.
re·vis'al (rē-vīz'ăl; -'l), n. [From REVISE.] Act of revising; revision; as, the revisal of a manuscript or treaty.
re·vise' (rē-vīz'), v.; RE·VISED' (-vīzd'); RE·VIS'ING (-vīz'-ĭng). [F. reviser, fr. L. revisere to look back, go to see again, revisit, revidere, revisum, to see again, fr. re- re- + videre, visum, to see. See REVIEW.] Intransitive: 1. To look again, often, or back; to reflect (on). Obs. 2. To make a revision; to be engaged in revision of a manuscript, etc.
—, Transitive: 1. To see or look at again. Obs. 2. To look at or over again for the purpose of correcting or improving; to go or read over to correct errors, etc.; as, to revise a manuscript or a printer's proof. 3. To make a new, amended, improved, or up-to-date version of; to subject to revision; as, to revise a dictionary.
re·vise' (rē-vīz'), n. 1. A being seen again. Obs. 2. Act of revising; a review; a revision; a re-examination. 3. A revised form. 4. Print. A proof taken after corrections have been made.
Revised Standard Version of the New Testament. An authorized revision of the New Testament of the American Revised Version of 1901 published in New York in 1946.
re·vised' stat'utes. a U. S. The statutes (of a particular jurisdiction) of a general and permanent nature, comprising only the laws in force at a given time, compiled and published in shortened form, rearranged and classified; — in distinction from the statutes at large. b Eng. The enactments of legislatures, reprinted in chronological order, with obsolete statutes omitted.
Revised Version of the Bible. A revised form of the Authorized Version prepared by English and American revisers in accordance with a resolution passed, in 1870, by both houses of the Convocation of the Province of Canterbury, England. The New Testament was published in 1881, and the complete Bible in 1885. The revised Apocrypha appeared in 1895. Cf. AMERICAN REVISED VERSION.
re·vis'er (rē-vīz'ĕr), n. One who revises, esp. proofs.
re·vi'sion (rē-vĭzh'ŭn), n. [F. revision, fr. LL. revisio a seeing again, fr. revidere. See REVISE, v.] 1. Act of revising; re-examination or careful reading over for correction or improvement; as, the revision of a book or of statutes. 2. That made by revising; a revised form or version. 3. A seeing again; a rebeholding.
Syn. — Re-examination, revisal, revise, correction. re·vi'sion·al (-ăl; -'l), re·vi'sion·ar'y (-ĕr'ĭ; -ēr-ĭ), adj. Of or pertaining to revision.
re·vi'sion·ism (-ĭz'm), n. [revision + -ism.] 1. Advocacy of revision, as of an original doctrine or treaty; the theory or practice of a revisionist. 2. The movement among socialists to modify Marxian socialism, esp. as revised by Edward Bernstein (1889), so as to be evolutionary rather than revolutionary in spirit.
re·vi'sion·ist, n. a One who favors revision, as of a court decision or of the evidence of responsibility for an act. b A reviser; esp., pl., those who made the Revised Version of the Bible. c One who favors revisionism. — re·vi'sion·ist, adj.
re·vis'it (rē-vĭz'ĭt), v. t. & i. [F. revisiter.] 1. To revise; to re-examine. Obs. 2. To visit again; to return to.
re·vis'it, n. Act of visiting again; a repeated visit.
re·vis'it·ant (-ĭ·tănt), adj. Revisiting. — re·vis'it·ant, n. re'vis·it·a'tion (rē'vĭz·ĭ·tā'shŭn), n. [Cf. OF. revisitation examination, inspection.] Act of revisiting.
re·vi'so·ry (rē-vī'zŏ·rĭ), adj. Having the power or purpose to revise; revising; making revision; as, revisory body, power, or functions.
re·viv'al (rē-vīv'ăl; -'l), n. [From REVIVE.] 1. Act or instance of reviving, or state of being revived; restoration. Specif.: a Renewed attention to something, as to letters or literature. b Renewed performance of, or interest in, something, as the drama and literature; of a play, book, or the like, a new presentation or publication. c In full, revival of religion. Renewed interest in religion, after indifference and decline; a period of religious awakening; special religious interest. d Reanimation from a state of languor or depression; — applied to the health, spirits, and the like. e Renewed pursuit, or cultivation, or flourishing state of something, as of commerce, arts, agriculture. f Renewed prevalence of something, as a practice or a fashion; as, the Gothic revival. g Restoration to consciousness or life. 2. An evangelistic meeting or a series of evangelistic meetings, often characterized by emotional excitement. 3. Old Chem. Revivification. 4. Law. Restoration of force, validity, or effect; renewal; as, the revival of a debt barred by limitation; the revival of a revoked will, of a judgment, etc. 5. Psychol. Recurrence to mind; active memory as distinguished from retention; recall; reproduction.
Syn. — Quickening, reanimation, renaissance, rebirth, resurrection. Ant. — Decadence, decline, death.
re·viv'al·ism (rē-vīv'ăl·ĭz'm), n. 1. The spirit or kind of religion, or methods, characteristic of religious revivals. 2. Tendency or desire to revive or restore.
re·viv'al·ist, n. 1. A clergyman or layman who promotes revivals of religion; an advocate of or participator in religious revivals; sometimes, specif., a clergyman, without a particular charge, who goes about to promote revivals; an evangelist. 2. A reviver or restorer, as of earlier architecture — re·viv'al·ist, adj. — re·viv'al·is'tic (-ĭs'tĭk), adj.
Revival of Learning, Letters, or Literature. The Renaissance in its literary aspect. re·viv'a·to'ry (rē-vīv'ă·tō'rĭ; -tĕr·ĭ), adj. Restorative.
re·vive' (rē-vīv'), v.; RE·VIVED' (-vīvd'); RE·VIV'ING (-vīv'-ĭng). [F. revivre, fr. L. revivere, fr. re- re- + vivere to live. See VIVID.] Intransitive: 1. To return to consciousness or life; to recover life, vigor, or strength; to become reanimated or reinvigorated; to become active, operative, valid, or flourishing again; as, hope revived in him.
The soul of the child came into him again, and he revived. 1 Kings xvii. 22.
2. Old Chem. To recover its metallic state, as a metal.
—, Transitive: 1. To restore to consciousness or life; to reanimate. 2. To raise from languor, depression, or discouragement; to bring into action after a suspension; to render active, operative, valid, or flourishing again; to reinvigorate. 3. To recover from a state of neglect or disuse; to restore; re-establish; bring back into currency, use, performance, or the like; as, to revive a play. 4. To renew in the mind or memory; to bring to recollection; to recall attention to; to reawaken; to refreshen. 5. a Old Chem. To reduce or restore to the metallic state, as a metal after calcination. b Chem. To revivify. 6. Phys. Geog. To rejuvenate.
Syn. — Enliven, resuscitate, rekindle, rouse. re·vive', n. Revival. Obs.
re·vive'ment (rē-vīv'mĕnt), n. Obs. a Revival. b A reviving influence; a cause of revival.
re·viv'er (rē-vīv'ĕr), n. One who or that which revives; as: a Slang. A stimulant. b A preparation for restoring color, polish, or the like. c One who restores to use, re-establishes, reintroduces, or the like. d A renovator of old clothes.
re·viv'er, n. Revival; re-establishment.
re·viv'i·fi·ca'tion (rē-vĭv'ĭ·fĭ·kā'shŭn), n. [LL. revivificare, -atum, to restore to life.] 1. Renewal or restoration of life; act of recalling or restoring, or state of being recalled, from death or apparent death or torpidity to life. 2. Chem. Process of reviving or revivifying. See REVIVE, v. t., 5 a; REVIVIFY, v. t., c (2). 3. Revival; renewal; reinvigoration.
re·viv'i·fi'er (rē-vĭv'ĭ·fī'ĕr), n. One that revivifies; a reviver.
re·viv'i·fy (rē-vĭv'ĭ·fī), v. t. [F. révivifier, fr. LL. revivificare. See VIVIFY.] To cause to revive; to revive; specif.: a To reanimate; to reinvigorate. b To restore to life; to resuscitate. c Chem. (1) = REVIVE, v. t., 5 a. (2) To restore to an active state, as char (used in decolorizing sugar) by reburning. — v. i. Chem. To revive.
re·viv'ing (rē-vīv'ĭng), adj. a Regaining an active state. See REVIVE, v. b Resuscitative. c Renewing. — re·viv'ing·ly (-vīv'ĭng·lĭ), adv.
rev'i·vis'cence (rĕv'ĭ·vĭs'ĕns; -'ns), rev'i·vis'cen·cy (-ĕn·sĭ; -'n·sĭ), n. Act of reviving, or state of being revived; renewal of life; restoration to life, vigor, or the like. rev'i·vis'cent (-ĕnt; -'nt), adj. [L. revivescens, pres. part. of reviviscere to revive.] Able or disposed to revive; causing reviving. — rev'i·vis'cent, n.
rev'i·vis'ci·ble (rĕv'ĭ·vĭs'ĭ·b'l), adj. [L. reviviscere to revive.] Capable of reviving. Rare.
re·vi'vor (rē-vī'vĕr), n. [Prob. for reviver, after nouns in -er fr. the OF. inf. used as n.] Revival. Obs., exc. Eng. Law. Revival of a suit which is abated.
rev'o·ca·ble (rĕv'ŏ·kă·b'l), adj. [F. révocable, fr. L. revocabilis. See REVOKE.] Capable of being revoked. — rev'o·ca·bil'i·ty (-bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), rev'o·ca·ble·ness, n. — rev'o·ca·bly, adv. rev'o·cate (-kāt), v. t. [L. revocatus, past part. of revocare.] To recall; revoke; repress. Obs. rev'o·ca'tion (rĕv'ŏ·kā'shŭn), n. [F. révocation, fr. L. revocatio. See REVOKE.] 1. Act of recalling, or calling back, or state of being recalled; recall. Obs. 2. Act of revoking; act by which one, having the right, annuls an act done, a power or authority given, or a license, gift, or benefit conferred; repeal; reversal; withdrawal; as, the revocation of an edict, a power, a will, or a license. 3. Recantation; retraction. Obs.
rev'o·ca'tive (rĕv'ŏ·kā'tĭv), adj. Revoking or able to revoke. rev'o·ca·to'ry (rĕv'ŏ·kă·tō'rĭ or, esp. Brit., -tĕr·ĭ), adj. [LL. revocatorius.] Of or pertaining to revocation; tending to, or involving, a revocation; revoking; recalling.
re·voice' (rē-vois'), v. t. 1. To voice again; to echo. 2. To refurnish with a voice; to refit, as an organ pipe.
re·vok'a·ble (rē-vōk'ă·b'l), adj. [From REVOKE, v.] Revocable. re·voke' (rē-vōk'), v.; RE·VOKED' (-vōkt'); RE·VOK'ING (-vōk'ĭng). [ME. revoken, fr. OF. revoquer, fr. L. revocare, fr. re- re- + vocare to call. See VOICE.] Transitive: 1. Now Rare. To bring back; to recall. Specif.: a Obs. To restrain; check; prevent. b To call back to mind or memory. c To restore to use or operation; to revive. d To call or summon back.
The faint sprite he did revoke again. Spenser.
2. To annul by recalling or taking back; to repeal; to rescind; to cancel; to reverse, as anything granted by a special act; as, to revoke a will, license, grant, law. 3. Obs. To withdraw. Specif.: a To recant; to retract. b To take back; to reassume; to recover. c To draw back.
—, Intransitive: 1. To make revocation. 2. Card Playing. To fail to follow suit when able, in violation of the rule of the game; to renege.
Syn. — Countermand, annul, abrogate. See ABOLISH.
Ant. — Confirm, enforce, execute, enact, carry out.
re·voke' (rē-vōk'), n. a An annulling; a cancellation; also recall. b Card Playing. Act of revoking. re·voke'ment, n. Revocation. Rare.
re·vok'er (rē-vōk'ĕr), n. One who revokes. rev'o·lant (rĕv'ŏ·lănt), adj. Flying back. Rare.
re·volt' (rē-vōlt'), n. A revolter. "Ingrate revolts." Shak.
re·volt' (rē-vōlt'; -vŏlt'), n. [F. révolte, fr. révolter to revolt, fr. It. rivoltare, fr. (assumed) VL. revolvitare, fr. L. revolvere. See REVOLVE.] 1. A casting off of allegiance; an uprising against legitimate authority; esp., a renunciation of allegiance and subjection to a government; rebellion; insurrection; as, the revolt of a province; also, the act of revolting. 2. A movement or expression of vigorous dissent or refusal to accept; as, iconoclasm is a revolt against image worship. 3. A change of party or opinion; as, the Progressive party of 1912 was in revolt against the Republicans. 4. Loathing; nausea. Shak.
Syn. — Uprising, sedition, mutiny. See REBELLION.
re·volt', v.; RE·VOLT'ED; RE·VOLT'ING. [F. révolter. See REVOLT, n.] Intransitive: 1. To renounce allegiance or subjection; to rebel; to desert one party, leader, or, Obs., religion, for another; to go over (to); to turn away (from). 2. To draw back; to retreat. Obs. 3. To be disgusted, shocked, or grossly offended; to feel disgust or nausea; to turn or rise in disgust or repugnance; — with at or against; as, the stomach revolts at such food; his nature revolts against such treatment. 4. To turn away or shrink with disgust or loathing, as from the dominant sophisms of the time.
—, Transitive: 1. Obs. a To cause to turn back. b To cast off in revolt. c To cause to revolt. 2. To cause to turn away or shrink with disgust or abhorrence; to affect with disgust or loathing; to nauseate; as, to revolt the conscience.
re·volt'er (rē-vōl'tĕr; rē-vŏl'-), n. One who revolts; a rebel.
re·volt'ing (rē-vōl'tĭng; rē-vŏl'-), adj. Disgusting; shocking; offensive; nauseating.
Revolting cant about the duty of obedience and the wickedness of resistance to law. Henry Adams.
Syn. — See REPELLENT. Ant. — Attractive, pleasant.
— re·volt'ing·ly, adv.
rev'o·lu·ble (rĕv'ŏ·lū·b'l), adj. [L. revolubilis that may be rolled back. See REVOLVE.] Capable of revolving; revolvable; rotating. — rev'o·lu·bil'i·ty (-bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n. — rev'o·lu·bly, adv.
rev'o·lute (rĕv'ŏ·lūt), adj. [L. revolutus, past part. of revolvere. See REVOLVE.] Rolled backward or downward, as the margins or tips of some leaves.
rev'o·lute (rĕv'ŏ·lūt), v. t. & i. [L. revolutus, past part.] Revolve. Obs.
rev'o·lute, v. i. [From revolution.] To make or undergo revolution. Slang. rev'o·lut'ed (-lūt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj. Revolute. rev'o·lu'tion (rĕv'ŏ·lū'shŭn; 242), n. [OF., fr. LL. revolutio. See REVOLVE.] 1. a Strictly, a progressive motion of a body round a center or axis, such that any line of the body remains throughout parallel to its initial position, to which it returns on completing the circuit. Revolution is often combined with rotation; the moon presents always the same side to the earth because it rotates on its axis and revolves round the earth at the same angular rate. b Motion of any figure about a center or axis, in which each point of the figure traces a circular arc of the same angular size about its projection on the axis as center; as, the revolution of a right-angled triangle about one of its legs generates a cone; — more accurately called rotation.

Leaves of Andromeda polifolia, with Revolute Margins.

2. Specif.: a Of a celestial body, act of going round in an orbit, or elliptic course; also, apparent movement round the earth. Also, the time taken by a celestial body to make a complete round in its orbit. b The rotation of a celestial body on its axis. 3. Completion of a course, as of years; also, the period made by the regular succession of a measure of time or by a succession of similar events.
Eight or nine revolutions of civilization are in our view, and from them we can trace the similarities of their course. Sir Flinders Petrie.
4. Change; alteration. Rare. 5. A total or radical change; as, a revolution in thought. 6. Obs. a A turning over, as in talk or in the mind; discussion; pondering; consideration. b Recurrence; repetition. c A turn or twist; a bend. d A cycle; an epoch. 7. Polit. Sci. A fundamental change in political organization, or in a government or constitution; the overthrow or renunciation of one government or ruler, and the substitution of another, by the governed. See Table, p. 2135.
Syn. — See REBELLION.
rev'o·lu'tion (rĕv'ŏ·lū'shŭn), v. t. To revolutionize.
rev'o·lu'tion·al (-ăl; -'l), adj. Revolutionary. — rev'o·lu'tion·al·ly, adv.
rev'o·lu'tion·ar'y (rĕv'ŏ·lū'shŭn·ĕr'ĭ or, esp. Brit., -ēr·ĭ), adj. [Cf. F. révolutionnaire.] Of, pert. to, characterized by, or of the nature of, a revolution, esp. in government; tending to or promoting revolution; as, a revolutionary war or agitation. — rev'o·lu'tion·ar'i·ly (-ĭ·lĭ), adv.
rev'o·lu'tion·ar'y, n.; pl. -IES (-ĭz). A revolutionist.
Revolutionary calendar. The calendar of the first French republic. It was substituted for the ordinary calendar by a decree of the National Convention in 1793. The 22d of September, 1792, the day from which the existence of the republic was reckoned, was also the date of the new calendar. The year was indicated thus: An I (Year I), 18 Brumaire An VIII (= Nov. 9, 1799). It began at midnight of the day of the autumnal equinox, and was divided into twelve months of thirty days, with five additional days (sans-culottides) for festivals, and six in every fourth year. Each month was divided into three decades of ten days each, the week being abolished. The names of the months, with their English significance, and the approximate dates of their commencement, are as follows:

Vendémiaire	Vintage..Sept. 22	Floréal	Blossom..Apr. 20
Brumaire	Fog.....Oct. 22	Prairial	Pasture..May 20
Frimaire	Sleet....Nov. 21	Messidor	Harvest..June 19
Nivôse	Snow....Dec. 21	Thermidor,
Pluviôse	Rain....Jan. 20	or Fervidor,	Heat.....July 19
Ventôse	Wind....Feb. 19	Fructidor	Fruit.....Aug. 18
Germinal	Seed.....Mar. 21

The five regular sans-culottides were dedicated respectively to the Virtues, Genius, Labor, Opinion, and Rewards. This calendar was abolished by Napoleon at the end of 1805.

re·view'a·ble, adj. See -ABLE. — re·view'a·bil'i·ty, n.
re·view'er·ess, n. See -ESS. re·view'ish, adj. See -ISH.
re·view'less, adj. See -LESS.
re·vi'o·late, v. i. See RE-, 2. — re'vi·o·la'tion, n. rev'i·ra'do, n. [F. revirade.] A shift; a feint. Obs.
re·vis'a·ble (rē-vīz'ă·b'l), adj. See -ABLE. — re·vis'a·ble·ness, n.
re·vis'ee' (-vīz'ē'), n. See -EE. re·vis'er·ship (rē-vīz'ĕr·shĭp), n. See -SHIP. re·vis'i·ble (-vĭz'ĭ·b'l), adj. Revisable. See -ABLE.
re·vis'i·ble (rē-vĭz'ĭ·b'l), adj. Again visible. Obs. [VISIBLE.] re·vi'sor (rē-vī'zŏr), n. = RE-VISER. re·vis'u·al·ize, v. t. See RE-, 2. — re·vis·u·al·i·za'tion, n.
re·vi'tal·ize, v. t. See RE-, 2. — re·vi'tal·iz'er, n. — re·vi·tal·i·za'tion, n.
re·viv'a·ble (rē-vīv'ă·b'l), adj. See -ABLE. — re·viv'a·bil'i·ty (-bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n. — re·viv'a·bly, adv.
re·viv'al·ize, v. i. See -IZE. rev'i·ves'cence (rĕv'ĭ·vĕs'ĕns; -'ns). Var. of REVIVISCENCE. rev'i·ves'cent (-ĕnt; -'nt). Var. of REVIVISCENT. [VIVIFICATION.] re'viv·i·ca'tion. Error. for RE-re·vi'vor. † REVIVER. re·vize'. Revise. Ref. Sp.
re·vok'ing·ly, adv. of revoking, pres. part.
re·vol'a·til·ize, v. t. See RE-, 1, 2.
re·vol'ress, n., fem. of REVOLTER. re'vol·un·teer', v. i. See RE-, 2. rev'o·lu'tion·ar'i·ness, n. See -NESS.

TABLE OF REVOLUTIONS IN MODERN TIMES

A table giving data of some of the more important uprisings of various peoples in modern times, usually against a conservative or reactionary government or sovereign and often fundamentally due to economic causes. Many were only partly successful but in all new ideas were brought forward that sooner or later bore fruit. The word Revolution is often used specifically to denote the American, English, French, or Russian revolutions, but also the others when used by the nationals concerned. See REBELLION, Syn.

NAME	DATE	PARTIES AND CAUSES	MAIN EVENTS AND LEADERS	RESULTS
American	1775–81	See Revolution, American, under WAR, Table.
Austro-Hungarian (See also 1848)	1918 (Nov.)	Constituent races of kingdom against the House of Hapsburg. — Strong nationalist feelings.	Soldiers refuse to fight against Allies; Emperor Charles deposed; nationalities declare independence.	Austria-Hungary divided. See St.-Germain, under TREATY, Table; SUCCESSION STATE.
Brazilian	(a) 1822–24	People of Brazil against Portugal. — Awakening of national spirit.	John VI of Portugal retires and renounces rights over Brazil; his son Dom Pedro made constitutional emperor.	New Constitution proclaimed Mar. 25, 1824.
	(b) 1889 (Nov. 15)	People of Brazil against Emperor. — Spread of socialist and republican propaganda.	Army and navy overthrow ministry; Emperor Dom Pedro II expelled; no fighting. Leaders: Benjamin Constant Botelho, Deodoro da Fonseca.	Brazil a republic. New Constitution adopted Feb. 24, 1891.
Chinese	1911–	Progressive leaders against conservatism and tyranny of Manchu dynasty. — Foreign ideas, through missionaries, merchants, and American-educated students arouse desire for democracy; influence and activities of Sun Yat-sen.	Revolt in northern provinces (Oct.); Manchu regent resigns Feb. 7, 1912; No. and So. China unite in forming republic with Yuan Shih-kai as provisional president.	Parliament elected but later (1917) dissolved; China a republic in name only and aims of revolution not yet accomplished; government now (1934) by the Kuomintang through Councils. See YUAN.
1848	1848–49	Widespread popular unrest in Europe against uncompromising conservatism of governments. This feeling of general unrest begins about 1830, following the revolutions of that year (see FRENCH REVOLUTION, 1830, below) and affects all countries except Russia, Spain, and Scandinavia. In England it works itself out in CHARTISM. Nationalism and democracy are the ideals of the peoples and socialism is beginning to be formulated. See SOCIALISM.	(1) Starts in France (Feb. 22–24). Louis Philippe abdicates and republic formed. Leaders: Louis Blanc, Lamartine. (2) Austria (Mar. 13). Metternich driven out, Hungary (see 5) sets up own government, Italy (see 4) revolts. Leaders: Francis Joseph I, Radetzky. (3) Germany (Mar. 18). Street fighting in Munich and Berlin; new German Parliament meets at Frankfort on the Main, May, 1848. (4) Italy (Mar.). Revolt in Naples against king at first successful; Milan and Venice rise against Austria in north; French army captures Rome (June 29, 1849). Leaders: Mazzini, Cavour, Charles Albert, Garibaldi. (5) Hungary (Mar.). Movement for separate government; Reform program successful until Russia aids Austria. Leaders: Louis Kossuth, Görgei.	(1) Louis Napoleon (Napoleon III) president of Second French Republic; elected emperor 1851. (2) Hungarians overcome; Italians defeated at Custozza (July 25, 1848) and Novara (Mar. 23, 1849). (3) Work of Parliament ineffectual; Prussia soon regains control. (4) Failure of Revolution leaves Italy divided as before and garrisoned by foreign troops. (5) Class, religious, and racial hatreds prevent success; Hungary returns to subjection to Austrian absolutism.
English ("Glorious Revolution")	1688	English people against James II. — Opposition to King's efforts to free Catholics from provisions of Test Act; fear of Catholic restoration.	Both Whigs and Tories unite to appeal to William III of Orange; James driven out; battle of the Boyne (1690) (see under BATTLE, Table).	Bill of Rights (1689); Act of Toleration (1689); England strengthened as European power.
French	(a) 1789–99	At first (1789–92) a struggle within France, Third Estate against king (Louis XVI) and nobility; later, France (First Republic) against Allies (Great Britain, Austria, Spain, Holland, Prussia, etc.). — Repression and tyranny of French king and nobility; revolutionary spirit of republic.	Storming of the Bastille (July 14, 1789); Reign of Terror (Mar. 1793–Aug. 1794); battles of Valmy (see under BATTLE, Table), Wattignies, Toulon; Directory (1795–99). Revolution merges into Napoleonic Wars (see WAR, Table). See also COALITION, 3; CONSULATE, 3. Leaders: Danton, Mirabeau, Robespierre, Marat, Lafayette, Fouché; Dumouriez, Kellermann, Carnot, later, Napoleon.	France a republic (1792–94); royalty overthrown (Louis XVI executed Jan. 21, 1793); France the center of revolutionary and republican ideas. See REIGN OF TERROR.
(See also 1848)	(b) 1830 (July 26–29)	French people, esp. the bourgeoisie, rise up against the Bourbon king, Charles X, because of his reactionary measures in dealing with the Chamber of Deputies, practically suspending the Charter of 1815.	Street fighting in Paris; Charles abdicates (Aug. 2) and flees to England; tricolor of 1789 restored.	Louis Philippe, Duke of Orléans, chosen "King of the French"; Revolution spreads to Belgium, which separates from Holland, and to Germany, Italy, and Poland.
German (See also 1848)	1918	German people against royal family and the nobility in authority in the state governments. — World War weariness, German defeats and defeats of her allies, and spread of Socialist ideas.	Mutiny of navy at Kiel and Hamburg (Nov. 4); Kaiser William II abdicates and flees with Crown Prince to Holland (Nov. 9); Social Democrats in control declare republic (Reich); representatives sign armistice (Nov. 11).	Weimar National Assembly (1919) frames new constitution, which goes into effect Aug. 11, making Germany a republic.
Greek (War of Independence)	1821–29	Greece against Turkey. — Revival of nationalism in Greece and decadence and tyranny of Ottoman Empire.	At first sympathy of Europe granted to Greece but Metternich prevents any material aid; later (1827–29) England, France, and Russia aid Greece; Turks defeated in battle of Navarino (Oct. 20, 1827).	Peace of Adrianople, Sept. 14, 1829; Greece becomes independent kingdom; in 1832 chooses Otto of Bavaria as its king.
Indian	1919–	People of India against British government. — Unrest following the World War; Rowlatt Acts and Amritsar affair; desire for complete home rule.	In 1919 Gandhi and Indian societies inaugurate non-co-operation movement to compel grant of dominion government within the empire; from 1921 to 1931 boycotts, rioting, strikes, etc., prevail; aims of revolution become confused; Gandhi turns to social reforms in the caste system; Revolution still in progress. Indian leaders: M. K. Gandhi, C. R. Das, Motilal Nehru; English: Edwin S. Montagu, Sir John Simon, Lord Irwin, Lord Reading, Lord Willingdon. See SWARAJ, CIVIL DISOBEDIENCE, SATYAGRAHA.	Great Britain yields to grant added powers to national and provincial legislatures of India; draft constitution, 1931–32; status of minorities unsettled. See UNTOUCHABLE.
Italian (See also 1848)	1920–23	Fascisti under Benito Mussolini organized (Black Shirts) to combat revolutionary Socialism in Italy.	March on Rome (Oct. 1922); government abdicates and King summons Mussolini to power; electoral laws revised (1923).	Italy becomes a centralized state under the Fascist Grand Council, with Mussolini as its head. Charter of Labor (1927).
Japanese	1867–68	Spread of foreign influence; opposition to power of shoguns.	Mutsuhito becomes Emperor, inaugurating Era of Meiji (see MEIJI); shoguns overthrown after holding power for 264 years.	Feudal system abandoned; Tokyo becomes capital; Western methods and ideas adopted.
Mexican	1911–17	Advocates of democracy, under leadership of F. Madero, against prolonged rule (1876–1910) of Gen. Porfirio Diaz.	Revolution starts May, 1911; Diaz resigns and Madero becomes president; in 1913 V. Huerta overcomes Madero and later (1914) is forced by U. S. to leave Mexico; Carranza president but revolt of P. Villa and attacks against U. S. cause intervention (1917) by U. S. Army under Pershing.	Carranza becomes constitutional president (May 1, 1917); new constitution promulgated, 1918.
Persian	1925–26	People against Kajar dynasty (which had ruled since 1779). — Growth of nationalist spirit and desire for establishment of a republic, esp. after 1906.	The National Assembly (Majlis) adopts a resolution (Oct. 31, 1925) deposing Shah Ahmed Mirza; Riza Khan Pahlevi, prime minister, assumes control, and on Dec. 13, 1925, is elected shah by a Constituent Assembly. Royal family deported.	Persia changed from a kingdom ruled by an irresponsible shah to a constitutional monarchy.
Polish	(a) 1830–31	Poles against Russia to recover independence.	Polish nobles fail to win support of peasants; efforts marked by treachery and disunion; Poles defeated in five battles (most important, Ostrolenka, May 26, 1831) and Warsaw bombarded.	Constitution of Alexander abrogated and Poland subjected.
	(b) 1863	Same cause.	Russian army too strong; Poles overcome.	Effect is to make Alexander II more reactionary; his liberal measures for both Russia and Poland given up.
Portuguese	(a) 1820–22	Liberals against monarchy.	John VI (in exile in Brazil since 1807; see BRAZILIAN REVOLUTION, above) returns and accepts limitation of his absolute power.	Brazil and Portugal separated. Constitutional government lasts until 1823 only.
	(b) 1910	Portuguese people against monarchy. — Growing strength of republican feeling and of republican representation in Parliament.	Army and navy first revolt (Oct. 1910); citizens join them; King Manuel II driven into exile; Constitution remodeled and liberalized.	Portugal becomes a republic, but with continued unrest, royalist plots, and no decrease in political corruption. Strong anti-Catholic policy.
Russian	(a) 1905	Middle classes and workers against czarism. — Widespread dissatisfaction with results of Russo-Japanese War.	Liberal and Socialist ideas strengthened in Russia (1900–05); conquered nationalities within the Empire become restless; terroristic activities increase; riots of peasants and students.	Czar Nicholas II grants the Duma (see 1st DUMA); constitutional government not permanent; electoral laws changed for the third Duma (1907) and Czar and his ministers again in control.
	(b) 1917	Russian soldiers and workers against Czar and his ministers. — Disillusionment of Russian liberals; incompetence and corruption of civil and military branches of government; government's attempt to disband fourth Duma.	Two phases: (1) Strikes of workmen in Petrograd, Mar. 1917; mobs seize the city; committee of Duma assumes control; Czar and family made prisoners. Leaders: Milyukov, Kerensky. (2) In Nov. 1917, the Bolsheviki (radical branch of Social Democrats) seize control; workers seize factories and peasants drive out landlords; program of revolution is economic as well as political. Leaders: Lenin, Trotsky.	Russia withdraws support of Allies (Treaty of Brest Litovsk with Germany); dictatorship of the proletariat proclaimed; Czar and family put to death; Orthodox Church disestablished; Congress of Soviets (1918); formation of Union of Soviet Socialist Republics (1923). See SOVIET, BOLSHEVIK, COMMUNIST PARTY, INTERNATIONAL, n., 2.
Spanish	(a) 1820	Army, and later the Spanish people, against their reactionary king, Ferdinand VII. — Corruption of the court and persecution of Liberals.	Ferdinand exiled; constitution of 1812 restored. Leaders: Rafael de Riego, Ballesteros, Morillo.	Revolution successful for a time, but on intervention (1823) of Holy Alliance, Ferdinand returns and is restored to absolute power.
	(b) 1868–69	Constitutionalism against absolutism. — Reign of terror under Isabella II and her ministers Narváez and Gonzales Bravo.	Liberal parties suppressed but they unite in revolution; Isabella flees; provisional government formed. Leaders: Serrano, Prim, O'Donnell.	Establishment of constitutional monarchy; in 1870 Amadeo of Savoy, son of king of Italy, elected king of Spain.
	(c) 1931–32	People against King Alfonso XIII and monarchy. — Desire for republican form of government.	A bloodless revolution; King and family flee to Paris. Leaders: Zamora, Azana.	Republic formed with Niceto Alcalá Zamora as provisional president; first Cortes in eight years meets June 28, 1931.
Spanish American	1810–23	Peoples of Spanish American countries against Spain. — Centuries of despotism and misgovernment.	Spanish affairs in great confusion because of Napoleon's intervention; uprising first in Mexico but spreads rapidly to other colonies. Mexico (1810–21). Leaders: Hidalgo, Morelia, Iturbide. Becomes a republic 1823. Colombia (New Granada) (1810–24). Bolivar, Sucre, Santander. Venezuela and Ecuador (parts of New Granada). Peru (1812–26). San Martin; battles of Ayacucho (see BATTLE, Table), Junin (1824). Chile (1811–17). Cochrane, O'Higgins, San Martin; battles of Chacabuco (1817), Maipo (1818). Argentina (1810–24). San Martin, Posadas. Uruguay (1811–14). José Artigas; Montevideo seized June 1814.	By 1826 Spain has lost all her American colonies (including Central America) except Cuba and Puerto Rico. Republics formed. See MONROE DOCTRINE, PAN AMERICAN UNION.
Turkish	1908–09	People (chiefly small body of intellectuals, called Young Turks) against Sultan. — Desire for Westernized methods and constitutional regime.	Peaceful revolution (July, 1908) by young Turks; Abdul Hamid deposed (Apr. 1909); constitution and parliament proclaimed; Young Turks control the state and plan reforms.	Advance of liberal ideas lead to revolts of non-Turk peoples (Arabs, Syrians, Armenians), and later to Balkan Wars (see WAR, Table), war with Italy (1911), and independence of Albania (1912).

Revolutionary Tribunal. Fr. Hist. The court established in Paris by the National Convention in 1793 to try political offenses.

Revolutionary War. Am. Hist. The American Revolution. See Revolution, American, under WAR, Table.

rev'o·lu'tion·eer'ing (rĕv'ō·lū'shŭn·ēr'ĭng), n. Conduct of revolutions.

rev'o·lu'tion·er (-lū'shŭn·ĕr), n. One who supports, or is engaged in, a revolution; a revolutionist; specif. [cap.]: a One who supported the English Revolution of 1688–89. b A soldier in the American Revolution.

rev'o·lu'tion·ism (-lz'm), n. State or habit of being in revolution; revolutionary doctrines or principles; advocacy of such doctrines or principles.

rev'o·lu'tion·ist, n. One engaged in a revolution; a favorer of revolution; one who advocates revolutionary doctrines or principles; a revolutionary. — rev'o·lu'tion·ist, adj.

rev'o·lu'tion·ize (-līz), v.; -IZED (-lzd); -IZ'ING (-lz'ĭng). Transitive: 1. To change fundamentally or overthrow completely the established government of.

2. To render revolutionary; to imbue with revolutionary doctrines or principles.

3. To change completely or fundamentally.

—, Intransitive: To undergo revolution.

rev'o·lu'tion·iz'er (-lū'shŭn·īz'ĕr), n. One who revolutionizes.

re·volve' (rē·vŏlv'), v.; RE·VOLVED' (-vŏlvd'); RE·VOLV'ING (-vŏl'vĭng). [OF. revolver, fr. L. revolvere, revolutum, fr. re- re- + volvere to roll, turn round. See VOLUBLE; cf. REVOLT, REVOLUTION.] Transitive: 1. To turn (the eyes or sight) back or round; to roll. Obs.

2. To turn over and over (in the mind, breast, etc.); to reflect repeatedly upon; to ponder; to think over.

3. To turn over the pages of (a book or author's works); hence, to read through; to study. Archaic.

4. To cause to go round in an orbit; also, to turn round, as on an axis; to rotate. See REVOLVE, v. i., 3 & 4. Milton.

5. Obs. a To turn or bring back; to restore. b To bind or wrap up.

—, Intransitive: 1. To return. Obs.

2. To deliberate; to meditate; to ponder. Obs.

3. To move in a curved path round a center or axis; as, the planets revolve round the sun. See REVOLUTION, 1 a.

4. To turn or roll round on or as on an axis, like a wheel; to rotate (the more specific term); to perform a revolution. See REVOLUTION, 1 b.

5. Figuratively: a To come around again; to recur; as, the centuries revolve. b To circulate around or about; as, an idea revolving in one's mind.

Syn. — Whirl, wheel, circle. — REVOLVE, ROTATE. To ROTATE is to turn on or as on an axis; REVOLVE is sometimes exactly synonymous with rotate, but more frequently denotes movement about a center; as, the earth rotates on its axis and revolves about the sun; "Only by . . . experience does it [speculation] find any center to revolve round, and so fashion itself into a system" (Carlyle), "Historical figures were not dashing abruptly from one side to the other; now they seemed to be rotating on the same spot" (Constance Garnett).

re·volve', n. Act or instance of revolving; revolution. Now Rare.

re·vol'ven·cy (rē·vŏl'vĕn·sĭ), n. Capacity or tendency to revolve.

re·volv'er (rē·vŏl'vĕr), n. [From REVOLVE. F. revolver is fr. E.] 1. One that revolves; specif., a firearm (commonly

A Modern Form of Revolver, with Side Plate and Stocks removed.

1 Trigger, engaging below the Cylinder (8) in the Cylinder Stop; 2 Hammer, attached by the Stirrup to the Main Spring (3); 4 Rebound Slide; 5 Hand; 6 Sear; 7 Cylinder-releasing Bolt; 9 Extractor Knob.

a pistol) with a cylinder of several chambers or, formerly, several barrels so arranged as to revolve on an axis, and be discharged in succession by the same lock. The commonest calibers are .38, .32, .22, and .45 inch.

2. Navig. & Surv. The particular indeterminate form assumed by the three-point problem when the point of observation falls on the circle through the three fixed points.

re·volv'ing (rē·vŏl'vĭng), adj. That revolves or rotates or recurs.

But grief returns with the revolving year. Shelley.

— re·volv'ing·ly, adv.

revolving apron. Agric. Mach. A grain-thresher attachment for stopping the grain and straw as they come through the cylinder and for carrying the straw to the shakers in such a manner that the entire shaker area is used to separate the grain from the straw.

revolving credit. Finance. A continuing credit, esp. a letter of credit which, under agreed conditions, may be automatically extended or renewed without a specific new agreement.

revolving die holder. Mach. A releasing die head. See DIE HEAD.

revolving door. A weather door consisting of two or more flaps revolving together on a common vertical axis within a kind of cylindrical vestibule, the flaps being so constructed or arranged as to prevent the direct passage of air through the vestibule.

revolving fund. A fund set up for the purpose of carrying on specific activities or attaining certain objectives which, in turn, yield repayments in restoration of the fund, constituting a cycle — for example, a contingent fund created by the government from which loans may be made, as for the purchase of wheat.

revolving light. See LIGHTHOUSE.

revolving letter of credit. Finance. A revolving credit.

revolving plug. See 2d LOCK, 1, Illust.

revolving storm. A cyclone.

revs (rĕvz), n. pl. Revolutions per minute. Mech. Slang.

re·vue' (rē·vū'; F. rē·vü'), n. [F.] A kind of burlesque or musical comedy in which recent events, esp. plays of the past year, are reviewed by imitations of their salient features and chief actors; also, loosely, a medley of songs, tableaux vivants, and chorus dances, with light skits.

re·vu'ist' (rē·vū'ĭst'), n. [F. See -ISTE.] A brief revue.

re·vu'ist (rē·vū'ĭst), n. [F. revuiste. See -IST.] A writer of revues.

re·vul'sant (rē·vŭl'sănt), n. [Cf. F. révulsant, pres. part.] Med. A revulsive.

re·vulse' (rē·vŭls'), v. t. [L. revulsus, past part. of revellere.] To pull or tear back or away. Obs.

re·vulsed' (rē·vŭlst'), adj. Having undergone a revulsion.

re·vul'sion (rē·vŭl'shŭn), n. [F. or L.; F. révulsion, fr. L. revulsio, fr. revellere revulsum, to pull away, fr. re- re- + vellere to pull. Cf. CONVULSE.] 1. Med. The act of turning or diverting any disease, or blood from a diseased region, from one part of the body to another. It resembles derivation, but revulsion is usually applied to a more active form of counterirritation.

2. A strong pulling or drawing back or away; withdrawal. "Revulsions and pullbacks." Sir T. Browne.

3. A sudden or strong reaction, reversion, or change.

A sudden and violent revulsion of feeling . . . followed. Macaulay.

re·vul'sion·ar'y (rē·vŭl'shŭn·ĕr'ĭ or, esp. Brit. -ēr·ĭ), adj. Of, pertaining to, or of the nature of, a revulsion.

re·vul'sive (-sĭv), adj. [Cf. F. révulsif.] Causing, or tending to, revulsion. — re·vul'sive·ly, adv.

re·vul'sive, n. That which causes revulsion; specif., Med., a revulsive remedy, or agent.

re·ward' (rē·wôrd'), v.; -WARD'ED; -WARD'ING. [ME. reward(e)n to reward, regard, fr. ONF. rewarder (OF. reguarder, regarder), of Teut. origin. See WARD, REGARD.] Transitive: 1. Obs. a To look at; notice; regard; consider; heed. b To agree; decide. c To give quarry to. See 3d QUARRY, 1 a. d To give as a reward.

2. To make a return, or give a reward, to (a person) or for (a service, etc.); to requite; recompense; repay.

I will render vengeance to mine enemies, and will reward them that hate me. Deut. xxxii. 41.

—, Intransitive: 1. To look; to observe closely. Obs.

2. To give rewards; to make requital.

re·ward' (rē·wôrd'), n. [ME., reward, regard, fr. ONF. reward (OF. reguard, régard). See REWARD, v.; cf. REGARD, n.] 1. Regard; heed; notice. Obs.

Take reward of thine own value. Chaucer.

2. That which is given in return for good or evil done or received; esp., that which is offered or given for some service or attainment, as a prize for excellence in studies, a sum of money for the return of something lost or for the capture of a criminal, etc.; recompense; requital.

Thy great misdeeds have met a due reward. Dryden.

3. Obs. a Remuneration or pay; esp., extra pay. b An extra supply of food; an extra dish.

4. Hunting & Falconry. = 3d QUARRY, 1 a. Obs.

5. Law. Compensation or remuneration for services; a sum of money paid or taken for doing, or forbearing to do, some act; specif., a recompense or premium offered, whether to an individual or to any of a class of individuals or of the public, by the government or a private individual for special or extraordinary services to be performed. The offer becomes a contract upon performance by any of the persons included in the offer, this constituting an acceptance.

Syn. — Compensation, remuneration, pay.

Ant. — Punishment, penalty, discipline.

reward claim. In Australia, a tract granted to one who first discovers gold in paying quantities in an unworked district.

re·ward'er (rē·wôr'dĕr), n. One who rewards.

re·ward'ing, adj. Remunerative; profitable; helpful; beneficial. — re·ward'ing·ly, adv.

re'wa–re'wa (rā'wä·rā'wä), n. [Maori.] A slender New Zealand tree (Knightia excelsa) resembling the Lombardy poplar in habit, but yielding a valuable timber.

re·wave' (rē·wāv'), v. t. To wave a second time, esp. to wave (hair) again; specif., to set a wave in (permanently waved hair).

re·wave', n. The act or result of rewaving.

re·wed' (-wĕd'), v. t. To wed again or anew; to remarry.

re·weight' (rē·wāt'), n. A weighing again; also, weight as reascertained.

rew'et (rōō'ĕt; -ĭt), n. [F. rouet.] The wheel of a wheel lock; also, the wheel lock itself or the gun. Obs. exc. Hist.

re·wind' (rē·wīnd'), v. t. & i. To wind again; specif., Motion Pictures, to reverse the winding of (a motion-picture film) on a reel, usually so as to place the beginning of the sequence of pictures on the outside of the roll.

re·wind' (rē·wīnd'), n. 1. That which has been rewound.

2. Piano Making. = REROLL, n.

re·wind'er (rē·wīn'dĕr), n. One who or that which rewinds; specif., Motion Pictures, mechanism for winding film.

re·wire' (rē·wīr'), v. t. & i. 1. To wire (a house, a cable, an electric machine, or the like) anew.

2. To telegraph in return.

— re·wire', n.

re·word' (rē·wûrd'), v. t. 1. To put into words again; to repeat in the same words; also, Obs., to re-echo.

2. To alter the wording of; to restate in other words; as, to reword an idea or a passage.

re·worked' (rē·wûrkt'), adj. Remanufactured; — applied esp. to wool. See SHODDY, 1 & 2.

re·write' (rē·rīt'), v. t. & i. 1. To write again; esp., to recast.

2. Journalism. To put into form for publication (the material supplied or the narrative written by a reporter or other writer or collector of facts). The resulting article is called a re'write', and the one who prepares it a rewrite man. U. S.

— re·writ'er (-rīt'ĕr), n.

‖rex (rĕks), n.; pl. REGES (rē'jēz). [L. See RICH.] A king.

rex, n. = reaks, pl. of REAK, prank; as, to play rex. Obs.

Rex (rĕks), n. [L., king.] Masc. proper name. Also dim. of REGINALD.

rex begonia. A race of cultivated begonias derived from the East Indian species Begonia rex, having large handsomely variegated leaves. See BEGONIA, 2.

rex'en, rex'ens (rĕk's'n, -s'nz), n. pl. Rushes. Dial.

‖rey (rā'ĕ), n.; pl. REYES (rā'yās). [Sp. See ROYAL, adj.; cf. ROY, n.] A king.

Reyn'ard (rĕn'ĕrd; rā'närd; 277), n. [OF. Regnart, Renart, Renard, fr. OHG. Reginhart; akin to AS. Regenheard; lit., strong in counsel; cf. Goth. ragin counsel. See HARD. The spelling Reynard is fr. a MD. form.] Proper name of the fox in the medieval beast epic Reynard the Fox; also [not cap.], a fox. See REINECKE FUCHS.

Reyn'old (rĕn'ŭld), n. [Orig. same name as Reginald; cf. AS. Regenweald, and OF. Rainaut, Renaut, F. Renaud.] Masc. proper name. See REGINALD.

Reyn'old (rĕn'ŭld), Reyn'olds (-ŭldz; -ŭlz). Vars. of REYNARD. Obs. exc. Dial.

re·youth' (rē·yōōth'), v. t. To make young again.

‖re·zā'i (rē·zä'ē), n. [Hind. razāī.] A quilted coverlet. Anglo-Ind.

rez·ban'yite (rĕz·băn'yīt), n. [From Rezbanya, Rumania.] Mineral. A lead sulphobismuthite, $4PbS.5Bi_2S_3$, occurring in metallic-gray, granular masses. Sp. gr., 6.1–6.4.

‖rez'–de–chaus'sée' (rā'chō'sā'), n. [F., prop., level of the street, fr. L. rasus scraped. See RASE; CAUSEY.] Arch. The ground story, either on a level with the street or slightly above it; — used esp. of buildings on the continent of Europe.

R F station. Radio. A radio beacon which transmits radio signals equally in all directions.

R G station. Radio. = RADIO COMPASS STATION.

rh. A digraph from Latin, used to represent the Greek aspirated initial ρ, as in rhetoric, rhythm. When rh is preceded by r in composition, rrh is preferred, as in diarrhea, catarrh, hemorrhage. It is often retained in combining forms when the preceding element does not end in r. Cf. -RRHAGIA, -RRHAPHY, -RRHEXIS, -RRHEA.

rhab'dite (răb'dīt), n. [Gr. rhabdos a rod. See VERVAIN.] Zool. a One of the minute, smooth, rodlike or fusiform structures produced in the cells of the epidermis, or in cells sunk within the underlying parenchyma of many turbellarians and a few trematodes. They are discharged in great numbers in the mucous secretions of these animals. b One of the paired appendages which unite to form the ovipositor in some insects.

rhab·dit'i·form (răb·dĭt'ĭ·fôrm), adj. [Rhabditis + -form.] Zool. Relating to the larva of certain roundworms (Nematoda) having an esophageal bulb similar to the free-living species of the genus Rhabditis.

Rhab·di'tis (răb·dī'tĭs), n. [NL., fr. Gr. rhabdos a rod.] Zool. A genus of minute nematode worms, especially common in decaying matter, and found, in some species, as parasites.

rhab'di·um (răb'dĭ·ŭm), n. [NL., fr. Gr. rhabdos a rod.] Anat. A striated muscle fiber.

rhab'do- (răb'dō-), rhabd-. [See RHABDITE.] A combining form, Greek rhabdo-, rhabd-, from rhabdos, meaning rod, stick, as in rhabdomancy; used to denote also: a A rodlike structure, as in rhabdolith, rhabdophanite, rhabdopod. b Striated fiber, as in rhabdomyoma.

Rhab'do·car'pum (-kär'pŭm), n. [NL., fr. rhabdo- + Gr. karpos fruit.] Paleontol. A genus of plants, based on certain fossil seeds of Paleozoic age, now known to belong for the most part to the genus Cordaites.

Rhab'do·coe'la (-sē'lä), n. pl. [NL. See RHABDOCOELIDA.] Zool. a = RHABDOCOELIDA. b The typical suborder of Rhabdocoelida, comprising those with a straight unbranched alimentary tract surrounded by a space or cavity filled with fluid, well-developed yolk glands, and a protrusible pharynx. — rhab'do·coe'lan (-lăn), adj. & n.

rhab'do·coele (răb'dō·sēl), rhab'do·coe'lous (-sē'lŭs), adj. Zool. Of or pertaining to the Rhabdocoelida or Rhabdocoela. — rhab'do·coele, n.

Rhab'do·coe'li·da (-sē'lĭ·dä), n. pl. [NL., fr. rhabdo- + Gr. koilos hollow.] Zool. An order of turbellarians comprising those with an unbranched, or comparatively simply lobated, alimentary tract, or, in one group (Acoela), with no definitely walled cavity beyond the pharynx. Some are marine, many others inhabit fresh water, and a few inhabit damp places on land. — rhab'do·coe'li·dan (-dăn), adj. & n.

rhab'doid (răb'doid), n. [Gr. rhabdoeidēs like a rod.] Bot. A rod-shaped protoplasmic body in the sensitive cells of leaves of Dionaea and Drosera. — rhab·doi'dal (răb·doi'dăl; -d'l), adj.

rhab'doid, adj. Rod-shaped; rhabdoidal.

rhab'do·lith (răb'dō·lĭth), n. [rhabdo- + -lith.] A minute calcareous rodlike structure found both at the surface and on the bottom of the ocean.

rhab'dom (răb'dŏm), rhab'dome (-dōm), n. [LGr. rhabdōma a bundle of rods, fr. Gr. rhabdos a rod.] Zool. One of the minute rodlike structures in the retinulae in the compound eyes of arthropods. — rhab'dom·al (-ăl), adj.

rhab'do·man'cy (răb'dō·măn'sĭ), n. [rhabdo- + -mancy.] Divination by rods or wands. — rhab'do·man'cer (-sĕr), n. — rhab'do·man'tic (-măn'tĭk), adj. — rhab'do·man'tist, n.

Rhab·dom'o·nas (răb·dŏm'ō·năs), n. [NL., fr. rhabdo- + -monas.] Bacteriol. A genus of motile, elongated, usually spindle-shaped, red bacteria of the subfamily Chromatioideae, capable of swarming at any time.

rhab'do·my·o'ma (-mī·ō'mä), n.; pl. -OMATA (-ō'mä·tä), -OMAS (-ō'mäz). [NL., fr. rhabdo- + myoma.] A tumor composed of striated muscle fibers.

---

rev'o·lu'tion·ize·ment, n. See -MENT. [LUTION, Table.]

Revolution of 1848. See REVO-re·volv'. Revolve. Ref. Sp.

re·volv'a·ble (rē·vŏl'vä·b'l), adj. See -ABLE. — re·volv'a·bly, adv.

re·volvd'. Revolved. Ref. Sp.

re·volve'ment, n. See -MENT.

re·volv'ing-ar'ma·ture al'ternа·tor. Elec. See ALTERNATOR.

re·volv'ing-field' al'ter·na·tor. Elec. See ALTERNATOR.

re·volv'ing-jaw' box chuck, re·volv'ing-jaw' chuck. Mach. See 6th CHUCK, 5.

re·vom'it, v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·vote', n. & v. i., re·vow', v. i. See RE-, 2.

re·vul'siv. Revulsive. Ref. Sp.

rew (rōō; rū). Var. of ROW, a series; RUE, pity. Now Dial.

rew, n. [F. rue.] A street; also, a village. Obs. Scot.

re·wade', v. i. See RE-, 2.

re·wa'ger, v. i. See RE-, 2.

re·wake', v. t. & i., re·wak'en (rē·wāk'ĕn), v. t. & i. See RE-, 2.

re·wall', v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·wal'low, v. i. See RE-, 2.

re·ward'a·ble, adj. See -ABLE. — re·ward'a·ble·ness, n. — re·ward'a·bly, adv. [past part.

re·ward'ed·ly, adv. of rewarded,] re·ward'ful, adj. See -FUL. — re·ward'ful·ness, n.

re·ward'less, adj. See -LESS.

re·ward'proof' (66), adj. See -PROOF.

re·ware'house', v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·warm', v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·warn', v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·wash', v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·wa'ter, v. t., re·wax', v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·way'bill', v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·weave', adj. Prob., slovenly; — in phr. reweave draggle. Scot.

rewch. † ROUGH.

rewd'ly. † RUDELY.

rewe. † ROW, RUE.

re·weak'en, v. i. See RE-, 2.

re·wean', v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·weave', v. t. & i., re·weigh', v. t. & i., re·weigh'er, n. See RE-, 2.

rewel bone. [AF. roal; cf. OF. rochal walrus ivory, and E. rorqual.] Prob., whale ivory. Obs.

re·wel'come, v. i. See RE-, 2.

re·weld', v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·wend', v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·wet', v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·whelp', v. t., re·whirl', v. t., re·whis'per, v. t., re·whit'en (rē·hwīt'n), v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·wid'en (rē·wīd'n), v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·win', v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·wir'a·ble (rē·wīr'ä·b'l), adj. See RE-, 2.

re·wish', v. t. & i. See RE-, 2.

re'with·draw', v. t. See RE-, 2. — re'with·draw'al, n.

rewme. † REALM, RHEUM.

re·wood', v. t. To reforest.

re·work', v. t. & i. See RE-, 2.

re·wound' (rē·wound'), past tense & past part. of REWIND.

re·wound' (-wōōnd'), v. t. See RE-, 2.

re·wove', past tense of REWEAVE.

re·wov'en (rē·wōv'ĕn), past part. of REWEAVE.

re·wrap', v. t. & i. See RE-, 2.

Rex Ne'mo·ren'sis (nē'mō·rĕn'sĭs). See DIANA.

Rex sa·cro'rum (sā·krō'rŭm; 181). See JANUS, PONTIFICAL COLLEGE. [ex. Dial.] rey'al (rī'ăl). Var. of RIAL. Obs.

reye. † RAY, RYE.

reyes. † REIS.

re·yield', v. t. & i. See RE-, 2.

reyle (rāl). Scot. & dial. Eng. var. of RAVEL.

reyn. † RAIN, REIN, REIGN, RUN.

re·yoke', v. t. See RE-, 2.

reys. † RACE, RAISE, REIS, REISE.

reyson. † REASON.

Re'zeph (rē'zĕf), Re·zi'a (rē·zī'ä), Re'zin (rē'zĭn), Re'zon (-zŏn). Bib. [COMPASS STATION.]

RG station. Radio. = RADIO-rhabarb, n. [CF. MF. rhaberbe.] Rhubarb. Obs.

rhabd-. = RHABDO-.

Rhab'do·car'pon (răb'dō·kär'pŏn), n. [NL.] Var. of RHABDOCARPUM.

---

rhab'do·my'o·sar·co'ma (răb'dō·mī'ō·sär·kō'mȧ), n.; pl. -COMATA (-kō'mȧ·tȧ), -COMAS (-kō'mȧz). [NL., fr. rhabdo- + myo- + sarcoma.] A malignant tumor of striated muscle tissue.

rhab'do·phane (răb'dō·fān), rhab·doph'a·nite (rȧb·dŏf'ȧ·nīt), n. [rhabdo- + Gr. phainesthai to appear.] Mineral. A brown, pinkish, or yellowish-white hydrous phosphate of cerium, yttrium, etc., occurring massive.

Rhab·doph'o·ra (rȧb·dŏf'ō·rȧ), n. pl. [NL. See RHABDO-; -PHORE.] Zool. The Graptolithida. — rhab·doph'o·ran (-rȧn), adj. & n.

Rhab'do·pleu'ra (rȧb'dō·plōō'rȧ), n. [NL., fr. rhabdo- + Gr. pleura the side.] Zool. A widely distributed genus of bryozoanlike marine compound animals, generally classed as hemichordates in the order Pterobranchia, having two tentacle-bearing arms.

Rhabdopleura. Part of a Colony showing three Zooids. d Main Stem; o Muscular Body Stalk; a Anterior Body Region; s Stomach; l Arms; e A Tube with the Zooid retracted.

rhab'do·pod (rȧb'dō·pŏd), n. [rhabdo- + -pod.] Zool. One of the rod-like styles, or claspers, of the males of many insects.

rhab'dos (rȧb'dŏs), n. [Gr.] A wand; a magician's staff.

rhab'do·some (rȧb'dō·sōm), n. [rhabdo- + 2d -some.] Paleontol. A colonial graptolite derived from a single individual.

rhab·dos'o·phy (rȧb·dŏs'ō·fī), n. [rhabdo- + -sophy.] Rhabdomantic lore. L. Hunt.

rhab'do·sphere (rȧb'dō·sfēr), n. [rhabdo- + sphere.] A minute sphere composed of rhabdoliths.

rhab'dus (rȧb'dŭs), n. [NL., fr. Gr. rhabdos rod.] Zool. A simple uniaxial sponge spicule.

Rha'chi·a·nec'tes (rā'kĭ·ȧ·nĕk'tēz), n. [NL., fr. Gr. rhachia surf + nēktēs a swimmer.] Zool. The genus consisting of the gray whale.

Rhac'o·mit'ri·um (răk'ō·mĭt'rĭ·ŭm), n. [NL., fr. Gr. rhakos ragged garment + mitrion, dim. of mitra headband, kilt.] Bot. A genus of about 80 species of acrocarpous mosses (family Grimmiaceae), mostly growing on sandstone rocks. Their leaves are often hair-pointed and the leaf cells are sinuose.

Rhad'a·man'thine (rȧd'ȧ·măn'thĭn), adj. Of, pertaining to, or characteristic of, Rhadamanthus; rigorously just.

Rhad'a·man'thus (rȧd'ȧ·măn'thŭs), Rhad'a·man'thys (-thĭs), n. [L., Rhadamanthus, fr. Gr. Rhadamanthos, Rhadamanthys.] Gr. Myth. A son of Zeus and Europa, brother of Minos. For his exemplary justice on earth he was made, after death, one of the judges of souls in the lower world.

Rhae'tian (rē'shăn), adj. [L. Rhaetius, Raetius.] Of or pert. to ancient Rhaetia, a Roman province nearly corresponding with Tirol and the Grisons. — n. One of the people of Rhaetia, conquered about 15 B.C. by the Romans.

Rhae'tic (rē'tĭk), adj. [L. Rhaeticus Rhaetian.] Geol. Pertaining to or designating the uppermost division of the European Triassic; — so used in allusion to certain strata of the Rhaetian Alps. See GEOLOGY, Chart. — Rhae'tic, n.

Rhae'to–Ro·man'ic (rē'tō·rō·măn'ĭk), n. Also Rhae'to–Ro·mance' lan'guages. The Romance dialects spoken in southeastern Switzerland (western group), along the northern limits of Italy (central group), and in Friuli (eastern group). Ladin and Romansh have been used for some or all of them. See INDO-EUROPEAN LANGUAGES, Table. — Rhae'to–Ro·mance', Rhae'to–Ro·man'ic, adj.

Rhae'to–Ro·mansh', n. = RHAETO-ROMANIC.

rhag'a·des (răg'ȧ·dēz), n. pl. [L., fr. Gr. rhagades, pl. of rhagas.] Med. Linear excoriations or fissures in the skin, esp. those occurring at the angles of the mouth, or about the anus, in congenital syphilis.

rha·gad'i·form (rȧ·găd'ĭ·fôrm), adj. [See RHAGADES; -FORM.] Anat. Containing or characterized by fissures.

Rha'gi·on'i·dae (rā'jĭ·ŏn'ĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL., fr. Rhagio, type genus (fr. Gr. rhagion a small spider) + -idae.] Zool. A widely distributed family of predaceous dipterous insects, having usually a tapering body, long slender legs, and sometimes a conspicuous, downward-projecting proboscis, whence the common name snipe flies. Syn. Leptidae. — rha'gi·on'id (-ĭd), n. & adj.

rhag'ite (răg'ĭt), n. [Gr. rhax, rhagos, grape + -ite; — from its small grapelike aggregates.] Mineral. A yellow or yellowish-green crystalline basic bismuth arsenate.

Rha·go'di·a (rȧ·gō'dĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., fr. Gr. rhagōdēs like grapes; fr. the form of the flowers and fruit.] Bot. A genus of Australian shrubs or herbs, of the goosefoot family (Chenopodiaceae), with small greenish spicate or panicled flowers succeeded by fleshy berries. Several species, as R. hastata, are used for forage.

rhag'on (răg'ŏn), n. [NL., fr. Gr. rhax, rhagos, berry.] Zool. A type of sponge, usually young, having a discoid or hemispherical body attached by a wide base, a single osculum, and a small number of flagellated chambers. — rhag'o·nate (-ō·nāt), adj. — rhag'ose (răg'ōs), adj.

rhamn (răm), n. [L. rhamnos. See RHAMNUS.] The buckthorn.

Rham·na'ce·ae (răm·nā'sē·ē), n. pl. [NL. See RHAMNUS.] Bot. A family of thorny shrubs and trees, the buckthorn family, typifying the order Rhamnales. They have undivided stipulate leaves and cymose flowers, the stamens opposite the petals, and the superior ovary becoming a 3-celled capsule or a drupe. There are about 45 genera and 500 species, of wide distribution, including Rhamnus, Ceanothus, Colubrina, and Zizyphus. — rham·na'ceous (-shŭs), adj.

Rham·na'les (răm·nā'lēz), n. pl. [NL.] Bot. An order of dicotyledonous woody plants, consisting of the two families Rhamnaceae and Vitaceae, in which the stamens are equal in number with the sepals and alternate with them. — rham'nal (răm'nĕl; -n'l), adj.

rham'ne·tin (răm'nē·tĭn), n. [See RHAMNUS; -IN.] Chem. A yellow crystalline dye, $C_{16}H_{12}O_7$, prepared from Persian berries (see RHAMNINASE) and used in calico printing. It is a methyl ether of quercetin.

rham'nI·nase (răm'nĭ·nās), n. Biochem. An enzyme occurring in Persian berries with xanthorhamnin and capable of hydrolyzing it to rhamnetin and rhamninose.

rham'nI·nose (răm'nĭ·nōs), n. Chem. A colorless crystalline trisaccharide, $C_{18}H_{34}O_{14}$, formed by hydrolysis of xanthorhamnin by rhamninase. It in turn on hydrolysis yields rhamnose and galactose.

rham'nite (-nīt), n. Also rham'nI·tol (-nĭ·tōl; -tŏl). Chem. A solid pentahydroxy alcohol, $C_6H_{14}O_5$, got by reducing rhamnose.

rham'no·hex'ose (răm'nō·hĕk'sōs), n. [rhamnose + hexose.] Chem. A hexose, $C_7H_{14}O_5$, formed indirectly from rhamnose. By reduction it yields the hexitol rham'no·hex'i·tol (-sĭ·tōl; -tŏl), or rham'no·hex'ite (-sīt), $C_7H_{16}O_5$.

rham·non'ic (răm·nŏn'ĭk), adj. Chem. Pertaining to, or derived from, rhamnose; — in rhamnonic acid.

rham'nose (răm'nōs), n. [Rhamnus + -ose; — because prepared from buckthorn berries.] Chem. A crystalline sugar, $C_6H_{12}O_5$, a methylpentose, the dextrorotatory variety of which is obtained by hydrolysis of xanthorhamnin, quercitrin, and other rhamnosides.

rham'no·side (răm'nō·sīd), n. Also -sid (-sĭd). Chem. Any of certain ethers of rhamnose. Cf. GLUCOSIDE b. Many occur naturally, as xanthorhamnin, quercitrin, frangulin, hesperidin, etc.

Rham'nus (răm'nŭs), n. [NL., fr. L. rhamnos, fr. Gr. rhamnos a kind of prickly shrub. See VERVAIN.] Bot. A genus of trees and shrubs, the buckthorns, typifying the family Rhamnaceae. They have strongly pinnately veined leaves and small perfect or polygamous flowers, the ovary free from the disk, the fruit a drupe with 2–4 stones. R. frangula and R. catharticа yield a medicinal bark. Persian berries are obtained from R. infectoria and other species, while R. tinctoria and R. dahurica both yield the dye known as lokao. Among the well-known American species are R. caroliniana, R. californica, and R. purshiana, the latter yielding cascara sagrada.

rham'pho- (răm'fō-), rhamph-. Zool. A combining form from Greek rhamphos, meaning crooked beak, beak, as in Rhamphorhynchus, Rhamphastos. Corresponding generic names, esp. in ornithology, are formed in -rham'phus (-fŭs), as in Sarcor*hamphus.*

rham'phoid (răm'foid), adj. [rhamph- + -oid.] Shaped like a beak. See CUSP, 7.

Rham'pho·rhyn'chus (răm'fō·rĭng'kŭs), n. [NL., fr. rhampho- + Gr. rhynchos snout.] Paleontol. A genus of pterosaurs in which the elongated tail supported a leathery expansion at the tip. The teeth were slender and forwardly directed.

rham'pho·the'ca (-thē'kȧ), n. [NL., fr. rhampho- + -theca.] Zool. The horny sheath composed of modified scales of a bird's bill.

Rhap'i·do·phyl'lum (răp'ĭ·dō·fĭl'ŭm), n. [NL., fr. Gr. rhapis, -idos, a rod + phyllon leaf.] Bot. A genus of North American fan palms having as the only known species R. hystrix, the blue palmetto.

Rha'pis (rā'pĭs), n. [NL., fr. Gr. rhapis a rod.] Bot. A small genus of low fan palms (family Arecaceae) of eastern Asia, having small, flexible, densely fibrous, reedlike stems, and orbicular leaves with variously shaped segments. R. flabelliformis, the ground rattan, and R. humilis are often cultivated for ornament.

rha·pon'tic (rȧ·pŏn'tĭk), n. [NL. rhaponticum, fr. LL. rha Ponticum Pontic rhubarb. See RHUBARB; PONTIC.] 1. Either of two European knapweeds (Centaurea centaurium and C. rhaponticum).

2. The cultivated rhubarb, or pieplant; hence, Pharm., its root; rhubarb.

rha·pon'ti·cin (rȧ·pŏn'tĭ·sĭn), rha·pon'tin (-pŏn'tĭn), n. [NL. rhaponticum rhubarb + -in.] Chem. A colorless crystalline glucoside, $C_{21}H_{24}O_9$, found in rhubarb.

rhap'sode (răp'sōd), n. [Gr. rhapsōidos; cf. F. r(h)apsode. See RHAPSODY.] Gr. Antiq. A rhapsodist.

rhap·sod'ic (răp·sŏd'ĭk), adj. [Gr. rhapsōidikos.] 1. Rhapsodical.

2. Gr. Antiq. Made up of the recitation of rhapsodies.

rhap·sod'i·cal (-ĭ·kȧl), adj. [Gr. rhapsōidikos.] 1. Consisting of various elements; fragmentary; disconnected. Obs.

2. Characteristic of, or of the nature of, a rhapsody; highly emotional; ecstatical; as, rhapsodical poems or praise.

3. Gr. Antiq. Of or pertaining to the rhapsodist.

rhap·sod'i·cal·ly, adv. of RHAPSODIC, RHAPSODICAL.

rhap'so·dism (răp'sō·dĭz'm), n. Recitation by rhapsodists.

rhap'so·dist (răp'sō·dĭst), n. [From RHAPSODY.] 1. A collector of literary pieces; an anthologist. Obs.

2. Gr. Antiq. One who recited a rhapsody; esp., a professional reciter of epic poems, as of Homer.

3. Hence, one who recites or sings poems for a livelihood.

4. One who writes or speaks rhapsodically.

— rhap'so·dis'tic (-dĭs'tĭk), adj.

rhap'so·dize (răp'sō·dīz), v.; -DIZED (-dīzd); -DIZING (-dīz'ĭng). Transitive: 1. To patch together (stories, etc.); to make a medley of. Obs.

2. To utter or recite as, or in the manner of, a rhapsody.

—, Intransitive: To indulge in rhapsody; to utter rhapsodies; as, to rhapsodize about a new book.

rhap'so·do·man'cy (răp'sō·dō·măn'sĭ), n. [rhapsody + -mancy.] Divination by means of verses.

rhap'so·dy (răp'sō·dĭ), n.; pl. -DIES (-dĭz). [F. r(h)apsodie, fr. L. rhapsodia, fr. Gr. rhapsōidia, fr. rhapsōidos a rhapsodist, fr. rhaptein to sew, stitch together, unite + ōidē a song. See WRAP; ODE. Cf. TRAGEDY.] 1. Gr. Antiq. A recitation or song of a rhapsodist; a portion of an epic poem, as a book of the Iliad or Odyssey, adapted for recitation, or usually recited, at one time; hence, a similar modern literary piece.

2. A miscellaneous collection, as a literary miscellany; a medley; also, a disconnected series; a jumble; a string. "A rhapsody of words." Shak.

3. An ecstatic or highly emotional utterance or literary work; effusively incoherent and extravagant discourse; as, a speech that bordered upon rhapsody.

4. Music. An instrumental composition irregular in form, like an improvisation; — in this sense, sometimes rhapsodie.

rhap'so·dy, v. t. & i. To rhapsodize.

rha'son (rā'sŏn), n. [MGr.] Eastern Ch. a An ecclesiastical garment similar in appearance and use to the cassock. b A long loose cloak worn over this cassock; — called also exorhason.

rhas'o·phore (răs'ō·fōr), n. [MGr. rhasophoros. See RHASON; -PHORE.] Eastern Ch. A member of a monastic order who has not yet received the little habit, the mark of having passed through the novitiate; a novice.

rha·ta'ni·a (rȧ·tā'nĭ·ȧ), n. [NL.] Pharm. Rhatany.

rhat'a·ny (răt'ȧ·nĭ), n. [Sp. ratania, rataña, fr. Quechua rataña.] a The dried root of either of two American shrubs, Krameria triandra (Peruvian or knotty rhatany) and K. argentea (Para or Brazilian rhatany), used as an astringent. b Either plant.

rhe (rē), n. [Gr. rhein to flow.] Physics. The C.G.S. unit of fluidity, being the reciprocal of a poise.

rhe'a (rē'ȧ), n. [Assamese rihā.] = CHINA GRASS.

Rhe'a (rē'ȧ), n. [L., fr. Gr. Rhea.] 1. Gr. Relig. Daughter of Uranus and Gaea, wife of Cronus, and mother of Zeus, Hades, Poseidon, Hera, Hestia, and Demeter, — hence called "Mother of the Gods." Apparently the oldest seat of her worship was Crete, where in a cave, usually placed on Mount Ida, she gave birth to Zeus, and, to hide him from Cronus, entrusted him to the Curetes. Similarly, she entrusted Poseidon to the Telchines of Rhodes. Rhea was identified by the Greeks with Cybele and is regarded as a local form of the great nature goddess. See GREAT MOTHER; cf. CRONUS, CURETES.

2. [NL.] Zool. a A genus of birds (order Rheiformes) comprising the American ostriches, or nandus. They are smaller than the African ostriches, there are three toes instead of two and the head and neck are completely feathered. The tail is undeveloped and long feathers of the back droop over the posterior part of the body. These feathers, of inferior quality, are much used for dusting brushes, etc. The largest species (R. americana) inhabits Patagonia and Argentina, but is fast becoming rare. A similar species (R. rothschildi), with a longer bill, is found in Brazil, and a third (R. pennata, syn. darwini), the smallest, in eastern Patagonia. The colors vary from pale gray to brownish. b [not cap.] A bird of this genus; an American ostrich.

Rhea (R. americana).

3. Saturn's fifth satellite, discovered by G. D. Cassini at Paris, Dec. 23, 1672.

-rhe'a. Var. of -RRHEA.

Rhea Cybele. See CYBELE, 1.

rhe'a·dine (rē'ȧ·dēn; -dĭn), n. Also -din. [NL. rhoeas, the specific name of the corn poppy, fr. Gr. rhoias, -ados, a poppy.] Chem. A white nonpoisonous alkaloid, $C_{21}H_{21}NO_5$, found in certain species of poppy, esp. the corn poppy (Papaver rhoeas).

Rhe'ae (rē'ē), n. pl. [NL.] Zool. The suborder of Rheiformes consisting of the rheas.

Rhe'a, or Re'a, Sil'vi·a (rē'ȧ sĭl'vĭ·ȧ). [L.] Rom. Myth. A daughter of Numitor, king of Alba Longa, and mother of Romulus and Remus.

rhe'bok' (rē'bŏk'; D. rā'-), n.; pl. -BOK, sometimes -BOKS (-bŏks'). See PLURAL, Note. Also rhee'boc', rhee'bok'. [D. reebok, lit., roebuck.] A South African antelope (Pelea capreolus) nearly as large as the fallow deer, but having the form and habits of the chamois. Its color is light gray, and its horns are short and upright.

rhe·bo'sis, rhae·bo'sis (rē·bō'sĭs), n. [NL., fr. Gr. rhaibos crooked + -osis.] Med. Crookedness or curvature, esp. of the legs.

rheg'ma·typ'y (rĕg'mȧ·tĭp'ĭ), n. [Gr. rhēgma fracture + -typy.] Biol. In genetics, the fragmentation and recombination of homologous chromosome parts during meiosis, supposed to account for certain instances of crossing over. Cf. CHIASMATYPY. — rheg'ma·type (rĕg'mȧ·tīp), adj. & n.

Rheg·nop'ter·i (rĕg·nŏp'tĕr·ī), n. pl. [NL., fr. Gr. rhēgnynai to break loose + pteron wing, fin.] Zool. A suborder of fishes consisting of the threadfins. See POLYNEMIDAE.

Rhe'i·dae (rē'ĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL.] Zool. The family consisting of the rheas.

Rhe'i·for'mes (-fôr'mēz), n. pl. [NL. See RHEA; -FORM.] Zool. An order of birds (superorder Palaeognathae) comprising the rheas. See RHEA, 2.

rhe'in (rē'ĭn), n. [See RHEUM.] 1. Chem. An orange crystalline acid, $C_{15}H_8O_6$, occurring in rhubarb; 1, 8-dihydroxy-3-anthraquinone-carboxylic acid.

2. Com. A crystalline substance consisting almost entirely of chrysophanic acid.

rhein'ber'ry (rīn'bĕr'ĭ; -bĕr·ĭ), n. [MD. rijnbesie.] The fruit of Rhamnus cathartica; also, the plant. Obs.

Rhein'gold' (rīn'gōld'; G. -gōlt'), n. Also Anglicized Rhine'gold' (rīn'gōld'). The title of the first part of Wagner's tetralogy of music dramas, Der Ring des Nibelungen (The Ring of the Nibelung). It is a piece of consecrated gold stolen from the Rhine and made into a ring by the dwarf Alberich after he has been told by its female guardians that this will confer boundless power on the thief. When it is stolen from him in turn, he pronounces a heavy curse on it, so that it brings disaster to all its possesssors. Siegfried takes it from the giant Fafnir and gives it to Brünnhilde. Eventually, freed from its curse by being burned with Brünnhilde at her self-immolation, it again is returned to the possession of its original guardians. Cf. ALBERICH, ANDVARI.

rhe'ma (rē'mȧ), n. [Gr. rhēma.] A verb; word; term.

rhe·mat'ic (rē·măt'ĭk), adj. [Gr. rhēmatikos, fr. rhēma, rhēmatos, word, verb. See RHETORIC.] 1. Of or pertaining to word formation.

2. Having a verb for its base; derived from verbs.

rhe·mat'ic (rē·măt'ĭk), n. The doctrine of propositions or sentences.

rhe'ma·tol'o·gy (rē'mȧ·tŏl'ō·jĭ), n. [See -OLOGY.] Linguistics. The study of rhemes, a branch of semantics.

rheme (rēm), n. [Gr. rhēma a thing said. See RHEMATIC.] Linguistics. The expression of a single idea or notion; a semanteme; any semantic unit or element of speech.

Rhe'mish (rē'mĭsh), adj. Of or pert. to Reims, or Rheims, in France, the English college of Roman Catholics in which published in 1582 an English translation of the New Testament.

Rhemish Testament. The New Testament of the Douay Bible.

rha'chi·al'gi·a, rha·chid'i·al, rha·chid'i·an, etc. Vars. of RACHIALGIA, etc.

rha·chil'la. Var. of RACHILLA.

rha'chi·o-, rhachi-. Vars. of RACHIO-, RACHI-.

rha'chis. Var. of RACHIS.

rha·chis. Var. of -RHACHIS.

rha·chit'ic. Var. of RACHITIC.

rha·chit'o·mous. Var. of RACHITOMOUS.

Rha·copb'o·rus, n. Syn. of POLYPEDATES.

Rhad'a·man'the·an, -thi·an, adj. Rhadamanthine. Obs.

Rha·da'mēs. Var. of RADAMÈS.

Rhae Afda.

rhae·bo'sis. Var. of RHEBOSIS.

-rhage, -rha'gi·a. Vars. of -RRHAGE, -RRHAGIA.

rha'gi·o·crin (rā'jĭ·ō·krĭn), n. [Gr. rhagion, dim. of rhax grape + krinein to separate.] = CLASMATOCYTE.

rhaim, rhaem (rām). Scot. vars. of RAME, repeat. [DAN.]

Rham'a·dan'. Var. of RAMA-DAN.

Rham·phas'ti·dae, Rham·phas'tos. [NL.] Syns. of RAMPHASTIDAE, RAMPHASTOS.

Rham'pho·su'chus (răm'fō·sŭ'kŭs), n. [NL., fr. rhampho- + Gr. soucho Egyptian crocodile.] See GAVIAL. [of RAPHANIA.]

rha·pha'ni·a (rȧ·fā'nĭ·ȧ). Var.

Rhaph'a·nus (răf'ȧ·nŭs), n. [NL.] Var. of RAPHANUS.

rha'phe (rā'fē). Var. of RAPHE.

rhaph'i·des (răf'ĭ·dēz), rhaph'i·dif'er·ous (răf'ĭ·dĭf'ĕr·ŭs), etc. Vars. of RAPHIDES, etc.

rha'phis (rā'fĭs), n., sing. of RHAPHIDES.

-rhaphy. Var. of -RRHAPHY.

rhap'so·der (răp'sō·dĕr), n. = RHAPSODIST, 1. Obs.

Rhap'to·pet'a·la'ce·ae (răp'tō·pĕt'ȧ·lā'sē·ē), n. pl. [NL.] Syn. of SCYTOPETALACEAE.

rheen. Var. of RHINE, a ditch.

rhe'ic (rē'ĭk), rhe·in'ic (rē·ĭn'ĭk), adj. [See RHEUM.] Chem. = CHRYSOPHANIC.

rheim. Var. of REIM.

N O P Q R

Rhe'mist (rē'mĭst), n. One concerned in translation of, or commentary on, the New Testament produced in Reims.

Rhen'ish (rĕn'ĭsh), adj. [L. Rhenus the Rhine, fr. Gaulish; cf. G. rheinisch. See RISE.] Of or pertaining to the river Rhine or the region on or near it; as, Rhenish wine. — n. Rhine wine.

Rhenish architecture. The architecture of the Rhine valley; specif., the German Romanesque architecture of the Rhine Valley, combining native elements with others derived from Byzantine and esp. Lombard architecture. See ARCHITECTURE, Table.

Rhenish Confederation. The Confederation of the Rhine.

rhe'ni·um (rē'nĭ·ŭm), n. [L. Rhenus the Rhine + -ium.] Chem. A rare element discovered in 1925 in columbite, gadolinite, etc., and obtained as a loose black powder or a silver-white, very hard metal. Symbol, Re; at. no., 75; at. wt., 186.31. It is heavier than gold and is the least fusible of metals except perhaps tungsten. It resembles manganese chemically.

rhe'o- (rē'ō-). A combining form from Greek rheos, current, as in rheotaxis; — used chiefly in Elec., as in rheostat.

rhe'o·base (rē'ō·bās), n. [rheo- + base.] Physiol. The minimal electrical current required to excite a tissue, as nerve or muscle, given indefinitely long time during which the current is applied. See CHRONAXIE.

rhe'o·crat (rē'ō·krăt), n. [rheo- + Gr. kratein to rule.] Elec. A kind of motor speed controller.

rhe·ol'o·gy (rē·ŏl'ō·jĭ), n. [rheo- + -logy.] The science treating of the deformation and flow of matter. — rhe·ol'o·gist (-jĭst), n.

rhe·om'e·ter (rē·ŏm'ē·tĕr), n. [rheo- + -meter.] An instrument for measuring or regulating currents; specif.: a Elec. Formerly, a galvanometer. b Physiol. A hematachometer. c A kind of volumetric gas governor.

rhe'o·met'ric (rē'ō·mĕt'rĭk), adj. Of or pertaining to a rheometer or rheometry.

rhe·om'e·try (rē·ŏm'ē·trĭ), n. Formerly, the measurement of electric currents.

rhe'o·phile (rē'ō·fīl; -fĭl), -phil (-fĭl), adj. [rheo- + -phile.] Biol. Living in rivers and streams.

rhe'o·phore (rē'ō·fōr; 181), n. [rheo- + -phore.] Elec. a A connecting wire of an electric apparatus, traversed by a current. b A pole of a voltaic battery; an electrode. — rhe'o·phor'ic (-fŏr'ĭk), adj. Both Rare.

rhe'o·plank'ton (-plăngk'tŏn), n. [rheo- + plankton.] Plankton of running waters, as streams and rivers.

rhe'o·scope (rē'ō·skōp), n. [rheo- + -scope.] Physics. A galvanoscope. — rhe'o·scop'ic (-skŏp'ĭk), adj.

rhe'o·stat (rē'ō·stăt), n. [rheo- + Gr. statos standing still.] Elec. A resistor for regulating a current by means of variable resistances. See RESISTANCE BOX.

rhe'o·stat'ic (-stăt'ĭk), adj. Of or pertaining to a rheostat.

rhe'o·stat'ics (rē'ō·stăt'ĭks), n. Hydrostatics. Rare.

rhe'o·tan (rē'ō·tăn), n. An alloy of 52 parts copper, 18 zinc, 25 nickel, and 5 iron.

rhe'o·tax'is (rē'ō·tăk'sĭs), n. [NL., fr. rheo- + Gr. taxis an arranging.] A taxis in which mechanical stimulation by a stream of fluid, esp. water, is the directive factor. — rhe'o·tac'tic (-tăk'tĭk), adj.

rhe'o·tome (rē'ō·tōm), n. Elec. An interrupter.

rhe'o·trope (-trōp), n. [rheo- + -trope.] Elec. A commutator for reversing a current.

rhe·ot'ro·pism (rē·ŏt'rō·pĭz'm), n. [rheo- + -tropism.] Biol. A tropism in which mechanical stimulation by a stream of fluid, esp. water, is the orienting factor. — rhe'o·trop'ic (rē'ō·trŏp'ĭk), adj.

‖rhe'sis (rē'sĭs), n. [Gr. rhēsis.] A set speech, as in Greek drama.

rhe'sus (rē'sŭs), n. [NL., a name given by Audebert (1797), who says that it has no meaning.] An Indian macaque (Macaca rhesus) commonly kept in zoological gardens, where it is noted for its activity and playfulness. The color is plain pale brown. — rhe'sian (rē'shăn), adj.

Rhesus. Female and young. (1/10)

Rhe'sus (rē'sŭs), n. [L., fr. Gr. Rhēsos.] 1. Gr. Myth. A Thracian ally of the Trojans. An oracle had declared that Troy would not be taken should the horses of Rhesus drink from the Xanthus. When he approached Troy, Diomedes and Odysseus entered his camp, slew him, and made away with the horses.

2. A Greek tragedy dubiously attributed to Euripides.

rhe'tor (rē'tŏr), n. [L., fr. Gr. rhētōr.] 1. A master or teacher of rhetoric or eloquence. Hist.

2. An orator; derogatorily, a mere talker.

rhet'o·ric (rĕt'ō·rĭk), n. [ME. ret(h)orike, fr. OF. rhetorique, fr. L. rhetorica, fr. Gr. rhētorikē (sc. technē), fr. rhētorikos rhetorical, oratorical, fr. rhētōr orator. See WORD.] 1. The art of expressive speech or of discourse, esp. of literary composition. Specif.: a Originally, as cultivated by the Greeks, the study of the principles and technical resources of oratory, including both composition and delivery. Its development by the sophists and other political and professional orators made it regarded chiefly as the art of persuasion. b In schools and colleges, the study of principles and rules of composition formulated by ancient critics, as Aristotle and Quintilian, and interpreted by classical scholars, for application to discourse in the vernacular. c Now, esp., the art of writing well in prose, as distinguished from versification and elocution.

2. Hence: a Skillful or artistic use of speech; skill in the effective use of speech. b Artificial elegance of language, or declamation without conviction or earnest feeling.

3. Persuasive or moving power; that which allures.

> Sweet, silent rhetoric of persuading eyes. Daniel.

4. A treatise or work on rhetoric.

rhet'o·ric (rĕt'ō·rĭk), n. [L. rhetoricus.] A rhetorician. Obs.

rhe·tor'ic (rē·tŏr'ĭk), adj. = RHETORICAL.

rhe·tor'i·cal (-ĭ·kăl), adj. [L. rhetoricus, fr. Gr. rhētorikos. See RHETORIC.] 1. Of, pertaining to, or proceeding from, rhetoric; according to rhetoric; as, rhetorical principles or rhythm.

2. Emphasizing style, often at the expense of thought; exhibiting the art of rhetoric; as, rhetorical prose.

— rhe·tor'i·cal·ly, adv. — rhe·tor'i·cal·ness, n.

rhetorical accent. = ACCENT, 8 c.

rhetorical question. A question not intended to elicit an answer, but inserted for rhetorical effect. (Who does not love his country?)

rhe·tor'i·cals (rē·tŏr'ĭ·kălz), n. pl. In schools and colleges, public exercises consisting chiefly of recitations, declamations, etc. U. S.

rhet'o·ri'cian (rĕt'ō·rĭsh'ăn), n. [F. rhétoricien.] 1. A teacher or master of rhetoric; a rhetor.

2. An eloquent writer or speaker; an orator; now, one who writes or speaks in a rhetorical, ornate, or inflated, style.

rhet'o·ri'cian (rĕt'ō·rĭsh'ăn), adj. Of or suited to a master of rhetoric.

rhet'o·rize (rĕt'ō·rīz), v. i. To speak or write rhetorically. — v. t. To address or represent rhetorically. Obs.

rheum (rōōm; 242), n. [ME. reume, fr. OF. reume rheum, a cold (F. rhume a cold), fr. L. rheuma rheum, fr. Gr. rheuma; akin to Gr. rhein to flow. See STREAM, n.; cf. HEMORRHOIDS, RHEUMATISM.] Med. A watery discharge from the mucous membranes, esp. from the eyes or nose, as when due to a cold; hence, a cold; catarrh; Poetic, tears.

Rhe'um (rē'ŭm), n. [ML., rhubarb, fr. Gr. rhēon. See RHUBARB.] Bot. A genus of Asiatic herbs (family Polygonaceae) with large leaves, loose stipular sheaths, and small flowers in ample paniculate racemes, the perianth 6-parted, the fruit 3-winged. R. rhaponticum is the garden rhubarb. See RHUBARB.

rheum'ar·thri'tis (rōōm'ăr·thrī'tĭs), n. [NL., fr. rheumatism + arthritis.] Med. The arthritis of rheumatism; rheumatism in the joints.

rheu'ma·tal'gi·a (rōō'mȧ·tăl'jĭ·ȧ), n. [NL. See RHEUMATIC; -ALGIA.] Med. Rheumatic pain.

rheu·mat'ic (rōō·măt'ĭk), adj. [OF. reumatique (F. rhumatique), fr. L. rheumaticus troubled with rheum, Gr. rheumatikos subject to a discharge or flux. See RHEUM.] 1. Derived from, or of the nature of, rheum; full of, or suffering from, rheum; tending to cause rheum. Obs.

2. Inducing tears. Beau. & Fl.

3. Med. Of, pert. to, or characteristic of, rheumatism; attending or caused by rheumatism; as, rheumatic pains or jerks; affected with rheumatism; as, a rheumatic man; causing rheumatism; as, a rheumatic day.

rheu·mat'ic, n. 1. One affected with rheumatism.

2. pl. Rheumatism. Dial.

rheu·mat'i·cal (rōō·măt'ĭ·kăl), adj. Rheumatic.

rheu·mat'i·cal·ly, adv. of RHEUMATIC, RHEUMATICAL.

rheumatic fever. Med. An acute disease, often recurrent, occurring chiefly in children and young adults and characterized by fever, inflammation and pain in and around the joints, inflammatory involvement of the pericardium and valves of the heart, and the formation of small chronic inflammatory nodules chiefly in the subcutaneous tissues and the heart.

rheu·mat'ick·y (rōō·măt'ĭ·kĭ), adj. Afflicted with rheumatism. Colloq. & Dial.

rheumatic purpura. Med. Purpura rheumatica. See PURPURA.

rheu'ma·tism (rōō'mȧ·tĭz'm; 242), n. [L. rheumatismus rheum, fr. Gr. rheumatismos, fr. rheumatizesthai to have a flux, fr. rheuma rheum. See RHEUM.] 1. A flux; a defluxion; a catarrh. Obs.

2. Med. Any of numerous morbid states characterized by stiffness of the joints or muscles, pain on motion, etc.; also, specif., rheumatic fever and rheumatoid arthritis.

rheu'ma·tis'mal (rōō'mȧ·tĭz'măl), adj. Pert. to rheumatism.

rheu'ma·tis'moid (-moid), adj. [rheumatism + -oid.] Med. Resembling rheumatism.

rheumatism root. a The twinleaf Jeffersonia diphylla. b The wild yam Dioscorea paniculata. c The spotted wintergreen.

rheumatism weed. a Pipsissewa. b Either of two dogbanes: (1) The Indian hemp Apocynum cannabinum. (2) A closely related plant (A. androsaemifolium).

rheu·mat'ive (rōō·măt'ĭv), adj. Tending to rheumatism.

rheu'ma·tiz (rōō'mȧ·tĭz), n. Rheumatism. Dial.

rheu'ma·tize (rōō'mȧ·tīz), v. t. [Cf. LL. rheumatizare to be troubled with rheum, Gr. rheumatizein.] To make rheumatic or, formerly, rheumy.

rheu'ma·toid (-toid), adj. [See RHEUMATISM; -OID.] Med. a Resembling, or characteristic of, rheumatism. b Afflicted with rheumatism.

rheu'ma·toi'dal (-toi'dăl; -d'l), adj. Rheumatoid. — rheu'ma·toi'dal·ly, adv.

rheumatoid arthritis. Med. A disease or group of diseases characterized by inflammation of the joints and more or less persisting stiffness and deformity. In the acute type the joints are swollen and painful, and the patient is febrile. The chronic type occurs later in life, esp. between the ages of forty and sixty. The onset is gradual and pain is less, but the arthritis may progress in many joints to deformity from nodular overgrowth of the adjacent bone, or to complete ankylosis, not infrequently leaving the patient helpless.

rheumed (rōōmd), adj. Rheumy. Poetic.

rheum'ic (rōōm'ĭk), adj. 1. Med. Pertaining to, or characterized by, rheum.

2. Chem. = CHRYSOPHANIC.

rheum'y (rōōm'ĭ), adj. Of or pertaining to rheum; abounding in or causing rheum; affected with or accompanied by rheum. Now Literary. "The rheumy soberness of extreme age." Carlyle. — rheum'i·ly, adv. — rheum'i·ness, n.

Rhex'i·a (rĕk'sĭ·ȧ), n. [L., a kind of plant, prob. of Gr. origin. Cf. RHEXIS.] Bot. A small genus of herbs (family Melastomaceae) having 3-nerved leaves, and red or yellow flowers with 4 petals and 8 equal anthers. They are called deer grass and meadow beauty.

rhex'is (rĕk'sĭs), n. [NL., fr. Gr. rhēxis a breaking, fr. rhēgnynai to break.] Med. Rupture, as of a blood vessel.

-rhex'is. Var. of -RHEXIS.

Rhi·an'non (rē·ăn'ŏn), n. [Cf. W. rhiain maid, OIr. rīgan queen, L. regina.] Celt. Relig. A Brythonic goddess, the Great Queen or Mother Goddess of Welsh mythology, in legend first the wife of Pwyll and later of Manawyddan. The "three birds of Rhiannon" could sing the dead to life or the living to death.

rhig'o·lene (rĭg'ō·lēn), n. [Gr. rhigos cold + L. oleum oil.] A petroleum product intermediate between cymogene and gasoline. It is exceedingly volatile, and is used in medicine as a local anesthetic.

rhi·go'sis (rĭ·gō'sĭs), n. [NL., fr. Gr. rhigos cold + -osis.] Psychol. The cold sense; sensation of cold. — rhi·got'ic (-gŏt'ĭk), adj.

Rhi'na (rī'nȧ), n. [L., a kind of shark, fr. Gr. rhinā.] Zool. Syn. of SQUATINA.

rhi'nal (rī'năl; -n'l), adj. [Gr. rhis, rhinos, the nose.] Anat. Of or pertaining to the nose; nasal; narial.

rhi·nal'gi·a (rī·năl'jĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., fr. rhin- + -algia.] Med. Pain in the nose.

Rhi·nan'thus (rī·năn'thŭs), n. [NL., fr. rhin- + -anthus.] Bot. A small genus of partially parasitic herbs of the figwort family (Scrophulariaceae), having an inflated 4-toothed calyx, bilabiate corolla, four unequal stamens, and winged seeds. R. crista-galli is the common rattle.

rhi·na'ri·um (rī·nȧ'rĭ·ŭm), n. [NL., fr. Gr. rhis, rhinos, nose + -arium.] Zool. a The lower part of the clypeus in certain insects, as dragonflies. b In mammals, the hairless area of roughened skin at the tip of the snout.

rhine (rēn), n. [E. dial. also reen, fr. AS. ryne, rene; akin to E. RUN.] A large ditch or drain; a runnel. Dial. Eng.

-rhine (-rīn), -rhi'nous (-rĭ'nŭs). [Gr. rhis (later rhin), rhinos, nose.] Combining forms denoting having a (specified) type of nose, as in mesorhine, platyrhine, monorhine. Corresponding generic names are formed in -rhi'na (-rĭ'nȧ), -rhi'nus (-nŭs), as in Gymnorhina, Megarhinus.

rhine (rīn). Var. of RINE, hemp.

Rhine'grave' (rīn'grāv'), n. [MD. Rijngrave, D. Rheingraf.] A count having possessions bordering on the Rhine.

Rhine'land·er (rīn'lăn·dĕr), n. [Cf. G. Rheinländer, D. Rijnlander.] 1. A native or inhabitant of a country bordering on the Rhine, esp., recently, of the region in Germany west of the Rhine (see Gaz.).

2. A German breed of large rabbits.

Rhine'land Pact (rīn'lănd). That part of the Locarno Pact demilitarizing the zone along the Rhine.

rhi'nen·ceph'a·lon (rĭ'nĕn·sĕf'ȧ·lŏn), n.; pl. -LA (-lȧ). [NL., fr. Gr. rhis, rhinos, nose + enkephalos brain.] Anat. & Zool. The olfactory part of the brain. See OLFACTORY LOBE. — rhi'nen·ce·phal'ic (-sē·făl'ĭk), rhi'nen·ceph'a·lous (-sĕf'ȧ·lŭs), adj.

rhi'nen·chy'sis (-kĭ'sĭs), n. [NL.] Med. Injection into the nose.

Rhi·ne'o·don (rī·nē'ō·dŏn), n. [NL., fr. Gr. rhinē shark + -odon.] Zool. A genus constituted by the whale shark. It is the type of a family, Rhi'ne·o·don'ti·dae (-dŏn'tĭ·dē).

Rhine Palatinate. See the Palatinate, under PALATINATE, n.

rhine'stone' (rīn'stōn'), n. [Trans. of F. caillou du Rhin.] A colorless imitation stone of high luster, made of glass or paste.

Rhi·neu'ra (rī·nū'rȧ), n. [NL., fr. rhin- + Gr. eurys broad.] Zool. A genus of limbless burrowing lizards having as the only known species R. floridana, inhabiting peninsular Florida.

rhi'neu·ryn'ter (rī'nŭ·rĭn'tĕr), n. [Gr. rhis, rhinos, nose + eurynein to make wide.] Med. An inflatable rubber bag used for plugging the nose, as to prevent nosebleed.

Rhine wine (rīn). [See RHENISH.] Wine produced in the valley of the Rhine and its tributaries. Rhine wines are, generally speaking, light, dry, white, and distinguished by their fine bouquet and their acidity. They contain about 7 to 10 per cent of alcohol. The best kinds are those of the Rheingau district, opposite Bingen, as Johannisberger, Steinberger, Marcobrunner, Rauentaler, Rüdesheimer, Hochheimer (hock), Geisenheimer, and Assmannshäuser (red). Nearly equal to these are some of the wines of Hesse, as Liebfraumilch, Niersteiner, and Scharlachberger. Moselle is more delicate; some of its varieties, as Bernkasteler, Brauneberger, and Zeltinger, are prized for their peculiar aroma. Forst and Deidesheimer are made in the Palatinate. The wines of Franconia are strong and rich, but as a rule inferior to the Rhine wines proper. Leisten and Stein (Holy Ghost wine) are the best varieties; the latter has a golden color. The wines of Baden, as Ruländer, Riesling (named from an important variety of grape), and Affentaler (red), are also strong, often containing 11 to 13 per cent of alcohol.

rhin'i·on (rĭn'ĭ·ŏn), n. [NL., fr. Gr. rhis, rhinos, nose, with the ending of prosthion.] Craniol. The lower end of the internasal suture. See CRANIOMETRY, Illust.

rhi·ni'tis (rī·nī'tĭs), n. [NL., fr. rhin- + -itis.] Med. Inflammation of the nose; esp., inflammation of the mucous membrane of the nostrils. It may be acute or chronic. Atrophic and hypertrophic varieties of chronic rhinitis are distinguished, marked respectively by atrophy and hypertrophy of the mucous membrane.

rhi'no (rī'nō), n. [Origin obscure.] Money; cash. Slang.

rhi'no (rī'nō), n.; pl. RHINOS (-nōz). Short for RHINOCEROS.

rhi'no- (rī'nō-), rhin-. A combining form, Greek rhino-, rhin-, from rhis (later rhin), rhinos, meaning nose, as in rhinolith, rhinology, rhinitis.

Rhi'no·bat'i·dae (rī'nō·băt'ĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL., fr. Gr. rhinobatos a rough-skinned fish, fr. rhinē a shark + batos ray.] Zool. A family of elasmobranch fishes of all warm seas, included among the rays, but somewhat approaching the sharks in the elongate and narrow body. The species are called (from their shape) guitarfishes, fiddler fishes, etc. Rhi·nob'a·tus (rĭ·nŏb'ȧ·tŭs) is the type genus.

rhi'no·by'on (rī'nō·bī'ŏn), n. [NL., fr. rhino- + Gr. byein to stuff.] A nasal tampon.

rhi'no·caul (rī'nō·kôl), n. [rhino- + Gr. kaulos a stalk.] The olfactory tract. See OLFACTORY LOBE.

rhi'no·cele, rhi'no·coele (-sēl), n. [rhino- + -cele.] Anat. The cavity of the rhinencephalon. — rhi'no·ce'li·an, rhi'no·coe'li·an (-sē'lĭ·ăn; 159), adj.

rhi·noc'er·ine (rī·nŏs'ĕr·ĭn; -īn; 156), adj. Rhinocerotic.

rhi·noc'er·oid (-oid), adj. [rhinoceros + -oid.] Zool. Like, or pert. to, the rhinoceros family. — rhi·noc'er·oid, n.

rhi·noc'er·os (rī·nŏs'ĕr·ŏs), n.; pl. -EROSES (-ĕz; -ĭz; 119), sometimes -EROS. See PLURAL, Note. [L., fr. Gr. rhinokerōs, -ōtos, fr. rhis, rhinos, the nose + keras a horn. See CEREBRAL.] 1. Any of certain large, powerful, herbivorous, thick-skinned, perissodactyl mammals of the family Rhinocerotidae, having one or two heavy upright horns on the snout. There are five principal existing species, two African and three Asiatic, all three-toed on each foot, and with the skin nearly bare.

Indian Rhinoceros. (1/60) rheostatic braking. See ELECTRIC BRAKING.

Rhe'sa (rē'sȧ). Bib.

Rhe'tian. Var. of RHAETIAN.

Rhe'tic (rē'tĭk). Var. of RHAETIC. [Obs.]

rhe·to'ri·an, adj. Rhetorical.

rhe·to'ri·an, n. [OF. rethorien.] A rhetorician; rhetor. Obs.

rhe·tor'i·cate (rē·tŏr'ĭ·kăt), v. i. [LL. rhetoricari.] = RHETORIZE. — rhe·tor'i·ca'tion (-kā'shŭn), n. Both Obs.

Rhe'to·Ro·mansh'. Var. of RHAETO-ROMANSH.

rhet'o·ry, n. [See RHETOR, n.] Rhetoric; a rhetorician. Obs. Scot.

rhi'a (rī'ȧ). Bot. Var. of RHEA.

rhin-. = RHINO-.

Rhi'nan·tha'ce·ae (rī'năn·thā'sē·ē), n. pl. [NL., fr. Rhinanthus + -aceae.] Syn. of SCROPHULARIACEAE (in part).

rhin'o·spasm, n. See -SPASM.

rhind. Var. of RYND (of a millstone).

Rhind Papyrus. See PAPYRUS, 3. rhine'ber'ry. Var. of RHEINBERRY. [RHEINGOLD.]

Rhine'gold'. Anglicized form of -rhin'i·a. Var. of -RHINIA.

Rhin'i·das (rĭn'ĭ·dĕz), n. pl. [NL. See RHINA.] Zool. Syn. of SQUATINIDAE.

rhi'no·ce'ri·al (rī'nō·sē'rĭ·ăl), rhi'no·ce'ri·an (-sē'rĭ·ăn), adj. = RHINOCEROTIC.

rhi'no·ceri·cal, adj. [Cf. RHINOCEROS, RHINO money.] Obs.

a Rhinoceroslike. b Slang. Full of money; rich.

The Asiatic species have well-developed incisor and canine teeth, and the skin is divided by folds into large platelike sections, while the African species lack incisor and canine teeth and the skin has no deep folds. The common Indian rhinoceros (Rhinoceros unicornis) and the Malayan rhinoceros (R. sondaicus) have only one horn. The Sumatran (Ceratorhinus sumatrensis) and both African species have two horns. The common African species, the black rhinoceros, is Diceros bicornis (see BORELE, Illust.). The larger African species, the white rhinoceros (Ceratotherium simus), which is slate-colored, is now almost exterminated. Extinct rhinoceroses of many genera (the earlier forms hornless) have been found in both hemispheres. Cf. WOOLLY RHINOCEROS.

2. [cap.] The typical genus of rhinoceroses, containing the Indian and Malayan species, or, in a broader sense, all the existing species.

rhinoceros auklet. An auklet of the North Pacific (Cerorhinca monocerata) having a deciduous horn on the bill.

rhinoceros beetle. See DYNASTINAE.

rhinoceros bird. a A beefeater; — so called because it alights on the back of the rhinoceros. b A rhinoceros hornbill.

rhinoceros bush. A South African branching heathlike shrub (Elytropappus rhinocerotis), family Carduaceae, supposed to be the favorite food of the rhinoceros.

rhinoceros hornbill. A hornbill (Buceros rhinoceros) of the Malay peninsula and Indo-Malayan islands, which has the casque on the bill very large and turned up in front. The name is sometimes extended to other hornbills.

Rhinoceros Hornbill. (1/30) rhinoceros viper. A large tropical African poisonous snake (Bitis nasicornis) related to the puff adder but distinguished by a pair of hornlike processes on the snout.

rhi·noc'er·ot'ic (rī·nŏs'ĕr·ŏt'ĭk), adj. Of, pertaining to, or like, the rhinoceros.

Rhi'no·ce·rot'i·dae (rī'nō·sē·rŏt'ĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL.] Zool. The family constituted by the rhinoceroses, living and extinct, sometimes including also Hyracodon, Amynodon, and other less closely allied extinct genera.

rhi·noc'er·ot'i·form (rī·nŏs'ĕr·ŏt'ĭ·fôrm), adj. Zool. Resembling a rhinoceros.

rhi·noc'er·o·tine (rī·nŏs'ĕr·ō·tīn; rī'nō·sĕr'-; -tĭn; 156), adj. Rhinocerotic.

rhi·noc'er·o·toid (-toid), adj. & n. [See RHINOCEROS; -OID.] Zool. Rhinoceroid.

rhi'no·chi'lo·plas'ty (rī'nō·kī'lō·plăs'tĭ), n. [rhino- + chiloplasty.] Plastic surgery of the lip and nose.

rhi'no·dyn'i·a (-dĭn'ĭ·ȧ; -dī'nĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., fr. rhin- + odynia.] Med. Pain in the nose.

rhi·nog'e·nous (rī·nŏj'ē·nŭs), adj. [rhino- + -genous.] Originating in the nose.

rhi'no·la'li·a (rī'nō·lā'lĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., fr. rhino- + -lalia.] Med. Nasal tone in speech, esp. when caused by abnormality in the nasal passages.

rhi'no·lar'yn·gol'o·gy (-lăr'ĭng·gŏl'ō·jĭ), n. [rhino- + laryngology.] Med. The branch of medical science dealing with the nose and larynx and their diseases.

rhi'no·la·ryn'go·scope (-lă·rĭng'gō·skōp), n. [rhino- + laryngoscope.] An instrument for examining the nose and larynx.

rhi'no·lith (rī'nō·lĭth), n. [rhino- + -lith.] Med. A concretion formed within the cavities of the nose. — rhi'no·lith'ic (-lĭth'ĭk), adj.

rhi·nol'o·gy (rī·nŏl'ō·jĭ), n. [rhino- + -logy.] The branch of medical science which treats of the nose and of its diseases. — rhi'no·log'i·cal (rī'nō·lŏj'ĭ·kăl), adj. — rhi·nol'o·gist (rī·nŏl'ō·jĭst), n.

rhi'no·phar'yn·gi'tis (rī'nō·fär'ĭn·jī'tĭs), n. [NL., fr. rhino- + pharyngitis.] Med. Inflammation of the mucous membrane of the nose and pharynx.

rhi'no·phar'ynx (-fär'ĭngks), n. [NL., fr. rhino- + pharynx.] The nasopharynx. — rhi'no·pha·ryn'ge·al (-fă·rĭn'jē·ăl; -fär'ĭn·jē'ăl), adj.

rhi'no·phore (rī'nō·fōr; 181), n. [rhino- + -phore.] Zool. One of the two tentaclelike structures (considered to be olfactory organs) on the back of the head or neck of mollusks of the order Opisthobranchia.

rhi'no·phy'ma (-fī'mȧ), n. [NL., fr. rhino- + Gr. phyma tumor.] Med. A form of acne confined to the nasal region and marked by nodular swelling and congestion of the nose.

rhi'no·plas'ty (rī'nō·plăs'tĭ), n. [rhino- + -plasty.] Plastic surgery of the nose. — rhi'no·plas'tic (-plăs'tĭk), adj.

rhi'no·pol'y·pus (-pŏl'ĭ·pŭs), n. [NL., fr. rhino- + polypus.] Med. A nasal polyp.

Rhi·nop'ter·a (rī·nŏp'tĕr·ȧ), n. [NL., fr. rhino- + -ptera.] Zool. The genus to which the cow-nosed rays belong. It constitutes a family, Rhi'nop·ter'i·dae (rī'nŏp·tĕr'ĭ·dē).

rhi'nor·rha'gi·a (rī'nō·rā'jĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., fr. rhino- + rhagia.] Med. Nosebleed; epistaxis, especially when profuse.

rhi'nor·rhe'a, -rhoe'a (-rē'ȧ), n. [NL., fr. rhino- + -rhea.] Med. Excessive mucous secretion from the nose. — rhi'nor·rhe'al, -rhoe'al (-ăl), adj.

rhi'no·scle·ro'ma (-sklē·rō'mȧ), n.; pl. -ROMATA (-rō'mȧ·tȧ), -ROMAS (-rō'mȧz). [NL., fr. rhino- + scleroma.] Med. A chronic inflammatory disease of the nose, lips, and upper air passages, marked by dense induration of the tissues and nodular deformity.

rhi'no·scope (rī'nō·skōp), n. [rhino- + -scope.] An instrument for examining the nose, its cavities, passages, etc.

rhi·nos'co·py (rī·nŏs'kō·pĭ), n. [rhino- + -scopy.] Med. Examination of the nasal cavity, posterior nares, etc., as by means of a speculum or laryngoscopic mirror introduced into the pharynx. — rhi'no·scop'ic (rī'nō·skŏp'ĭk), adj.

rhi'no·spo·rid'i·o'sis (rī'nō·spō·rĭd'ĭ·ō'sĭs), n. [NL. See RHINO-; SPORIDIUM; -OSIS.] Infection, specif. of the nasal cavity, with chytridiklike microorganisms of a genus, Rhi'no·spo·rid'i·um (-rĭd'ĭ·ŭm), usually classed among the Sporozoa.

rhi'no·the'ca (-thē'kȧ), n.; pl. -CAE (-sē). [NL., fr. rhino- + Gr. thēkē case.] Zool. The sheath of the upper mandible of a bird. — rhi'no·the'cal (-kăl), adj.

Rhin·thon'i·ca (rĭn·thŏn'ĭ·kȧ), n. A kind of burlesque comedy; — after Rhinthon of Tarentum (about 300 B.C.), who invented hilaro-tragedy, or the comic burlesque of tragedy. — Rhin·thon'ic (-ĭk), adj.

rhip'i·date (rĭp'ĭ·dāt), adj. [Gr. rhipis, rhipidos, fan.] Bot. & Zool. Fan-shaped; flabelliform.

rhi·pid'i·on (rĭ·pĭd'ĭ·ŏn), n. [Gr.] East. Ch. A fan used to keep flies from the wine in the chalice during the celebration of the Liturgy.

Rhip'i·dis'ti·a (rĭp'ĭ·dĭs'tĭ·ȧ), n. pl. [NL., fr. rhipid- + Gr. histion cloth, sail.] Paleontol. In some classifications, an order of extinct crossopterygian fishes having the basal bones of the median fins united into one mass. Holoptychius and Osteolepis are examples. — rhip'i·dis'tian (-ăn), adj. & n.

rhi·pid'i·um (rĭ·pĭd'ĭ·ŭm; rī-), n. [NL., fr. Gr. rhipidion, dim. of rhipis fan.] Bot. A cymose inflorescence in which the branches lie in the same plane and are suppressed alternately on each side, giving a fan shape. See INFLORESCENCE, Table.

rhip'i·do- (rĭp'ĭ·dō-), rhipid-. Zool. A combining form, from Greek rhipis, rhipidos, a fan, used chiefly in classificational names, as in Rhipidoglossa, Rhipidistia.

Rhip'i·do·glos'sa (rĭp'ĭ·dō·glŏs'ȧ), n. pl. [NL., fr. rhipido- + Gr. glōssa tongue.] Zool. A suborder of gastropods (order Aspidobranchia), including the abalones, having a long radula with long, hooklike teeth in each transverse row, the marginal teeth being indefinitely numerous and becoming smaller toward the edges. — rhip'i·do·glos'sal (-ăl), adj. — rhip'i·do·glos'sate (-āt), adj.

Rhip'i·phor'i·dae (-fŏr'ĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL., fr. Rhipiphorus, type genus (fr. rhipi- + -phorus) + -idae.] Zool. A family of small beetles (division Heteromera) parasitic on wasps and other insects. They have a pointed abdomen and undergo hypermetamorphosis. — rhi·piph'o·rid (rĭ·pĭf'ō·rĭd; rī-), n. & adj.

Rhip'sa·lis (rĭp'sȧ·lĭs), n. [NL., fr. Gr. rhips wickerwork.] Bot. A genus of unarmed cacti, natives of tropical America, with three species in the Old World tropics. They have fleshy, mostly cylindrical stems of very diverse habit. The small flowers have 6–10 petals and are followed by a berrylike fruit. Many are epiphytes with pendent branches, and are called mistletoe cactus and willow cactus.

Rhip'to·glos'sa (rĭp'tō·glŏs'ȧ), n. pl. [NL., fr. Gr. rhiptos thrown out (fr. rhiptein to throw) + -glossa.] Zool. A division of reptiles (often a superfamily of Lacertilia) comprising the Old World chameleons. Syn. Chamaeleontes.

-rhi'za (-rī'zȧ), [NL.] Bot. & Zool. A combining form, from Greek rhiza, root, used to denote a rootlike part, as in coleor*rhiza,* hydror*rhiza,* rhodor*rhiza.* See -RHIZOUS.

rhi·zan'thous (rĭ·zăn'thŭs), adj. [rhiz- + -anthous.] Producing flowers (apparently) directly from the root, as in the family Rafflesiaceae.

rhi'zau·toi'cous (rī'zō·toi'kŭs), adj. [*rhiz*oid + autoicous.] Bot. Of mosses, having the antheridia on a branch connected by rhizoids to the archegonial branch. Cf. CLADAUTOICOUS, GONIOAUTOICOUS.

Rhi·zi'na (rĭ·zī'nȧ), n. [NL., fr. Gr. rhiza root.] Bot. A genus of fungi, typifying a family, Rhi'zi·na'ce·ae (rĭ'zĭ·nā'sē·ē), order Helvellales, forming flat crustlike ascocarps with rootlike outgrowths from the under surface. R. inflata causes a root disease of conifers.

rhi'zine (rī'zĭn), n. [Gr. rhiza root.] Bot. A rhizoid. — rhi'zi·nous (-zĭ·nŭs), adj.

rhi'zo- (rī'zō-), rhiz-. [See WORT.] A combining form, Greek rhizo-, rhiz-, from rhiza, meaning root, as in rhizopod.

rhizodermis	rhizophilous	rhizotaxis rhizogenetic	rhizophorous	rhizotaxy
rhizophagous	rhizophyte

Rhi·zo'bi·um (rĭ·zō'bĭ·ŭm), n. [NL., fr. rhizo- + Gr. bios life.] Bacteriol. a A genus of very small rod-shaped bacteria of the family Nitrobacteriaceae, living symbiotically in nodules produced upon the roots of leguminous plants, where they fix atmospheric nitrogen. There are several species associated with different legumes. These species were sometimes formerly all included in the chief species R. (syns. Bacillus, Bacterium) radicicola. b [not cap.; pl. -BIA (-ȧ).] Any bacterium of this genus.

rhi'zo·carp (rī'zō·kärp), n. A plant of the Rhizocarpeae.

rhi'zo·car'pic (rī'zō·kär'pĭk), adj. Bot. Rhizocarpous.

rhi'zo·car'pous (-pŭs), adj. [rhizo- + -carpous.] Bot. a Having perennial underground parts, but annual stems and foliage; — said of all perennial herbs. De Candolle. b Producing hypogeous cleistogamic flowers.

rhi'zo·caul (rī'zō·kôl), rhi'zo·cau'lus (-kô'lŭs), n. [NL. rhizocaulus, fr. rhizo- + Gr. kaulos stalk.] Zool. A hydrorhiza.

Rhi'zo·ceph'a·la (-sĕf'ȧ·lȧ), n. pl. [NL., fr. rhizo- + Gr. kephalē head.] Zool. An order of extremely degenerate Cirripedia which live as parasites on ordinary crabs and hermit crabs. The young passes through stages similar to those of barnacles, but afterwards attaches itself to a crab, and after a remarkable series of changes becomes a limbless, unsegmented, tumid sac attached to the crab by a short peduncle from which rootlike processes penetrate to all parts of the host and absorb its juices. The Rhizocephala are hermaphroditic, but, as in other Cirripedia, complementary males occur. The principal genera are Peltogaster and Sacculina. — rhi'zo·ceph'a·lan (-lăn), n. — rhi'zo·ceph'a·lous (-lŭs), adj.

One of the Rhizocephala (Sacculina purpurea). a Rootlike Processes; b Genital Aperture; c Cloacal Aperture.

rhi'zo·corm (rī'zō·kôrm), n. [rhizo- + corm.] Bot. A fleshy cormlike rhizome. Rare.

Rhi'zoc·to'ni·a (rī'zŏk·tō'nĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., fr. rhizo- + Gr. ktonos a killing.] Bot. a A form genus of imperfect fungi (group Mycelia-Sterilia) having no spore stage. Certain fungi formerly included in this genus have, since the discovery of their perfect stages, been placed in other genera, as Corticium. b [not cap.] A fungus of this genus.

rhizoctonia disease. Plant Pathol. a Any disease caused by a rhizoctonia. b Specif., a disease of the potato caused by Corticium vagum (syn. Rhizoctonia solani), producing stem lesions, black dirtlike spots on the tubers, and certain secondary effects; hence the names little potato, rosette, russet scab, stem canker, etc.

Rhi'zo·flag'el·la'ta (rī'zō·flăj'ĕ·lā'tȧ), n. pl. [NL. See RHIZO-; FLAGELLA.] Zool. Protozoa having both pseudopodia and flagella. — rhi'zo·flag'el·late (-flăj'ĕ·lāt), adj. & n.

rhi'zo·gen (rī'zō·jĕn), adj. [rhizo- + -gen.] Bot. Rhizogenic.

rhi'zo·gen'ic (rī'zō·jĕn'ĭk), rhi·zog'e·nous (rī·zŏj'ē·nŭs), adj. [rhizo- + -genic, -genous.] Bot. Producing roots; — said of the tissue of the pericycle in the roots of seed plants, which gives rise to rootlets endogenously.

rhi'zoid (rī'zoid), n. [rhiz- + -oid.] Bot. In ferns, mosses, and liverworts, one of the slender rootlike filaments that attach the gametophyte to the substratum and function as absorptive organs. Rhizoids occur also among many thallophytes, as the lichens, and in certain algae, consisting of a specially differentiated basal cell attaching the plant to its substratum. Cf. HOLDFAST. — rhi·zoi'dal (rī·zoi'dăl; -d'l), adj.

rhi'zoid (rī'zoid), adj. Bot. & Zool. Rootlike.

rhi·zo'ma (rī·zō'mȧ), n.; pl. -MATA (-tȧ). [NL.] Bot. A rhizome.

rhi'zo·mat'ic (rī'zō·măt'ĭk), adj. Bot. Pertaining to rhizomes; rhizomatous.

rhi·zom'a·tous (rī·zŏm'ȧ·tŭs; -zō'mȧ·tŭs), adj. Bot. Resembling, or having the nature of, a rhizome.

rhi'zome (rī'zōm), n. [NL. rhizoma, fr. Gr. rhizōma the mass of roots (of a tree), a stem, race, fr. rhizoun to make to root, pass., to take root, fr. rhiza a root. See WORT.] Bot. Any underground rootlike stem, usually of dorsiventral structure, sending up leafy shoots from the upper surface and emitting roots from the lower side, as that of Solomon's-seal or of trillium, whence it is also commonly called a rootstock. Rhizomes are often thickened or tuberlike from the extensive deposition in their tissues of reserve food materials; they are distinguished from true roots by the presence of buds and scalelike leaves. Cf. BULB, 1; CORM, 1; TUBER.

Rhizome of Solomon's-seal. a Stem of current year; b, b Scars from previous years; c Bud of following year.

rhi'zo·mel'ic (rī'zō·mĕl'ĭk), adj. [rhizo- + Gr. melos limb + -ic.] Anat. Of or pertaining to the roots of the extremities (in man, the hip and shoulder joints).

rhi·zo'mic (rī·zō'mĭk; -zŏm'ĭk), adj. Belonging to, or comprising, rhizomes.

rhi'zo·morph (rī'zō·môrf), n. [rhizo- + -morph.] Bot. A ropelike or stringlike strand of mycelium, frequently resembling a root, which is characteristic of many basidiomycetes, as Armillaria mellea. — rhi'zo·mor'phic (-môr'fĭk), adj.

rhi'zo·mor'phoid (-môr'foid), adj. [rhizo- + Gr. morphē form + -oid.] Bot. Rhizomorphous.

rhi'zo·mor'phous (-môr'fŭs), adj. [rhizo- + -morphous.] Bot. Having the form of a root; rootlike.

rhi'zo·neure (rī'zō·nūr), n. [rhizo- + -neure.] Anat. A nerve cell having a fiber which contributes to the formation of a nerve root.

Rhi·zoph'o·ra (rī·zŏf'ō·rȧ), n. [NL. See RHIZO-; -PHOROUS.] Bot. A small genus of tropical shrubs and trees, the true mangroves, type of the Rhizophoraceae, and distinguished by the tetramerous flowers and partly inferior ovary. R. mangle is the common mangrove. See MANGROVE, CUTCH b.

Rhi'zo·pho·ra'ce·ae (rī'zō·fō·rā'sē·ē), n. pl. [NL.] Bot. A family of trees and shrubs (order Myrtales), the mangrove family, consisting of 15 genera and 60 species. They usually form dense jungles (mangrove swamps) along tropical seacoasts. They are distinguished by the opposite, coriaceous leaves, and flowers with valvate calyx and 2–6-celled ovary. The seed germinates while the fruit is still attached. See MANGROVE, CUTCH b. — rhi'zo·pho·ra'ceous (-shŭs), adj.

rhi'zo·phore (rī'zō·fōr; 181), n. [rhizo- + -phore.] Bot. In club mosses of the genus Selaginella, one of the peculiar, leafless, dichotomous shoots which bear roots at the apex.

rhi'zo·plast (-plăst), n. [rhizo- + -plast.] Zool. In certain protozoans, a rootlike process or fibril connecting the blepharoplast or parabasal body with the nucleus.

rhi'zo·pod (rī'zō·pŏd), n. Zool. One of the Rhizopoda.

rhi'zo·pod, adj. Of or pert. to the Rhizopoda.

Rhi·zop'o·da (rī·zŏp'ō·dȧ), n. pl. [NL., fr. rhizo- + -poda.] Zool. A division of Protozoa, generally regarded as a subclass of Sarcodina characterized by rootlike pseudopodia and including the Amoebida, Testacea, Foraminifera, and sometimes the Mycetozoa; — in older classifications equiv. to Sarcodina. Cf. ACTINOPODA. — rhi·zop'o·dous (-dŭs), adj.

One of the Rhizopoda (Polystomella striatilata), with Pseudopodia extended. Much enlarged.

rhi·zop'o·dan (rī·zŏp'ō·dăn), adj. & n. — rhi·zop'o·dal (-dăl; -d'l), adj. Zool. Rhizopod.

rhi·zop'o·dist (-dĭst), n. Zool. A student of Rhizopoda.

Rhi·zop'o·gon (rī·zŏp'ō·gŏn), n. [NL., fr. rhizo- + -pogon.] Bot. A genus of fungi (family Hymenogastraceae) producing subterranean tuberlike sporophores with 2-spored to 8-spored basidia in a compact gleba of irregular chambers. Some species are prized as food, especially in Japan.

Rhi'zo·pus (rī'zō·pŭs), n. [NL., fr. rhizo- + Gr. pous foot.] Bot. A genus of fungi (family Mucoraceae) having the columellate aerial sporangia formed in a fascicle and anchored to the substratum by a tuft of rhizoids or root hyphae. The most important species, R. nigricans (the common black, or bread, mold), causes various diseases, as the soft and ring rots of the sweet potato, leak of strawberries, etc.

Rhi·zos'to·mae (rī·zŏs'tō·mē), Rhi'zo·sto'ma·ta (rī'zō·stō'mȧ·tȧ; -stōm'ȧ·), n. pl. [NL., fr. rhizo- + Gr. stoma, -atos, mouth.] Zool. A division of jellyfishes (Discomedusae) in which marginal tentacles are wanting and the margins of the lobes of the manubrium are grown together, leaving, instead of one large mouth, a large number of small, funnel-shaped ingestive orifices which lead by a series of canals to the stomach. — rhi'zo·stom'a·tous (-stōm'ȧ·tŭs; -stō'mȧ·tŭs), adj. — rhi'zo·stome (rī'zō·stōm), adj. & n. — rhi·zos'to·mous (rī·zŏs'tō·mŭs), adj.

rhi·zo'ta (rī·zō'tȧ), n. pl. [NL., fr. Gr. rhizoun to make to take root, fr. rhiza root.] Zool. An order of rotifers which, when adult, are attached by the truncated end of the tail. — rhi'zote (rī'zōt), rhi·zot'ic (rī·zŏt'ĭk), adj.

---

rhi·noc'er·os·like', rhi·noc'er·os-shaped', adj. See -LIKE, -SHAPED.

rhi'no·coele, rhi'no·coe'li·an. VARS. of RHINOCELE, RHINOCELIAN.

Rhi'no·der'ma (rī'nō·dûr'mȧ), n. [NL., fr. rhino- + -derma.] See DARWIN'S FROG.

rhi'no·lite (rī'nō·lĭt), n. = RHINOLITH.

Rhi'no·loph'i·dae (-lŏf'ĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL., fr. rhino- + Gr. lophos crest + -idae.] Zool. See HORSESHOE BAT. — rhi·nol'o·phid (rī·nŏl'ō·fĭd), n. — rhi·nol'o·phine (-fĭn; -fīn; 156), adj. & n.

Rhi·noph'i·dae (rī·nŏf'ĭ·dē). [NL.] Syn. of UROPELTIDAE.

Rhi'no·phis (rī'nō·fĭs), n. [NL., fr. rhin- + Gr. ophis serpent.] See UROPELTIDAE.

-rhinous. = -RHINE.

-rhi'nus. See -RHINE.

rhipi-. = RHIPIDO-.

Rhip'i·dop'ter·a (rĭp'ĭ·dŏp'tĕr·ȧ), n. pl. [NL., fr. rhipido- + Gr. pteron wing.] Zool. Syn. of STREPSIPTERA. — rhip'i·dop'ter·ous (-ŭs), adj.

rhiz-. = RHIZO-.

Rhi'zo·car'pe·ae (rī'zō·kär'pē·ē), n. pl. [NL. See RHIZO-; -CARP.] Syn. of SALVINIALES. — rhi'zo·car'pe·an (-pē·ăn), rhi'zo·car'pi·an (-pĭ·ăn), adj.

rhi'zoc·to'ni·ose (rī'zŏk·tō'nĭ·ōs), n. [Rhizoctonia + 4th -ose.] = RHIZOCTONIA DISEASE.

Rhi'zo·dus (rī'zō·dŭs), n. [NL., fr. rhiz- + -odus.] Paleontol. Syn. of MEGALICHTHYS. [BEGONIA, 2.]

rhizomatous begonia. See rhi·zot'o·mi (rī·zŏt'ō·mī), n. pl. [Latinized form of Gr. rhizotomoi.] A group of herb gatherers who, at and before the time of Theophrastus, collected a great store of information about plants, mostly those thought to yield drugs.

rhi·zot'o·my (rī·zŏt'ō·mĭ), n. [rhizo- + -tomy.] Surg. The operation of cutting the afferent spinal nerve roots, as to relieve pain or spastic paralysis.

-rhi'zous (-rī'zŭs). Bot. A combining form, Greek -rhizos, from rhiza, root, denoting having a (specified) type of root, as in oligar*hizous.* Corresponding generic names are formed in -rhi'za (-zȧ), as in Corallor*hiza.*

rho (rō), n. [Gr. rhō.] 1. The seventeenth letter (P, ρ) of the Greek alphabet, equivalent to English r. See R.
2. a An instance of the letter P, ρ, written, printed, etc. b As a numeral, 100. Cf. GREEK NUMERAL. c In classifying, usually the seventeenth; as, Astron., a certain star, usually the seventeenth brightest, of a constellation; as, Rho (ρ) Boötis.

Rho'da (rō'dȧ), n. [L. Rhode, fr. Gr. Rhodē; cf. Gr. rhodon rose.] Literally, a rose; — fem. proper name.

rho'da·mine (rō'dȧ·mēn; -mĭn), n. Also -min. [rhod- + amine.] Chem. Any of a group of synthetic red or pink xanthene dyes. Rhodamine B is prepared as green crystals or a purple powder by fusing an amino phenol with phthalic anhydride; it dyes wool and silk fluorescent bluish red and cotton bluish pink, and is also used in coloring paper and as a microscopic stain.

rho'da·nate (rō'dȧ·nāt), n. Chem. [A salt or ester of rhodanic acid.

rho·dan'ic ac'id (rō·dăn'ĭk). [Gr. rhodon rose.] Chem. a Now Rare. Thiocyanic acid (which forms a red color with ferric salts). b = RHODANINE.

rho'da·nine (rō'dȧ·nēn; -nĭn; 157), n. Also -nin. [From RHODANIC.] Chem. A yellow crystalline cyclic compound, $C_3H_4NOS_2$, formed by reaction between chloroacetic acid and ammonium thiocyanate, and otherwise.

rho·dan'the (rō·dăn'thē), n. [NL., fr. Gr. rhodon rose + anthos flower.] a [cap.] Bot. Syn. of HELIPTERUM. b Hort. An Australian annual herb (Helipterum manglesii), one of the garden everlastings, having nodding flower heads with scarious involucral bracts.

Rhode Is'land (rōd ĭ'lănd). A state of the United States.

Rhode Island bent. A lawn grass (Agrostis capillaris) of eastern North America, with very slender culms.

Rhode Is'land·er (rōd ĭ'lăn·dĕr). A native or inhabitant of Rhode Island.

Rhode Island Greening. Hort. A well-known greenish-yellow variety of winter apple.

Rhode Island Red. An important American breed of domestic fowls having a long heavy body, smooth yellow or reddish legs, and rich, brownish-red plumage. There are both single-combed and rose-combed varieties. The breed is valued for both meat and eggs.

rho'de·ose (rō'dē·ōs), n. [From rhodeoretin, former name of convolvulin, fr. Gr. rhodeos of roses + rhētinē resin.] Chem. A dextrorotatory sugar, $C_6H_{12}O_5$, isomeric with rhamnose, obtained by hydrolysis of convolvulin.

Rhodes grass (rōdz). [After Cecil J. Rhodes.] A perennial grass (Chloris gayana) native to South Africa, cultivated as a forage grass, esp. in dry regions.

Rho·de'si·an (rō·dē'zhĭ·ăn; -zhăn), adj. Of or pert. to Rhodesia. — n. A native or inhabitant of Rhodesia.

Rhodesian fever. = EAST COAST FEVER.

Rhodesian man. See BROKEN HILL SKULL.

Rhodesian teak. See TEAK, 2 d.

Rho·de'soid (rō·dē'zoid), adj. Resembling or partaking of the characteristics of the Rhodesian man.

Rhodes scholarship (rōdz). Any one of 202 scholarships, each tenable for three years, founded at Oxford University, England, under the will of Cecil J. Rhodes, 100 being open to candidates from certain British dominions and colonies, 96 to candidates from the United States (4 assigned annually to each of 8 regions of 6 States each), and 6 (2 annually) to students of Germany. Hence, Rhodes scholar.

rhodes'wood' (rōdz'wŏŏd'), n. [From F. bois de Rhodes rhodium wood, which it resembles.] The Jamaica rosewood Amyris balsamifera; also, its wood.

Rho'di·an (rō'dĭ·ăn; 159), adj. [L. Rhodius.] 1. Of or pertaining to Rhodes, an island of the eastern Mediterranean.
2. Of or pert. to the Knights of Rhodes, or Hospitalers.

Rho'di·an, n. 1. A native or inhabitant of Rhodes.
2. A member of the order of the Knights of Rhodes.

Rhodian sea laws. A compilation of local customs, enactments, and extracts from treatises, having to do with maritime commerce under Byzantine rule, made between 600 and 800 A.D. It was long supposed to be one of the historical sources of admiralty law.

rho'dic (rō'dĭk), adj. Chem. Of, pertaining to, or containing, rhodium, esp. in its higher valences.

-rhodin. Chem. A combining form from Greek rhodon, rose, denoting a (specified) type of red pigment, as in phytor*hodin,* ur*rhodin.*

rho'ding (rō'dĭng), n. [Origin uncert.] Naut. The journal bearing of a pump brake.

rho'di·nol (rō'dĭ·nōl; -nŏl), n. [F., fr. L. rhodinus prepared from roses (fr. Gr. rhodinos, fr. rhodon rose) + 1st -ol.] 1. Com. A liquid obtained from rose oil, geranium oil, etc., and consisting essentially of geraniol with some citronellol and other alcohols.
2. Chem. A colorless oily alcohol, $C_{10}H_{19}OH$, of strong rose odor, obtained from the above mixture. It is isomeric with citronellol and held by some to be identical with it.

rho'dite (rō'dīt), n. Mineral. A native alloy of rhodium and gold.

rho'di·um (rō'dĭ·ŭm), n. [NL., fr. Gr. rhodon rose;—from the rose-red color of certain of its salts. See RHODODENDRON.] Chem. A rare element of the light platinum group found esp. in platinum ores and separated as a hard grayish-white metal insoluble in acids and very difficult to fuse. Symbol, Rh; at. no., 45; at. wt., 102.91. Rhodium was discovered in 1803, by Wollaston. Its chief use is in an alloy with platinum for thermocouples. It is chiefly bivalent and trivalent.

rho'di·um wood. [NL. rhodium + E. wood. See RHODIUM.] The fragrant wood of the root and stem of either of the shrubs Convolvulus scoparius and C. virgatus, native to the island of Teneriffe; the true lignum rhodium. Both species yield an oil called rhodium oil (see ROSEWOOD OIL a). rho'di·zite (rō'dĭ·zīt), n. [Gr. rhodizein to be rose-red + -ite.] Mineral. An aluminum potassium borate with caesium and rubidium, occurring in white, isometric crystals. H., 8. Sp. gr., 3.4.

rho'di·zon'ic (rō'dĭ·zŏn'ĭk), adj. [Gr. rhodizein to be rose-red.] Chem. Pertaining to or designating a colorless crystalline unstable acid, $C_6H_2O_6$, obtained from potassium carboxide and from certain quinones. It forms brilliant red, yellow, and purple salts.

rho'do- (rō'dō-), rhod-. A combining form, Greek rhodo-, rhod-, from rhodon, meaning rose, as in *rhodo*dendron.

Rho'do·bac·te'ri·a'ce·ae (-băk·tē'rĭ·ā'sē·ē), n. pl. [NL., fr. rhodo- + bacteria + -aceae.] Bacteriol. A family of bacteria of the order Thiobacteriales, with cells which contain bacteriopurpurin, are of various shapes, spherical, straight, or spiral, and do not form filaments. It comprises the Chromatioideae, containing sulphur granules, and another subfamily, Rho'do·bac·te'ri·oi'de·ae (-oi'dē·ē), lacking sulphur granules.

rho'do·chro'site (rō'dō·krō'sīt), n. [rhodo- + Gr. chrōsis a coloring.] Mineral. A mineral characteristically rose-red, and consisting essentially of manganese carbonate, $MnCO_3$, though usually containing iron carbonate also; dialogite. It commonly occurs massive, with rhombohedral cleavage like calcite. H., 3.5–4.5. Sp. gr., 3.45–3.60.

Rho'do·coc'cus (-kŏk'ŭs), n. [NL., fr. rhodo- + -coccus.] Bacteriol. A genus of saprophytic bacteria of the family Coccaceae, found in water, air, and milk, and on sea fish. They grow abundantly, forming groups or irregular packets, and produce red pigment on ordinary media.

Rho'do·cys'tis (-sĭs'tĭs), n. [NL., fr. rhodo- + -cystis.] Bacteriol. A genus of bacteria of the subfamily Rhodobacterioideae, consisting of rods embedded in a common slimy capsule.

rho'do·cyte (rō'dō·sīt), n. [rhodo- + -cyte.] A red corpuscle.

rho'do·daph'ne (-dăf'nē), n. [L., fr. Gr. rhododaphnē.] The oleander (Nerium). Obs.

rho'do·den'dron (-dĕn'drŏn), n. [L., fr. Gr. rhododendron, fr. rhodon rose + dendron tree. See ROSE; cf. OLEANDER.]
1. The oleander (Nerium). Obs.
2. [cap.] Bot. A large genus of mostly evergreen shrubs and trees of the heath family (Ericaceae), natives of mountainous regions in various parts of the Northern Hemisphere, esp. in the Himalayas. They have handsome white, pink, or rose-purple flowers with a campanulate corolla; the 5–10 stamens are either declined or spreading. Azalea was formerly and by some is still united with Rhododendron.
3. A plant of this genus. The great laurel or rhododendron (R. maximum) is common in the eastern U. S., and is the State flower of West Virginia; the California rose bay (R. macrophyllum) is the State flower of Washington. See STATE FLOWER, Plate. In the Alleghenies the catawba rhododendron (R. catawbiense) is abundant. The cultivated garden rhododendrons are mostly of hybrid origin.

rho'do·lite (rō'dō·līt), n. [rhodo- + -lite.] Mineral. A pink or purple variety of garnet intermediate between pyrope and almandite, used as a gem. See GARNET, 1.

Rho'do·me·la'ce·ae (-mē·lā'sē·ē), n. pl. [NL., fr. Rhodomela, type genus (fr. rhodo- + Gr. melas black) + -aceae.] Bot. A large family of filamentous red algae (order Rhodymeniales) including the genera Dasya and Polysiphonia. — rho'do·me·la'ceous (-shŭs), adj.

rho'do·nite (rō'dō·nīt), n. [Gr. rhodon the rose.] Mineral. A pale-red triclinic mineral consisting essentially of manganese metasilicate, $MnSiO_3$; manganese spar. It commonly occurs massive, and is often used as an ornamental stone, esp. in Russia. H., 5.5–6.5. Sp. gr., 3.40–3.68.

rhodonite pink. A color, bluish-red in hue, of medium saturation and medium brilliance. Cf. COLOR.

Rhod'o·pe (rŏd'ō·pē), n. [NL., fr. Gr. Rhodopē, name of a nymph.] Zool. A genus of minute planarianlike marine animals, regarded by some as degenerate nudibranch mollusks because of the structure of their nervous system.

rho'do·phane (rō'dō·fān), n. [rhodo- + Gr. phainein to show.] Physiol. The red pigment contained in the inner segments of the cones of the retina of birds and fishes.

Rho'do·phy'ce·ae (-fĭ'sē·ē; -fīs'ē·ē), n. pl. [NL., fr. rhodo- + Gr. phykos seaweed.] Bot. A class of algae, the red algae, characterized by their red or violet color, the chlorophyll being masked by a red pigment (phycoerythrin) and sometimes also by a blue pigment (phycocyanin). The class comprises the Bangiales and the Florideae, the latter having the most complex reproductive organs among the algae. The sporangia develop usually four asexual nonciliated spores (tetraspores). The antheridia produce nonmotile gametes (spermatia); the oögonium consists of two parts, a filamentous process (trichogyne), and a bulbous base, in which the egg develops; after fertilization, a cystocarp is organized; this contains asexual spores (carpospores) of a different type from the tetraspores. The Rhodophyceae are marine plants, and exhibit great beauty in form and shades of coloring. Fossil forms (family Corallinaceae) are known from the Cretaceous. See BATRACHOSPERMUM, POLYSIPHONIA; cf. CHLOROPHYCEAE, PHAEOPHYCEAE. — rho'do·phy'ceous (-fĭsh'ŭs), adj.

rho'do·phyll (rō'dō·fĭl), n. [rhodo- + -phyll.] Bot. The essential coloring matter of the red algae (Rhodophyceae). It consists of a mixture of pigments, of which the most important is phycoerythrin (which see).

Rho'do·phyl'li·da'ce·ae (-fĭl'ĭ·dā'sē·ē), n. pl. [NL. See RHODOPHYLL.] Bot. A family of red algae (order Gigartinales) characterized by radial filamentous outgrowths from cells at the base of the clustered carpospores.

rho'do·plast (rō'dō·plăst), n. [rhodo- + -plast.] Bot. Any of the reddish chromatophores occurring in the red algae (Rhodophyceae). Cf. PHAEOPLAST.

rho·dop'sin (rō·dŏp'sĭn), n. [rhod- + Gr. opsis sight.] Physiol. The visual purple. See VISUAL PURPLE.

Rho·do'ra (rō·dō'rȧ; 181), n. [L., a kind of plant, said to be of Gallic origin. The modern use is prob. due to the resemblance of the plants to Rhododendron and the similarity of the L. name.] Bot. a A genus of shrubs related to Rhododendron, having as the only known species R. canadensis, found throughout Canada and New England. It has delicate pink flowers produced before or with the leaves in spring. b [not cap.] A plant of this genus; specif., the plant of Emerson's poem.

Rho·do'ra, The. A poem (1839) by Emerson.

rho'do·sperm (rō'dō·spûrm), n. Bot. A red alga. Obs.

rho'do·sper'min (-spûr'mĭn), n. Bot. Phycoerythrin.

Rho'do·spi·ril'lum (-spī·rĭl'ŭm), n. [NL., fr. rhodo- + Spirillum.] Bacteriol. A genus of spiral, actively motile bacteria of the subfamily Rhodobacterioideae.

Rho'do·the'ce (rō'dō·thē'sē), n. [NL., fr. rhodo- + -theca.] Bacteriol. A genus of bacteria of the subfamily Chromatioideae, consisting of nonmotile spherical cells, encapsulated and not capable of swarming. R. pendens occurs in sea water.

Rho'do·ty'pos (rō'dō·tī'pŏs), n. [NL., fr. rhodo- + Gr. typos type, model.] Bot. A genus of Japanese shrubs of the rose family (Rosaceae), having as the only known species R. scandens, the jetbead or white kerria. It has solitary, white, tetramerous flowers and shining, black, persistent drupelets.

Rho'dy·me'ni·a (rō'dĭ·mē'nĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., fr. Gr. rhodon rose + hymēn membrane.] A genus of red algae typifying the family Rhodymeniaceae. R. palmata is the common dulse.

Rho'dy·me'ni·a'ce·ae (-ā'sē·ē), n. pl. [NL.] Bot. A family of red algae typifying the order Rhodymeniales. — rho'dy·me'ni·a'ceous (-shŭs), adj.

Rho'dy·me'ni·a'les (-lēz), n. pl. [NL., fr. Gr. rhodon rose + hymēn membrane.] Bot. An order of red algae distinguished by the formation of a very short oöblastema filament, by which the fertilized carpogonium unites with the auxiliary cell. It includes the families Sphaerococcaceae and Rhodymeniaceae.

Rhoe'cus (rē'kŭs), n. [Gr. Rhoikos.] Gr. Myth. A youth who saved an oak from falling, and was rewarded by the dryad of the tree with her love. She sent a bee to remind him of his appointments to meet her. It came when he was absorbed in dicing, and he impatiently brushed it away, which slight the dryad avenged by making him blind.

Rhoe'o (rē'ō), n. [NL.] Bot. A genus of herbs (family Commelinaceae) having as the only known species R. discolor, one of the oyster plants. See OYSTER PLANT c.

rhomb (rŏmb; rōm; 277), n. [F. rhombe, fr. L. rhombus, fr. Gr. rhombos rhomb, a spinning top, magic wheel; akin to Gr. rhembein to turn or whirl round. See VERVAIN. Cf. RHOMBUS, RHUMB.] 1. Geom. = RHOMBUS, 1.
2. A circle or wheel. Obs.
3. Cryst. A rhombohedron.

rhom'ben·ceph'a·lon (rŏm'bĕn·sĕf'ȧ·lŏn), n. [NL., fr. rhomb- + encephalon.] Anat. & Embryol. The posterior of the three primary cerebral vesicles, or that division of the brain of the adult which develops from it; the hindbrain. See BRAIN, 1 a.

rhom'ben·por'phyr (-pôr'fĕr), n. [G. Cf. RHOMB; PORPHYRY.] Petrog. A quartz-free orthoclase-porphyry with phenocrysts of orthoclase rich in soda, which in cross-sections have the form of rhombs.

rhom'bic (rŏm'bĭk), rhom'bi·cal (-bĭ·kăl), adj. 1. Having the form of a rhombus, or rhomb; rhombus-shaped.
2. Cryst. = ORTHORHOMBIC.

rhom'bi·form (rŏm'bĭ·fôrm), adj. [rhomb + -form.] Rhombic; rhomboid.

rhom'bo- (rŏm'bō), rhomb-. A combining form, Greek rhombo-, rhomb-, from rhombos, a rhomb, meaning: a Rhomb, as in *rhombo*hedron, *rhomb*encephalon. b Rhombic and; — in adjectives, as in rhom'bo·quad·rat'ic, rhom'bo·rec·tan'gu·lar, rhom·bo'vate.

rhom'bo·clase (-klās), n. [rhombo- + -clase.] Mineral. A hydrous acid ferric sulphate, $Fe_2O_3.4SO_3.9H_2O$, occurring in colorless rhombic plates with basal cleavage.

Rhom'bo·ga·noi'de·i (-gȧ·noi'dē·ī), n. pl. [NL., fr. rhombo- + Ganoidei.] Zool. & Paleontol. A group of fishes comprising the gars (Lepisosteidae) and related extinct ganoids having rhombic enameled scales, sharp teeth, a more or less heterocercal tail, and fins with fulcra. Equiv. to Holostei (restricted sense). — rhom'bo·gan'oid (-găn'-oid), adj. & n.

rhom'bo·gene (rŏm'bō·jēn), -gen (-jĕn), n. [rhombo- + -gene, -gen.] Zool. One of the dimorphic forms of species of Dicyemida which produces infusorialike embryos; — opp. to nematogene. See DICYEMATA. — rhom'bo·gen'ic (-jĕn'ĭk), adj. — rhom'bog'e·nous (rŏm·bŏj'ē·nŭs), adj.

rhom'bo·he'dra (-hē'drȧ), n., pl. of RHOMBOHEDRON.

rhom'bo·he'dral (-hē'drăl), adj. Geom. & Cryst. Related to the rhombohedron, presenting the form of a rhombohedron, or a form or forms derivable from a rhombohedron; pertaining to the rhombohedral system. — rhom'bo·he'dral·ly, adv.

rhombohedral iron ore. Mineral. a Hematite. b = SIDERITE, 1 b. rhombohedral system. Cryst. A crystal system of which the typical forms are the rhombohedron, scalenohedron, etc. It is usually classed as a division of the hexagonal system. See SCALENOHEDRON, Illust.

rhom'bo·hed'ric (rŏm'bō·hĕd'rĭk; -hē'drĭk), adj. Rhombohedral.

rhom'bo·he'dron (-hē'drŏn), n. [rhombo- + Gr. hedra base.] A six-sided prism whose faces are parallelograms.

Rhomboid.

rhom'boid (rŏm'boid), n. [F. rhomboïde, fr. L. rhomboides, fr. Gr., rhomboeidēs rhomboidal, fr. rhombos rhomb + eidos shape.] Geom. A parallelogram in which the angles are oblique and the adjacent sides are unequal.

rhom'boid, adj. Shaped more or less like a rhombus, or rhomb, or like a rhomboid; rhomboidal.

rhom·boi'dal (rŏm·boi'dăl; -dĭ), adj. [Cf. F. rhomboïdal.] Shaped more or less like a rhomboid. — -boi'dal·ly, adv.

rhom·boi'des (rŏm·boi'dēz), n. Obs. a A rhomboid. b Anat. = RHOMBOIDEUS.

rhom·boi'de·us (-dē·ŭs), n. [NL.] Anat. Either of two muscles lying beneath the trapezius muscle which connect the spinous processes of certain vertebrae and the medial border of the scapula. The ‖rhom·boi'de·us mi'nor arises from part of the ligamentum nuchae and the last cervical and first thoracic vertebrae; the ‖rhom·boi'de·us ma'jor, from the four or five upper thoracic vertebrae and the supraspinous ligament.

rhomboid fossa. Anat. a The floor of the fourth ventricle of the brain; — distinguished as the superior rhomboid fossa. See BRAIN. b The sinus rhomboidalis; — distinguished as the inferior rhomboid fossa.

rhomboid ligament. Anat. The costocoracoid ligament.

rhom'boid·ly, adv. In a rhomboid form.

rhom'boid·o'vate, adj. Between rhomboid and ovate, or oval, in shape.

rhomboid sinus. = RHOMBOID FOSSA.

rhom'bos, rom'bos (rŏm'bŏs), n.; pl. -BOI (-boi). [Gr. rhombos.] Gr. Antiq. A small piece of wood which was rotated on a string, so as to produce a loud droning sound. It was used in primitive ritual.

---

rhob (rŏb). Var. of ROB, thickened juice.

rhod-. = RHODO-.

rhod'a·line (rŏd'dȧ·lĭn), n. [rhod- + L. allium garlic (as in allyl) + -ine.] = THIOSINAMINE.

Rho·da'ni·an, adj. & n. = UZGONIAN.

Rhod'de (rŏd'dē). D. Bib.

Rhod'o·cus (rŏd'ō·kŭs). Bib.

rhod'o·mon·tade', Var. of RODOMONTADE. [PHYLL.

rhod'o·phyl. Var. of RHODO-|

Rho·doph'y·ta (rō·dŏf'ĭ·tȧ), n. pl. [NL., fr. rhodo- + -phyta.] = RHODOPHYCEAE.

Rho'do·ra'ce·ae (rō'dō·rā'sē·ē), n. pl. [NL.] Syn. of ERICACEAE (in part).

rho'do·rhi'za (rō'dō·rī'zȧ), n. [NL., fr. rhodo- + Gr. rhiza root.] = RHODIUM WOOD.

Rho'do·sper'me·ae (-spûr'mē·ē), n. pl. [NL.] Bot. Syn. of RHODOPHYCEAE. — rho'do·sper'mous (-mŭs), adj.

Rho'dus (rō'dŭs). Bib. Var. of RHODES (see Gas.).

Rhody, Little. See LITTLE|-rhoe'a. Var. of -RRHEA.

Rhoe'a·da'les (rē'ȧ·dā'lēz), n. pl. [NL., fr. Gr. rhoias, -ados, a kind of poppy.] Syn. of PAPAVERALES.

rhoe'a·dine. Also -din. Chem. Var. of RHEADINE.

rhomb-. = RHOMBO-.

rhom'bi-. = RHOMBO-, as in rhom'bi·form. See -FORM.

rhombic dodecahedron. See DODECAHEDRON. [PHUR, 1.

rhombic sulphur. See SUL-| rhomb'-leaved', adj. See -LEAVED.

rhomboidal fossa. = RHOMBOID FOSSA.

rhomboidal sinus. = RHOMBOID SINUS.

---

rhomb spar. Mineral. Dolomite, esp. in rhombohedral crystals.

rhom'bus (rŏm'bŭs), n.; RHOMBUSES (-bŭs·ĕz; -Iz; 119), RHOMBI (-bī). [L. See RHOMB.] 1. Geom. a An equilateral parallelogram having its angles oblique. Rhombus is rarely used as including the square. The area of a rhombus may be found by multiplying the square of its side by the sine of any one of its angles. b A rhombohedron.

Rhombus, 1.

2. [cap.] = RETICULUM RHOMBOIDALIS.

rhon'chi·al (rŏng'kI·ăl), adj. Also rhon'chal (-kăl). Med. Of or pertaining to a rhonchus; due to rhonchi.

rhonchial fremitus. Med. A vibration of the chest wall, perceptible to the hand, and caused in the production of rhonchi in the bronchial tubes.

rhon'chus (rŏng'kŭs), n.; pl. -CHI (-kī). [L., a snoring, a croaking; cf. Gr. rhenchos, rhenkos.] Med. An adventitious whistling or snoring heard on auscultation of the chest when the air channels are partly obstructed; a râle. Usually a distinction is made between rhonchus and râle, the former being restricted to sounds produced in the narrowed or obstructed lumen of one of the larger bronchi, the latter to sounds produced by vibrations set up in mucus or other fluid in the finer air passages.

rho·pal'ic (rō·păl'Ik), adj. [Gr. rhopalikos club-shaped fr. rhopalon a club.] Pros. Applied to a line or verse in which each successive word has one more syllable than the preceding.

rho'pal·ism (rō'păl·Iz'm), n. An example of rhopalic verse. Rare.

rho·pa'li·um (rō·pā'lI·ŭm), n. [NL.] Zool. One of the marginal sensory bodies of Discomedusae.

rho'pa·lo- (rō'pă·lō-; rŏp'ă-), rhopal-. A combining form Greek rhopalo-, rhopal-, from rhopalon, meaning a club, as in Rhopalocera, Rhopalura.

Rho'pa·loc'er·a (-lŏs'ĕr·ă), n. pl. [NL., fr. Gr. rhopalon a club + keras a horn.] Zool. A division of Lepidoptera consisting of the butterflies as distinguished from the moths (Heterocera). See BUTTERFLY. 1. — rho'pa·loc'er·al (-ăl), adj. — rho'pa·loc'er·ous (-ŭs), adj.

Rho'pa·lu'ra (rō'pă·lū'rä), n. [NL., fr. Gr. rhopalon club + oura tail.] Zool. A genus of minute marine parasitic animals (Orthonectida) having the body composed of a layer of ciliated ectoderm cells, enclosing muscular fibers, and a central mass of endoderm cells.

rho'ta·cism (rō'tă·sIz'm), rho'ta·cis'mus (-sIz'mŭs), n. Also ro'ta·cism. [NL. rhotacismus, fr. Gr. rhōtakizein to use the letter r (ρ) overmuch.] Overuse, misuse, or mispronunciation, of the letter r; esp., substitution of some other sound for that of r (called also pararhotacism); specif., Philol., the tendency, exhibited in the Indo-European languages, to change s (z) to r, especially between vowels, as in forlorn (lose), Latin generis (Sanskrit janasas), of race or people. — rho'ta·cis'tic (-sIs'tĭk), adj.

rho'ta·cize (rō'tă·sIz), v. i. To practice rhotacism.

rhu'barb (rōō'bärb; 242), n. [OF. reubarbe (F. rhubarbe), fr. ML. rheubarbarum, rheumbarbarum, rhabarbarum, lit., barbarian rhubarb, fr. LL. rha rhubarb, fr. Gr. rha, rhēon, fr. Rha the Volga river. See BARBAROUS; cf. RHAPONTIC, RHEUM.] 1. Any plant of the genus Rheum, esp. R. rhaponticum, the common garden rhubarb, R. officinale, R. palmatum, and other species yielding the commercial product. They are tall, coarse herbs with very large leaves and thick, succulent petioles. See 2d RHEUM.

Medicinal Rhubarb (Rheum officinale). Much reduced.

2. Pharm. The dried rhizome and roots of any of several herbs of the genus Rheum, esp. Rheum officinale, R. palmatum, and other species grown in China and Tibet. The commercial varieties are Shensi, Canton, and high-dried, the Shensi being considered the finest. It is used as a purgative and stomachic bitter. European rhubarb, the root of R. rhaponticum, has also been used in medicine, and as an adulterant of the official varieties.

3. The acid leafstalks of the common garden species (R. rhaponticum), which are boiled with sugar and eaten as a sauce, or made into pies.

4. The yawweed. W. Ind.

5. The color citrine.

rhu'barb·y (rōō'bär·bĭ), adj. Like, or characteristic of, rhubarb.

rhumb (rŭm; rŭmb; 277), n. [F. rumb, Sp. & Pg. rumbo, perh. fr. L. rhombus. See RHOMB.] a A rhumb line. b Any of the points of the mariner's compass. See COMPASS CARD.

rhumb line. A line on the surface of a sphere, which makes equal oblique angles with all meridians; a loxodromic curve. It is a spiral coiling round the poles but never reaching them. Its stereographic projection from a point on the line of the poles is a logarithmic spiral. It is the path of a ship sailing always oblique to the meridian in the direction of one and the same point of the compass.

Rhus (rŭs), n. [L., sumac, fr. Gr. rhous.] Bot. A large genus of shrubs and trees, the sumacs (family Anacardiaceae), natives of temperate and warm regions. They have simple or pinnate leaves, and small polygamous flowers in ample panicles, the calyx persistent, five stamens, the ovary one-ovuled, becoming a small one-seeded drupe. The staghorn sumac (R. typhina) and the dwarf sumac (R. copallina) are ornamental shrubs. R. succedanea is the wax tree of Japan, and R. vernicifiua the Japanese varnish tree. See TOXICODENDRON, SUMAC, FRAGRANT SUMAC.

rhus gla'bra (glā'brā). Pharm. Sumac berries, the dried ripe fruit of the smooth sumac (Rhus glabra), used as an astringent, in gargles, and as a refrigerant.

rhy·ac'o·lite (rī·ăk'ō·lĭt), n. [Gr. rhyax, -akos, stream of lava + -lite.] Mineral. A variety of orthoclase occurring in glassy crystals in lava.

rhyme, rime (rīm), n. [ME. rime, ryme, rym, verse, poetry, end rime (associated with AS. rīm number; see below), fr. OF. rime, perh. fr. L. rhythmus rhythm (see RHYTHM), or perh. of Teut. origin; cf. OHG. rīm number, sequence, series; akin to AS. rīm number (see RITE).] 1. A composition in verse having correspondence of terminal sounds. See def. 2. Hence, generically, rhyming verse or (chiefly pl.) poetry; as, a maker of rhymes; to turn the Psalms into rhyme.

2. Pros. a The correspondence, in two or more words or verses, of terminal sounds beginning with an accented vowel, which, in modern English usage, must be preceded by different consonant sounds, or by a consonant in one case and none in the other; as, to gain richness of effect by use of rhyme. b One of two or more words thus corresponding in sound; as, a list of rhymes. Thus, fall, appall, haul, and awl are approved rhymes; so tonic, lonic; debate, sedate, await; but not reason, pleasing; crescent, dehiscent; eight, ate; nor, in careful usage, such "rhymes to the eye" as bough, though. Two or more short words may constitute a single rhyming member, when linked by a predominating accent. Thus Browning rhymes helmet and well met; Lucifer and news of her. See MASCULINE, FEMININE, and PERFECT, RHYME. c Correspondence in word sounds generally; as, initial rhyme; imperfect rhyme. Cf. ALLITERATION, ASSONANCE, 2. d A rhyming arrangement; esp., a type of stanza with a peculiar rhyme scheme; as, rhyme royal; tail rhyme. In prosody rhymes are indicated by letters; as a b a b b, describing a quatrain in which the third line rhymes with the first and the fourth with the second.

3. Rhythm; measure; as, in rhyme to a barrel organ. Rare.

☞ COMBINATIONS are:

rhyme-beginning, adj. rhyme-forming, adj. rhymemaker rhyme-composing, adj. rhyme-free rhymemaking rhyme-fettered rhyme-inspiring, adj. rhyme-tagged rhyme, rime (rīm), v.; RHYMED, RIMED (rīmd); RHYM'ING, RIM'ING (rīm'Ĭng). [ME. rimen, rymen (associated with AS. rīman to count), fr. OF. rimer. See RHYME, n.] Intransitive: 1. To make rhymes, or verses.

2. To accord in rhyme; to end in rhyme; to form a rhyme; — said of words or verses.

And, if they rhymed and rattled, all was well. Dryden.

—, Transitive: 1. To drive or bring by rhyming or by rhyme; as, the rats of Ireland were rhymed to death.

2. Pros. a To put into rhyme. b To compose (rhymed verse). c To make (words) rhyme; to use as rhyme.

rhyme or reason. Good sound or sense; — chiefly in negative constructions.

rhym'er, rim'er (rīm'ĕr), n. [Cf. F. rimeur.] One who makes rhymes; a versifier; generally, with derogatory force, an indifferent or mediocre poet.

rhym'er, n. [See REAMER.] Mech. A rimer, or reamer. Eng.

rhym'er (rīm'ĕr), v. t. [From RIMER reamer.] Mech. To rimer, ream, or bevel out. Eng.

Rhym'er, Thomas the. See THOMAS RYMER.

rhyme royal. Pros. A stanza of seven verses in iambic pentameter rhyming a b a b b c c. Cf. CHANT ROYAL, BALLADE ROYAL. It was introduced into English by Chaucer.

rhym'er·y, rim'er·y (rīm'ĕr·ĭ), n. The art or habit of rhyming; — used in contempt.

rhyme'ster, rime'ster (rīm'stĕr), n. A mere rhymer; a maker of poor verse.

rhyme word or syllable. A word or syllable used in forming a rhyme.

rhym'ic, rim'ic (rīm'Ĭk), adj. Pertaining to rhyme. R.

rhym'ing dic'tion·ar'y (rīm'Ĭng). A dictionary listing rhyme words grouped under the rhymes they form.

rhym'y, rim'y (rīm'ĭ), adj. Rhyming. Rare.

rhyn'cho- (rĭng'kō-), rhynch-. A combining form, Greek rhyncho-, rhynch-, from rhynchos, meaning snout, used chiefly in Zool., as in Rhynchophora, Rhynchops.

Rhyn'chob·del'lae (rĭng'kŏb·dĕl'ē), Rhyn'chob·del'li·da (-I·dă), n. pl. [NL., fr. rhyncho- + Gr. bdella leech.] Zool. An order of leeches with an exsertile proboscis, without jaws, and with colorless blood.

Rhyn'cho·ce·pha'li·a (rĭng'kō·sē·fā'lI·ă), Rhyn'cho·ceph'a·li (-sĕf'ă·lĭ), n. pl. [NL., fr. rhyncho- + Gr. kephalē head.] Zool. An order of reptiles of the general form and appearance of lizards, but having biconcave vertebrae, immovable quadrate bones, and other peculiar osteological characters. Sphenodon is the only living genus, but numerous fossil genera are known, some of which are among the earliest of reptiles. See TUATARA. — rhyn'cho·ce·pha'li·an (-sē·fā'lI·ăn), adj. & n. — rhyn'cho·ceph'a·lous (-sĕf'ă·lŭs), adj.

Rhyn'cho·coe'la (-sē'lă), n. pl. [NL., fr. rhyncho- + Gr koilos hollow.] Zool. The Nemertinea. — rhyn'cho·coe'lan (-lăn), adj. & n. — rhyn'cho·coe'lic (-lĭk), adj. — rhyn'cho·coe'lous (-lŭs), adj.

rhyn'cho·dont (rĭng'kō·dŏnt), adj. [rhynch- + -odont.] Zool. Having a dentate beak. Obs.

rhyn'cho·lite (-lĭt), n. [rhyncho- + -lite.] Paleontol. The calcified tip of a jaw of a Triassic nautiloid cephalopod.

Rhyn'cho·nel'la (-nĕl'ă), n. [NL., fr. Gr. rhynchos snout.] Paleontol. & Zool. A genus of protrematous brachiopods restricted by some to certain forms of Jurassic and Cretaceous periods, but in older or less critical classifications very extensive, sometimes comprising forms from Ordovician to recent times, generally characterized by an acutely beaked shell with one valve tumid, the other flattened, the arms being supported only by short curved processes. Most of these are still included in a family, Rhyn'cho·nel'li·dae (-I·dē), of a superfamily Rhyn'cho·nel·la'ce·a (-nĕ·lā'shē·ă). — rhyn'co·nel'lid (-nĕl'Ĭd), n. — rhyn'cho·nel'loid (-oid), adj. & n.

Two views of Rhynchonella (R. quadriplicata).

Rhyn·choph'o·ra (rĭng·kŏf'ō·rä), n. pl. [NL., fr. rhyncho- + Gr. pherein to carry.] Zool. A large and important group of beetles consisting of the snout beetles, curculios, or true weevils. They usually have the head more or less prolonged in front to form a snout. See WEEVIL. — rhyn·choph'o·ran (-răn), adj. & n. — rhyn'cho·phore (rĭng'kō·fōr; 181), n.

rhyn·choph'o·rous (-rŭs), adj. Zool. a Having a beak. b Pertaining to the Rhyncophora.

Rhyn'chops (rĭng'kŏps), n. [NL., fr. rhynch- + Gr. ōps, ōpos, eye, face.] Zool. The genus of birds consisting of the skimmers. It constitutes a subfamily, Rhyn'cho·pi'nae (-kō·pī'nē), of the Laridae.

Rhyn·cho'si·a (rĭng·kō'zhĭ·ă; -sĭ·ă), n. [NL., fr. Gr. rhynchos snout; — in allusion to the somewhat beaklike form of the keel.] Bot. A large genus of chiefly tropical, often twining plants (family Fabaceae) with trifoliolate leaves and racemose yellow flowers. Syn. Dolichoclus.

·rhyn'chus (-rĭng'kŭs). [NL.] Zool. A combining form, from Greek rhynchos, snout, bill, beak, used in generic names, primarily in ornithology, as in Calyptorhynchus, Harporhynchus.

Rhyn'i·a'ce·ae (rĭn'ĭ·ā'sē·ē), n. pl. [NL.] Paleontol. A family of Paleozoic plants of the order Psilophytales (which see). Rhyn'i·a (rĭn'ĭ·ă) is a typical genus.

Rhy'no·che'ti (rī'nō·kē'tĭ), n. pl. [NL., fr. Rhynochetus, prop. Rhinochetus, or Rhinochetos, type genus, fr. rhin- + Gr. ochetos conduit, channel, duct.] Zool. The suborder of Gruiformes comprising the kagus.

Rhyns'burg·er (rĭnz'bûr·gĕr), n. Eccl. Hist. = COLLEGIANT.

rhy'o·ba·salt' (rī'ō·bā·sôlt'; -băs'ôlt), n. [rhyolite + basalt.] Petrog. An igneous, porphyritic rock intermediate between rhyolite and basalt, consequently the extrusive equivalent of the plutonic granogabbro, and usually containing phenocrysts of labradorite and augite in a groundmass of quartz and orthoclase.

rhy'o·da'cite (-dā'sĭt), n. [rhyolite + dacite.] Petrog. A rock intermediate between rhyolite and dacite, consequently the extrusive equivalent of granodiorite.

rhy'o·lite (rī'ō·lĭt), n. [Gr. rhein to flow + -lite.] Petrog. A very acid volcanic rock, consisting typically of phenocrysts of quartz, sanidine, etc., embedded in a groundmass of minute crystals usually mixed with glass; — so called because it often shows a fluidal structure. It is the lava form of granite. — rhy'o·lit'ic (-lĭt'Ĭk), adj.

rhy'o·lite–por'phy·ry, n. Petrog. A hypabyssal porphyritic dike rock, of the composition of rhyolite.

rhy'o·tax·it'ic tex'ture (rī'ō·tăk·sĭt'Ĭk). [See RHYOLITE; TAXITE.] Petrog. A fluidal texture.

rhy'pa·rog'ra·phy (rĭ'pä·rŏg'rä·fĭ), n. [Gr. rhyparographos painting foul or mean objects, fr. rhyparos filthy, dirty + graphein to write, paint.] The painting or, sometimes, the literary depiction of mean, unworthy, or sordid, subjects; also, specif., the painting of genre or still-life pictures. — rhy'pa·rog'ra·pher (-fĕr), rhy'pa·rog'ra·phist (-fĭst), n. — rhy'pa·ro·graph'ic (-rō·grăf'Ĭk), adj.

rhy·pog'ra·phy (rī·pŏg'rä·fĭ), n. [Gr. rhypos dirt, filth + -graphy.] Rhyparography. Rare.

rhyp'tic (rĭp'tĭk), rhyp'ti·cal (-tĭ·kăl), adj. [Gr. rhyptikos.] Med. Detergent. Rare.

rhy·sim'e·ter (rĭ·sĭm'ē·tĕr), n. [Gr. rhysis flow + -meter.] An instrument, on the principle of the Pitot tube, for measuring the velocity of a fluid current, a ship's speed, etc.

Rhys'sa (rĭs'ä), n. [NL., fr. Gr. rhyssos, rhysos, shrivelled.] Zool. A genus of ichneumon flies parasitic on the larvae of wood-boring insects.

rhythm (rĭth'm; rĭth'm), n. [F. and L.; F. rythme, fr. L. rhythmus, fr. Gr. rhythmos measured motion, measure, proportion; akin to Gr. rhein to flow. See STREAM, n.; cf. RHYME verse.] 1. (pron. in 17th c. rĭm) Rhyme. Obs.

2. The flow of cadences in written or spoken language; specif., Pros.: a The successive and, in the main, regular rise and fall of sounds (whether in pitch, stress, or speed) in verse when read with attention to quantities of syllables or to syllabic and speech accents, and to pauses, esp. as these coincide with cadences determined by a definite metrical pattern; the recurrent alternation of thesis and arsis in verse. b A particular metrical or rhythmical effect as produced by: (1) the prevailing kind of foot used; as, dactylic rhythm; (2) the position of the thesis, or stress, in the unitary foot (see RISING RHYTHM, FALLING RHYTHM); (3) the proportionate time value of thesis and arsis in quantitative verse. The rhythm is equal when the thesis and arsis have the same number of morae or "times," as in dactylic verse; double when the thesis is twice the length of the arsis, as in iambic rhythms; hemiolic when the thesis has one and one half the length of the arsis, as in the bacchiac rhythm. c Rhythmical or metrical form; as, a sentence that falls into rhythm. d Obs. A foot.

He seems to me to be confusing rhythm with prosody. No doubt all verse derives its beauty from its speech rhythms, but these are not the prosody, they are the rhythms which are allowed and ordered by the prosody. R. Bridges.

3. Music. a Regularity or flow of movement which groups by recurrent heavy and light accent; accentual structure. Musical rhythm is based on the steady and persisting succession of beats or time units (pulses) within which accents periodically recur, these accents with their various degrees of stress serving to group the beats into measures. Measures in turn are subdivided into various smaller groups, and are combined to form the larger groupings that constitute the basis of form or design. In modern notation any kind of note (♪, ♩, 𝅗𝅥, etc.) may be taken as the time unit, a group of two with every other beat accented being referred to as duple time, or measure; one of three with every third beat accented, as triple time, or measure [see DUPLE, TRIPLE, etc.]. The bar marks the strongly accented beat in each measure. [See TIME, n., 22, and TIME SIGNATURE.] Added prominence is often given to an accented beat by a slight prolonging of the accented tone or by making a significant chord fall on this beat. Psychologically, musical rhythm is based on felt muscular response rather than merely upon timed tone lengths and it is this supremacy of the personal response over the mere exactness and regularity of measured time units that makes possible the various subtleties and fluctuations in rhythm and tempo known collectively as tempo rubato. As a general term, rhythm includes accent, meter, time, tempo and anything else connected with the movement or flow of music as contrasted with tone sequence or tone combination. b A symmetrical and regularly recurrent grouping of tones according to accent and time value; a time-and-accent figure forming a distinct group that may combine with others into larger forms, as periods, etc.; as, a fandango rhythm [see FANDANGO, 1, Illust.]. Rhythms are often described according to the number of measures which they occupy, as monometer, dimeter, trimeter, etc.

In this sense every germinal musical thought — or, technically speaking, motive, — consisting of a few notes, or of notes and rests, and more or less sharply outlined by means of a cæsura, is a rhythm. J. H. Cornell.

c A particular typical accent pattern that groups the beats of a composition or movement into measures; as, three-four rhythm.

4. Fine Arts. The regular recurrence of like features in a composition. Cf. SYMMETRY, PROPORTION.

Rhom'bo·so'a (rŏm'bō·sō'ä), n. pl. [NL., fr. rhombo- + -soa.] Zool. Syn. of MESOZOA.

rhopal. = RHOPALO-. [Barb. Obs.] rhu·bar'ba·rum, n. [NL.] Rhubarb. | rhum. Var. of RUM.

rhyme'less. See -LESS.

rhyme'let, n. See -LET.

rhyme'proof, adj. See -PROOF.

rhyme'wise', adj. See -WISE.

rhym'ist (rĭm'Ĭst), n. See -IST.

rhynch-. = RHYNCHO-.

Rhyn'cho·ceph'a·la (rĭng'kō·sĕf'ă·lä), n. pl. [NL.] Zool. = RHYNCHOCEPHALIA. — rhyn'- cho·ce·phal'ic (-sĕ·făl'Ĭk), adj.

Rhyn·chos'po·ra, n. [NL.] Syn. of RYNCHOSPORA.

Rhyn·cho'ta (rĭng·kō'tä), n. pl. [NL., fr. Gr. rhynchos snout.] Syn. of HEMIPTERA, including the Homoptera. — rhyn·cho'tal (-tăl), adj. — rhyn'chote (rĭng'kōt), adj. & n. — rhyn·cho'tous (rĭng·kō'tŭs), adj.

Rhyn·cos'to·mi (rĭng·kŏs'tō·mī), n. pl. [NL.] Syn. of ACANTHA. | rhynd. Var. of RIND (of a millstone). | rhyne. Var. of RINE, hemp.

N O P Q R

5. Movement marked by regular recurrence of, or regular alternation in, features, elements, phenomena, etc.; hence, regularity of recurrence or alternation, or an instance of it; periodicity.

Just as there are cosmic rhythms, geologic rhythms, atomic and molecular rhythms, so there are vital rhythms as well. H. H. Newman.

Syn. — RHYTHM, METER, CADENCE. RHYTHM, the general term, applies to measured and balanced movement, wherever found, as in poetry, music, dancing, and the like. METER applies chiefly to poetic rhythm, but is also used with reference to music; CADENCE, which is sometimes equivalent to rhythm in general, more frequently suggests rhythmical flow or modulation.

rhythm (rĭth'm; rĭth'm), v. t. & i. a Obs. To rhyme. b To mark with rhythm; — chiefly in past participle; as, rhythmed prose.

rhyth'mal (rĭth'mălˡ; rĭth'-), adj. Rhythmic.

rhyth'mic (rĭth'mĭk; rĭth'-), adj. Rhythmical; marked by or moving in pronounced rhythm; regularly recurrent; cadenced.

From afar on the warm breeze came the rhythmic chiming of church bells. Galsworthy.

Diastrophism . . . has been rhythmic and world-wide. J. H. Breis.

rhyth'mic, n. Also rhyth'mics (-mĭks). The science or theory of rhythms; rhythmical system. See -ICS.

rhyth'mi·cal (-mĭ·kăl), adj. [F. rhythmique, or ML. rhythmicus rhythmic, also accentual, not quantitative (applied to verses), rhyming, fr. Gr. rhythmikos rhythmical; cf. L. rhythmicus one who pays attention to rhythm.] 1. Rhyming; rhymed. Obs. 2. Marked by, or manifesting, rhythm; composed in rhythm; rhythmic; as, rhythmical prose or movement. 3. Pertaining to or involving rhythm; as, rhythmical skill, systems, or character.

rhythmical accent. a Also rhythmical accentuation. Music. = ACCENT, n., 8 d. b Also rhythmical stress. Phonet. Word accent or sense stress occurring at regular intervals.

rhyth'mi·cal'i·ty (rĭth'mĭ·kăl'ĭ·tĭ; rĭth'-), n. Rhythmical character, nature, or movement.

rhyth'mi·cal·ly (rĭth'mĭ·kăl·ĭ; rĭth'-), adv. of RHYTHMICAL.

rhythmical signature. = TIME SIGNATURE.

rhythmic figure or group. Music. a A characteristic group of notes or tones such as the  , etc. b = RHYTHM, n., 3 b.

rhyth·mic'i·ty (rĭth·mĭs'ĭ·tĭ; rĭth-), n. Rhythmicality; also, rhythmical recurrence. "The underlying basis of rhythmicity [in nature] is at present obscure." H. H. Newman.

rhyth'mi·cize (rĭth'mĭ·sīz; rĭth'-), v. t. [See -IZE.] To make rhythmic.

rhythmic precipitation. The process of forming Liesegang rings.

rhyth'mist (rĭth'mĭst; rĭth'mĭst), n. One who is versed in, or has a feeling for, rhythm.

rhyth'miz·a·ble (rĭth'mīz·ȧ·b'l; rĭth'-), adj. Capable of being rhythmized.

rhyth'mize (rĭth'mīz; rĭth'-), v. t. & i.; RHYTH'MIZED (-mīzd); RHYTH'MIZ·ING (-mīz·ĭng). To formulate, present, or order, or compose, in rhythm. — rhyth'mi·za'tion (-mĭ·zā'shŭn; -mĭ·zā'-), n.

rhyth·mom'e·ter (rĭth·mŏm'ē·tĕr; rĭth-), n. [rhythm + -meter.] An instrument for marking musical rhythm.

rhyth'mo·poe'ia, -pe'ia (rĭth'mō·pē'yȧ; rĭth'mō-), n. [LL., fr. Gr. rhythmopoiia.] Rhythmic art or method.

‖rhyth'mus (rĭth'mŭs; rĭth'-), n. [L.] Rhythm.

rhyt'i·dome (rĭt'ĭ·dōm), n. [Gr. rhytidōma wrinkle.] Bot. Bark.

Rhy·ti'na (rĭ·tī'nȧ), n. [NL., fr. Gr. rhytis a wrinkle.] a Syn. of HYDRODAMALIS. b [not cap.] The Steller's sea cow.

Rhy·tis'ma (rĭ·tĭz'mȧ), n. [NL., fr. Gr. rhytisma a patch.] Bot. A genus of fungi (family Phacidiaceae) forming black stromata (tar spots) on leaves. R. acerinum causes the common tar spot of maples.

rhy'ton (rī'tŏn), n.; pl. -TA (-tȧ). [Gr., neut. of rhytos flowing; akin to Gr. rhein to flow.] Gr. & Rom. Antiq. A drinking horn of pottery, generally having a base in the form of the head of an animal, woman, or mythological creature.

Rhyton.

ri'a (rē'ȧ), n. [Sp. ría.] Geog. A long narrow inlet, with depth gradually diminishing inward; a creek.

ri'al (rī'ăl), adj. [OF. rial, reial. See ROYAL.] Obs. exc. Scot. Royal; splendid; magnificent; excellent; great. — ri'al, ri'al·ly, adv.

ri'al, n. [OF. rial, real, roial, prop. royal; cf. Sp. real. See RIAL, adj.] 1. A king; prince; noble; also, royal power. Obs. 2. The branch of a stag's horn above the brow antler. Obs. 3. Coins. a Var. of RYAL. b The French royal d'or, current in Scotland in the 15th and 16th centuries. c A real. d A silver coin of Morocco. See COIN, Table.

Ri·al'to (rĭ·ăl'tō or, esp. in sense 1, rē·ăl'tō), n. 1. A celebrated island and district in the city of Venice, site of the exchange and the center of commercial activity; hence (in full Rialto Bridge [It. Ponte di Rialto]), a famous marble bridge built about 1590 over the Grand Canal at Venice, connecting the Rialto island with the island San Marco. It has a double row of shops with a broad footway between. 2. [not cap.] Hence: a An arcaded bridge. De Morgan. b An exchange or market; a market place. 3. In New York, a district on Broadway frequented by players and playgoers; hence, the theater district of any city.

Rialto, Venice.

ri'al·ty (rī'ăl·tĭ), n. [OF. realté, reauté. See RIAL, adj.] Royal estate, power, or grandeur; state; pomp; also, a stately ceremonial. Obs.

Riam'ba cult (ryăm'bä). [Bashilange riamba hemp.] A hemp-smoking cult in a secret society of the Baluba.

ri'an·cy (rī'ăn·sĭ), n. Quality or state of being riant. Rare.

ri'ant (rī'ănt), adj. [F. riant, pres. part. of rire to laugh, fr. L. ridere. See RIDICULOUS.] Laughing; smiling; gay; bright; as, meadows riant in the sunlight. — ri'ant·ly (rī'ănt·lĭ), adv.

ri·a'ta (rē·ä'tȧ), n. [See REATA.] A lariat.

rib (rĭb), n. [AS. rib, ribb; akin to D. rib, G. rippe, OHG. rippa, rippi, ON. rif, OSlav. rebro, Gr. orophos reeds used for thatching houses, a roof. Cf. 2d ORB, REEF, 2d REP.] 1. Anat. & Zool. One of the series of paired curved bony or partly cartilaginous rods which stiffen the lateral walls of the body of most vertebrates and protect the viscera; a pleurapophysis. Usually they are movably articulated with the spinal column at the dorsal end, and some may be connected at the ventral end with the sternum by cartilages (costal cartilages), which are, morphologically considered, unossified segments of the ribs. In mammals ribs are exclusively or almost exclusively restricted to the thoracic region. In man there are normally twelve pairs, classified into true and false ribs (which see). A typical mammalian rib articulates with the centrum of one or two vertebrae by a terminal head, a short distance from which is a low eminence or tuberosity for articulation with the transverse process of a vertebra. Beyond the tuberosity is a comparatively sharp bend, the remainder (or shaft) being gently curved. In snakes the ribs assist in locomotion by moving the large ventral scales.

2. Cookery. A cut of meat including a rib or ribs; — often used attributively; as, rib chops; a rib roast.

3. A wife; — alluding to Eve, as made from Adam's rib.

4. Something resembling, suggesting, or likened to, a rib of man or an animal in some way, as in form or use; as: a A bar, strip, rod, or the like, used to support, strengthen, or shape, something; as, a rib of an umbrella cover; the ribs of blinds. b A comparatively hard, firm, or solid, part, esp. when elongated or resembling a ridge, as the quill of a feather, a projecting ridge of rock, a strip of land between furrows, etc. c A knit close-fitting part at the top of a sock. d Now Scot. & N. of Eng. A bar of a grate. e Dial. Eng. (1) A purlin. (2) A furrow.

5. Aeronautics. In the wing of an airplane, any of several light fore-and-aft members that support the fabric covering and determine the form of the wing section.

6. Arch. & Engin. a An arched longitudinal frame of timber, or any of a set of such frames, parallel and equidistant, supporting the transverse laggings and with them forming the centering of an arch. b Any of a number of parallel girderlike members supporting a bridge. c In Romanesque and Gothic vaulting, one of the arches, meeting and crossing one another, dividing the whole vaulted space into triangles; any projecting band in a vault or arched ceiling. See ARCHITECTURE, Illust. d Any of the quadrantal or otherwise curved members of the framing for a dome.

7. Bot. One of the primary veins, or nerves, of a leaf.

8. A framing timber in a house or other building.

9. Ceramics. A piece of thin wood or slate cut to the shape of the section or profile of a cup, used to smooth the inner surface of the clay.

10. Geol. A stratum or dike.

11. Gunmaking. A longitudinal strip of metal uniting the barrels of a double-barreled gun; a land.

12. Mach. & Structures. A ridge, fin, or wing, as on a plate, cylinder, beam, etc., to strengthen or stiffen it.

13. Mining. a Solid coal on the side of a gallery; solid ore in a vein. b An elongated pillar of ore or coal left as a support.

14. Music. a A curved side connecting the front and back of an instrument of the violin class. b A hoop in an organ bellows.

15. a Naut. A batten. See RIB-AND-TRUCK PARREL. b Shipbuilding. A transverse member of the frame of a vessel, running from keel to deck and carrying the planking or plating.

16. Textiles. One of the horizontal or vertical ridges marking certain weaves and formed by use of a very heavy yarn for either the warp or the filling; also, one of the vertical wales formed in rib knitting.

17. Zool. a See sense 1, above. b A nervure. c A ctenophore.

☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are:

rib-bearing	rib-mauled	rib-sticking rib-breaking	rib-nosed	rib-striped rib-faced	rib-pointed	rib-supported rib-grated	rib-poking	rib-welted rib (rĭb), v. t.; RIBBED (rĭbd); RIB'BING. 1. To furnish, strengthen, or enclose, with ribs; to mark or form with ridges and channels; as, to rib a vessel, a fabric in weaving, or land in plowing.

2. Knitting. To purl.

rib land. To leave strips between the furrows in plowing.

rib (rĭb), n. [Ir. ribe, rusbe.] A single hair or bristle. Anglo-Ir.

Every rib of hair that was on his head stood up. Douglas Hyde.

-rib (-rĭb). A combining form of rib, as in mid*rib.*

rib'ald (rĭb'ăld; -ld), n. [ME. ribald, ribaud, fr. OF. ribaut, ribault (F. ribaud), of Teut. origin; cf. MHG. rîben to be wanton, OHG. hrîba prostitute.] 1. One of a class of medieval retainers of meanest station. Hist.

Ribald was almost a class name in the feudal system. . . . He was his patron's parasite, bulldog, and tool. Earle.

2. Obs. a A worthless person; a rascal; a good-for-nothing. b A dissolute or lewd person; rarely, a harlot.

3. One who is ribald in speech or writing.

rib'ald, adj. Low, coarse, or scurrilous; esp., blasphemous, obscene, or coarsely offensive, in language; as, a ribald jest, speech, scoffer, or tongue.

Syn. — See COARSE. Ant. — Decorous, decent, refined.

rib'ald·ish (rĭb'ăld·ĭsh; rĭb''ld-), adj. Inclined to ribaldry.

rib'ald·rous (-rŭs), adj. Ribald. Archaic.

rib'ald·ry (rĭb'ăld·rĭ; rĭb''ld-), n. [ME. ribaldrie, ribaudrie, fr. OF. ribauderie.] 1. Lewd or licentious acts or practices; indecency. Obs.

2. Ribald language, jesting, scoffing, etc.

rib'ald·ry, adj. Lewd; coarsely obscene; ribald. Obs.

rib'and (rĭb'ănd; formerly rĭb'ăn), n. A ribbon, esp. one used as a decoration.

Just for a riband to stick in his coat. Browning.

☞ COMBINATIONS are:

ribandmaker, riband-shaped, riband-wreathed.

rib'and' (rĭb'ănd'; rĭb'ănd; rĭb'ăn). Var. of 1st & 2d RIBBAND, RIBBON.

rib'-and-bat'ten, n. Shipbuilding. A method of construction employed in canoes and boats, in which a short batten is placed between the ribs and over the seam, the plank edges being fastened to it.

rib'and·ry, rib'band·ry (rĭb'ănd·rĭ; form. rĭb'ăn·rĭ), n. [rib-and + -ry.] Ribbon decorations collectively; also, finery.

The show is rich in ribandry and stars. Byron.

rib'-and-truck' par'rel. Naut. A parrel of battens, called ribs, set edgewise with balls, called trucks, between.

ri·bat' (rē·bät'), n. [Ar. ribāṭ a religious house.] An Algerian monastery. Cf. MARABOUT.

ri·bau'de·quin (rĭ·bō'dē·kwĭn; -kĭn), n. [OF.] Hist. a A medieval engine of war, consisting of a protected elevated staging on wheels, armed in front originally with pikes, after the 14th century with small cannon. b One of the small cannon mounted on a ribaudequin. c A huge bow fixed on the wall of a fortified town for casting heavy darts.

ri·bau'dred (rĭ·bō'dĕrd), adj. Prob., characterized by ribaldry or lewdness. Shak. (Ant. & Cl. III. x. 10).

rib'band' (rĭb'bănd'; rĭb'ănd; rĭb'ăn), n. Also rib'-band'. [rib + band.] 1. Shipbuilding. a A long, narrow strip of timber or bar, esp. one bent and bolted longitudinally to the frames of a vessel, to hold them in position while the vessel is being built. b A timber secured along the ground ways to keep the sliding ways from spreading to the side. The harpins are the continuation of the ribbands around the curved ends of the vessel.

2. A scantling, spar, plank, or the like, used in construction work, as in making a corduroy road, a pontoon bridge, etc.

rib'band', v. t. Shipbuilding. To provide, secure, or fasten, with a ribband or ribbands.

rib'band (rĭb'ănd; formerly -băn; -bĭn), n. Var. of RIBBON, 1st RIBAND.

ribband carvel. Shipbuilding. A method of construction commonly employed in small yachts and boats, in which narrow strips (ribbands) are run on the outside of the frames, usually let in flush, and the plank edges fastened to them.

ribband lines. Shipbuilding. The lines in the body plan of a vessel which determine the intersection of the ribbands with the frames.

ribbed (rĭbd), adj. Furnished, marked, or strengthened, with ribs or riblike formations; as, ribbed cylinders; ribbed sea sand.

-ribbed (-rĭbd). A combining form of ribbed, denoting having (so many or such) ribs, as in:

bare-ribbed	many-ribbed	spiny-ribbed broad-ribbed	one-ribbed	stout-ribbed close-ribbed	pink-ribbed	straight-ribbed five-ribbed	pinnate-ribbed	strong-ribbed flat-ribbed	quintuple-ribbed	thick-ribbed gold-ribbed	red-ribbed	three-ribbed green-ribbed	rock-ribbed	triple-ribbed lean-ribbed	round-ribbed	well-ribbed long-ribbed	several-ribbed	wide-ribbed ribbed filter. See FILTER, n., 2. ribbed rifling. = RIB RIFLING.

ribbed vault. Arch. A vault in which solid ribs carry a lighter vaulted surface.

rib'ber (rĭb'ĕr), n. a One who makes ribs, as by forging or knitting. b One who ribs rods in building construction. c One whose work is with the ribs of slaughtered animals. d An attachment in knitting machines for making ribs.

rib'bet (rĭb'ĕt; -ĭt; 119), n. Arch. A rabbet, or rebate.

rib'bet. Var. of RYBAT.

rib'bing (rĭb'ĭng), n. 1. An assemblage or arrangement of ribs, as in timberwork, veins in leaves, ridges in cloth, etc.

2. The leaving of strips between furrows in plowing.

3. The division of a side of beef into forequarter and hindquarter; — so called because the line of severance is along a rib.

rib'ble (rĭb''l), v. t. [See RIPPLE, in this sense.] To remove the seed from (flax) by combing before the flax is retted.

rib'ble-rab'ble, n. A rabble; also, loose, ribald, or incoherent, chatter; gabble.

rib'ble-row', n. A string; also, a rigmarole. Obs.

rib'bon (rĭb'ŭn), n. [ME. riban, fr. OF. riban, ruban (F. ruban), prob. of Teut. origin, perh. orig. a red band. Cf. RED; BAND.] 1. A fillet or narrow woven fabric of varying widths, having selvage edges, commonly of silk or velvet, used for trimming, for badges, etc.; also, a piece or kind of it, sometimes as representing an order of knighthood or distinction.

☞ The blue ribbon and the red ribbon sometimes designate the British orders of the Garter and of the Bath, respectively, the badges of which are suspended by ribbons of these colors. See BLUE RIBBON a.

2. A narrow strip or shred; pl., tatters; as, sails torn to ribbons; the hill with its ribbon of road.

3. An inked strip of cloth used in typewriters and stamping presses.

4. Any of various things suggestive of a ribbon; as: a A long, thin, flat strip of metal, as of steel for a spring, a band saw, a measuring tape, or the like. b pl. Colloq. Driving reins. c A board framed into the studs to support the ceiling or floor joists. d A ledger board.

5. Bookbinding. A narrow cloth ribbon fastened to the top headband of a book for use as a bookmark.

6. Carp. & Shipbuilding. = 1st RIBBAND, 1.

7. Glass Mfg. The form in which molten glass is taken from the furnace in making some types of glass.

8. Glazing. A thin, grooved, lead strip used in stained-glass windows and in leaded sashes.

9. Her. An imaginary diminutive of the bend, one eighth of its width.

10. Petrog. A straight or crumpled varicolored stripe across slate, showing the location of the original bedding.

11. Spinning. A sliver.

12. Zool. a The radula of a mollusk. b The egg case when produced in a long string, as in certain mollusks.

☞ COMBINATIONS are:

ribbon-bedizened	ribbon-bound	ribbon-marked ribbon-bordering, adj.	ribbonmaker	ribbon-shaped rib'bon (rĭb'ŭn), v. t.; RIB'BONED (-ŭnd); RIB'BON·ING. To adorn with or as with ribbons; to stripe as with ribbons; also, to divide into ribbonlike strips; to tear to ribbons; as, the gale ribboned the canvas. — v. i. To extend as a ribbon; — of a road, etc.; also, to separate into ribbonlike lengths, as soap in process of manufacture.

rib'bon, adj. Pertaining to or like a ribbon; forming a strip; banded; engaged in making ribbons.

rib'bon·back' (rĭb'ŭn·băk'), adj. Having a back whose open splats are carved to represent intertwined ribbons, a style introduced by Chippendale; — said of chairs, etc.

---

rhyth'mics, n. See RHYTHMIC, n. rhythm'less, adj. See -LESS. rhythm'proof' (66). See -PROOF.
Rhy·tid'o·don (rĭ·tĭd'ō·dŏn), n. [NL.] Syn. of RUTIODON. rhyt'i·do'sis (rĭt'ĭ·dō'sĭs), n. [NL.] = RUTIDOSIS. ri (rē). Var. of 10th RIG.
‖ri (rē), n. sing. & pl. [Jap., fr. Chin. (Pek.) *li*³.] See MEASURE, Table. ri (rē). See SOL-FA SYLLABLES.
Ri'bai (rī'bĭ; rī'bā·ī; rī·bā'ī). Bib. rib'ald·aill, n. [OF. ribaudaille. See RIBALD.] Low company; rabble. Obs. Scot. [Obs.] ri·bal'di·ous, adj. Ribaldous. rib'ald·ly, adj. Ribald. Obs. rib'ald·ous, adj. [ML. ribaldus.] Ribald. Obs. — rib'ald·ous·ly, adv. Obs. rib'ald·y, n. [OF. ribaudie.] Ribaldry. Obs. riball. † REBEL.
Rib'and·ism, n. = RIBBONISM. — Rib'and·ist, n. rib'and·like', adj. See -LIKE.
ribaudry. † RIBALDRY. rib'a·zu'ba, rib·zu'ba, n. [Russ. ryba, ryb- fish + sub tooth.] Walrus ivory. Obs. rib'bald. Var. of RIBALD. rib'band·ry. Var. of RIBANDRY. rib'baste', v. t. = RIBROAST, v. t. Obs.

rib'bon·back' (rĭb'ŭn·băk'), n., or rib'bon-back' chair. An 18th-century style of chair, having ribbonlike details in the back.

ribbon brake. = BAND BRAKE.

ribbon conveyer. Mach. A screw or spiral continuous conveyor having an open space between the shaft and the ribbon flight to prevent building up around the shaft when handling damp or sticky material.

rib'bon·er (rĭb'ŭn·ĕr), n. 1. One who ties or threads ribbon, as on cards or hose.

2. One who wears a ribbon as a badge, award, etc.; — chiefly in combination; as, blue-ribboner.

ribbon fern. a Any fern of the genus Vittaria, having grasslike fronds. b The commonly cultivated Asiatic fern Pteris serrulata, naturalized in tropical America; — so called from the ribbonlike segments of the frond. c An Australian adder's-tongue (Ophioglossum pendulum).

rib'bon·fish' (rĭb'ŭn·fĭsh'), n.; pl. -FISH, -FISHES (-fĭsh'ĕz; -ĭz; 119). See PLURAL, Note. 1. Any of certain elongate, greatly compressed marine fishes so called from their shape; esp.: a A dealfish. b Any of the fishes constituting the family Cepolidae called also bandfishes. They have long dorsal and anal fins, which meet at the end of the tapering tail. Cepola taenia is common in the Mediterranean, but is poor food. c An oarfish. d A cutlass fish.

2. Any of several fishes of the genus Equetus (family Sciaenidae) having ribbonlike striping. See GUAPENA.

ribbon grain. = 2d ROE, 3.

ribbon grass. A variety (Phalaris arundinacea picta) of the reed canary grass, grown for its white-striped leaves; — called also gardener's-garters, lady's-laces, and painted grass.

ribbon gum. An Australian eucalypt (Eucalyptus viminalis) with long slender leaves; also, any of several closely related species, esp. the peppermint gum E. amygdalina.

ribbon isinglass. See ISINGLASS, 1.

Rib'bon·ism (rĭb'ŭn·ĭz'm), n. Principles or practices of Ribbonmen. See RIBBON SOCIETY.

ribbon jasper. Jasper having stripes, as of red and green.

ribbon lightning. Meteorol. A more or less continuous lightning discharge over an appreciable time, producing a ribbonlike picture in a rotating camera.

Rib'bon·man (rĭb'ŭn·măn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). A member of the Ribbon Society.

ribbon movement. Mach. The mechanism for moving the ribbon of a typewriter.

ribbon rock. Mining. Vein rock, usually quartz, banded with stripes of darker mineral.

ribbon saw. = BAND SAW.

ribbon seal. A North Pacific seal (Histriophoca fasciata). The adult male is broadly banded with brown and yellowish white.

ribbon snake. A common North American garter snake (Thamnophis saurita), found chiefly in wet places. It is slender, and striped with bright yellow and dark brown.

Ribbon Society. A society in Ireland, founded early in the 19th century in antagonism to the Orangemen and named from the green ribbon worn as a badge. It became an organization of tenant farmers to prevent eviction.

ribbon tree. A New Zealand tree (Plagianthus betulinus). From its inner bark a strong flaxlike fiber, known as New Zealand cotton, is obtained.

rib'bon·weed' (rĭb'ŭn·wēd'), n. A brown seaweed (Laminaria saccharina) of the British coasts. Dial. Eng.

ribbon winder. See WINDER.

ribbon wire. A kind of wired tape used by milliners.

rib'bon·wood' (rĭb'ŭn·wŏŏd'), n. a A New Zealand shrub or small tree (Hoheria populnea), family Malvaceae, the bark of which is used for cordage. It has a profusion of small, snow-white flowers in close axillary clusters. Called also houhere. b = RIBBON TREE. c In California a small tree or shrub (Adenostoma sparsifolium), related to the chamiso.

ribbon worm. A nemertine.

rib'bon·y (rĭb'ŭn·ĭ), adj. Of, adorned with, or like, ribbon.

rib'by (rĭb'ĭ), adj. Ribbed, esp. prominently; also, riblike.

rib cut, n. Cookery. A cut of meat including a rib or ribs. See BEEF, Illust.

ribe (rīb), n. [Ir. ribe, ruibe, hair, small rope.] A tall colewort deficient in leaf; hence, a lean person or animal. Scot. & Ir.

Ri'bes (rī'bēz), n. sing. & pl. [ML., (whence F. ribes), fr. Ar. rībās a plant with an acid juice.] 1. [not cap.] pl. Currants. Obs.

2. Bot. A genus of unarmed shrubs, the currants, (family Grossulariaceae). They have small, racemose, variously colored flowers with four or five scalelike petals, four or five stamens, two styles, and a wholly inferior ovary. The pulpy, few-seeded to many-seeded berry disarticulates from its pedicel, thus differing from the gooseberry (Grossularia), which see. See CURRANT, 2.

rib grass. The ribwort.

Ribh'us (rĭb'ŏŏz; -hŏŏz; 99), n. pl. [Skr. ṛbhu, sing., lit., dexterous.] Vedic Myth. The skilled artisans of the gods, usually three in number, who are as bright as the sun, where they dwell.

rib'ibe (rĭb'ĭb), n. [OF. rebebe, rubebe. See REBEC.] A sort of stringed instrument played with a bow. Cf. REBEC. Obs.

rib'ibe, n. [ME., perh., after ribibe musical instrument (cf. rebec musical instrument), fr. rebekke a crone, prob. fr. prop. name Rebecca.] An old crone. Obs.

rib lath. Metal lath with ribs at intervals to increase its rigidity.

rib'less (rĭb'lĕs; -lĭs; 119), adj. Having no ribs or no visible ribs; hence, plump.

ri·bon'ic (rī·bŏn'ĭk; rĭ-), adj. [G. *ribon*säure, fr. arabinose by transposition of letters.] Chem. Pertaining to or designating a tetrahydroxy acid, $C_5H_{10}O_6$.

ri'bose (rī'bōs), n. Chem. A pentose, $C_5H_{10}O_5$, the D-variety of which is obtained by hydrolyzing inosinic acid and certain nucleic acids (as guanylic acid), and the L-variety by reducing ribonic acid.

rib rifling. Firearms. Rifling with very wide grooves and very narrow lands (hence called ribs).

rib'roast' (rĭb'rōst'), n. 1. A ribroasting, or beating.

2. Usually rib roast. A meat cut, usually of beef, from the ribs; also, such a cut cooked and served as food.

rib'roast', v. t. To beat soundly; to thrash. Slang. — rib'roast'er, n. — rib'roast'ing, adj. & n.

rib stitch. Knitting. = 3d PURL, 4.

Rib'ston (rĭb'stŭn). [From Ribston, Yorkshire, Eng.] An English variety of pippin or winter apple of fine quality, often called Ribston pippin.

rib'work' (rĭb'wûrk'), n. A ribbed structure, arrangement, or the like.

rib'wort' (rĭb'wûrt'), n., or ribwort plantain. A species of plantain (Plantago lanceolata) with long, narrow, ribbed leaves, widely naturalized as a weed. Also, any of several similar related species, as P. aristata, P. varia, etc.

-ric (-rĭk). A combining form, Anglo-Saxon rice, from rīce, meaning region of, jurisdiction of, realm, as in bishop*ric*.

Ri·car'di·an (rĭ·kär'dĭ·ăn), adj. Of or pertaining to David Ricardo (1772–1823), an English political economist of the free-trade school; specif., based on an assumption of perfectly free competition, esp. exemplified in the Ricardian theory or doctrine of rent, that rent consisted in "that portion of the produce of the earth which is paid to the landlord for the use of the original and indestructible powers of the soil." See 4th RENT, 5 a. — n. A follower of Ricardo. — Ri·car'di·an·ism (-ĭz'm), n.

Ricardian rent. See RENT, n., 5 a.

‖ri·cas'so (rē·käs'sō; E. rĭ·käs'ō), n. [It.] In a rapier or dueling sword, the heel, or that part of the blade between the cup guard and the quillons.

Ric·ca'ti e·qua'tion (rĕk·kä'tē). [After J. F. Riccati (1676–1754), It. mathematician.] Math. The first order differential equation $\frac{dy}{dx} + py^2 + qy + r = 0$ where p, q, r are functions of the independent variable x.

Ric'ci·a (rĭk'sĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., after P. F. Ricci, It. botanist.] Bot. A genus of liverworts typifying the family Ricciaceae. R. natans, the commonest species, is often found floating, like duckweed, in stagnant pools.

Ric'ci·a'ceae (rĭk'sĭ·ā'sē·ē), n. pl. [NL.] Bot. A family of thalloid liverworts variously regarded as constituting a distinct order Ric'ci·a'les (-lēz), or as belonging to the order Marchantiales. They are the simplest of the Hepaticae in structure, consisting of a dichotomously branching thallus which may grow floating, submerged, or rooting on damp soil. — ric'ci·a'ceous (-shŭs), adj.

a Bearded Japanese Rice; b Beardless American (Florida) Rice.

rice (rīs), n. [ME. rys, ris, fr. OF. ris (F. riz), fr. It. riso, through MGr. (cf. NGr. rhyzi) fr. Gr. oryzon, oryza (whence L. oryza), through Iranian fr. Skr. vrīhi, of uncert. origin. Cf. ORYZA.] 1. An annual cereal grass (Oryza sativa) widely cultivated in warm climates for its seed, used for human food. The hulls and other by-products are fed to livestock; the straw is used in making paper, etc. Rice grows chiefly on low, moist land, which can be overflowed.

2. Collectively, the grain or seeds of rice. It is very rich in starch, and is the staple diet of the people in most warm countries. Rice flour is also obtained from it.

☞ COMBINATIONS AND PHRASES are:

rice cleaner	rice-grading, adj.	rice mill rice-cleaning, adj.	rice grinder	rice miller rice-clipping, adj.	rice-grinding, adj.	rice planter rice eater	rice grower	rice-planting, adj.
rice-eating, adj.	rice-growing, adj.	rice polisher
rice field	rice huller	rice-polishing, adj.
rice grader	rice-hulling, adj.	rice-pounding, adj.

rice, v. t. Cookery. To put through a ricer (which see).

rice (rīs), n. [AS. hrīs.] Twig; branch; stick; also, twigs and branches collectively; brushwood. Obs. exc. Dial.

rice bean. An annual half-twining bean (Phaseolus calcaratus), adapted to about the same area as the cowpea. It is cultivated for its seed to a limited extent in Asia and the East Indies.

rice'bird' (rīs'bûrd'), n. Any of several small birds common in rice fields; specif.: a The Java sparrow. b Southern U. S. The bobolink. c In China, the yellow-breasted bunting Emberiza aureola. d The Florida gallinule. See GALLINULE.

rice body. Med. A smooth, glistening, ovoid particle like a grain of rice, occurring as a result of chronic inflammation in joints and the sheaths of tendons and bursae. Rice bodies are commonly multiple.

rice boiler. = DOUBLE BOILER.

rice bran. A product obtained by milling rice, used as a stock feed. It consists of the outer part of the kernels, the germs, and a small amount of hulls.

rice bug. An insect (Leptocorisa varicornis) of the order Hemiptera, injurious to rice in India and the far East.

rice bunting. The bobolink.

rice'-but'ton as'ter. The bushy aster.

rice coal. A fine size of anthracite. See COAL. Local, U.S.

rice cousin. Barn grass.

rice cut-grass. A rough-leaved marsh grass (Leersia oryzoides) of eastern North America, the grains of which somewhat resemble those of rice.

rice drier. Agric. Mach. A device consisting of tempering bins and blasts of heated air, for drying and curing newly threshed rice on a large scale.

rice dust. = RICE POLISH.

rice'-field' eel. Any of several small, dark-colored, eel-shaped Asiatic and East Indian fishes (family Monopteridae). Monopterus albus is common in ditches from China to India. See ICHTHYOCEPHALI.

rice-field minnow. A small fish (Chologaster cornutus) of ditches and swamps from North Carolina to Georgia, closely allied to the typical blindfishes but with well-developed eyes.

rice-field mouse, rice-field rat. = RICE RAT.

rice-field rail. The sora.

rice flour. A flour made by grinding the hulled and polished, usually broken, rice grains.

rice flower. Any of several commonly cultivated shrubs of the genus Pimelea, the small unopened flower buds of which suggest grains of rice.

rice glue. A kind of cement made by boiling ground rice in soft water. It is used, somewhat like papier-maché, to make various molded articles, such as statuary.

rice grain. Astron. = GRANULE, 2.

rice'-grain' dec'o·ra'tion. Ceramics. A kind of decoration sometimes used in porcelain and fine earthenware. Before firing, the walls of the piece are pierced, usually with a small knife. The openings are then filled with the glaze, and translucent spots are formed on firing.

rice grass. A stoloniferous marsh grass (Leersia hexandra) of tropical America, cultivated in the Philippine Islands for green forage.

rice grub. The larva of a beetle (Dyscinetus trachypygus) injurious to the rice plant in the southern United States.

rice hen. The Florida gallinule. See GALLINULE.

rice'land' (rīs'lănd'), n. Land devoted to, or suitable for, the growing of rice.

rice meal. The ground, dehulled, but unpolished, rice kernels, used as a feeding stuff.

rice milk. A gruel, porridge, or pudding, made of rice, milk, and other ingredients.

rice mouse. = RICE RAT.

rice paper. 1. A thin paper made from rice straw.

2. By confusion, commonly, a kind of thin, delicate paper, brought from China, — used for painting upon, and for the manufacture of fancy articles. It is made by cutting the pith of the rice-paper tree into one roll or sheet, which is flattened out under pressure. Called also pith paper.

rice'-pa'per tree. A small Asiatic tree or shrub (Tetrapanax papyriferum) widely cultivated in China and Japan. It has large 5-7-lobed leaves, and small white flowers. The pith of the stem, from which rice paper is made, is about an inch in diameter.

rice polish. A finely powdered material obtained in polishing rice and consisting of the inner bran layer with a little of the starchy interior, used in the arts and as a stock feed. In the Philippines, an extract made from rice polish, called tikitiki, is used for treating beriberi.

rice polishings. The husks of rice, rubbed off in milling.

rice powder. A face powder whose basis is pulverized rice.

ric'er (rīs'ĕr), n. A kitchen utensil designed for pressing potatoes and similar cooked vegetables through a perforated container, the resulting product emerging as strings about the diameter of a grain of rice.

Ricer.

rice rail. The sora.

rice rat. A native cricetine rat (Oryzomys palustris) of the southeastern United States, slightly smaller than the brown rat and with a finer but similarly colored coat. The name is extended to related species.

‖ri'cer·ca're (rē'chĕr·kä'rā), n.; pl. RICERCARI (-rē). [It. See RESEARCH.] a A contrapuntal, instrumental composition, analogous to the motet in vocal music, usually consisting, in the 16th century, of a series of fugal expositions on different subjects, developing in the 17th century into the true fugue on a single subject. b Later, esp. in the 18th century, a learned and elaborate fugue.

‖ri'cer·ca'ta (rē'chĕr·kä'tä), n. [It.] Music. = RICERCARE.

rice sapper. The rice bug.

rice shell. a Any of numerous small white olive shells of the genus Olivella. b Australia. Any of certain shells of the genus Truncatella.

rice table. [Cf. D. rijsttafel.] In Java, the midday meal, consisting of a dish chiefly of rice, mixed with small selections of cooked meats and vegetables, fish, chicken, fruit, eggs, curries, pickles, and condiments.

rice tenrec. A mammal of the genus Oryzorictes (which see).

rice'-throw'ing, n. Anthropol. The custom of throwing rice upon a newly married pair. Similar customs exist among many rice-eating peoples of Asia. It was originally a practice to promote fertility.

rice water. 1. A drink, chiefly for invalids, made by boiling a small quantity of rice in water.

2. Med. A liquid, resembling rice water in appearance, containing mucus, epithelial cells, and bacteria, discharged from the bowels in Asiatic cholera, and less commonly in other severe forms of diarrhea.

rice weevil. a A small weevil (Sitophilus oryzae) destructive of stored rice, wheat, flour, biscuit, etc. It is called black weevil in the southern United States. Cf. CALANDRIDAE. b The water weevil.

Rice Weevil a. b Larva. Much enlarged.

rice wine. A highly alcoholic liquor distilled from rice, used in China and Japan. Cf. 2d SAKE.

rice'y (rīs'ĭ), adj. Of or like rice.

rich (rĭch), adj.; RICH'ER (-ĕr); RICH'EST. [ME. riche (with influence of OF. riche, of Teut. orig.), fr. AS. rīce powerful, rich; akin to OS. rīki, OHG. rīhhi, G. reich, ON. rīkr powerful, rich, Goth. reiks mighty, m. a ruler; early Teut. fr. Celt. rīx (OIr. rī, gen. rīg, king); akin to L. rex, regis, king, regere to guide, rule, Skr. rājan king. See RIGHT; cf. DERRICK, ENRICH, RAJA, -RIC, RICHES ROYAL.] 1. Mighty; powerful; potent. Obs.

2. a Having an abundance of material possessions; well supplied with land, goods, or money; wealthy; opulent; affluent; — opposed to poor. "Rich merchants." Chaucer.

The rich [person] hath many friends. Prov. xiv. 20.

b Abundantly furnished; — followed by in or with, formerly of; as, rich in paintings, with spoils.

Rich he was of holy thought and work. Chaucer.

A dog rich in leisure and meditation. Sinclair Lewis.

3. Composed of valuable or costly materials or ingredients; sumptuous; costly; magnificent; valuable; as, a rich dress; rich presents. "Rich and various gems." Milton.

4. Abounding in superior, pleasing, or effective qualities; — esp. of articles of food or drink which are high-seasoned or abound in oleaginous ingredients, or are sweet, luscious, and high-flavored; as, a rich perfume; rich cream; rich and indigestible foods.

5. Hence: a Of colors, vivid but pleasing; of high or very high saturation and (commonly) of low brilliance (sense 2); as, a rich red. Cf. COLOR. b Full and mellow in tone; as, a rich voice; rich music. c Abounding in beauty; as, a rich landscape. d Fragrant. e Fat; — said of lime or limestone. See FAT, adj., 5. f Abounding in resinous heartwood; as, rich stumps. g Greasy, as gravy. h High in the combustible component; — said of a mixture of air and gas or vapor. Opposed to lean. i Pregnant with meaning; as, rich allusions or words.

6. Abundant; copious; bountiful; as, a rich crop.

Each minute shall be rich in some great action. Rowe.

7. Producing abundantly or yielding large returns; productive or fertile; fruitful; as, rich soil or land; a rich mine.

8. Abounding in humor; exciting amusement; entertaining; as, a rich scene, incident, or character; hence, laughable; absurd; preposterous; as, that is a rich idea.

9. Civ. Engin. Containing a large proportion of cementing material; as, rich mortar, concrete, or plaster.

---

rib'bond. Ribboned. Ref. Sp. rib'bon·like', adj. See -LIKE.
rib'bon·ry, n. = RIBANDRY. ribd. Ribbed. Ref. Sp.

ri·bi'ble, n. Hist. A ribibe (musical instrument). Obs. ribibor, n. A player on the ribibe. Obs.

Rib'lah (rĭb'lȧ). Bib. rib'let, n. Dim. of RIB. rib'like', adj. See -LIKE. [BOZO.] ri·bo'sa, ri·bo'so. Vars. of RE-

Ri'bot's' law (rē'bōz'). [After T. A. Ribot, French psychologist.] See REGRESSION, 6. rib'skin', n. [ME. ribben to dress (flax) + skin.] A piece of leather used or worn in dressing flax. Obs. [Dial.] rib'spare', n. = SPARERIB. Now rib-su'ba. † RIBAZUBA, walrus ivory. rice'-root' grass. = BROOMROOT.

rice'-seed' bod'y. = RICE BODY.

☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are:

rich-appareled	rich-embroidered	rich-minded rich-attired	rich-figured	rich-ored rich-bedight	rich-fleeced	rich-robed rich-bound	rich-fleshed	rich-set rich-built	rich-glittering	rich-soiled rich-burning	rich-haired	rich-tasting rich-clad	rich-jeweled	rich-toned rich-conceited	rich-laden	rich-voiced rich-distilled	rich-looking	rich-wrought

Syn.—Well-to-do, moneyed; luxuriant.—RICH, WEALTHY, AFFLUENT, OPULENT. One is RICH who has abundant possessions; WEALTHY heightens the implication of prosperity; AFFLUENT and OPULENT connote profusion or great abundance; as, "My son was already possessed of a very affluent fortune" (Goldsmith); cf. "his [Carlyle's] almost bewildering affluence of thought, fancy, feeling, humor, pathos" (Birrell); "barbarous opulence, jewel-thick" (Tennyson). Cf. PLENTIFUL, PROFUSE.

Ant. — Poverty-stricken, destitute, impecunious; meager, thin, sparse; barren, sterile; cheap, shabby; simple, plain. See POOR.

rich (rĭch), n. A rich person.

rich, adv. Richly.

rich, v. t. & i. To make, be, or become rich; to enrich.

These proud old panes that rich the dim recess. M. P. Merryman.

‖rĭ′chard′ (rē′shär′), n. [F. See RICH.] A plutocrat.

Extraordinary that those bloated old richards should have flickered out almost at the same hour. Henry James.

Rich′ard (rĭch′ĕrd), n. [F., of G. origin; cf. OHG. Richhart; akin to E. rich and hard.] Literally, strong like a ruler; powerful; — masc. proper name. L. Ricardus (rĭ-kär′dŭs); F. Richard (rēk-shär′); It. Riccardo (rēk-kär′dō); Sp. Ricardo (rē-kär′dō); Pg. Ricardo (-dōō); G. Richard (rĭk′ärt). — Dim. Dick, Dicken, Dickon.

Richard Cœur de Lion. See COEUR DE LION.

Rich′ard Roe′ (rĭch′ĕrd rō′). Law. A fictitious name for a party, real or fictitious, to an act or proceeding. See JOHN DOE. Other names were formerly similarly used, as John-a-Nokes, John o' Noakes, John-a-Stiles, etc.

Richard Saunders. See SAUNDERS, RICHARD.

Rich′ard-so′ni-a (rĭch′ĕrd-sō′nĭ-ȧ), n. [NL., after Richard Richardson (1663–1741), Eng. botanist.] Bot. A small genus of tropical American, hairy herbs of the madder family (Rubiaceæ), having inconspicuous flowers in dense heads, a 2–4-celled ovary, and 4-seeded fruit. R. scabra is the Mexican clover. Syn. Richardia.

Rich′ard-son's grouse (rĭch′ĕrd-sŭnz; -s′nz). [After Sir John Richardson, Scot. naturalist.] A northern variety (Dendragapus obscurus richardsonii) of the dusky grouse.

Richardson's jaeger. [See RICHARDSON'S GROUSE.] The parasitic jaeger. See JAEGER, 2.

Richardson's owl. [See RICHARDSON'S GROUSE.] A small gray, white-speckled owl (Cryptoglaux funerea richardsonii) of the boreal forests of North America.

Rich′ards's in′di-ca′tor (rĭch′ĕrd-zĭz). The first steam engine indicator to use a straight-line reducing motion between the working piston and the recording stylus or pencil, thus rendering it suitable for use on high-speed engines. This type of indicator was invented by Charles B. Richards, about 1860.

Richard the Second. A historical tragedy, published 1597, by Shakespeare.

Richard the Third. A historical tragedy, published 1597, but probably written 1593, by Shakespeare.

Richard Yea and Nay. Richard I, king of England; — so called because of his readiness to change his plans.

rich′dom (rĭch′dŭm), n. [AS. rīcedōm power. See RICH; -DOM.] Richness; wealth. Obs.

ri′che (rē′chē), n. [AS. rīce; akin to rīce, adj. See RICH.] Authority; rule; reign; realm. Obs.

Riche′bourg′ (rēsh′bōōr′), n. A red Burgundy wine from a vineyard of this name in the Côte-d'Or. It is noted for its delicacy and bouquet.

rich′el bird (rĭch′ĕl). The European little tern. Local, Eng.

ri·chel′lite (rĭ-shĕl′ĭt), n. [From Richelle, Belgium.] Mineral. A hydrous iron fluophosphate in yellow masses.

rich′en (rĭch′ĕn), v. t. & i. To make or become rich or richer. Rare.

rich′es (rĭch′ĕz; -ĭz; 119), n. pl. Orig. a sing. [ME. richesse, fr. OF. richece (F. richesse), fr. riche rich, powerful. See RICH.] That which makes one rich; rich possessions; abundant means; wealth; opulence; also, often, figurative; as, spiritual riches.

What care I in riches to wallow. Burns.
His riches and his cares he did divide. Shelley.

Ant.—Penury, indigence, want, destitution. See POVERTY.

rich′esse, n. [F. See RICHES.] 1. Riches; also, Rare, richness. Archaic.

2. A group or company; — said of martens. Obs.

rich′ling (rĭch′lĭng), n. [rich + 1st -ling.] A rich youth.

rich′ly (-lĭ), adv. 1. In a rich manner.

2. Thoroughly; without a shadow of doubt; as, he richly deserves punishment.

Rich′mond (rĭch′mŭnd), n. [From Richmond, Indiana.] Geol. The uppermost division of the American Ordovician (Lower Silurian). See GEOLOGY, Chart.—Rich′mond, adj.

Rich′mond-e′na (rĭch′mŭn-dē′nȧ), n. [NL., after Charles W. Richmond (b. 1868), Am. ornithologist.] Zool. The genus of Fringillidae consisting of the cardinal birds. Syn. Cardinalis.

rich oil. An absorbent oil rich in gasoline, as that used in the manufacture of natural gasoline; — called also fat oil.

rich rhyme. = RIME RICHE.

rich′ter·ite (rĭk′tĕr-ĭt), n. [After Theodor Richter, Ger. mineralogist.] Mineral. A variety of amphibole containing as bases sodium, magnesium, manganese, potassium, and calcium, but little or no aluminum. It occurs in brown, yellow, or red elongated crystals.

rich tool. = COUNCIL TOOL.

rich′weed′ (rĭch′wēd′), n. a A common annual herb (Pilea pumila) of eastern North America and Japan, with pellucid stems and shining, membranous, 3-nerved leaves. Called also clearweed. b The common ragweed. c The white snakeroot. d The bugbane Cimicifuga racemosa. e The horse balm Collinsonia canadensis.

ri′cin (rī′sĭn; rĭs′ĭn), n. [See RICINUS.] Chem. a A white, amorphous, violently poisonous protein in the castor-oil bean. b Also ricine. Ricinine.

ric′in-el′a·id′ic (rĭs′ĭ-nĕl′ā-ĭd′ĭk), or ric′in-el·a′id-in′ic (-nĕl-ā′ĭ-dĭn′ĭk), ac′id. [*ricin*oleic + elaidic.] Chem. A white crystalline acid isomeric with, and obtained from, ricinoleic acid.

ri·cin′ic ac′id (rĭ-sĭn′ĭk). Chem. a Ricinoleic acid or a polymeric form of it. b A crystalline acid isomeric with ricinoleic acid and obtained from it. c Ricininic acid.

ric′i·nine (rĭs′ĭ-nēn; -nĭn; 157), n. [L. ricinus castor-oil plant.] Also -nin. Chem. A crystalline compound, $C_8H_8N_2O_3$, extracted from castor beans. It is a pyridine derivative.

ric′i·nin′ic ac′id (-nĭn′ĭk). Chem. A crystalline acid, $C_7H_6N_2O_3$, formed by hydrolysis of ricinine.

ri·cin′i·um (rĭ-sĭn′ĭ-ŭm), n. [L.] Rom. Antiq. A short hooded mantle worn esp. by women in mourning and by men in some religious ceremonies.

ric′in·o′le·ate (rĭs′ĭ-nō′lē-āt), n. A salt or ester of ricinoleic acid.

ric′in·o·le′ic (rĭs′ĭ-nō-lē′ĭk; -nō′lē-ĭk), adj. [See RICINUS; -OL.] Chem. Pertaining to or designating an oily unsaturated hydroxy acid, $C_{18}H_{34}O_3$, found in castor oil in the form of its glyceryl ester, ricinolein. It readily polymerizes.

ric′in·o′le·in (-nō′lē-ĭn), n. Chem. Any of the esters of glycerol and ricinoleic acid; specif., glyceryl tri-ricinoleate (triricinolein), $C_3H_5(C_{18}H_{33}O_3)_3$, the chief constituent of castor oil.

Ric′in·u′le·i (rĭs′ĭ-nū′lē-ī), n. pl. [NL., dim. fr. L. ricinus a tick.] Zool. An order of Arachnida comprising a small number of living and fossil forms, having an oval, hard body, bearing a large movable hood that folds down in front over the mouth parts.

Ric′i·nus (rĭs′ĭ-nŭs), n. [L., the castor-oil plant.] Bot. A genus of plants (family Euphorbiaceae) having as the only known species R. communis, the castor-oil plant (which see).

rick (rĭk), n. [ME. reke, fr. AS. hrēac; akin to ON. hraukr, D. rook, to MIr. crūach, and perh. to Skr. kruñcati it curves, moves crookedly, L. crux cross. See CROSS, RIDGE; cf. 2d RUCK.] 1. A stack or pile, as of grain, straw, or hay, in the open air, usually protected from wet with thatching.

2. Logging. A pile of cordwood, stave bolts, or other material split from short logs; a cord eight feet long, four feet high, and of a width equal to the length of one stick.

rick, v. t. To heap up in ricks, as hay, etc.; to pile up.

rick (rĭk), n. & v. t. [Var. of WRICK.] Wrench; twist; sprain. Chiefly Brit.

rick, v. i. [Prob. imitative.] To rattle; chatter; scold. — n. A noise of or like ricking. Both Dial. Eng.

rick (rĭk). Dial. Eng. var. of REEK, smoke.

rick′ard·ite (rĭk′ärd-īt), n. [After T. A. Rickard (b. 1864); Am. mining engineer.] Mineral. A copper telluride, $Cu_4Te.2CuTe$, occurring in deep metallic-purple masses.

rick carrier. A frame or rack on two wheels, for carrying a whole hayrick at one load. Scot.

rick′er (rĭk′ĕr), n. A stout pole for a rick, a spar, etc.; also, a hay shocker.

rick′et·ish (-ĕ-tĭsh; -ĭ-tĭsh), adj. Rather rickety.

rick′ets (-ĕts; -ĭts; 119), n. [Appar. corrupt. of Gr. rhachitis, influenced by rick, wrick, wrench. See RACHITIS.] Med. A disease of infancy or early childhood, characterized by defective nutrition of the entire body and alterations in the growing bones. The essential impairment is faulty ossification due to defective deposit of calcium salts at the growing ends of the bones. Rickets is considered a disease indicating vitamin deficiency, and responds favorably to treatment with sunlight or vitamin D. The main symptoms are restlessness, fever, profuse sweating, and general sensitiveness, associated with characteristic skeletal lesions. The head becomes square and bulky, the sides of the thorax flattened, the sternum projected, and protuberances occur at the epiphyses. Frequently, the spinal column is curved and the long bones are bent. Called also rachitis.

Rick·ett′si·a (rĭk-ĕt′sĭ-ȧ), n. [NL., after H. T. Ricketts (1871–1910), Am. pathologist.] Bacteriol. a A genus of small variable Gram-negative parasitic microorganisms of uncertain biological position. It includes the causative organisms of typhus (R. prowazekii) and of related serious diseases of man, all transmitted by biting arthropods. b [not cap.; pl. -SIAE (-ē).] Any member of this genus or of certain related genera.

Rickettsia bodies. Med. Rickettsiae. See RICKETTSIA.

rick′et·y (rĭk′ĕ-tĭ; -ĭ-tĭ), adj. 1. Affected with rickets.

2. Feeble in the joints; tottering; shaky; weak; as, a rickety old man; a rickety bureau.

Rickety institutions. J. A. Froude.

Syn. — Shaky, unstable, unsound. Ant. — Firm, secure.

rick′ey (rĭk′ĭ), n. [Said to be after a Col. Rickey.] a A drink made by squeezing the juice of a fresh lime into spirituous liquor and carbonated water; — usually preceded by the name of the liquor; as, a gin rickey. b Also, a nonalcoholic carbonated drink containing especially lime juice.

rick′le (rĭk′l), n. Scot., N. of Eng., & Ir. 1. A small rick or stack; a loose heap or pile.

2. A thing or person loosely put together.

rick′le, v. t. & i. To make a rickle (of).

rick′le, n. & v. [See RICK, v. i.] Jingle; rattle. Cf. 4th RICK. Dial. Eng.

rick′ma·tic (-mȧ-tĭk), n. Concern; business; affair. Scot. & Ir.

rick′rack′ (-răk′), n. [Redupl. of rack to stretch.] A kind of openwork edging or insertion made of serpentine braid.

rick′sha, rick′shaw (rĭk′shä; -shô), n. Short for JINRIKISHA; — used by foreigners only. Collog.

rick′stad′dle (-stăd′l), n. A wooden frame to support a rick. Dial. Eng.

rick′stand′ (-stănd′), n. A flooring or frame for a rick.

rick′stick′ (-stĭk′), n. A rod with teeth to comb a thatch. Local, Eng.

rick′yard′ (-yärd′), n. A farmyard or part of one in which ricks are.

ric′o·chet′ (rĭk′ō-shā′ or, esp. Brit., rĭk′ō-shĕt′; 277), n. [F.] 1. A glancing rebound or skipping, as of a projectile along the ground when a gun is fired at a low angle of elevation, or of a flat stone thrown along the surface of water.

2. Music. A bounding staccato; — used as a direction in music for violin, etc.

ric′o·chet′, v.; -CHETED′ (-shād′) or -CHET′TED (-shĕt′ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -CHET′ING (-shā′ĭng) or -CHET′TING (-shĕt′ĭng). Intransitive: 1. To skip with a glancing rebound or series of rebounds, as a projectile. See RICOCHET, n., 1.

2. To move, fly, strike, etc. in the manner of a ricochet.

—, Transitive: To attack by ricochet fire.

ricochet fire. Gun. The fire of smooth-bore cannon throwing spherical projectiles at a low angle of elevation, the trajectory being a series of ricochets, each shorter and more curved than the preceding.

ri′co·let′ta·ite (rē′kō-lĕt′ȧ-īt), n. [From Ricoletta, locality in Tirol.] Petrog. An igneous rock composed of anorthite, some orthoclase, and pyroxene, with accessory biotite, olivine, and magnetite. It is a basic granogabbro.

ric′tal (rĭk′tăl; -t′l), adj. Of or pertaining to the rictus.

ric′tus (-tŭs), n. [L., the aperture of the mouth.] 1. The gape of the mouth of a bird; — often restricted to the corners of the mouth.

2. The mouth opening or orifice; esp., a very wide mouth; also, a gaping or wide-open mouth, as in terror.

3. Anat. A gaping cleft or fissure.

4. Bot. The throat of a personate corolla.

rid (rĭd), v. t.; past tense & past part. RID, RID′DED; pres. part. & verbal n. RID′DING. [ME. ruden, rydden, fr. ON. rythja to clear (land), empty, rid; akin to AS. āryddan to strip, hryding a clearing. In some senses confused with redd to clean.] 1. To free; clear; disencumber; — followed by of; as, to rid one of his fears; esp., to clear (land) of stumps, undergrowth, etc.

Rid all the sea of pirates. Shak.

2. To remove, as from peril; to rescue; deliver; — usually with from or out of. Now Rare.

Rid them out of the hand of the wicked. Ps. lxxxii. 4.

3. To drive away; to remove by effort or violence; to make away with; to destroy. Now Rare.

I will rid evil beasts out of the land. Lev. xxvi. 6.

A very few days' inhabitancy . . . had assured this lady that the page must be ridded. M. Hewlett.

4. To get over; to dispose of; to dispatch. Now Dial.

5. Dial. To tidy; to redd.

— to be, or get, rid of. To be or become free, quit, or delivered from; as, he had at last got rid of his companions; you are well rid of your bargain; to get rid of a cold.

rid ground, or space, or way. To cover ground quickly; to make headway. Obs. "Willingness rids way." Shak.

rid (rĭd), past tense & past part. of RIDE, v. i. Archaic exc. Dial.

He rid to the end of the village, where he alighted. Thackeray.

rid (rĭd). Dial. var. of REDE, to make ready; REDE, to counsel; Scot. & dial. Eng. var. of REDD, spawn.

rid′a·ble (rĭd′ȧ-b′l), adj. Possible or fit to be ridden (as a horse), or ridden over or through (as a road or ford). — rid′a·ble·ness, n. — rid′a·bly, adv.

Ridd, John (rĭd). In Blackmore's romance Lorna Doone, the stalwart farmer who rescues Lorna from the outlaw Doones. He is later knighted and marries Lorna.

rid′dam (rĭd′ŭm), n. [Perh. fr. AS. rēad ōm red rust.] Water reddish with iron; also, scum. Dial. Eng.

rid′dance (rĭd′ăns; 91), n. 1. Act of ridding or freeing; a cleaning up or out.

2. Act or state of getting or being rid of, or free from, something; deliverance; escape; as, a good riddance to bad rubbish; riddance from adversity.

rid′del (rĭd′ĕl), n. [OF ridel (F. rideau).] Eccl. A church curtain; one of the side curtains of the altar.

-rid′den (-rĭd′n). A combining form of the past part. of ride, denoting dominated by, as in:

bedridden	fog-ridden	plague-ridden caste-ridden	hag-ridden	priest-ridden childridden	houseridden	ring-ridden devil-ridden	king-ridden	room-ridden fadridden	pest-ridden	wife-ridden fever-ridden rid′den (rĭd′n), past part. of RIDE.

rid′der (rĭd′ĕr), n. One who or that which rids.

rid′der, n. [AS. hridder.] A sieve, esp. for sifting grain. — v. t. [AS. hridrian.] To sift (grain). Both Obs. exc. Dial.

ridd′er (rĭd′ĕr). Var. of REDDER.

rid′ding (rĭd′ĭng), n. [AS. hryding.] A clearing in the woods. N. of Eng.

rid′dle (rĭd′l), n. [AS. hriddel, fr. hrider; akin to G. reiter, OIr. criathar, L. cribrum, and to Gr. krinein to distinguish, separate, and G. rein clean. Cf. CERTAIN.] 1. A sieve with coarse meshes, usually of wire, for separating coarser materials from finer; specif.: a An apparatus of this kind for sifting grades of potatoes. b An apparatus for sifting coal in a coal mine.

2. A board having a row of pins, set zigzag, between which wire is drawn to straighten it.

3. A case or container with compartments to hold objects; also, a group or set of objects in such container; esp., thirteen bottles (a magnum and twelve quarts) of wine; as, a riddle of claret.

rid′dle (rĭd′l), v.; RID′DLED (-′ld); RID′DLING (-lĭng). Transitive: 1. To separate, as grain from the chaff, with a riddle; to pass through or as through a riddle; to sift; as, to riddle wheat or coal.

2. To perforate so as to make like a riddle; to pierce with many holes; as, a ship riddled with shot.

—, Intransitive: To use a riddle; to sift through; to penetrate.

rid′dle (rĭd′l), n. [For riddels, s being misunderstood as the plural ending; ME. rydel, redels, fr. AS. rēdels, rēdelse; akin to D. raadsel, G. rätsel, and to AS. rēdan to counsel, advise, guess. See READ, v.] 1. A question, proposition, rhyme, or the like, blindly or ambiguously worded so as to provoke conjectural solutions or interpretations; an enigma propounded for solution by guessing, esp. as a form of play; a conundrum.

2. Something or someone that puzzles; an enigmatic or inexplicable person or thing.

'T was a strange riddle of a lady. Butler.

Syn. — See ENIGMA.

rid′dle, v. Transitive: 1. To explain; solve; unriddle.

2. To puzzle; perplex. Scott.

—, Intransitive: To speak in or to propound riddles.

riddle and shears. See SIEVE AND SHEARS.

riddle ballad. A common form of old English ballad in which a character either propounds, or is obliged to solve, a riddle or a series of riddles.

riddle cake or bread. A thick sour cake of oats. N. of Eng.

rid′dle·me·ree′ (rĭd′l-mē-rē′), n. Rigmarole.

rid′dler (rĭd′lĕr), n. One who sifts with a riddle.

rid′dler (rĭd′lĕr), n. One who propounds, or speaks in, riddles.

rid′dling (-lĭng), adj. 1. Speaking in a riddle or riddles; expressed enigmatically.

2. Containing a riddle; enigmatic; puzzling.

3. Solving or guessing a riddle; divining. Rare.

—rid′dling·ly, adv.

rid′dlings (-lĭngz), n. pl. Coarse material left in a riddle after shaking; siftings.

Ri·char′di·a (rĭ-chär′dĭ-ȧ), n. [NL., after Louis C. M. Richard (1754–1821), French botanist.] a Syn. of ZANTEDESCHIA. b Syn. of RICHARDSONIA.

Rich′ard·son ef·fect′ (rĭch′ĕrd-sŭn; -s′n). [After Owen W. Richardson (b. 1879), Eng. physicist.] Physics. = THERMIONIC EMISSION.

riche. ✝ RICH.

rich′man, n.; pl. -MEN. A man of wealth. Obs.

rich′ness, n. See -NESS.

richt (rĭkt). Scot. var. of RIGHT.

ric′in·ol′ic (rĭs′ĭ-n ŏl′ĭk), adj. Chem. = RICINOLEIC. [TOR OIL.

ric′i·nus oil (rĭs′ĭ-nŭs). = CAS-rick′-bar′ton, n. Also rick′-bur′ton. = RICKYARD.

rick′et·i·ly, adv. of RICKETY.

rick′et·i·ness, n. See -NESS.

‖ric′tus pal′pe·bra′rum. [L.] = PALPEBRAL FISSURE.

ride (rīd), v.; past tense RODE (rōd), Archaic RID (rĭd); past part. RID'DEN (rĭd'n), Archaic RID, RODE; pres. part. & v. n. RID'ING (rīd'ĭng). [AS. rīdan, akin to LG. riden, G. reiten, OHG. rītan, ON. ritha, OIr. riadaim I ride, travel. See RILL, RISE, ROAM, RUN; cf. ROAD a way; READY.] Intransitive: 1. To be carried on the back of an animal, esp. on a horse which one manages.

Tomorrow, when ye riden by the way. Chaucer.

2. To move or be borne or placed as if on a horse or in a vehicle; as, the moon riding in the sky. Specif.: a To be borne on or in a fluid; to float; of a vessel, to be floating held by a cable to an anchor or mooring. When more than one anchor or mooring is used the vessel is said to ride to that one on which at the moment the principal strain is. b To overlap or lie over, as two leads or rules in printed matter, or two colors that should just border on each other. c To seem to float in air or space.

When the sun with Taurus rides. Milton.

3. Archaic. a To be a rider in warfare, raiding, etc. b To mount in copulation.

4. To be borne in or on a vehicle; as, to ride in a carriage, a balloon, on a motorcycle, a litter, a sled, men's shoulders, or the like. See the Synonymy (below).

5. To be supported in motion; to be borne along; as, he rode on the wave of popularity; anger rode on his brow.

6. To support and carry one, as a horse or vehicle; as, a horse rides slow or fast; a carriage rides easy or hard.

7. To be supported at rest or in motion by an axle, pivot, or the like. "If life did ride upon a dial's point." Shak.

8. To serve as cavalryman. Eng.

9. = ride up (which see, below).

10. To take its course or continue without interference; as, let it ride. Slang, U. S.

——, Transitive: 1. To sit on and control so as to be carried ahead or along; hence, to be carried along by, as if controlling; as, to ride a horse; to ride a bicycle; to ride the waves.

2. To perform, carry through, or proceed over, while or by being mounted on a horse; as, to ride a race; to traverse or cover on or as if on horseback; as, to ride one's rounds.

3. To endure or survive, as a storm, a trial, etc.; to last; to get to the end of in safety; — often with out.

4. To control or manage, esp. autocratically; to domineer over; — often used in the past participle in composition; as, superstition-ridden peoples; bed*ridden*.

The nobility could no longer endure to be ridden by bakers, cobblers, and brewers. Swift.

5. a To mount oneself upon (a person or thing) as on a horse; to use as a horse; as, to ride a broomstick; also, to display while mounted on horseback; as, to ride a good seat. b To mount in copulation; — of animals.

6. To convey or transport in a vehicle; to drive. Now Rare, U. S.

7. To carry in a position resembling that of one riding a horse; as, the men rode their hero on their shoulders; to ride an obnoxious person on a rail. Colloq.

8. To harass by criticism, ridicule, etc.; hence, to criticize harshly; to score; to mistreat, annoy, or tyrannize over, esp. for a considerable period of time. Colloq.

9. To push or drive ahead; to transport.

The taste of the land rolling, billowing, and riding him along like a petal upon its current. Fannie Hurst.

10. Horse Racing. To urge (a horse) unduly.

11. Lumbering. To manipulate a log drive while being floated with it.

12. Surg. To overlap (each other); — said of bones or fractured fragments.

☞ For various phrases not entered below, see under the noun.

Syn. — RIDE, DRIVE. In both transitive and intransitive use, RIDE indicates the directing or controlling of an animal or vehicle on which one is mounted, drive indicates the operation of a vehicle in which one goes or control of an animal drawing it; as, to ride, or ride on, a horse, camel, bicycle, or motorcycle; to drive, or drive in, an automobile or a carriage. In intransitive use, a further distinction is often made, drive being used of movement in a vehicle in the directing of which one has a part, ride of movement in a vehicle, esp. a public conveyance traveling over a set route, in the directing of which one has no part; as, to drive with a friend in his automobile; to drive to the station in a taxi; to ride as a passenger in a bus; to ride in a motorcycle sidecar; cf., however, to go riding in a friend's car.

ride a hobby. To follow assiduously some favorite subject of talk, interest, or effort. See 3d HOBBY, 2.

ride and tie. To take turns with a fellow traveler in riding and walking when there is only one horse for both, by the once well-known expedient of alternately riding for a certain distance and then tying the horse and walking on till overtaken by the other on the horse; hence, figuratively, to take turns with another in labor and rest.

ride aportoise or aportlast. Naut. To ride at anchor with the lower yards aportoise. Obs.

ride at anchor. To move, as an anchored ship, within limits and in safety; to be quietly secure.

ride at the ring. See under 1st RING.

ride down. a To ride over; to overthrow or trample in riding; as, to ride down an enemy. b Naut. To bear down on, as a halyard when hoisting a sail; sometimes, to grasp (a halyard or other hoisting rope) aloft and let the weight of the body bring it down to the deck, as is done often on yachts in hoisting sail. c To come down (a stay, balusters, etc.) astride.

ride easy. Naut. To lie at anchor without violent pitching or straining at the cables; — said of a ship.

ride for a fall. To ride in such fashion as to invite a fall; hence, to court danger recklessly or intentionally.

ride hard. Naut. To pitch violently at anchor; — said of a ship. Obs.

ride herd. To act as a mounted cattle herdsman skilled in confining a drove to a particular place and keeping off wild animals; hence, to keep guard over. Western U. S.

ride off. In polo, to ride alongside (an opponent) and push him away from the line of the ball, so as to prevent his hitting it.

ride out. a Obs. To go upon a military expedition. b Colloq. To ride in the open air. c Naut. To keep safe afloat during (a storm), esp. while riding at anchor or when hove to; as, to ride out the gale. d = RIDE OFF, above.

ride over. To domineer over; to treat overbearingly; to override; as, to ride over all protests.

Thou hast caused men to ride over our heads. Ps. lxvi. 12.

ride post. To go by rapid stages; to go speedily.

ride roughshod. To pursue a course regardless of the pain, loss, or distress it may cause others; — usually with over.

ride rusty. See 2d RUSTY, 2.

ride shanks' mare. To walk. Slang.

ride skimmington. To hold a skimmington.

ride the goat. To be initiated into a secret society; — from the idea that a goat is sometimes used in the proceedings. Colloq.

ride the line. In cattle herding, to ride around the edges of the herd to round up strays.

ride the marches. To undertake, or journey in, a riding (sense b). ride the wild mare. To play at seesaw. Obs.

ride to hog or pig. To hunt the boar.

ride to hounds. To ride behind the hounds in fox hunting.

ride up. To work up out of place; — said of a coat collar, a tie, etc. Colloq.

ride (rīd), n. 1. Act or fact of riding; esp., an excursion or journey on the back of an animal, or in or on any vehicle or conveyance, as on a railroad train or steamboat.

2. A riding horse; a mount. Colloq.

3. A road for riding; esp., a forest road.

4. The side of a log on which it rests when being dragged.

5. A carrousel, roller coaster, or the like. Colloq.

6. Forestry. An opened division line between compartments. Eng.

ri·deau' (rē·dō'), n. [F., lit., curtain.] A small ridge or mound of earth; ground slightly elevated; sometimes, Fort., an artificial ridge of earth thrown up to protect a camp.

rid'en. Past tense pl., and past part. of RIDE. Obs.

ri'dent (rī'dĕnt), adj. [L. ridens, pres. part. of ridere to laugh.] Laughing or broadly smiling; riant. Rare.

rid'er (rīd'ĕr), n. [AS. rīdere.] 1. One who rides; esp., one who rides on horseback; specif.: a Obs. A knight. b Archaic. A mounted highwayman, freebooter, or mosstrooper. c One who breaks or trains horses; — now chiefly in roughrider. d A circus performer who rides horses. e A mounted agent employed on a plantation.

2. [D. rijder.] A Dutch ryder; also, a Scotch gold coin of similar design, issued by James III and his successor.

3. An addition or amendment to a manuscript or other document, often attached on a separate piece of paper; an allonge; in a broad sense, anything added as an extra to a seemingly completed statement, act, or the like. Specif., in legislative practice, an additional clause, relating to a matter entirely distinct from that of the bill itself, annexed to a bill while in course of passage. Riders are usually attached to appropriation bills, and in the federal government, because of constitutional restriction, cannot be vetoed by the president separately.

4. Something used to overlie or cover another, as an upper tier of casks, a turn of a rope, or a tree placed on a wall.

5. Specif.: a A rail laid in the forks of the cross stakes at the corner of a worm fence. b A small adjusting weight on the beam of a balance, and movable along the beam like the weight on a steelyard. c A pipe above and parallel to a main pipe into which, for any reason, part of the flow is diverted over a considerable distance and from which the flow is redirected into the main.

6. An agent who goes out with samples of goods to obtain orders; a commercial traveler. Now Rare. Eng.

7. Building. An inclined support connecting a point in a shore to a point in the wall above.

8. Geom. A supplementary exercise on a more general proposition, as of Euclid's elements.

9. Insurance. = ENDORSEMENT, n., 4.

10. Med. An object bestriding the angular wall formed by the bifurcation of a tube.

11. Mil. A piece supporting the sidepieces in some artillery carriages. Now Rare.

12. Mining. a A thin parallel coal seam or mineral vein overlying a larger seam or vein. b The country rock between them. c Rare. A body of barren or country rock occurring as a horse within a vein. d A bogier.

13. Printing. In some machines, any of several rollers used with an endways reciprocating motion to equalize the ink coating on the inking and distributing rollers.

14. Railroads. One who rides on a freight car which is being switched over the hump of a classification yard in order to set the brakes and stop the car at the proper point. Cf. HUMP, n., 6.

15. Shipbuilding. a An extra rib timber set in between the frames of a wooden ship. b Also diagonal rider. A diagonal iron brace secured to the outside of the frames to prevent hogging.

rid'ered (rīd'ĕrd), adj. Carrying a rider or riders; of a fence, having riders across the stakes. U. S.

rider embolus. Med. An embolus bestriding the bifurcation of an artery.

Rid'er·hood, Roger or "Rogue." In Dickens's novel Our Mutual Friend, an evil waterside man who blackmails Bradley Headstone and is ultimately drowned by him.

Pleasant Riderhood, his daughter, who marries Mr. Venus.

rider keelson. Shipbuilding. A line of timber or plates bolted on top of the keelson.

rid'er's bone (rīd'ĕrz). Med. A bony deposit in the muscles of the upper and inner part of the thigh, due to the pressure and chronic irritation caused by the saddle in riding.

ridge (rĭj), n. [ME. rigge, fr. AS. hrycg; akin to D. rug, G. racken, OHG. rucki, hrukki, ON. hryggr, and to E. RICK. Cf. 3d RIG.] 1. The back, now the top of the back, of an animal; esp., the projecting part of the back along the line of the backbone of a quadruped.

2. A range of hills or mountains, or the upper part of such a range; any extended elevation between valleys.

The frozen ridges of the Alps. Shak.

3. The top or upper part, esp. one that is long and narrow; crest.

4. A bristling line of weapons; as, a ridge of spears; embattled front. "The ridges of grim war." Milton.

5. A raised line or strip, as of ground thrown up by a plow or left between furrows or ditches, or as on the surface of metal, cloth, or bone, etc.

6. Arch. a The intersection of two surfaces forming a salient angle, esp. the angle at the top between the opposite slopes or sides of a roof or a vault. b A shingle, tile, or slate, adjacent to the ridge of a roof.

7. Bookbinding. One of the two long edges of the back of a book formed by the rounded folds of several sections.

8. Fort. The highest portion of the glacis.

9. Meteorol. A wedgelike extension of a high-pressure area.

10. Whaling. The upper part of the narrow posterior end of the body of a whale.

ridge (rĭj), v.; pp. RIDGED (rĭjd); RIDG'ING (rĭj'ĭng). Transitive: 1. To form into a ridge or ridges; to furnish or mark with ridges.

2. Agric. a To rafter. b To throw (soil) toward a crop row from both sides; as, to ridge corn; to inthrow.

——, Intransitive: To form into, or become marked with, ridges; to extend in ridges; as, the land ridges northward; the sea ridges under the wind.

ridge (rĭj), n. Gold. Old Slang.

ridge'band' (rĭj'bănd'), n. The part of a harness which passes over the saddle, and supports the shafts of a cart.

ridge beam. A ridgepole. ridge beech. The common beech (Fagus grandifolia) of North America. Ark.

ridge'bone' (rĭj'bōn'), n. [AS. hrycgbān.] The backbone. Archaic.

ridge buster. Agric. Mach. A sled-type cultivator equipped at the rear with edged disk cultivating tools for tearing down ridges and leveling the soil.

ridged (rĭjd), adj. Having a ridge or ridges; ridgy.

ridge fillet. a Arch. A ridge between flutes of a column, or other depressions. b Founding. A main runner.

ridge harrow. Agric. Mach. A harrow hinged longitudinally so as to run partly on the side of a ridge. Cf. SADDLEBACK.

ridge hickory. = BIG SHELLBARK. Mo.

ridge'ling (rĭj'lĭng), n. Also ridg'ling. [E. dial. also ridgel, riggilt, riggot, appar. fr. the word for back, one testicle being supposed to be still in the animal's back (see RIDGE); cf. G. dial. rigel, rig, a barrow hog, rigler a cock half castrated.] a A half-castrated male animal, esp. a horse. b A cryptorchid.

ridge myrtle. An Australian timber tree (Melaleuca genistifolia) with hard, heavy wood; — called also ironwood.

ridge oak. a Ky. The blackjack Quercus marilandica. b Ky. The post oak (Quercus stellata).

ridge pine. In North Carolina, either of two common pine trees: a The pitch pine Pinus rigida. b The tablemountain pine (P. pungens).

ridge plow. Agric. Mach. = 1st LISTER, 2.

ridge'pole' (rĭj'pōl'), n. 1. Arch. The highest horizontal timber in a roof, receiving the upper ends of the rafters. See ROOF.

2. Hence, in a tent, the horizontal pole at the top.

ridge'poled' (-pōld'), adj. Having a ridgepole.

ridg'er (rĭj'ĕr), n. 1. One that ridges. Specif.: Agric. Mach. a = 1st LISTER, 2. b = LISTER CULTIVATOR. See CULTIVATOR, 2. c An implement for making levees in the check system of irrigation. It is composed of two boards set on edge and fastened together at an angle.

2. Harness. A ridgeband.

ridge'rope' (rĭj'rōp'), n. 1. Naut. a Rare. A life line; esp., one of those running alongside the bowsprit. b Rare. The backbone of an awning. c A rope at either side of the deck to which the side of an awning is hauled out.

2. Harness. A ridgeband.

ridge stone. a A stone for the edge or margin of a well or shaft. b A stone, as a coping stone, for the ridge of a building.

ridge strut. = RIDGEPOLE, 1.

ridge tile. A tile of bent or curved section and often of a decorative character, used in covering the ridge of a roof.

ridge'way' (rĭj'wā'), n. A road following a ridge of a hill or of a range of hills.

On road and on ridgeway, on sea and on land. Synge.

ridg'ing (rĭj'ĭng), n. 1. Material for making or covering the ridges of roofs.

2. Act or process of throwing soil toward a crop row from both sides; as, the ridging of corn.

ridging grass. A coarse tropical American grass (Andropogon bicornis).

ridging plow. Agric. Mach. = 1st LISTER, 2.

Ridg'way col'or sys'tem (rĭj'wā). Colorimetry. A system of color specification presented by R. Ridgway, based upon expression in terms of thirty-six saturated colors having hues separated by equal visual intervals, and of three tints and three shades of each of these.

ridg'y (rĭj'ĭ), adj.; RIDG'I·ER (-ĭ·ĕr); RIDG'I·EST. Having a ridge or ridges; rising in a ridge.

ri'di·bund (rĭd'ĭ·bŭnd), adj. [L. ridibundus laughing, fr. ridere to laugh.] Prone to laughter.

ri'di·cule (rĭd'ĭ·kūl), n. [F., adj. & n., fr. L. ridiculus ridiculous, neut. ridiculum a jest. See RIDICULOUS.] 1. The act or practice of exciting laughter at a person or thing by means of jesting words, caricature, mocking, etc.; remarks, etc. intended to show one in an amusing or absurd light; slightly contemptuous banter; as, an object of ridicule; to suffer from ridicule; cutting ridicule.

2. a Now Rare. Something provocative of sport or laughter; an absurd habit, act, mannerism, etc. b A laughing matter; of persons, a laughingstock; a butt; — now chiefly in phrase, to turn to (or into) ridicule; as, to turn Prohibition to ridicule.

3. Now Rare. a Quality of being ridiculous; ridiculousness. b An instance of ridiculing.

Syn. — Derision, raillery, burlesque, mockery, irony, satire, sarcasm, gibe, jeer, sneer.

Ant. — Sympathy, understanding; praise, commendation.

ri'di·cule (rĭd'ĭ·kūl), v. t.; -CULED (-kūld); -CUL'ING (-kūl'ĭng). To treat with ridicule; to laugh at mockingly or disparagingly; to awaken ridicule toward or respecting; to make ridiculous.

I've known the young, who ridiculed his rage. Goldsmith.

Syn. — RIDICULE, DERIDE, MOCK, TAUNT, TWIT, QUIZ, CHAFF. RIDICULE may or may not involve unkindness or malice; DERIDE implies a bitter or contemptuous spirit; MOCK suggests open and scornful derision; as, "They have both been ridiculed, and the wits have had their laugh" (Cowper); "All fools have still an itching to deride, and fain would be upon the laughing side" (Pope); "They laughed them to scorn and mocked them" (2 Chron. xxx. 10). To TAUNT is to mock with keen reproach; to TWIT is tauntingly to cast something up to someone; as, "To taunting ever prone . . . [she] gave full vent to many a scornful jest" (Hoole); "I was twitted . . . unmercifully with my mealy complexion" (J. A. Symonds). QUIZ and (colloq.) CHAFF imply good-natured mockery or banter; as, "He [Chaucer] quizzes in the rime of Sir Thopas the wearisome idleness of the French romance" (J. R. Green); "Morgan saw that his master was chaffing him" (Thackeray). Cf. SCOFF, IRONY, SARCASTIC.

Ant. — Praise, laud, compliment.

ri'di·cule (dial. rĭd'ĭ·k'l), n. [F.] A reticule. Obs. exc. Dial.

ri'di·cul'er (rĭd'ĭ·kūl'ĕr), n. One who ridicules.

ri·dic'u·los'i·ty (rĭ·dĭk'ū·lŏs'ĭ·tĭ), n. Quality or state of being ridiculous; ridiculousness; also, something ridiculous.

ride'a·ble, adj. Var. of RIDABLE.

rid'el, n. [OF. (F. rideau.)] Archaic var. of RIDDEL.

rid'er·ess, n. Fem. of RIDER.

rid'er·less, adj. See -LESS.

ridge'board', n. = RIDGEPOLE, 1.

ridg'el, ridg'il (rĭj'ĭl; -ĭl), n. = RIDGELING. Now Dial.

ridge'let, n. Dim. of RIDGE.

ridge'like', adj. See -LIKE.

ridge'piece', ridge'plate', n. = RIDGEPOLE, 1.

ridge'-seed'ed, adj. See -SEEDED.

ridge'tree', n. = RIDGEPOLE, 1.

ridge'wise', adv. See -WISE.

ridg'il. Var. of RIDGELING.

ridg'ing-ly, adv. of ridging, pres. part. of RIDGE.

rid'i·bun'dal, adj. Ridibund. Obs.

rid'i·cule-proof' (66). See -PROOF.

ri·dic'u·lize, v. t. [F. ridiculiser.] To render ridiculous; to ridicule. Obs.

ri·dic'u·lous (rĭ·dĭk'ū·lŭs), adj. [L. ridiculosus, ridiculus, fr. ridere to laugh; akin to Skr. vrīḍate he is ashamed. Cf. DERIDE, RIANT, RISIBLE.] 1. Fitted to excite ridicule; unworthy of serious consideration; highly absurd or amusing; as, a ridiculous dress or behavior; a ridiculous attempt.
2. Ridiculing; expressing ridicule. Rare.
[It] provokes me to ridiculous smiling. Shak.
3. Outrageous; preposterous; sometimes, Dial., indecent.
Syn. — Ludicrous; preposterous, absurd. See LAUGHABLE.
Ant. — Serious, sensible; commendable.
— ri·dic'u·lous·ly, adv. — ri·dic'u·lous·ness, n.

rid'ing (rīd'ĭng), n. [For thriding, the initial th having been lost because of preceding North, fr. ON. thrithjungr the third part, fr. thrithi third. See THIRD.] One of the three administrative jurisdictions, each formerly under the government of a reeve, into which the county of York, in England, is divided. They are called the North, the East, and the West, Riding. Hence, any similar division of any other county of the United Kingdom or its colonies. In Lincolnshire there is a similar division into three parts, but they are no longer designated by the term riding. Hence, one of the divisions into which the English colony of Pennsylvania was first divided, or into which Long Island (called Yorkshire) was for a time divided after the English conquest of New York. In New Zealand, the term riding is used for any one of the subdivisions (not exceeding twelve) into which each county is subdivided.

rid'ing (rīd'ĭng), pres. part. & verbal n. of RIDE. Hence: n. 1. a Obs. Act or state of one who rides. b Hist. Also riding the marches. The act or process of maintaining or reviving knowledge of boundaries by riding around the boundary lines, or marches; by extension, the procession of riders engaged in this work. c Obs. exc. Hist. A professional pageant. d An overlapping.
2. A road, avenue, or narrow clearing, cut in a wood, or through grounds, esp. as a place for riding.
3. Naut. Anchorage.

rid'ing (rīd'ĭng), adj. 1. Employed to travel; traveling. "One riding apparitor." Ayliffe.
2. Lying or superimposed as a burden upon; as, riding interests, Scots Law, creditor interests resting upon the shares of claimants in multiplepoinding, etc.
3. [From RIDING, n.] a Used for riding on; as, a riding horse. b Used for riding, or when riding; devoted to riding; as, a riding whip; a riding academy; a riding day. c Agric. Mach. Pertaining to a power-drawn implement operated by a rider; as, a riding cultivator.

rid'ing (dial. rĭd'ĭn). Var. of RIDDING.

rid'ing bitts (rīd'ĭng). Naut. Massive bitts around which the anchor cables are turned when a vessel is riding to anchor.

riding boot. = 2d TOP BOOT.

riding buckler. Naut. A buckler with a hole for the passage of a cable.

riding clerk. a Obs. Eng. A clerk who traveled for a commercial house. b One of the "six clerks" formerly attached to the English Court of Chancery, who were superseded by the clerks of records and writs.

riding habit. A lady's costume for horseback riding; specif., such a costume consisting of a jacket and divided skirt.

riding hood. An enveloping hood or hooded cloak, worn by women or children when traveling or in inclement weather.

riding interests. See RIDING, adj., 2.

riding knot. A slipknot. See 2d KNOT, Table. Obs.

riding light. Naut. A white light, visible all around the horizon, shown by vessels at anchor.

rid'ing·man' (rīd'ĭng·măn'), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn'). Feud. Law. A man bound to do service on horseback.

riding master. An instructor in horsemanship.

riding rhyme. Pros. The rhymed couplet in iambic pentameter verse used by Chaucer, Lydgate, etc.; an early form of heroic couplet; — possibly so called from the mounted pilgrims of Chaucer's Canterbury Tales.

riding sail. Naut. a A triangular sail sometimes set, usually on the after mast, to keep a vessel head to wind when riding at anchor. b Colloq., U. S. The main trysail of a fishing schooner.

ri·dot'to (rĭ·dŏt'ō), n.; pl. -DOTTOS (-ōz). [It., festival, resort, redoubt, retreat. See REDOUBT, n.] 1. A public entertainment, consisting of music and dancing, often in masquerade, introduced from Italy and very popular in England in the 18th century.
2. Music. An arrangement or abridgment of a piece from the full score.

ri·dot'to (rĭ·dŏt'ō), v. i. To hold ridottos; to dance at or as at a ridotto. Rare.

rie'beck·ite (rē'bĕk·īt), n. [After E. Riebeck, Ger. mineralogist.] Mineral. A black mineral, a monoclinic amphibole, corresponding to aegirite among the pyroxenes. It contains much iron and sodium.

Rieck'e's prin'ci·ple (rĕk'ĕz). [After Eduard Riecke (1841–1915), Ger. physicist.] The principle that in a saturated solution, pressure increases the solubility of a crystal in the direction of pressure and decreases it at right angles to this direction.

Rie'del's lobe (rē'dĕlz). [After B. M. C. L. Riedel (1846–1916), Ger. surgeon.] Anat. A wide, tongueline process of the liver, descending from the lower margin, lateral to the gall bladder.

Rief'ler clock (rēf'lĕr). [After S. Riefler (1847–1912), Ger. engineer.] A high-precision standard clock having a pin escapement and a mercurial pendulum. See PENDULUM, 1.

Riefler free pendulum. See PENDULUM, 1.

rie grass (rī). a Meadow barley. b = RYE GRASS a.

riem (rēm), n. Also riem'pie (rēm'pĭ). [D. riem, riempje.] A pliable strip of oxhide, used for twisting into ropes, etc.; a thong; a strap. S. Africa.

Rie'mann–Chris·tof'fel cur'va·ture ten'sor (rē'mänkrĭs·tôf'ĕl). [After G. F. B. Riemann, Ger. mathematician, and E. B. Christoffel (1829–90), Swiss mathematician.] Math. A covariant tensor of rank four whose value at any point of an elliptic (or Riemannian) space, measures the deviation of the space from flatness. When the tensor is zero at every point the space is flat or Euclidean. See CHRISTOFFEL SYMBOLS; SPACE CURVATURE.

Riemann–Christoffel three-index symbols. Three-index Christoffel symbols. See CHRISTOFFEL SYMBOLS.

Rie·man'ni·an, Rie·man'ne·an (rē·män'ĭ·ăn, -ē·ăn), adj. Relating to, or discovered by, the German mathematician G. F. Bernhard Riemann (1826–66); as, Riemannian geometry.

Riemannian co-ordinates. See CO-ORDINATE, n., 2.

Riemannian geometry. Math. a Geometry of elliptic, or Riemannian, space. See ELLIPTIC GEOMETRY, ELLIPTIC SPACE. b Any metrical geometry in which the element ds of arc length is furnished by the equation $ds^2 = \Sigma_{r,s}\, g_{rs}\, dx^r\, dx^s$ where the coefficients g_{rs} are functions of the co-ordinates $(x^1, \ldots x^n)$ of a point of the (n-dimensional) space.

Riemannian measure of curvature. Math. The inverse square $\left(\frac{1}{k^2}\right)$ of a certain constant (k) characterizing by its value (as positive, negative, or infinite) the three space forms (elliptic, or Riemannian; hyperbolic, or Lobachevskian; parabolic, or Euclidean) and such that when the sides of a triangle are divided by this constant there results a system of equations between the sines and cosines of the so-divided sides and of the angles, analogous to the formulas of spherical trigonometry.

Riemannian space. = ELLIPTIC SPACE a.

Rie'mann's, or Rie'mann, surface (rē'mänz, -män). Theory of Functions. A surface imagined by Riemann for the uniform representation of a function defined by an algebraic equation. If the algebraic function has n branches, the corresponding Riemann's surface consists of n planes superposed on one another and infinitely near together. These planes are connected by cross lines or bridges, called branch cuts, joining in pairs the branch points of the function.

Rie'mann trans'for·ma'tion (rē'män). Math. A transformation that is birational not for the whole plane, but only for a curve and one of its transforms, between the points of which there is a one-to-one correspondence.

Ri·en'zi (rē·ĕn'zē), n. 1. The title and hero of a historical novel (1835) by Bulwer-Lytton. See Rienzi in BIOG.
2. An opera (1842) by Wagner, founded upon the novel.

rier (rēr), n. [Cf. REAR, n. & adj.] Whaling. A small oil cask of about ten gallons, stowed at the ends of tiers.

Ries'ling (rēs'lĭng), n. [G.] A kind of white grape and also of white wine. See RHINE WINE.

‖ri·fa'ci·men'to (rē·fä'chē·mĕn'tō), n.; pl. -TI (-tē). [It.] A remaking or recasting; an adaptation, esp. of a literary work or musical composition.

rife (rīf), adj.; RIF'ER (rīf'ĕr); RIF'EST. [AS. rīfe; akin to ON. rīfr, MLG. rīve.] 1. Prevalent; existing generally; as, diseases of the eyes are rife among Egyptian peasants; current; commonly received; as, rumors of a disaster were rife.
2. Abounding; replete; — usually with with; as, the air is rife with rumors; also, having an abundance; — with in or of; as, rife in miracles.
3. Numerous; abundant; plentiful; as, reports are rife.
4. Obs. a Customary; usual; also, plain; manifest; clear. b Now Scot. & Dial. Eng. Ready; inclined; as, rife to quarrel. c Possible; easy. d Famed.
Syn. — See PREVAILING.
— rife'ly, adv. — rife'ness, n.

rife (rīf), adv. 1. Plentifully; abundantly.
2. Obs. a Numerously. b Quickly.

riff (rĭf), n. [AS. hrif. See MIDRIFF.] The midriff; the diaphragm. Obs.

riff, n. A riffle; ripple. Local, U. S.

Riff (rĭf), n. A Berber of Er Rif, or hilly coastal region of Morocco. See BERBER. Cf. KABYLE. — Riff'i·an (rĭf'ĭ·ăn; 159), n. & adj.

riff (rĭf). Dial. Eng. var. of REEF, itch.

rif'fle (rĭf'l), n. [Cf. RIPPLE.] 1. A shallow, extending across the bed of a river, over which the water flows swiftly; also, the water flowing over it; a rapid. U. S.
2. A mode of shuffling cards. Cf. RIFFLE, v.

rif'fle, v. t. & i. 1. To form or flow over a riffle.
2. To handle hesitatingly; to rattle lightly.
3. To shuffle, as pages of a book or newspaper.
4. To shuffle (cards) by slightly elevating the corners to let each part of the pack fall card by card into the other part, and then pushing them all together.
5. To plow lightly. Local, Eng.

rif'fle (rĭf'l), n. [Cf. G. riffeln, riefeln, to groove, F. riffler, rifler, to scratch, rifle, all fr. LG. See 1st & 3d RIFLE.] 1. Gold Mining. a Any of various contrivances (as blocks, rails, poles, iron bars, often with sacking, matting, hides with the hair up, etc.) laid on the bottom of a sluice or launder to make a series of grooves or interstices to catch and retain a mineral, as gold; also, sometimes, a groove or interstice so formed. Mercury is sometimes put in the grooves to assist in the process. b A bar or cleat in a riffle (as above), or in a table, cradle, or similar gold-washing apparatus.
2. Ore Dressing. A cleat or bar fastened to the deck of a Wilfley table, or similar concentrating device, to catch and hold mineral grains; also, the groove or interstice formed by two parallel cleats as above.
3. Ore Sampling. A device for dividing ground ore or other material into two equal parts. It usually consists of an even number of narrow sloping chutes of equal width, adjacent chutes discharging in opposite directions. It is also made as a series of parallel troughs separated by gaps of the same width as the troughs. Cf. SPLIT SHOVEL.
4. A transverse board in a fishway to check the flow of the current and afford a resting pool for ascending fish.
5. Seal Engraving. An iron polishing disk with a handle.

rif'fle. Var. of RIFLE.

riffle bar. Mining. = 3d RIFFLE, 1 b.

riffle block. Mining. See 3d RIFFLE, 1 a.

riffle file. A riffler. — rif'fle–file', v. t.

rif'fler (rĭf'lĕr), n. [F. rifloir. See 1st & 3d RIFLE.] A curved file or rasp used for working in depressions; also, one who uses this file.

One form of Riffler.

rif'fler, n. [From 2d RIFFLE.] Paper Mfg. A trough containing upright partitions which slow the flow of pulp and permit heavy, irregular particles to drop out.

riff'raff' (rĭf'räf'), n. [Taken as a redupl., but orig. fr. ME. rif and raf every scrap, fr. OF. rif et raf, rifle et rafle. See 1st RIFLE; 1st RAFF, RAFFLE.] Literally, every bit or particle; hence: a Sweepings; refuse; rubbish. b The rabble; the mob.

riff'raff', adj. Of or pert. to the rabble; hence, of no worth; mean; trashy.

Rifi, Rif'fi (rĭf'ĭ), n. pl. The Riffs. — Rif'i·an (rĭf'ĭ·ăn; 159), n. & adj.

ri'fle (rī'f'l), v.; -FLED (-f'ld); -FLING (-flĭng). [OF. rifler to rifle, plunder, sweep away (F., to plane, file), of Teut. origin; cf. obs. D. rijffelen to seize, plunder, rub, scrape, scratch, D. rijfelen to play at dice, EFris. riffel furrow, groove, rīven to tear, rub. See RIVE; cf. RIFFRAFF, RIFLE, n.] Transitive: 1. To ransack and rob or plunder; to pillage thoroughly; to despoil completely.
2. To steal and carry away, esp. by force; to snatch away; to carry off.
Till time shall rifle every youthful grace. Pope.
3. To penetrate violently, so as to break or rupture. Now Rare.
—, Intransitive: To engage in ransacking and pillaging.

ri'fle (rī'f'l), v. t. & i. To raffle; to gamble or gamble away.

ri'fle (rī'f'l), v. [F. rifler to file, scrape. See 1st RIFLE; cf. 3d RIFFLE.] Transitive: 1. To groove internally with spiral channels; as, to rifle a gun barrel or a cannon or its bore.
2. To discharge a rifle at.
3. To whet with a rifle (sense 3 a).
—, Intransitive: To use or discharge a rifle.

ri'fle (rī'f'l), n. [For rifled gun. See RIFLE to groove.]
1. A firearm, of whatever size, having upon the surface of its bore spiral grooves, called rifling, to impart rotary motion to the projectile, insuring greater accuracy or fire. Specif.: a In popular use, such a firearm fired from the shoulder, in distinction from artillery and from pistols or revolvers, as well as from smoothbore shotguns. b In military use, such a firearm fired from the shoulder and distinguished from a carbine by greater length and weight and by provision for a bayonet. It is the successor of the musket as a military arm. All modern firearms using single projectiles are rifled, varying in the pitch of the spiral, the relative width of grooves and lands, etc. See ENFIELD RIFLE c. c Obs. One of the grooves forming the rifling of a gun.

A U. S. Rifle, model 1903 [cal. .30]. B Section showing Action of the same. 1 Cocking Piece; 2 Firing Pin; 3 Mainspring; 4 Bolt; 5 Striker; 6 Cartridge in firing position; 7 Leaf; 8, 9 Guard Screws; 9 Sear; 10 Trigger; 11 Guard; 12 Sear Spring; 13 Magazine Spring; 14 Follower.

2. pl. Mil. A body of soldiers armed with rifles.
3. [Norm. F. See 1st & 3d RIFLE.] a A strip of wood covered with emery or similar material, used for sharpening scythes. b A bent stick fastened at the butt of a scythe, and serving to lay the mowed grain in rows.
4. A color, yellow-green in hue, of very low saturation (almost a neutral gray) and low brilliance. It is of higher saturation than iron gray. Cf. COLOR.

ri'fle, adj. Pertaining to, using, or for use with, rifles.

rifle bar. Mining. A rifled steel bar, used for rotating drill steel in a machine drill.

ri'fle·bird' (rī'f'l·bûrd'), n. [From its cry, which resembles the whizzing and striking of a bullet.] Any of several birds of paradise (Ptiloris or a related genus), esp., P. paradisea of New South Wales. The male is chiefly velvety black with greenish and purplish iridescence on the head, under parts, and middle tail feathers.

Riflebird.

rifle bomb. Mil. = RIFLE GRENADE. Rare.

rifle corps. A corps of riflemen.

rifle frock. Formerly, a rifleman's tunic.

rifle green. The color rifle. — ri'fle–green' (66), adj.

rifle grenade. Mil. A grenade, fitted with a cylindrical stick which fits into the muzzle of a rifle, to be propelled by firing a special cartridge in the rifle.

rifle gun. A muzzle-loading rifle. Western U. S.

ri'fle·man (rī'f'l·măn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). a Mil. A soldier armed with a rifle; formerly, when the musket was the regular infantry arm, one of a body of light infantry armed with rifles and supposed to be of superior marksmanship. b One skilled in shooting with a rifle. — ri'fle·man·ship', n.

rifleman bird. a A riflebird. b A small passerine bird (Acanthisitta chloris) of New Zealand; — so called from its green-and-bronze plumage, thought to resemble the uniform of the early British volunteer rifle corps.

rifle pit. Mil. A short trench or excavation, with a parapet of earth in front, to shelter one or more skirmishers. Lines of rifle pits are often dug in advance of a line of battle.

ri'fle·proof' (rī'f'l·prōōf'; 66), adj. See -PROOF.

ri'fler (rī'flĕr), n. 1. One who rifles; a robber.
2. A hawk that will not return to the lure. Archaic.
3. One who grooves rifling by machine.

rifle range. A place, indoors or outdoors, where rifle shooting is practiced.

ri'fle·ry (rī'f'l·rĭ), n. Rifle shots, collectively; also, riflemen, collectively.

rifle salute. Mil. A position in the manual of arms in which the disengaged hand extended is brought across the body, touching the cocking piece of the rifle when held at shoulder arms or near its muzzle when held at order, or trail, arms. See Illust.

Rifle Salute.

ri'fle·shot' (rī'f'l·shŏt'), n. 1. Also rifle shot. A shot with a rifle.
2. One who shoots a rifle, esp. skillfully.
3. The distance a shot from a rifle can carry.

rifle tie. A tie with the pith of the tree at or near the center of the ends.

ri'fling (rī'flĭng), n. a Act or process of making grooves in a rifled barrel. b A system of spiral grooves cut in the surface of the bore of a gun, leaving intervening lands that cut into the projectile when fired or into a metal band secured to it and rotating it about its longer axis. In the latest model United States magazine rifle, caliber 30, the rifling consists rid'l, rid'ld. Riddle, riddled. Ref. Sp.

---

rid'led, adj. [OF. rideler to wrinkle.] Plaited. Obs.

rid'n. Ridden. Ref. Sp.

rie, n. Sport. Obs.

rie. † REED, RYE.

rief (rēf). Scot. var. of REIF.

Ri'el'a' Re·bel'lion (rē'ĕl'ə'). [After Louis Riel (1844–85), Canadian rebel leader.] = RED RIVER REBELLION.

riem'pie. See RIEM.

‖rien' ne va' plus' (ryăn' nĕ vä' plü'). [F.] Literally, nothing more goes; — the announcement of the croupier at roulette or other gambling games, that no more bets may be made.

riet. † REET.

riet'bok'. Var. of REITBOK.

rieve. Var. of REAVE, REEVE, RIVE.

riev'er. Var. of REAVER. [Table.] rif (rĭf), n. [Serb.] See MEASURE.

rif. † REEF. Now. REEF, a ridge of rocks, etc.

Rif'ĭ. Var. of RIFI.

ri'fid. Rifled. Ref. Sp.

ri'fle·dom, n. See -DOM.

of four grooves and four lands having a uniform right-handed twist, making one turn in 10 inches, or 33⅓ calibers. In cannon the rifling is usually given an increasing twist from breech to muzzle. The usual twist at the muzzle is about one turn in 25 calibers.

ri'fling (rī'fling), n. Act or instance of raffling. Obs.

rift (rĭft), n. [Of Scand. origin; cf. Dan. rift, ON. ript. See RIVE.] 1. An opening made by riving or splitting; a cleft; fissure.

It is the little rift within the lute
That by and by will make the music mute. Tennyson.

2. Act of riving or splitting; the condition of being split, divided, or separated.

3. Quarrying. The principal cleavage or parting, usually approximately at right angles with the grain. Cf. JOINT, n., 10; 1st GRAIN, 22; RUN, n., 39.

rift, v. Transitive: 1. To cleave; to rive; to split; divide; as, to rift an oak; the lightning rifts the clouds.

2. To penetrate by or as if by cleaving.

—, Intransitive: To burst open; to split. Shak.

rift, past part. & part. adj. of RIVE. Obs. or Dial. Eng. Hence: adj. Split or cut radially from the log; rift-sawed; — said of boards, laths, etc.

rift (rĭft), n. [Prob. fr. RIFF reef of rocks.] A shallow or rocky place in a stream, forming either a ford or a rapid. Local, U. S.

rift (rĭft), v. i. [Of Scand. origin; cf. ON. rypta.] To belch; to break wind. — n. Belching; breaking wind. Both Obs. exc. Dial.

rift board. A board made by rifting timber.

rift'er (rĭf'tĕr), n. [See 1st RIFT.] A crack in sea ice; also, an open space in a floe.

rift saw. A saw for rifting timber into boards, laths, and the like.

Rift Saw.

rift'-sawed', adj. Sawed radially from the log, so as to have the annual rings perpendicular, or nearly so, to the face; quarter sawed. — rift'-saw'ing, n.

rift valley. An elongated valley formed by the depression of a block of the earth's crust between two faults or fault zones of approximately parallel strike; a graben. See VALLEY, n., 1.

rift'y (rĭf'tĭ), adj. Having rifts or chinks.

rig (rĭg), v. [RIGGED (rĭgd); RIG'GING (rĭg'ĭng). [Of Scand. origin; cf. Nor. & Sw. rigga to rig, Nor. dial. rigga to bind, wrap round.] Transitive: 1. To fit the shrouds, stays, braces, etc., of (a vessel) to their respective masts, spars, etc.; to fit shrouds, stays, etc., to (a mast, spar, or the like); as, to rig the mainmast; by extension, to assemble and adjust the parts of (an aircraft).

2. To furnish with apparatus or gear; to fit up; to equip; to put in order for use; as, to rig up a bed out of boughs; to rig a capstan by putting bars in the sockets.

3. To dress; to clothe, esp. oddly; — often with up or out.

4. To arrange, carry out, or manipulate by deceptive or fraudulent means; as, to rig the market; to rig an election; to fool; to hoax.

—, Intransitive: To play boisterously or wantonly.

rig in a boom. Naut. To draw in, as a studding-sail boom along a yard, or a jib boom along a bowsprit.

rig out a boom. Naut. To run out, as a studding-sail boom from the end of a yard, or a jib boom from the end of a bowsprit.

rig (rĭg), n. [Cf. Nor. & Sw. rigg. See RIG, v.] 1. Naut. The distinctive shape, number, and arrangement, of sails and masts, which differentiates types of vessels, without reference to the hull; as, schooner rig, ship rig, etc. See 5th BARK, 2; 1st BRIG; CATBOAT; HERMAPHRODITE BRIG; KETCH; KNOCKABOUT, n., 1; LUGGER; SCHOONER; SLOOP; YAWL.

2. Dress; esp., odd or fanciful clothing; as, a queer rig; disguised in the rig of a GYPSY. Colloq.

3. Anything rigged up or fitted out; an outfit. Specif.: a A turnout, or equipage; esp., a carriage with its horse or horses. b Tackle, apparatus, or machinery, fitted up for a certain purpose; specif.: (1) A fisherman's tackle or gear collectively. (2) A derrick, with its engine house, etc., necessary to run it, used for boring, and afterwards pumping, an oil well; also, the derrick itself. See 2d DERRICK, 2 a, Illust. c Agric. Mach. The combination of beam, shank, and shovels, in a cultivator; a cultivator gang comprising these parts.

4. A fraudulent or cheating trick; a swindle; specif., Slang, Eng., a forcing up or down of market prices of securities or commodities by artificial measures, as a corner.

5. Act of ridiculing; a wanton or mischievous act; a frolic.

rig (rĭg), n. [Northern form of RIDGE.] A space between furrows in a plowed field; also, a drill in which vegetables are planted, or a row, as of corn, barley, or the like; hence, a division of a field; a measure of land. Chiefly Scot.

rig, v. t. To ransack; to rifle. Obs.

rig, n. A high wind; a storm. Eng.

rig, n. [Cf. RIG a ridge, RIDGELING.] A ridgeling. Eng.

rig, n. [Cf. WRIGGLE.] A wantonly immoral woman or girl. Now Dial. Eng.

rig, v. i. To romp; to wriggle about; to act as a wanton. Obs. exc. Dial.

rig (rĭg). Obs. or Scot. & dial. Eng. var. of RIDGE, n. & v.

rig (rē; g silent), n. [Ir. rī, righ. See RICH.] An Irish king. Cf. ARD-RI.

Ri'ga bal'sam (rē'gȧ). [From Riga, Latvia.] The resinous exudate of the Swiss pine (Pinus cembra).

ri'ga-don' (rē'gȧ-dōn'). Var. of RIGODÓN.

rig'a-doon' (rĭg'ȧ-dōōn'), n. [F. rigodon, rigaudon, said to be after a dancing master from Marseille named Rigaud.]

1. A lively dance with a jumping step for one couple, popular in the 17th and 18th centuries.

2. Music for this dance, usually in spirited duple or quadruple measure.

Ri'ga fir or pine. [From Riga, Latvia.] The Scotch pine.

Riga last. [From Riga, Latvia.] A European unit of lumber measurement equivalent to 960 feet, board measure.

rig'a-ma-jig' (rĭg'ȧ-mȧ-jĭg'), n. Anything the name of which is unknown or not remembered; a thingumbob. Colloq.

rig and fur. The ridge cast up by the plow and the corresponding furrow; hence, ribbing of stockings or cloth. Chiefly Scot. & N. of Eng.

rig'-and-fur', adj. Ridged and furrowed; ribbed. Chiefly Scot. & N. of Eng.

rig and rendal. See RUNDALE.

Riga rine. = 1st RINE.

Ri'gel (rī'jĕl; rĭ'gĕl), n. [Ar. rijl foot.] A first-magnitude star in the left foot of the constellation Orion. Its spectrum is similar to that of Sirius. See STAR, Table. — Ri·ge'li·an (rĭ·jē'lĭ·ăn; rĭ·gē'-; rĭ-; 159), adj.

ri·ges'cence (rĭ·jĕs'ĕns; -ns; rĭ-), n. [See RIGESCENT.] Stiffness; numbness.

ri·ges'cent (-ĕnt; -ənt), adj. [L. rigescens, pres. part. fr. rigescere.] Growing stiff or numb.

-rigged (-rĭgd). Rigged, adj., used in combinations, as in:

cat-rigged	jury-rigged	ship-rigged fore-and-aft-rigged	ketch-rigged	sloop-rigged full-rigged	lateen-rigged	snow-rigged inrigged	monkey-rigged	square-rigged jackass-rigged	schooner-rigged	yawl-rigged

rig'ger (rĭg'ĕr), n. 1. One who rigs, works with rigging (or tackle), or tends a rigging machine; also, a scaffolder.

2. Specif.: a One whose occupation is fitting the rigging of ships. b Aeronautics. One employed in assembling and aligning aircraft.

3. A vessel of (specified) rig; as, a square-rigger.

4. Short for OUTRIGGER, 2 a.

5. Mach. A band pulley or drum.

6. Painting. A long, slender, and pointed, sable brush; — said to be so called from its use by marine painters for drawing the lines of the rigging.

7. Stock Exchange. One who rigs the market.

rig'ging (rĭg'ĭng), n. 1. Naut. The ropes, chains, etc., that support or raise and lower the masts and spars of a vessel, or serve to set and trim the sails, etc. See SHIP, Illust., SAIL, Illust. Standing rigging is permanent and secures the masts and spars. Running rigging is used in handling sails, spars, etc., and usually runs through blocks.

2. Tackle; gear; specif., Logging, the cables, blocks, etc., used in skidding logs by steam power.

3. The system of cords and wires that distribute the load of an aerostat over the envelope.

rig'ging, n. [See 3d RIG.] A back or ridge, as of a house; hence, a roof. Chiefly Scot. & N. of Eng.

rig'ging, pres. part. & verbal n. of RIG, v.

rigging loft. a A loft in which vessels' rigging is prepared for use. b Theat. An open floor of beams over the stage under the roof from which the scenery is raised and lowered.

rigging screw. Naut. a A screw clamp or vise for bending rope around a thimble for splicing or seizing. b Brit. A turnbuckle.

Rigging Screw.

rigging sled. = DOGBOAT.

rigging tree. Rooftree. Scot. & N. of Eng.

rig'gish (rĭg'ĭsh), adj. Like a rig, or wanton. Obs. exc. Dial.

rig'gite (rĭg'ĭt), n. One given to rigs, or jokes. Rare.

rig'got (rĭg'ŭt), n. [Cf. rigol.] A surface drain, esp. for rain water; gutter; spout. Now Dial. Eng.

rig'got, n. = RIDGELING. Dial.

Riggs' dis·ease' (rĭgz). [After J. M. Riggs (1810–85), Am. dentist.] Med. Pyorrhea alveolaris. See PYORRHEA.

right (rīt), adj.; RIGHT'ER; RIGHT'EST (see Note, below). [ME. right, riht, fr. AS. rihtʒ; akin to OS. & OHG. reht, D. & G. recht, ON. rettr, Goth. raihts, L. rectus straight, right, Gr. orektos stretched out, upright, OIr. recht law, Skr. rju straight, right, L. regere to guide, rule, Gr. oregein to stretch out, L. rogare to stretch after, ask, beg. See RICH; cf. ADROIT, ALERT, CORRECT, DRESS, RACK bar, 1st RANK, RECTOR, RECTUM, REGENT, REGION, REGULAR, ROGATION, ROYAL, RULE, SURGE.] 1. Straight; direct; not crooked; as, a right line; right, or lineal, descent. "Right as any line." Chaucer.

2. Upright; erect from a base; having its axis perpendicular to the base; not oblique; as, right ascension, a right pyramid, cone, solid, etc.

3. Conformed to justice; not deviating from the true and just; according with duty; just; upright; — now commonly used of acts or things only, formerly also of persons.

A God of truth, . . . just and right is he. Deut. xxxii.

4. Fit; suitable; proper; correct; becoming; as, the right man in the right place; this tower is not right in design.

5. Most favorable, convenient, or desired; preferable; also, fortunate; as, the right choice of seats.

6. Characterized by reality or genuineness; real; actual; not spurious. Archaic. "His right wife." Chaucer.

7. According with or stating truth; conforming to fact or reason; not mistaken or wrong; not erroneous; correct; as, a right solution of a problem; time proved him right.

If there be no prospect beyond the grave, the inference is . . . right. "Let us eat and drink, for tomorrow we die." Locke.

8. Well in body, mind, spirits, or the like; in good condition; as, I left the patient quite right again. Also, of normal mental condition; sane.

She did n't think he was quite right. Christopher Morley.

9. At one's best; in good luck. Slang.

10. All right; perfectly satisfactory. Colloq.

11. Designed to be placed or worn outward; hence, usually, chief or most ornamental; as, the right side of a rug.

12. Designating, or of or pertaining to, that side of the body in man on which the muscular action is usually more skilled than on the other side; of or pertaining to the side of the body opposite to that on which the normal heart is located; — opposed to left when used in reference to a part of the body; as, the right side, hand, arm. Also applied to the corresponding side of lower animals and to the side of any object that is or would be on this side of a man facing its front; as, the right side of a wagon, house, or the like.

☞ In designating the banks of a river, right and left are used always with reference to the position of one who is facing in the direction of the current's flow. In designating the sides of a stage, right and left are used with reference to an actor facing the audience.

☞ The comparative RIGHTER and the superlative RIGHTEST are used colloquially in some senses.

☞ Right is used elliptically for it is right, what you say is right, true; as, Right! I agree with you entirely. "Right, cries his lordship." Pope.

☞ For many phrases in which right is the first word, see the second element.

Syn. — Equitable, fair; appropriate; true, faultless.

Ant. — Unjust, wrongful; unsuitable; incorrect, erroneous. See WRONG.

☞ COMBINATIONS are:

right-brained	right-footed	righthearted
right-eared	rightheaded

— at right angles. Forming right angles; perpendicular. — at or on, the right hand of (anyone). In the place of honor, influence, or power. "He ascended into heaven and sitteth on the right hand of God the Father Almighty." Bk. of Com. Prayer. — in, or out of, one's right mind. Sane, or insane. Colloq.

right (rīt), adv. [AS. rihte. See RIGHT, adj.] 1. In a right, or straight, line; directly; hence, straightway; immediately; next; as, he stood right before me; he came right out.

2. According to right; conforming to the standard of justice and duty; righteously; as, to live right; to act right.

3. In a suitable, desired, or fortunate, manner; well.

You with strict discipline instructed right. Roscommon.

4. According to fact or truth; truly; correctly; aright; as, to tell a story right; to estimate a distance right.

5. Exactly; just; precisely; as, right here and now. "Right across its track." Tennyson. Now Chiefly Colloq.

Right as it were a steed of Lumbardye. Chaucer.

6. In a great degree; very; extremely; as, right humble; right valiant. "He was not right fat." Chaucer.

☞ Used to qualify adjectives in this sense, right was formerly in general good use. In the literary language it is now archaic; in the colloquial language it is dialectal. It survives generally in the southern United States. "You must n't talk like that. . . . It has a right hard sound." Hergesheimer. It is in good use also before some titles, as Right Honorable (see HONORABLE, 4), Right Reverend (bishops, abbots, and monsignors), Right Worshipful.

7. All right.

8. Toward the right hand; as, some turned right, some left.

☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are:

right-aiming	right-forward	right-principled right-away	right-framed	right-running right-believed	right-laid	right-shaped right-believing	right-made	right-shapen right-born	right-meaning	right-thinking
right-bred	right-onward	right-walking

— right along. Without cessation; continuously; as, to work right along. Colloq., U. S. — right and left. In both or all directions; on both or all sides; as, bullets fell right and left. Colloq. — right away. At once; straightway; as, the coach starts right away. Colloq., U. S. — right down. In a downright manner; without circumlocution; plainly. Now Colloq. — right off. = RIGHT AWAY, above. Colloq. — right on end. Directly; without deviation, intermission, or delay. Dial. Eng. — right smart. Southern U. S. a A very considerable amount or quantity; as, there's right smart of visitors in town. b Very considerable; large; as, a right smart crop of cotton.

right (rīt), n. [AS. riht. See RIGHT, adj.] 1. That which is right or correct. Specif.: a The straight course; adherence to duty; obedience to lawful authority, divine or human; freedom from guilt; specif., Ethics, that which is warranted by moral approval, the ideal of moral propriety. By some moralists, right is identified with the good; by others, it is asserted to be the supreme ethical category to which is attached the sense of duty, or moral imperative. b The person, party, or cause, that maintains what is right; also, a just cause maintained by a person or party; the cause of truth. c Just or righteous action or decision; justice; as, to petition as a matter of right.

2. That to which one has a just claim; a power or privilege to which one is entitled upon principles of morality, religion, law, or the like. Specif.: a A power, privilege, condition of existence, or the like, to have or enjoy which one has a natural claim; as, the right of liberty. b Any power, privilege, or immunity, vested in one by authority, social custom, or the like; esp., any power or privilege vested in a person by the law, whether to act, or to forbear action, or to demand action or forbearance at the hands of another or others; a capacity or privilege the enjoyment of which is secured to a person by law; hence, the interest he has which anyone has in a piece of property; title; claim; interest. Legal right is used in three senses: (1) as a claim recognized and delimited by law for the purpose of securing it; (2) as the aggregate of the capacities, powers, liberties and privileges by which such a claim is secured; and (3) in a narrower sense, as capacity of asserting a legally recognized claim, having correlative to it a legal duty. The person having the right is the person of inherence, and any person against whom the right runs or upon whom a correlative duty falls is the person of incidence. Rights are broadly classed as substantive rights (or primary, sanctioned, or antecedent, rights), those considered as existing for their own sake and constituting part of the normal legal order of society, as the rights of life, liberty, property, and reputation, and remedial rights (or sanctioning, secondary, or restitutory, rights), those that arise on a violation of, and for the protection of, substantive rights, as the right of self-defense.

Born free, he sought his right. Dryden.

c Something to which one has a right; specif., Obs., a territory, kingdom, or estate. "Led her to the Souldan's right." Spenser. d A claim or title to property or a possession; — often in pl. e pl. Obs. The last sacraments of the church. See LAST, adj., 7.

3. The side, part, or the like, that is on or toward the right side (see RIGHT, adj., 12); as: a The side opposite to the left side; also, the right-hand portion or division; as, the right of an army. b Politics. In some legislative bodies of Europe (as in France), those members collectively who have seats to the right of the presiding officer; hence, the conservatives or monarchists, who commonly occupy those seats. See CENTER, n., 16. [As used of a particular group usually cap.] Also, the policies of such a political body. c The outward or most finished surface, as of a piece of cloth, a carpet, etc. d Of things in pairs, as gloves, shoes, etc., one for use on the right side. e A blow from the right fist. f Theater. See STAGE, n., 15 a.

4. One of the principal tines of a stag's antler, a brow antler, bez antler, or tres-tine, collectively known as the rights.

5. A fee; a due. Obs.

6. Finance. A privilege to the stockholders of a corporation to purchase proportionate amounts of a new issue of securities, generally at par or at a price below that prevailing in the market; also, the negotiable certificate evidencing such privilege. Frequently pl.

— at all rights. At all points; in all respects. Obs. Chaucer. — by right, by rights, or by good rights. Rightly; properly.

I should have been a woman, by right. Shak.

— by right of. By reason of; because of; by virtue of; as, Spain claimed the island by right of conquest; primacy by right of merit. — have a (good) right. a Chiefly Dial. To be under obligation; should; ought; as, you have a right to behave better; also, to have a reason, excuse, probable cause, or the like; as, I had a right to have struck him down; I had a right to get hurt considering the risks; he has no right to protest. b Chiefly Illit. To deserve. — in rif'raf'. Riffraff. Ref. Sp.

---

rift'less, adj. See -LESS.

rift'-sawn', adj. = RIFT-SAWED.

rift'y-tuft'y. † RUFFY-TUFFY.

rig'a·dig', rig'a·jig', adj. Jingling. Obs. [MAROLE.]

rig'a·ma·role'. Var. of RIG-ri·ga'tion (rĭ·gā'shŭn), n. [L. rigatio, fr. rigare to water.] Irrigation. Obs. [= RIGADOON.]

‖ri'gau'don' (rē'gō'dōn'), n. [F.]

rig'bane'. Scot. & N. of Eng. var. of RIDGEBONE.

rig'gal. Dial. var. of REGAL, groove. [Eng.] rig'gald. = RIDGELING. Dial.

rigge. Var. of RIDGE. Obs. exc. Dial. [RIGGING SCREW a.]

rig'ger, or rig'ger's screw. = rig'gle. Dial. var. of WRIGGLE.

rig'gle. Dial. Eng. var. of REGAL, a groove.

Ri'ghi ef·fect' (rē'gē). Physics. = LEDUC EFFECT.

N O P Q R

one's own right. By title vested in oneself; not through the ownership or title of another; as, she has a fortune in her own right. — in the right. Right; correct; also, rarely, upright; as, in the discussion the professor was in the right. — of right. Legally or morally demandable or exactable; as, bail in misdemeanors is of right; also, as an absolute right, not depending upon discretion; as, to demand a jury trial of right. — right in rem. See IN REM a. — right of action. A chose in action. Rare. right of visit (or visitation) or, more properly, right of visit (or visitation) and search. = RIGHT OF SEARCH. — to have right. To be right. Obs. — to rights. a Obs. In a direct line; straight. b Obs. exc. Dial. At once; directly. c Collog. In order; as, to set matters to rights.

right (rīt), v. [AS. rihtan. See RIGHT, adj.] Transitive: 1. To rule; regulate; also, to make straight. Obs. 2. To bring or restore to the proper or natural position; to set upright; as, to right a capsized boat. 3. To bring (oneself) back to one's balance or footing; as, he tripped but righted himself. 4. To restore to the proper state or condition; to make right (that which has been wrong); to adjust; correct.

Glory of Virtue, . . . to right the wrong. Tennyson.

5. To set in order; to clear from a disorderly condition; — often with up; as, to air the beds and right the room. 6. Naut. To put (the helm) in line with the keel. 7. To do justice to; to relieve from wrong; to restore rights to; to assert or regain the rights of; as, to right the oppressed; to right oneself; also, to vindicate; to avenge.

—, Intransitive: To recover the proper or natural condition or position; to become upright.

right rudder. See in Vocabulary.

right the helm. Naut. To put the helm in line with the keel.

-right (-rīt). [AS. riht, adj., and rihte, adv. See 1st & 2d RIGHT.] A suffix denoting straight, direct, as in down*right,* forth*right,* out*right,* up*right.*

-right. A combining form of the noun right, as in birth*right,* copy*right.*

right (rīt), interj. An exclamation expressing concurrence in opinion; you are right.

right. Var. or erron. for RITE, n.

right abeam. Naut. See BEARING, n., 14 a.

right'a·bout' (rīt'ȧ·bout'), n. [right, adv. + about, adv.] A turning directly about by the right, or, by extension, by either the right or left, so as to face in the opposite direction; also, the quarter directly opposite; as, to turn to the rightabout. — right'a·bout', adj. & adv.

— to put, send, turn, etc., one to the rightabout. To dismiss one; to send or turn one away, as a beggar; of an antagonist, to cause to retreat. Collog.

right'a·bout'-face', n. A rightabout. — right'a·bout'-face', adj., adv., & v. i.

right'-and-left', adj. 1. Of or pertaining to the right and the left; on or toward both right and left; designed, as shoes, gloves, etc., for right and left feet, sides, etc. 2. Mach. Designating a screw, pipe coupling, coupling or sleeve nut, or the like, formed with right-handed threads at one end and left-handed threads at the other.

Right-and-left Nut.

right'-and-left', adv. On or toward the right and the left, or toward the right and then the left; as, he dodged right-and-left.

right'-and-left', v. i. To proceed to the right and then to the left; to dodge or evade.

right and left. A dance figure in which the men and the women, winding in and out in opposite directions, clasp right and left hands alternately as they pass one another.

right angle. The angle bounded by two radii that intercept a quarter of a circle; one fourth of a round angle, or one half of a straight angle. Two lines forming right angles are perpendicular to each other. See ANGLE, n., 2, Illust.

right'-an'gle (66), adj. Right-angled.

right'-an'gle, v. t. & i. To intersect or proceed at a right angle.

right-angle clamp. A clamp whose clamping face and supporting arm make a right angle.

right'-an'gled (66), adj. Containing or forming a right angle or right angles; as, a right-angled triangle. See TRI-, ANGLE, Illust. — right'-an'gled·ness, n.

right-angle gauge. Mach. = TRY SQUARE.

right'-an'gu·lar, adj. Right-angled.

right ascension. Astron. The degree of the equator which, in the right sphere, rises at the same moment with any celestial body; or, now usually, the distance eastward or counterclockwise along the celestial equator, from the first point of Aries to the hour circle passing through any celestial body. Analogously to terrestrial longitude, it is expressed, sometimes in degrees, but usually in time, and is most conveniently measured by noting the time elapsing between the culmination of the vernal equinox and that of the body in question. Abbr. R. A. and AR., also α (Alpha).

right ascension of the meridian. Astron. Local sidereal time.

right bank (of a river). See RIGHT, adj., 12, Note.

right'-bank', v. t. & i. Aviation. To bank toward the right.

right bower. See 2d BOWER.

Right boys. A secret society about 1785–86, named after a fictitious Captain Right, to redress agrarian grievances.

right, or left, by file. Mil. A movement in infantry drill to diminish the front of a column of squads or twos to that of a column of files; also, the command for the movement.

right center. That part of a central body or section that is toward the right; on a stage, the section to the right of the center facing the audience. Specif.: Politics. In some legislative bodies of Europe, the members whose sympathies are, in the main, with the members of the right, but who do not favor extreme courses, and on occasions vote with the government. They sit between the center and the extreme right (see RIGHT, n., 3 b). [As used of a particular group usually cap.] — right'-cen'ter, adj. — right'-cen'tral, adj.

right circular cone, right cone. Math. A cone whose axis is perpendicular to its base. See 1st CONE, 2 a. right'-cor'nered (66), adj. Right-angled. Obs.

right cylinder, right'-cir'cu·lar cyl'in·der. See CYLINDER, n., 1 d.

right descension. Astron. In the right sphere, the arc of the equator between the first of Aries and the point which sets at the same time with the body. Obs.

right down. Thoroughly; positively; very.

right'-down' (66), adj. Thorough; complete.

right'-drawn' (66), adj. Drawn justly. Shak.

right'en (rīt'n), v. t. To put right. Archaic or Dial.

right'eous (rī'chŭs; 277), adj. [ME. rightwys, rightwise, AS. rihtwīs, fr. riht right + wīs wise, having wisdom, prudent. See RIGHT, adj.; WISE, adj.] Doing, or according with, that which is right; just; upright; equitable; especially, free from wrong, guilt, or sin; virtuous; worthy; as, a righteous man; a righteous cause.

Syn. — Godly, guiltless, blameless.

Ant. — Immoral, sinful, unholy.

right'eous (rī'chŭs; 277), n. One who or that which is righteous; those who are righteous, — used with the.

right'eous, v. t. To make right or righteous. Obs.

right'eous·ly, adv. [AS. rihtwīslīce.] 1. In a righteous, just, or upright, manner; as, to judge righteously. 2. In a right or correct manner; well; rightfully.

right'eous·ness, n. [AS. rihtwīsness.] 1. The quality or state of being righteous; uprightness; rectitude. 2. A righteous act or quality; righteous conduct.

All our righteousnesses are as filthy rags. Is. lxiv. 6.

3. The state or quality of being rightful or just; as, the righteousness of one's claim. 4. Theol. The state of acceptance with God; justification.

Syn. — Godliness, equity. See HOLINESS.

Ant. — Evil, wickedness.

right'er (rīt'ẽr), n. [Cf. AS. rihtere a ruler, director.] One who sets right; one who does justice or redresses wrong.

right'-eyed' (rīt'īd'; 66), adj. Using the right eye rather than the left, esp. in sighting. — right'-eyed'ness (rīt'-īd'nĕs; -nĭs; 119), n.

Right Faith, Right Knowledge, Right Way. Three basic principles of Jainism; the Triratna. See TRIRATNA c.

right field, right fielder. See BASEBALL.

right'forth' (rīt'fôrth'; 181), adv. Directly. Obs. — adj. Direct. Obs.

right'ful (rīt'fo͝ol; -f'l), adj. 1. Righteous; upright. R. 2. Conforming with what is right; equitable; just. 3. Having a right or just claim according to established laws; being or holding by right; as, the rightful heir. 4. Belonging, held, or possessed, by right, or by just claim; as, a rightful inheritance; rightful authority; hence, appropriate; fitting; as, one's rightful reception.

Syn. — Lawful, legal; true, honest, equitable, proper.

Ant. — Unjust, inequitable; false; unsuitable.

— right'ful·ly, adv. — right'ful·ness, n.

right hand. The hand on a person's right side. Hence: a The right side (opposite the left). b A place of honor or precedence. c A reliable or indispensable person. d The hand of greeting; hence, figuratively, welcome; friendship.

right'-hand', adj. 1. Being on the right; nearer the right hand than the left; as, the right-hand side. 2. Of, pertaining to, adapted to, or done with, the right hand; as, a right-hand blow; a right-hand glove. 3. Chiefly relied on; almost indispensable; as, a company's right-hand man. Addison. 4. Having, operating in, or delivering power in, a direction like that of the hands of a watch when seen in front; clockwise; right-handed; as, a right-hand revolution, motor.

right-hand convention. Math. See AREA VECTOR a.

right'-hand'ed (66), adj. 1. Using the right hand habitually, or more easily and skillfully than the left. 2. Done or made with or as with the right hand; as, a right-handed stroke; a right-handed blow. 3. Having the same direction or course as the movement of the hands of a watch seen from in front; — said of the motion of a revolving object seen from a given direction. 4. Causing clockwise rotation of light; dextrorotatory. 5. On the right side; — said of an error, deviation, or the like; as, too great generosity is a right-handed fault. Rare. 6. In ropemaking, laid like a right-hand rope. 7. Dextrally spiral, as most univalve shells.

— right'-hand'ed·ly, adv. — right'-hand'ed·ness, n.

right-handed screw. A screw the threads of which, like those of a common wood screw, wind spirally in such a direction that the screw advances away from the observer when turned with a right-handed rotation in a fixed nut.

right-handed screw convention. Math. The agreement to define the positive direction of a line which is perpendicular to a line revolving in a plane, like a clock hand, or to a plane in which there is motion in a circle in a definite direction, like an electric current in a circular conductor, as follows: if a right-handed screw in its fixed nut be placed with its axis perpendicular to the plane, the direction of its motion of advance, when it is turned in the same sense as the revolving line or the circular motion, is positive, and the perpendicular line in the direction of advance of the screw is said to be positively related to the revolving line while the perpendicular line in the direction opposed to that of the advance of the screw is said to be negatively related to the revolving line. Similarly, if there are three mutually perpendicular lines drawn from a common origin O and if they are labeled OX, OY, OZ, the ordered arrangement XYZ is said to form a right-handed set of axes provided that right-handed rotation around OZ through a right angle will make OX pass into OY; that similar rotation around OX will make OY pass into OZ; and that around OY will make OZ pass into OX. Cf. ORDERED. The left-handed screw convention and the left-handed set of axes are obtained when the words "right-handed screw," above, and the words "right-handed rotation" are replaced by the words "left-handed screw" and "left-handed rotation."

right'-hand' en'gine. An engine whose power-delivery shaft rotates oppositely to that of a left-hand engine. See LEFT-HAND ENGINE.

right'-hand'er, n. Colloq. 1. A right-handed person. 2. Something designed for wear on, or use by or in connection with, the right hand. 3. A blow delivered with the right hand.

right-hand lock. A lock for a door having its hinges upon the right-hand side when observed from the outside. A right-hand regular lock is a right-hand lock for a door that opens inward. A right-hand reverse lock is a right-hand lock for a door that opens outward.

right hand of fellowship. Eccl. In some Christian denominations, as the Congregational, a part of the service of installation or ordination of a minister, consisting in giving him the right hand in token of the fellowship of the church, and performed by some other minister of the denomination, who also addresses to him words of welcome, etc. Also, a similar formal public welcome of new members by the pastor of the church. See Gal. ii. 9.

right-hand rope. Rope laid up and twisted in the same direction as plain-laid rope. See CORDAGE, Illust.

right-hand rule. Elec. See FLEMING'S RULE a.

right-hand tool. Mach. A tool, as a lathe tool, that cuts from the right to the left.

right'-hand'wise. See -WISE.

right heart. Anat. The right auricle, or atrium, and right ventricle regarded as forming a distinct organ from which blood is passed through the pulmonary circulation.

right heir. Law. An heir-at-law. See HEIR, n., 1 a.

right helicoid. See HELICOID, n., b.

right Honorable or Honourable. See HONORABLE, adj., 4 right'ing mo'ment, or re·stor'ing mo'ment. Aeronautics. A moment which tends to restore an aircraft to its previous attitude after any small rotational displacement.

right'-lay', v. t. To form a rope by twisting strands together counterclockwise; as, a right-laid rope.

right'le (rīt'l), v. t. [Cf. RIGHT.] To put right; set in order; mend. Dial. Eng.

right'less, adj. Deprived of rights; without rights. — right'less·ness, n.

right line. A straight line.

right'-lined' (rīt'līnd'; 66), adj. Formed by right lines.

right'ly, adv. [AS. rihtlīce.] 1. According to justice; according to the divine will or moral rectitude; uprightly; as, duty rightly performed. 2. Properly; fitly; suitably; appropriately.

Eve rightly called, Mother of all mankind. Milton.

3. According to truth or fact; correctly; not erroneously; exactly. "I cannot rightly say." Shak. 4. Straightly; directly. Obs.

right lymphatic duct. Anat. A short vessel discharging into the right subclavian the lymph from the right side of the head neck, and thorax, the right arm, right lung, right side of the heart, and convex surface of the liver.

right'-mind'ed (66), adj. Having a right or honest mind; purposing well. — right'-mind'ed·ly, adv. — right'-mind'ed·ness, n.

right'most' (rīt'mōst'), adj. & adv. Farthest toward the right.

right'ness, n. [AS. rihtness.] Quality or state of being right; specif.: a Straightness; as, the rightness of a line. b Rectitude; righteousness; uprightness; as, rightness of life. c Correctness; truth; accuracy; as, the rightness of an estimate. d Right relation. "The craving for rightness with God." J. C. Shairp. e Suitability; appropriateness; as, rightness of manner. f State or quality of being on the right side; as, rightness is the opposite of leftness.

right'o (rīt'ō; rīt'ō'), interj. An exclamation expressing cheerful concurrence or assent; right! very well! Cf. ALL RIGHT. Collog.

right of action. Law. A right to begin and prosecute an action in the courts.

right of angary. = ANGARY.

right of approach. Mar. Law. The right of any man-of-war to come near enough to any merchantman to ascertain the latter's nationality, without interfering with her voyage.

right of assembly. The principle of popular government that it is the right of the people peaceably to assemble for any purpose not expressly prohibited by law (cf. UNLAWFUL ASSEMBLY), a right guaranteed in Great Britain under Sect. I, cl. 5 (the right of petition) of the Bill of Rights (1689) and in the United States by Amendment I of the Constitution (1791) and similar provisions in State constitutions.

right of asylum. The right of receiving protection under an acknowledged convention. See ASYLUM, 1 & 2.

right of common. = COMMON, n., 5.

right of contiguity. Internat. Law. The right, sometimes claimed by a nation occupying such a part of a region with artificial or natural boundaries as enables it to control the whole region, to claim constructive occupation of the whole region.

right of drip. Law. An easement or servitude giving one the right to have the water flowing from his house fall on the land of his neighbor. It does not exist except as acquired by grant or prescription.

right of emption, right of sole emption. See EMPTION.

right of petition. See RIGHT OF ASSEMBLY.

right of search. Mar. Law. The right of a belligerent to stop any merchant vessel of a neutral state on the high seas and make such examination and search as may be reasonably necessary to determine whether she has become liable to capture by violation of the laws of war, as by carrying contraband goods; — usually called in British works right of visit, or more properly, right of visit (or visitation) and search. In British theory neutral merchant vessels convoyed by neutral warships are subject to search; in the theory of most Continental states and of the United States they are not, and these states have often conceded the right by treaty. A similar right arises in time of peace under some circumstances, as for the purpose of enforcing revenue law, preventing piracy, etc. Great Britain, in negotiating with the United States just before the middle of the 19th century, endeavored to maintain between search and visitation the distinction that visitation was merely to ascertain whether a merchant vessel was entitled to the protection of the flag she carried, and that the right to make it exist in time of peace.

right of support. Law. a An easement or servitude by which the owner of a house has a right to rest his timber on the walls of his neighbor's house. b The right to have one's land supported by the land lying adjacent or by the earth beneath, as where mines are dug.

right of way. Also right'-of-way', n. a Law. A right of passage over another person's ground. See EASEMENT, 4; SERVITUDE. b (1) Australia. [pl. RIGHT OF WAYS.] A narrow street; a lane. This use originated in Melbourne. In laying out the city, narrow passages subject to a right of way were left through the lots from one broad street to another. Hence, the term came to be applied to the passages. (2) In rural Australia, a cart track across enclosed (or, sometimes, unenclosed) lands. Cf. sense c. c Essex Dial. A cart path. d The customary or legal right of traffic to take precedence over any other traffic, as from a certain direction. Usually, in the United States, street or road traffic has precedence over all intercepting traffic except approaching on the right-hand side, and over all following traffic. e The land, other than storage or station yards, occupied by a railroad for its tracks, esp. for its main line; also, the strip of land over which a public road is built, or the strip over which an electric power transmission line passes. f A precedence in passing accorded to one vehicle (as a wagon, a railroad train, or a boat) over another, either by custom, by municipal ordinance, or by statute. g Permission or opportunity to speak, write, or act, esp. in precedence over others.

right pedro. See 3d CINCH.

right product. Alg. In noncommutative algebra, a product of the form $a\,b$ meaning that a is multiplied by b but not meaning that b is multiplied by a.

right rudder. To port the helm; — adopted because the modern steering gear has no helm in the sense of tiller and with right rudder, the wheel, the rudder, and the ship's head all go to the right while the imaginary helm goes to port. Left rudder is used for the same reason.

right sailing. Naut. The movement of a vessel when she sails on one of the four cardinal points, so as to alter either her latitude or longitude, but not both. Rare.

right section. A cross section, as of a cylinder; see CYLINDER, n., 1 d.

right'ship (rīt'shĭp), n. Rightness. Rare.

right shoulder arms. Mil. A position in the United States manual of arms in which the piece is placed on the right shoulder, with the barrel up, and the muzzle elevated and inclined to the rear. See Illust.

Right Shoulder Arms.

right'-side', v. t. To righten; put right side up.

right'-sid'ed (-sīd'ĕd; -ĭd; 66; 119), adj. Situated on the right side; inclined to use the right hand and leg. — right'-sid'ed·ly, adj. — right'-sid'ed·ness, n.

right smart of. Much or many of; a large amount, number, or quantity, of. Dial., U. S.

rights of man. A group of fundamental rights embodied in a famous declaration adopted by the French National Assembly in August, 1789, and, in a modified form, appearing in later French constitutions down to 1848.

Rights of Man, The. An essay (1791) by Thomas Paine.

rights on. Stock Exchange. Having the rights attached to or accruing to the security mentioned; — applied esp. to stock sold or bought with the value of rights included in the price. See RIGHT, n., 6.

right sphere. a A sphere so placed that its equator or a meridian is parallel to the horizon or plane of projection. b The celestial sphere as seen from all stations on the equator, where all bodies rise and set at right angles to the horizon.

right tackle. See TACKLE, n., 6.

right triangle. Math. A right-angled triangle. See TRIANGLE, n., 1.

right'-turn', v. i. To turn to the right. — right'-turn', n.

right'-up' (66), adj. Dial. a Steep; as, the right-up streets. b Honest.

right'ward (rīt'wĕrd), adj. Directed toward the right, as in politics; conservative.

right'ward (rīt'wĕrd), right'wards (-wĕrdz), adv. On or toward the right. — right'ward, adj. — right'ward·ly, adv.

A Right Whale, the Bowhead (Balaena mysticetus).

right whale. A whalebone whale of the family Balaenidae; — said by whalers to be so called because regarded by whalers as the right kind to pursue, but probably named as the true, or typical, whale. They are large and have no dorsal fin; the baleen, or whalebone, is very long, the head enormous and about one third the total length, the throat unfurrowed, and the small eye situated near the angle of the mouth. Of the many supposed species described, only two can be positively distinguished, the bowhead, or Greenland whale (Balaena mysticetus), confined to arctic seas, and the southern right whale (Eubalaena glacialis), inhabiting all temperate seas, but nearly exterminated in the North Atlantic. The former attains a length of about 50 feet, while the latter is slightly smaller.

right whale porpoise. A porpoise of the genus Lissodelphis; — so called from having no dorsal fin.

right'-wheel', v. i. To wheel or turn toward the right. — right'-wheel', n.

right wing. The right side or section; specif.: a In various team sports, a player on the right side of the playing line; also, the players, collectively, who form the right side. b [sometimes cap.] Politics. The conservative, or, in Europe, often, the monarchist, element in a political party, legislature, etc. Cf. RIGHT, n., 3 b. — right'-wing'er, n. — right'-wing'ism, n.

right'y (rīt'ĭ), adj. & adv. Right; rightly; as, all righty. Now Only Colloq.

Ri'gi beds (rē'gē). [From Mt. Rigi, Switzerland.] Geol. In Switzerland, the strata belonging to the Lower Flysch stage, of the Oligocene period.

rig'id (rĭj'ĭd), adj. [L. rigidus, fr. rigere to be stiff, of uncert. origin. See RIGOR.] 1. Not pliant; not flexible; stiff; unyielding; firm; as, rigid bars.
2. Inflexibly fixed or set in opinion, conduct, etc.; not lax or indulgent; strict; as, a rigid master; rigid principles.
3. Stiff and unyielding in appearance; as, rigid hills.
4. Precise and accurate in procedure; as, rigid reasoning.
5. Aeronautics. Of an airship, having the gas containers enclosed within compartments of a rigid, fabric-covered framework, or hull, as of metal, which carries the cabins, gondolas, motors, etc. See AIRSHIP.
6. Constitutional Law. Designating a form of constitution which is not amended or changed by the ordinary process of legislation. See CONSTITUTION, 6.
7. Mech. Designating, or pertaining to, a branch of dynamics in which the bodies whose motions are considered are treated as being absolutely invariable in shape and size under the application of force.

☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are:
rigid-body, rigid-nerved, rigid-seeming.

Syn. — Unbending; stringent, severe, austere, stern. — RIGID, RIGOROUS are often interchangeable. But RIGID emphasizes esp. the implication of uncompromising inflexibility; RIGOROUS, that of stringent severity or scrupulous exactness; as, "Sternly he pronounced the rigid interdiction" (Milton); "rigid laws of chaste austerity" (id.); "the rigid sincerity of strict impartiality" (Mme. d'Arblay); "one of those rare men who are rigid to themselves and indulgent to others" (G. Eliot); "[They] have sealed his rigorous statutes with their bloods" (Shak.); "a definition rigorous enough for a geometrician" (Huxley). Cf. SCRUPULOUS, STRICT, INFLEXIBLE, NARROW, STIFF.

Ant. — Malleable, ductile, plastic, yielding; limp; lax, loose, lenient.

rig'id (rĭj'ĭd), n. A rigid aircraft.

rigid hitch. See 2d HITCH, 5.

ri·gid'i·fy (rĭ·jĭd'ĭ·fī), v. t. & i.; -FIED (-fīd); -FY'ING. To make or become rigid.

rig'id·ist (rĭj'ĭd·ĭst), n. One whose views or practices are rigid.

ri·gid'i·ty (rĭ·jĭd'ĭ·tĭ), n.; pl. -TIES (-tĭz). [L. rigiditas. See RIGID.] 1. Quality or state of being rigid; want of pliability; quality of resisting change of form; also, the amount of resistance of a body to change of form.
2. Stiffness of appearance, manner, opinion, or conduct.
3. Severity; strictness; rigor.
4. Mech. Short for COEFFICIENT OF RIGIDITY.

rig'id·ly (rĭj'ĭd·lĭ), adv. In a rigid manner; stiffly; severely; strictly; as, adhering rigidly to a system.

rig'id·ness, n. Quality or state of being rigid; rigidity.

rigid trust. A fixed trust. See INVESTMENT TRUST.

ri·gid'u·lous (rĭ·jĭd'ū·lŭs), adj. [Dim. from rigid.] Somewhat rigid or stiff.

Rig'il Ken·tau'rus (rĭj'ĭl kĕn·tô'rŭs). [Through ML. fr. Ar. Rijl Qinṭūrus, fr. Ar. rijl foot of + Gr. Kentauros Centaur. See RIGEL; CENTAUR.] See STAR, Table.

rig irons. The hardware, nails excluded, necessary to complete an oil-well drilling rig.

rig'ling (rĭg'lĭn), n. A ridgeling. Scot. & N. of Eng.

rig'ma·ree (rĭg'mȧ·rē), n. [L. Reg(ina) Maria Queen Mary; — on coins.] A petty coin; trifle. Scot. & Local, U. S.

rig'ma·role (rĭg'mȧ·rōl), n. [For ragman roll. See RAGMAN ROLLS.] A succession of confused, meaningless, or foolish, statements; prolix and rambling or incoherent talk.

rig'ma·role, adj. Consisting of, or marked by, rigmarole.

rig'ma·role, v. t. & i. To deliver a rigmarole (to); to talk (to) ramblingly and at length.

rig'ma·rol'er·y (-rōl'ĕr·ĭ; rĭg'mȧ·rōl'-), n. Rigmarole.

rig'num (rĭg'nŭm), n. The horsemint Monarda punctata.

‖ri'go·dón' (rē'gō·dōn'), n. [Sp.] The Spanish form of the rigadoon.

rig'ol (rĭg'ŏl), n. [F. rigole groove, channel.] a A ring; circle. Shak. b Obs. exc. Dial. A small furrow, channel, or groove.

rig'o·lette' (rĭg'ō·lĕt'), n. [Prob. fr. Rigolette, proper name.] A woman's light scarflike head covering, usually knit or crocheted of wool.

‖ri'go·let'to (rē'gō·lĕt'tō), n. [It.] An Italian round dance.

Rig'o·let'to (rĭg'ō·lĕt'ō; It. rē'gō·lĕt'tō), n. [It.] The title and hero of an opera (1851) by Verdi, founded upon a drama Le roi s'amuse by Victor Hugo. He is the hunchbacked favorite of the Duke of Mantua. His daughter, Gilda, is seduced by the duke and sacrifices her life to frustrate her father's revenge.

rig'or, rig'our (rĭg'ĕr), n. [ME. rigour, fr. OF. rigour (F. rigueur), fr. L. rigor, fr. rigere to be stiff. See RIGID.]
1. State of being rigid; rigidity; stiffness.

The rest his look bound with Gorgonian rigor. Milton.

2. Quality of being unyielding or inflexible; exactingness without allowance, deviation, or indulgence; strictness; severity; harshness; as, to execute a law with rigor. Specif.: a Stiffness of opinion or temper; sternness; hardness; severity; cruelty.

All his rigor is turned to grief and pity. Denham.

b Strictness or severity of life; austerity. c Severity of climate or season; inclemency; as, the rigors of winter.
3. An act or instance of severity, harshness, oppression, or cruelty; as, the intolerable rigors of religious persecution.
4. Exactness; preciseness; as, the rigor of his argument.
5. Relentless severity; violence; fury. Spenser.
6. (pron. rĭ'gôr, rĭg'ŏr) [L.] Med. A sense of chilliness, with contraction of the skin; a convulsive shuddering or tremor, as in the chill preceding a fever.
7. Physiol. A state of rigidity in organs, tissues, or cells, during which they are incapable of responding to stimuli. It results from disordered conditions of metabolism, as may be induced by extremes of temperature or moisture supply. Thus heat rigor is caused by excessively high (but not immediately lethal) temperature. See RIGOR MORTIS.

Syn. — Rigidness, inflexibility, harshness.

Ant. — Lenity, mildness, clemency.

rig'or·ism, rig'our·ism (rĭg'ĕr·ĭz'm), n. [Cf. F. rigorisme.] 1. Rigidity in principle or practice; strictness.
2. Severity, as of style; austerity, as of life.
3. Ethics. Strictness in ethical principles; — usually applied to ascetic ethics, and opposed to ethical latitudinarianism.
4. R.C.Theol. See PROBABILISM, 2 a.

rig'or·ist, rig'our·ist, n. [Cf. F. rigoriste.] 1. One who is rigorous, or strict, in adherence to rules, standards, etc.
2. One who professes rigorism; sometimes, an extreme Jansenist.

rig'or·ist, rig'our·ist, rig'or·is'tic, rig'our·is'tic (rĭg'ĕr·ĭs'tĭk), adj. 1. Rigid in principles or actions; strict.
2. Of or pertaining to the doctrine of rigorism.

‖ri'gor mor'tis (rī'gôr môr'tĭs; rĭg'ŏr). [L., rigor of death.] Death stiffening; the rigidity of the muscles that occurs at death. Its time of onset after death and its duration vary greatly, depending on the activity and general condition of the muscles before death.

rig'or·ous (rĭg'ĕr·ŭs), adj. [OF. rigoureux, fr. ML. rigorosus. See RIGOR.] 1. Manifesting, exercising, or favoring, rigor; allowing no abatement or mitigation; inflexible; inexorable; scrupulously accurate; exact; strict; relentless; as, a rigorous officer; a rigorous definition.
2. Harsh; severe; as, rigorous treatment; rigorous winter.
3. Relentlessly severe; violent. Obs.

Rigorous uproar. Spenser.

Syn. — See RIGID; cf. INFLEXIBLE.

Ant. — Mild, clement, gentle.

rig'or·ous·ly, adv. In a rigorous manner; with rigor; specif.: a Inflexibly; inexorably; without allowance or mitigation; as, a punishment rigorously inflicted. b Harshly; cruelly. c With strict exactness or nicety.

rig'or·ous·ness, n. Quality or state of being rigorous.

rig'-out', n. Outfit; appearance. Slang.

rigs'by (rĭgz'bĭ), n. [Cf. RIG a wanton.] A wanton; a hoyden. Dial. Eng.

Rigs'raad' (rĭgz'rȧd'), n. [Dan.] a In Denmark, in the 16th century, the aristocratic council of state. It claimed power over the king. b In Schleswig-Holstein, the legislature by the Constitution of 1855.

Rigs'ret' (-rĕt'), n. [Dan.] A Danish tribunal which can alone try parliamentary impeachment.

rig tree. Rooftree. Dial. Eng.

rig'—up', n. Act of rigging up; also, anything, as an apparatus, that is rigged up.

Rig—Ve'da (rĭg·vā'dȧ), n. [Skr. Ṛgveda.] See Veda. — Rig—Ve'dic (-vā'dĭk), adj.

rig·wid'die, rig·wid'dy (rĭg·wĭd'ĭ; rĭg'wĭd'ĭ), rig—wood'ie (-wŏŏd'ĭ; rĭg'wŏŏd'ĭ), n. [Cf. dial. rig back; widdy a withy.] Scot. a A rope or chain over a horse's back to support the shafts. b A prank; antic.

rig·wid'die, rig·wood'ie, adj. [Cf. RIGWIDDIE, n.] Lean; scrawny; thrawn. Scot.

Rii'gi·kog'u (rē'gĭ·kŏg'ōō), n. [Estonian, fr. riik (of Scand. origin; cf. ON. rīki kingdom, dominion, power), gen. & stem riigi, state + kogu assembly. See RICH.] State Assembly; — the legislative assembly of Estonia.

Rii'gi·va'nem (-vä'nĕm), n. [Estonian, fr. riik, gen. & stem riigi, state + vanem elder, chief, fr. vana old. See RIIGIKOGU.] State Head; — the chief executive of Estonia, who is also the prime minister.

rikk (rĭk), n. [Ar. riqq.] A small tambourine, used in Egypt.

Rik'ken (rĭk'kĕn), adj. [Jap.] Constitutional; — applied to certain of the Japanese political parties; as, Rikken Minseito.

Rik'ki-tik'ki-ta'vi (rĭk'ĭ·tĭk'ĭ·tä'vĭ), n. In Kipling's Jungle Book, the Indian mongoose.

riks'daal'der (rĭks'däl'ĕr), n. [D. rijksdaalder.] A South African (paper) rix-dollar, stabilized at 1s. 6d. (about $0.37) in 1825 and withdrawn in 1841.

Riks'dag' (rĭks'dȧg'), n. [Sw. Cf. REICHSTAG.] The Swedish legislature, or parliament; — called specifically Diet in English.

ri'la·wa' (rē'lȧ·wä'), n. [Singhalese riḷavā. Cf. RILLOW.] The toque monkey (Macaca pileata) of Ceylon.

rile (rīl), v. t. [See ROIL.] To roil; esp., to irritate; to arouse resentment; to vex. Colloq., Chiefly U. S.

rile, n. Colloq., U. S. a Turbidity. b Anger.

rile'y (rīl'ĭ), adj. Turbid; irritated; vexed. Colloq., U. S.

rill (rĭl), n. [LG. rille, D. ril; akin to AS. rīthe a stream, MLG. rīde brook, ditch, Olr. riathor torrent, Skr. rīti stream, course. See RIDE, RISE, ROAM, RUN.] 1. A very small brook; a rivulet; a streamlet.
2. A transient stream or runnel in which the water of a wave, after breaking on a beach, returns to the sea or lake.
3. A narrow, shallow, furrow or trench. Now Dial.

rill, v. i. To run in a small stream; to flow like a rill.

rill, rille (rĭl), n. [G. rille a furrow. See 1st RILL.] Astron. One of certain long, narrow, telescopic valleys on the surface of the moon; — called also cleft.

rill'et (rĭl'ĕt; -ĭt; 119), n. A little rill.

ril·lett', ril·lette' (rĭ·lĕt'), n. [F. rillette.] Potted meat; also, an individual mold of such.

rill'ock (rĭl'ŭk), n. A little rill.

ril'low (rĭl'ō), n. [Singhalese riḷav, pl. of riḷavā. Cf. RILAWA.] A kind of Ceylonese monkey. Obs.

rill stope. Mining. An overhand stope in which the back is carried up like a series of inverted steps.

rill'y (rĭl'ĭ), adj. Like a rill; having many rills.

rim (rĭm), n. [AS. rima; akin to ON. rími a raised strip of land. See RAND.] 1. The border, edge, or margin, of a thing, usually of something circular or curving; as, the rim of a basin, a hat, a shield, the horizon, the sea.
2. The outer, circular part of a wheel, joined to the hub by the spokes; specif., a removable outer metal band on an automobile wheel, to which the tire is attached.
3. A raised or projecting edge or border; a ring or narrow strip at the edge or border.
4. Rimrock.
5. Spinning. = RIM PULLEY.

Syn. — See BORDER.

☞ COMBINATIONS are:

rim-bearing, adj.	rim-cut, adj.	rimmaker rim-bending, adj.	rim-deep	rimmaking rim (rĭm), v. t.; RIMMED (rĭmd); RIM'MING. 1. To furnish with a rim; to border; to enclose.

2. To run around the rim of; as, in golf, a putt that rimmed the cup.
3. To gash the sides of (fish, esp. mackerel) to make them appear larger.

rim, n. [Cf. AS. rēoma membrane.] 1. An enveloping membrane. Obs.
2. The peritoneum. Obs. Shak.

ri'ma (rī'mȧ), n.; pl. RIMAE (-mē). [L.] Biol. A long, narrow aperture; cleft; fissure. — ri'mal (-mȧl), adj.

ri'ma (rē'mä), n. [Tag.] The breadfruit. Phil. I.

‖ri'ma glot'ti·dis (rī'mȧ glŏt'ĭ·dĭs). [NL.] Anat. The opening between the true vocal cords. See LARYNX.

‖ri'ma o'ris (ō'rĭs). [L., fissure of the mouth.] Anat. The space between the lips.

‖ri'ma pal'pe·bra'rum (păl'pē·brā'rŭm). [L.] = PALPEBRAL FISSURE.

rim ash. The hackberry Celtis occidentalis.

ri'mate (rī'mȧt), adj. [L. rimatus torn up.] Zool. Fissured.

rim'base' (rĭm'bās'), n. a Ordn. The mass of metal connecting a trunnion with the trunnion band or the body of a cannon. See CANNON, 1st Illust. b Firearms. The shoulder of the stock on which the breech of the barrel rests.

rim'ble—ram'ble (rĭm'b'l-răm'b'l), n. Rambling nonsense. — rim'ble—ram'ble, adj.

rim blight. Plant Pathol. A disease of tea leaves caused by a fungus of the genus Cladosporium, characterized by yellowing of the margins followed by browning.

rim'—bound', adj. Plant Pathol. Having the tips and margins of the leaves curved downward, as in tobacco suffering from potash hunger.

rim clutch. Mach. See FRICTION CLUTCH.

rime (rīm), n. [AS. hrīm; akin to D. rijm, ON. hrīm, Dan. riim, Sw. rim, Lett. kreims cream, and to D. rijp, G. reif, OHG. rīfo, hrīfo.] 1. White frost; hoarfrost; congealed dew or vapor.
2. Meteorol. An accumulation of granular ice tufts on the windward sides of exposed objects, slightly resembling hoarfrost (which see), but formed only from undercooled fog or cloud and always built out directly against the wind. International symbol, V.

☞ COMBINATIONS are:
rime-covered, rime-damp, rime-laden.

rime (rīm), v. i.; RIMED (rīmd); RIME'ING. To freeze or congeal into hoarfrost. — v. t. To cover with rime.

rime, n. A composition in verse, etc. See RHYME, n.

rime, v. t. & i. To make rhymes, etc. See RHYME, v.

---

rightwise. ✝ RIGHTEOUS. rig'i·nal. Errn. for RIDOZLING. rig'let. Var. of REGLET. rig'ma·rol'ic (rĭg'mȧ·rōl'ĭk), rig'ma·rol'ish, (rĭg'mȧ·rōl'ĭsh), adj. = RIGMAROLE, adj.
rig'ma·rol'ish·ly, adv. See -LY. rigole. ✝ REGAL.
rig'oll (rĭg'ŏl), n. Corrupted form of REGAL. ri·go'ri·ous, adj. Rigorous. Obs. — ri·go'ri·ous·ly, adv. Obs. rig'our, rig'our·ism, etc. Vars. of RIGOR, RIGORISM, etc.
‖Rigs'dag (rĭgz'dȧg), n. [Dan. Cf. REICHSTAG.] See LEGISLATURE, Table.
rigs'da'ler (rĭgz'dä'lĕr), n. [Dan. See RIX-DOLLAR.] = RIX-DOLLAR, 1.
Rigs'maal', Rigs'mal (rĭgz'mäl'; rĭks'-), n. [Dan. rigsmaal, Nor. riksmaal, language of the realm.] See LANDSMAAL.
‖ri'i, n., pl. of 3d RIO. ri'der (rī'dĕr), n. [D.] = RYDER, 2. ri'der·daal'der (rī'dĕr·däl'dĕr), n. See RYDER, 2. rijks'daal'der (rĭks'däl'dĕr; colloq. -däl'ĕr), n. [D.] See RIX-DOLLAR; COIN, Table.
Ri'ka·ri (rē'kȧ·rē; rĭk'ȧ-). Var. of ARIKARA. rik'i·sha, rik'sha, rik'shaw, n. Short for JINRIKISHA. Colloq. riks'da'ler (rĭks'dä'lĕr), n. [Sw. See RIX-DOLLAR.] = RIX-DOLLAR, 1.
Riks'maal, Riks'mal. Vars. of RIGSMAAL, RIGSMAL. See LANDSMAAL.
‖ri·lie'vo (rē·lyā'vō), n. [It. See RELIEF.] Sculp. & Arch. = RELIEF, n., 5. rill'-like', adj. See -LIKE. rill'stone' (rĭl'stōn'), n. [G. rillenstein. See 3d RILL; STONE.] = VENTIFACT. rill'wise', adv. See -WISE. rill'y (rĭl'ĭ), adj. Var. of RILEY. Dial. & Colloq.
rim. ✝ RIME. rimd. Rimmed. Ref. Sp.

rime (rīm), n. [L. rima.] A rent or long aperture; a chink; fissure; crack. Sir T. Browne.
rime, n. [Cf. Nor. rim, reem, ON. rim.] A step of a ladder; a rung. rime (rīm). Var. of REAM, to bevel out. Eng. rime frost. Hoarfrost. — rime′-frost′ed, adj.
Rime of the Ancient Mariner, The. A poem (1798) by Samuel Taylor Coleridge. It is the story of a sailor who shot an albatross, thereby incurring supernatural misfortunes. rim′er (rīm′ĕr), v. t. [From RIMER reamer.] To ream, or bevel out. Eng.
ri′mer (rī′mĕr), n. [See REAMER.] A reamer; a broach. Eng. rim′er (rīm′ĕr). Var. of RHYMER.
‖rime′ riche′ (rēm′ rēsh′). [F.] Literally, a rich rhyme; end rhyme produced by agreement in sound, not only of the last accented vowel (and any succeeding sounds), but also of the consonant preceding this rhyming vowel; — distinguished from rime suffisante. Thus, in English, church spire and aspire would be rimes riches.
‖rime′ suf′fi′sante′ (sü′fē′zänt′). [F.] Literally, sufficient rhyme; end rhyme produced by agreement in sound of an accented final vowel and following final consonant (or consonants), if any; — distinguished from rime riche. Thus, in English, dip and ship, flee and see are rimes suffisantes.
rim′-fire′ (rĭm′fīr′; 66), adj. a Having the percussion fulminate in a rim surrounding the base; — distinguished from center-fire. b Using rim-fire cartridges; as, a rim-fire gun.
rim′fire′, n. [rim + fire.] Plant Pathol. The burning of the leaf margins, esp. in tobacco, caused by potash hunger. ri′mi·form (rī′mĭ·fôrm), adj. [L. rima crack + -form.] Bot. Shaped like a narrow furrow. Rare.
rim lock or latch. A lock or latch made to be fastened to the face of a door, thus differing from a mortise lock.
rimmed (rĭmd), adj. Having a rim of a (specified) kind, esp., in combination, as in:
gold-rimmed, narrow-rimmed, red-rimmed, wide-rimmed.
rim′mer (rĭm′ĕr), n. One who or that which rims; specif.: a An implement for cutting, trimming, or ornamenting the rim of anything, as of pies, etc. b A knife for rimming fish.
rim′mer (rĭm′ĕr), n. [Cf. REAMER.] A reamer.
Rim′mon (rĭm′ŏn), n. [Heb. Rimmōn, fr. Assyr. Rammān, the roarer, god of thunder.] Bib. An Aramean deity worshiped at Damascus, identified with Assyrian Ramman, god of thunder and storms. Elisha's permission to Naaman to bow with his master in the house of Rimmon is often alluded to (2 Kings v. 18); hence, to bow down in the House of Rimmon, to conform to some immoral or reprehensible custom or requirement. ri′mose (rī′mōs; rĭ·mōs′), adj. (L. rimosus, fr. rima chink.] 1. Full of rimes, fissures, or chinks.
2. Bot. & Zool. Having numerous nearly parallel clefts, cracks, or fissures, like those in the bark of trees.
— ri′mose·ly, adv. — ri·mos′i·ty (rī·mŏs′ĭ·tĭ), n.
rim′ous (rĭm′ŭs), adj. Rimose. rim′ple (rĭm′p'l), n. [Cf. AS. gehrumpen wrinkled, MLG. & D. rimpel a wrinkle, and E. RUMPLE.] A fold or wrinkle; a rumple; also, a ripple. rim′ple, v. t. & i.; -PLED (-p'ld); -PLING (-plĭng). To rumple; to wrinkle; also, to ripple. rimp′tion (rĭmp′shŭn), n. An abundance; a lot. Southern U. S.
rim pulley. Spinning. A pulley on the rim shaft of a mule for transmitting motion by an endless band or rope to the tin pulley and spindles.
rim′rock′ (rĭm′rŏk′), n. Rock or rocks on the rim, as of a knoll, a channel, a basin, a cliff. Western U. S.
rim saw. A disk saw having the teeth on a separate ring.
rim shaft. Spinning. The spindle of a mule headstock. ri′mu (rē′mōō), n. [Maori.] A New Zealand timber tree (Dacrydium cupressinum); also, its valuable reddish wood, used for furniture and general construction. Called also red pine and imou pine.
rim′u·la (rĭm′ū·lä), n. [L., dim.] Anat. A small rima or fissure, esp. in the brain and spinal cord.
rim′u·lose (rĭm′ū·lōs), adj. [L. rimula a small chink, dim. of rima chink.] Bot. & Zool. Having small chinks or fissures.
‖ri′mur (rē′mĕr), n. pl. [Icel. rīmur, pl. of rīma, fr. OF. rime. See RHYME.] Literally, rhymes; — a complex form of versified saga, or balladlike treatment of episodes from the sagas, popular in Iceland from the 15th century. rim wheel. = RIM PULLEY. rim′y (rĭm′ĭ), adj.; RIM′I·ER (-ĭ·ĕr); RIM′I·EST. Abounding with rime; frosty. rim′y (rīm′ĭ), adj. Rhyming.
‖Ri·na′sci·men′to (rē·nä′shē·mĕn′tō), n. [It.] = RENAISSANCE, 1 a, esp. in its application to Italy.
rin′ceau′ (răn′sō′), n. [F., fr. (assumed) VL. ramuscellus ramuscule.] An ornamental motive consisting essentially of a sinuous and branching scroll elaborated with leaves and other natural forms, as those derived from the acanthus.
rin·con′ (rĭng·kōn′), n. [Sp. rincón.] Orig., a piece of land; hence, a small circular valley, usually one containing a house. Southwestern U. S. rind (rīnd), n. [AS., bark, crust of bread; akin to OHG. rinta, G. rinde, and prob. to E. REND.] 1. The bark of a tree; specif., Bot., the cortex.
2. The peel of a fruit or vegetable.
3. The crust of bread; hence, the crust or outer layer of anything.
4. The skin of an animal or person, esp. the skin on bacon; also, figuratively, the body. "This corporal rind." Milton.
5. a Obs. pl. Trees. b A strip of cloth under the leather grip of a golf club.
Syn. — See SKIN.
rind, v. t. To remove the rind of; to bark.
rind (rīnd; rĭnd), v. t. [Var. of REND to melt.] To melt and clarify, as butter or tallow. Chiefly Scot. & N. of Eng.
Rind (rĭnd), Rindr (rĭn′d'r), n. [ON. Rindr.] Norse Myth. Wife of Odin and mother of Vali.
Rind (rĭnd), n. A federated group of tribes in Baluchistan. rind(rĭnd; rīn), n. [Cf. RIME.] Hoarfrost. Scot. & N. of Eng. rind (rīnd; rĭnd). Var. of RYND. rind disease (rīnd). Plant Pathol. A diseased condition of sugar cane, formerly thought to be a specific disease caused by the rind fungus Melanconium sacchari, but this organism is now known to be an accompaniment of other diseases, esp. red rot.
rind′ed (rīn′dĕd; -dĭd; 119), adj. Having a rind; — used mainly in composition; as, smooth-rinded.
rin′der·pest (rĭn′dĕr·pĕst), n. [G., fr. rind, pl. rinder, cattle + pest pest.] Veter. An acute, highly infectious disease of cattle, and less often of sheep and goats, caused by a filtrable virus, producing diphtheritic inflammation of the mucous membranes, esp. of the intestines; — called also cattle plague and steppe murrain.
rind fungus. An imperfect fungus (Melanconium sacchari) or an ascomycete (Trichosphaeria sacchari); — both so called from a supposed causal relation to the rind disease of sugar cane. See RIND DISEASE.
rind gall (rĭnd). A defect in timber, caused by the growth of annual layers of wood over a bruise in the bark.
rind grafting. Hort. Bark grafting. rin′dle (rĭn′d'l; rīn′l), n. [ME. rinel, rynel, fr. AS. rinnelle, rynel. See RUN, v.; cf. RUNDLE, RUNNELL.] Rivulet; brook; runnel. Now Chiefly Dial.
rin′dle, v. i. To flow, as a rindle, or rivulet. Chiefly Dial.
rind′y (rīn′dĭ), adj. Having a rind or skin.
rine (rīn), n. [G. reinhanf pure (i. e., combed) hemp.] Russian hemp; — called also Riga rine. rine, v. t. [AS. hrīnan.] To pertain to or affect; to touch. Obs. rine, v. i. [AS. rīnan, rīgnan, fr. regn rain. Cf. RAIN.] To rain. Obs. rine (rīn). Var. of RIND. Obs. exc. Dial.
rine (rīn), n. Var. of RHINE, a ditch.
‖rin′for·zan′do (rēn′fôr·tsän′dō), adj. [It., fr. rinforzare to reinforce, strengthen.] Music. Increasing; strengthening; — a direction indicating a sudden increase of force, usually for special emphasis of a phrase or voice part. Abbr. rf., rfz. Cf. SFORZANDO. ring (rĭng), n. [AS. hring; akin to OS. & OHG. hring, D. & G. ring, ON. hringr, Dan. & Sw. ring, Umbrian krenkatrum, OSlav. krągŭ, and perh. to E. RUNG. Cf. HARANGUE, RANK a row, RINK.] 1. A circlet of metal, orig. one worn on the arm, the neck, or a finger; now, specif., a small circlet of precious metal (gold, silver, or platinum) to be worn on a finger, or, sometimes, attached to the nose, ear, or ankle. It often is set with a gem or gems, and some are used as a seal.
2. One of the small iron circles used in making chain mail.
3. Any circular band of metal, wood, fabric, or the like, used for holding, connecting, hanging, etc.; as, curtain rings; a key ring; a napkin ring.
4. The rim or border of a disc or wheel; specif., a circle stamped inside the rim of a coin, to obstruct or prevent clipping.
5. A cut made into or through and around the trunk or a limb of a tree.
6. One of the ridges encircling the horns of cattle, increasing in number with age.
7. A section of tanbark, usually four feet long.
8. Any circular or continuous round line, figure, or object; a circular or round arrangement of things or persons, material, etc.; a circular ripple on the surface of a liquid; a circular or spiral course; as, a ring of forts; a ring of faces; a ring of smoke or of light; to run in a ring.
9. An exclusive combination of persons for a selfish, and often corrupt, purpose, as to control the market, distribute offices, obtain contracts, etc. Cf. TWEED RING.
10. A temporary group of persons working co-operatively; as, a threshing ring.
11. In produce exchange, such a series of buyers and sellers that each buyer is the seller in the same amount of the same goods to another buyer, so that the entire series of transactions can be settled by ringing out (see ring out, under 2d RING).
12. A racecourse, usually circular; hence, an arena or area for competition or display. Specif.: a The arena of a circus or similar entertainment. b An enclosed space in which boxers or pugilists contest, now usually a square enclosure, not more than 20 feet square, surrounded by ropes; hence, figuratively, prize fighting; — called also prize ring. c An enclosure or space in which animals are shown in competition, for sale, or the like; as, the sales ring at a horse auction; the judging ring at a bench show.
13. An enclosure or space devoted to betting at a horse race; hence, fig., those who bet there, esp. the bookmakers.
14. Figuratively, the field of a contest, esp. a political contest; as, he is in the ring for the governorship.
15. Arch. a The archivolt, considered as made up of a half ring of voussoirs. b Any of the parallel courses of half bricks or other small voussoirs forming a rowlock arch.
16. Astron. & Navigation. An instrument, formerly used in taking the sun's altitude, consisting of a brass ring suspended in a vertical plane by a swivel, with a hole at one side through which a solar ray, passing diametrically, indicated the altitude on the graduated inner surface.
17. Bot. a An annulus, as of an agaric. b An annual ring.
18. Chem. An arrangement of atoms represented in formulas or models as a ring; a closed chain. Rings consisting of five or six atoms are the most common, although smaller and also much larger rings are known. Cf. PYRROLE, BENZENE RING.
19. Geom. a The plane figure between two concentric circles. b An anchor ring.
20. Mining. = WATER RING.
Syn. — Hoop, band, circle; group, clique.
☞ COMBINATIONS and PHRASES (in various senses) are:

ring-adorned	ring-eyed	ring-legged ring-banded	ring-formed	ringmaker ring bander	ringgiver	ringmaking ring-billed	ringgiving	ring-ridden ring-bound	ringgoer	ring-shaped ring clew	ring-handled

— to ride, run, or tilt at the ring. To charge on horseback past a suspended ring and try to carry it off on the point of a spear, lance, or the like.
-ring (-rĭng). A combining form of the noun ring, as in earring.
ring (rĭng), v.; RINGED (rĭngd); RING′ING. [From RING a circle.] Transitive: 1. To surround with a ring, or as with a ring; to form a ring around; to encircle; encompass; surround. "Ringed about with bold adversity." Shak.
2. To provide with a ring or with rings, as the fingers, a swine's snout, a curtain rod; to place a ring or rings on.
3. a Hort. & Forestry. To make a ring around by cutting away the bark; to girdle; as, to ring branches, trees or the roots of trees. b To cut into rings or circles.
4. To exhibit or exercise in a ring; to introduce into a ring, as at a dog or horse show or a circus.
5. In games where rings are tossed at a standing or projecting mark, to throw a ring over (the mark).
6. To settle (a contract) by ringing out.
7. To ride round (cattle) in order to hold them together.
—, Intransitive: 1. To move in a ring, or rings; specif., Falconry, to rise in the air spirally.
2. To form or take the shape of a ring or rings.
ring an anchor. Naut. To haul the anchor up until its ring is at the hawsehole or cathead; — usually with up.
ring out. Produce Exchange. To settle or close a transaction, as in futures, by forming into a series a number of buyers and sellers in which the first and the last deal with each other (to complete the ring) and all settle by paying differences.
ring (rĭng), v.; past tense RANG (răng) or RUNG (rŭng); past part. RUNG; pres. part. & verbal n. RING′ING. [AS. hringan; akin to ON. hringja, Sw. ringa, Dan. ringe, MD. ringhen, D. rinkelen; of imitative origin.] Intransitive: 1. To sound clearly and resonantly, as a bell or other metallic sonorous body; as, the doorbell rang; the sword rings on his helmet.
2. To sound sonorously or vibrantly; as, the cheers rang out; his voice rang with indignation; the trumpet rang.
3. To be filled with a ringing or reverberating sound; to resound; reverberate; also, to have the sensation of being filled with such a sound; as, his ears ring.
The hall with harp and carol rang. Tennyson.
4. To cause something to ring; esp., to ring a bell, as in giving a summons; as, to ring for a servant or hot water.
5. To practice bell ringing or making music with bells.
6. To be filled with report or talk; as, the whole town rings with his fame; also, to make loud report or talk; to have great renown; as, his deeds rang through the country.
7. To have a particular sound or character expressive of some quality; — said esp. of utterance in speech or writing; as, his words rang true; his protestations ring hollow.
—, Transitive: 1. To cause to sound, esp. by striking, as a metallic body.
2. To make (a sound), as by ringing a bell; to sound.
The shard-borne beetle, with his drowsy hums, Hath rung night's yawning peal. Shak.
3. To announce, proclaim, or the like by or as if by ringing; as, to ring an alarm; to ring in the new year.
4. To repeat often, loudly, or earnestly; as, to ring denunciations; to ring the praises of a deed or person.
ring backward. = ring the bells backward, below.
ring down. To give the signal for lowering (a curtain, as in a theater); to lower a curtain; also, Colloq., to bring about a conclusion; — with on; as, to ring down on recriminations.
ring in. a Bell Ringing. To cause (a bell) to take part in the changes; to turn in. b Colloq. To introduce unwelcomely, surreptitiously, or fraudulently; to foist; as, to ring in a horse in a race under a false name; to ring in marked cards on one's opponents; to ring in an undesirable companion on a gathering. Also to ring (one) into. c To sound bells or a bell as one enters; as, ring in the new. d To register one's arrival by ringing a time clock; to begin work.
ring in one's ears, memory, etc. Figuratively, to remain in one's memory.
ring off. To terminate a telephone call, formerly by turning a small crank to ring a bell. Hence, Slang, to stop talking.
ring out. To sound bells or a bell as one leaves; as, ring out the old year, ring in the new.
ring the bell. Literally, to strike a bell at the center of a target; hence, to achieve, perform, or the like, with great success.
ring the bells backward. To sound the chimes in the reverse order; — formerly done as a signal of alarm. Scott.
ring the changes on. To present the same facts or arguments in a variety of ways.
ring up. a Colloq. To summon or rouse by or as if by ringing a bell; as, to ring up a doctor; to ring up a person on the telephone. b To give the signal for raising (a curtain, as in a theater); to raise the curtain; also, Colloq., to begin a performance, action, or the like.
ring (rĭng), n. 1. A clear resonant sound made by, or resembling that made by, vibrating metals; as, the ring of a bell; the silvery ring of her laughter; the ring of the hunters' horns.
2. Any loud sound; the sound of numerous voices; a sound continued, repeated, or reverberated.
The ring of acclamations fresh in his ears. Bacon.
3. A set of bells. See CHANGE RINGING; cf. PEAL, 3.
4. A particular sound or character of utterance in speech or writing expressive of some quality; as, his words had a ring of defiance; an unfamiliar ring in his voice.
5. The act or an instance of sounding a bell or the like, or of summoning by means of a bell, a telephone, etc.; specif., a call on the telephone.
Ring (rĭng), n. Short for Ring′stras′se (rĭng′shträs′ĕ). [G.] A series of five wide boulevards forming a crescent with its ends touching the Danube Canal and enclosing the inner city of Vienna. It has many imposing buildings of Renaissance style and beautiful parks and squares. ring (rĭng). Var. of REIGN. Scot.
Ring and the Book, The. A poem, published in four parts, of three books each, 1868–69, by Robert Browning. It is a dramatic analysis, from various points of view, of the case of Count Guido Franceschini, who murdered his wife Pompilia. Cf. POMPILIA. ring armature. Elec. A gramme ring. ring armor. = RING MAIL. ring′-a-ros′y, v. t. To play or dance ring-around-a-rosy to (a song).
Sheets of posies For your feet to ring-a-rosy. Amy Lowell.
ring′-a-round′-a-ros′y, n. A game in which at a given signal in a song all the players, gathered in a circle, squat, the last down being sent to the center as the "rosy."
Rin′ga·tu′ (rĭng′gä·tōō′), n. [Maori ringa hand + tu to stand; — with ref. to raising the hand in prayer.] A semi-Christian Maori sect in New Zealand, a milder development from an anti-Christian cult evolved by the Maoris when fighting against the English (1860–70).
ring′bill′ (rĭng′bĭl′), n. Ring-necked duck. ring′-billed′ duck. Also ring′-billed′ black′head′, ring′-billed′ blue′bill′. The ring-necked duck.
ring-billed gull. A rather small American gull (Larus delawarensis) having, when adult, a black band on the bill.

‖rime′ cou′ée′ (rēm′ kōō′ā′). [F., lit., "tailed rhyme."] = TAILED RHYME. rime′less, adj. See -LESS. rime′ster. Var. of RHYMESTER. rim′ey (rīm′ĭ), v. i. [OF. rimier. See RHYME.] To compose in rhyme; to versify. Obs.
rim′ic (rĭm′ĭk). Var. of RHYMIC. rim′ist (rīm′ĭst). Var. of RHYMIST. [See -LESS. rim′less (rĭm′lĕs; -lĭs; 119), adj.
Rim′mon-pa′rez (rĭm′ŏn·pā′rĕz; -pär′ĕz). Bib. rim′mose, rim′mous. Vars. of RIMOSE. rim′pi (rĭm′pĭ), n. [S. Afr. D.] = RIEM. rim′pl. Rimple. Ref. Sp. rim′pld. Rimpled. Ref. Sp. rim ram ruf. = RUM RAM RUF. Obs. exc. Dial.
rin (rĭn), n. sing. & pl. [Jap.] See COIN, Table.
rin (rĭn), n. sing. & pl. [Jap.] See MEASURE, Table; WEIGHT, Table.
rin (rĭn). Var. of RUN, n. & v. Obs. exc. Dial.
Ri·nal′do (rē·näl′dō), n. [It.] See AYMON, ARMIDA. rince. Var. of RINSE, v. t. rinch. Dial. var. of RINSE, v. t.
Rinde, n. = 5th RIND. rind′less (rīnd′lĕs), adj. See -LESS.
rinel. † RINDLE. rine′stone′. Rhinestone. Ref. Sp.
‖rin′for·za′to (rēn′fôr·tsä′tō), adj. [It.] = RINFORZANDO. rin·fres′ca·tive (rĭn·frĕs′kə·tĭv), adj. [It. rinfrescare to refresh.] Refreshing. Obs.
ring. † WRING.
ring′a·ble, adj. See -ABLE.
ring′-a·round′, n. = RUN-AROUND a. ring′bark′, v. t. = 2d RING, 3 a. — ring′bark′er, n.

ring binder. A loose-leaf binding device affixed in a cover and consisting of a metal back with split rings inserted to hold sheets or booklets.
ring'bird' (rĭng'bûrd'), n. Reed bunting. ring blackbird. The ring ouzel. ring'bolt' (rĭng'bōlt'), n. An eyebolt with a ring through it. See BOLT, n., 5. ring'bone' (-bōn'), n. Veter. Any exostosis on the phalangeal bones of the horse, usually producing lameness. — ring'boned' (-bōnd'), adj.
ring boot. Smithing. A rubber ring placed around the fetlock of a horse to prevent injury from brushing, cutting, or interfering.
ring bore. Mil. A scoring or ring in the bore of a firearm, formed during the reaming by the metal's picking up ahead of the cutter. — ring'-bored', adj.
ring bottle. Ceramics. An earthenware bottle shaped like a ring, originally intended to be borne on the arm.
ring budding. = ANNULAR BUDDING. ring bunting. Reed bunting.
ring canal. Zool. a The circular water tube which surrounds the esophagus of echinoderms. b The circular canal in the edge of the umbrella of a jellyfish. ring carrier. A go-between. Obs.
ring cell. Bot. One of the cells in the annulus of a fern.
ring'-chain' i·som'er·ism. Chem. Isomerism between a cyclic and an aliphatic (open-chain) form, esp. when the two forms are tautomeric (then called also ring-chain tautomerism).
ring chuck. Mach. A chuck that is tightened by screwing a ring on the conical nosepiece of the chuck.
ring clutch. Math. See FRICTION CLUTCH. ring compound. Chem. A compound the molecule of which contains one or more rings. See CYCLIC, adj., 5.
ring cowrie. Zool. The cowrie Cypraea annulus; — so called from the ring of golden color, on the upper side.
ring'craft' (rĭng'krăft'; 83), n. The art, or skill in the art, of conducting oneself in the prize ring.
ring crib. Mining. = WATER RING.
Ring cycle. Wagner's tetralogy of music dramas on the story of the Ring of the Nibelung. See RING OF THE NIBELUNG; RHEINGOLD; WALKÜRIE, DIE; SIEGFRIED; GÖTTERDÄMMERUNG. ring dance. = ROUND DANCE a. ring dial. A small portable dial in the shape of a cylindrical ring for determining time.
ring disease. = BROWN ROT a (3). ring dollar. = HOLEY DOLLAR. ring dotterel. The European ring plover. ring'dove' (rĭng'dŭv'), n. a A common European pigeon (Columba palumbus), larger than the stock dove or rock pigeon, having on each side of the neck a whitish patch and the wing edged with white. b A small dove (Streptopelia risoria) of southeastern Europe and much of Asia, allied to the common turtledove, often kept as a cage bird. It is buffy with a black collar. ring dropper. A sharper who pretends to have found a ring (dropped by himself), and fraudulently tries to induce one to buy it as valuable. — ring dropping. Both Thieves' Slang.
ringe (rĭnj; rĭnzh), n. [Cf. OF. renge a row.] A ridge or row, esp. of hay, vegetables, wood, or brush. Dial. Eng.
ringe (rĭnj; rĭnzh), n. & v. Rinse. Scot. & N. of Eng.
ringed (rĭngd; poet. rĭng'ĕd; -ĭd), adj. 1. Encircled or marked with or as with a ring or rings; forming or shaped like a ring; annular; composed or formed of rings.
2. Wearing a wedding ring; hence, lawfully wedded.
A ringed wife. Tennyson.
ringed dotterel. = RING DOTTEREL. ringed perch. The yellow perch. See PERCH, 1. ringed plover. A ring plover. ringed seal. A seal of northern waters (Phoca hispida) having ringlike white spots on the body.
ringed snake. a A harmless European colubrid snake (Natrix natrix), common in England; — so called from its yellow collar. b = RING-NECKED SNAKE. ringed worm. An annelid.
rin'gent (rĭn'jĕnt), adj. [L. ringens, -entis, pres. part. of ringi to open wide the mouth.] Gaping; grinning; specif.: a Bot. Having the lips widely separated and gaping like an open mouth; as, a ringent corolla. b Zool. Gaping irregularly, as the valves of certain bivalves.

Ringent Corolla.

ring'er (rĭng'ĕr), n. 1. One who or that which rings, encircles, or puts a ring around, something, as a quoit that lodges so as to surround the peg or pin, or the throw by which it is so lodged.
2. Any person or thing of highest excellence in some particular activity.
3. In pool, any ball encircled with a distinguishing band of color, usually any of those numbered from nine to fifteen.
4. One who puts rings, or bands, on articles, as bottles, cigars, fishhooks, etc.
5. One who rings trees.
6. A game of marbles in which the players shoot marbles from a ring marked on the ground.
ring'er (rĭng'ĕr), n. 1. One who or that which rings, as one who rings chimes, a hand bell, etc.
2. A device providing electric current for operating telephone bells.
3. In Slang senses (see ring in, under 3d RING): a One that enters any competition under false representations as to his identity, past performances, or the like; esp., a horse entered fraudulently in a race under a false name to obtain better odds in the betting. b Hence, one who strongly resembles another; as, that man is a ringer for so-and-so. c A swindler operating with false or sweated coins, or manipulating coins to defraud; — called in full a coin ringer.
Ring'er's so·lu'tion or flu'id (rĭng'ĕrz). [After Sydney Ringer (1835–1910), Eng. physiologist.] Physiol. A balanced aqueous solution of the chlorides of sodium, potassium, and calcium, sodium bicarbonate, and sodium dihydrogen phosphate, used in physiological experiments. It is favorable to the continued activity of many isolated animal tissues, esp. those of poikilothermic animals. It is generally substituted for the normal body fluid of the animal or tissue under experimentation. Cf. PHYSIOLOGICAL SALT SOLUTION.
ring'eye' (rĭng'ī'), n. The white-eye. ring fence. A fence that encircles a large area, or a whole estate, within one enclosure.
ring'-fence', v. t. To enclose in or as in a ring fence.
ring finger. The third finger of the left hand, on which the engagement and wedding rings are placed; also, the corresponding finger of the right hand. ring formula. Chem. A structural formula containing one or more rings. See FORMULA, 5; 1st RING, 18. ring frame. = RING SPINNER. ring gauge. 1. Mach. See GAUGE, n., 10.
2. A tapering staff of circular cross section, marked so as to show sizes, and used for measuring finger rings.
ring gear. Mach. A gear cut on a ring-shaped rim; specif., in an automobile, the large gear in the differential that is driven by the propeller shaft pinion and transmits the power through the differential to the live axle.
ring'hals' (rĭng'hâls'), n., or ring'hals' co'bra. [S. Afr. D., fr. D. ring ring + hals neck. See HALS.] Zool. The spitting snake (which see). ring'head' (rĭng'hĕd'), n. Cloth Mfg. An instrument used for stretching woolen cloth. ring'-in', n. Act of ringing in; that which is rung in.
ring'i·ness (rĭng'ĭ·nĕs; -nĭs; 119), n. State of being ringy; specif., Lumbering, state of having the annual rings of wood easily separable. Cf. RING SHAKE.
ring'ing (rĭng'ĭng), pres. part. & verbal n. of RING, to encircle. Hence: n. Act or result of putting a ring or rings on or about something, or the state of being encircled, marked, or the like, by a ring or rings.
ring'ing, pres. part. & verbal n. of RING, to sound. Hence: n. 1. A sounding or causing to sound, as a bell or other sonorous body.
2. A sound of ringing or a sensation like that caused by the sound of ringing; as, a ringing in the ears.
ring'ing, adj. Sounding sonorously, as does a bell when rung or a piece of metal when struck; resounding; as, a ringing cheer. — ring'ing·ly, adv.
A snow-blanched evening of ringing pavements. Sinclair Lewis.
ringing crate. A strong wooden crate with a stanchion at one end and used for holding hogs while rings are being placed in their noses.
ringing engine. A simple form of pile driver in which the pile hammer is lifted by men pulling on ropes.
ringing loft. A floor for bell ringers in the tower of a church.
ring'ite (rĭng'īt), n. [From Ringsevia, Telemark, Norway.] Petrog. A carbonate-silicate rock, composed of feldspar, calcite (considered magmatic), aegirite, diopside, and apatite. ring'le (rĭng''l), n. A ringing or tinkling sound. Scot. — v. i. To ring or tinkle. Dial.
ring'le (rĭng''l), n. a Now Dial. A metal ring. b A circle. ring'le, v. t. To put a ring through the snout of (a pig). Obs. exc. Dial.
ring'lead' (rĭng'lĕd'), v. i. & t. To act as a ringleader; to lead as a ringleader.
ring'lead'er (-lēd'ĕr; 66), n. [From RING a group.] A leader of any body of men or animals, specif. of a body of persons engaged in violation of law or an improper enterprise, as rioters, mutineers, etc. ring'le·eye' (rĭng''l-ē'), n. A walleye. Scot. — ring'le-eyed' (-ēd'), adj. Scot.
ring'let (rĭng'lĕt; -lĭt; 119), n. [ring + -let.] 1. A small ring; a small circle; specif., a fairy ring. Shak.
2. A curl; esp., a long curl of hair.
ring'let·ed, adj. Having ringlets, or curls; worn in ringlets.
ring'let·y (rĭng'lĕ·tĭ; -lĭ·tĭ), adj. Tending to form ringlets.
ring lock. A kind of combination lock in which a series of grooved rings surrounding the bolt must be arranged so as to bring their grooves in line before the bolt can be shot.
ring mail. Armor. a Chain mail; also mail in which the rings are unusually large. b A kind of mail made of small steel rings sewed upon a garment of leather or of cloth. ring'man (rĭng'măn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). a Obs. exc. Dial. The ring finger. b Eng. One who makes books of bets. ring'mas'ter (-mâs'tĕr; 83), n. One in charge of the performances within the ring, as in a circus.
ring micrometer. See MICROMETER a. ring money. Annular pieces of metal used as money among primitive peoples.
ring mountain. Astron. One of the circular formations on the moon, smaller than the walled plains and with lower and more broken boundaries; — called also mountain ring.
ring mule. = RING SPINNER. ring nebula. Astron. a An annular nebula. See planetary nebulae, under NEBULA, 1. b [caps.] The Nebula of Lyra (which see).
ring'neck' (rĭng'nĕk'), n. 1. A ring-necked bird, as a ring plover, a ring-necked duck, or a ring-necked pheasant.
2. [From wearing white collars.] A newcomer in the bush; a jackaroo. Slang, Australia.
ring'-necked' duck (-nĕkt'). An American scaup duck (Nyroca, syn. Marila, collaris). The head, neck, and breast of the adult male are black, and a narrow chestnut ring encircles the neck. The sides are vermiculated with black and the belly is mostly white.

1/12
Ring-necked Duck.

ring-necked lizard. The collared lizard. ring-necked parakeet. A medium-sized parakeet (Palaeornis torquatus) found from western Africa to the Red Sea and in India, bluish green with a black collar and reddish bill. It is often kept as a pet.
ring-necked pheasant. A pheasant (Phasianus colchicus torquatus) of China, similar to the common pheasant, with which it is often crossed, but having a white neck ring. ring-necked plover. A ring plover. ring-necked snake. Also ringneck snake. A small, harmless, North American snake (Diadophis punctatus) having a yellow collar around the neck, the back ash-colored or sage green, and the belly orange red. Also, any of the similar snakes of this same genus of Colubridae.
ring necrosis. Plant Pathol. A browning of the vascular ring in stems or tubers, as that characteristic of fusarium wilt and a form of necrosis of the potato caused by frost.
ring'-off', n. Act or instance of ringing off.
Ring of Po·lyc'ra·tes (pŏ·lĭk'rȧ·tēz). A ring belonging to Polycrates (see Biog.) According to legend, he was persuaded to throw it into the sea in order to avert the possible jealousy of the gods; but in vain, since it was soon found in a fish which was presented to the tyrant.
ring of Solomon or Jupiter. See PALMISTRY.
Ring of the Ni'be·lung (nē'bĕ·lo͝ong). [G. Der Ring des Nibelungen.] The ring made by the dwarf Alberich from the Rheingold (which see). Its story is the theme of a tetralogy of music dramas by Richard Wagner, which collectively bear this name. ring'-oil', v. t. Mach. To oil (a bearing) by conveying the oil to the point to be lubricated by means of a ring, which rests upon and turns with the journal, and dips into a reservoir containing the lubricant.
ring oiler. Mach. A ring-oiling device. ring ouzel. A thrush (Turdus, syn. Merula, torquatus) allied to the European blackbird and the American robin. It is black, with a white bar across the breast. It breeds in northern and mountainous Europe, migrating to Africa. ring parakeet, ring parrot. Any of several Old World, chiefly green, parakeets having a red ring around the neck, as Palaeornis torquata, found in India, and P. alexandri of Java.

Ring Ouzel. (¼) ring perch. The yellow perch. Local, U. S. ring pin. A pin whose head is in the form of a ring for receiving a label or the like.

ring plain. Astron. A lunar crater of exceptional diameter with level interior.
ring plover. Any of certain small plovers of the widely distributed genera Charadrius, Oxyechus, and Pagolla, having the upper part chiefly brownish or buffy and the under parts white, with a black breast band, or collar. The common European species is C. hiaticula; the best-known American forms are the semipalmated, piping, and killdeer plovers.

1/4
Ring Plover (Charadrius semipalmatus).

ring'-po'rous (rĭng'-pō'rŭs; 181), adj. Forestry. Having the annual rings marked by a line of large pores, as in oaks, hickories, and other trees. See POROUS.
ring rope. Naut. A rope rove through sheaves in the cathead and the ring of an anchor to haul the latter close up under the former; also, a rope for bending a cable to an anchor. ring rot. 1. Logging. Decay in a log, following closely the annual rings.
2. Plant Pathol. A disease of sweet potatoes caused by Rhizopus nigricans, in which the roots are girdled by bands of dry rot.
ring screw. A screw having a ring formed on its end, as for attaching chain, rope, etc. ring settlement. Produce Exchanges. A settlement made by ringing out. See ring out, under 2d RING.
ring shake. Forestry. A defect in timber consisting of shrinkage and separation of the annual rings; — called also cup shake.
ring'side' (rĭng'sīd'), n. A place just outside a ring, esp. a ring where a contest occurs; hence, a place from which one may have a close view.
ring'sid'er (-sīd'ĕr), n. One who sits at a ringside. ring'-small', adj. Designating stones, as for road making, broken small enough to pass through a ring of specified diameter. — n. Ring-small stones. ring snake. a = RING SNAKE a. b = RING-NECKED SNAKE. ring spinner. A machine for spinning, in which the twist, given to the yarn by a revolving bobbin, is regulated by the drag of a small metal loop sliding on a ring around the bobbin, instead of by a throstle. Hence, ring spinning.
ring spot. Plant Pathol. a An anthracnose of lettuce caused by Marssonina panattoniana, producing leaf spots and shot holes. b A fungous disease of sugar cane caused by Leptosphaeria sacchari, characterized by the purple-bordered spots. c A disease of cauliflower and related crucifers caused by the fungus Mycosphaerella brassicaecola. d A virus disease of tobacco and related plants in which chlorotic rings occur on the leaves. e = FROGEYE a. f = FAIRY-RING SPOT. g A fungous disease of agaves, including sisal, caused by Colletotrichum agaves, producing pale circular lesions.
ring stand. Chem. A stand, usually of iron, consisting of a long rod attached to a heavy rectangular base, and used with rings and clamps fastened to the rod to support distilling flasks, retorts, condensers, etc.
ring'ster (rĭng'stĕr), n. A member of a ring, or clique, esp. of a political ring; — chiefly opprobrious. Colloq.
ring stick, or ring'stick' (rĭng'stĭk'), n. Jewelry. a A taper leather-covered wooden rod for polishing the insides of rings. b A ring gauge (sense 2). ring stone. A voussoir showing on the face of the wall; — so called as helping to make up the arch ring or archivolt.
ring stopper. Naut. a Formerly, a cathead stopper. b The chain passing under and around the shank of an anchor near the ring and made fast to the releasing tumbler, in securing an anchor on the billboard. ring'-straked' (rĭng'strākt'), adj. Ring-streaked. Archaic.
ring'-streaked', adj. Marked with circular bands or streaks, as of color.
ring system. a A system of hydraulic power distribution in which the water, after doing its work, is returned to the power station and used over again. b Astron. The thin, flat rings surrounding the ball of the planet Saturn.
ring'tail' (rĭng'tāl'), n. 1. a Local, Eng. The female or immature hen harrier. b An immature golden eagle. c The Hudsonian godwit. See GODWIT.
2. The ring-tailed cat, or cacomistle; also, its fur.
3. Naut. A kind of studding sail set on the gaff of a fore-and-aft sail abaft the leech, — rarely used. Also ringsail.
ringtail boom. Naut. A spar rigged on a boom of a fore-and-aft sail for setting a ringtail.
ring'-tailed' (rĭng'tāld'), adj. a Having a tail marked with rings of differing colors. b Having the tail carried in the form of a circle, as certain dogs.
ring-tailed cat. The cacomistle. ring-tailed eagle. An immature golden eagle. ring-tailed lemur. A Madagascan lemur (Lemur catta). ring-tailed marlin. Also ringtail marlin. The Hudsonian godwit. See GODWIT. Local, U. S. ring'taw' (rĭng'tȯ'), n. A kind of game at marbles.
ring thrush. The ring ouzel. ring'time' (rĭng'tīm'), n. The season of putting on rings. Nonceword.
ring'toss' (rĭng'tŏs'), n. A game in which the object is to toss a ring so that it will drop over a stick. See QUOIT.

ring'er. † WRINGER.	ring'lead'er·less, adj. See -LESS.	ring'less, adj. See -LESS.	ring'-necked', adj. See -NECKED.	rin'goll. † RINGLE. [TAIL, 3.	Ring'stras'se (rĭng'shtrȧs'ẽ), n. ring'ing·ness, n. See -NESS.	ring'lead'er·ship, n. See -SHIP.	ring'like', adj. See -LIKE.	rin'go. † ERYNGO a.	ring'sail', n. Naut. = RING-]	[G.] = 5th RING.

ring traveler. Ring Spinning. The small hoop which slides on the ring and imparts a twist to the thread, distributes the thread evenly over the bobbin, and regulates the tension in winding.

ring'-up', n. Act or instance of ringing up.

ring wad. Mil. = GROMMET, 4.

ring'walk' (rĭng'wôk'), n. A walk, made by hunters, around a wood, copse, or the like. Archaic.

ring'wall' (rĭng'wôl'), n. A wall that encircles an area.

ring willow. A variety of weeping willow (Salix babylonica crispa) with folded and spirally curved leaves.

ring winding. Elec. Armature winding in which the wire is wound round the outer and inner surfaces alternately of an annular or cylindrical core. Cf. GRAMME RING, DRUM WINDING.

Ring Winding. Diagram showing one Winding. S South; N North.

ring'wise' (rĭng'wīz'), adv. Like a ring; annularly.

ring'worm' (rĭng'wûrm'), n. 1. Med. & Veter. Any of several contagious diseases of the skin of man and domestic animals, caused by fungi, esp. of the genera Trichophyton and Epidermophyton, and characterized by ring-shaped discolored patches covered with vesicles and scales, and by various disorders of the hair.
2. A millepede; — so called from the way it curls up.

ringworm bush. A tropical American shrub (Cassia alata) with leaves used as a cure for ringworm and poisonous bites.

ring'y (rĭng'ĭ), adj. Having rings of discoloration; — said of elephants' teeth; also, resembling or suggesting a ring, or circle.

ring'y, adj. Resonant; vibrant.

rink (rĭngk), n. [Scot., earlier renk, a course, a race, fr. OF. renc. See RANK a row.] 1. A course; race; encounter. Obs. Scot.
2. A smooth and level extent of ice marked off for curling.
3. A division of a bowling green, 19 to 21 feet in width and running the length of the green, large enough for a match.
4. In curling, quoits, or bowls, the players composing one side.
5. An enclosed sheet of ice, usually artificial and under cover, for skating; a building containing such a rink; hence, also, a covered enclosure prepared for roller skating.

rink, v. i. To skate at a rink. — rink'er (rĭngk'ĕr), n.

rink, n. [Cf. RING.] A ring; circle. — v. t. & i. To ring; encircle. Both Scot. & Dial. Eng.

rink, n. [AS. rinc.] A man; hero; warrior. Obs.

rin'ka fad'da (rĭng'kȧ fŏth'dȧ). [See RINNCE FADA.] An Irish dance resembling the Virginia reel; — called also rinka.

rink'ite (rĭngk'ĭt), n. [After H. Rink, Dan. inspector in Greenland.] Mineral. A yellowish crystalline silicate of cerium, etc.

Rin'man's green (rĭn'mȧnz). [After Sven Rinman (1720–92), Sw. mineralogist.] Cobalt green.

rinn'ce fad'a (rĭng'kȧ fŏth'dȧ). [Ir. rince dance + fada long. Cf. RINKA.] Rinka fadda.

rin'ne·ite (rĭn'ē-īt), n. [After Fritz Rinne (b. 1863), Ger. mineralogist.] Mineral. A chloride of iron, potassium, and sodium, $FeCl_2.3KCl.NaCl$, occurring in colorless, pink, violet, or yellow, granular masses. H., 3. Sp. gr., 2.3. rin'ner (rĭn'ĕr), n. Runner. Obs. exc. Scot. & Dial. Eng.

rinse (rĭns; 232), v. t.; RINSED (rĭnst); RINS'ING (rĭn'sĭng). [ME. rinsen, rincen, fr. OF. rincer, fr. reincier, fr. recincier, fr. (assumed) VL. recentiare to make fresh, fr. L. recens fresh. See RECENT.] 1. To wash lightly; to cleanse with water only.
2. To cleanse by the introduction of water; — applied especially to hollow vessels; as, to rinse a bottle.
Like a glass did break i' the rinsing. Shak.
3. To cleanse from the soap used in washing, by agitating in clear water or by pouring clear water over; as, to rinse clothes, hair, or hands.
4. To remove (dirt, impurities, etc.) by washing lightly or in water only.

rinse, n. 1. Act or process of rinsing.
2. A wash or douche.

rins'er (rĭn'sĕr), n. One who or that which rinses.

rins'ing (rĭn'sĭng), n. The water that has been used to rinse a vessel; hence, the last dregs; — usually in pl.

rin'there·out', rin'ther·out' (rĭn'ŧhĕr·ōŏt'), n. & adj. [Dial. rin to run.] Vagrant; vagabond; tramp. Scot.

Ri'o (rē'ō), n. [From Rio de Janeiro, Brazil.] A variety of coffee. See COFFEE, 2.

ri'o (rē'ō), n.; pl. RIOS (-ōz). [Sp. rio.] A river.

||ri'o (rē'ō), n.; pl RII (-ē). [It.] Literally, small stream; — applied esp. to the smaller water streets of Venice. Cf. CANALE.

Ri'o de Ja·nei'ro (rē'ō dā zhȧ·nā'rō; Pg. rē'ōŏ·ŧhĕ·zhȧ·nā'rōō). a The capital of Brazil. b Figuratively, the government of Brazil.

Ri'o Gran'de dis·ease' (rē'ō grăn'dā). Plant Pathol. A disease of lettuce of unknown cause, first reported from the Rio Grande Valley. The older leaves become reddish, esp. on the tips, while the younger central ones blanch and do not grow to normal size.

Rio ipecac. See IPECAC, 2 a.

Ri'o'lan's' arch (rē'ō'lănz'). [After J. Riolan (d. 1657), French physician.] Anat. The arch of the transverse mesocolon.

Riolan's bones. Anat. Small fragments of bone sometimes found in the petro-occipital suture.

ri'ot (rī'ŭt), n. [OF. riote (F. riotte) a quarrel, dispute, fr. rihoter, ruihoter, to quarrel, fr. ruire, ruir, to roar, fr. L. rugire. See 1st RUT.] 1. Profligate or extravagant living; excessive, wild, and loose festivity; revelry. "Venus loveth riot." Chaucer.
2. Disorderly behavior; disorder; uproar; tumult. Cf. run riot, under RUN, v. "His headstrong riot." Shak.
3. A vivid and confused view, noise, or the like; as, a riot of sound or color.
4. Hunting. A hound's following the scent of a kind of animal which it was not intended to hunt.
5. Noisy acclaim; hence, a success so marked. Slang.
6. An instance of violent disorder by unruly persons. Specif.: Law. The tumultuous disturbance of the public peace by an unlawful assembly of three or more persons in the execution of some private object. The usual (equivalent) definition is that given in 1 Hawkins's Pleas of the Crown, c. 65, § 1, as follows: "A tumultuous disturbance of the peace by three or more persons assembling together of their own authority with an intent mutually to assist one another against any one who shall oppose them in the execution of some enterprise of a private nature and afterwards actually executing the same in a violent and turbulent manner to the terror of the people, and this whether the act intended be of itself lawful or unlawful."
Syn. — Clamor, din, brawl; carousal, excess.

ri'ot (rī'ŭt), v.; RI'OT·ED; RI'OT·ING. [OF. rioter, rihoter.] Intransitive: 1. To engage in riot; to act in an unrestrained or wanton manner; to indulge in excess of luxury, feasting, or the like; to revel; to run riot; to flourish exceedingly.
Riots in pleasure, and neglects the law. Daniel.
No pulse that riots, and no blood that glows. Pope.
2. To create or engage in a disturbance or tumult; specif., Law, to disturb the peace by a riot. See RIOT, n., 6.
——, Transitive: 1. To disturb by a riot, tumult, or disorder; to commit disorderly conduct in relation to; to ravage. Obs.
2. To attack and despoil (property, a person, etc.); — of rioters.
3. To spend or pass in riot; as, to riot away one's life.

ri'ot. Var. of RYOT.

Riot Act. 1. Eng. An act (1 Geo. I, st. 2, c. 5, 1715) providing that if any twelve persons are unlawfully assembled to the disturbance of the peace, any justice of the peace, sheriff, undersheriff, or mayor of a town may command them by proclamation to disperse, and that if they shall contemn his order and continue together for an hour or more afterwards they shall be guilty of felony. The Act has not generally been enacted in the United States.
2. [not cap.] A strong, vigorous reproof or warning; as, to read the riot act to a sulky boy.

ri'ot·er (rī'ŭt·ĕr), n. One who riots; specif.: a Archaic. A profligate liver; a reveler; a roisterer. b One who creates or engages in a disturbance or tumult; specif., Law, one who engages in a riot. See RIOT, n., 6. c Obs. One who commits an outrage or trespass, esp. against property.

riot gun. Mil. Any small arm, firing shot or slugs, used especially to disperse rioters or the like, rather than to inflict serious injuries or cause fatalities.

ri'ot·ing (rī'ŭt·ĭng), adj. That riots. — ri'ot·ing·ly, adv.

ri'ot·ist (-ĭst), n. One who believes in rioting, or who riots, esp. against a grievance. — ri'ot·is'tic (-ĭs'tĭk), adj.

ri'ot·oo'ra·cy (-ōō'rȧ·sĭ), n. A form of society in which violence and disorder prevail.

ri'ot·ous (rī'ŭt·ŭs), adj. [OF., quarrelsome.] Involving, or engaging in, riot; specif.: a Wanton; unrestrained; profligate.
The younger son . . . took his journey into a far country, and there wasted his substance with riotous living. Luke xv. 13.
b Of the nature of a riot (sense 6); seditious; tumultuous. — ri'ot·ous·ly, adv. — ri'ot·ous·ness, n.

ri'ot·ry (rī'ŭt·rĭ), n. Rioting; riot; also, rioters collectively.

riot, strike, and civil commotion insurance. See INSURANCE, n., 1.

rip (rĭp), v.; RIPPED (rĭpt); RIP'PING. [Appar. of Scand. or LG. origin; cf. Dan. rippe, reppe, Sw. reppa, MLG. reppen, Flem. rippen, Fris. rippe.] Transitive: 1. To divide or separate the parts of by cutting or tearing; to tear or cut open, asunder, or off; to tear off or out by violence; as, to rip a garment; to rip off the skin of a beast; to rip up a floor; — often used with up, open, off.
2. To take out or away by or as by cutting or tearing.
He'll rip the fatal secret from her heart. Granville.
3. To tear up for search or disclosure, or for alteration; to search to the bottom; to discover; disclose. Now Rare.
For brethren to debate and rip up their falling out in the ear of a common enemy . . . is neither wise nor comely. Milton.
4. a To saw or split (wood) lengthwise of the grain or fiber. b To remove and replace tiles on a roof.
——, Intrans.: 1. To become torn apart or split open or asunder, esp., in a garment, by cutting or breaking stitches.
2. To go ahead, move, or proceed headlong or at full speed or energy; as, to let an engine rip. Colloq.
3. To break forth into vehement, often profane, utterance; — often with out; as, to rip out with an oath. Colloq.
4. To strike violently or viciously.
Syn. — See TEAR.

rip out. To utter violently and suddenly, as an oath. Colloq.

rip, n. 1. A rent made by ripping, esp. by a seam giving way; a tear; a place torn; laceration.
2. A metal tool for ripping out nails.
3. A rush; speed; pace. Colloq.

rip, n. [Perh. later form of REP, in this sense, but cf. LG. dial. rips a gaunt person or horse.] A mean, vicious, or worthless thing or person, as a scamp, a debauchee, or a worn-out horse. Colloq.

rip, n. [Cf. RIPPLE a little wave.] a A body of water made rough by the meeting of opposing tides or currents. b A portion of a current roughened by passing over a shoal; — applied esp. to tidal currents, more rarely to land streams.

rip (rĭp), n. [ON. hrip.] A kind of wicker fish basket; also, a coop for fowl. Dial.

rip, n. A whetstone or strop used to sharpen a scythe. Dial.

rip, n. [Northern form of reap handful of grain; cf. dial. rip to reap.] A small bunch of hay or of grain in the stalk. Cf. 5th GAVEL, 1 b.

rip-. A combining form used as a vague intensive, as in rip-roaring.

ri'pa (rī'pȧ), n. [L. See RIVER.] 1. A bank of a river, beyond which the waters do not normally flow.
2. Anat. A line of reflection of the ependyma from the surface of a brain ventricle.

ri'pal (-păl), adj. [L. ripa bank + -al.] Riparian. Rare.

ri·par'i·al (rĭ·pâr'ĭ·ăl; rī-), adj. Zool. Riparian; living on or frequenting the banks of streams or other waters.

ri·par'i·an (rĭ·pâr'ĭ·ăn; rī-; 277), adj. [L. riparius. See RIVER.] 1. Of, pertaining to, or living on, the bank of a river, of a lake, or of a tidewater.
2. Anat. Of or pertaining to a ripa (sense 2).

ri·par'i·an, n. One who lives, or has property, on the bank of a river.

riparian rights. Law. The rights of a person owning land containing or bordering on a watercourse or other body of water in or to its banks, bed, or waters. At the common law a person owning land bordering a nonnavigable stream owns the bed of the stream to the filum aquae, or thread of the stream, and may make reasonable use of its waters. Cf. FORESHORE.

Ri·pa'ri·i (rĭ·pā'rĭ·ī), n. pl. [L.] The Ripuarian division of the Franks. See RIPUARIAN, adj.

ri·par'i·ous (rĭ·pâr'ĭ·ŭs; rī-), adj. [L. riparius.] Growing or living along the banks of rivers; riparial.

rip cord. Aeronautics. A cord by which the gas bag of a balloon may be ripped open for a limited distance to release the gas quickly and so cause immediate descent.

ripe (rīp), adj.; RIP'ER (rīp'ĕr); RIP'EST (rīp'ĕst; -ĭst; 119). [AS. rīpe; akin to OS. rīpi, D. rijp, G. reif, OHG. rīfi, and to E. REAP.] 1. Ready for reaping or gathering; having attained perfection; mature; — said of fruits, seeds, etc.; as, ripe grain. Botanically, a fruit is ripe when its seeds are mature and fit for germination. In horticulture it is ordinarily said to be ripe when in condition for use as food, although many unripe fruits are also eaten.
2. Like ripened fruit in ruddiness and plumpness.
3. Advanced by keeping to the state of fitness or best condition for use; mellow; — said of foods; as, ripe cheese; ripe wine; ripe game.
4. Having attained full development; mature; perfected; consummate; as, a ripe scholar. "Ripe courage." Chaucer. Also, far advanced in years; as, a ripe old age.
5. Maturated or perfectly suppurated; ready to discharge; — said of abscesses, sores, tumors, etc.
6. Ready for action or effect; prepared.
While things were just ripe for a war. Addison.
7. Intoxicated. Slang. "Reeling ripe." Shak.
8. In technical senses: a Of claims, mature. b Free from budding cells; matured; — said of yeasts. c Ready for operation; — said of a cataract in the eye. d Forestry. Mature, — of a forest whose height growth is ended and diameter growth is decreasing. e Hort. Having the wood sufficiently matured to root when made into cuttings; as, ripe wood, cions, slips. f Zool. Mature; ready to be discharged, as eggs; also, containing ripe eggs or spermatozoa, as a fish at spawning time.
Syn. — Full-grown; finished; fit, ready. See MATURE.
Ant. — Unripe, green; unseasoned; uncured; callow, inexperienced; unready.
☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are:

ripe-aged	ripe-eared	ripe-picked ripe-bending	ripe-faced	ripe-red ripe-cheeked	ripe-grown	ripe-tongued ripe-colored	ripe-looking	ripe-witted ripe (rīp), v. t. & i. [AS. rīpian.] To ripen; mature.

ripe (rīp), v. t. & i. [AS. rȳpan.] Obs. exc. Scot. & N. of Eng. 1. To plunder; rob; rifle.
2. To search; ransack; examine; also, to empty, as a pocket.
3. To clean; to clear. Scot.
4. To break up or remove stones from (rough ground). Scot. & N. of Eng.

-ripe (-rīp). A combining form of ripe, adj., as in: bloodripe, rareripe, roperipe, sheafripe, weeping-ripe.

ripe (rīp), n. [L. ripa.] Riverbank; seashore. Now Rare.

ripe (rīp). Var. of REAP. Obs. exc. Dial.

ripe'ly (rīp'lĭ), adv. In a ripe manner; maturely; at the fit time or in the fit manner; thoroughly.

rip'en (rīp'ĕn), v.; -ENED (-ĕnd); -EN·ING. Intransitive: 1. To grow ripe; to become mature, as grain or fruit.
2. To approach or come to perfection or completeness or to fitness for action, execution, use, or the like.
3. Med. To become ready to discharge; — of abscesses, tumors, etc.
——, Trans.: 1. To make ripe; as, the sun ripens fruit.
2. To mature; to fit or prepare; to bring to perfection or completeness or to a state of fitness for use, execution, or the like; as, to ripen the judgment; to ripen a plan; to ripen clay for pottery making (cf. AGE, v. i., 2 b; v. t., 1); to ripen cream in buttermaking. In buttermaking, cream is ripened by the action of acid-forming bacteria upon the milk sugar, the acidity (souring) which develops reducing the loss of fat in the buttermaking, decreasing the churning time, and improving the flavor of the butter. The optimum degree of acidity for these purposes is from 0.45 to 0.5 per cent.
3. Med. To cause to become ready to discharge.
Syn. — Perfect, mellow, develop, complete.

rip'en·er (rīp'ĕn·ĕr), n. One who or that which ripens.

ripe'ness (rīp'nĕs; -nĭs; 119), n. [AS. rīpness.] State or quality of being ripe; maturity; completeness; perfection; as, the ripeness of grain, of manhood, of judgment.
Psychical ripeness was much behind even the physical. D. H. Lawrence.

rip'en·ing (rīp'ĕn·ĭng; -nĭng), adj. That ripens. — rip'en·ing·ly, adv.

rip'er (rīp'ĕr), n. A ripener.

ripe rot. Plant Pathol. Any decay of ripe fruit caused by various fungi, as that of the guava caused by Glomerella psidii and of cranberries by Sporonema oxycocci; specif., bitter rot of apples and other fruits.

ripe stump. Forestry. A dead stump.

rip'gut' (rĭp'gŭt'), n. A troublesome weedy European grass (Bromus maximus gussoni) adventive in California. Calif.

rip hook. A reaping hook. Dial. Eng.

ri·pic'o·lous (rĭ·pĭk'ō·lŭs; rī-), adj. [L. ripa bank + -colous.] Zool. Riparial; riparious.

ri·pid'o·lite (rĭ·pĭd'ō·līt; rī-), n. [Gr. rhipis, rhipidos, fan + -lite.] Mineral. a Clinochlore. b Prochlorite.

ri·pie'nist (rē·pyā'nĭst), n. Music. A ripieno player.

ri·pie'no (rē·pyā'nō), adj. [It.] Music. a Filling up; supplementary; — applied to an instrument or performer serving solely to swell the mass, or tutti, of an orchestra, as distinguished from one having a prominent individual part. b In directions, = TUTTI, adj.

ri·pie'no, n.; pl. -NI (-nē), -NOS (-nōz). Music. A supplementary instrument or performer.

ri·poste', ri·post' (rē·pōst'), n. [F. riposte, fr. risposte, fr. It. risposta, fr. rispondere to answer. See RESPOND.] 1. In fencing, a quick return thrust after a parry.
2. A quick and sharp retort; a repartee. J. Morley.

ri·poste', ri·post', v. i. [F. riposter.] To make a riposte, either verbally or in fencing; to retort quickly. — v. t. To utter as a retort; to retort.
"Absolutely certain," riposted the bookman. Pall Mall Mag.

rip'pa·ble (rĭp'ȧ·b'l), adj. See RIP, v.; -ABLE.

rip panel. Aeronautics. A strip in the upper part of the fabric of a balloon or semirigid or nonrigid airship, which is torn off when immediate deflation is desired.

rip'per (rĭp'ĕr), n. 1. One who or that which rips; a ripping tool. Specif.: a A long bar or thin steel blade, notched to draw nails, used to remove damaged roofing slates, etc.; a ripping bar. b A ripsaw. c An implement for cutting stitches in ripping open seams in cloth. d A machine with revolvable knives for cutting millboard.
2. Any person or thing very good or remarkable of its kind. Slang.
3. = DOUBLE-RIPPER.
4. [cap.] = JACK THE RIPPER.
5. Wiredrawing. Any of the larger blocks on which the first few drawings are effected.

rip'per, n. See RIPPIER.

---

ri·ni'tis. Rhinitis. Ref. Sp.

rin'ka (rĭng'kȧ), n. See RINKA FADDA.

rink'ey fod'der. Corruption [of rinka fadda.] rin'kle. † WRINKLE.

rink polo. See 1st POLO b rinn. † RUN, v.

Rin'nah (rĭn'ȧ). Bib.

ri'no. † RHINO, money. [Sp.] ri'no·plas'ty. Rhinoplasty. Ref.

rin'sa·ble, adj. See -ABLE.

rinst. Rinsed. Ref. Sp.

ri'ot·ise (rī'ŭt·īz), n. Riot; excess; revelry. Obs.

ri'ot-proof' (60), adj. See -PROOF.

ri'peck. Var. of RYPECK.

ripe'like', adj. See -LIKE.

Ri'phath (rī'fĭth). Bib.

ripier. † RIPPIER. [Ref. Sp.] rip'l, rip'ld. Ripple, rippled.

rip'on. Var. of RIFFON.

ripp (rĭp). Scot. var. of REAP, v. & n. [part. of REAP. Obs.] rip'ped (dial. rĭp'ĕd; -ĭt). Pass.

ripper act or bill. An act or a bill conferring upon a chief executive, as a governor or mayor, large powers of appointment and removal of heads of departments or other subordinate officials; also, such an act or bill conferring upon a State board the power to grant franchises, or restricting the appointive power of a governor. Slang, U. S.

rip'per·man (rĭp'ĕr·măn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). An operator of a ripper.

rip'pet (rĭp'ĕt), n. Romp; uproar; quarrel. Scot. & Dial.

rip'pier, rip'ier (rĭp'yĕr), n. Also rip'per (rĭp'ĕr), etc. [From RIP basket.] A fish peddler. Obs. exc. Hist.

rip'ping (rĭp'ĭng), adj. a That rips. b Slang. Remarkable of its kind for size, excellence, or the like; admirable; as, a ripping musician; a ripping lie. — rip'ping·ly, adv. — rip'ping·ness, n.

ripping bar. A bar having one end formed into a ripping chisel and whose other end is shaped like a gooseneck and is notched for use in pulling nails.

Ripping Chisel.

ripping chisel. A long slender chisel, slightly bent near the cutting end, used for cleaning out mortises, etc.

ripping cord. Aeronautics. = RIP CORD.

ripping iron. = RAVEHOOK.

ripping panel or strip. Aeronautics. A rip panel.

ripping punch. Mach. A tool, used in a punching machine, for crosscutting metal plates. It has a rectangular point.

ripping saw. A ripsaw.

ripping size. Carp. The size of rough stock required for the production of a finished product.

rip'pit (rĭp'ĭt), n. A fist fight. Southern U. S.

rip'ple (rĭp'l), n. [Cf. D. repel. See 3d RIPPLE.] An implement, with teeth like those of a comb, for removing seeds and seed vessels from flax, broomcorn, etc.

rip'ple, v. t. To remove the seeds from (flax, etc.), with a ripple; to draw (flax, etc.) through a ripple.

rip'ple, v. i.; RIP'PLED (-ld); RIP'PLING (-lĭng). [ME. rippelen; akin to MLG. & D. repelen, repen, and to E. REAP.] To scratch; rip; tear; graze. Obs. exc. Scot. & Dial. Eng.

rip'ple, n. A scratch or slight cut.

rip'ple (rĭp'l), v. [Cf. 1st RIFFLE, RIMPLE, 4th RIP, RUMPLE.] Intransitive: 1. To become fretted or dimpled on the surface, as water when agitated or running over rough shallows; to be covered with, or form in, small waves or undulations; as, a field of grain ripples in the wind.

2. To flow in small waves or ripples.

3. To make a sound as of water running gently over rough shallows; as, her laughter rippled.

4. To fall in soft undulating folds, as a flounce.

—, Transitive: To fret or dimple, as the surface of water; to cover with, or form in, small waves or undulations or with ripplelike marks; as, the breeze rippled the lake.

rip'ple (rĭp'l), n. 1. The fretting or dimpling of the surface of water running over rough shallows or stirred by the wind; hence, a little curling wave or an undulation.

2. A sound such as is made by water running over rough shallows; as, a ripple of laughter.

3. A rippling of cloth, as in a frill or skirt.

4. A stretch of swift water in a stream. U. S.

5. = 1st RIFFLE, 1. U. S.

6. Elec. A slight fluctuation in the intensity of a steady current.

rip'ple (rĭp'l), n. Weakness in the back and loins; kidney disease; — usually in the pl. Scot.

ripple cloth. Zibeline.

ripple current. Elec. A current marked or characterized by a ripple. See 6th RIPPLE, 6.

ripple grass. The ribwort Plantago lanceolata.

ripple marks. A system of small, more or less parallel ridges produced, esp. on sand, by wind, by the current of a stream, or by the agitation of waves.

ripple plantain. The ribwort Plantago lanceolata.

rip'pler (rĭp'lĕr), n. One who or that which ripples.

rip'plet (-lĕt; -lĭt; 119), n. A small ripple.

ripple voltage. Elec. The alternating component of unidirectional voltage from a rectifier or generator.

ripple weld. A weld having a rippled surface.

rip'ple–weld', v. t. To unite by a ripple weld.

rip'pling (rĭp'lĭng), adj. That ripples. — rip'pling·ly, adv.

rip'ply (-lĭ), adj. Having ripples; as, ripply water; hence, resembling the sound of rippling water.

rip'pon (rĭp'ŏn), n. [From Rippon spurs, fr. Rippon, Ripon, Yorkshire, Eng., fr. L. ripa bank of a river.] A kind of spur formerly made at Rippon. Obs. exc. Hist.

rip'–rap', n. a A sound as of a rapid series of sharp blows. b A kind of firework that makes a succession of sharp explosions and jumps.

rip'rap' (rĭp'răp'), n. [Cf. RAP.] Masonry. A foundation or sustaining wall of stones thrown together without order, as in deep water or on a soft bottom; also, stones so used. U. S.

rip'rap', v. t.; -RAPPED' (-răpt'); -RAP'PING. Masonry. To form a riprap in or upon; to strengthen or support with a riprap; as, a breakwater riprapped with stone. U. S.

rip'rap'ping, n. The stones, collectively, of a foundation or wall of riprap.

rip'–roar'ing (66), adj. Noisily excited or exciting; hilarious; as, a rip-roaring farce. Slang.

rip'–roar'i·ous, adj. [rip- + uproarious.] Hilarious; boisterous. Slang.

rip'sack' (rĭp'săk'), n. The gray whale.

rip'saw' (-sô'), n. [See RIP, v. t., 4.] Carp. A saw with coarse teeth which have only a slight set, used for cutting wood in the direction of the grain. See SAW, Illust.

rip'saw', v. t. To saw (wood) in the direction of its grain.

rip'snort'er (rĭp'snôr'tĕr), n. Intensive of 1st snorter (sense 2). — rip'snort'ing, adj. Both Slang.

Rip'u·ar'i·an (rĭp'ū·ăr'ĭ·ăn), adj. [ML. ripuarius, prob. fr. L. ripa shore. See RIPARIAN.] Designating a group of Franks who established themselves in the 4th century on both banks of the Rhine near the present city of Cologne. See FRANK. — n. A Ripuarian Frank.

rip'up' (rĭp'ŭp'), n. Act or an instance of ripping up.

Rip' van Win'kle (rĭp' văn wĭng'k'l). 1. a The title and hero of a story in Irving's Sketch Book. He is a good-natured, idle, and bibulous Dutch settler, with a termagant wife. One day, while hunting in the Catskill Mountains, he fell in with the spirits of Hendrick Hudson and his companions, who were playing ninepins and drinking schnapps. Rip van Winkle took a drink of their liquor, and fell into a sleep which lasted twenty years. On awaking he returned home to find that his wife was dead, himself forgotten, and his former cronies dead or scattered, while the colonies had become the United States of America. Cf. KLAUS, PETER. b Any of several plays by this title, based on the above story; esp., a play by Dion Boucicault, first produced in 1865, and used in an adapted form by Joseph Jefferson (see in Biog.).

2. A person who is very much behind the times.

ri'ro·ri'ro (rē'rō·rē'rō), n. [Maori.] The gray warbler of New Zealand.

ris·berm' (rĭs·bĕrm'), n. [F. risberme, fr. D. rijsberm.] An arrangement of fascines to strengthen the bottom of an earth wall or jetty. Rare.

‖ris' de veau' (rē' d' vō'). [F.] Calf's sweetbread.

rise (rīz), v.; past tense ROSE (rōz); past part. RIS'EN (rĭz'n); pres. part. & verbal n. RIS'ING (rīz'ĭng). [AS. rīsan; akin to OS. rīsan, OHG. rīsan to rise, fall, ON. rīsa, Goth. ur*reisan,* G. reise journey, prob. also to MIr. rīan sea, Gaulish Renos Rhine, L. rīvus a stream, OSlav. rěka river, Skr. rayа stream, course, haste. See RIDE, RILL, ROAM, RUN; cf. ARISE, DERIVE, RAISE, REAR, v., RHENISH.] Intransitive:

I. To move from a lower position to a higher.

1. To move upward by voluntary motion, as walking, climbing, flying, etc.; as, a bird rises from the twig; the fish rises to the bait.

2. To emerge about the horizon; as, the sun rose.

3. To ascend; to mount upward; as, the smoke rose in the still air.

4. To ascend from the grave; to come to life.

But now is Christ risen from the dead. 1 Cor. XV. 20.

5. To reach or attain; as, this elm rises to a height of seventy feet; to extend upward; to tower up; as, the Alps rise far above the sea.

6. To ascend (to the surface of a liquid or the ground); as, the cork rose to the top of the water.

7. To reach a higher level, as by increase of quantity or bulk; as, the river rose over its banks; the tide was rising.

8. To slope upward, as a path up a hill.

9. To attain to a better social, official, professional, or financial position; to be promoted; to succeed; to prosper; as, a rising politician, educator, doctor; to rise in rank; to attain a higher position in opinion or judgment.

10. To exercise all one's powers so as to meet and overcome a difficulty; — with to; as, he rose to the emergency.

11. To become nauseated; — of the gorge or stomach.

12. To respond to a provocation, temptation, etc.; to retort to an irritating remark; to become irritated. Slang.

13. To come (to hand). Rare.

There chanced to the prince's hand to rise
An ancient book. Spenser.

14. Phonet. To be raised, as a vowel. See RAISE, v. t., 11.

II. To become erect.

15. To change from a lying, kneeling, or sitting to a higher position, esp. to a standing position; as, he rose and opened the door.

16. To get up from a bed or couch after sleep or rest; as, he regularly rose at six thirty.

17. To become erect; — of hair; also, to become erect after being bent, as grass.

18. To end an official sitting; adjourn; as, the committee rose.

19. To terminate or abandon a siege.

20. To attack; to go to war; to take up arms; to rebel.

No more shall nation against nation rise. Pope.

III. To increase.

21. To increase, as in volume, price, degree, intensity, violence, loudness, or the like. Specif.: a To increase in power, force, or strength; as, a storm rises; his anger rose; the rising power of a nation. b To become of higher value; to increase in price; as, stocks rise and fall. c To increase in intensity; as, the temperature rises in summer. d To become louder, or higher in pitch, as the voice or a musical instrument. e To increase in amount; to enlarge; as, his expenses rose. f To be moved or stirred; — said of emotions or the heart; as, hope rose high. g To swell or puff up; to become light, as dough. h To become more and more dignified or forcible; to increase in interest or power; — said of thought, style, or discourse; as, to rise to the heights of eloquence.

IV. To become existent.

22. a To come into being; to have a beginning; to originate; as, rivers rise in springs or lakes; a rumor rose; to be erected or built; as, the cathedral rose day by day. b To emerge into sight; to become apparent; as, the land rose to view. c To become perceptible to other senses than sight; as, a noise rose; odor rises from the flower. d To come to mind; to be suggested; to occur; as, to make a picture rise in the imagination of an audience.

—, Transitive: 1. To go up; ascend; climb.

2. To cause to rise; to raise.

Syn. — Climb; tower; get up; begin, start, spring; increase, grow; flourish, thrive. RISE, ARISE. RISE is the general term, and applies to movement of any sort from a lower to a higher position; except in poetry, and in the sense of getting up from a sitting, kneeling, or lying posture, rise, in its lit. senses, has practically displaced ARISE; as, a balloon rises in the air; the mercury rises in the thermometer; one arises (or rises) from a chair; cf. to rise to a point of order. Figuratively, arise applies esp. to that which springs up or appears; rise often emphasizes the idea of origin; as, a discussion arose; "What mighty contests rise from trivial things" (Pope). But rise has much wider figurative application than arise.

Ant. — Fall, descend, sink; end, cease, conclude; shrink; diminish, lessen; stoop; decline, retrograde.

rise tacks and sheets. Naut. See RAISE, v. t., 10.

rise (rīz; 277: see note below), n. 1. Act of rising, or state of being risen; a moving upward. Specif.: a Emergence above the horizon. b An ascent from the grave; resurrection. c An upward slope; as, a steep rise in a road; a part that slopes or extends upward; as, the rise of a roof (cf. PITCH); also, specif., a flight (of steps). d A piece of land higher than its surroundings; as, the house stood on a rise. e The upward spring of a fish to seize food or bait. f Elevation or ascent of the voice; upward change of key; as, a rise of a tone or semitone. g Act of reaching a higher level by an increase of quantity or bulk; also, the amount or distance of such an increase; as, the rise of the river was six feet. h The distance of one thing above another; the length of the side of a right triangle that is perpendicular to the base. i In trapshooting, the distance from the firing line to the traps. j Obs. A leap, spring, or bound; a place from which to leap or spring.

2. a Act of attaining a higher position or rank. b Capacity for rising, or height to which one can rise, intellectually or spiritually.

3. Response to a provocation; a retort; act of becoming irritated; as, we got a rise out of him. Slang.

4. Increase; advance; augmentation, as of price, value, rank, property, fame, and the like; as, the rise of stocks. Specif.: a Increase of sound; a swelling of the voice.

The ordinary rises and falls of the voice. Bacon.

b Colloq., Brit. An increase in wages or salary. c The difference in diameter, or taper, between two points on a log.

5. Act or process of coming into being; spring; source; origin; as, the rise of a stream.

All wickedness taketh its rise from the heart. R. Nelson.

6. Arch. = HEIGHT, n., 7.

7. Mining. = 2d RAISE, 4.

Syn.—Ascension; elevation; eminence; beginning; growth.

Ant. — Descent, fall; depression; conclusion; decrease, lessening, diminution.

☞ The noun (from the verb) was originally pronounced rīz. This has remained the popular pron., as in sunrise. Walker (c. 1800) and some other lexicographers preferred rĭs, on the analogy of a few other nouns distinguished from verbs by voiceless s (use, n. & v., abuse, n. & v., house, n. & v., etc.), but this probably never prevailed and is now little heard.

— the rise of. Rather more than. Southern U. S.

rise (rīz), past tense of RISE, v. Obs. exc. Dial.

-rise (-rīz). A combining form from the verb rise, denoting a rising, as in moon*rise,* sun*rise.*

rise (rĭs). Var. of RICE, a twig.

rise and fall. The vertical up and down movement of the tide resulting from, but not necessarily coincident with, its flow and ebb.

rise of floor. Shipbuilding. The angle that the midship frame makes with the horizontal plane at the keel; dead rise.

rise of floor line. = RISING LINE.

Rise of Silas Lap'ham, The (lăp'ăm). A novel (1885) by William Dean Howells, portraying a typical self-made American.

ris'er (rīz'ĕr), n. 1. One who or that which rises; as: a One who gets up from bed, one who rises in revolt, etc. b A part in a machine which operates by rising.

2. A member placed under something to increase its elevation; esp., either of two frames, secured one to each side of a cart, to raise the driver's seat.

3. A vertical supply or return pipe for steam, water, gas, etc.

4. Arch. a The upright piece of a step, from tread to tread. When this piece is omitted the open space between two treads is sometimes called an open riser. See BRIDGEBOARD, Illust. Hence: b Any small upright face, as of a seat, platform, veranda, or the like.

5. Elec. A vertical wire connecting two floors in an electric wiring system for a building.

6. Founding. a = FEEDHEAD, 2. b A channel or head in a mold to permit escape of air, etc.

7. Mining. = 2d RAISE, 4.

8. Print. A block for mounting a plate. Eng.

rish'i (rĭsh'ĭ), n. [Skr. ṛṣi.] Hinduism. A holy sage; an inspired poet; esp., any of seven ancient sages, born of Brahma's mind, to whom are attributed some of the Vedic hymns; also [cap.], any of the seven conspicuous stars of Ursa Major, which these sages are fabled to have become.

rish'ta·dar' (rĭsh'tȧ·där'), n. [Hind. & Per. rishtadār, fr. Per. rishta line, kin + dār agent suffix.] Hindu Law. A kinsman or relation.

ris'i·bil'i·ty (rĭz'ĭ·bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n.; pl. -TIES (-tĭz). [Cf. F. risibilité.] 1. The quality of being risible, or able or inclined to laugh.

A strong and obvious disposition to risibility. Scott.

2. pl. A person's sensibilities to what seems ridiculous or laughable; impulses or tendencies to laugh; risibles.

ris'i·ble (rĭz'ĭ·b'l), adj. [F., fr. LL. risibilis, fr. ridere, risum, to laugh. See RIDICULOUS.] 1. Having the faculty or power of laughing; disposed to laugh.

The definition of man that he is risible. Dr. H. More.

2. Exciting or provoking laughter. Now Rare. "Risible absurdities." Johnson.

3. Used in, or expressing, laughter; of or pertaining to laughter; as, risible muscles; the risible faculty.

— ris'i·ble·ness, n. — ris'i·bly, adv.

ris'i·bles (rĭz'ĭ·b'lz), n. pl. Risibilities (sense 2).

ris'ing (rīz'ĭng), pres. part. & verbal n. of RISE. Hence: adj. 1. Moving from a lower to a higher place; ascending; sloping upward; elevated; advancing.

2. a Increasing in wealth, power, distinction, or the like.

Among the rising theologians of Germany. Hare.

b Increasing in force, intentity, etc. c Increasing in loudness or becoming higher in pitch; as, a rising tone or voice. d Growing; advancing to adult years and to the state of active life; as, the rising generation.

3. [From RISING, n.] Pert. to, or used in, or for, rising.

4. Her. Depicted with wings opening as if for flight.

ris'ing (rīz'ĭng), pres. part. & verbal n. of RISE. Hence: n.

1. Act of one who or that which rises (in any sense).

2. That which rises; specif., a tumor; a boil. Lev. xiii. 10.

3. Anything used to make dough rise, as yeast; also, the amount of dough prepared at one time. Chiefly Dial.

4. Mining. = 2d RAISE, 4.

5. Shipbuilding. a A narrow strake to support the thwarts of a boat. b Fore-and-aft bearers to support a deck.

ris'ing (rīz'ĭng), prep. a Local, U. S. As much as; as, he bought rising a hundred acres. b Local, U. S. More than; exceeding; — with of; as, rising of a thousand men. c Dial. Approaching; nearing; as, he was rising sixteen years.

rising anvil. A double beakiron.

rising diphthong. One with greater stress at the end (uo in It. nuovo). See Pron., § 37.

rising floor. Shipbuilding. A floor composed of rising timbers.

rising head. Founding. A riser.

rising hinge. A door hinge designed so that the door is lifted a little when opened.

Rising in, or of, the North. Eng. Hist. The short-lived Roman Catholic revolt under the Earls of Northumberland and Westmorland in 1569, ruthlessly put down by Elizabeth.

rising line. Shipbuilding. A line drawn in a plan of a vessel to show the heights of the floors.

rising pitch. Music. A pitch that is becoming more acute in tone; — opposed to falling pitch.

rising rhythm. Pros. A rhythm in which the stresses regularly fall on the last syllable of each foot; esp., a rhythm marked by accentual iambs or anapaests.

rising seat. One of the raised seats facing the congregation in a Friends' meetinghouse, occupied by the elders.

Rising Sun. See ORDER, n., 1 c.

---

rip'ple·less, adj. See -LESS.
rip'ples, n., pl. of RIPPLE; esp. see 7th RIPPLE. rip'pling kame. [ripple to scratch + kame, dial. var. of COMB.] = 1st RIPPLE. ript. Ripped. Ref. Sp.
ris. Obs. pres. tense & dial. Eng. past tense & past part. of RISE.
ri·sa'la, -lah (rē·sä'lä). Vars. of RESSALA. [RESSALDAR. ris'al·dar' (rĭs'ăl·där'). Var. of rische. † RUSH, a plant.
‖ris'co, n. [It.] Risk; venture. Obs. [RIX-DOLLAR. ris'da·ler (rĭs'dȧ'lĕr). Var. of rise. † RICE.
ris'en (rĭz'n), past part. of RISE; also, in Middle English, past tense pl. of RISE. rish (rĭsh). Var. of RUSH, a plant. Obs. exc. Dial.
ris'i·bl. Risible. Ref. Sp. risien. † RESE, shake.

rising timbers. Shipbuilding. The floor timbers in the forward or after parts of a vessel. rising vote. A vote in which the voters on each side rise in turn and, usually, are counted.
rising wood. Shipbuilding. In wooden ships, timber used to fill in at the junctions of the keelson with the stem and stern posts.
risk (rĭsk), n. [F. risque, fr. It. risco, risico, rischio, of uncert. origin.] 1. Hazard; danger; peril; exposure to loss, injury, disadvantage, or destruction; as, mountain climbing involves great risks; risk of assassination.
2. In forest-protection usage, any agency that may cause a fire. Cf. HAZARD.
3. Insurance. a The chance of loss or the perils to the subject matter of insurance covered by the contract; also, the degree of probability of such loss. b Short for amount at risk, that is, the amount which the company may lose. In life insurance the risk at any given time equals the difference between the reserve and the face of the policy. c Loosely, a person or thing considered with reference to the risk involved in placing insurance upon him or it. d The character of hazard involved in insurance, — usually with a qualifying word; as, war risk, fire risk, catastrophe risk.
Syn. — See DANGER.
risk (rĭsk), v. t.; RISKED (rĭskt); RISK'ING. [F. risquer. See RISK, n.] 1. To expose to risk, hazard, or peril; venture; hazard; as, to risk one's person or reputation.
2. To incur the risk or danger of; to venture upon (something involving risk); as, to risk a battle.
risk (rĭsk), v. i. To make a crackling or grating sound. Scot.
risk'er (rĭs'kẽr), n. One who risks. risk'ful (rĭsk'fo͝ol; -fĭ), adj. Risky. — risk'ful·ness, n. risk'ish, adj. [See 1st -ISH.] Tending to be risky; somewhat risky. risk'y (rĭs'kĭ), adj. 1. Attended with risk or danger; hazardous. "Generalizations are always risky." Lowell.
2. Incurring risks; venturesome. Rare.
3. Risqué. A Gallicism.
— risk'i·ly, adv. — risk'i·ness, n. — risk'less, adj.
‖ri'so·lu'to (rē'zō·lōō'tō), adj. [It., resolute.] Music. Resolute; with marked accent; — used as a direction.
‖ri·sor'gi·men'to (rē·sôr'jē·mĕn'tō), n. [It.] Literally, a revival; a resurrection; esp.: a [cap.] The revival of learning and the renewal of classical feeling in art, in Italy, in the 14th and 15th centuries, as disting. from the Renaissance in France and northern Europe. See RENAISSANCE. b The movement for political unity in Italy in the 19th century.
ri·so'ri·al (rĭ·sō'rĭ·ăl; 181), adj. [L. ridere, risum, to laugh.] Pertaining to, causing, or producing, laughter.
ri·so'ri·us (rĭ·sō'rĭ·ŭs; rĭ-; 181), n. [NL.] Anat. A narrow band of muscle fibers arising from the fascia over the masseter muscle and inserted into the tissues at the corner of the mouth.
‖ri·sot'to (rē·sôt'tō), n. [It.] Rice, cooked with meat gravy, and, often, with cheese.
risp (rĭsp), n. 1. A stem or stalk of any of various plants, as peas, strawberries, etc. Dial. Eng.
2. Scot. & N. of Eng. a A coarse kind of grass. b A stalk or wisp of hay. c A bulrush. risp (rĭsp), v. i. & t. [ON. rispa.] To rasp; rub; scratch; to file; to tirl. Scot.
risp, n. 1. A sound of risping; a rasp; a carpenter's file; a tirling pin. Scot.
2. A finely notched metal bar on a house door. It was rubbed with an attached ring (risp and ring) to attract attention and thus secure admission.
risp'er (rĭs'pẽr), n. [S. Afr. D., fr. obs. & dial. D. rispe (D. rupe).] A caterpillar. S. Africa.
‖ri·spet'to (rē·spĕt'tō), n. [It., lit., respect.] In Italian poetry, a popular form of stanza of from six to ten lines with rhymes.
‖ri·spos'ta (rē·spōs'tä), n. [It.] Music. The answer in a fugue or the consequent in a canon.
ris'qué' (rēs'kā'), adj. masc.; risquée, fem. [F., past part. of risquer to risk.] Hazardous; risky; esp., figuratively, verging upon impropriety or indecency; as, a risqué story.
Riss (rĭs), n. [See RISS-WÜRM.] Geol. The third stage of Quaternary glaciation in Europe. — Riss, Riss'i·an (rĭs'ĭ·ăn; 159), adj. ris'sel (rĭs'ĕl; -l), n. Also ris'ser (-ẽr). [Prob. fr. MF. ressorer to dry out.] The common red currant. ris'sle (rĭs''l; rĭz''l), n. [ON. hrīsla.] A stick, staff, or pole. Scot. & Dial. Eng.
Ris'so·a (rĭs'ō·ä), n. [NL., after Giovanni Antonio Risso (1777–1845), prof. of botany and chemistry at Nice.] Zool. A genus of small marine snails having an acuminate, often finely sculptured shell, with a corneous operculum. It is the type of a large family, Ris·so'i·dae (rĭ·sō'ĭ·dē). — ris'soid (rĭs'oid), adj. & n.
‖ris'so'lé' (rē'sō'lā'), adj. [F.] Browned by frying in deep fat.
‖ris'sole' (rē'sôl'; rĭs'ōl), n. [F.] Cookery. a A ball or roll of rich minced meat or fish, covered with pastry and fried in deep fat. b A sweet dish with jam, custard, etc., as the filling.
Riss'-Würm' (rĭs'vürm'), adj. [From the Riss, a tributary of the Danube in Württemberg, and the Würm, a small stream of S. Bavaria.] Geol. Designating or pertaining to the third interglacial interval, estimated at 60,000 years, during the Quaternary glaciation of Europe. It corresponds to the Sangamon interglacial stage in North America. — Riss'-Würm', n.
rist (rĭst), n. [From RISE. Cf. ARIST.] Obs. exc. Dial. Rising; specif.: a Obs. Insurrection; also, resurrection. b Obs. Source. c An ascent (of ground). d An increase (of price).
rist (rĭst), v. t. [ON. rista.] To engrave, scratch, mark, or wound. rist. Contraction of riseth, 3d pers. sing. pres. tense of RISE. Obs.
ris·to'ri (rĭs·tō'rĭ; It. rē·stō'rē), n. [After Adelaide Ristori, It. actress.] A loose open jacket for women.
‖ri'sus (rī'sŭs), n. [L.] A laugh; laughter.
‖ri'sus sar·do'ni·cus (sär·dŏn'ĭ·kŭs). [NL. sardonicus sardonic.] Med. Spasmodic, grinning facial expression, as in tetanus; sardonic grin. rit (rĭt), v. t. [ME. ritten; akin to G. ritzen, and E. WRITE.] To scratch; cut; rip; slit; split; tear; pierce. — n. A scratch; cut; slit. Both Obs. exc. Dial.
rit. Contraction of rideth, 3d pers. sing. pres. tense of RIDE. Obs.
Ri'ta (rē'tä), n. [Sp. & It., after Saint Rita of Casia (a Florentine town), 13th–14th centuries, for It. Margherita, Sp. Margarita. See MARGARET.] Fem. proper name.

ri'ta (rĭ'tä), n. [Skr. ṛta.] Vedic Relig. Cosmic order; the natural course of things; the fundamental moral and physical law of the universe.
ri'tar·dan'do (rē'tär·dän'dō; -dän'dō), adj. [It.] Music. Retarding; becoming slower; rallentando; — used as a direction. — n. A movement or passage in gradually slackening tempo; also, a gradually slackening tempo.
rite (rīt), n. [L. ritus; akin to Gr. arithmos number, OHG. & AS. rīm, ON. rīm calculation, OIr. rīm number. Cf. ARITHMETIC, RHYME.] 1. a A prescribed form or manner of conducting a ceremony, esp. a religious ceremony; a ritual for a religious service, the administration of a sacrament, or the like; as, the coronation rite; to be married according to the Anglican rite. b [often cap.] Liturgy (sense 1); the Eucharistic office; as, the Roman rite; the Ambrosian rite.
2. A formal and ceremonial act; esp., a religious ceremony; a service or function that follows a ritual; as, to perform the last rites of the Church; the rites of Freemasonry.

Time goes on crutches till Love have all his rites. Shak.

3. a Obs. exc. Eccl. Established custom or usage, as of a country, church, class. b Ceremonial practice viewed collectively; liturgical use; as, to observe the rite of the Church of England as given in the Book of Common Prayer.
4. Anthropol. Any ritualistic procedure or formula, particularly those associated with change of status on the part of the individual, as initiation, marriage, death, etc. Sometimes called specifically rites of passage.
5. [sometimes cap.] Eastern & Western Churches. A division of the Church as determined by liturgy; specif., a patriarchate; as, Catholics of the Latin Rite; a Uniat of the Byzantine Rite.
Syn. — Form, observance, solemnity. See CEREMONY. ri'te (rī'tē), adv. [L.] Fitly; rightly; well; — used esp. in a diploma to indicate that the degree is earned, and not honorary. Cf. CUM LAUDE. rite'ly, adv. According to rite or ritual; duly. Obs.
‖ri'te·nu'to (rē'tä·nōō'tō), adj. [It.] Music. Held back in tempo; — a direction usually indicating an abrupt slowing down.
rit'or·nel', rit'or·nelle' (rĭt'ôr·nĕl'), n. [It. ritornello, dim. of ritorno return, fr. ritornare to return; cf. F. ritournelle.] Music. a A short instrumental passage, as a prelude or a refrain in a vocal composition, often consisting of its burden. b An instrumental interlude between the parts of an opera. c A tutti passage in a concerto.
rit'or·nel'lo (rĭt'ôr·nĕl'ō), n.; pl. -LOS, -LOES (-ōz); -LI (-lē). [It.] Ritornel.
‖ri·trat'to (rē·trät'tō), n. [It.] A picture; a portrait.
Ritsch'li·an (rĭch'lĭ·ăn), adj. Theol. Of, pertaining to, or in accordance with, the views of the theological school founded by the German theologian Albrecht Ritschl (1822–89), who rejected the metaphysical development of theology, held that religious judgments are judgments of value, and that Christian theology should rest mainly on an appreciation of the inner life of Christ. He emphasized the ethical-social content of theology. — n. A member of this school. — Ritsch'li·an·ism (-ĭz'm), n.
‖Rit'ter (rĭt'ẽr), n. sing. & pl. [G. See RIDER, RIDE.] A knight; specif., a member of one of the lowest orders of the nobility in Germany and Austria. See TITLE, n., 10 b. rit'ting·er·ite (rĭt'ĭng·ẽr·īt), n. [After Peter Rittinger, Austrian mining official.] Mineral. A dark-brown or iron-black compound of arsenic, selenium, and silver, occurring in small crystals. Its streak is orange yellow. Sp. gr., 5.63.
rit'u·al (rĭt'ū·ăl), adj. [L. ritualis, fr. ritus a rite.] Of or pertaining to rites or a ritual; as, ritual sacrifices.
rit'u·al, n. [From RITUAL, adj.] 1. The form or forms of conducting worship, esp. as established by tradition or by sacerdotal prescription; religious ceremonial. Ritual is regarded as of paramount importance in primitive and polytheistic religions. Sacrifices, mimetic dances, processions, and plays, mysteries, games, ordeals, and feasts are the chief acts of early public ritual. Cf. MAGIC, n., 1.
2. Hence, a code or form of ceremonies observed, as by an organization or upon any ceremonial occasion; as, the ritual of the Freemasons.
3. a A book containing the rites or ceremonial forms to be observed by an organization, as a church; specif., R.C.Ch. [L. rituale], a book containing the forms to be observed by priests in administering the sacraments (Communion out of Mass, baptism, etc.), in churchings, in burials, etc. See MANUAL, n., 6. b The verbal formulas of ritual.
4. a A ritual act or ceremony; — usually in pl. b The performing of a ritual act.
Syn. — Rite, ceremonial, form.
rit'u·al·ism (-īz'm), n. 1. A system of conducting religious worship or exercises according to a ritual; use of, adherence to, or observance of, a ritual; in a derogatory sense, excessive devotion to prescribed ritual forms in religious worship.
2. Specif., the principles and practices of those in the churches of the Anglican Communion who have revived the use in church services of the symbolic ornaments and of various ritual acts and symbolic materials (the so-called six points of ritual — altar lights, eucharistic vestments, the eastward position, wafer bread, the mixed chalice, and incense — being especially emphasized) which were sanctioned in the second year of Edward VI, and never, it is maintained, forbidden by competent authority, although generally disused.
3. The science or study of ritual or liturgies.
rit'u·al·ist (rĭt'ū·ăl·ĭst), n. One skilled in, or attached to, a ritual; one who studies ritual; one who advocates or practices ritualism. — adj. Ritualistic.
rit'u·al·is'tic (-ĭs'tĭk), adj. 1. Of, pertaining to, or in accordance with, a ritual.
2. Adhering or devoted to ritualism; of, pertaining to, or characteristic of, ritualists.
— rit'u·al·is'ti·cal·ly, adv.
rit'u·al'i·ty (rĭt'ū·ăl'ĭ·tĭ), n.; pl. -TIES (-tĭz). Ritual quality; a rite; ritualism. rit'u·al·ly, adv. By rites, or by a particular rite; by, or according to, a ritual. ritual murder. The alleged murder of a non-Jew, usually a child, by Jews for ritual purposes during Passover. The accusation of such a crime seems to have originated in the anti-Jewish writings of Egyptian Greek writers (see Josephus Against Apion) and throughout the two millenia following has frequently been made but never proved. The defenders of Jews accused of this charge have regularly proved that such an act is contrary to the chief tenets of Judaism and to the practices of Jews. In many cases the accusation has been proved to rest on malicious falsehood or on superstitious ignorance.

‖ri'tus (rī'tŭs), n. [L.] A custom or usage, esp. a religious usage. Cf. RITE, 1, 2, & 3.
ritz'y (rĭt'sĭ), adj. [From the Ritz Hotel, London, and the Ritz-Carlton, New York.] Ostentatiously or vulgarly smart in appearance and manner; ultrafashionable. Slang.
riv'a (rĭv'ä), n. [ON. rifa.] A cleft in rock. Scot. riv'age (rĭv'ĭj), n. [OF., fr. rive bank, fr. L. ripa. See RIVER.] 1. A bank, shore, or coast. Archaic.
2. O. Eng. Law. A duty paid to the crown for the passage of vessels on certain rivers.
rivage green. A color, yellow-green in hue, of medium saturation and high brilliance. Cf. COLOR.
ri'val (rī'vŭl; 91), n. [F. or L.; F. rival, fr. L. rivalis; akin to OSlav. rivĭnŭ rival, Gr. eris strife.] 1. One who performs the same duties, or who pursues the same object, as another.

If you do meet Horatio and Marcellus,
The rivals of my watch, bid them make haste. Shak.

2. One of two or more striving to reach or obtain that which one only can possess; a competitor; as, rivals in love; hence, one who is in competition with, or strives to excel, another; as, rivals in business; rivals in good deeds.
3. One who or that which equals another in the possession of desired qualities; as, fir is a rival of pine.
Syn. — Emulator, antagonist, opponent.
Ant. — Ally, partner.
ri'val, adj. Having the same pretensions or claims; standing in competition; as, rival lovers; rival claims.
ri'val, v.; RI'VALED (rī'vŭld) or RI'VALLED; RI'VAL·ING or RI'VAL·LING. Trans.: 1. To be in competition with, to strive to gain some object in opposition to; as, to rival one in love.
2. To strive to equal or excel; to emulate; — of persons; now often with an implication of successful emulation or of equal excellence; as, his eloquence rivals that of Burke.
3. To possess qualities that equal those of another; — esp. of things; as, water rivals steam as a source of power.
—, Intrans.: To be in rivalry; to act as a rival. Archaic.
ri'val·ism (-īz'm), n. Rivalry. ri·val'i·ty (rī·văl'ĭ·tĭ), n. [L. rivalitas; cf. F. rivalité.] Rivalry; also, equality, as of right or rank. Now Rare.
ri'val·ize (rī'vŭl·īz), v. t. To act as rival. Rare.
ri'val·rous (rī'vŭl·rŭs), adj. Emulative; given to rivalry. ri'val·ry (rī'vŭl·rĭ), n.; pl. -RIES (-rĭz). [From RIVAL.]
1. Act of rivaling, or state of being a rival; a competition.

Keen contention and eager rivalries. Jeffrey.

2. A group of rivals.
Syn. — Emulation. See COMPETITION.
Ant. — Co-operation.
Ri'vals, The. A comedy (1775) by Richard Brinsley Sheridan. See LANGUISH, MISS LYDIA; MALAPROP, MRS. rive (rīv), v.; past tense RIVED (rīvd); past part. RIVED (rīvd) or RIV'EN (rĭv'ĕn); pres. part. & verbal n. RIV'ING (rīv'ĭng). [ME. riven, fr. ON. rīfa; akin to OFris. rīva to tear, MLG. rīven to rub, Gr. ereipein to dash down, tear down, eripnē a broken cliff, crag, and to L. ripa bank. Cf. RIFLE, RIFT, RIPARIAN, RIVEL.] Transitive: 1. To tear apart; to tear; lacerate.
2. To rend asunder forcibly or violently; to split; to cleave.

I shall rive him through the sides twain. Chaucer.

3. Figuratively, to tear at or rend (the heart, feelings, etc.).
4. To plow (unplowed land). Scot.
5. a Obs. To pierce, to thrust so as to pierce. b To steal; thieve; rob.
—, Intransitive: 1. To be split or be rent asunder; to admit of being split.
2. Figuratively, to burst; — of the heart.
Syn. — See TEAR.
rive (rīv), n. [From RIVE to rend.] 1. A pull or tug; a rent; cleft; rift. Dial. Eng.
2. A portion of food torn off, as by the teeth; a bite. Scot. rive, n. [OF. See RIVAGE.] Bank; shore. Obs. rive, v. i. [OF. river. See ARRIVE.] To arrive; disembark. Obs.
‖rive' droite' (rēv' drwät'). [F.] The right bank or side (of the Seine); the part of Paris on the right bank of the river, including the shops, the Opera, and the Louvre.
‖rive' gauche' (gōsh'). [F.] The left bank (of the Seine); that part of Paris which lies on the left bank of the Seine, which includes the Latin Quarter.
riv'el (rĭv''l), v. t. & i.; RIV'ELED (-'ld); RIV'EL·ING. Also, Obs., riv'ell. [ME. rivelen, fr. AS. rifelede wrinkled; akin to EFris. riffel furrow. See 1st RIFLE.] To shrivel; to wrinkle; to shrink; as, riveled fruit. Archaic. riv'el (rĭv''l), n. A wrinkle. Obs.
riv'er (rĭv'ẽr), n. [ME. rivere, fr. OF. rivere, riviere, river, low ground along a river, fr. VL. (ML.) riparia, fr. L. riparius belonging to a bank or shore, fr. ripa a bank or shore. See RIVE to rend; cf. ARRIVE, RIPARIAN, RIVET.]
1. A natural stream of water larger than a brook or a creek. A river has its stages of development, youth, maturity, and old age. In its earliest stages a river system drains its basin imperfectly; as valleys are deepened, the drainage becomes more perfect, so that in maturity the total drainage area is large and the rate of erosion high. The final stage is reached when wide flats have developed and the bordering lands have been brought low. In parts of the United States and Canada, esp. in New England, river is applied to streams the size of brooks, while streams of river size are sometimes called creeks. See BROOK, Note; CREEK; BRANCH, n., 10; cf. RUN.
2. Figuratively: A large stream; copious flow; abundance; as, rivers of blood; rivers of oil; rivers of talk.
3. Figuratively, a boundary between life and death.
4. The neighborhood of a river, where hawking was practiced; hence, the sport of hawking. Obs.
5. Gems. A pure-white diamond of very high grade, occasionally with a prismatic blue radiance. Extra river denotes a diamond of the very highest grade. Cf. WATER, n., 5.
6. Print. A white spot or space in printed matter due to overwide spacing, esp. one extending vertically through a number of lines. Cf. PIGEONHOLE, n., 7.
☞ COMBINATIONS and PHRASES are:

river-blanched	river craft	river-sundered river-borne	riverdamp	river-watered river-bottom, adj.	river-formed	river-worn river-caught	river-given riv'er, adj. Of, pert. to, or situated in, on, or beside, a river. riv'er (rĭv'ẽr), v. i. & t. [OF. riverer.] To hawk by the side of a river; to fly (hawks) at river fowl. Cf. REVAY. Obs.

riv'er (rĭv'ẽr), n. One who rives, or splits. riv'er·ain (rĭv'ẽr·ān), adj. [F.] Pertaining to a river bank; riparian; near or on a river. — n. One who dwells near or on a river.

rittmeester, G. rittmeister.] A captain of cavalry. Obs. rit'u·al·ize, v. See -IZE. rit'u·al·less, adj. See -LESS. ri'val·a·ble, adj. See -ABLE. ri'vald. Rivaled. Ref. Sp. ri'val·ess, n. See -ESS. ri'val·less, adj. See -LESS. ri'val·ship, n. See -SHIP. ri'val·ty, n. Rivalry. Obs. riv'el·ing, n. A runlet; rill. Obs. riv'en (rĭv'ĕn), past part. of RIVE. river and harbor bill. A bill appropriating money for the improvement (dredging, canalization, etc.) of rivers and harbors. See PORK BARREL. U. S. river ash. The red ash Fraxinus pennsylvanica. riv'er·bank' (rĭv'ĕr·băngk'), n. The bank of a river.

riverbank grape. = RIVERSIDE GRAPE. riverbank willow. The sand-bar willow (Salix longifolia). river basin. See BASIN, n., 9 c. river bass. a Any of several American fishes of the family Moronidae which live in rivers or ascend them to spawn, as the white perch, striped bass, etc. b = BLACK BASS, 1. river birch. a An American birch (Betula nigra) with reddish-brown bark; also, its hard close-grained brownish wood. It is found in swamps and river bottoms throughout the eastern U. S. b The sweet birch. river black oak. One of the Australian beefwoods (Casuarina suberosa). river boulder. See BOULDER.
River Brethren. A denomination of Christians formed about 1770 in Pennsylvania among Swiss immigrants along the Susquehanna River. They are of the Baptist family, and allied to the Mennonites. They exist in the three branches: (1) The Brethren in Christ, the largest body; (2) The Old Order or Yorker Brethren, chiefly in York County, Pa., organized separately in 1843; (3) The United Zion's Children, originating in 1853. river bulrush. A stout, perennial herb (Scirpus fluviatilis), with numerous spikelets in a large terminal umbel.
river club rush. = RIVER BULRUSH. river cottonwood. The swamp cottonwood. river crab. A fresh-water crab of the family Potamonidae, as Potamon fluviatile of southern Europe.
river cress. = LAKE WATER CRESS. river deer. A small deer (Hydropotes inermis) of the river marshes in southern China; the males have no antlers but are provided with tusklike canine teeth.
river dog. = HELLBENDER, 1. river dolphin. Any of several South American and Asiatic long-snouted dolphins of medium size, which are chiefly confined to fresh water. river dragon. A crocodile; — applied by Milton to the king of Egypt. See Ezek. xxix. 3. river driver. One who drives logs on a river.
river duck. See ANATINAE. riv'ered (rĭv'ĕrd), adj. Supplied with rivers. river front. The land or area along a river; esp., in a city, an area devoted to business done on the river.
riv'er-god', n. A deity supposed to preside over a river as its tutelary divinity. — riv'er-god'dess, n. fem.
river grape. = RIVERSIDE GRAPE. river grass. = TEXAS MILLET. river gum. The red gum Eucalyptus rostrata. Australia.
river gunboat. See NAVY, 2. riv'er-head' (rĭv'ĕr·hĕd'), n. The source of a river. river hog. Any of several African wild hogs of the genus Koiropotamus, syn. Potamochoerus, of which the red river hog (K. porcus) is the best-known. It is bright rusty red in color, and has the tail and ears long and tufted. river horse. A hippopotamus. riv'er-ine (rĭv'ĕr·ĭn; -ēn), n. The region immediately adjoining a river.
riv'er-ine (rĭv'ĕr·ĭn; -ēn), adj. [From RIVER.] 1. Of, pertaining to, formed by, or resembling, a river or rivers; as, riverine traffic, ports, valleys.
2. Living or situated on the banks of a river. riv'er-ish, adj. Rivery. Rare. river jack. The rhinoceros viper. riv'er-let (rĭv'ĕr·lĕt; -lĭt; 119), n. A little river.
river lettuce. = WATER LETTUCE. riv'er-ling, n. A small stream. river locust. The false indigo Amorpha fruticosa. riv'er-ly, adj. Like a river. Rare.
riv'er-man (rĭv'ĕr·măn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). a Eng. A man who makes his living by odd jobs along a river front. b Logging. One who drives logs on a river. river mangrove. An Old World tropical tree (Aegiceras majus), family Myrsinaceae, having the habit of a mangrove. river maple. The silver maple. river mullet. See SEA MULLET. river mussel. = MUSSEL, 2. river oak. The she-oak. Australia.
River of Heaven. Astron. = MILKY WAY, 1. river pear. = ANCHOVY PEAR. river perch. The yellow perch. See PERCH, 1. river pine. The scrub pine Pinus virginiana. river pink. The pinkster flower. U. S. river poplar. The common American cottonwood (Populus balsamifera). river rat. A prowling thief who frequents a river front.
river road. See ROAD. river rock. See PHOSPHATE ROCK. riv'er-scape (rĭv'ĕr·skāp), n. See -SCAPE. river shrew. The otter shrew. riv'er-side' (rĭv'ĕr·sīd'), n. The side or bank of a river. — riv'er-sid'er (-sīd'ĕr), n.
riv'er-side', adj. Of, pertaining to, or situated on, the side of a river.
riverside grape. A wild grape (Vitis vulpina) abundant along riverbanks in the eastern United States. It has high-climbing stems, cordate, sometimes 3-lobed leaves, and sour blackish berries. riverside tobacco. The wild tobacco Pluchea odorata. river sunflower. The wild sunflower Helianthus decapetalus. river tern. A tern (Seëna seëna) of India, which frequents rivers.
Riv'er Ti'gris (tī'grĭs). Astron. A constellation consisting of Taurus Poniatowskii and Vulpecula. Obs. river trout. a The brown trout of Europe. b The wall-eyed pike. river valley. See VALLEY, n., 1. riv'er-wash' (rĭv'ĕr·wŏsh'), n. Soil material transported and deposited by streams. river wattle. A Tasmanian and Australian shrub (Acacia discolor). riv'er-way' (rĭv'ĕr·wā'), n. A river used to convey traffic. riv'er-weed' (rĭv'ĕr·wēd'), n. Any plant of the genus Podostemon. riverweed family. The Podostemaceae. riv'er-y (rĭv'ĕr·ĭ), adj. 1. Having many rivers, as a country. 2. Pertaining to or resembling a river.

riv'et (rĭv'ĕt; -ĭt; 119), n. [OF., fr. river to rivet, perh. fr. (assumed) VL. ripare to make fast (orig., a ship to the shore), fr. L. ripa shore. See RIVER.] A headed pin or bolt of some malleable material, as wrought iron, soft steel, or copper, used for uniting two or more pieces by passing the shank through a hole in each piece and then beating or pressing down the plain end so as to make a second head. Small rivets are usually closed cold, but larger rivets are closed at a forging heat. Rivets are distinguished by the shape of their heads, as panhead, conehead, buttonhead, flathead, steeple-head, flush-head, and countersunk-head rivets, and by their use, as structural, tinner's, belt, etc.

Common forms of Rivetheads. 1 Conehead; 2 Buttonhead; 3 (Flat) Countersunk-head; 4 Panhead; 5 Flathead; 6 Steeple-head.

riv'et, v. t.; RIV'ET·ED; RIV'ET·ING. 1. To fasten with a rivet, or with rivets; as, to rivet two pieces of iron.
2. To upset the end or point of, as a metallic pin, rod, or bolt, by beating or pressing, so as to form a head; hence, to spread (metal) by peening; to peen.
3. To fasten firmly; to make firm, strong, or immovable; to fix closely (the eye, gaze, mind).
Thus his confidence was riveted and confirmed. Scott.
4. To attract and hold engrossingly (the attention).
rivet buster. Mach. A tool for knocking off rivetheads. rivet carrier. See CARRIER. rivet catcher. See CATCHER.
-riv'et·ed. Combining form meaning fastened (in a specified manner) with rivets, as in:
double-riveted, single-riveted, steel-riveted.
riv'et·er (rĭv'ĕ·tĕr; -ĭ·tĕr), n. a One whose work is to rivet a (specified) thing, or in a (specified) way, as in, bobbin riveter, girder riveter, hand riveter, inside riveter, pneumatic riveter. b A riveting machine; also, its operator. c A tool for drawing circles representative of rivets.
rivet forge. A riveting forge.
rivet hearth. A riveting forge.
rivet heater. See HEATER.
rivet hole. A hole prepared to receive a rivet.
riv'et·ing, n. 1. Act of one who rivets.
2. A set of rivets, collectively. riveting die. = RIVET SET.
riveting forge. A forge for heating rivets. riveting hammer. See HAMMER, n., 1, Illust. riveting knob or set. = RIVET SET.
riveting stake. Horol. A block of steel pierced with holes for the reception of arbors, so that the pinion or collet to be riveted finds a resting place round the edge of a suitable hole.
rivet knob. = RIVET SET.
rivet line. A line through the centers of a row of rivets. rivet pitch. The distance between the centers of adjacent rivets that hold together the parts of a built member.
rivet set. A cupped tool for forming a head on a rivet. rivet snap. = SNAP, n., 14. rivet steel. Very mild steel (about 0.05 per cent carbon), suitable for making rivets.
rivet weld. A weld having the form of a countersunk-head rivet and serving as a rivet.
rivet wheat. = POULARD WHEAT.

Rivet Set.

‖ri'vière' (rē'vyâr'), n. [F., prop., stream. See RIVER.] A necklace of diamonds or other precious stones, esp. one of several strings.
Ri·vi'na (rĭ·vī'nȧ), n. [NL., after A. Q. Rivinus (1652–1723), Ger. botanist.] Bot. A small genus of tropical American herbs (family Phytolaccaceae) having somewhat flattened red berries. R. humilis is the bloodberry. riv'ing (rĭv'ĭng), adj. That rives. — riv'ing·ly, adv.
riving knife. = FROE. riving machine. A machine for splitting wood into staves, shingles, etc. Cf. FROE.
Ri·vin'i·an (rĭ·vĭn'ĭ·ăn; 159), adj. Pertaining to the German anatomist A. Q. Rivinus (1652–1723). ri'vo (rē'vō), interj. An exclamation used in drinking bouts. Obs. ri'vose (rī'vōs; rĭ·vōs'), adj. [L. rivus a brook, channel, gutter. See RIVULET.] Marked with sinuate and irregular furrows; as, rivose markings.
Riv'u·la'ri·a (rĭv'ū·lā'rĭ·ȧ; 79), n. [NL., fr. L. rivulus rill, rivulet.] The type genus of the family Rivulariaceae.
Riv'u·la'ri·a'ce·ae (-ā'sē·ē), n. pl. [NL.] Bot. A family of fresh-water blue-green algae (order Hormogoneales), consisting of slender gradually attenuated or hair-tipped filaments usually growing in tufts attached to the substratum, and frequently mucilaginous. Rivularia and Calothrix are the principal genera. — riv'u·lar'i·a'ceous (-lăr'ĭ·ā'shŭs), adj.
riv'u·la'tion (rĭv'ū·lā'shŭn), n. [L. rivulus rivulet.] A narrow irregular color marking. riv'u·let (rĭv'ū·lĕt; -lĭt; 119), n. [It. rivoletto, dim. fr. rivolo, fr. L. rivulus, dim. of rivus a brook.] A small stream or brook; a streamlet.
riv'u·lose (rĭv'ū·lōs), adj. [L. rivulus rivulet.] Chiefly Bot. Marked with irregular, narrow, sinuous or crooked lines, like those representing rivers on a map.
rix (rĭks), n. [Dial. var. of RUSH a reed.] A rush; a reed. Obs. exc. Dial.
rix·a'trix (rĭks·ā'trĭks), n. [NL., fem. of L. rixator.] A virago or scold. Rare.
rix'-dol'lar (rĭks'dŏl'ĕr), n. [Obs. D. rijcksdaler (D. rijksdaalder), lit., dollar of the empire or realm. See RICH; DOLLAR.] 1. Any of various German, Dutch, and Scandinavian silver coins, now nearly obsolete. The Dutch rix-dollar (rijksdaalder) was legal at 2½ gulden ($1.005). The German talers which adhered to the legal standard of fineness were called speciestalers, and, by an ordinance of 1623, reichstalers. In general the value of these was approximately one dollar.
2. Any of various English colonial issues, as for Ceylon, Cape Colony, etc. rix'y (rĭk'sĭ), n. [Origin uncert.] The common tern. Local, Eng.

ri·yal' (rē·yäl'), n. [Ar. riyāl, fr. Sp. real. See REAL coin.] A silver coin used in Arabic-speaking lands and equal to 1/10 of the pound sterling. See COIN, Table.
Ri·zal' Day (rē·zäl'). The thirtieth day of December, a legal holiday in the Philippine Islands, commemorating the death of the Filipino patriot José Rizal, who was condemned without trial and shot by Spanish soldiers in 1896.
riz'i·form (rĭz'ĭ·fôrm), adj. [F. riz rice + -form.] Resembling a grain of rice.
Riz'pah (rĭz'pä), n. Bib. A concubine of Saul. Her two sons were hanged, with five other descendants of Saul, to remove a curse from the land. Rizpah watched by their bodies till a rain fell showing that the curse was averted. 2 Sam. xxi. 8–10.
riz'zar (rĭz'ĕr), v. t. [MF. ressorê, past part.] To dry or cure in the sun. Scot. — n. Drying, esp. in the sun; a haddock so dried. Scot. riz'zar (rĭz'ĕr), riz'zart (rĭz'ĕr; -ĕrt), n. [Origin uncert.] Red currant. Scot. riz'zom (rĭz'ŭm), n. [Dial. also rissom, of Scand. origin; cf. Sw. dial. rissom, ressma, resma.] An ear or stalk of grain; a straw; hence, a particle; the least bit. Obs. exc. Dial.
riz'zomed (rĭz'ŭmd), adj. Bearing grain; headed out; — of cereal grasses. Dial. Eng.
riz·zo'nite (rĭ·zō'nīt), n. [From Mt. Rizzoni, Tirol.] Petrog. A lamprophyric rock resembling limburgite in chemical and mineralogical composition.
R months. Months whose names contain the letter r; September to April. During this period in the American northern hemisphere, oysters are traditionally in season.
Ro (rō), n. [Arbitrarily formed.] An artificial language, intended to be international, devised by Rev. Edward P. Foster, of Marietta, Ohio, about 1906. Ro rejects all existing words and roots and is based "on the analysis and classification of ideas." See INTERNATIONAL AUXILIARY LANGUAGE. — Ro'ist (-ĭst). ro, n. & v. [ME., fr. ON. rō; akin to AS. rōw, G. ruhe.] Repose. Obs.
‖ro (rō), n. = ROM. Gypsy. roach (rōch), n. [From COCKROACH.] A cockroach. roach (rōch), n.; pl. ROACH, rarely ROACHES. See PLURAL, Note. [ME. roche, fr. OF. roche, of uncert. origin.] a A European fresh-water fish (Rutilus rutilus) of the carp family (Cyprinidae). It is silver white, with a greenish back. b Any of various allied or similar cyprinoid fishes, or, locally, of certain American fresh-water sunfishes, or the spot (Leiostomus xanthurus).

1/10
European Roach (Rutilus rutilus).

☞ COMBINATIONS are:
roach-back, adj., roach-backed, roach-bellied, roach-bent.
roach (rōch), n. [ME. roche rock, fr. OF. roche. See ROCK stone.] Obs. or Dial. Eng. a A rock; a stony hill. Obs., exc. in names of mountains. b Gravelly or stony soil; refuse stone.
roach, n. [Origin uncert.] 1. Naut. A cutting away in a curve of the edge of a sail, esp. in the leech or foot, to prevent chafing, or to secure a better fit.
2. A roll of hair brushed upward from the forehead or, rarely, the side of the head. Colloq. & Dial.
roach, v. t.; ROACHED (rōcht); ROACH'ING. 1. Naut. To cut with a roach, as a sail.
2. To cause to arch; esp., Colloq. or Dial., to brush (the hair) in a roach.
3. To cut off, as a horse's mane, so the part left stands upright; also, to mark (livestock) by cutting out a portion of hair on the shoulder, side, etc.
roach'back' (rōch'băk'), n. a An arched back. b Local, Western U. S. A grizzly bear. road (rōd), n. [Orig., a riding, ME. rode, rade, a riding, a journey, fr. AS. rād, fr. rīdan to ride. See RIDE; cf. RAID.]
1. Act of riding on a horse; a journey on horseback. Shak.
2. An armed expedition; a hostile incursion; a raid. Obs.
3. A place where one may ride; an open way or public passage for vehicles, persons, and animals; a track for travel or for conveying goods, etc., forming a means of communication between one place and another. Road is generally applied to a highway outside of an urban district, as distinct from a street, which is a highway in an urban district. Cf. HIGHWAY.

1 Standard Macadam Road, Cross Section of half width. a Subgrade or Foundation; b Lower Course (4 in. thick) of Stones 1¼ to 2½ in. diameter; c Upper Course (2 in. thick) of Stones ½ to 1¼ in. diameter; d Binder of Screenings. 2 Wood Block Road. a Earth Foundation; b Concrete; c Cement Mortar; d Wood Blocks.

4. Figuratively, way; path; as, the road to prosperity or ruin.
5. A place, less sheltered or enclosed than a harbor, where ships may ride at anchor; a roadstead; — often in pl.; as, Hampton Roads.
Now strike your sails, ye jolly mariners,
For we be come unto a quiet rode [road]. Spenser.
6. Railroad; railway. Colloq.
7. Coal Mining. = GANGWAY, n., 2 c.
8. Drama. The places and routes collectively frequented by theatrical troupes on tour.
Syn. — See WAY.
☞ COMBINATIONS and PHRASES are:

road binder	road-grading, adj.	road-ready road compound	road guard	road repairer road contractor	road layer	road tar road drag	road-oiling, adj.	road-testing, adj.
road-faring, adj.	road plow	road-weary
roadfellow	road racer	road-wise, adj.
road fettler	road racing	roadwise, adv.

— at road. Naut. Anchored in a roadstead. Obs. — in the or one's road. In the way; obstructing or preventing progress. — on, or upon, the road. a Travelriv'er·bush', n. = BUTTONBUSH. riv'er·et, n. [OF. riverete.] A rivulet. Obs. riv'er·hood, n. See -HOOD. riv'er·less, adj. See -LESS.

riv'er·like', adj. See -LIKE.
riv'er·ward, riv'er·wards, adv. See -WARD. riv'er·wise', adv. See 1st -WISE. riv'er·wise', adj. See 2d -WISE. riv'et·head', n. See -HEAD. riv'et·less, adj. See -LESS. riv'et·like', adj. See -LIKE.
Rivinian duct. = DUCT OF RIVINUS. riv'n. Riven. Ref. Sp. riv'da·ler (rĭks'dä'lĕr), n. = RIX-DOLLAR, 1. [part. of RISE.]
ris (rīz). Dial. past tense & past rize, v. Rise. Ref. Sp. rĭ'zin. Var. of RICIN. riz'n. Risen. Ref. Sp. riz'zer. Var. of RIZZAR. riz'zle, v. t. & n. = RIZZAR, to dry; RIZZAR, red currant. Scot.
& N. of Eng.
riz'zor. Var. of RIZZAR. rĭ'-less, adj. See -LESS.
R L M dome reflector. See REFLECTOR, 2.

ing or passing over a road; coming or going; on the way. b Traveling regularly on business, esp. as a commercial traveler. c Theater. In transit through a circuit or for brief stays in several centers. — the road. The highway as the field for highwaymen's operations; hence, the career or practices of highwaymen; as, a gentleman of the road; to take to the road. Archaic. — to go on the road. a Obs. To become a highwayman. b To become a commercial traveler. c To travel, as a theatrical company, from place to place, giving performances in each place. — to go over the road. To be sent to prison. Thieves' Language.

road (rōd), v. i. To travel by road. Colloq., U. S.

-road. A combining form of road, often written separately.

back road	jiggy road	skid road byroad	main road	sprag road cable road	pack road	through road cart road	post road	tramroad coach road	railroad	whaleroad crossroad	river road	wire road highroad	side road

road, v. t. Hunt. To track or follow (game), esp. by scent.

road'a·bil'i·ty (rōd'ȧ·bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n. The qualities, collectively, that are desirable (in an automobile) on the road, as steadiness, flexibility in speed, or the like.

road agent. A highwayman, esp. on stage routes in unsettled districts. Colloq., Chiefly Western U. S.

road'bed' (rōd'bĕd'), n. a In railroads, the bed or foundation on which the superstructure (ties, rails, etc.) rests; also, the ballast, or the upper surface of the ballast on which the ties rest. b In common roads, the whole material laid in place and ready for travel.

road'book' (-bo̅o̅k'), n. A guidebook esp. devoted to roads and distances.

road builder. One who builds roads. — road building.

road cart. A kind of light two-wheeled vehicle, often having a back.

Road Cart.

road'craft' (rōd'krăft'; 83), n. Skill or dexterity in driving on a road.

road donkey. Logging. A donkey engine mounted on a sled, for dragging logs by cable along the skid road.

road'ed (rōd'ĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj. Provided with roads.

road'er (rōd'ĕr), n. 1. A worker or sweeper on a road. 2. A roadster. 3. a Logging. = ROAD DONKEY. b A craft anchored in a roadstead.

road gang. A crew of men building or working on a road.

road goose. The brant Branta bernicla. Great Brit.

road grader or machine. A wheeled device having a long, inclined, vertically adjustable steel blade or scraper, used to throw earth, etc., from side to center of the road.

road harrow. A harrow devised to reshape the surface of a gravel-covered or stone-covered road disturbed by traffic.

road'head' (rōd'hĕd'), n. The end of a road. Dial.

road hog. A driver, esp. of an automotive vehicle, who selfishly obstructs others using the road, esp. by occupying part of another's traffic lane. — road'-hog', v. t. & i. — road'-hog'gish, adj. — road'-hog'gism, n.

road horse. a Obs. A horse used for riding. b A saddle horse for use on a road, as distinguished from a hunter, a plow horse, etc.

road'house' (rōd'hous'), n. An inn or similar place catering esp. to travelers by the road, as carriage parties, automobilists, etc.

road'ing (rōd'ĭng), n. 1. Act of traveling on the road, esp. in an ordinary or regular manner, as distinguished from racing or other special manner of using the road. 2. Highway construction and maintenance.

road'ite (rōd'ĭt), n. One addicted to driving. Colloq.

road making. Act of constructing roads; also, science of road construction. — road maker. — road'-mak'ing, adj.

road'man (rōd'măn), n. 1. A road maker or repairer, esp. in mines. 2. A peddler, canvasser, or the like; also, a commercial traveler.

road map. A map showing roads, esp. automobile roads.

road'mas'ter (rōd'mȧs'tĕr; 83), n. 1. Railroads. An official in charge of a division or subdivision of from 50 to 150 miles of track; — called also supervisor or trackmaster. U. S. 2. A public overseer of repairs of roads. Local, U. S.

road mender. One who repairs roads.

road metal. Broken stone, cinders, etc., used in making and repairing roads, ballasting railroads, etc. Cf. METAL, n.

road monkey. A man who inspects and repairs a logging road. Cant.

road oil. Oil for putting on roads to lay the dust and act as a binder. Heavy oils from asphalt-base petroleum are the most used.

road pen. A special pen with two points used by map makers in representing roads.

road roller. One who or that which rolls roadways; specif., a machine equipped with heavy, wide, smooth rollers, for compacting roads and pavements.

road runner. A cuckoolike bird (Geococcyx californianus), of largely terrestrial habits, noted for running with great speed. It ranges from California to Mexico and eastward to Texas; — called also chaparral cock; also, an allied species (G. affinis) occurring in Mexico.

Road Runner. (1/12)

road scraper. A road grader.

road'side' (rōd'sīd'), n. Land, esp. the strip of land, adjoining a road or highway; the side of a road or highway.

road'side', adj. Situated at the side of a road.

road'sid'er (-sīd'ĕr), n. One who lives or maintains a place of business alongside a road.

roadside thistle. a The bull thistle (Cirsium lanceolatum). b The tall thistle Cirsium altissimum.

road sign. A sign bearing information about a road or roads.

road'stead (-stĕd), n. [1st road + stead a place.] A protected place where ships may ride at anchor. = 1st ROAD, 5.

road'ster (rōd'stĕr), n. 1. Naut. A vessel that works its way by means of the tides. Rare. 2. A horse used for driving, and sometimes for riding, for pleasure, or for light work, on ordinary roads. 3. One who travels much on roads. 4. a Formerly, a bicycle or tricycle adapted for ordinary use on common roads. b Now usually, an automobile with an open body having one cross seat and a luggage compartment in the rear, often containing a rumble seat. 5. One who keeps to the roads instead of following the hounds across country. Eng. Hunting Slang.

road'stone' (rōd'stōn'), n. Stone for making roads.

road test. A test of a vehicle under practical operating conditions on the road.

Road to Mandalay, The. = MANDALAY.

road'track' (rōd'trăk'), n. A roadstead.

road wagon. A wagon for use on common roads; esp., a form of buggy.

road'way' (rōd'wā'), n. 1. The strip of land over which a road is constructed; hence, a road; specif., that part of a road over which the traffic travels. 2. That part of the right of way of a railway prepared to receive the track. 3. The part of a bridge used by vehicles.

road'weed' (-wēd'), n. The common plantain Plantago major.

road wheel. A wheel which holds to the track or road but on which no driving power is exerted.

road'wor'thy (rōd'wûr'thĭ), adj. Fit for, or for use on, the road. — road'wor'thi·ness (-thĭ·nĕs; 119), n.

roam (rōm), v. i.; ROAMED (rōmd); ROAM'ING. [ME. romen; perh. akin to AS. ārēman to raise, arise, ON. reimt haunted, and AS. rȳsan to rise, Gr. orinein to stir, raise, OSlav. rijati to flow, thrust. See RISE.] Intransitive: 1. To go from place to place without any certain purpose or direction; to rove; to wander.

Daphne roaming through a thorny wood. Shak.

2. To direct one's course; to go; proceed. Obs. Chaucer.

—, Transitive: To range or wander over.

Syn. — Range, stroll. See RAMBLE.

roam one's eyes over. To look over. Colloq.

roam, n. Act of roaming; a wandering; ramble. Milton.

roam'age (rōm'ĭj), n. A roaming. Rare.

roam'er (-ĕr), n. One who roams.

roam'ing, adj. That roams. — roam'ing·ly, adv.

roan (rōn), adj. [MF. (F. rouan), fr. Sp. roano, prob. fr. L. ravidus gray-yellow, fr. ravus gray, tawny. See GRAY.] 1. a Having a bay, chestnut, red, or brown color, with gray or white thickly interspersed; — said of a horse. If the ground color is red the resulting color is termed red-roan or strawberry roan; if black, it is termed blue-roan; if chestnut, chestnut-roan. b Of the color roan. 2. Made of the leather called roan; as, roan binding.

roan (rōn), n. 1. a The color of a roan horse. b A color, yellowish-red in hue, of low saturation and low brilliance. Cf. COLOR. 2. a A roan horse. b A roan ox, bull, or cow. c The roan antelope. 3. A kind of low-grade sheepskin used for slippers, bookbinding, etc., made from skins tanned with sumac and colored to imitate ungrained morocco.

roan (rōn). Var. of RONE. roan. Var. of RAUN. Obs. exc. Dial.

roan antelope. A South African antelope (Egoceros equinus) slightly larger and lighter-colored than the sable antelope.

ro'a·noke' (rō'ȧ·nōk'), n. [Virginian rawranoke, râre-nawok, white shell beads.] A kind of wampum, of the Virginia region.

Ro'a·noke bell (rō'ȧ·nōk). [From Roanoke, Virginia.] Virginia cowslip. U. S.

roan tree. Var. of ROWAN TREE.

roar (rōr; 181), v.; ROARED (rōrd); ROAR'ING. [ME. roren, raren, fr. AS. rārian; akin to G. röhren, OHG. rērēn.] Intrans.: 1. To cry with a full, loud, continued sound. Specif.: a To bellow, or utter a deep, loud cry, as a lion or bull. b To cry loudly, as in pain, distress, or anger. Dryden. 2. To make a loud, confused sound, as winds, waves, passing vehicles, a noisy crowd, or the like.

The brazen throat of war had ceased to roar. Milton.

3. To be boisterous or disorderly.

It was a mad, roaring time, full of extravagance. Bp. Burnet.

4. To laugh out loudly and continuously; as, the hearers roared at his jokes. 5. To make a loud noise in breathing, as horses having a certain disease. See ROARING, n., 2. 6. To go with a roar; to drive or fly with the throttle of the engine open.

—, Transitive: 1. To utter with a roar; to cry or proclaim aloud. 2. To bring to a (specified) state by roaring; as, the river roared him to sleep.

roar (rōr; 181), n. [Cf. AS. gerār. See ROAR, v.] The sound of roaring. Specif.: a The deep, loud cry of some wild beasts; as, the roar of a lion. b A loud, deep cry of one in pain, anger, or the like. c A loud, continuous, and confused sound; as, the roar of wind, or waves.

Arm! arm! it is, it is the cannon's opening roar! Byron.

d A boisterous outcry or shouting, as in mirth. "A constant roar of laughter." Macaulay.

roar'er (rōr'ĕr), n. One who or that which roars. Specif.: a Slang. Obs. A riotous person; a swaggering, disorderly blade. b Veter. A horse subject to roaring. See ROARING, n., 2. c Eng. = COBBERER. d = BULL-ROARER. e Slang, U. S. Someone or something especially good or greatly admired.

roar'ing (rōr'ĭng; 181), adj. 1. Making or characterized by a noise like a roar; as, roaring applause. 2. Riotous; disorderly. 3. So busy, brisk, successful, or the like, as to suggest the roar of traffic, of enthusiastic applause, or the like; as, a roaring trade; a roaring success. Colloq. — roar'ing·ly, adv.

roar'ing (rōr'ĭng; 181), n. [AS. rārung.] 1. A loud, deep, prolonged sound, as an utterance or cry of certain beasts or of a person in distress, anger, mirth, etc., that of winds or waves, or that of a noisy crowd. 2. Veter. Noisy respiration in the horse, caused by paralysis of the left recurrent laryngeal nerve, and atrophy of the muscles of the arytenoid cartilage on that side. It is only produced during exercise and is an unsoundness.

roaring boy or lad. A riotous fellow; a noisy street roisterer; a roarer. Also, Rare, roaring girl. Obs.

roaring buckle. A buckie; — so called from the noise heard when it is held to the ear. Scot.

roaring forties. 1. Naut. The stormy tracts of ocean between the fortieth and fiftieth degrees of latitude, north or south. 2. [caps.] In New York City, Broadway and adjacent streets between Fortieth and Fiftieth streets. Colloq.

roaring game or play. Curling. Scot.

roaring horsetails. A corruption of aurora australis. Colloq., Australasia.

roaring lad. Roaring boy.

Roaring Meg. A cannon. Obs.

roast (rōst), v.; ROAST'ED; ROAST'ING. [ME. rosten, fr. OF. rostir (F. rôtir), of Teut. origin; cf. OHG. rōsten (G. rösten), fr. rōst, rōsta, gridiron (G. rost). Cf. ROSTER.] Trans.: 1. Orig., to cook by exposure to radiant heat before a fire, or in an oven open toward the fire and having reflecting surfaces within, thus distinguished from bake; as, to roast meat on a spit; now, usually, to cook in an oven by dry heat. 2. To cook by surrounding with hot embers, ashes, sand, etc.; as, to roast a potato in ashes. 3. To dry and parch by exposure to heat; as, to roast coffee; to roast chestnuts, or peanuts. 4. Figratively: To heat to excess; to heat violently; to burn. "Roasted in wrath and fire." Shak. 5. To banter, ridicule, or criticize severely; as, the reporters roasted the politicians in the dispatches. Colloq. 6. Metal. To heat with access of air, but without fusing, as to expel volatile matter or effect oxidation, and esp. to remove sulphur from sulphide ores. Cf. CALCINE, v. t., 1.

—, Intransitive: 1. To cook meat, fish, etc., by heat, as before the fire or in an oven. 2. To undergo the process of being roasted. 3. To become overheated or parched.

roast (rōst), n. [OF. rost (F. rôt). See ROAST, v.] 1. That which is roasted; a piece of meat which has been roasted, or is suitable for being roasted; esp., a roast of beef.

A fat swan loved he best of any roast [roast]. Chaucer.

2. A party or social gathering at which the main food is prepared by roasting before an open fire; as, a corn roast; a steak roast. Colloq. 3. Act or process of roasting; specif., Colloq., severe banter, ridicule, or criticism; as, he endured many roasts. 4. Class or variety of roasted coffee as determined by length of roasting or extent of change during that process.

roast, adj. [For roasted.] Roasted; as, roast beef.

roast'a·ble (rōs'tȧ·b'l), adj. That can be roasted.

roast'-beef' plant. A European iris (Iris foetidissima) the bruised leaves of which have an odor of flesh.

roast'er (rōs'tĕr), n. 1. One who roasts anything, as meat. 2. A machine or contrivance for roasting, as a device for roasting coffee or peanuts, a covered pan for roasting meat, or a furnace for roasting ore. 3. That which is adapted to roasting, esp. whole; specif.: a A sucking pig. b A young chicken, usually male, weighing over four pounds. 4. One who indulges in severe banter or criticism. Colloq. 5. An extremely hot day, esp. one with bright sunlight. Colloq.

roast'ing, pres. part. & verbal n. of ROAST. Hence: adj. That roasts, or that is suitable to be roasted for eating; as, a roasting chicken. — roast'ing·ly, adv.

roasting ear. An ear of Indian corn in that milky stage of development when it is fit to be eaten roasted.

roasting jack. A device for turning a spit on which meat is roasted. See SMOKEJACK.

roast of beef, lamb, mutton, pork, etc. A cut of beef, lamb, etc., suitable for being roasted.

roast sintering. See BLAST ROASTING.

rob (rŏb), v.; ROBBED (rŏbd); ROB'BING. [ME. robben, fr. OF. rober, of Teut. origin; cf. OHG. roubōn, G. rauben, and OHG. roub robbing, booty, G. raub. See REAVE; cf. ROBE.] Transitive: 1. To take something away from by force; to strip or deprive by stealing; to plunder; to steal from.

To be executed for robbing a church. Shak.

2. To steal; as, to rob fruit; hence, figuratively, to deprive; also, to ravish. Now Rare. 3. To deprive of, or withhold from, unjustly or injuriously; to defraud; as, to rob one of his rest, or of his good name; a tree robs the plants near it of sunlight. 4. Card Games. To take a trump card from (the deck). 5. Law. To take personal property in the possession of another from his person or his presence, feloniously, and against his will, by violence or by putting him in fear. 6. Mining. To mine coal or ore without provision for the preservation of (the mine). Hence: a (1) To take out pillars of coal or ore from (a mine) as a final operation, before the abandonment of the mine. (2) To take out the richer and more accessible ores from (a mine) leaving valuable material behind, while destroying the mine. b To mine (coal or ore) in this fashion.

—, Intransitive: To take that which belongs to another without right or permission, esp. by violence; to commit robbery.

rob Peter to pay Paul. To pay one person with that to which another has a prior claim; to satisfy one obligation by creating or leaving unsatisfied another.

rob the cradle. To select as a companion, or to marry, a person much younger than oneself.

rob (rŏb), n. [F., fr. Ar. rubb.] The thickened juice of ripe fruit, obtained by evaporation of the juice over a fire till it has the consistence of a sirup. It is sometimes mixed with honey or sugar.

rob. Var. of ROBE. Obs. Scot.

rob (rŏb), roub (rōōb), rou'bouh (rōō'bōō), n. [Ar. rub, one fourth.] See MEASURE, Table.

Rob (rŏb), Rob'bie (rŏb'ĭ), n. Dim. of ROBERT.

rob'a·lo (rŏb'ȧ·lō; rō'bȧ-), n. [Sp. róbalo, of obscure origin.] Any of several pikelike marine fishes of the West Indies and tropical America constituting the family Centropomidae; esp., the largest species Centropomus undecimalis, a valuable food fish called also snook, the smaller species being called rob'a·li'to (-lē'tō).

Robalo (Centropomus undecimalis). (1/20) rob'and (rŏb'ănd), n. Also rab'and (răb'ănd), rope'band' (rōp'bănd'), rob'bin (rŏb'ĭn), etc. [Prob. fr. D. raband, prop., a yard band. See RA; BAND.] Naut. A small piece of spun yarn or marline used to fasten the head of a sail to a spar.

road. † RODE. road'less, adj. See -LESS. — road'less·ness, n.

road'like', adj See -LIKE. roads'man, n. = ROADMAN, 1. roag. † ROGUE.

Ro'a·ga (rō'ȧ·gȧ). D. Bib. roak. Var. of ROKE, vapor. roak'y (rōk'ĭ). Var. of ROKY, foggy, etc. Eng. roamd. Roamed. Ref. Sp. roard. Roared. Ref. Sp.

roast'i'ron, n. A gridiron. Obs.
roat, roate. † ROTE. roave. † ROVE.

roaver. † ROVER.
rob'a·li'to (rŏb'ȧ·lē'tō; rō'bȧ-), n. See ROBALO.

rob'ber (rŏb'ĕr), n. [OF. robeor.] 1. One who robs; in law, one who commits the crime of robbery.
2. Also robber bee. Specif., a honeybee worker that steals honey from a colony not its own.
Syn. — Depredator, despoiler, plunderer, pillager, rifler, brigand, bandit. See THIEF.

rob'ber, adj. Pertaining to or composed of robbers.

robber crab. a A purse crab. b Any hermit crab.

robber fly. Any of numerous predaceous flies, many of them of large size, belonging to the family Asilidae. They usually have a slender body and long legs and are covered with coarse bristly hairs, but some resemble the bumblebees very closely. The adults prey upon other insects, and the larvae prey upon other insect larvae.

Robber Fly (Erax aestuans). Nat. size.

robber frog. A large Texan frog (Eleutherodactylus latrans), having a note like a dog's bark.

robber gull. A jaeger gull.

Rob'bers, The. A drama by Schiller. See RÄUBER, DIE.

Robber Synod or Council. = LATROCINIUM, 2; COUNCIL OF EPHESUS b.

rob'ber·y (rŏb'ĕr·ĭ), n.; pl. -BERIES (-ĭz). [OF. roberie.] Act or practice of robbing; specif., Law, larceny of property from the person or immediate presence of another in possession thereof accomplished by violence or putting him in fear. See THEFT.
Syn. — Depredation, spoliation, plunder, pillage, larceny.

Rob'bi·a work (rŏb'ĭ·ȧ). Glazed and colored terra-cotta work of the Della Robbia family, i.e., Luca della Robbia (d. 1482) and his nephews, esp. Andrea. They used this medium in modeled figure subjects, ornamental borders, and semiarchitectural decorations of great beauty.

rob'bin (rŏb'ĭn), n. [F. robin.] Com. A kind of package in which pepper and other dry commodities are sometimes exported from the East Indies. Rare.

rob'bin. Scot. & dial. Eng. var. of ROBIN.

rob'bin. Var. of ROBAND.

rob'bing, n. Organ Building. A variation of air pressure, causing unsteadiness of the wind current as delivered to the pipes, thus rendering their tones variable.

robe (rōb), n. [OF., orig., booty, plunder, of Teut. origin. See ROB, v.] 1. A long, loose outer garment, reaching the feet; a dress of a flowing and elegant style or make; hence, a dress of state, rank, office, or the like.

Through tattered clothes small vices do appear; Robes and furred gowns hide all. Shak.

2. By extension, any garment; pl., dress; costume; as, the king's coronation robes.
3. Figuratively: A covering; mantle; as, the robe of night; to throw the robe of charity over sins.
4. A skin of an animal, as the bison, dressed with the fur on, and used as a wrap to throw over the legs in driving; hence, a similar wrap of any material. U. S.
5. Dressmaking. A dress pattern, often including bands, flouncing, or embroidery, ready to be made into a gown.
— the robe or the long robe. The legal profession.

robe (rōb), v. t.; ROBED (rōbd); ROB'ING (rōb'ĭng). To invest or clothe with a robe or robes; to dress; to array; as, fields robed with green; a countenance robed in smiles.
— v. i. To put on a robe or robes; to robe oneself.

‖robe' à la fran'caise' (rŏb' à lȧ frän'sȧz'). [F.] See 4th SACK, 6 a.

-robed (-rōbd). A combining form of robed, as in:

fire-robed	long-robed	rich-robed flowing-robed	loose-robed	russet-robed gilt-robed	purple-robed	silk-robed

‖robe'-de-cham'bre (rŏb'dĕ·shäN'br'), n. [F., a chamber gown.] A dressing gown, esp. one for a woman.

‖robe'-de-nuit' (-nwē'), n. [F.] Nightdress.

robe'-de-style' (-stēl'), n. [F.] A type of formal gown having a tight bodice, and bouffant skirt.

Ro'ben·hau'si·an ep'och (rō'bĕn·hou'zĭ·ȧn). That stage of neolithic culture immediately preceding the Bronze Age; — from the type station at Robenhausen, Switzerland.

rob'er (rŏb'ĕr), n. One who robes.

rob'erd (rŏb'ĕrd), n. [Cf. ROBIN bird.] The chaffinch. Eng.

Rob'erds·man (rŏb'ĕrdz·mȧn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). [Appar. fr. Roberd Robert.] One of a class of vagabond thieves and robbers in 14th-century England. Now Hist.

Rob'ert (rŏb'ĕrt), n. [F., of G. origin; cf. OG. Robert, Ruopert, Kupert, Ruprecht, Hruodperht, Hrodperht; and OHG. ruod-, hruod- (in comp., akin to AS. hrēth glory, fame, ON. hrōthr), and OHG. beraht bright, akin to E. bright. Cf. RUPERT.] Literally, bright in fame; — masc. proper name. L. Robertus (rō·bûr'tŭs); F. Robert (rō'bâr'); It. Roberto (rō·bâr'tō), Ruberto (rōō·bâr'tō); Sp. Roberto (rō·bĕr'tō); Pg. Roberto (rō·bĕr'tōō); G. Robert (rō'bĕrt), Rudbert (rōōt'bĕrt), Ruprecht (rōō'prĕkt). — Dim. Bob, Bobby, Dob, Dobbin, Rob, Robin, Pop (Popkin, obs.).

rob'ert (rŏb'ĕrt), n. The herb Robert.

Rob'ert, n. Short for SAUCE ROBERT.

Robert Els'mere (ĕlz'mēr). The title and hero of a novel (1888) by Mrs. Humphry Ward. He is a young Church of England clergyman who struggles with religious doubt and leaves the church.

Ro'bert' le Dia'ble (rō'bâr' lē dyȧ'blˈ). [F.] An opera (1831) by Meyerbeer. See ROBERT THE DEVIL a.

Robert Macaire. See MACAIRE, ROBERT.

Rob'ert-o'-Lin'coln (rŏb'ĕrt·ō·lĭng'kŭn), n. The bobolink.

Rob'ert's-plan'tain (rŏb'ĕrts-), n. = ROBIN'S-PLANTAIN.

Rob'erts's straight'-line' mo'tion (rŏb'ĕrt·sĭz). See STRAIGHT-LINE, 1.

Robert the Devil. [F. Robert le Diable.] a The hero, prob. legendary, of a French metrical romance of the 13th century, represented as the son of a Duke of Normandy. Reputed, because of his cruelty, to be the son of a devil, he repented, doing penance at Rome for seven years in the guise of a fool and a dumb person. Commanded by an angel to fight the Saracens, he defeated them, but reassumed each day his wretched clothes. Refusing the king's daughter, he retired to a forest, where he died holily. The story was used by Meyerbeer in his opera Robert le Diable. b Robert I, Duke of Normandy (d. 1035), father of William the Conqueror; — so called from his fury and cruelty in war.

Ro'ber'val' bar (rō'bĕr'vȧl'). [See ROBERVAL'S BALANCE.] A stabilizing bar or link parallel to the platform lever, in a weighing scale having the pans or the platform supported on two points above the platform lever.

Ro'ber'val's' bal'ance (rō'bĕr'vȧlz'). [After G. P. de Roberval (1602–75), French mathematician.] A kind of balance in which the pans are fixed to the vertical sides, prolonged, of a jointed parallelogram the two other sides of which are pivoted in their mid points to a vertical post.

Rob'i·ga'li·a (rŏb'ĭ·gā'lĭ·ȧ), n. pl. [L.] Rom. Relig. A festival including a procession and the sacrifice of a dog to the god Ro·bī'gus (rō·bī'gŭs), who averted blight from the fields.

rob'in (rŏb'ĭn), n. [F., prop. dim. of Robert. See ROBERT.]
1. A small, somewhat warblerlike European bird (Erithacus rubecula) of the thrush family, having the back brownish olive and the throat and breast yellowish red; — called also robin redbreast, or redbreast. It is a good songster and breeds abundantly in Great Britain. Hence (usually with some qualifying term), any of various Old World songbirds related to or resembling in size, color, or habits, the European robin; as, in Australia, species of the genera Petroica, Melanodryas, etc.; in India, of Saxicola, Thamobia, etc. Cf. WOOD ROBIN.
2. In North America, a large thrush (Turdus, syn. Merula, migratorius). See BIRD, Plate. The upper parts are olivaceous gray, the head and tail blackish, the throat streaked black and white, and the breast and under parts chiefly dull reddish. It often nests in orchard or shade trees, close to human habitations, and lays pale greenish-blue eggs. Related forms inhabit Mexico. The name is, in combination, locally or popularly applied to other American birds; as, Oregon robin, the varied thrush; ground robin, the chewink; golden robin, the Baltimore oriole.
3. In Jamaica, a green, red-throated tody (Todus todus).
4. Any of several plants, as the ragged robin, red campion, herb Robert, etc. Dial. Eng.

Rob'in, n. a Dim. of ROBERT. b Obs. [not cap.] A bumpkin; a lout.

rob'in (rŏb'ĭn). Var. of ROBING, a trimming.

ro'bin (rō'bĭn), n. [From Robinia.] Biochem. A toxalbumin in Robinia pseudoacacia, similar to abrin and ricin.

robin accentor (rŏb'ĭn). A small Asiatic songbird (Tharrhaleus rubeculoides), somewhat resembling the European robin in color.

Rob'in Blue'string' (blōō'strĭng'). Sir Robert Walpole; — so called by his opponents, as a knight of the Garter. See BLUE RIBBON a.

robin breast. The knot (bird).

robin chat. Any of various African thrushlike birds of the genus Cossypha and related genera. Some are slaty blue with orange breasts, recalling the color of a robin.

robin dipper. The bufflehead duck. Local, U. S.

rob'in·et (rŏb'ĭ·nĕt), n. [Prop. F., dim. of the name Robin; cf. F. robinet a cock, tap. See ROBIN bird.] 1. a The chaffinch. b Local, Eng. The European robin.
2. Mil. A light cannon of the 16th century, throwing a projectile weighing about half a pound.

rob'ing (rŏb'ĭng), n. 1. Act of putting on a robe.
2. Clothing; apparel; a robe.
3. A kind of flouncelike trimming for the front of a dress, skirt, or infant's frock.
4. Material for robes or gowns.

Rob'in Good'fel'low (rŏb'ĭn gŏŏd'fĕl'ō). A tricksy house sprite in the popular fairy mythology of England; — styled also Puck, or Hobgoblin. See PUCK, 1 b.

Robin Hood. A famous legendary English outlaw whose exploits are the subject of many ballads. He is usually described as a yeoman, with his chief resort in the forest of Sherwood, in Nottinghamshire. Of his followers, the most noted are Little John; his chaplain, Friar Tuck; and his sweetheart, Maid Marian. The popular legends extol his courage, courtesy, generosity, and skill in archery, and his habit of robbing the rich for the benefit of the poor.
— to go around Robin Hood's barn. To arrive at a conclusion or result by a roundabout course. Colloq.

Rob'in-hood', v. i. To live like Robin Hood; to act like Robin Hood.

Robin Hood's feather. The virgin's-bower of Europe.

Robin Hood's hatband. The common club moss (Lycopodium clavatum). Eng.

Ro·bin'i·a (rō·bĭn'ĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., after Vespasien Robin, who introduced the locust in Europe (1635).] Bot. a A small genus of North American trees and shrubs, the locusts (family Fabaceae), having showy racemose pink or white flowers. R. pseudoacacia is the common, or black, locust; R. viscosa is the clammy locust and R. hispida is the rose acacia. b [not cap.] A plant of this genus.

ro'bin·in (rō'bĭ·nĭn), ro·bin'o·side (rō·bĭn'ō·sīd), n. [Robinia + -in, -oside.] Chem. A yellow crystalline glucoside, $C_{33}H_{42}O_{19}$, found in the flowers of the locust (Robinia pseudoacacia).

robin redbreast. a The European robin. b The American robin. c [caps.] A Bow Street officer.

robin runaway. Bot. a The dewdrop. b = GROUND IVY a.

rob'in-run'-in-the-hedge' n. Any of several common trailing plants, esp. the ground ivy, cleavers, hedge bindweed, or bittersweet. Dial. Eng.

robin sandpiper or snipe. a The knot (bird). b The dowitcher.

rob'in's-egg' blue. A color, bluish-green in hue, of low saturation and high brilliance; — called also bird's-egg green, eggshell blue, eggshell green. Cf. COLOR. — rob'in's-egg'-blue', adj.

robin snipe. a The knot (bird). b The dowitcher.

Rob'in·son Cru'soe (rŏb'ĭn·sŭn krōō'sō). The usual title and hero of a romance (1719) by Defoe. He is an ingenious sailor who is shipwrecked on an uninhabited island, where he lives many years with no companions save his dog, a parrot, and finally his man Friday, a young savage whom he rescues on a Friday from cannibals visiting the island. The story is supposed to be based upon the adventures of Alexander Selkirk, a Scotch sailor, who was cast away upon Juan Fernandez.

rob'in's-plan'tain (rŏb'ĭnz-), n. A common perennial herb (Erigeron pulchellus) of eastern North America, having flower heads with violet-purple rays.

rob'in's-rye', n. A haircap moss.

rob'in-wake', n. The wake-robin.

robin wheat. = ROBIN'S-RYE.

ro'ble (rō'blā), n. [Sp., oak, fr. L. robur. See ROBUST.]
1. Any of several species of oak; as: a Cal. The valley white oak (Quercus lobata); also, perhaps incorrectly, the canyon live oak. b In Mexico, any of many species of deciduous oaks (Quercus).
2. In Spanish-speaking tropical America, any of several trees having hard timber; as: a The quira (Platymiscium polystachyum), often called roble colorado. b Any of the trees Macrocatalpa longissima, Tabebuia rigida, and species of Tecoma, esp. T. pentaphylla. c The umbur-ana, Argentina. d In temperate South America, any tree of the genus Nothofagus, esp. the Chilean N. obliqua and N. dombeyi.

rob'o·rant (rŏb'ō·rȧnt), adj. [L. roborans, pres. part. See ROBORATE.] Strengthening. — n. A roborant drug; a tonic.

rob'o·rate (-rāt), v. t. [L. roboratus, past part. of roborare to strengthen, fr. robur, roboris, strength. See ROBUST.] To strengthen; corroborate; ratify. — rob'o·ra'tion (-rā'·shŭn), n. — rob'o·ra'tive (rŏb'ō·rā·tĭv), adj.

ro·bo're·an (rō·bō'rē·ȧn; 181), adj. Oaken; stout; strong.

ro·bo're·ous (-ŭs), adj. Of, pert. to, or resembling, an oak.

ro'bot (rō'bŏt; rŏb'ŏt), n. [Czech robota compulsory service, socage, work; akin to OSlav. rabota servitude, Goth. arbaiths toil, trouble. See ORPHAN.] 1. In Karel Capek's play R.U.R. (Rossum's Universal Robots), one of a large number of artificially manufactured persons, mechanically efficient, but devoid of sensibility; hence, a brutal, efficient, insensitive person; an automaton. Cf. GOLEM.
2. Any automatic apparatus or device that performs functions ordinarily ascribed to human beings, or operates with what appears to be almost human intelligence; esp., such an apparatus that is started by means of radiant energy or sound waves.
— ro'bot·esque' (-ĕsk'), adj. — ro·bo'tian (rō·bō'shȧn), adj. — ro'bot·ism (rō'bŏt·ĭz'm; rŏb'ŏt-), n. — ro'bot·is'tic (-ĭs'tĭk), adj. — ro'bot·ize (rō'bŏt·īz; rŏb'ŏt-), v. t. & i. — ro'bot·i·za'tion (-ĭ·zā'shŭn; -ĭ·zā'-), n. — ro'bot·ry (-rĭ), n.

Rob' Roy' (rŏb' roi'). 1. Literally, Red Rob; — the sobriquet of a famous Scottish outlaw, Robert MacGregor or Campbell (1671–1734), the chief of the Highland clan MacGregor.
2. The title and name of an important character in a novel (1817) by Scott, of the Jacobite rising in 1715–16 in Scotland. See OSBALDISTONE, FRANCIS; VERNON, DI.
3. A kind of short, light, flat-decked canoe for river cruising, invented in 1865 by John McGregor (Rob Roy), a writer on canoeing.

Rob'sart, A'my (ā'mĭ rŏb'särt). In Scott's Kenilworth, a confiding girl whom the Earl of Leicester has secretly married but kept a prisoner at Cumnor Hall lest his marriage should hinder his advancement. Escaping, she goes to Kenilworth to get herself acknowledged, but is returned to Cumnor, and murdered. In real life Amy Robsart married Robert Dudley, afterwards Earl of Leicester, in 1550, and her death was probably a suicide.

ro'bur (rō'bĕr), n. [L., oak.] 1. The British oak (Quercus robur).
2. The strongest, best, or most effective part of anything; of troops, the choicest class. Rare.

ro'bur·ite (rō'bĕr·ĭt), n. [L. robur strength.] A mining explosive containing, according to one formula, chlorinated dinitrobenzene and ammonium nitrate.

ro·bust' (rō·bŭst'; 66), adj. [L. robustus oaken, hard, strong, fr. robur, robus, strength, oak, heart of oak, hard wood; named from its color and akin to L. ruber, robus, rufus, red. See RED; cf. CORROBORATE.] 1. Having or evincing strength or vigorous health; strong; muscular; vigorous; sound; as, a robust body; robust youth; robust health; robust confidence.

The robust and lively pencil of Franz Hals. F. G. Stephens.

2. Rough; rude. "Gallantry robust." Thomson.
3. Requiring strength or vigor; as, robust work.
4. Arabic Gram. Pertaining to or designating the consonants other than alif (A), wāw (W), and yā' (Y). See WEAK, adj., 8 f.
Syn. — Lusty, sinewy, sturdy, hale, hearty. See STRONG. Ant. — Sickly, unhealthy, weakly, frail.

ro·bust'ful (-fŏŏl; -fĭ), adj. Robust. — ro·bust'ful·ly, adv. — ro·bust'ful·ness, n.

ro·bus'tic (rō·bŭs'tĭk), adj. Robust; also, robustious. — ro'bus·tic'ĭ·ty (rō'bŭs·tĭs'ĭ·tĭ), n.

ro·bus'tious (rō·bŭs'chŭs), adj. [From ROBUST.] Robust; stout; healthy; esp., rudely vigorous; boisterous; rough. Now Chiefly Humorous. — ro·bus'tious·ly, adv. — ro·bus'tious·ness, n.

ro·bus'ti·ty (rō·bŭs'tĭ·tĭ), n. Robustness. Rare.

roc (rŏk), n. Also rock, and rukh (rōōk). [Ar. rukhkh, fr. Per. rukh. Cf. ROOK in chess.] A fabulous bird of Arabia so huge that it bore off elephants to feed its young. The legend of the roc was current in the East; it occurs in the Arabian Nights. Cf. SIMURGH.

‖ro'caille' (rō'kä'y'), n. [F., fr. roc rock, fr. roche. See ROCK stone.] a A style of ornamentation developed in the 18th century and characterized by forms derived from the artificial rockwork and pierced shellwork of the period. b The rococo system of scroll ornament, based in part on the forms of shells and waterworn rocks.

roc'am·bole (rŏk'ȧm·bōl), n. [F., fr. G. rockenbolle, fr. rocken, roggen, rye + bolle bulb.] A European leek (Allium scorodoprasum) often cultivated like the shallot, and similarly used.

‖roc'ca (rŏk'kä), n. [It.] A fortress; hold; the donjon, or keep, of a castle or fortress.

Roc·cel'la (rŏk·sĕl'ȧ), n. [NL. (after ML. & It. rocca rock), fr. It. orcella. See ARCHIL.] Bot. A small maritime genus of chiefly rock-inhabiting lichens having a fruticulose or pendulous thallus. The species, esp. R. tinctoria, are the chief sources of the dye archil and some of them furnish litmus. The family is sometimes regarded as typifying a family, Roc'cel·la'ce·ae (rŏk'sĕ·lā'sē·ē), and sometimes placed in the family Parmeliaceae. Cf. LECANORA, PERTUSARIA. roc·cel'lic ac'id (-lĭk). [From ROCCELLA.] Chem. A white crystalline diacid, $C_{17}H_{32}O_4$, found in Roccella tinctoria and other lichens.

roc·cel'lin (rŏk·sĕl'ĭn), roc·cel'line (-ĭn; -ēn; 157), n. See DYE, Table.

roc·cel'line (-ĭn; -īn), adj. Bot. Pertaining to or resembling plants of the genus Roccella.

Roch, Saint (sȧnt rōk). A saint of the early 14th century much invoked in danger of pestilence. He nursed plague victims, and when stricken himself was found and brought assistance by a dog. In art he is usually represented with a dog.

Roch'dale prin'ci·ples (rŏch'dāl). In co-operative marketing, the system whereby no credit is given, and all profits are distributed among customers; — from Rochdale, Eng., where the first English co-operative store of this type was established in 1844.

---

rob'ber-proof', adj. See -PROOF. robbery insurance. See INSURANCE, n., 1. robd. Robbed. Ref. Sp. robe'less, adj. See -LESS. ro'bhah (rō'bȧ), n. sing. & pl. [Ar. rub'ah one fourth, fem. of rub'. See 4th ROD, ROUB.] See MEASURE, Table.
ro·bin'o·side (rō·bĭn'ō·sīd), n. Also -sid. = ROBININ. [ROSON.
Robinson, Jack. See JACK ROB-roble. ✝ RUBLE. [REHOBOAM.
Ro·bo'am (rō·bō'ȧm). Var. of ro'bot-like', adj. See -LIKE. ro·bust'ly, adv. of ROBUST.
ro·bust'ness, n. See -NESS. ro·bus'tous, ro·bus'tu·ous, adj. [L. robustus.] Robust; robustious. Obs.
roc. ✝ ROCK, ROOK. roch. ✝ 3d RATCH, n.
roch. ✝ ROACH, ROCHE. [ROUGH. roch (Scot. rŏk). Scot. var. of Ro·che·a (rō′kē·ȧ), n. [NL., after François de la Roche, Swiss botanist.] Bot. A small genus of South African fleshy undershrubs (family Crassulaceae) with showy cymose salver-shaped flowers of various colors.

roche alum (rōch). [F. alun de roche rock alum.] A variety of ordinary alum similar to Roman alum.

roche′lime′ (rōch′līm′), n. [F. roche rock + E. lime.] Lime in the lump after it is burned; quicklime. Eng.

Roche, or Roche's, limit (rōsh, rōsh′ēz). [After E. A. Roche (1820–83), French mathematician.] Astron. That distance between a planet's center and its satellite within which the satellite (if it always turns the same face toward the planet) cannot approach without suffering disruption.

Ro·chelle′ (rō·shĕl′), n. 1. A seaport town in France.
2. Wine exported from this town.

Rochelle powders. = SEIDLITZ POWDERS.

Rochelle salt. Sodium potassium tartrate, $KNaC_4H_4O_6 \cdot 4H_2O$, a colorless crystalline salt. It has a cooling, saline, slightly bitter taste, and is a mild purgative. It was discovered by Seignette, an apothecary of Rochelle.

‖roche′ mou′ton·née′ (rōsh′ mōō′tō·nā′). [F., sheep-shaped rock.] Phys.Geog. A rock worn round by glaciers.

roch′er (dial. rŏch′ēr), n. [OF. rochier (F. rocher).] A rocky place; rocks. Obs. exc. Dial.

Roch′es′ter (rŏch′ĕs′tĕr; -ĭs·tĕr), n. [From Rochester, New York.] Geol. A stage or formation of the American Silurian. See GEOLOGY, Chart.

Roch′es′ter, Mr. The passionate hero of Charlotte Brontë's Jane Eyre. His maniac wife sets fire to his home and perishes; Jane then marries him, although he was crippled and blinded in trying to save his wife.

roch′et (rŏch′ĕt; -ĭt; 119), n. [OF., fr. roc, of Teut. origin; cf. OHG. roc coat, G. rock; akin to AS. rocc.] 1. A medieval outer garment, usually short-skirted, worn by men or women. Now Hist.
2. A loose cloak; a frock. Scot., Dial. Eng., & Ir.
3. Eccl. A close-fitting linen vestment resembling a surplice, commonly with long close sleeves, though sometimes winged or sleeveless, worn esp. by bishops and privileged prelates in certain ceremonies.
4. Hence, a bishop. Obs.

roch′et, v. t. To clothe with a rochet. Rare.

roch′et (rŏch′ĕt; -ĭt; 119), n. [OF. rouget, fr. rouge red.] The red gurnard.

Ro·chet′ (rō·shā′), n. See SAINT-ESTÈPHE.

roch′et·ed (rŏch′ĕt·ĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj. Wearing a rochet.

roch′ing cask (rōch′ĭng; rōsh′ĭng). [F. roche a rock.] A tank in which alum is crystallized from a solution; a rocking cask.

Ro′chon′ prism (rō′shôn′). [After A.M. Rochon (1741–1817), French astronomer and optician.] A type of double-image prism consisting of two equal prisms of calcite or other doubly refracting material cut differently with respect to the axis. The directions of the optic axes make angles of 90° with each other, the axis of one of the prisms being parallel to its refracting edge and the axis of the other being perpendicular to its refracting edge.

rock (rŏk), n. [ME. rokke, fr. ONF. roque (OF. & F. roche), fr. VL. rocca, of unknown origin. Cf. 3d ROACH, ROCOCO.] 1. A cliff, promontory, peak, or the like, of rock (see sense 3, below), usually bare, and considered as one mass; as, the rock of Gibraltar.
2. A large concreted mass of stony material; a large fixed stone; also, broken pieces of such masses. See STONE.

> Come one, come all! this rock shall fly > From its firm base as soon as I. Scott.

3. Geol. Solid mineral matter of any kind occurring naturally in large quantities or forming a considerable part of the earth's mass; also, a particular mass or kind of such material. Rock may be consolidated or unconsolidated, and composed of one mineral or, more commonly, of two or more; or it may be to a greater or less extent of organic origin, as coal. In geology, granite, sand, gravel, clay, and glacial ice are rocks. Rocks may be broadly classified as igneous, sedimentary, and metamorphic. See these terms; also PETROGRAPHY.
4. That which resembles a rock (sense 3) in firmness; a defense; support; refuge.

> The Lord is my rock, and my fortress. 2 Sam. xxii. 2.

5. Figuratively: Anything which causes a disaster or wreck suggestive of the wreck of a vessel upon a rock.
6. A fragment or pebble of rock (sense 3); a stone; as, to throw rocks at one. Colloq., U. S.
7. A mass consisting of lime soap obtained in a process for saponifying fats by heating them with lime and water under pressure.
8. A diamond. Slang.
9. The striped bass.
10. a A kind of hard stick candy variously flavored as with peppermint, clove, or anise. b = ROCK CANDY. c A kind of hard cooky, with a rough surface; — called also rock cake.
11. A coin; hence, pl., money. Slang, U. S.
12. [cap.] Short for PLYMOUTH ROCK (fowl).
13. Mining. a Ore as mined; esp., Lake Superior copper ore. b Cornwall. A big lump of ore.

☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are:

rock-based	rock-embosomed	rock-loving rock-battering	rock-encircled	rock-melting rock-begirdled	rock-encumbered	rock-piercing rock-bestudded	rock-enthroned	rock-piled rock-bethreatened	rock-fallen	rock-pulverizing rock-boring	rock-fast	rock-razing rock-breaking	rock-firm	rock-reared rock-clad	rock-firmed	rock-roofed rock-cleft	rock-forming	rock-rooted rock-concealed	rock-free	rock-rushing rock-covered	rock-frequenting	rock-scarped rock-crested	rock-girded	rock-sheltered rock-crushing	rock-girt	rock-strewn rock-cut	rock-hard	rock-throned rock-drilling	rockhearted	rock-thwarted rock-dusted	rock-hewn	rock-torn rock-dwelling	rock-inhabiting	rock-wombed

— of the old rock. Of proved and seasoned excellence; — a Gallicism, derived from the belief that turquoises mined anciently were of higher quality than newer ones. — on the rocks. Wrecked; ruined; destitute.

rock (rŏk), adj. Of, pertaining to, or formed of rock or rocks; having its habitat on or among rocks.

rock, v. t. To throw stones at. Colloq., U. S.

rock (rŏk), v.; ROCKED (rŏkt); ROCK′ING. [AS. roccian; akin to Dan. rokke to move, to shake, ON. rykkja to pull, move, G. rücken to move, push, pull, ruck a pull, jerk.] Transitive: 1. To move as in a cradle; hence, to put to sleep by rocking; to lull; to quiet. "Sleep rock thy brain." Shak.
2. To cause to sway backward and forward, as a body resting on a support beneath; as, to rock a cradle or chair; to cause to vibrate; to cause to reel or totter.

> A rising earthquake rocked the ground. Dryden.

3. To affect in a specified manner by rocking; as, to rock one asleep; the tremor of the explosion rocked down houses.
4. In mezzotint engraving, to prepare the surface of (a plate) by the use of the cradle, or rocker.
5. Mining. To wash (placer gravel) in a cradle or rocker.
—, Intransitive: 1. To move or be moved backward and forward; to be violently agitated; to reel; to totter.
2. To roll or sway backward and forward upon a support; as, to rock in a rocking chair.

Syn. — See SHAKE.

rock the boat. a To move a small boat from side to side, esp. to do so recklessly in order to frighten the other occupants. b To do anything that disturbs the balance or equilibrium of a project or enterprise.

rock (rŏk), n. Act or process of rocking; a rocking movement; specif., in some step dances, a change of balance from one foot to the other with feet crossed.

rock (rŏk), n. [ME. (perh. fr. MD.) roc, rokke; akin to MD. rocke, D. rok, rokken, G. rocken, OHG. rocko, Dan. rok, Sw. rock, ON. rokkr. Cf. ROCKET firework.] A distaff; a distaff with wool or flax on it; also, the wool or flax. Hist.

-rock (-rŏk). A combining form of the noun rock, as in:

bedrock	sandrock	traprock
rendrock	soapdrock

rock′a·ble (rŏk′ȧ·b′l), adj. Capable of being rocked or oscillated, as a rocker arm. — rock′a·bly, adv.

rock′a·by′, rock′a·bye′ (rŏk′ȧ·bī′), imper. Also rock′-a-by′, rock′-a-bye′. Be still! Go to sleep! — the first words of a nursery song intended to put a small child to sleep. — v. t. To lull to sleep. — n. A lullaby.

rock′all·ite (rŏk′ôl·īt), n. [From Rockall, rock island in North Atlantic.] Petrog. A granular rock, composed of aegirite, acmite, quartz, and albite, and representing a sodic phase of an aegirite-granite.

rock alum. Roche alum.

rock alyssum. = GOLD-DUST a.

rock arm. Mach. A rocker arm.

rock asphalt. Asphalt rock.

rock′a·way (rŏk′ȧ·wā), n. [From Rockaway, N. J., where they were made, fr. Lenape repawihiki sandy land.] A light, low four-wheeled carriage, with standing top, open at the sides, but having waterproof curtains to be let down when occasion required; later, a similar, but heavier, carriage, enclosed, except in front, and having a door at each side.

Rockaway.

Rock′a·way (rŏk′ȧ·wā), n. An Indian of an extinct Algonquian tribe of Long Island.

rock badger. The cony (Procavia capensis) of South Africa.

rock barnacle. See 3d BARNACLE, 2.

rock basin. A depression in solid rock. Many rock basins are due to ice erosion in mountain regions and they usually contain small lakes, or tarns.

rock bass (bās). a A fish (Ambloplites rupestris) of the family Centrarchidae of most of eastern North America, esp. the upper Mississippi Valley and Great Lake region. Its flesh is rather soft and often of muddy flavor. b The striped bass. c In California, a common marine fish (Paralabrax clathratus) of the family Centrarchidae. See CABRILLA, Illust. d = BLACK BASS, 1.

rock beauty. Bot. A European alpine perennial herb (Draba pyrenaica) having fragrant lilac-purple flowers.

rock′bell′ (rŏk′bĕl′), n. The columbine Aquilegia canadensis.

rock′bird′ (-bûrd′), n. a A cock of the rock. b The purple sandpiper. c A sea bird that breeds in rocky cliffs, as a murre.

rock blackbird. The ring ouzel. Eng.

rock borer. Any of several marine clams which bore holes in rock, esp. certain species of Petricola, Pholas, and Lithodomus.

rock′born′ (rŏk′bôrn′), adj. Created from rock; derived from association with rocks; born by issuing from rock; as, Mithras is regarded as a rockborn god.

rock bottom. The very bottom or foundation; as, his fortune touched rock bottom.

rock′-bot′tom (66), adj. The very lowest; as, rock-bottom prices.

rock′-bound′, adj. Encircled or girt with rocks; as, a rock-bound coast; hence, figuratively, difficult of access or penetration; as, a rock-bound mystery.

rock brake. a The cliff brake. See PELLAEA. b See CRYPTOGRAMMA. c The common polypody (Polypodium vulgare).

rock breaker. A stone crusher.

rock′brush′ (rŏk′brŭsh′), n. In the southwestern United States and adjacent Mexico, either of two woody plants: a A low densely branched shrub (Colubrina texensis) with cymose, greenish flowers. b = ROSILLA b.

rock buckthorn. A low shrub (Rhamnus saxatilis) of central Europe, with very small greenish-yellow flowers and black fruit.

rock′-built′, adj. Made of or built on rock.

rock burst. Mining. A violent expulsion of rock from the walls of a mine opening, the effect of heavy pressure on brittle rocks in deep mines, where mining has deprived the rock of support on one side. Cf. 4th BUMP, 5.

rock butter. Cookery. = HARD SAUCE.

rock cake. = ROCK, 10 c.

rock candy. Sugar obtained in large crystals or crystalline masses by slow evaporation.

rock candytuft. = GOLD-DUST a.

rock cavy. A Brazilian rodent (Cavia, or Kerodon, rupestris) allied to the guinea pig.

rock cedar. A cedar or juniper (Juniperus mexicana) of the southwestern United States and Mexico, closely resembling the red cedar, with valuable wood used for ties and telegraph poles.

rock chestnut oak. The common chestnut oak (Quercus prinus).

rock chute. = ROCK HOLE.

rock′cist′ (rŏk′sĭst′), n. Also rock′-cis′tus (-sĭs′tŭs). [rock a large stone + NL. Cistus, the genus in which the plants were once included.] The rockrose.

rock′-climb′ing, n. Mountain climbing up difficult rocky faces. — rock′-climb′, n. & v. — rock′-climb′er, n.

rock club moss. = FESTOON PINE.

rock cock. A cock of the rock.

rock cod. a Any of various scorpaenoid rockfishes (see ROCKFISH a) of the Pacific coast. b In Australia, Scorpaena crumenta called red rock cod; also, a large grouper (Epinephelus daemelii), called black rock cod. c = BLUE COD b. d A variety of the true cod. See COD.

rock cook. A European wrasse (Centrolabrus exoletus).

rock cork. = MOUNTAIN CORK.

rock crab. Any of various crabs inhabiting rocky shores, as Cancer irroratus, and C. borealis of the northeastern coast of North America.

rock′craft′ (rŏk′krăft′; 83), n. Art or skill in building with rock, or in climbing over rock.

rock cranberry. The mountain cranberry.

rock cress. Any of several rock-loving cresses, esp. species of Arabis, as A. petraea, A. lyrata, etc. See ARABIS.

rock crystal. Transparent quartz. See CRYSTAL, n., 2.

rock dash. A stucco finish in which crushed rock or pebbles are embedded in the stucco base.

rock dassie. A rock rabbit. See HYRACOIDEA.

Rock Day. = DISTAFF DAY.

rock dove. a The rock pigeon Columba livia. b Ir. The black guillemot.

rock drill. Any machine for making holes in rock; esp., a hammer drill, or a piston drill.

rock driller. See DRILLER.

rock duck. Harlequin duck. Nova Scotia.

rock dust. Coal Mining. Pulverulent rock, usually shale or limestone used in rock dusting; — called also stone dust. Eng.

rock′-dust′, v. t. Mining. To spread or distribute a coating of finely ground rock, as shale dust, in coal-mine workings, for the purpose of reducing the explosion hazard.

rock′-dwell′ing, n. Archaeol. A natural or artificial recess in the face of a cliff, used as human habitation.

rock eel. The gunnel.

Rock′e·fel′ler Foun·da′tion (rŏk′ē·fĕl′ēr). [After John D. Rockefeller (b. 1839), Am. philanthropist.] A philanthropic trust incorporated in New York in 1913, with a self-perpetuating and unrestricted board of trustees, to "promote the well-being of mankind throughout the world." It works through various charitable, educational, and religious agencies, and is esp. active in the fields of medicine and health, establishing the China Medical Board in Peiping (Peking) in 1913, and working in close alliance with the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research, founded 1901.

rock′e·lay (rŏk′ē·lā), rock′lay. Vars. of ROQUELAURE.

rock elm. 1. a An elm (Ulmus racemosa) of eastern North America; — called also cork elm, from the prominent corky ridges on its twigs. b The tough, hard, reddish-brown wood of this tree, used for implements, furniture, etc.
2. The slippery elm Ulmus fulva. Tenn.

Rock English. The mixture of English, Spanish, and Arabic used by natives at the Rock of Gibraltar.

rock′er (rŏk′ēr), n. 1. One who rocks a cradle; one who operates a rocker (senses 3 a, b, d).
2. Either of the curving pieces of wood or metal on which a cradle, chair, etc., rocks; also, a chair or a play horse mounted on rockers; a rocking chair or rocking horse.
3. Any of various devices that work with a rocking or to-and-fro motion; as: a Elec. An adjustable brush holder for a dynamo or motor. b Engraving. A tool for preparing the ground in mezzotint engraving; a cradle (sense 7). c Mach. (1) A lever, pivoted at or near its center, used with an up-and-down motion in certain link motions, gas-engine gears, etc. (2) = ROCKSHAFT. d Mining. = CRADLE, n., 10. e Piano Mfg. A small piece fastened to a key tail for communicating motion to the prolong; — called also key rocker. See PIANO, Illust. f A steel or cast-iron pedestal supporting the end of a truss or girder and so designed as to permit rotation and horizontal movement resulting from expansion and contraction.
4. A skate with a curved blade, somewhat resembling in shape the rocker of a cradle.

Rocker, 3 b.

5. A boat with a rockered keel.

rock′er, v. t. To build with a camber like a rocker, as a boat keel.

rock′er, n. Rock pigeon. Local, Eng.

rocker arm. Mach. An arm borne by a rockshaft.

rocker bent. A bent supporting a bridge span and hinged at one or both ends to provide for expansion and contraction of the span.

rocker cam. Mach. A cam with a rocking or reciprocating movement, as a cam on a rockshaft.

rocker keel. A rockered keel.

rocker shaft. = ROCKSHAFT.

rock′er·y (rŏk′ēr·ĭ), n. a Hort. A rock garden. b Rocks, collectively.

rock′et (rŏk′ĕt; -ĭt; 119), n. [F. roquette, fr. Pr. rougeto dim. fr. eruca, fr. L. eruca a sort of colewort.] a Orig., the rocket salad (Eruca sativa). b Any plant of the genus Hesperis, esp. H. matronalis, the garden rocket. c Any of several similar plants, as the rocket larkspur.

rock′et (rŏk′ĕt; -ĭt; 119), n. [It. rocchetta, formerly rocchetto, prop. a bobbin, spool, dim. of rocca distaff, of Teut. origin. Named from the resemblance in shape to a distaff. See ROCK distaff; cf. RATCHET.] 1. A firework consisting of a cylindrical case partly filled with a combustible composition, as niter (potassium nitrate), charcoal, and sulphur, and fastened to a guiding stick. It is projected through the air by the escape of gases liberated by combustion. Rockets have been used as projectiles (see ROCKET APPARATUS), for pyrotechnic display, for signaling, and in warfare for incendiary and explosive purposes. Those for display often contain a garniture of stars, gold or silver rain, parachutes, etc., liberated at the highest point of the rocket's path.
2. One of a number of tubes containing a combustible composition generating gas, whose escape propels an automobile, airplane, or similar vehicle.
3. A blunt-headed lance used in the joust.
4. A smoke-generating device, as one formerly used in testing for leaks in drains.

Section of a Rocket, showing arrangement of the Powder and Fuse.

rock′et (rŏk′ĕt; -ĭt; 119), v.; -ET·ED; -ET·ING. Intransitive: 1. To rise or dash swiftly and with force like a rocket.
2. To rise straight up and swiftly when flushed; — said chiefly of pheasants.
—, Transitive: To fire at, or strike, with rockets.

rocket apparatus. The life-saving apparatus using a rocket to carry a line from the coast to a ship.

---

roche (dial. rŏch, rŏch). Var. of ROACH, ROCK. Obs. exc. Dial. ✝ ROC, ROOK, ROUGH.

roche.

roch′et. ✝ RATCHET.

roch′le (rŏch′ĭ). Var. of ROTCHE.

rocht. ✝ RAUGHT.

Ro′ci·nan′te (rō′thē·nän′tā; 103), n. [Sp.] = ROSINANTE.

rock (rŏk). ✝ ROC, ROOK.

rock′a·hom′i·ny, n. Also -hom′i·nie. [See HOMINY.] Hominy. Obs.

rock′at (rŏk′ăt). Scot. var. of ROCHET.

rock′ber′ry (rŏk′bĕr′ĭ; -bĕr·ĭ), n.; pl. -RIES (-ĭz). = BEARBERRY a.

rocks. ✝ ROKE, vapor; ROCK; ROOK.

---

rocket candytuft. A European candytuft (Iberis amara) having large and full flower clusters. rocket cress. The plant Barbarea vulgaris. rock'et·er (rŏk'ĕ·tĕr; -ĭ·tĕr), n. One who or that which rockets. rocket harpoon. Whaling. A harpoon attached to and propelled by a rocket. It often carries an explosive shell. rocket larkspur. A commonly cultivated annual larkspur (Delphinium ajacis) of southern Europe, with showy blue, or sometimes violet or pinkish, flowers.
rocket plane. An airplane propelled by rockets. rocket salad. An erect, much-branched European, annual herb (Eruca sativa) with pinnately lobed leaves and whitish-yellow flowers. It is sometimes grown for salad.
rock'et·y (rŏk'ĕ·tĭ; -ĭ·tĭ), adj. Like a rocket; flighty. rock face. See QUARRY FACE. — rock'-faced' (-fāst'), adj.
rock falcon. a The merlin. b The peregrine falcon. rock'fall' (rŏk'fôl'), n. A mass of falling or fallen rocks.
rock fern. = EVERGREEN WOOD FERN a.
Rock fever. [From The Rock (of Gibraltar).] See UNDULANT FEVER. rock'-fill' (rŏk'fĭl'), adj. Civil Engineering. Composed of large rock or stone loosely placed. rock'fish' (rŏk'fĭsh'), n.; pl. -FISH, -FISHES (-fĭsh'ĕz; -ĭz; 119). See PLURAL, Note. Any of various fishes which live among rocks or on rocky bottoms; as: a Any fish of the family Scorpaenidae, particularly those belonging to Sebastodes, Sebastichthys, and related genera, many of which are valuable market fishes on the Pacific coast of North America and northern Asia. The red rockfish and the priestfish, or black rockfish, are well-known forms. b The striped bass. c Any of several groupers of Bermuda and Florida waters of Epinephelus and allied genera. d The log perch. e A killifish (Fundulus majalis) of the American Atlantic coast.

1/10
Black Rockfish (Sebastosomus mystinus).

rock flint. Chert. rock flour. Finely powdered rock material produced by grinding action, as of a glacier on its bed; — called also glacial meal.
rock'foil' (rŏk'foil'), n. The saxifrage. rock garden. Hort. A garden laid out in a rocky situation or built to reproduce the conditions of such a place, adapted to the growth of certain sorts of plants, as those requiring a cool, moist location. Cf. ALPINE GARDEN. — rock gardener. — rock gardening.
rock gas. Natural gas.
rock geranium. = ALUMROOT a.
rock glacier. See STONE RUN. rock goat. A wild goat, or ibex. rock goose. The kelp goose.
rock grape. The sand grape. rock grouse. a A rock ptarmigan. See PTARMIGAN. b A sand grouse. rock gurnet. The fortescue. rock gypsum. Massive gypsum, sometimes crystalline, also microcrystalline or fine-grained, as in alabaster.
rock'hair' (rŏk'hâr'), n. A slender rupicolous tufted lichen (Alectoria jubata) used in dyeing. rock hawk. A rock falcon. rock hind (hīnd). a A brown-spotted grouper (Epinephelus adscensionis) of the West Indies and southern United States. b A grouper (Mycteroperca bonaci) of the waters east of Puerto Rico. c A variety of the niggerfish (Cephalopholis fulvus ruber) common in the West Indies.

1/10
Rock Hind a.

rock hole. Coal Mining. An inclined raise driven from a gangway or breast to an overlying coal seam; — called also rock chute. rock hopper. Any of several penguins of the genus Eudyptes of the Falkland Islands, New Zealand, and Antarctic waters. They are relatively small and have a short thick bill and yellow crests. Called also crested penguin.
rock hopping. Sealing. Act of hauling a mass of blubber ashore through the breakers.
Rock'ies (rŏk'ĭz), n. The Rocky Mountains. See in Gaz. rock'ing, adj. Having a swaying, rolling, or back-and-forth movement; used for rocking. — rock'ing·ly, adv.
rock'ing, rock'in (rŏk'ĭn), n. [See 6th ROCK.] An evening gathering, orig. one to which the women brought their rocks. Scot.
rocking cam. = ROCKER CAM. rocking cask. = ROCHING CASK. rocking chair. A chair mounted on rockers.
Rock'ing·ham ware (rŏk'ĭng·hăm; -ăm). Ware made at Swinton, England, on the estate of the Marquis of Rockingham. About 1790 it consisted mainly of white earthenware covered with a brown glaze of varying shades, and known as brown china. From about 1820 a bone porcelain was made, very brilliantly gilded and painted. rocking horse. A toy horse, large enough for a child to sit on, mounted on rockers or some mechanism permitting rocking.
rocking lever. = ROCK LEVER. rocking pier. A bridge pier hinged so as to allow a slight longitudinal motion of the bridge when the latter expands or contracts.
rocking shaft. = ROCKSHAFT. rocking slide valve. See ROCKING VALVE. rocking spectrum. Phys. A spectrum made to vibrate rapidly across the screen so as to produce white light near the middle by superposition of colors.
rocking stone. A stone, often of great size, so balanced upon its foundation that it can be rocked, or slightly moved, with but little force. In some cases it is left in this position by the weathering away of softer material; in others, by the melting of ice.
rocking tool. = ROCKER, 3 b. rocking tree. Weaving. The axle from which the batten or lathe of a loom is suspended.
rocking valve, or rocking slide valve. Steam Engine. A valve consisting of a disk or cylindrical piece with the necessary openings, oscillating or revolving on its seat.
rock'ish (rŏk'ĭsh), adj. Rocky; made of rocks; also, growing on rocks. Rare.
rock jasmine. Any small tufted plant of the genus Androsace.
rock kangaroo. A rock wallaby. rock kelp. Rockweed. rock lark. The rock pipit.
rock larkspur. The dwarf larkspur. rock leather. Mountain leather. rock lever. A hinged lever that works with a rocking movement; a rocking lever; specif., an equalizing bar, for draft animals, hinged by a knuckle joint.
rock lily. a A tropical American club moss (Selaginella convoluta), which grows in dense tufts. b An Australian orchid (Dendrobium speciosum), usually found growing on rocks. It has large green pseudobulbs, and dense racemes of creamy white flowers. c Local, U.S. Any of several rock-loving herbs, as the columbine Aquilegia canadensis and the pasqueflower. rock'ling (rŏk'lĭng), n.; pl. -LINGS (-lĭngz), sometimes -LING. See PLURAL, Note. [rock + 2d ling.] a Any of certain small rather elongate marine fishes (family Gaidropsaridae) allied to the cod. b An Australian and New Zealand fish (genus Genypterus) of the family Ophidiidae. rock lobster. A sea crayfish. rock lychnis. Any plant of the genus Viscaria.
rock madwort. = GOLD-DUST a. rock'man (rŏk'măn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). a One who removes rocks or ledges by blasting, as in excavating for buildings. b Eng. Slate Mining. A miner who gets out slate rock. rock manakin. Cock of the rock. rock maple. The sugar maple Acer saccharum.
rock martin or swallow. A crag martin. rock mat. A horticultural variety (Lobularia maritima procumbens) of the sweet alyssum, cultivated for its creeping, prostrate habit.
rock mediar. = SAVOY MEDLAR. rock melon. The European cantaloupe. Cf. MUSKMELON. rock milk. = AGARIC MINERAL.
rock mint. = WOOD GERMANDER. rock moss. a Any rock-loving lichen. b U.S. The widow's-cross (Sedum pulchellum). rock native. See SNAPPER, 5 c. rock oak. a The chestnut oak Quercus prinus. b The chinquapin oak Q. muhlenbergii. c The California blue oak.
Rock of Ages. a A hymn (1776) by A. M. Toplady. b [not cap.] Figuratively, Christ; also, the Christian faith.
Rock of Chick'a·mau'ga, the (chĭk'ă·mô'gȧ). General George H. Thomas; — so called because of his determined stand, which saved a large portion of the Union forces, in the battle of Chickamauga, September 19–20, 1863. rock oil. Petroleum.
rock opossum. The rock wallaby Petrogale xanthopus. rock ouzel. The ring ouzel. rock oyster. Any of various oysters or oysterlike bivalves occurring attached to rocks; specif., any one of the genus Hinnites, as H. giganteus of the west coast of North America.
rock painting. Anthropol. A painting on rock, such as a cave wall, cliff, or boulder, made by primitive peoples, often in connection with magical practices.
rock parakeet. A small, chiefly greenish, Australian parakeet (Neophema, syn. Neonanodes, petrophila), which nests in holes in cliffs. rock phospate. Agric. Phosphate rock, used as a fertilizer. rock pigeon. a A wild pigeon (Columba livia) of Europe and Asia, found chiefly along rocky coasts. From it the domestic pigeons were derived. It is bluish gray with a purplish breast, white rump, and dark wing bars. See PIGEON, Illust. b A sand grouse.
rock pile. a A pile of rocks, esp. of rocks for breaking up. b Hence, Slang, a jail, where prisoners often have been obliged to break rocks. rock pine. A variety of the cypress pine. Local, Australia.
rock pink. A pink-flowered perennial herb (Talinum calycinum) of the western United States.
rock pipit. An abundant European pipit (Anthus spinoletta petrosus) which frequents rocky shores.
rock plant. a Any plant which grows on or among rocks or one suited to a rock garden. b Obs. A petrified plant.
rock plant of Saint He·le'na (hĕ·lē'nȧ). The tree Petrobium arboreum. See PETROBIUM. rock plover. a Ir. The black-bellied plover. b The purple sandpiper. c The turnstone. rock pressure. a The pressure on fluids in any subsurface formation. It is greater than the pressure in a closed well. b Loosely, the pressure indicated in a closed well.
rock ptarmigan. Any of certain ptarmigans, esp. Lagopus mutus and L. rupestris. See PTARMIGAN. rock purslane. Any plant of the genus Calandrinia, some being cultivated for ornament. rock python. A rock snake, esp. Python sebae of Africa. See PYTHON, 4 b. rock rabbit. A hyrax. See HYRACOIDEA. rock rat. A small South African rodent (Petromys typicus) of the Hystricomorpha, having four grinding teeth on each side in each jaw. rock'-ribbed' (66), adj. Having ribs of rock, or like rock; hence, strong; solidly established; also, inflexible.
rock river. See STONE RUN. rock'rose' (rŏk'rōz'), n. a Any plant of the Cistaceae, esp. of the genus Cistus, or of the genera Helianthemum and (U.S.) Crocanthemum. b In Australia, any of several shrubs, as species of Hibbertia.
rockrose family. Bot. The Cistaceae. rock ruby. A fine red variety of garnet. rock salmon. a Southern U.S. An amberfish, esp. Zonichthys falcata. b Eng. = COALFISH a. rock salt. Common salt (sodium chloride) occurring in solid form as a mineral; halite; esp., salt in rocklike masses, usually more or less colored by iron. Also, sometimes, salt artificially prepared in large crystals or masses.
rock samphire. a The samphire Crithmum maritimum (family Ammiaceae). b The glasswort Salicornia europaea. rock sandwort. A low, perennial, tufted herb (Arenaria stricta) of northeastern North America, with subulate rigid leaves, and small white flowers in dichotomous cymes.
rock saw. Lumbering. A small coarse-toothed saw that cuts into a log ahead of the main saw and which serves to protect the latter by removing small stones or pebbles embedded in the log.
rock saxifrage. The early saxifrage. rock seal. The harbor seal. rock'shaft' (rŏk'shȧft'; 83), n. [Cf. ROCK, v.] Mach. A shaft that oscillates on its journals, instead of revolving, — usually carrying levers or projecting pieces, as arms, wipers, or tumblers, by means of which it receives and communicates reciprocating motion, as in some valve gears. rock'shaft', n. Mining. A shaft through which rock filling is introduced into a mine.
rock shelter. Archaeol. Any natural shelter between or under standing rocks in which the debris and campfires of prehistoric peoples are found.
rock shrike. A rock thrush. rock'slide' (rŏk'slīd'), n. A mass of sliding rocks. rock snake. a Any of several large pythons, as Python sebae of Africa, P. molurus of India, and P. spilotes of Australia. Cf. PYTHON, 4 b. b Any snake of the genus Bungarus, as the krait. rock snipe. Purple sandpiper. rock soap. = MOUNTAIN SOAP. rock sparrow. a Any of several Old World sparrows of the genus Petronia, as P. petronia of southern Europe and northern Africa, and P. brevirostris of Mongolia. b A sparrow (Aimophila ruficens eremoeca) of Mexico and Texas. rock spleenwort. See FERN, Table.
rock spray. A prostrate, evergreen Himalayan shrub (Cotoneaster microphylla) often cultivated for its solitary white flowers and bright-red fruits. rock squirrel. A large spermophile (Citellus variegatus grammurus) of western North America, having better developed tail and ears than the more strictly burrowing species. rock'staff' (rŏk'stȧf'; 83), n. [From ROCK, v.] 1. An oscillating bar, as the lever of a forge bellows.
2. A distaff. Dial. Eng. rock starling. The ring ouzel. rock sturgeon. The lake sturgeon.
rock sucker. A lamprey.
rock sunfish. The spotted sunfish (Enneacanthus obesus). rock swallow. = ROCK MARTIN. rock tar. Petroleum.
rock thrush. Any of certain Old World birds of the genus Monticola (syn. Petrophila) of the thrush family. rock tripe. a Any lichen of the genus Umbilicaria, having a flat, coriaceous, blackish thallus. These lichens grow on rocks in arctic, subarctic, and north temperate regions and have been used as food in cases of extremity. b Any lichen of the related genus Gyrophora.
rock trout. Any of several marine food fishes of the group Scleroparei and genus Hexagrammos, of the North Pacific coasts, esp. H. decagrammus and H. superciliosus, the latter known as red rock trout. Called also greenling.
rock turquoise. Turquoise matrix. See MATRIX, 10. rock violet. A green alga (Trentepohlia iolithus) forming patches on rocks at high elevations, and exhaling an odor of violets. rock vole. A vole (Microtus chrotorrhinus) of northeastern North America. rock wallaby. Any of various medium-sized kangaroos of the genus Petrogale. They inhabit rocky regions, and have a completely naked muzzle and a slender tufted tail.
rock warbler. Zool. A small Australian timaliine singing bird (Origma solitaria) which frequents rocky ravines. rock'weed' (rŏk'wēd'), n. Any coarse seaweed (family Fucaceae) growing attached to rocks, esp. species of Fucus and Ascophyllum.
rockweed bird. The purple sandpiper.
Rock'well ma·chine' (rŏk'wĕl; -wĕl). [After S. P. Rockwell, Am. metallurgist.] A trade-mark for an apparatus for measuring the hardness of metals and alloys, in which a diamond-pointed cone is pressed to a standard depth into the metal, the relative resistance to penetration (Rockwell hardness) being determined and automatically indicated by a number (Rockwell number) on a dial. The operation is called the Rockwell test.
rock whelk. = DOG WHELK b. rock whiting. Any of several Australian wrasselike fishes of the genus Odax (family Odacidae), esp. O. richardsonii, which is an important food fish.

Rock Whiting. (1/6)

rock'wood' (rŏk'wŏŏd'), n. a = MOUNTAIN WOOD. b Fossil or petrified wood.
Rock'wood for·ma'tion. [From Rockwood, Tenn.] Geol. A Silurian iron-bearing formation containing the highly important Clinton hematite ores of the southern Appalachians. rock'work' (rŏk'wŭrk'), n. 1. A mass of rocks.
2. Skill in climbing over rock.
3. Arch. Stonework in which the surface is left broken and rough; also, rarely, rock-faced masonry (see under QUARRY FACE).
4. Gardening. a A rock garden. b Rock ledges, waterfalls, chasms, etc., made in gardens.
rock wren. a Any of several wrens of the genus Salpinctes, of arid parts of the western United States and Mexico. b A small short-tailed passerine bird (Xenicus gilviventris) of New Zealand.
rock'y (rŏk'ĭ), adj.; ROCK'I·ER (-ĭ·ĕr); -I·EST. 1. Full of, or abounding in, rocks; consisting of rocks; as, a rocky shore.
2. Like a rock; as, the rocky orb of a shield. Milton.
3. Figuratively: Not easily impressed or affected; hard; unfeeling; obdurate; as, a rocky bosom. Shak.
rock'y (rŏk'ĭ), adj. Disposed to rock or totter, as when tipsy or after dissipation; hence, shaky; weak. Slang.
Rocky Ford. Hort. Any of a class of muskmelons, originating in a pioneer muskmelon district around Rocky Ford, Colorado. The term is now generally applied to certain netted varieties wherever grown.
Rocky Mountain. Sing. of Rocky Mountains; — used attrib. See in Gaz.
Rocky Mountain bee plant. The plant Cleome serrulata. See CLEOME.

rock'et·like', adj. See -LIKE. rock'i·ness, n. See -NESS. rock'lay, -ley. Scot. vars. of ROQUELAURE. rock'less, adj. See -LESS. rock'let, n. See -LET.
rock'like', adj. See -LIKE. rockt. Rocked. Ref. Sp. rock'tree', n. = ROCKING TREE. rock'ward, rock'wards, adv. See -WARD. rock'-worked', adj. [faced. Rare. Roughly Rocky Mountain garrot. Barrow's goldeneye. See GOLDENEYE.

Rocky Mountain goat. The mountain goat (Oreamnos montanus).
Rocky Mountain goldenrod. A species of goldenrod (Solidago ciliosa) common in Rocky Mountain region.
Rocky Mountain grape. The Oregon grape.
Rocky Mountain grasshopper or locust. See GRASSHOPPER, 1.
Rocky Mountain jay. See CANADA JAY.
Rocky Mountain maple. = DWARF MAPLE.
Rocky Mountain oysters. Lamb fries. Local, U.S.
Rocky Mountain red cedar. = WESTERN RED CEDAR a.
Rocky Mountain sheep. See MOUNTAIN SHEEP, 1.
Rocky Mountain spotted fever. Med. An acute infection occurring in the Rocky Mountain region, marked by chills, fever, pains in the muscles and joints and eruption of livid spots. It is transmitted to man by the bite of a wood tick (Dermacentor venustus). Cf. SPOTTED FEVER TICK.
Rocky Mountain whitefish. See WHITEFISH.
Rocky Mountain white oak. Any of several Rocky Mountain trees of the genus Quercus, esp. Q. utahensis and Q. leptophylla.
Rocky Mountain white pine. The limber pine.
Rocky Mountain woodsia. See FERN, Table. ro·co'co (rō·kō'kō; rō'kō·kō'), n. [F., fr. rocaille. See ROCAILLE.] A style of ornamentation developed in France chiefly under Louis XV (1715–74), and carried to extremes in Italy and Germany in the 18th century, characterized by curved spatial forms, light and fantastic curved lines, often flowing, reversed, or unsymmetrical, and ornament of pierced shellwork. Hence, any style of ornamentation marked by extravagant curvature and ornament.
ro·co'co, adj. Of, pertaining to, or like, the rococo in style; florid; fantastic; feebly pretentious.
That rococo seventeenth-century French imitation of the true Renaissance. W. Pater. roc's egg (rŏks). The egg of the roc; hence, figuratively, something unattainable; the object of a futile quest. roc'ta (rŏk'tȧ), n. [ML. Cf. ROTE musical instrument.] Music. A medieval stringed violinlike instrument. rod (rŏd), n. [AS. rodd; akin to ON. rudda club.] 1. A straight and slender stick, as one cut fresh from a tree; a wand; hence, stock; race; tribe; as, of the rod of Jesse; also, offshoot; scion.
2. Any slender bar, as of wood or metal. Specif.: a An instrument of punishment or correction; figuratively, chastisement.
He that spareth his rod hateth his son. Prov. xiii. 24.
b A scepter; hence, figuratively, power; authority; tyranny; oppression. "The rod, and bird of peace." Shak. c A wand or similar badge of office carried by various officials having the direction of persons, as marshals, ushers, etc. d A support for a fishing line; a fish pole. e A walking stick; cane. f A riding crop. g A divining rod. h A bar or staff for measuring. i Dial. Eng. Shaft (of a cart). j Slang, U.S. A revolver; pistol.
3. A measure of length containing 5½ yards or 16½ feet; also, the corresponding square measure; — called also perch, and pole. See MEASURE, Table.
4. Anat. One of the long rod-shaped sensory bodies in the retina, responsive to faint light. See RETINA.
5. Bacteriol. A bacterium shaped like a rod.
6. Basketry. An osier. See OSIER, n., 2.
7. Carp. A narrow board, a lath, batten, or strip, generally cut to a fixed length, upon which are marked either feet and inches, or, more usually, the heights and other dimensions of work to be done; — called also staff.
8. Mach. & Structures. A member used in tension, as for sustaining a suspended weight, or in tension and compression, as for transmitting reciprocating motion, etc.; a connecting bar; a connecting rod.
9. Math. A body whose boundary is a tubular surface of small section.
☞ COMBINATIONS are:

rod-bending, adj.	rod-drawing, adj.	rod-pointing, adj.
rod-boring, adj.	rod-healing, adj.	rod-polishing, adj.
rod-caught	rodmaker	rod-shaped

— a rod under, or at, one's girdle. A whipping, as with rods. — to have, or put, a rod in pickle. To have in store or prepare a reproof, punishment, or penalty for future application. — to kiss the rod. See kiss the rod, under KISS, v. — to ride, or take, the rods. To get on the drawrods, as of a freight train, for the purpose of stealing a ride. Slang, U.S.
rod (rŏd), v. t. 1. To provide with rods, esp. lightning rods.
2. To operate upon with rods; to use a rod upon.
-rod (-rŏd). A combining form of rod, as in:

Aaron's-rod	goldenrod	shepherd's-rod drawrod	ramrod	silverrod rod (rŏd). Past tense & past part. of RIDE. Now Dial.

rod adaptation. Physiol. & Psychol. The relatively slow adaptation of the eye occurring in low light intensities or in peripheral vision, which is much greater in degree than cone, or photopic, adaptation. See SCOTOPIA.
rod and crank movement. See INTERMITTENT MOVEMENT.
rod bayonet. Mil. A cylindrical bayonet usually carried in a cavity beneath the barrel of the rifle, and fastened in the fighting position by a spring catch. rod breaker. Agric. Mach. See PLOW, 1. rodd (rŏd), n. [Cf. ROD, ROOD.] A crossbow for shooting stones. See STONEBOW. rod'den (rŏd'ĕn; -'n), n. & adj. Rowan. Scot. rod'di·kin (rŏd'ĭ·kĭn), n. [Cf. MD. roode appendix of the stomach, Flem. roode neck of the womb.] The fourth stomach of a ruminant. Scot. rod'din (rŏd'ĭn). Var. of RODDEN. rod'din, rod'ding (rŏd'ĭn), n. [Gael. rōd path, fr. E. road.] A narrow path, esp. one made by sheep. Chiefly Scot. rode (rōd), n. Naut. A light rope for a boat's anchor. Local, U.S. & Newfoundland. rode, v. t. To free (a sewer, brook, etc.) from weeds. Obs. exc. Dial. Eng.
ro'de (rō'dē), n.; pl. RODER (-dĕr). [Dan. Cf. ROD.] See MEASURE, Table. rode (rōd). Past tense and archaic past part. of RIDE. rode. Var. of ROAD. Obs. exc. Dial. rode goose. [See ROOD GOOSE.] The common brant. Brit. ro'dent (rō'dĕnt; 128), adj. [L. rodens, -entis, pres. part. of rodere to gnaw. See RAT.] 1. Gnawing; biting; corroding.
2. Zool. a Gnawing. b Pertaining to the Rodentia. ro'dent, n. One of the Rodentia.

Ro·den'ti·a (rō·dĕn'shĭ·ȧ), n. pl. [NL. See RODENT.] Zool. The largest order of mammals comprising relatively small gnawing animals with a single pair of upper incisors which grow from persistent pulps and are enameled chiefly in front, producing a chisel-shaped edge. It comprises three suborders, Sciuromorpha (squirrels, beavers, and their allies), Myomorpha (rats, mice, voles, etc.), and Hystricomorpha (porcupines and related forms). It formerly included the Lagomorpha (which see) which now are considered a separate order often grouped with Rodentia in Glires, a superorder or other major division formerly equated with Rodentia (broad sense). — ro·den'tian (rō·dĕn'shȧn), n.

Skull of Rodent (Muskrat). I, I Incisors; M, M Molars; n Nasal; f Frontal; p Parietal; o Occipital; z Zygomatic Arch; bt Bulla Tympani; mx Maxillary; pmx Premaxillary; cp Coronoid Process; cd Condyle; a Angle of Mandible.

ro·den'tial (rō·dĕn'shȧl), adj. Pertaining to the Rodentia. Rare. — ro·den'tial·ly, adv. Rare.
rodent ulcer. Med. A chronic, persisting ulcer of the skin, esp. of the face, destructive locally but without much tendency to spread; usually, a basal cell carcinoma.
ro'de·o (rō'dē·ō; rō·dā'ō), n. [Sp., a going around, fr. rodear to surround, fr. L. rotare.] a A place where cattle are collected, esp. a market place. b Western U.S. A roundup. c Any spectacle like, or likened to, a roundup; specif., a public performance presenting the chief features of a roundup, as lariat throwing, horse breaking, etc.
rod epithelium. Anat. Epithelium in which the cells exhibit striation so as to appear as if divided at one end into a bundle of rods. It is found lining parts of certain glands.
Rod'er·ick (rŏd'ĕr·ĭk), n. [ML. Rodericus, of Teut. origin; cf. G. Roderich, OG. Hroderich, Ruodrich, Rudrich; cf. for the two parts of the name, ROBERT and RICHARD.] 1. Also Rod'er·ic. Literally, rich in fame; — masc. proper name. F. Rodrigue (rō'drēg'); It. Rodrigo (rō·drē'gō); Sp. Rodrigo (rō·drē'gō), Ruy (rōō'ē); G. Roderich (rō'dē·rĭK); Russ. Rurik (rōō'rĭk).
2. The last of the Gothic kings of Spain, the subject of many legends. He is the hero of Southey's Roderick, the Last of the Goths, and Scott's Vision of Don Roderick, and a chief character in Landor's drama Count Julian.
Roderick Dhu. See DHU, RODERICK.
Rod'er·ick Ran'dom (răn'dŭm). The usual short title and hero of a novel (1748) by Smollett. He is a young Scotchman in quest of fortune, with a dash of generosity and good humor in his character, but essentially mean. He borrows the money, and wears the clothes, of his simple, kindhearted adherent, Strap.
Rod'er·i'go (rŏd'ĕr·ē'gō; rō'dā·rē'gō). A Venetian gentleman in Shakespeare's Othello. He is a lover of Desdemona, and the dupe of Iago. rod fiber. Anat. The terminal fiber of a retinal rod. rodge (rŏj), n. The gadwall. Eng.
rod granule. Anat. The cell body of a retinal rod. rod'ham (rŏd'ăm), n. A patch of land bearing willow trees. Rare.
Ro'di·nal (rō'dĭ·năl), n. Photog. Trade-mark for a developer consisting of the para amino derivative of phenol, $C_6H_4(NH_2)OH$, or one of its salts; hence [sometimes not cap.], this developer.
Ro'din'esque' (rō'dăn'ĕsk'), adj. [See -ESQUE.] Resembling, or having the qualities of, a statue by Auguste Rodin, French sculptor (1840–1917); hence, suggesting strength and massiveness. rod'ing (rōd'ĭng), n. [See RODE rope.] Naut. The anchor line of a dory or similar small fishing boat. ro'ding·ite (rō'dĭng·īt), n. [From Roding, N. Z.] Petrog. A coarse-grained rock associated with peridotite and consisting of melanite and diallage. rod'less (rŏd'lĕs; -lĭs; 119), adj. Devoid of rods. rod'man (rŏd'măn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). 1. One whose work is done with a rod; specif., Surveying, see LEVELING.
2. A man who carries a rod, or revolver; hence, an armed thug or highwayman. Slang, U.S.
Rod'man gun (rŏd'măn). [After T. J. Rodman, Am. soldier.] Ordn. A smoothbore, muzzle-loading, cast-iron gun of large calibers, much used in the United States service during the Civil War and for many years after. It was cast about a hollow water-cooled core to give the internal layers initial compression with a resulting increase of resisting strength to explosion (cf. WIRE-WOUND GUN).

Rodman Gun. The dotted line shows the bore.

Rod'man's pres'sure gauge (rŏd'măns). A gauge for measuring pressure, as in cannon, by means of the length of the indentation or cut made in a piece of copper by a V-shaped steel knife.
rod mill. 1. A rolling mill the output of which is iron or steel rods.
2. Ore Dressing. A grinding machine similar to a ball grinder but using loose iron rods as the grinding media. See GRINDER, 6 b. rod'ney (rŏd'nĭ), n. A shirk; idler; vagabond; anything worthless. Chiefly Dial. Eng.
rod of Aaron. A divining rod.
Ro'dolph (rō'dŏlf), Ro·dol'phus (rō·dŏl'fŭs), n. Masculine proper name. See RUDOLPH.
Rod'o·mont (rŏd'ō·mŏnt), n. Also Ro'do·mon'te (rō'dō·mōn'tā). [It. Rodomonte, Rodamonte, prop., one who rolls away mountains, fr. It. dial. rodare to roll away (fr. L. rota a wheel) + It. monte a mountain, fr. L. mons. See ROTARY; 1st MOUNT, n.] 1. A Moorish hero, a king of Algiers in Boiardo's Orlando Innamorato and Ariosto's Orlando Furioso. He is a brave and fierce, but boastful, warrior.
2. [not cap.] [F. rodomont, It. rodomonte.] A vain or blustering boaster; a braggart; a braggadocio. Sir T. Herbert.
rod'o·mont (rŏd'ō·mŏnt), adj. Bragging; vainly boasting. rod'o·mon·tade' (rŏd'ō·mŏn·tād'; -tăd'), n. [F., fr. It. rodomontata. See RODOMONT.] Vain boasting; empty bluster; rant; also, Rare, a braggart. — adj. Bragging; boastful. Rare.
rod'o·mon·tade', v. i. To boast; brag; rant. rod'o·mon·tad'ist ((rŏd'ō·mŏn·tād'ĭst; -tăd'ĭst), n. Also rod'o·mon·ta'dor (-tā'dĕr; -tä'dĕr). One given to rodomontade; a braggart.
rod peeler. See PEELER.
Ro·drigues'' co·or'di·nates (rō·drēgz'). See 3d CO-ORDINATE, 2.
Ro·drigues's' for'mu·la (rō·drēgs'zĭz). [Prob. after Olinde Rodrigues (1794–1851), French economist and mathematician.] Math. The formula $P_n(z) = \frac{1}{2^n n!}\frac{d^n}{dz^n}(z^2-1)^n$ for the Legendre polynomials.
Ro·dri'guez's an'eu·rysm (rō·drē'gāths). Med. A form of varicose aneurysm in which the sac is in contact with the artery.
rods'man (rŏdz'măn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). a = RODMAN, 1. b One who eases oil-shale retorts, when the shale is jammed, by pushing with long iron rods.
rods of Corti (kôr'tē). Anat. See ORGAN OF CORTI. rod'ster (rŏd'stĕr), n. An angler. Rare.
rod vision. Vision with the rods and not the cones. See SCOTOPIA. rod'wood' (rŏd'wŏŏd'), n. Any of several West Indian shrubs or trees. The common rodwood is Laetia thamnia (family Flacourtiaceae). The red rodwood is Eugenia monticola; the white is Calyptranthes pallens.
roe (rō), n.; pl. ROE, rarely ROES (rōz). See PLURAL, Note. [ME. ro fr. AS. rā, rāha; akin to D. ree, G. reh, ON. rā, Dan. raa, Sw. rå.] a The roe deer. b A hind or doe.
roe, n. [For roan, fr. ME. rowne, fr. ON. hrogn; akin to G. rogen.] 1. a The eggs of fishes, esp. when still enclosed in the ovarian membranes. The sperm or testes of the male fish are sometimes called soft roe. b The eggs or ovaries of certain crustaceans, as the coral of the lobster.
2. The roe (sense 1 a) of certain fishes cooked and served as food; as, shad roe.
3. A striped appearance in wood, esp. mahogany.
Roe, Richard. See RICHARD ROE.
roeb'ling·ite (rōb'lĭng·īt), n. [After W. A. Roebling, Am. civil engineer.] Mineral. A lead calcium silicate, occurring in white crystalline masses. H., 3. Sp. gr., 3.4. roe'buck' (rō'bŭk'), n. The male, or any, roe deer.
roe'buck', v. i. To act with the vigor of a roebuck. Rare.
Father said with a sigh that his roebucking days were over. De Morgan. roebuck berry. The stone bramble; also, its fruit.
roed (rōd), adj. Filled with roe. roe deer. [AS. rāhdēor. See 1st ROE; DEER.] A European and Asiatic deer (Capreolus capreolus), with erect cylindrical antlers, forked at the summit and approximated at the base. It is the smallest European deer, and is very nimble and graceful. It is reddish brown in summer, grayish in winter, and has a white rump patch.

Roe Deer. Male and Fawn.

roe·neng' (rōō·nĕng'), n. sing. & pl. [Siamese rāi nĕn one hundred.] See MEASURE, Table.
roent'gen, rönt'gen (rŭnt'gĕn; rĕnt'-; rûnt'yĕn), n. Physics. [After Wilhelm Konrad Röntgen, Ger. physicist.] The international unit of quantity of X rays. It is the amount of X radiation which, when the secondary electrons are fully utilized and the wall effect of the chamber is avoided, produces in one cubic centimeter of atmospheric air of 0 deg. C. and 760 mm. mercury pressure such a degree of conductivity that one electrostatic unit of charge is measured at saturation.
Roent'gen, Rönt'gen (rŭnt'gĕn; rĕnt'-; rûnt'yĕn), adj. Of or pertaining to the German physicist Wilhelm Konrad Röntgen, or the rays discovered by him, now usually called X rays; as, Roentgen apparatus.
roent'gen, rönt'gen, v. t. To subject to Roentgen rays.
roent'gen·ism, rönt'gen·ism (-ĭz'm), n. [See ROENTGEN; -ISM.] Med. a The use of X rays, esp. for therapeutic or diagnostic purposes. b A morbid condition caused by excessive exposure to X rays.
roent'gen·i·za'tion, rönt'gen·i·za'tion (-ĭ·zā'shŭn; -ī·zā'-shŭn), n. Act or process of using X rays, esp. for therapeutic purposes.
roent'gen·ize, rönt'gen·ize (rŭnt'gĕn·īz; rĕnt'-; rûnt'yĕn-), v. t. [See ROENTGEN; -IZE.] 1. Med. To subject to the action of X rays, as for the treatment of a tumor or for the diagnosis of internal morbid change.
2. Physics. To render (air or other gas) conducting by the passage of X rays.
roentgeno-, röntgeno-. A combining form of the name of Röntgen (see Biog.) used in the sense of Roentgen, or X, rays, as in *roentgen*ometer, *roentgen*otherapy.
roent'gen·o·gram', rönt'gen·o·gram' (rŭnt'gĕn·ō·grăm'; rĕnt'-; rûnt'yĕn-), n. [roentgeno- + -gram.] A photograph made with X rays.
roent'gen·o·graph', rönt'gen·o·graph' (-grăf'), n. [roentgeno- + -graph.] An X-ray photograph. — roent'gen·o·graph'ic, rönt'gen·o·graph'ic (-ō·grăf'ĭk), adj. — roent'gen·o·graph'i·cal·ly, rönt'gen·o·graph'i·cal·ly (-ĭ·kăl·ĭ), adv. — roent'gen·og'ra·phy, rönt'gen·og'ra·phy (-ŏg'rȧ·fĭ), n.
roent'gen·o·graph', rönt'gen·o·graph' (-grăf'), v. t. To make a photograph of with X rays.
roent'gen·ol'o·gy, rönt'gen·ol'o·gy (-ŏl'ō·jĭ), n. [roentgeno- + -logy.] The branch of science dealing with X rays, esp. their use for diagnosis or treatment in medicine and dentistry. — roent'gen·o·log'ic, rönt'gen·o·log'ic (-ō·lŏj'ĭk), -log'i·cal (-ĭ·kăl), adj. — log'i·cal·ly, adv. — -ol'o·gist (-ŏl'ō·jĭst), n.
roent'gen·om'e·try, rönt'gen·om'e·try (-ŏm'ē·trĭ), n. [roentgeno- + -metry.] Physics & Med. Measurement of X rays, esp. of their dosage for therapeutic purposes; X-ray dosimetry. — roent'gen·om'e·ter, rönt'gen·om'e·ter (-tĕr), n.
roent'gen·o·scope, rönt'gen·o·scope (rŭnt'gĕn·ō·skōp; rĕnt'-; rûnt'yĕn-), n. [roentgeno- + -scope.] Med. A fluoroscope. roent'gen·os'co·py, rönt'gen·os'co·py (-ŏs'kō·pĭ), n. [roentgeno- + -scopy.] Med. Examination by means of X rays, as by fluoroscopy, or by roentgenograms. — -o·scop'ic (-ō·skŏp'ĭk), adj.

rocolo. † ROQUELAURE. [BOLE.] roc'om·bole. Var. of ROCAMBOLE.
Ro'cou'yenne' (rō'kōō'yĕn'), n. [F., fr. roucou roucou, with which they paint their skins.] = OYANA.
rod'-cone' the'o·ry. = DUPLICITY THEORY. rodde. † ROD; ROOD; RUD, to redden. roddle. † RADDLE. rode. † REED; ROOD; RUD, n.; RUDDY. [-PROOF.] rod'ent·proof' (66), adj. See rod'knight', n. O. Eng. Feudal Law. = RADENKNIGHT. rod'let, n. See -LET.
rod'like', adj. See -LIKE. rod'o·mon·ta'do, n. & adj. = RODOMONTADE. Obs. [RETINA.] rods and cones. Anat. See rod'-shaped', adj. See -SHAPED.
Roeb'ling wire gauge (rōb'lĭng). [After J. A. Roebling, Ger.-Am. engineer.] See WIRE GAUGE, Table. roe'de (rōō'dĕ), n.; pl. -DEN (-dĕn). [D. See ROOD.] See MEASURE, Table. roe'like', adj. See -LIKE. ro'e·noke', Var. of ROANOKE.

roent'gen·o·ther'a·py, rönt'gen·o·ther'a·py (rŭnt'gĕn·ō·thĕr'ə·pĭ; rĕnt'gĕn-; rŭnt'yĕn-), n. [roentgeno- + -therapy.] Med. Treatment, as of a patient or a lesion of disease, by X rays.

Roentgen, or Röntgen, ray. [also not cap.] X ray.

roent'gen-ray' can'cer. Med. Cancer resulting from the action of X rays.

Roent'gen-ray' tube. = X-RAY TUBE.

roer (rōōr), n. [D., fr. G. rohr gun, gun barrel, tube, reed, fr. OHG. rōr reed; akin to ON. reyrr, Goth. raus.] A heavy, long-barreled gun, formerly used in hunting big game. S. Africa.

roe'stone' (rō'stōn'), n. [See ROE spawn.] Oölite.

roe'y (rō'ĭ), adj. Having a mottled or streaked grain; as, roey mahogany.

rog (rŏg), v. t. & i. [See RUG to pull, tear.] To shake; pull; stir; jumble. Cf. RUG. Obs. exc. Dial.

ro'gan (rō'găn), n. [Of Algonquian origin; cf. Wood Cree ordgan plate, vase, Ojibway ondgan bowl, dish.] A kind of wooden bowl or receptacle, as for holding maple sap. Dial., U. S.

Ro·ga'te Sun'day (rō·gā'tē). = ROGATION SUNDAY.

ro·ga'tion (rō·gā'shŭn), n. [OF. or L.; OF. rogation, fr. L. rogatio, fr. rogare, rogatum, to ask, beg. See RIGHT; cf. ABROGATE, ARROGANT, PREROGATIVE, PROROGUE, SURROGATE.] 1. A petition; request. Obs.

2. Eccl. Litany; supplication; also (usually pl.), the ceremonies of Rogation Days.

3. Rom. Antiq. The inquiry made, orig. by the consuls, later also by the tribunes, as to the will of the people on a proposed decree or law; also, their proposal of a law or decree for passage by the people; also, the law or decree.

Rogation days. Eccl. The three days before Ascension Day, observed since the 5th century as days of special supplication. In the Roman Catholic Church the Litany of the Saints is chanted in procession on each day. In the Anglican Communion they are days of abstinence, and it is customary to ask God's blessing on the fruits of the earth. In England perambulation of the parish is still locally observed. See LESSER LITANY, BEAT THE BOUNDS, GANG DAYS.

rogation flower. a In Europe a milkwort (Polygala vulgaris), formerly used for garlands in Rogation week. b In eastern North America a pink-flowered milkwort (P. incarnata).

Rogation Sunday. Eccl. The Sunday next before the three Rogation days, that is, the fifth Sunday after Easter.

Rogation week. The week in which Rogation days occur.

ro'ga·tive (rō'gə·tĭv), n. [Sp. rogativa.] Supplication. R.

ro'ga·to'ry (rō'gə·tō'rĭ or, esp. Brit., -tĕr·ĭ), adj. [See ROGATION.] Seeking information; authorized to examine witnesses or ascertain facts; as, a rogatory commission.

Rog'er (rŏj'ĕr), n. [F., OF. Rogier, of Teut. origin; cf. OHG. Rothger, Hrotger, Hrodger; and OHG. hruod- (in comp.; see ROBERT), and gēr spear, akin to AS. gār.] 1. Literally, famous with the spear; — masc. proper name. L. Rogerus (rō·jē'rŭs); F. Roger (rō'zhā'); It. Ruggiero (rōōd·jē'rō), Rogero (rō·jē'rō); Sp. Rogerio (rō·hā'rē·ō; 142); Pg. Rogerio (rō·zhā'rē·ōō); G. Rüdiger (rü'dĭ·gĕr).—Dim. Hodge (hŏj), Hodgkin (hŏj'kĭn).

2. [also not cap.] A black flag with white skull and crossbones, formerly used by pirates; — called also Jolly Roger.

Rog'er de (or of) Cov'er·ley (dē küv'ĕr·lĭ); pl. ROGER DE (or OF) COVERLEYS (-lĭz). [Earlier Roger of Coverley (prob. fr. Calverley, Yorkshire), a tune and dance, whence the "Spectator" character.] An English country-dance like the Virginia reel; — also with Sir. See COUNTRY-DANCE.

Roger de Coverley, Sir. 1. See SIR ROGER DE COVERLEY.

2. See ROGER DE COVERLEY.

Roger Gough (gŏf). The bloodwood Baloghia lucida. Local, Australia.

Rog'ers Act (rŏj'ĕrz). [After J. J. Rogers (1881–1925), congressman from Mass.] An act of Congress (May 24, 1924), effective July 1, 1924, reorganizing the diplomatic and consular services of the United States. It provided for increased salaries, rewards for meritorious services, interchangeability of positions in the two services, and a retirement and pension system. See FOREIGN SERVICE, 2.

rog'ers·ite (rŏj'ĕrz·īt), n. [After Wm. B. Rogers, Am. geologist.] Mineral. An alteration product of samarskite, containing yttrium, niobium, etc., found as a white coating on the parent mineral.

rog'ers·ite (rŏj'ĕrz·īt), n. [After Austin Flint Rogers (b. 1877), Am. mineralogist.] A hydrous ferric sulphate formed by the burning of pyritic ore in an Arizona mine.

Ro'get's' spi'ral (rō'zhāz'). [After P. M. Roget of England, who invented it.] Elec. A device to illustrate the attraction of parallel electric circuits by causing a vertical spiral carrying a current to contract and thus break a connection with mercury in a cup; when the current ceases, the spiral elongates owing to gravity, connection is again made, and the process is repeated indefinitely.

rog'gle (rŏg'l), n. & v. [See ROG to shake.] Shake. Dial.

‖ro'gnon' (rō'nyōn'), n. [F.] Mountaineering. Rounded rock.

‖ro'gnons' (rō'nyōn'), n. pl. [F.] Kidneys.

rogue (rōg), n. [Origin unknown.] 1. A vagrant; an idle, sturdy beggar; a vagabond; tramp. The term, esp. in the phrase rogues and vagabonds, is loosely applied, chiefly in English statutes, to various wandering, disorderly, or dissolute persons, amenable under the various vagrancy acts.

2. A dishonest person; a knave; a cheat.

3. Scamp; rascal; worthless fellow.

Off with my boots, you rogues, you villains. Shak.

4. One who is pleasantly mischievous, waggish, or frolicsome; — used jocosely or affectionately. Shak.

5. A greasy bait made of cod roe and entrails used in the sardine fishery.

6. A rogue elephant; hence, any large animal with habits like those of a rogue elephant; — sometimes used attributively of persons.

A lone rogue bull of a man. Masefield.

7. A horse inclined to shirk or misbehave.

8. Biol. A chance variation; a deviation from the type of a given variety or standard; — usually applied to inferior or nontypical plants. See ROGUE, v. t., 2.

rogue (rōg), v. t. 1. a To stigmatize as a rogue; to decry. Obs. b To act the rogue toward; to cheat.

2. a Agric. To weed out inferior or diseased plants from a cultivated crop. b Specif., in plant breeding, to remove systematically all nontypical or defective plants.

— v. i. To wander; to play the rogue or vagabond. Obs.

rogue elephant. A vicious elephant which separates from the herd and roams alone.

ro'guer·y (rō'gĕr·ĭ), n. 1. The life of a vagrant. Obs.

2. Practices of a rogue; knavish tricks; cheating; fraud.

3. Arch tricks; mischievousness; waggishness.

4. The world of rogues; rogues collectively. Rare.

rogues and vagabonds (rōgz). See ROGUE, n., 1.

rogues' gallery. a A collection of portraits of persons arrested as rogues or criminals, for the use of the police. b Hence, any analogous collection; as, a rogues' gallery of parasites which prey upon men and animals.

rogues' Latin. = THIEVES' LATIN.

rogue's march (rōgz). Derisive music performed in driving away a person under popular indignation or official sentence, as when a soldier is drummed out of a regiment.

rogue's yarn. A yarn of a different twist, material, or color from the rest, inserted into navy cordage, to identify it if stolen, or to trace the maker in case of defect.

ro'guing (rō'gĭng), pres. part. & verbal n. of ROGUE. Specif.: n. Act of playing the rogue; rascality; also, vagrancy.

ro'guish (rō'gĭsh), adj. 1. Vagrant. Obs. Spenser.

2. Resembling, or characteristic of, a rogue; knavish.

3. Pleasantly mischievous; waggish; arch. "The most bewitching leer with her eyes, the most roguish cast." Dryden.

4. Hort. Producing inferior plants; — said of a variety or plantation.

Syn. — See MISCHIEVOUS.

Ant. — Grave, serious, earnest.

— ro'guish·ly, adv. — ro'guish·ness, n.

ro'han (rō'hăn), n. [Hind., fr. Skr. rohaṇa sandal tree.] An East Indian tree (Soymida febrifuga), family Meliaceae, the bark of which is tonic and the wood hard and durable. See REDWOOD, 2.

Ro·hil'la (rō·hĭl'ə), n. sing. & pl. One of an Afghan people who early in the 18th century settled in the district of Hindustan, which now bears their name as Rohilkhand.

‖Rohr'flö'te (rōr'flö'tĕ). [G., fr. rohr reed + flöte flute. See ROER; FLUTE.] Music. An organ flute stop having closed metal pipes with chimneys.

ro'hun (rō'hŭn), ro'hu·na (rō'hŭ·nə), n. [Skr. rohaṇa sandal tree.] = ROHAN.

ro'i (rō'ĭ), n. [Maori.] The rootstock of the fern Pteris esculenta, roasted and eaten by the Maoris in New Zealand.

roid (roid), adj. [OF. roide stiff, unyielding (F. raide), fr. L. rigidus.] 1. Rough; unmanageable; severe. Now Dial.

2. Riotous; frolicsome. Scot.

‖roi' d'armes' (rwä' därm'). [F.] King-of-arms.

‖roi' fai'né'ant' (fā'nā'äN'); pl. ROIS FAINÉANTS (rwä' fā'·nā'äN'). [F.] Literally, a do-nothing king; one who has delegated or lost his royal power while still reigning. Specif., pl. [caps.], the later Merovingian kings.

roil (roil; cf. RILE), v. t.; ROILED (roild); ROIL'ING. [From F. rouiller to rust, earlier also, to make muddy, fr. OF. rouil mud, rust, fr. a VL. derivative of L. robigo, rubigo, rust. See RUBIGINOUS.] 1. To render turbid by stirring up the dregs or sediment of; as, to roil wine, etc., in casks or bottles; to roil a spring.

2. To disturb (the temper); to ruffle the temper of; to rouse the passion of resentment in; to vex.

That his friends should believe it, was what roiled him [Judge Jeffreys] exceedingly. R. North.

Syn. — Disturb, foul; annoy, irritate.

Ant. — Clarify; soothe.

roil, n. Act of roiling, or stirring up, water; also, a place where the water has been roiled.

It may awaken emotion, but it never lingers in the roil; it is concerned with destinies beyond. H. B. Alexander.

roil, n. [Cf. dial. röl, rool (Shetland), a colt.] A Flemish horse; a spiritless steed. Obs.

roil, v. i. [ME. roilen. Cf. ROIL to romp.] To wander; roam. Obs.

roil (roil; rīl), v. i. [Cf. OF. rooillier to roll.] To romp; fidget. Dial. Eng.

roil, n. An awkward, clumsy, blowzy woman. Dial. Eng.

roil'y (roil'ĭ), adj. Turbid; as, roily water; also, vexed.

Roi' Pē'cheur' (rwä' pā'shŭr'). [F., lit., fisher king.] In one form of the Holy Grail legend, the uncle of Percivale and possessor of the Holy Grail and sacred lance; — so called from his fame as an angler.

Roi'sin Dubh' (rō'shĕn ȣōōv'). [Ir. Rōisīn Dubh, lit., the dark little rose.] Ireland; — an allegorical name. Cf. CATHLEEN NI HOULIHAN.

Roi' So'leil', Le (lē rwä sō'lĕ'y'). [F.] Literally, the Sun King; specif., Louis XIV of France; — so called because he adopted the sun as his emblem.

roist'er (rois'tĕr), v. i. [Prob. fr. roister, n., fr. OF. ruistre, ruiste, rustre, ruste, prop. adj., rude, boorish, violent (F. rustre boor, clownish), fr. L. rusticus. See RUSTIC.] To bluster or swagger; brag; bully; also, to revel; to indulge in riotous festivity. — roist'er·er (-ĕr), n.

roist'er, n. A roisterer; reveler; also, Rare, act of roistering or reveling.

roist'er–doist'er (-dois'tĕr), n. A roisterer. — adj. Roistering; boisterous. — roist'er–doist'er·ly, adv.

Roister Doister, Ralph. See RALPH ROISTER DOISTER.

roist'er·ly (rois'tĕr·lĭ), adv. In a roistering manner. Rare.

roist'er·ly, adj. Roisterous. Obs.

roist'er·ous (rois'tĕr·ŭs), adj. Roistering; uproarious. Rare. — roist'er·ous·ly, adv.

roit, royt (roit), n. [Origin uncert.] A disorderly or unruly creature. Scot.

roi'te·let (roi'tē·lĕt), n. [F.] Petty king. Archaic.

‖ro'jo (rō'hō; 162), adj. [Sp.] Red. — n. Redskin; Indian. Mexico.

ro'ka (rō'kä), n. [Ar. ruqā'.] The mafura.

roke (rōk), n. [Cf. D. rook. See REEK.] Vapor; fog; mist; moisture; steam; smoke. Obs. exc. Dial.

roke, v. t. [Origin obscure.] To stir; poke about. Dial. Eng.

roke'age (rōk'ĭj), rok'ee (rōk'ē), n. [Quinnipiac rok'hig, lit., it is soft. Cf. NOCAKE.] Parched Indian corn, pounded up and mixed with sugar. Local, U. S.

ro'ker (rō'kĕr), n. [Prob. fr. Dan. rokke, fr. MLG. roche (D. rog).] a A ray; esp., the thornback. b A rockling.

rok'y (rōk'ĭ), adj. Sometimes roke'y. [From ROKE fog.] Foggy; misty; damp; smoky; also, hoarse. Chiefly Dial.

Ro'land (rō'lănd), n. [F., of G. origin; cf. OG. Ruodlant, Hruodland, Hrodland; for the two parts of the name cf. ROBERT, and LAND; cf. also ORLANDO.] 1. Also Row'land. Masc. proper name. L. Rotlandus (rōt·lăn'dŭs), Rolandus (rō·lăn'dŭs); F. Roland (rō'lăN'); It. Orlando (ôr·län'dō); Sp. Roldán (rōl·dän'); Pg. Rolando (rō·lăn'dōō), Roldão (rōl·dou̇n'); G. Roland (rō'länt); D. Roeland (rōō'länt).

2. A warden of the marches of Brittany, the hero of many romantic tales of the Charlemagne cycle. See CHANSON DE ROLAND. Legend made him a nephew of the emperor, and the most redoubtable defender of the Christians against the Saracens. He was killed at Roncesvalles, or Roncevaux, in 778, where the rear of Charlemagne's army was cut off by some revolted Gascons, an event magnified by romancers into a "dolorous rout" of Charlemagne by the Saracens. Cf. ORLANDO, 2. See DURENDAL. The phrase a Roland for an Oliver, meaning, a blow for a blow, tit for tat, alludes to a drawn combat between Roland and Oliver.

Ro'land. Var. of ROWLAND. See CHILDE ROWLAND.

Ro·lan'dic (rō·lăn'dĭk), adj. Pertaining to Rolando, an Italian anatomist (d. 1831).

Rolandic area. The motor area of the cerebral cortex, comprising the anterior wall of the central sulcus, the anterior central gyrus, and the paracentral lobule.

Rolandic fissure. = CENTRAL SULCUS.

Rolandic tubercle. = TUBERCULUM CINEREUM.

role, rôle (rōl), n. [F. rôle, the roll on which an actor's part was written. See ROLL.] 1. A part, or character, performed by an actor in a drama; hence, a part or function taken or assumed by anyone; as, the role of philanthropist.

2. Part; office; duty. Obs. L'Estrange.

ro'le·o (rō'lē·ō), n. [roll + rodeo.] Sports. A contest at birling logs.

roll (rōl), v.; ROLLED (rōld); ROLL'ING. [ME. rollen, fr. OF. roller, roler, rouler (cf. also OF. roeler, fr. assumed VL. rotellare), fr. (assumed) VL. rotulare, fr. L. rotulus, rotula, dim. of L. rota wheel; akin to G. rad wheel, Lith. ratas, OIr. roth, and to Skr. ratha car, chariot. Cf. CONTROL, ROLL, n., ROLY-POLY, ROTATE, ROUND, ROWEL.] Transitive: 1. To cause to revolve by turning over and over; to move by turning on or as if on an axis; to impel forward by causing to turn over and over on a surface; as, to roll a wheel.

2. To move, or cause to be moved, upon, or by means of, rollers or small wheels; also, to traverse or pass over on wheels; as, to roll twenty miles on a bicycle.

3. To wrap round on itself or on something else, or to form into a more or less spherical or cylindrical body in that manner; as, to roll up a sheet of paper; to roll clay into a ball.

4. To bind or involve by winding, as in a bandage; to enwrap; — often with up; as, to roll up a parcel.

5. To drive or impel forward with an easy motion, as of rolling; as, a river rolls its waters to the ocean.

The flood of Catholic reaction was rolled over Europe. J. A. Symonds.

6. To utter copiously, esp. with sounding words; to utter with a deep sound; — often with forth, or out.

Who roll'd the psalm to wintry skies. Tennyson.

7. To press or level with a roller; to spread or form with a roll or rolls; as, to roll a field; to roll steel rails, etc.; also, to pulverize with a roller; as, to roll cracker crumbs; to grind by propelling over gravel or sand; as, pebbles rolled smooth by the tide.

8. To beat with rapid, continuous strokes, as a drum; to sound a roll upon.

9. To form a screw thread on a rod by cold-rolling it between dies or rollers having suitably shaped ridges, which displace the metal from the thread space and force it up above the original surface of the work on each side.

10. To turn over in one's mind; to revolve; ponder.

11. To utter with a trill; as, to roll one's r's.

12. To swing or sway from side to side, as the body in walking.

13. To turn over (a man asleep or helplessly intoxicated) in order to search his pockets; to rob; frisk. Thieves' Cant.

14. To place, enter, or record on, or as on, a roll or register; to enroll. Obs.

15. Geom. To apply (one line or surface) to another continuously without slipping; to bring all parts of (a line or surface) into successive contact with those of another, so that at every instant the lengths of the curves traced out by the points of contact are equal.

16. Print. To ink with a roller or rollers; as, to roll a form.

—, Intransitive: 1. To move, as a curved object may, along a surface by rotation without sliding; to revolve on an axis; to turn over and over; as, a ball or wheel rolls on the earth.

2. To move or be moved on wheels, as a carriage; to travel on, or as on, wheels.

3. To have an undulating form, as, in topography, a surface with alternating rounded minor elevations and depressions, or, in mining, a vein the dip of which is a wavy line.

4. To gad about; to wander; roam. Now Rare.

Man shall not suffer his wife go roll about. Chaucer.

5. To turn or move circularly as on an axis; to incline first to one side, then to the other; to turn from side to side; as, the ship rolled heavily; the horse rolled on the turf.

And his red eyeballs roll with living fire. Dryden.

Hence, to walk with a swinging gait; to swagger; sometimes, to stagger; as, he rolled down the street to meet his friends.

6. To move, as waves or billows, with alternate swell and depression; as, rolling clouds; the rolling waves; to progress with an easy wavelike motion.

7. To be wound or formed into a cylinder or ball; as, the cloth rolls unevenly; the snow rolls well; also, to center about something; as, his talk all rolled about the war.

8. To make a loud or heavy rising and falling or rumbling noise; as, the thunder rolls; a speech rolls; also, Obs., of a person, to declaim loudly about or against something.

9. To spread under a roller; as, the ink rolls well.

10. To enroll; to be enrolled.

11. To perform a periodical revolution; to move onward as with a revolution; as, the rolling year; ages roll away.

12. To trill; — said of certain birds.

13. To be abundantly supplied; to wallow; as, to roll in money. Colloq.

14. To move, go, or progress; — with into; as, to roll into a fight. Slang.

15. To be in a (specified) condition after being rolled; as, the turf rolled well after the shower; the metal rolled out in flat bars.

16. To bowl; to play ninepins. Rare.

17. Baseball. To hit a ball that rolls along the ground. Cant.

18. Gymnastics. To execute a circle or part of a circle by rotating the body about its lateral axis.

Syn. — Rotate; wind, wrap; trill. Ant. — Unroll, unwind.

roent'gen·ther'a·py, rönt'gen·ther'a·py (rŭnt'gĕn·thĕr'ə·pĭ; rĕnt'-; rŭnt'yĕn), n. = ROENTGENOTHERAPY.

rofe. ✝ ROOF; obs. past tense of RIVE.

rof'fi·a, rof'fi·a (rŏf'ĭ·ə). Var. of RAFFIA.

Ro·ga'tion-tide', n. See -TIDE.

Ro'ge·lim (rō'gĕ·lĭm; rō·gē'-). Bib.

roge'man, n. [See ROGUE; MAN.] A receiver of stolen clothes. Obs.

ro·ge'ri·an (rō·jē'rĭ·ăn), n. A wig. Obs. [RUGGIERO.]

Ro·ge'ro (rō·jā'rō), n. [It.] See roght. Obs. past tense of RECK.

Ro·gom'me·lech (rō·gŏm'ĕ·lĕk). D. Bib.

rogue'dom, n. See -DOM.

rogue'ling, n. See -LING.

rogue'ship, n. See -SHIP. [Obs.] ro'guy (rō'gĭ), adj. Roguish.

Roh'gah (rō'gä). Bib.

ro'hob (rō'hŏb), n. = ROB, a thickened juice.

Ro'ho·bi'a (rō'hō·bī'ə). D. Bib.

roild. Roiled. Ref. Sp.

Ro'i·mus (rō'ĭ·mŭs). Bib.

roin, v. i. [Cf. OF. rungier, and E. GROIN to growl.] To roar; growl; grumble. Obs.

roin'ish, roin'ous. ✝ ROYNISH.

roint (roint; rĭnt). Short for AROINT. Archaic or Dial. Eng.

rois. Obs. Scot. var. of ROSE.

roist, v. i. [From ROISTER.] To roister; bully; also, to rob. Obs.

roist'er·ing, pres. part. of ROISTER. — roist'er·ing·ly, adv.

roist'ing, adj. Roistering. Obs.

rok'am·bole. Var. of ROCAMBOLE.

rok'e·lay (rŏk'ē·lā), n. See ROQUELAURE.

rok'e·lay (rŏk'ē·lā). Scot. & N. of Eng. var. of ROQUELAURE.

rold. Rolled. Ref. Sp.

rol'ley-po'ley. Var. of ROLY-POLY.

N O P Q R

roll in. To wrap oneself in a blanket for slumber; hence, to go to bed; retire for the night; "turn in." Colloq.

roll one's hoop. To tend to (one's) own business; as, go roll your hoop! You are not in this deal. Slang, U. S.

roll one's own. Orig., short for roll one's own cigarettes; hence, to do things without outside aid. Slang, U. S.

roll out. a Naut. To lose (masts) by excessive rolling. b Slang. To get up, as by unrolling oneself from a blanket.

roll the bones. To roll dice; esp., to shoot craps. Slang, U. S.

roll the eye. To cause the eye to look in one direction after another in quick succession; as, just roll your eye over these bonds. Slang.

roll under. Naut. To roll (any specified part of the ship) under the water.

roll up. a To accumulate; to increase by successive accumulations; as, to roll up a fortune; a fortune rolls up. Colloq. b To go on, or as if on, wheels; also, to arrive in, or as if in, some conveyance; as, he rolled up to the door in his carriage. c To congregate in large numbers; esp., to attend a meeting or the like. Chiefly Australia. d Slang. = TURN UP c.

roll (rōl), n. [ME. rolle, fr. OF. rolle (F. rôle), fr. L. rotulus a little wheel, VL., a roll, dim. of L. rota a wheel. In some senses fr. the v. See ROLL, v.; cf. ENROLL, ROLE, ROULEAU, ROULETTE.] 1. Act of rolling, or state of being rolled; as, the roll of a ball; the roll of waves; also, a rolling movement of the body or part of it; as, a roll in a walk.

2. That which rolls; a roller; esp., a cylindrical body set in bearings and used singly or in pairs or sets to crush or squeeze something, to impress something by squeezing, to move an endless apron or web, or the like. A cylindrical clod breaker, the steel cylinders between which the metal is passed in a rolling mill, a cylindrical die, the bookbinder's tool for making plain or embossed gilded lines on book covers, and the feed rolls for some kinds of machines, are typical examples. See ROLLER, 1.

3. That which is rolled up. Specif.: a A document on material, as parchment which may be rolled up; a scroll.

> The lasting roll, recording what we say. Prior.

b Hence, an official or public document, as the engrossed record of the proceedings of a public body, as of a court, or of Parliament (see PARLIAMENT ROLLS); a register; a record; also, a catalogue; a list; specif., a muster roll.

> The roll and list of that army doth remain. Sir J. Davies.

Esp., pl. (1) Eng. the official list of solicitors or attorneys. (2) U. S. The official list of practitioners in a court, or in the courts of a State. c A cylindrical twist of tobacco. d Part of an old style of hairdressing, as a cushion or puff. e A more or less compacted sliver of carded wool. f A certain quantity, as of fabric or paper, rolled up to form a single package; a number of sheets, leaves, papers, or the like rolled together; of wallpaper, a bolt. Cf. BOLT, n., 6 c. g Cookery. Any of various food preparations rolled up for cooking or serving; as: (1) A small piece of yeast dough baked in any one of a great variety of shapes. See FRENCH ROLL, PARKER HOUSE ROLL. (2) Meat rolled and cooked. (3) Cake spread with jam and rolled up. h Mil. A blanket roll; specif., the packet made of the blanket and tent which, attached to the haversack and pack carrier, forms part of the infantryman's pack. i A section which is turned over, or rolled; as, the roll of a leaf, of a stocking. j = MUSIC ROLL b. k Dial. A round pad to be placed as a cushion under a basket or burden carried on the head. l Slang, U. S. A number of pieces of paper money rolled into a wad for the pocket; hence, a package of money; money in general; bank roll.

4. A heavy, reverberatory sound; as, the roll of cannon, or of thunder. Also, a succession of sounds giving a reverberatory or beating effect; as: a The prolonged sound, as of a drum, produced by beating with strokes so rapid and regular as to produce a uniform tremolo. b A trill of some birds; esp., of the canary, any of certain trills in the song, distinguished as bass roll, water roll, bell roll, according to the sound. c A chord on the organ in arpeggio style.

5. A swell or undulation on a surface, as of the ground; a low rounded ridge; specif., Mining, an undulation in the roof or floor of a coal seam or in one or both walls of a mineral vein.

6. A finishing tool composed of a small wheel with a handle attached, used to produce long lines, either plain or ornamented, as on leather book covers; — formerly called also circle.

7. A flat flexible case of leather or other fabric in which toilet articles, sheets of music, or the like, may be rolled and fastened by straps or metal clasps; also, a similar cylindrical case.

8. A rounded and resounding, often rhythmical, flow of speech; as, the fine roll of the best prose or verse.

9. Aeronautics. A maneuver in which a complete revolution about the longitudinal axis is made, the horizontal direction of flight being approximately maintained.

10. Arch. A more or less cylindrical member; as: a A rounded strip used as a false ridgepole. b Any of a series of rounded strips of wood over which the ends of the roofing plates of a lead or other metal roof are turned and lapped.

11. Mach. pl. A pair of similar parallel cylinders set a small distance apart in bearings and made to rotate in opposite directions so as to draw material between them, thus either crushing it (as rock, ore, etc.) or compressing and shaping it (as malleable metals).

Syn. — See LIST.

roll'a·ble (rōl'ȧ·b'l), adj. See -ABLE.

roll'-a·bout', n. One who rolls about from place to place; a wanderer. — adj. Roly-poly; plump.

roll'-and-fil'let mold'ing. Arch. A nearly cylindrical molding larger than a bead, having on one side a projecting fillet.

Section of Roll-and-fillet Molding.

roll'back' (rōl'băk'), n. Locks. The cam on the knob spindle for moving the bolt.

roll call. 1. Act, or time, of calling over a list of names, as among soldiers, in schools, etc.

2. A signal for a roll call, as one sounded on a bugle, drum, or the like.

roll'-call', v. t. To summon or assemble by a roll call.

roll'-cu'mu·lus, n. Strato-cumulus in which the clouds near the horizon resemble long bars.

rolled (rōld), adj. Subjected to rolling, as with rollers; made or shaped by rolling; as, rolled iron bars; a rolled joint between a boiler flue and the tube plate.

rolled glass. a A variety of flat glass of considerable thickness, made by passing a roller over molten glass between thickness strips placed on the edges of the casting table. b = CYLINDER GLASS.

rolled gold. Jewelry. Orig., and before plating was known, brass or other base metal over which a thin plate of gold was rolled; now, a kind of filled gold rolled or drawn out so that the gold becomes very thin.

rolled lumber. Lumbering. Wood from trees that are affected by cup shake; — so called because assumed to have been rolled by the wind. Cf. WIND SHAKE.

rolled oats. Husked oats flattened by heated rollers.

rolled roast. A boned and rolled rib roast of beef.

rol'le·jee (rōl'ĕ·jē), n. = ROLLICHE.

roll'er (rōl'ĕr), n. 1. One that rolls; esp., a cylindrical body moving or movable on its longitudinal axis, or rolled along something, or between two bodies, for pressing or smoothing by pressure, for evenly distributing or spreading a viscous liquid or composition on a surface, for crushing or squeezing or indenting by pressure, for converting sliding into rolling friction, for moving a (usually endless) band, belt, or web, for rolling up paper, cloth, or other flexible material, for lessening the resistance to be overcome in causing one body to move along another, for measuring lengths, or the like; a roll. Hence: a A heavy contrivance with one or more broad-rimmed wheels, pulled or driven over ground (garden lawns and paths, macadam roads, etc.) to smooth and compact it. A bar, or tubular, roller consists of a rotating cylinder or cylinders whose surfaces are made up of horizontal tubular bars separated by open spaces. It crushes the clods and packs the surface soil without leaving a smooth surface. Cf. ROAD ROLLER. b A composition-coated cylinder for inking type forms, etc. See PRINTING PRESS, Illust. c Either of the hard revolving cylinders in a mangle or wringer, between which the clothes, etc., are passed. d Any of the hard steel cylinders in a roller bearing; a cylindrical piece on which heavy objects, as logs or steel rails, are rolled for ease in moving; a wheel of a caster or of a roller skate. e Any of the cylinders in a papermaking machine for carrying forward the web of paper. f A stick, usually of round section, on which to roll up a map, chart, curtain, etc., to which it is attached. g A fuller of such shape that the stock may be rolled on it; — said of forging dies. h A thread roller (which see). i A roller die.

2. One who rolls; esp.: a A workman engaged in rolling in an industrial process; specif., one in charge of a rolling mill. b [cap.] A Holy Roller.

3. A bandage; a fillet; properly, a long rolled bandage used in surgery.

4. Short for ROLLER TOWEL.

5. A sponge which has become detached from the bottom and from being rolled about by the waves has assumed a nearly spherical form.

6. A swath of hay raked together for ricking. Dial. Eng.

7. A rolling pin. Now Dial.

8. Short for ROLLER SKATE.

9. A wide band of webbing buckled around a horse to keep his blanket in place, a surcingle. Brit.

10. A pigeon especially proficient in aerial tumbling or rolling; as: a Any of certain tumblers bred esp. at Birmingham, England, hence called Birmingham rollers. b A variety of tumbler pigeons having a longer head and tail than ordinary tumblers and originating in Asia Minor, hence called Oriental rollers.

11. Any of numerous nonpasserine, mostly bright-colored, Old World birds of the family Coraciidae; — so called on account of their turning over in flight like tumbler pigeons. They are allied to the motmots and todies. The common European species (Coracias garrulus) is chiefly blue and greenish of various shades, with the back reddish brown. See GROUND ROLLER, SIRGANG.

European Roller (Coracias garrulus.) $\frac{1}{6}$

12. A canary having a song with a long rich recurrent trill in which the notes are soft and run together; — opposed to chopper.

13. Harness. An iron eye terminating a harness trace. Eng.

14. Music. a A device in an organ action for transferring motion, consisting of a piece of wood or metal that turns on pins and is attached to trackers by arms. b A cylindrical pad on a piano hammer acting as a buffer between the hammer shank and the jack. See PIANO, Illust.

15. Naut. a One of a series of long, heavy waves which roll in upon a coast, as after a storm. In the open sea, rollers are characterized by holding their form without breaking. b A vessel which rolls; — usually qualified; as, a bad roller.

16. Sawmill Mach. One of a series of mounted cylinders used in moving lumber from the front to the tail end of a mill. A live roller is power-driven; a dead roller is moved by the weight of the lumber as it is pushed.

17. pl. [cap.] Stock Exchange. Rolling stock of railroads of the United States. Cant, British.

18. Zool. Any small ground snake of the family Ilysiidae.

☞ COMBINATIONS are:

roller-bearing, adj.	roller-grinding, adj.	rollermaking roller-carrying, adj.	roller-made	roller-milled roller grinder	rollermaker	roller-milling, adj.

roll'er (rōl'ĕr), adj. Pertaining to or like a roller or rollers; operating or operated by a roller.

☞ COMBINATIONS are: roller blind, roller towel.

roll'er, v. t. To rake or gather up (hay) in rows. Dial. Eng.

roll'er-back'er, n. Bookbinding. A machine operated by hand or foot which backs a book by a roller action and sets joints but does not round the book except as the rollers perfect the round already imparted. See BACK, v. t., 9; cf. ROUNDER AND BACKER.

roller bar. A bar knife in a rag-cutting machine.

roller bearing. Mach. A bearing in which the journal rotates in contact with a number of rollers usually contained in a cage. Cf. BALL BEARING.

a Pedestal with Flexible Roller Bearings; b Roller Bearing with Conical Rollers.

roller bowl. Textiles. An attachment at the delivery end of a carding machine to roll the slivers into compacted cardings.

roller bridge. A rolling bridge. See DRAWBRIDGE.

roller chain. A form of block chain in which the transverse blocks or cylinders are hollow and turn on steel pins, acting as rollers to lessen friction.

roller chair. = ROLLING CHAIR.

roller clutch. Mach. See FRICTION CLUTCH.

roller coaster. 1. A coasting apparatus consisting of a circular inclined railway with cars rolling upon it; also, the car used in this apparatus.

2. A kind of bobsled; also, a kind of sled which runs on rollers.

roller dies. Mach. One of a set of dies used in a thread roller for rolling screw threads. Usually, the die is a flat block or a cylindrical piece, and its width equals the length of the thread to be cut.

roll'er·er (rōl'ĕr·ĕr), n. One who fixes rollers on, as sheet-metal rollers on harness buckles.

roller gear. Mach. A gear wheel with friction rollers instead of teeth, or a gear mainly of such wheels.

roller gin. A cotton gin in which the lint is pulled from the seed by a roller covered with walrus hide, assisted by a fixed knife and a moving knife.

roll'er·man (rōl'ĕr·măn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). A tender of a rolling machine, as a crusher, brakesman, grinder, etc.

roller mill. A mill for crushing or grinding grain or other material by passing it between rolls.

roller nest. A group of steel rollers assembled together in a frame and placed under the end of a bridge truss or girder and on a bearing plate to permit expansion and contraction to occur without restraint.

roller polo. See 1st POLO b.

roller press. A device for taking, by pressure applied with a roller, copies of letters, etc. written in copying ink.

roller screen. A window screen made to move on rollers.

roller skate. A skate with small wheels instead of a runner, for skating on a smooth surface other than ice. — roll'er-skate' (66), v. i. — roller skater. — roller skating.

roller stock. Print. A metal bar forming the core of a composition roller.

roll'er-top' n. 1. = ROLL TOP.

2. The top of a billow or wave. Poetic.

roller towel. An endless towel hung from a roller.

roll'ey (rōl'ĭ), n. [Prob. fr. ROLL.] a Eng. & Australia. Formerly, any of various vehicles, drawn by horse or by hand; specif., a low sideless wagon esp. to convey corves in a mine. b Eng. A lorry.

roll'ey·way' (-wā'), n. Mining. A road or track for rolleys; a gangway or tramway. Eng. & Australia.

roll'ey·way'man (-măn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). A roadman.

roll film. Photog. Sensitized film as marketed in cartridges.

rol'li·che (rōl'ĭ·chē), n. Also rol'le·jee (-ē·jē), rol'li·chie. [D. rolletje a little roll.] A kind of sausage, made in a bag of tripe, sliced and fried, famous among the Dutch of New Amsterdam and still known, esp. in New Jersey.

rol'lick (rōl'ĭk), v. i. ROL'LICKED (-ĭkt); ROL'LICK·ING. [Origin uncert.; cf. ROLL, and FROLIC.] To move or play in a careless, swaggering manner, with a frolicsome air; to frolic; sport; — commonly in pres. part. "Rollicking blades." T. Hook. — rol'lick·er (-ĕr), n.

rol'lick, n. a Enthusiastic gaiety; joviality. b A frolic; a jovial good time.

rol'lick·ing, adj. Frolicsome; boisterously jovial. — rol'lick·ing·ly, adv. — rol'lick·ing·ness, n.

rol'lick·some (-sŭm), adj. Rollicking; sportive. — rol'lick·some·ness, n.

rol'lick·y (rōl'ĭ·kĭ), adj. Rollicking; sportive. Colloq.

Rol'lier' meth'od or treat'ment (rō'lyā'). After Henri Auguste Rollier (b. 1874), Swiss physician.] Med. A method of treatment of tuberculosis, esp. other forms than pulmonary, by exposure of the body to the sun's rays (Rollier sun bath).

roll'ing (rōl'ĭng), n. 1. Act of one who or that which rolls, in various senses; as, the rolling of a ball or of a ship; the leveling of turf with a roller, preparation of a rolled bandage, a revolving or turning on or as on an axis, a swinging or swaying from side to side, a trilling as of a bird, etc.

2. That which has been rolled, or has the shape of a roll; specif.: a Obs. A rolled bandage. b A spiral; also, a fold.

3. A rolling sound; roll; as, the rolling of thunder.

4. = LOGROLLING, 2.

> To have a rolling or raising, a husking or hoedown anywhere about without it was positively insufferable. Sandburg.

5. = HALF HITCH b.

6. Excessive lateral shoulder motion while in action; — said of a horse.

roll'ing, adj. 1. Rotating on or as if on an axis, or moving along a surface by rotation.

2. Moving on or as if on wheels or rollers.

3. Having gradual, rounded undulations of surface; as, a rolling country; rolling land. U. S.

4. a Of sounds, rising and falling or rumbling, as thunder; trilled, as the song of a bird; also, causing a rolling sound, as a cannonade. b Of water, mist, smoke, etc.; surging on or upward in billows, rolls, or rollers; as, the rolling sea; the rolling fog, smoke.

5. Having a turn over upon or toward itself; coiling; as, a rolling hat brim; a rolling collar.

6. Recurring; coming in regular rotation; as, the rolling seasons, years.

7. Increasing with successive turns or rotations; gathering size in the course of progress; as, rolling annuities.

8. Swinging from side to side; lurching; swaying; as, a rolling gait.

9. Variable; shifting; not firm or steadfast; as, rolling fancies, tastes, ideas. Rare.

10. [From ROLLING, n.] Of or pert. to, or used in, rolling. — roll'ing·ly, adv.

rolling alga. See VOLVOX.

rolling barrage. See BARRAGE.

rolling bridge. See DRAWBRIDGE.

rolling chair. A wheeled chair, esp. one propelled by an attendant and adapted for recreation at a seaside resort.

rolling chock. a Shipbuilding. = BILGE KEEL. b Rare. Naut. A contrivance of the nature of a half hoop and parrel, to hold a yard steady to the mast in rough weather.

rolling circle. a The generating circle of cycloidal and similar curves. b Gearing. The pitch circle (see PITCH LINE). c Of a paddle wheel, the circle described by a point having a rotational velocity equal to the ship's linear velocity.

rolling colter. Agric. Mach. See COLTER.

rolling dam. A dam for raising the water in a shallow stream, as one having a smooth timber top and no sluiceways, used in logging.

rolling fire. Mil. a An obsolete form of fire tactics consisting of a discharge of firearms by soldiers in line, in quick succession, and in the order in which they stand. b Any fire that produces a rolling sound.

rolling frame. Dyeing. The frame with rollers by which the fabric is drawn through the vat; — called also gallopers.

rolling friction. See FRICTION, n., 4.

rolling grass. = SPINY ROLLING GRASS.

rolling hitch. Naut. A method of bending a line to a spar or to the standing part of another line or a chain, the line being taken once around the spar and over its own standing part, and then twice around the spar, the end being passed back under the last two turns.

roll'ing-key' clutch. Mach. See FRICTION CLUTCH.

rolling kitchen. Mil. A vehicle for horse or tractor draft, designed to permit the cooking of food in transit. It varies in type from the simple metal vessel first used by the Germans for conveying hot soup, to the modern elaborate forms of traveling cooking range with places for six or more large food containers.

rolling landside. Agric. Mach. See LANDSIDE. rolling machine. Mach. Any of various machines operating by roller pressure. rolling mill. a An establishment where metal, esp. iron and steel, is rolled into plates and bars of various sections. b A machine having a set or train of rolls, for shaping heated metal by passing and repassing it between rolls. See ROLL, n., 2. c Any of various other machines for rolling molten glass, leather, etc. rolling pin. A cylindrical piece of wood or other material for rolling out paste, dough, or, formerly, leather.
rolling press. a A roller calender for cloth or paper. b A similar machine for smoothing printed sheets. c A printing press with a D-shaped roller, used in copperplate printing.
rolling reef. Naut. A reef made by rolling up the sail at the foot, sometimes about a roller on the yard or boom. rolling road. A road along which tobacco was hauled in rolling hogsheads. Southern U. S. rolling rope. Naut. See ROLLING TACKLE. rolling spar. Naut. See ROLLING TACKLE. rolling stock. Railroads. The locomotives, motorcars, passenger cars (or coaches), freight cars (or goods wagons), cabooses, and all other wheeled vehicles, etc., running or capable of running on the tracks or rails. rolling stone. A person who changes his habitation, business, or pursuits with great frequency; one who leads a wandering or unsettled life; — from the proverb, "A rolling stone gathers no moss."
rolling tackle, rope, spar, etc. Naut. One used to steady anything, esp. the yards, when the ship rolls. rolling topsail. Naut. A topsail rolled around the upper topsail yard as the latter is lowered. Rare.
rolling valve. A rotary valve. rolling weed. Tumbleweed.
Rol·lin′i·a (rō·lĭn′ĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., after C. Rollin (1661–1741), French historian.] Bot. A small genus of tropical American trees and shrubs (family Annonaceae), distinguished by the wing-appendaged petals of the flower. R. deliciosa is the biriba. rol′lix (rŏl′ĭks), v. i. To rollick; frolic; play. Local, U. S. roll joint. A joint in sheet metal made by rolling up overlapped edges and pressing flat. roll lathe. Mach. A roll-turning lathe. See 2d LATHE, 1. roll′-leaf′, n. Bookbinding, Print., etc. Gold, foil, or tissue, laid on thin glazed paper, put up in rolls, and fed out mechanically in a stamping press.
roll′mop′ (rōl′mŏp′), n. A salted herring, freshened, and stuffed with pepper, sliced onion, and salted cucumber, then rolled and skewered.
Rol′lo (rŏl′ō), n. [See RUDOLPH.] 1. Masc. proper name. 2. The central figure in a series of juvenile stories by Jacob Abbott, generically referred to as "The Rollo Books."
roll′-o′ver, adj. Designating a chair or sofa arm curving outward from the seat, and fully upholstered.
roll pass. = 1st PASS, 5. roll roofing. See PREPARED ROOFING. roll scale. Metal. = MILL SCALE. roll sulphur. See SULPHUR. roll top. a The flexible cover of a roll-top desk. b Short for ROLL-TOP DESK. — roll′-top′, adj.
roll′-top′ desk. A writing desk having a sliding cover made of parallel slats fastened to a flexible backing.
roll train. Mach. A set of plain or grooved rolls for rolling metal into various forms, as in a rolling mill.
roll up. 1. A roly-poly pudding. Local.
2. A gathering of people; as, a good or poor roll up. Colloq., Australia.
3. Colloq. Something which is rolled up, or is adapted for rolling up; specif.: a A kind of long stocking. b A case or container for luggage which can be rolled up and strapped. roll wagon. A low wheeled truck or van. Obs.
roll′way′ (rōl′wā′), n. 1. A way or road on which objects round or cylindrical, or approximately so, are rolled, or on which things are moved on rollers; specif., Logging, a natural or prepared slope for rolling logs into a stream.
2. The pile of logs awaiting removal; also, a platform for holding logs.
3. The outside entrance to a cellar. N. Eng.
roll welding. Forge welding by pressure rolls.
rol′o·way (rŏl′ō·wā), n. The Diana monkey.
‖rol′pens (rŏl′pĕns), n. [D.] Tripe mixed with minced beef. It is eaten fried.
ro′ly–po′ly (rō′lĭ·pō′lĭ), n. [Redupl. based on ROLL, v.] 1. Any of various games played with a ball or similar object rolled or thrown into holes, at pins, or the like. Dial.
2. A pudding of paste spread with fruit, rolled into a cylindrical form, and boiled, baked, or steamed.
3. A roly-poly person or thing; also, Obs., a worthless fellow; a rascal.
4. A toy tumbler weighted to return to an erect position.
5. Bot. An Australian tumbleweed (Anisacantha muricata), family Chenopodiaceae, resembling the rose of Jericho.
ro′ly–po′ly, adj. Resembling a roly-poly (in sense 2) in shape; short and pudgy; also, worthless; rascally.
‖rom (rŏm), n. [Romany. See ROMANY.] A Romany; a gypsy husband. Gypsy.
Ro·mae′an (rō·mē′ăn), adj. [Gr. Rhōmaios Roman, pert. to the Eastern Empire, Greek.] See ROMAN EMPIRE.
Ro′ma·gnese′ (rō′mä·nyĕz′; -nyēs′), adj. Of or pertaining to the Romagna (see Gaz.). — n. A native or inhabitant of the Romagna.
Ro′ma·gnol′ (rō′mä·nyōl′), n. Also Ro′ma·gnole′. A Romagnese.
Ro·ma′ic (rō·mā′ĭk), adj. [ML. Romaicus, fr. Gr. Rhōmaikos Roman, pert. to the Eastern Empire (NGr. Rhōmaïikos pert. to modern Greece, Rhōmaïika New Greek), fr. Rhōmē Rome. See ROMAN.] Of or pert. to modern Greece or, esp., its language. — n. The modern Greek vernacular. See GREEK, n., 7 d.
The Greeks at the time of the capture of Constantinople were proud of being Rhōmaioi, or Romans. . . . Hence the term Romaic was the name given to the popular language. . . . The Greek language is now spoken of as the Hellenic language. Encyc. Brit.
ro·ma′i·ka (rō·mā′ĭ·kȧ), n. [NGr. rhōmaïke. See ROMAIC.] One of the modern Greek folk dances believed to be a surviving variant of the ancient pyrrhic dance.
ro·maine′ (rō·mān′), n. Also ro·maine′ let′tuce. [F. romaine, fem. adj., Roman.] Cos lettuce.
Ro′ma·ji (rō′mä·jē), n. [Jap. rōmaji.] Japanese. Roman letters; the Latin alphabet; — favored by some as a substitute for the present Japanese method of writing.
ro·mal′ (rō·mäl′), n. [Sp. ramal.] A thong, usually braided and divided into two lashes, attached to the saddle or reins and used as a quirt. Mexico and Southwestern U. S. ro·mal′ (rō·mäl′; -mŏl′). Var. of RUMAL. India.
Ro′man (rō′măn), adj. [OF. and L.; OF. romain, fr. L. Romanus, fr Roma Rome. Cf. ROMAIC, ROMANCE, ROMANTIC, RUMANIAN.] 1. Of, pert. to, like, or characteristic of, Rome or the Roman people; inhabiting or coming from Rome; esp., of, pertaining to, originating from, or characteristic of Ancient Rome or its people.
2. Specif.: a Of or pertaining to the language spoken by the ancient Romans; Latin. b Simple, honest, brave, and frugal, as being characteristic of Romans at their best.
3. Of or pertaining to the Roman Catholic Church, or, more accurately, the Latin Rite; as, the Roman liturgy or breviary.
4. Designating a mosaic formed by the ends of short, slender sticks of colored glass fixed in cement.
5. [now usually not cap.] Designating a style of light-faced, upright type, having shaded strokes and characterized by serifs. Cf. TYPE, n., 17.
Ro′man (rō′măn), n. 1. A native, permanent resident, or citizen of Rome, esp. of ancient Rome. The rights of Roman citizens in ancient times included the rights of commercium, conubium (legal marriage), suffrage, provocation (appeal to the Roman people, later to Caesar), bringing of actions, and jus honorum.
2. The language of the ancient Romans; Latin.
3. [now usually not cap.] Roman type, letters, or print, collectively; — in distinction from italic. The first roman types were cast about 1470. Cf. ROMAN, adj., 5.
☞ This line is printed in 6-point ROMAN.
4. pl. The Epistle to the Romans. See NEW TESTAMENT.
5. A Roman Catholic; — a loose designation.
6. An ancient Italian breed of white geese.
7. A bright-red South African sea bream (Chrysophrys cristiceps).
‖ro′man′ (rō′mäN′), n. [F. See ROMANCE.] 1. The generic name of a type of metrical tale, esp. in old French literature (see 2d ROMANCE, n., 1) such as the Roman d'Alexandre, or the Roman de Troie (by Benoit de Sainte-More, 12th century). They are an outgrowth from the older chanson de geste and served as a storehouse from which later writers (as Chaucer) drew their material.
2. Hence, loosely, fiction; novel; esp., a romantic novel.
Ro′man (rō′măn), n. Masculine proper name.
Ro′man, adj. & n. Romany. George Borrow.
Roman alphabet. See LATIN, n., 1.
Roman alum. Ordinary alum crystallized in cubes, esp. that formerly made from alunite at Tolfa near Rome. Though reddish because of a very small amount of iron oxide, it is otherwise very pure.
Roman arch. The semicircular arch.
‖ro′man′ à thèse′ (rō′mäN′-nȧ tȧz′). [F.] = THESIS NOVEL.
Roman balance. A form of balance resembling the modern steelyard.
Roman calendar. 1. The calendar of the ancient Romans, from which our modern calendars are derived. It is said to have consisted originally of ten months, Martius, Aprilis, Maius, Junius, Quintilis, Sextilis, September, October, November, and December, having a total of 304 days. Numa added two months, Januarius at the beginning of the year, and Februarius at the end, making in all 355 days. He also ordered an intercalary month, Mercedonius, to be inserted every second year. Later the order of the months was changed so that January should come before February. Through abuse of power by the pontiffs to whose care it was committed, this calendar fell into confusion. It was replaced by the Julian calendar. See 1st CALENDAR, 1. In designating the days of the month, the Romans reckoned backward from three fixed points, the calends, the nones, and the ides. The calends were always the first day of the month. The ides fell on the 15th in March, May, July (Quintilis), and October, and on the 13th in other months. The nones came on the eighth day (the ninth, counting the ides) before the ides. Thus, Jan. 13 was called the ides of January, Jan. 12, the day before the ides, and Jan. 11, the third day before the ides (since the ides count as one), while Jan. 14 was the 19th day before the calends of February.
2. The calendar of saints' days of the Roman Catholic Church. See SAINTS' DAY.
Roman camomile. See CAMOMILE, Note.
Roman candle. 1. A kind of firework in the form of a straight cylindrical case (generally held in the hand), characterized by the continued emission of a shower of sparks, and the ejection, at intervals, of balls or stars of fire.
2. The Spanish dagger Yucca gloriosa.
Roman canvas. A canvas, used by artists for oil painting, made of linen and coated on one side with paint.
Roman capitals. See SQUARE CAPITALS.
Roman caraway oil. = CUMIN OIL. See OIL, Table I.
Roman catechism. R.C.Ch. A manual of Christian doctrine intended primarily for parish priests and published by Pius V in 1566.
Roman Catholic. Of, pertaining to, or designating, the Roman Catholic Church. Also, a member of that church.
Roman Catholic canon. See 1st CANON, 3 a.
Roman Catholic Church. That body of Christians of which the Pope, the bishop of Rome, is the head; — used as the legal title in England and some English-speaking countries, but called Catholic Church by its members. See CATHOLIC CHURCH.
Roman Catholicism. The faith, practice, polity, etc., of the Roman Catholic Church.
ro·mance′ (rō·măns′), n. [F., fr. Sp. romance, fr. OF. romanz. See 2d ROMANCE; cf. ROMANZA.] Music. A short lyric tale set to music; a song or short instrumental piece in ballad style; romanza. ro·mance′ (rō·măns′; rō′măns; 277), n. [ME. romans, romance, romaunce, fr. OF. romanz, romans, something translated from Latin, hence, something written in the vulgar tongue, in French (MF. romant a romance, romantic poem, F. roman a novel), fr. L. Romanice, adv., in Roman fashion, fr. Romanicus Roman, fr. Romanus. See ROMAN; cf. ROMANIC, ROMANSH, ROMANTIC, ROMANZA, ROMAUNT.] 1. A species of tale, originally in meter in the Romance dialects, afterward diffused in verse or prose, such as the tales of the court of Arthur, and of Amadis of Gaul; hence, any fictitious and wonderful tale; now, esp., a sort of novel, whose interest lies not so much in the depiction or analysis of real life or character as in adventure, surprising incident, or the like.
2. The class or division of literature including romances; fiction, esp. fiction dealing with picturesque and adventurous scenes and incidents.
3. The quality of romance; picturesque characteristic or nature; as, the romance of history.
4. An act or experience, or a series of acts or happenings, resembling those characteristic of romances; any manifestation or embodiment of the quality of picturesque unusualness characteristic of romances; as, his courtship was a romance; there was romance in his air of mystery; the clash of reality with romance.
5. A dreamy, imaginative habit of mind tending to dwell on the picturesquely unusual; as, a girl full of romance.
6. A fictitious tale; a falsehood, esp. one showing ingenious or imaginative fancy.
7. [cap.] Philol. The Romance (or Romanic) languages.
Syn. — Fancy, fantasy. See NOVEL.
Ant. — Realism, actuality.
☞ COMBINATIONS are:
romance-empurpled adj., romance-hallowed adj., romance-inspiring adj., romance-making adj., romancemonger adj., romance-writing adj.
Ro·mance′ (rō·măns′; rō′măns; 66), adj. [F. romance in langue romance (now romane) Romance language, fr. OF. romanz, n. See 2d ROMANCE.] 1. Of, pertaining to, originating from, or connected with the countries of medieval times which succeeded the Roman Empire; as, these inchoate Romance nations; Romance culture and institutions.
2. [not cap.] Having the characteristics of romance; esp., chivalrous; knightly.
3. Philol. Designating, or pertaining to, the Romance languages, that is, those developed from the vulgar Latin tongue, including Italian, Spanish, Portuguese, French, Provençal, Rumanian, etc. See INDO-EUROPEAN LANGUAGES, Table; cf. LATIN, n., 1. ro·mance′ (rō·măns′), v.; RO·MANCED′ (-mănst′); RO·MANC′ING (-măn′sĭng). [F. romancer.] Intransitive: 1. To write or tell romances; to indulge in extravagant stories.
A very brave officer, but apt to romance. Walpole.
2. To be romantic or indulge in romantic fancies.
—, Transitive: To treat or regard as if a romance. Rare.
ro·man′ce·al·ist (rō·măn′sē·ăl·ĭst), n. One who is interested in or devoted to romances; esp., one who writes romances. Rare.
ro·man′ce·an (-ăn), adj. Of or pertaining to romance or romances, or to the period when romance literature was produced.
Roman cement. A kind of hydraulic lime prepared by calcining septaria and grinding dry to a fine powder. It was formerly used where rapid setting was of importance.
Romance of the Rose. = ROMAN DE LA ROSE.
ro·manc′er (rō·măn′sĕr), n. [F. romancier.] One who romances, or is given to romancing; esp., one who writes romances. romance stanza. Pros. A six-lined stanza in which the number of syllables to the line runs 8 8 6 8 8 6, and the rhymes run a a b a a b. It is common in the metrical romances. Called also romance six.
Roman Chancery. = APOSTOLIC CHANCERY. ro·man′ci·cal (rō·măn′sĭ·kăl), adj. a Of, pertaining to, or resembling the romance type of fiction; romantic. b Writing romance; as, romancical authors.
ro·manc′ing (rō·măn′sĭng), adj. Allowing play for one's imagination; imaginative; fanciful.
ro·manc′ist (rō·măn′sĭst), n. A writer of romances.
Roman Civil War. See WAR, Table.
Roman collar. A clerical collar. a A narrow stiff stock carrying a short breastpiece and protected by a linen band. b A straight linen collar buttoned in back. See RABBI, 2.
‖ro′man′ cour′tois′ (rō′mäN′ kōōr′twȧ′). [F.] Literally, courtly romance; specif., in medieval literature, one of the type of romances, as those of Chrétien de Troyes, which depicted and appealed to courtly circles.
Roman Curia. The body of congregations, tribunals (courts), and offices through which the Pope governs the church. The congregational or departmental system, dating from Sixtus V (1588), was reorganized into its present form by Pius X in 1908. The chief congregations, with their functions and jurisdictions, are: (1) Congregation of the Holy Office, formerly the Inquisition (faith, morals, heresy, index of forbidden books); (2) Congregation of the Consistory (erection and administration of dioceses, collegiate and cathedral chapters, election of bishops); (3) Congregation of the Sacraments (administration and reception of the sacraments); (4) Congregation of the Council (interpretation and enforcement of the decrees of the Council of Trent, affairs of diocesan clergy and the laity); (5) Congregation of the Religious (religious orders); (6) Congregation of Propaganda (missions); (7) Congregation of Rites (liturgy, beatification, and canonization); (8) Congregation of Ceremonies (nonliturgical ceremonies, especially of the papal court); (9) Congregation of Extraordinary Ecclesiastical Affairs (advisory body to the Secretary of State, concordats, nuncios, etc.); (10) Congregation for the Oriental Church (relations of Latin and Eastern churches); (11) Congregation of Seminaries and Studies (administration of colleges, seminaries, and universities). [For Congregation of the Index, see INDEX, n., 12.] The judicial branch consists of three tribunals: (1) Sacred Penitentiaria (= PENITENTIARY, 1 b); (2) Sacred Roman Rota (see ROTA, 4); (3) Apostolic Signatura (which see). The offices or ministries are: (1) Secretariate of State (relations of the papacy with other sovereign powers); (2) Apostolic Chancery (which see); (3) Dataria (see DATARY); (4) Apostolic Camera (which see).
ro·manc′y (rō·măn′sĭ), adj. Romantic. Rare. — n. Romance. Rare.
‖ro′man′ d'a′ven′ture′ (rō′mäN′ dȧ′vän′tür′). [F.] Romance of adventure; esp., the medieval French metrical romances.
Ro′man′ de la Rose′ (rō′mäN′ dĕ lȧ rōz′). [OF., romance of the rose.] An allegorical and satiric metrical romance, in old French, the first part by Guillaume de Lorris, written probably about 1240, and continued about 1277 by Jehan de Meung. A partial English version was made by Chaucer.
Roman Dutch. Designating, or pert. to, the Civil-law system as developed by Dutch jurists, now in use in South Africa and other parts of the world colonized by the Dutch.
Roman eagle. = EAGLE, 2 a.
Roman Empire. The empire of ancient Rome, which first came under imperial rule when Octavianus was made Augustus Caesar in 27 B.C. Under Diocletian, who became roll′i·way′. Var. of ROLLEYWAY. rol′lock (rŏl′ŭk). Scot. & dial. Eng. var. of ROLLICK. rol′lock (rŏl′ŭk), n. Var. of ROWLOCK. roll′-turn′ing lathe. Mach. See 2d LATHE, 1. roll′y-boll′y. Var. of ROLY-POLY. ro′lock. Var. of ROWLOCK, as in ROLP. † ROUP. [Table.] roly-poly grass. See GRASS. rom′age (rŭm′ĭj). Var. of RUMMAGE. Obs. exc. Scot.

Ro·mam′ti·e′zer (rō·măm′tĭ·ē′zĕr; rō·măm′tĭ-). Bib.
ro·mance′let, n. See -LET.
ro·mance′like′, adj. See -LIKE. ro·mance′ish, adj. See -ISH. — ro·mance′ish·ness, n.
ro·mance′less, adj. See -LESS. ro·mance′proof′ (66), adj. See -PROOF. ro·manc′er·ess, n. fem. See -ESS Ro′man·dom, n. See -DOM.
Ro·mane′, adj. = ROMANIC, 3. R.
Ro′ma′néé′-Con′tĭ′ (rō′mȧ′nā′-kôn′tē′), n. [F.] See BURGUNDY, 2.

emperor A.D. 284, the empire was divided into East and West, but it was only after the death of Theodosius the Great, A.D. 395, that the Western Roman Empire and the Eastern Roman Empire (called also Byzantine, Greek, or Romaean Empire) were finally separated. The Western Empire came to an end in A.D. 476; the Eastern Empire endured until the fall of Constantinople in 1453. Charlemagne, king of the Franks, was crowned emperor of the West, at Rome, in 800, and the Holy Roman Empire, in its wider form, dates from this year; in its narrower form, as practically consisting of Germany and northern Italy (also with a vague unenforceable claim to universal sovereignty), the Empire dates from Otto I (962–973) and was continuous until its end under Francis II (Francis I of Austria), in 1806. The epithet "Holy" (Lat. Sacrum), added by Frederick I, does not appear in the title of the Empire until after the year 1155.

Roman Era. The Era of Varro. See ERA, Table.

Rom'a·nes (rŏm'ȧ·nēz), n. [Gypsy, adv., fr. romano, adj., gypsy.] The Romany tongue.

Ro'man·ese' (rō'măn·ēz'; -ēs'), n. A Walachian. Rare.

Ro'man·ese', n. pl. [See ROMANY.] Gypsies. Rare. George Borrow.

Ro'man·esque' (rō'măn·ĕsk'), adj. [F., fr. It. romanesco.] 1. Art, esp. Arch. Of, pertaining to, or designating, a style somewhat resembling the Roman.
2. Romance; esp., Provençal.
3. [not cap.] Of or pert. to romance or fable; fanciful.

Ro'man·esque', n. a The Romanesque style. b Romance; esp., Provençal.

Romanesque architecture or style. The architecture or style which developed in Italy and various parts of western Europe between the periods of the Roman and the Gothic styles: a Before 1000 A.D., a continuation of the Early Christian style in unvaulted basilican churches, bare of sculptural treatment, but developing the cruciform plan with choirs and transepts. b After 1000, the advanced and differentiated Lombard, Norman, Rhenish, and other local varieties, having as common features the use of the round arch and vault, with narrowing and heightening of the nave; the substitution for columns of piers, often with engaged shafts; the decorative use of arcades and colonnettes; and profuse carved ornament, esp. on capitals, stringcourses, and the moldings of doorways. See ARCHITECTURE, Table.

Roman fern. The deer fern.

Roman fever. Med. A severe form of malarial fever occurring in the neighborhood of Rome.

Roman foot. = pes, under MEASURE, Table.

Roman gold. Gold having a kind of yellow mat finish.

Roman green. A color, greenish-yellow in hue, of low saturation and low brilliance. It is slightly greener and of slightly higher saturation than olive drab and slightly less green than olive. Cf. COLOR.

Roman holiday. An entertainment which causes loss or suffering to those providing it; — from Byron's reference (in Childe Harold's Pilgrimage) to the gladiators as "butchered to make a Roman holiday."

Roman hyacinth. A hyacinth (Hyacinthus orientalis albulus) with loosely flowered spikes, of which several grow from one bulb.

Ro·ma'ni·an (rō·mā'nĭ·ăn; -mān'yăn), adj. Of or pert. to Romania. See RUMANIAN. — n. a One, or the language, of Romania.

Ro·man'ic (rō·măn'ĭk), adj. [L. Romanicus. See 2d ROMANCE.] 1. Of or pertaining to Rome or its people.
2. Related to the Roman people by descent; — said esp. of races and nations speaking any Romanic tongue.
3. Philol. = 3d ROMANCE, 3.

Ro·man'i·form (rō·măn'ĭ·fôrm), adj. [L. Romanus Roman + E. -form.] Formed after the manner or according to the usage of the Romance languages; — said of language.

Roman or Pontifical, Indiction. The indiction beginning A.D. 313, January 1st, the numbers of which cycle were adopted by Scaliger in constructing the Julian period.

Ro'man·ish (rō'măn·ĭsh), adj. 1. Pertaining to Rome, Romans, or Roman influence. Rare.
2. Pertaining to Romanism; — chiefly used in depreciation.

Ro'man·ism (-ĭz'm), n. 1. The tenets, customs, etc., of the Church of Rome; the Roman Catholic religion; — chiefly used in depreciation or disparagement.
2. The influence, ideas, or the like, of ancient Rome.
3. Tendency to favor what is Roman; pro-Roman feeling or prejudice.

Ro'man·ist, n. 1. One who adheres to Romanism, or the Church of Rome; — chiefly used in depreciation.
2. One who makes a study of, or is learned in, the ancient Roman law and Roman institutions.
3. One learned in, or who makes a special study of, the Romance languages or philology.
— Ro'man·ist, adj. — Ro'man·is'tic (-ĭs'tĭk), adj.

Ro·man'i·ty (rō·măn'ĭ·tĭ), n.; pl. -TIES (-tĭz). [Roman + -ity.] 1. A Latin method of expression. Rare.
2. The system or institutions of ancient Rome; also, Roman influence or prestige.

ro·ma'ni·um (rō·mā'nĭ·ŭm), n. [NL.] An alloy consisting of aluminum having an admixture of less than one per cent of tungsten together with a little copper, nickel, antimony, and tin.

Ro'man·i·za'tion (rō'măn·ĭ·zā'shŭn; -ĭ·zā'shŭn), n. Act of Romanizing, or process of becoming Romanized.

Ro'man·ize (rō'măn·īz), v.; -IZED (-īzd); -IZ'ING (-īz'ĭng). [F. romaniser.] Transitive: To make Roman; to subject to the influence of Rome, or bring within the sway of Rome; specif.: a To Latinize; to fill with Latin words or idioms. b To convert to the Roman Catholic religion, ideas, customs, or the like. c [usually not cap.] To use roman type or letters in the writing or printing of (a language); as, to romanize Japanese. Cf. ROMAJI.
——, Intransitive: 1. To imitate the ancient Romans.
2. To use Latin words and idioms. Milton.
3. To conform to, or lean toward, Roman Catholic beliefs, customs, or the like.

Ro'man·iz'er (rō'măn·īz'ĕr), n. One who Romanizes.

Roman lace or point. = RETICELLA.

Roman lake. The color carmine.

Roman laurel. The laurel Laurus nobilis.

Roman law. The legal system of the ancient Romans, including the customary or unwritten law and the written law. The Roman law was based on the traditional law and the legislation of the city of Rome and in form comprised legislation of the law-making assemblies, resolves of the senate, enactments of the emperors, the edicts or praetorian law, the writings of the jurisconsults, and the codes (see CODE, n., 1) of the later emperors. See LEX, 1; JUS; NATURAL LAW b; JUS GENTIUM; EDICT; CIVIL LAW.

Roman liturgy. See LITURGY, 1.

Ro'man·ly (rō'măn·lĭ), adv. 1. In a manner characteristic of the ancient Romans.

> The peasant . . . still strides Romanly. J. R. Lowell.

2. With prejudice or inclination toward the Church of Rome.
3. In the Romany tongue; in gypsy language. Rare.

roman meal. A coarsely ground meal of wheat and rye, with an admixture of flaxseed.

Roman mile. See MILE.

Roman nettle. An annual herb (Urtica pilulifera) with stinging foliage and small clusters of green flowers.

Roman nose. A nose somewhat aquiline. — Ro'man·nosed' (66), adj.

Roman Nose.

Roman numeral. A numeral in the Roman system of notation, of which the following are the symbols chiefly used: I = 1; V = 5; X = 10; L = 50; C = 100; D = 500; M = 1,000. Capitals are usual, but small letters are used occasionally. Intermediate and higher numbers are expressed by combining these symbols according to the following rules: (1) Any symbol following one of equal or greater value adds its value. Thus II = 2; VI = 6. (2) Any symbol preceding one of greater value subtracts its value. Thus IV = 4; XL = 40. (3) When a symbol stands between two of greater value its value is subtracted from the second and the remainder is added to the first. Thus XIV = 14; LIX = 59. (4) Of two equivalent ways of representing a number that in which the symbol of larger denomination precedes is preferred; thus XIV, not VIX, for 14; XLV, not VL, for 45; — except that a shorter form by subtraction is (in modern usage) preferred to a very long form by addition. Thus IX rather than VIIII for 9; MCM rather than MDCCCC for the year 1900. Thousands are sometimes indicated by drawing a line over a numeral; as, V̄ = 5,000. Formerly the smaller figure was sometimes repeated before the larger, twice its value being in such cases subtracted; as, IIX, that is, X − II; XXC, that is, C − XX. Sometimes after the sign IↃ for D, the character Ↄ (called the apostrophus) was repeated one or more times, each repetition having the effect of multiplying IↃ by ten; as, IIↃↃ, 5,000; IIↃↃↃↃ, 50,000. To represent numbers twice as great as these, C̄ was repeated as many times before the stroke I, as the Ↄ was after it; as, CCIↃↃ, 10,000; CCCIↃↃↃↃ, 100,000. K was formerly used for 250; G, for 400. The origin of the Roman numeral characters is uncertain, and various explanations of them have been given. It is generally supposed that they were originally arbitrary signs, for which the letters most nearly resembling them were afterward substituted. I was originally a single stroke. The symbol V was perhaps simply the half of X; L succeeded a symbol ⊥, derived from the Chalcidian ⅂; M, possibly as the initial letter of mille, thousand, was a late substitution for ∞, a modification of ↀ, the Chalcidian form of ⑨; and D is the half of ↀ. C, the initial of centum, hundred, was substituted for the earlier ⊙, a modification of the Greek θ.

Ro·ma'no- (rō·mā'nō-). A combining form, from Latin Romanus, Roman, denoting Roman and, as in *Romano-*Byzantine. For words below, see the word with which Romano- is combined.

Romano-British	Romano-Egyptian	Romano-Greek
Romano-Briton	Romano-Etruscan	Romano-Hispanic
Romano-canonical	Romano-Gallic	Romano-Iberian
Romano-Celtic	Romano-German	Romano-Lombardic
Romano-ecclesiastical	Romano-Germanic	Romano-Punic
	Romano-Gothic

Ro·ma'no–By·zan'tine, adj. Arch. a Obs. Romanesque. b Of, pertaining to, or designating, a style of northeastern Italy, blending Romanesque elements with Byzantine, as in the Church of San Vitale, Ravenna (A.D. 550).

Ro·ma'no cheese (rō·mä'nō). [It. romano Roman.] A hard Italian cheese somewhat resembling Parmesan cheese but made of ewe's milk; — called also Pecorino cheese.

Roman ocher. a A brownish-yellow variety of ocher. b The color brown ocher. — Ro'man–o'cher, adj.

Roman order. Arch. a The Composite order. See COMPOSITE, adj., 2. b The arch order.

Ro'ma·nov (rō'mȧ·nŏf; Russ. rŭ·mȧ'nŏf), n. The Russian dynasty founded by Mikhail Feodorovich Romanov in 1613. In 1762 through Peter III and his wife, Catherine the Great, the Holstein-Gottorp branch of the Romanovs came into power, but was overthrown at the death of Nicholas II in 1917.

Ro'ma·now'sky stain (rō'mä·nŏf'skē). [After D. L. Romanowsky (b. 1861), Russ. physician.] A stain made from water-soluble eosin, methylene blue, and absolute methyl alcohol, much used in parasitology.

Roman pace. See PACE, n., 2.

Roman peace. The peace imposed by Roman dominion; hence, a peace dictated by a conquering state to the conquered state.

Roman pearl. A kind of imitation pearl made of a glass bulb coated with pearl essence and filled with wax.

Roman plant. The plant Good-King-Henry.

Roman punch. A water ice made with lemon juice, sugar, beaten whites of eggs, and rum.

Roman purple. A color, bluish blue-red in hue, of high saturation and low brilliance. It is redder and of lower saturation than royal purple. Cf. COLOR.

Roman question. Ital. Hist. The problem of the relations between the Church (papacy) and the State (kingdom) in Italy (1870–1929), settled in Feb. 1929, by the establishment of the Papal State (see VATICAN CITY, in Gaz.).

Roman Republic. a The republican government of ancient Rome, generally stated as beginning 509 B.C. (expulsion of King Tarquin) and ending 31 B.C. (battle of Actium). b The republic established at Rome under French domination (1798–99).

Roman rite. The Roman liturgy. See LITURGY, 1.

Roman road. A road built by the Romans; esp., one of the four principal highways built across Britain — Watling Street, Icknield Street, Ermine Street and Fosse Way (or the Foss).

Roman sandal. A kind of shoe for women and children in which the vamp is composed of a series of straps spaced equally.

Roman school. The 16th-century painting of the mannerists in Rome, esp. of Giulio Romano and Guido Reni.

Roman sepia. The color Vandyke brown.

Ro·mansh', Ro·mansch' (rō·mänsh'; -mänsh'), n. [Grisons rumansch, rumonsch, romonsch. See 2d ROMANCE.] The Rhaeto-Romanic dialects spoken in the Grisons, Switzerland, esp. those west of the Engadine. See RHAETO-ROMANIC. — Ro·mansh', Ro·mansch', adj.

Roman snail. The European edible snail Helix pomatia.

Roman string. A kind of fine catgut string made in Italy for instruments of the violin class.

Roman Symbol. Eccl. Hist. = OLD ROMAN SYMBOL.

ro·man'tic (rō·măn'tĭk), adj. [F. romantique, fr. MF. romant. See 2d ROMANCE.] 1. Of or pertaining to romance; involving or resembling romance; hence, fanciful; extravagant; unreal; as, a romantic tale, situation, undertaking.
2. Entertaining ideas and expectations suited to a romance; inclined to view life as a romance; as, a romantic person; a romantic mind.
3. Of or pertaining to the style of the Christian and popular literature and art of the Middle Ages, as opposed to the classical antique; characterized by freedom of fancy in conception and treatment, as distinguished from classical restraint and repose; of the nature of, or appropriate to, that style; as, the romantic school of poets.

> It is the addition of strangeness to beauty, that constitutes the romantic character in art. W. Pater.

4. Characterized by picturesque strangeness or variety; suggestive of adventure; suited to romance; fantastic.

> A most romantic and pleasant place. Evelyn.

Also, fabulous; fictitious; imaginary; not actual or real.
5. Music. Of or pertaining to the school of composers characterized by romanticism (which see); designating, or resembling, their style or work; — opposed to classic.
Syn. — Fantastic; idealistic. See SENTIMENTAL.
Ant. — Prosaic, commonplace; realistic.
— ro·man'tic·ly, adv. — ro·man'tic·ness, n.

ro·man'tic (rō·măn'tĭk), n. 1. An adherent of the romantic school or style, esp. in literature; a romanticist.

> The romantic's imagination and relish for things foreign and unaccustomed. Mrs. Humphry Ward

2. A person of romantic temperament or disposition; one given to romance.

> Mr. McCunn . . . was an incurable romantic. John Buchan.

3. A trait, quality, characteristic, or feature associated with romance.

ro·man'ti·cal (rō·măn'tĭ·kŭl), adj. Romantic. — ro·man'ti·cal·ism (-ĭz'm), ro·man'ti·cal'i·ty (-kăl'ĭ·tĭ), n. — ro·man'ti·cal·ly, adv. — ro·man'ti·cal·ness, n.

ro·man'ti·cism (rō·măn'tĭ·sĭz'm), n. [Cf. F. romanticisme.] 1. Romantic principles or characteristics generally; conformity to, or practice of, the romantic style. As a critical term romanticism generally denotes the principles, characteristics, or spirit of the movement, the romantic movement, primarily in literature, for reasserting imagination and sentiment and emphasizing individualism in thought and expression as against the restrictive formality of classicism (which see). By about 1798 this movement had become a conscious reaction from classical to medieval models in Germany, England, and France, romanticism signifying more especially the spirit of chivalry, adventure, and wonder, the preoccupation with picturesque and suggestive aspects of nature, and with the passionate in life. The term is also applied to the school of musical composers in which similar qualities are paramount, their work showing more concern for passionate expressiveness than for adherence to formal canons. In literary discussion it is often opposed to realism, taken as chiefly concerned with literal fact. Cf. GOTHICISM, 2.

> He [Lessing] may be said to have begun the revolt from pseudo-classicism in poetry, and to have been thus unconsciously the founder of romanticism. Lowell.

2. Feeling for, or inclination toward, romance; romantic disposition or character.

ro·man'ti·cist (-sĭst), n. 1. One who advocates or exemplifies romanticism in literature, art, or music.
2. [cap.] Hist. A historian who magnifies the influence and predominance of Romanic, and esp. French or Roman, institutions in the development of European civilization, — opposed to Germanist.

ro·man'ti·cist, adj. Of, associated with, or devoted to the principles of, romanticism; belonging to the romantic movement.

ro·man'ti·cis'tic (-sĭs'tĭk), adj. Characterized by romanticism or the doctrines or characteristics of romanticists.

ro'man·tic'i·ty (rō'măn·tĭs'ĭ·tĭ), n. Romantic trait or characteristic.

ro·man'ti·cize (rō·măn'tĭ·sīz), v. Transitive: 1. To consider in a romantic light; to attach romantic meaning or character to; to embody in, or as in, romance.

> That strangely romanticized modern figure, the hospital nurse. Zangwill.

2. To romance about; esp., to portray in an imaginary or fictitious light; as, to romanticize one's experience.
——, Intransitive: 1. To behave in a romantic, esp. a sentimental manner; to act romantically; to seek romance.

> They [women] tend always to . . . romanticise. H. S. Canby.

2. To indulge in romantic, imaginary, or fictitious fancies; also, to write romances.

ro·man'ti·co- (rō·măn'tĭ·kō-). A combining form for romantic, denoting romantic and, as in ro·man'ti·co–he·ro'ic, ro·man'ti·co–ro·bus'tious.

ro·man'tism (rō·măn'tĭz'm), n. Romanticism. — ro·man'tist (-tĭst), n.

Roman tonsure. See TONSURE.

Roman umber. = RAW UMBER, 2.

Roman V. The Hyades; — from the shape of the asterism.

Roman violet. = PANSY VIOLET c.

Roman vitriol. Blue vitriol. See COPPER SULPHATE.

Roman willow. The common lilac (Syringa vulgaris).

Roman wormwood. a U. S. (1) The common ragweed (Ambrosia elatior). (2) A corydalis (Corydalis sempervirens). b A European wormwood (Artemisia pontica), a minor source of absinthe.

Rom'a·ny (rŏm'ȧ·nĭ), n. Also Rom'ma·ny. [Romany romano, romani, adj., gypsy, fr. rom a male gypsy, man, husband, fr. Skr. ḍoma, ḍomba, a man of a low caste, originally musicians, perh. of imitative origin. Cf. DOM caste, ROM, 2d RUM.] 1. A gypsy; also, the language of the gypsies. See GYPSY, n., 4; INDO-EUROPEAN LANGUAGES, Table.
2. Mascot blue.
— Rom'a·ny, Rom'ma·ny, adj.

Rom'a·ny rye' (rī'). One who sympathizes and associates with the gypsies, masters their language, or recognizes their customs.

Romany Rye, The. A (partly) autobiographical novel (1857) by George Borrow. It is a sequel to Lavengro.

ro·man'za (rō·măn'zȧ; -măn'tsȧ), n. [It.] 1. A romance; fiction.
2. Music. = 1st ROMANCE.

Ro'ma Quad·ra'ta (rō'mȧ kwŏd·rā'tȧ). [L.] The original city of Rome, built in the form of a square on Palatine Hill.

ro·maunt' (rō·mänt'; -mônt'), n. [MF. romant. See 2d ROMANCE.] 1. A romance, esp. one in verse; as, the "Romaunt of the Rose."
2. Any one of the Romance languages. Rare.

Romaunt of the Rose, The. Chaucer's version of the Roman de la Rose (which see).

Ro'man·hood, n. See -HOOD.
‖Ro·ma'ni (rō·mā'nĭ), n. pl. [L.] See QUIRITES.
Rom'a·ni. Var. of ROMANY.
Ro'man·ite, n. See -ITE. ro·manst'. Romanced. Ref. Sp. romantic green. = WARBLER GREEN. romantic movement. See ROMANTICISM. romantic school. Literature & Music. See ROMANTICISM.

Rom'berg sign (rŏm'bĕrg). [After M. H. Romberg (1795–1873), Ger. physician.] Med. A diagnostic sign consisting of a swaying of the body when the feet are placed close together and the eyes are closed, as in locomotor ataxia and some other diseases of the nervous system.

rom·bow'line (rŏm·bō'lĭn), rum·bow'line (rŭm-), n. [Origin uncert.] Naut. Old, condemned canvas, rope, etc., unfit for use except in chafing gear.

Rome (rōm), formerly (rōōm). [OF. & L.; OF. Rome, fr. L. Roma.] 1. a Capital of Italy. b Figuratively, the government of Italy.
2. The Roman Catholic Church or religion.
— all roads lead to Rome. A proverbial expression, probably originating when Rome was the chief city of the world. Figuratively, the same conclusion may be reached by various ways.

rome (rōm), v. i. [ME. romen; cf Sw. råma to low.] To growl; roar; groan; bellow. Obs.

Rome Beauty. Also Rome, n. Hort. A rather mediocre but long-keeping American variety of apple.

Ro'mé' de l'Isle's' law (rō'mā' dĕ lēlz'). [After J. B. L. Romé de l'Isle (1736–90), French mineralogist.] The law of constant angles.

Rome formation. [From Rome, Georgia.] Geol. A Cambrian formation of the southern Appalachians.

ro'me·ite (rō'mē·īt), n. Also romeine. [F. roméine, after the French mineralogist Romé de l'Isle.] Mineral. A hyacinth or honey-yellow antimonite of calcium in minute octahedrons.

Ro'me·o (rō'mē·ō), n. 1. A masculine proper name.
2. See ROMEO AND JULIET.
3. A man wholly given over to love; a lover.
4. A man's leather or felt slipper with a high backing quarter, high front, and U-shaped fitting near the ankle.

Ro'me·o and Ju'li·et (rō'mē·ō ănd jōō'lĭ·ĕt or jōō'lĭ·ĕt'; see JULIET). 1. A tragedy, published 1597, by Shakespeare. Romeo, the son of Montague, was passionately in love with Juliet, the daughter of Capulet. Between the houses of Montague and Capulet a deadly feud had long existed, which, though fatal to the happiness and lives of the lovers, was brought to an end by their death. See CAPULET; MERCUTIO; TYBALT.
2. An opera (1867) by Gounod entitled ‖ROMEO ET JULIETTE.

Rome penny. = PETER'S PENCE.

ro'mer·il'lo (rō'mĕr·ĭl'ō), n. [Amer. Sp., dim. of Sp. romero rosemary.] Any of several tropical American plants with an aromatic odor, most of which yield native remedies or dyes; as: a A South American herb (Heterothalamus brunioides), family Carduaceae, whose flower heads yield a yellow dye; also, this dye. b A Mexican shrubby milkweed (Asclepias linaria) yielding a violent purge. c Any of several Mexican plants of the thistle family, esp. Porophyllum scoparium and Chrysactinia mexicana.

Rome'ward (rōm'wĕrd), adj. Tending or directed toward Rome, or toward the Roman Catholic Church. — Rome'ward, Rome'wards (-wĕrdz), adv.

‖ro'mi (rō'mĭ), n. [Romany. Cf. ROMNI.] A married gypsy woman. Gypsy.

Ro'mic (rō'mĭk), n. Phonet. A system of phonetic notation devised by Henry Sweet on the basis of Ellis's palaeotype; — so called because it employs chiefly the ordinary Roman letters of the alphabet, doubled, turned, italicized, or used as digraphs or ligatures when necessary.

Ro·mip'e·tal (rō·mĭp'ē·tăl), adj. [Rome + L. petere to move toward, after centri*petal.*] Revolving about Rome, or the interests of the Roman Catholic Church. Rare.

Rom'ish (rōm'ĭsh), adj. [Cf. G. römisch, D. roomsch.] Belonging or relating to Rome, or, esp., to the Roman Catholic Church; — chiefly used in a disparaging sense; as, the Romish church, religion, ritual. — Rom'ish·ly, adv. — Rom'ish·ness, n.

rom'mack (rŏm'ăk), v. t. [Origin obscure.] To rummage. Dial. — v. i. To romp or play noisily or roughly. Dial.

Rom'ney, n., Rom'ney Marsh (rŏm'nĭ). [From Romney, or Romney Marsh, Kent, Eng.] A breed of sheep native to Kent and adapted to low-lying lands.

Rom'ney·a (rŏm'nĭ·ȧ; rŏm·nē'yȧ), n. [NL., after T. Romney Robinson, the astronomer of Armagh.] Bot. A genus of shrubs of the poppy family (Papaveraceae) having as the only known species R. coulteri, the giant poppy.

‖rom'ni (rŏm'nĭ), n. A gypsy woman.

Rom'o·la (rŏm'ō·lȧ), n. 1. The title and heroine of a novel (1863) by George Eliot, having its plot laid in Florence in the 15th century. Romola's marriage is unhappy (see TITO MELEMA), but under the influence of Savonarola she finds peace by nursing the plague-stricken.
2. Used as a fem. proper name.

romp (rŏmp), n. [From earlier ramp a bold woman, fr. ME. rampen to be boisterous. See 1st RAMP.] 1. A person, esp. a girl, who romps.
2. [From ROMP, v.] Act of romping; boisterous play or frolic; rough sport.
3. Horse Racing. A fast but unforced pace; as, to win in a romp.

romp (rŏmp), v.; ROMPED (rŏmpt); ROMP'ING. [From ROMP, n.] Intransitive: 1. To play boisterously or with much physical action; to frolic merrily.
2. Horse Racing. To run easily before the field; — often with away or in. Slang.
——, Transitive: To convey in a rough sportive way; to force in some direction with, or as if with, boisterous playfulness. Kipling.

romp'er (rŏmp'ĕr), n. 1. One who romps, or plays noisily and boisterously.
A cry like every kind of bell rang from these rompers as they raced. Masefield.
2. Usually pl. A kind of child's dress, the lower part of which is shaped like bloomers.

Chevron Rompu.

romp'ing (rŏmp'ĭng), adj. Inclined to romp; indulging in romps. — romp'ing·ly, adv.

romp'ish, adj. Inclined to romp. — romp'ish·ly, adv. — romp'ish·ness, n.

rom'pu' (rŏn'pü'; rŏm'pū), adj. [F., past part. of rompre to break, L. rumpere. See RUPTURE.] Her. Depicted as broken, usually with the broken piece pushed up; — said of a chevron, bend, etc. Cf. FRACTED, 2.

romp'y (rŏmp'ĭ), adj. Romping; roughly and boisterously playful.

Rom'u·lus (rŏm'ū·lŭs), n. [L.] The legendary founder and first king of Rome. With his twin brother Remus, he was thrown in infancy into the Tiber, but preserved and suckled by a she-wolf. He slew Remus for leaping scornfully over the wall of his new city, Rome. He was carried to heaven by his father, Mars, and was deified by the Romans. Cf. LARENTALIA, QUIRINUS. — Ro·mu'li·an (rō·mū'lĭ·ăn), adj.

Ron'ald·son old style (rŏn'ăld·sŭn). [After James Ronaldson, Scot. printer in America.] Print. A kind of old style type.
☞ This line is printed in RONALDSON OLD STYLE.

ron'ca·dor' (rŏng'kȧ·dōr'), n.; pl. -DORES (-dō'rās). [Sp., a snorer, fr. roncar to snore, fr. LL. rhonchare; — in allusion to the noise made by them on being taken from the water.] a Any of several fishes (family Sciaenidae) of the American Pacific coast, as Roncador stearnsi, Umbrina roncador, and Rhinoscion saturnus (the red roncador). b Any of certain tropical American grunts, esp. Haemulon steindachneri, of both coasts.

Ron·ca'glian (rŏng·käl'yăn), adj. Of or pert. to Roncaglia, a village near Piacenza, Italy, where Holy Roman emperors, esp. Frederick I, held diets.

ron'co (rŏng'kō), n. [Sp. See RONCADOR.] a Any species of grunt, esp. of the genus Haemulon. b Local, Texas. = CROAKER, 2 a.

rond (rŏnd), n. 1. = RAND, border, shred. Obs. exc. Dial.
2. The marshy border of a stream. Dial. Eng.

ron·dache' (rŏn·dȧsh'; rŏn'dȧsh'), n. [F.] A round shield carried by medieval foot soldiers. Hence: ron·dach'er (rŏn·dȧsh'ĕr), n.

ron'da·wel, ron'da·vel (rŏn'dȧ·vĕl), n. [S. Afr. D. rondawel.] Orig., a round native hut of grass; hence, any small house of cheap construction. S. Africa.

ronde (rŏnd; F. rōnd), n. [F., lit., round.] Print. Script with heavy strokes nearly upright; round hand.

ron'deau (rŏn'dō; rŏn·dō'), n. [F. See ROUNDEL.] 1. Pros. a = RONDEL, 4 a. b A fixed lyrical form of French origin, running on two rhymes and consisting usually of thirteen lines (commonly of eight or ten syllables) and an unrhymed refrain taken from the beginning of the first line; a poem in this form. The rhymes and refrain are generally arranged: aabba, aab ref., aabba ref.
2. A gambling game played by pushing nine balls from one corner of a pocket billiard table to the opposite corner. At least one must remain out or go in. The number, odd or even, left out decides the bets.
3. Music. = RONDO, 1.

ron'del (rŏn'dĕl; -dĕl'), n. [See RONDEAU, ROUNDEL.] 1. Also ron·delle' (rŏn·dĕl'). A circle; a round object. Obs.
2. Also ron·delle' (rŏn·dĕl'). A gem or bead cut in a thin disk pierced in the center, and, commonly, strung between larger stones or beads in a necklace.
3. Fort. A round tower, as at the foot of a bastion. Obs.
4. Pros. a A lyric form of French origin running on two rhymes and having commonly fourteen lines, of which the first two are repeated as a refrain at the seventh and eighth, and again at the thirteenth and fourteenth; a poem in this form. The lines are usually of eight or ten syllables, and the rhyme scheme, though often varied, is commonly as follows, — the capitals indicating the repeated lines: A*bba*, a*b*AB, *abba*AB. The second line of the refrain is sometimes not repeated at the end, thus shortening the form to thirteen lines. b = RONDEAU, 1 b.

ron'de·let (rŏn'dĕ·lĕt), n. [OF. See RONDEL.] Pros. A short roundel. Rare.

Ron'de·le'ti·a (rŏn'dĕ·lē'shĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., after Guillaume Rondelet, French naturalist and physician.] Bot. a A large genus of tropical American trees and shrubs of the madder family (Rubiaceae), having salver-shaped, fragrant flowers. b [not cap.] A plant or flower of this genus.

ron·delle' (rŏn·dĕl'), n. Also ron'del (rŏn'dĕl; -dĕl'). [F. See RONDEL.] 1. In limited technical uses, any round object, as a disk of wood or of glass, an iron washer, a round fortification, etc.
2. A flat circular diamond with approximately 128 facets round the edge.
3. Archaeol. Any rounded prehistoric artifact; specif., small disks cut from the bones of a human skull.
4. Armor. = ROUNDEL, 1 a.
5. Metallurgy. = RONDLE, 1.

ron'del·lier' (rŏn'dĕ·lēr'), n. Also ron'de·lier'. [F. rondelier.] A soldier who carried a roundel; also, a maker of roundels. Obs. exc. Hist.

ron·di'no (rŏn·dē'nō), ron'do·let'to (rŏn'dō·lĕt'ō), n. [Dim. of rondo.] Music. A short rondo.

ron'dle (rŏn'dĭ), n. 1. [F. rondelle. See RONDELLE.] A round mass or disk; esp., Metal., the crust or scale on molten metal in the crucible.
2. A rung of a ladder. Obs.

ron'do (rŏn'dō; rŏn·dō'), n.; pl. RONDOS (-dōz). [It. rondò, fr. F. rondeau. See RONDEAU.] 1. Music. a = 3d ROUND, 20. b The setting of a rondeau or like verse form. c An instrumental composition or movement in which the principal theme or first subject occurs at least three times in the same key, with contrasting themes in between. It is often the last movement of a sonata and its most characteristic construction is as follows: (1) principal subject; (2) second subject; (3) principal subject; (4) third subject; (5) principal subject; (6) coda.
2. = RONDEAU, 2.

Ron'dout (rŏn'dout), n. [From Rondout, New York.] Geol. A subdivision of the American Silurian. See GEOLOGY, Chart.

‖rond'-point' (rôn'pwăn'), n. [F.] A circular space or area to which several roads or paths converge.

ron'dure (rŏn'dûr), n. [F. rondeur roundness.] 1. A round; a circle. "Grave night peacefully clearing her heavenly rondure of its turbid veils." Robert Bridges.
2. Roundness; plumpness.

rone (rōn), n. [ME.; cf. ON. runnr.] A clump of briers or bushes; brushwood; a thicket. Obs. exc. Dial.

rone (rōn), n. [Cf. LG. ronne, E. run.] A rain spout. Scot.
I sklimmed up a rone pipe. John Buchan.

rone, n. [Origin obscure.] A small patch of ice. Scot.

Ron'ga (rŏng'gȧ), n. A Bantu language spoken by the Baronga. See THONGA.

ron'geur' (rôn'zhûr'), n. [F., fr. ronger to gnaw.] Surg. An instrument for removing small pieces of bone.

‖rô·nier' (rō'nyā'), n. [F.] The palmyra, cultivated in Africa for its nuts.

‖ro'nin (rō'nĭn), n.; pl. RONIN or RONINS (-nĭnz). [Jap. rōnin, fr. Chin. (Pek.) lang[4] profligate, lawless + jên[2] (old sound nin) man.] Japanese Hist. A samurai who had for any reason lost his feudal position and strayed away from the barony of his lord; an outcast; an outlaw.

ron'quil (rŏng'kĭl), n. [Sp. ronquillo slightly hoarse.] Any of several marine fishes of the northwest coast of North America much resembling the jawfishes, esp. Bathymaster signatus, a food fish of some importance.

Ron·sard'i·an (rôn·sär'dĭ·ăn), n. An adherent, follower, or imitator of Pierre de Ronsard, French poet.

Ron'sard·ize (rŏn'sär·dīz), v. i. To write poetry after the manner of Pierre de Ronsard. "The Ronsardizing coinage of words and adoption of dialectical forms." Saintsbury. — Ron'sard·ism (-dĭz'm), n. — Ron'sard·ist, n.

Rons'dorf·er (rŏnz'dôr·fĕr), n. [From Ronsdorf, Germany.] Eccl. Hist. One of a small sect of German millenarians founded by Elias Eller (d. 1750); — called also Ronsdorfian, Ellerian, and Zionite.

ron'yon (rŭn'yŭn), n. [Cf. F. rogne scab, mange.] A mangy or scabby creature. Obs. exc. Allusive.
"Aroint thee, witch!" the rump-fed ronyon cries. Shak.

rood (rōōd), n. [ME. rode, fr. AS. rōd a cross, measure of land, rod, pole; akin to OS. rōda, D. roede rod, G. rute, OHG. ruota, L. ratis raft.] 1. Eccl. A cross or crucifix; specif., with the, the cross (see CROSS, n., 2); esp., in medieval churches, a large crucifix at the entrance of the chancel, often supported on a beam (rood beam), or screen (rood screen).
2. A square measure equal, in England and Scotland, usually to one fourth of an acre, or 40 square rods; in the Union of South Africa, to 17.07 square yards, or 14.28 square meters.
3. A linear measure varying locally. a In England and Scotland, sometimes a rod (5½ yards), but usually 7 or 8 yards; also, the corresponding square measure. b In countries settled or controlled by the Dutch, as South Africa and the Dutch East Indies, 12.36 feet, or 3.77 meters.
— by the rood. By the cross; — an oath. Archaic.

rood. Obs. past tense of RIDE.

rood altar. An altar against the outer side of a rood screen.

rood arch. A central arch in a rood screen, having the rood above it. Also, sometimes, an arch between the nave and the chancel, the rood being below.

rood beam. See ROOD, n., 1.

rood clo'h. The violet or black veil used to cover the rood during Lent.

Rood Day. = HOLY-ROOD DAY a & b.

roo'de·bok' (rōō'dĕ·bŏk'; D. rō'-), n. [D. rood red + bok buck. Cf. REDBUCK.] a The impala. b A reddish duikerbok (Cephalophus patalensis).

rood goose. [See ROTT GOOSE.] The common brant. Local, Eng.

roo'dle (rōō'd'l), n. [G. rudel pack, crowd, whisk, hubbub.] Poker. One hand of a round of hands played, with special provisions, after an especially high hand, as four of a kind or a full house, has been held by any player. In a round of roodles, each deal is a jackpot; every player must ante; the deal is not passed if the pot is unopened; and the limit is usually doubled.

rood loft. Arch. A loft or gallery, in a medieval church, on which the rood and its appendages were set up to view. It was commonly placed over the rood screen, and from it the Gospel and Epistle were read. Cf. JUBE.

rood screen. See ROOD, n., 1.

rood spire or steeple. See ROOD TOWER.

rood stair. A stairway leading to the rood loft.

rood'stone' (rōōd'stōn'), n. A stone cross, or crucifix. Rare.

rood tower. Arch. A tower at the intersection of the nave and transept of a church; — when crowned with a spire it was called also rood spire or rood steeple.

rood tree. The cross. Now Rare.

roof (rōōf; 200), n. [ME. roofe, rof, fr. AS. hrōf top, roof; akin to D. roef cabin, MLG. rōf covering, penthouse, ON. hrōf boat shed, and possibly to MIr. crō stable, hut.] 1. Arch. The cover of any building, including the roofing (see ROOFING b) and all the materials and construction necessary to carry and maintain the same upon the walls or other uprights. In case of a building with Timbers in a Common Gable Roof. a a Wall Plate; b b Tie beam; c King post; d d Struts; e e Principal Rafters; f f Pole Plate; g g Purlin; h h Kidgepole, or Ridgepiece; i i Common Rafters.

Various Types of Roof. 1 Jerkinhead Roof, shown in a Swiss Chalet; 2 Pyramidal Roofs common in old churches of southern and middle Europe; the form a is usually a makeshift substitute for b; 3 Hip Roof of steep pitch, with Dormer Windows; 4 Hip-and-Valley Roof.

rom'ble (rŭm'b'l). Var. of RUMBLE. Obs. exc. Dial.
rom'ble. ✝ RUMPLE. rom'bo·he'dron. Rhombohedron. Ref. Sp. [DAL.] rom·boi'dal. Var. of RHOMBOID. rom'bos. Var. of RHOMBOS. rome. ✝ ROAM, ROOM. rome. ✝ RUM. Gypsy Cant. romebowse. ✝ RUMBOOZE.

Ro'me·li'a (rō'mē·lĭ'ȧ). D. Bib.
Ro·mem'thi-e'zer (rō·mĕm'thĭ-ē'zĕr). D. Bib. romeneye. ✝ RUMNEY.
Rome'-ren'ner, n. [Lit., Rome runner. See RUN, v.] An agent at the papal court. Obs.
ro·me'ro (rō·mā'rō), n. [Sp., lit., pilgrim.] = PILOT FISH ȧ.
Rome'scot', n. Also Rome'shot'. = PETER'S PENCE.
Rome'ist (rōm'ĭst), n. A Roman Catholic. Obs.
Rom'ized (rōm'ĭzd), adj. Romanized. Obs.
Rom'ma·ny. Var. of ROMANY. rom'ney, rom'ny. ✝ RUMNEY.
Ro·monsch' (rō·mŏnsh'). Var. of ROMANSH. romps. ✝ RUMP.

rompt. Romped. Ref. Sp.
Rom'uald, Saint (rŏm'wăld). See CAMALDOLITE.
ron. Obs. past of RUN.
ron·cet' (rŏn·sĕt'), n. [F.] = COURT-NOUÉ. [QUIL.] ron'chil (rŏng'kĭl). Var. of RONron'cho (-kō). Var. of RONCO. rong (rŏng). Var. of RUNG, n. Obs. exc. Dial.

rong. Obs. past of REIGN, RING.
Rong (rŏng), n. Also Rong'-pa' (-pä'). See LEPCHA; INDO-CHINESE LANGUAGES, Table. ronge. ✝ RUNG, n.; WRONG; obs. past part. of RING. ron'ion. Var. of RONYON. ronne. Obs. past tense of RUN.
Rons·dor'fi·an (rŏnz·dôr'fĭ·ăn), n. = RONSDORFER.

Rönt'gen. Var. of ROENTGEN. rönt'gen, rönt'gen·ism, rönt'gen·ize, rönt'gen·o·gram', etc. Vars. of ROENTGEN, ROENTGENISM, ROENTGENIZE, etc.
'roo (rōō), n. Short for KANGAROO. Colloq., Australia.
Roo'coo·yen', n. Var. of ROCOUYENNE. [Obs.] Rood'mas Day. Holy-Rood Day.

vaulted ceilings covered by an outer roof, some writers call the vault the roof, and the outer cover the roof mask. It is better, however, in such cases, to consider the vault as the ceiling only.

Various Types of Roof. 5 a Gable Roof (of Nave); b Lean-to, Shed, or Penthouse Roof (of Aisle); 6 French Roof as common in the United States, 1860–1880; 7 Gambrel Roof (with middle Chimney) common in New England and New Jersey, 1800–1860; 8 M Roof; 9 Mansard Roof as built according to French city ordinance, the wall a b being limited in height, and all construction being kept within the arc struck from o b or the 45° line at c; 10 Flat Roof, the slope not exceeding one in twenty.

2. Figuratively: a A house; dwelling. b The top or summit. 3. That which resembles, or corresponds to, the covering or the top of a house; as, the roof of a railroad car, tramcar, etc., or of a cavern, of the mouth, etc.; the ceiling of a room. 4. Mining. a The top of a drift, tunnel, adit, level, or stope; in coal mining, the overlying bed of rock. Cf. BACK. b Slate Quarrying. A passage excavated from below upwards; a raise. N. Wales.

☞ COMBINATIONS and PHRASES are:

roof beam	roof dome	roof line
roof-blockaded	roof door	roof-reaching, adj.
roof board	roof-draining, adj.	roof ridge roof bracket	roof-dwelling, adj.	roof-shaped roof-building, adj.	roof fixer	roof thatch roof-climbing, adj.	roof-haunting, adj.	roof tile roof cover	roof high	roof truss roof (rōōf; 200), v.; ROOFED (rōōft); ROOF'ING. Transitive: 1. To cover with or as with a roof; as, the boughs roofed the walk. "His hat, roofing with its flat top the pale square of his face." Galsworthy. 2. To enclose in a house; figuratively, to shelter.

Here had we now our country's honor roofed. Shak.

—, Intransitive: To dwell under the same roof; of husband and wife, to live together. Rare.

roof, adj. Pert. to or like a roof; for or working on roofs.

roof'age (rōōf'ĭj), n. Roofing material.

roof'er (rōōf'ĕr), n. 1. One who puts on or repairs roofs. 2. A plank or timber used in roofing.

roof garden. A garden on the flat roof of a building; esp., a garden where refreshments are served, on the roof of a high building, often with a stage for entertainments. — roof gardener. — roof'-gar'den-ing, n. & adj.

roof'ing, n. a Act of covering with a roof. b Materials for a roof, or forming a roof; — see COMPOSITION ROOFING. c The roof itself; shelter. d Mining. The wedging, as of a horse or car, against the top of an underground passage.

roof'ing, adj. Used, or fit or prepared for use, in building or covering roofs; as, roofing felt, slate, tile, tongs, etc.

roof ladder. See FIRE ENGINE, Illust.

roof'less, adj. 1. Having no roof; as, a roofless house. 2. Having no house or home; shelterless; homeless.

roof'let (rōōf'lĕt; -lĭt; 119), n. A small roof.

roof'man (-măn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). One who sweeps or repairs roofs.

roof mask. See ROOF, n., 1.

roof nucleus. Anat. Any of the nuclei lying in the roof of the cerebellum.

roof of the world. The plateau of the Pamir region in Asia.

roof plate. = PLATE, n., 12 a.

roof rat. See RAT, n., 1.

roof stay. A stay rod or tie rod connecting the crown sheet of a boiler with the shell.

roof'tree' (rōōf'trē'), n. The beam in the angle of a roof; the ridgepole; hence, the roof itself; also, figuratively, the home; dwelling place.

roof'ward (-wĕrd), adv. Toward the roof; toward the top.

roof'y (rōōf'ĭ), adj. Having a roof or roofs.

roo'i-bok', roo'ye-bok' (rōō'ĭ-bŏk'), n. [S. Afr. D. rooibok, lit., red buck.] The impala.

roo'i-nek' (rōō'ĭ-nĕk'), n. [S. Afr. D.] Lit., red neck; — a term of contempt for a Britisher. S. Africa.

rook (rŏŏk), n. [ME. rok, fr. OF. roc, fr. Per. rukh. Cf. ROC.] Chess. A piece moving parallel to the sides of the board across any number of unoccupied squares. See 1st CHESS, 1. Abbr., R (no period).

rook (rŏŏk), n. [ME. rook, rok, fr. AS. hrōc; akin to OHG. hruoh, ON. hrōkr, Dan. raage, to Gr. krōzein to croak, caw, and to L. cornix a crow; of imitative origin. See RAVEN, n.] 1. An abundant European corvine bird (Corvus frugilegus) about the size of the American crow. The adult is glossy black, with the skin about the base of the bill bare, scabrous, and whitish in old birds. It is highly gregarious, nesting in communities, and somewhat migratory.

Common Rook. (1/10)

2. The ruddy duck. Local, U. S.

3. A trickish, rapacious fellow; a cheat; a sharper. Wycherley.

4. An easy victim for sharpers; a dupe. Slang. Obs.

rook (rŏŏk), v. t. & i.; ROOKED (rŏŏkt); ROOK'ING. To cheat; to defraud by cheating. Milton.

rook (rŏŏk). Var. of ROKE, vapor.

rook. Var. of RUCK, to crouch.

rook'-coat'ed (rŏŏk'-), adj. Coated in black, the color of a rook; wearing black clothes.

rook'er (rŏŏk'ĕr), n. A raker for a baker's oven.

rook'er, n. A sharper; swindler.

rook'er-ied (-ĭd), adj. Furnished with a rookery; frequented by rooks.

rook'er-y (rŏŏk'ĕr-ĭ), n.; pl. -ERIES (-ĭz). 1. The breeding place of a colony of rooks; also, the rooks. Also, a breeding place of other gregarious birds, as herons, penguins, etc. 2. The breeding ground of seals, esp. of fur seals. 3. A dilapidated building with many rooms and occupants; a cluster of dilapidated or mean buildings; as, the city slums contain rookeries which must be replaced. 4. Confusion; rumpus; disturbance. Dial. & Slang.

rook'et-ty-coo' (rŏŏk'ĕ-tĭ-kōō'; rŏŏk'ĭ-), v. i. [Imitative.] To coo; also, to bill and coo. Scot.

rook'ie, rook'y (rŏŏk'ĭ), n. [From RECRUIT.] A raw recruit; hence, a novice; beginner. Slang.

rook'ish (rŏŏk'ĭsh), adj. Rooky.

rook's tour (rŏŏks). A series of moves of the rook, by which it occupies successively each of the squares of the chessboard.

rook'y (rŏŏk'ĭ), adj. 1. Full of, or abounding in, rooks. Rare.

Light thickens; and the crow Makes wing to the rooky wood. Shak.

2. Swindling; rascally. Old Slang. 3. Untidy; disheveled. Local, U. S. rook'y, adj. [From rook, var. of ROKE.] Foggy; roky. Scot. & N. of Eng.

rool (rōōl), v. i. [Cf. RUFFLE.] To crumple; ruffle. Rare.

room (rōōm; 200; 277), n. [ME. roum, rum, space, fr. AS. rūm; akin to OS. & ON. rūm, D. ruim, G. raum, OHG. rūm, to the adj., AS. rūm spacious, D. ruim, ON. rūmr, Goth. rūms, and to L. rus country, Av. ravah open space. Cf. RUMMAGE, RURAL.] 1. Extent of space, great or small; compass; esp., unobstructed space; space which may be occupied by, or devoted to, any object; as, there is not room for a house; to make room for one to pass. "Infinite riches in a little room." Marlowe. 2. A particular portion of space appropriated for occupancy; a place to sit, stand, or lie; a seat. Now Rare.

When thou art bidden of any man to a wedding, sit not down in the highest room. Luke xiv. 8.

3. Space enclosed or set apart by a partition; an apartment or chamber; — often in combination; as, a bed*room;* bath*room;* lunch*room;* a state*room* in a ship or railroad car; also, the company present in a chamber; the people, collectively, in the apartment; as, the whole room applauded. 4. Place or position; office; rank; post; station. Obs.

Neither that I look for a higher room in heaven. Tyndale.

5. Place or station formerly occupied by another; hence, place, or stead; as, to eat fish in room of meat. Obs. exc. Dial. 6. Possibility of admission; ability to admit; opportunity; fit occasion; as, to leave room for hope; little room for disagreement. 7. A distinct holding or portion of land, as a field, farm, or the like. Scot. 8. Coal Mining. A chamber in which coal is mined; called also breast, stall. See MINE, Illust. 9. Salt Making. A large evaporating pan. 10. Shipbuilding. See ROOM AND SPACE.

Syn. — ROOM, CHAMBER, APARTMENT. ROOM is the word in ordinary use; CHAMBER is chiefly elevated or poetical; APARTMENT now suggests esp. a room or suite of rooms rented or for rent.

— the room. Exchanges. The portion of an exchange where actual trading is conducted; the trading floor.

room (rōōm; 200), v. i.; ROOMED (rōōmd); ROOM'ING. Chiefly U. S. To occupy a room or rooms; to lodge; as, they roomed together. — v. t. To accommodate with lodgings; to give room to.

room, adj. [AS. rūm. See ROOM, n.] Spacious; roomy; also, empty. Obs. exc. Scot.

No roomer harbor in the place. Chaucer.

room, adv. Chiefly Naut. At a distance; far; wide; also, sometimes, off the wind; — usually in comparative with of or with; as, you must sail roomer of the shore. Obs.

room, v. t. [AS. rūmian. See ROOM, adj.] To clear from encumbrance; to make roomy or void; enlarge. Now Rare.

-room. A combining form of the noun room, often written separately, as in:

anteroom	dressing room	reading room baggage room	elbowroom	reception room bagroom	engine room	saleroom ballroom	fireroom	salesroom barroom	footroom	sample room bathroom	foreroom	schoolroom bedroom	greenroom	sea room bookroom	grillroom	shipping room breakfast room	guard room	showroom cardroom	guest room	sickroom chartroom	gun room	sinkroom checkroom	headroom	sitting room chillroom	houseroom	smoking room classroom	lightroom	stateroom cloakroom	living room	storeroom clockroom	lunchroom	strong room clubroom	messroom	sunroom coatroom	music room	taproom coffeeroom	newsroom	tearoom
conference room	orderly room	tiring room cookroom	paint room	trunk room courtroom	playroom	waiting room darkroom	poolroom	wardroom desk room	pressroom	workroom dining room	proofroom	writing room room'age (rōōm'ĭj), n. Space; room. Rare.

room'-and-pil'lar, adj. Coal Mining. = bord-and-pillar, under BORD, n.

room and space. Shipbuilding. The distance from one side of a rib to the corresponding side of the next rib (space being the distance between two ribs, in the clear, and room the width of a rib).

room clerk. In a hotel, lodginghouse, or the like, the clerk in charge of the assignment of rooms to patrons.

roomed (rōōmd), adj. Containing, or furnished with, rooms; — often in combination; as, a nine-roomed house.

room'er (rōōm'ĕr), n. A lodger; one who rents a room or rooms in a house. Chiefly U. S.

room'er. Compar. of ROOM, adj., adv.

room'ful (rōōm'fŏŏl; -f'l), adj. Roomy; capacious. Rare.

room'ful (-fŏŏl), n.; pl. -FULS (-fŏŏlz). As much or many as a room will hold; as, a roomful of men; also, the persons or objects in a room; as, the whole roomful.

room'ing house. A house in which furnished rooms, or apartments, are let to lodgers; a lodginghouse.

room'keep'er (rōōm'kēp'ĕr), n. 1. One who occupies a room, esp. a tenant. Rare in U. S. 2. One who keeps closely to a room, as an invalid.

room'mate' (rōōm'māt'), n. One of two or more occupying the same room or rooms.

room'stead (-stĕd), n. A lodging; a place or space; room. Now Rare.

roomth (rōōmth; 206), n. [Cf. ME. rumthe, rimthe, AS. rȳmth. See ROOM, adj. & n.] Room; place; space. Obs. exc. Dial.

roomth'y (rōōm'thĭ), adj. Roomy; spacious. Obs. exc. Dial. — roomth'i-ly (-thĭ-lĭ), adv. — roomth'i-ness, n.

room'y (rōōm'ĭ), adj.; ROOM'I-ER (-ĭ-ĕr); ROOM'I-EST. 1. Having ample room; spacious; as, a roomy mansion. 2. Large-framed; — said of animals, esp. females.

Syn. — Commodious, spacious.

Ant. — Small, confined, cramped.

— room'i-ly, adv. — room'i-ness, n.

room'y, n. Roommate. Slang, U. S.

roon (rōōn), n. [See AROON.] Treasure; darling. Anglo-Ir.

roon (rōōn), roond (rōōnd). Scot. & N. of Eng. vars. of ROUND.

roon (rōōn). Var. of RAND, border, shred. Scot.

roor'back (rŏŏr'băk), n. Also, formerly, roor'bach. A defamatory falsehood published for political effect. U. S.

☞ The word originated in 1844, when there was published, to the detriment of James K. Polk, then a candidate for President, an extract purporting to be from Roorback's Tour through the Western and Southern States in 1836.

roo'sa (rōō'sȧ), n. [Hind. rūsā.] An Indian grass (Cymbopogon martini) from which palmarosa oil is distilled.

roose (rōōz; Scot. also rūz), n. & v. [ON. hrōs.] Boast; vaunt; praise. Obs. exc. Dial.

Roo'se-velt'i-an (rō'zĕ-vĕl'tĭ-ăn), n. An adherent or admirer of Theodore Roosevelt (1858–1919), President of the United States 1901–09, or of the policies associated with him; a believer in vigor and direct action in national policies. — Roo'se-velt'i-an, adj.

Roo'se-velt trout (rō'zĕ-vĕlt). [After Theodore Roosevelt.] See GOLDEN TROUT a.

roost (rōōst), n. [ME. rooste, fr. AS. hrōst roost, perch, the wooden framework of a roof; akin to OS. hrōst, MD. roest hen roost, Goth. hrot roof, OSlav. krada pile of wood, pyre, MHG. rāz. Cf. ROOSTER.] 1. A pole or other support on which fowls rest, esp. at night; a perch; also, a place where any birds customarily roost. 2. Hence, figuratively, a resting place; a lodging. 3. A collection of fowls roosting together.

— at roost. On a perch or roost; hence, retired to rest. — to rule the roost. Sometimes erroneously used for rule the roast. See under RULE, v. t.

roost (rōōst), v.; ROOST'ED; ROOST'ING. Intransitive: 1. To sit, rest, or sleep, as fowls on a pole, limb of a tree, etc.; to perch. 2. To lodge; to spend the night; rest; sleep. Now Dial.

—, Transitive: To lodge; perch; give a resting place to.

roost (rōōst). Var. of ROUST, a tide.

roost (rōōst), roost'y (rōōs'tĭ). Scot. & N. of Eng. vars. of RUST, RUSTY.

roost cock. A cock; a rooster. Now Rare.

roost'ed (rōōs'tĕd; -tĭd; 119), adj. Perched on, or as on, a roost.

roost'er (rōōs'tĕr), n. [From ROOST, v.] 1. a U. S. The male of the domestic fowl; a cock. b A bird that roosts. 2. A cocky, strutting, active person. Slang. 3. Logging. = GOOSENECK, 4.

roost'er-fish' (-fĭsh'), n. The papagallo.

rooster heads. The shooting star (Dodecatheon meadia).

roost'ers (rōōs'tĕrz), n. pl. a A common North American blue violet (Viola palmata). b The white adder's-tongue Erythronium albidum.

root (rōōt; 200), v. [ME. wrooten, wroten, fr. AS. wrōtan, akin to MLG. wrōten, MD. wroeten, ON. rōta, and to AS. wrōt snout, G. rüssel. Cf. 4th ROUT.] Intransitive: 1. To turn up the earth with the snout, as swine; formerly, to push with the snout. 2. Hence, to seek for favor or advancement by low arts or groveling servility; to fawn servilely. Rare. 3. To poke around; to dig down into some mass in order to find something; as, to root about among his papers.

—, Transitive: 1. To turn up, or to dig out, with the snout; as, the swine roots the earth. 2. With up or out, to dig with the snout; as, the swine roots up truffles; hence, to get by digging or poking around; as, he rooted his cap out from under the cushions.

— root in. Mach. = HOG IN.

root, n. Act of rooting with the snout; act of poking around or digging; — chiefly in the phrase on the root. Dial. Eng.

root (rōōt; 200), v. i. [Prob. fr. ROUT to shout, roar.] To shout for, or otherwise noisily applaud or encourage, a contestant, as in sports; hence, to wish earnestly for the success of someone or the happening of some event; to speak out as champion or strong partisan; — with for; as, the crowd rooted for the home team. Slang, U. S.

root, n. [ME. roote, rote, fr. AS. rōt, fr. ON. rōt. See WORT.] 1. Bot. In the higher plants (ferns and seed plants), a portion of the plant body bearing neither leaves nor reproductive organs, but provided with an apical growing point and functioning as an organ of absorption, an aerating organ, a food reservoir, or a means of mechanical support. In most plants the root originates as the lower extremity of the hypocotyl. Perennial roots exhibit the same tissue systems as the stem, the stele being continuous. They differ in the mode of development of the procambium strands, the prominent thickened endodermis, and the presence of a protective cap (rootcap or calyptra) over the meristem of the growing point. The mode of branching is normally acropetal; but adventitious roots may arise on other portions of the plant body (see ADVENTITIOUS ROOTS). The roots of epiphytes are wholly aerial (see AERIAL ROOTS). In the lower plants most functions of roots are performed by rhizoids. Cf. STEM, ROOT HAIR. 2. Popularly, any subterranean part of a plant, whether consisting of a true root or of a bulb, tuber, rootstock, or roof'like', adj. See -LIKE. rooft. Roofed. Ref. Sp.

roof'wise', adv. See -WISE.
Rookh, Lalla. See LALLA ROOKH. rook'let, n. See -LET.
rook'like', adj. See -LIKE. rookt. Rooked. Ref. Sp. rook'us. Var. of RUCKUS. roo-mal'. Var. of RUMAL. roomd. Roomed. Ref. Sp. room'ie. Var. of ROOMY, roommate. Slang. room'less, adj. See -LESS. room'let, n. See -LET.
room'-rid'den, adj. See -RIDDEN. room'some, adj. Roomy; capacious. Obs. room trader. Stock Exchanges. = FLOOR TRADER. room'ward, adv. Naut. = ROOM, [adv.
roop. † ROPE. [Eng. of ROUP. roop (rōōp), n. & v. Scot. & dial. roop'ie, roop'y. Vars. of ROUPY. Scot. & Dial. Eng. roop'it. Var. of ROUPIT. Scot.
Roo'se-velt (rō'zĕ-vĕlt), n. See SHIP, Table.
roost'er-hood, n. See -HOOD. roost'er-less, adj. See -LESS. roost'er-ship, n. See -SHIP.

other modified stem; specif., any large, fleshy, edible root or rootlike organ, as a carrot, turnip, radish, potato, etc. Also, the substance, material, or tissue of a root or roots; — often used in compounds; as, sugar made from beet*root*.

Roots, 1. 1 Conical; 2 Napiform; 3 Fusiform; 4 Fibrous; 5 Moniliform; 6 Nodulose; 7 Tuberous; 8 Adventitious; 9 Prop; 10 Aerial. 1, 2, 3 are Taproots.

3. That which resembles a root in position or function, esp. as a source of nourishment or support; that from which anything proceeds as if by growth or development; as, the root of a nail, a cancer, and the like. Specif.: a An ancestor or progenitor; and hence, an early race; a stem.

The roots out of which sprang two distinct people. Locke.

b The part of an organ by which it is attached, as that part of a tooth in the socket or alveolus; also, any of the fangs into which this sometimes divides. c The cause or occasion by which anything is brought about; the source.

The love of money is a root of all kinds of evil.
1 Tim. vi. 10 (Rev. Ver.).

d Rare. A foundation; basis; ground. "The root of his opinion." Shak. e The lowest place, position, or part; the bottom; hence, the fundamental or essential point or part; as, let us get to the root of the matter.

Deep to the roots of hell. Milton.

4. Anat. The proximal end of a nerve; esp., one or more bundles of nerve fibers joining the cranial and spinal nerves with their respective nuclei and gray columns. The dorsal root of a spinal nerve is composed of sensory fibers; the ventral root, of motor fibers.

5. Astrol. & Chron. The time from which to reckon in making calculations; the state of the heavens at the time of birth or a figure of such; the initial time, or epoch, as of a movable feast.

When a root is of a birth yknowe [known]. Chaucer.

6. Hydraulics. The part of a weir or dam next to the bank.

7. Mach. a That part of a tooth between the pitch circle and a circle touching the bottoms of the spaces on each side. See TOOTH, n., 2, Illust. b The bottom surface, joining adjacent sides, of a screw thread.

8. Math. a A quantity which, taken as a factor a number of times (indicated by the index), produces another quantity; thus, either $+3$ or -3 is a second root of 9, because either taken twice as a factor produces 9; also $4, -4, 4i, -4i$ are all fourth roots of 256, which is the fourth power of each. Power and root are correlative: an nth root of q is that whose nth power is q. There are n real or imaginary nth roots of any q, but only one nth power of any q, n being an integer. b Any value that, substituted for the unknown quantity in an equation, or in a congruence, satisfies the equation, etc. An equation of nth degree has n such roots.

9. Moham. Law. The first class of residuaries, consisting of the direct lineal male ancestors.

10. Music. The tone from whose harmonics, or overtones, a chord is composed; often simply the lowest tone of a chord in its normal position.

11. Philol. a The simple element inferred hypothetically as the basis from which a word or words are derived by phonetic change or by one or more extensions of various kinds, such as composition and the addition of prefixes, suffixes, and inflectional endings; the simple element inferred as common to all the words of a group in a language or in related languages. Thus the root sta appears in Latin with the personal ending in stamus we stand; with reduplication and personal ending in sistimus we place; with a suffix in statio standing place; with a prefix in constituere to establish. So also hold in English beholdere, withholding. b Obs. A simple primitive form assumed to have existed, at some past (usually prehistoric) time, as a word, and from which derivatives have been developed by composition or by the addition of prefixes, infixes, suffixes, or inflectional endings.

12. Welding. The bottom zone of the space provided for a fusion weld.

☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are:

root-bruising	root-digging	root-inwoven
root-built	root-eating	root-pruned root-cutting	root-feeding	root-torn root-devouring

root (rōōt; 200), adj. Pert. to a, or the, root; made of roots.

root (rōōt; 200), v.; ROOT'ED; ROOT'ING. Intransitive: 1. To fix the root; to enter the earth, as roots; to take root and begin to grow.

2. To be or become firmly fixed or established.

—, Transitive: 1. To plant and fix deeply in or as in the earth; to implant firmly; hence, to make deep or radical; to establish; — used chiefly in past part.; as, rooted trees; rooted dislike.

2. To tear up by the root; to eradicate; to remove entirely; — with up, out, or away; as, we must root up these misconceptions from the minds of men.

The Lord rooted them out of their land. Deut. xxix. 28.

3. Hort. To cause to grow roots; as, to root cuttings in sand.

Syn. — Settle, implant. Ant. — Uproot, extirpate.

root (rōōt). Scot. var. of ROUT, to roar, noise.

-root (-rōōt; 200). A combining form of the noun root, as in:

abscessroot	choyroot	manyroot
aloeroot	chrisroot	muskroot alroot	cinnamonroot	musquashroot
alumroot	cloverroot	nerveroot amyroot	clubroot	orangeroot aniseroot	cocoroot	orrisroot appleroot	comfortroot	paintroot
arrowroot	coralroot	papooseroot baboonroot	cornroot	pepperroot
babroot	costusroot	pigroot balsamroot	crinkleroot	pinkroot bathroot	dragonroot	puttyroot beaverroot	eyeroot	queenroot beetroot	feverroot	rabbitroot belderroot	fingerroot	rattleroot
bigroot	fitroot	redroot
birthroot	flagroot	roseroot
biscuitroot	gingerroot	scrofularoot bitterroot	goatroot	shamroot blackroot	gophrroot	snakeroot
bloodroot	gravelroot	soaproot boloroot	grubroot	squawroot breadroot	heartroot	starchroot
brierroot	hellroot	tallowroot
broomroot	inkroot	taproot cancerroot	jaundiceroot	whiteroot
cankerroot	knotroot	wormroot chayroot	liferoot	yawroot chinaroot	manroot	yellowroot

root'age (rōōt'ĭj), n. [From ROOT to fix the root or eradicate.] 1. A taking root, or a being rooted; firm rooting or establishment.

2. Uprooting; extirpation. Rare.

root and branch. Every part; hence, wholly; completely; as, to destroy an error root and branch. — root'-and-branch', adj. — root'-and-branch'er, n.

root and branch men. Radical reformers; — applied [usually cap.] to the English Independents (1641). See RADICAL, n., 2. root beer. A carbonated beverage made with the extracts from various roots. See 1st BEER, 2. root borer. An insect or insect larva which bores into the roots of plants; as:

a The large larva of a beetle (Prionus laticollis) of the family Cerambycidae which infests the roots of the grapevine and of various trees. b The larva of any of certain moths, as Memythrus polistiformis, which bores in grapevine roots.

Root Borer a.

root'-bound', adj. Hort. Pot-bound; also, having the roots matted as if pot-bound.

root canal. = pulp canal, under PULP CAVITY.

root'cap' (rōōt'kăp'), n. Bot. The cushion of epidermal tissue covering the apex of most roots, serving to protect the active meristematic cells behind it. It enables the root to penetrate the soil without injury to the growing point.

root cell. = RHIZOID (of an alga).

root circle or line. Mach. = DEDENDUM CIRCLE.

root climber. Bot. A plant which climbs by its adventitious roots, as the common ivy, many tropical aroids, figs, etc.

root collar. = CROWN, n., 15 b.

root crop. Any crop grown for its enlarged roots, as turnips, sugar beets, sweet potatoes, etc.

root cutting. Hort. A section of the root used in propagating certain plants, as the blackberry.

root determinative. See DETERMINATIVE, n., 3.

root disease. Plant Pathol. Any disease affecting the root system or attacking the plant primarily through the roots; specif., a stunting and deterioration of sugar cane, caused by unfavorable soil conditions and attacks of Pythium butlerii.

root division. Hort. The propagation of plants by dividing their root stocks, or their bud-containing crowns.

root'ed (rōōt'ĕd; -ĭd; 200), adj. a Having taken root; firmly implanted, as in the heart; deep-seated. "A rooted sorrow." Shak. b Zool. Specif., designating teeth which develop a contracted root or roots, nearly closing the pulp cavity and preventing further growth. Cf. ROOTLESS. — root'ed-ly, adv. — root'ed-ness, n.

-root'ed. A combining form of rooted, denoting having (so many or such) roots, as in:

black-rooted	many-rooted	stump-rooted bulbous-rooted	own-rooted	taprooted bundle-rooted	perennial-rooted	thick-rooted deep-rooted	red-rooted	tight-rooted double-rooted	round-rooted	tuberous-rooted fibrous-rooted	shallow-rooted	turnip-rooted long-rooted	simple-rooted	well-rooted root'er (rōōt'ĕr), n. One who roots, or applauds. Slang, U. S.

root'er (rōōt'ĕr; 200), n. 1. One that takes root. Rare.

2. One that roots, or tears up by the roots.

3. Agric. Mach. A heavy plowing device for tearing up roadbeds and the like.

root'er-y (-ĭ), n. A pile of roots and soil, set with plants. R.

root'fast' (rōōt'făst'; 83), adj. Firmly rooted. Rare. — -fast'ness, n. Rare.

root fly. The cabbage fly.

root fungus. Any fungus (as a saprophyte, parasite, or symbiont) typically growing upon or associated with the roots of a plant. Cf. MYCORHIZA.

root gall. a Any abnormal enlargement or swelling of or on the root of a plant, commonly due to a parasitic organism. b Root knot.

root grafting. Hort. Grafting by inserting the cion upon the root of the stock. A whip graft is commonly employed for this purpose. Cf. GRAFTAGE, Illust. (c).

root hair. Bot. A hairlike tubular outgrowth of the epidermis found commonly near the apex of a growing rootlet, performing the work of absorption and being continually renewed.

root'-hard'y, adj. Hort. Hardy by virtue of a hardy root or root stock. See HARDY, 5.

root'hold' (rōōt'hōld'), n. Hort. Anchorage by means of roots, esp. as sufficient to ensure adequate water supply and permanence.

root knot. A disease of many kinds of wild or cultivated plants caused by an eelworm (Caconema, syn. Heterodera, radicicola), producing characteristic enlargements on the roots, hence the name, and stunting the growth; — called also big root, root gall.

roo'tle (rōōt'l), v. i. & t. [Freq. of 1st ROOT.] To root as a pig; burrow; grub. Dial. Eng.

root leaf. Bot. = BASAL LEAF.

root'less, adj. Destitute of roots; specif., Zool., designating teeth which retain a pulp cavity widely open at the bottom, permitting an abundant supply of nutriment to the pulp and a growth of the tooth throughout life. — root'less-ness, n.

root'let (rōōt'lĕt; -lĭt; 119), n. a A small root; one of the ultimate divisions of a growing root; a radicel. b A rhizoid.

root'ling (-lĭng), n. Rootlet.

root maggot. The legless larva of any of numerous insects that feed in roots, esp. of certain small flies, as the cabbage fly.

root'-mean'-square', n. Math. The square root of the arithmetical mean of the squares of a set of numbers. Abbr. RMS, R.M.S., r.m.s., rms. — root'-mean'-square', adj.

root-mean-square deviation. Statistics. = STANDARD DEVIATION. See DEVIATION, 7.

root-mean-square volts (or amperes). Elec. The square root of the arithmetical mean of the squares of the instantaneous values of the volts (or amperes) of an alternating current for one complete cycle. Unless otherwise specified, the numerical value of an alternating current refers to its r.m.s. value. The r.m.s. of a sinusoidal wave is the maximum, or crest, value of the wave divided by $\sqrt{2}$. One root-mean-square ampere of alternating current will produce the same quantity of heat as one ampere of continuous current. Called also effective value and virtual value, particularly in Great Britain.

root nodule. a A swelling on the root of certain plants, usually not legumes, caused by nitrogen-fixing organisms. b A root tubercle.

root of scarcity. The mangel-wurzel.

root of unity. Math. Any solution, real or complex, of the equation $x^n - 1 = 0$ where n is an integer.

root parasite. A plant wholly parasitic on the root of its host, as the broomrape, rabbitwood, etc. — root'-par'a-sit'ic, adj. — root'-par'a-sit-ism, n.

root pocket. Bot. The prominent rootcap sheathing the aquatic roots of the duckweed.

root pressure. The force, largely osmotic, by which water rises into the stems of plants from the roots. It was long, but erroneously, supposed completely to account for the ascent of sap to the top of the tallest trees.

root'-prune', v. t. Hort. To prune the roots of (woody plants), to check top growth or to develop a mass of small fibrous roots.

root pulper. A machine for reducing root crops to a pulp for stock feed.

root rot. Plant Pathol. Any of certain diseases characterized by a decay of the roots, as those caused by such fungi as Armillaria mellea, Ozonium omnivorum, Thielavia basicola, etc.

root sheath. 1. Bot. a A many-layered epidermal sheath surrounding certain aerial roots, as the velamen in epiphytic orchids. b = COLEORHIZA.

2. Anat. The epidermic lining of a hair follicle, comprising two principal layers of cells, the inner, and the outer, root sheath respectively.

root'stalk' (rōōt'stôk'; 200), n. A rhizome.

root'stock' (rōōt'stŏk'; 200), n. 1. A rhizome; hence, a source; origin.

2. Zool. The hydrorhiza of a hydroid.

root sucker. A shoot springing from the roots, as in wild plum, raspberries, etc. Cf. SUCKER, 12.

root symbiosis. The mycorhizal association of bacteria and fungi with the roots of certain plants. See MYCORHIZA.

root tip. = ROOTCAP.

root tone. Music. = FUNDAMENTAL TONE.

root tubercle. Bot. One of the small nodules or swellings produced on roots of legumes by nitrogen-fixing bacteria.

root vole. Any of various voles of the genus Microtus; esp., a Siberian species (M. oeconomus) which stores up roots and tubers. root'walt' (rōōt'wôlt'; -wält'), v. t. [root, n. + walt, v. t.] To uproot; tear up by the roots. Dial. Eng.

root weevil. a Any of several Australian weevils of the genus Leptops, esp. L. squalidus, whose larva bores in the roots of the apple and pear. b = WATER WEEVIL.

Root Weevil (Leptops squalidus). Nat. size.

root'worm' (rōōt'wûrm'), n. a Any of numerous insect larvae that feed on the roots of plants, as the corn rootworm. b Any of certain nematode worms that infest roots.

root'y (rōōt'ĭ; 200), adj.; ROOT'I-ER (-ĭ-ĕr); ROOT'I-EST. Full of roots; like, or of the quality of, a root or roots. — root'i-ness (-ĭ-nĕs; -nĭs; 119), n.

root'y, n. Bread. Brit. Army Slang.

roove (rōōv), n. & v. [ON. rō the rivet or clinch of a nail.] Rivet. Scot.

rop'a-ble, rope'a-ble (rōp'ä-b'l), adj. 1. Capable of being roped.

2. Of a horse or bullock, needing to be roped or brought under control; unruly; hence, intractable; savage. Australasia.

rope (rōp), n. [ME. rope, ro(o)p, rap, fr. AS. rāp; akin to D. reep, G. reif ring, hoop, in OHG. also rope, ON. reip rope, Sw. rep, Dan. reb, Goth. skaudar*aip* latchet. Cf. STIRRUP.] 1. A large, stout cord made of strands of fiber or wire twisted or braided together; esp., such a cord of one inch or more in circumference, or, according to authorities on testing materials, of ¼ to 5 inches in diameter. The fibers chiefly used in ropemaking are hemp, Manila hemp, sisal, jute, coir, flax, and cotton. Steel is usually employed for wire ropes. A rope differs from a cord, line (except in nautical usage), or string, only in its size. See CORDAGE, Illust.; WIRE ROPE.

2. A hangman's noose; hence, punishment or death by hanging; as, they were persecuted with fagot and rope.

3. A locally varying measure; a rood. See ROOD, 2 & 3. Brit.

4. A lasso; lariat. Western U. S.

5. A row or string consisting of a number of things united, as by braiding, twining, etc.; as, a rope of pearls, shells, daisies, onions.

---

root'like', adj. See -LIKE.
root'-neck', n. = CROWN, n., 15 b. root'ward, adv. See -WARD. root'wise', adv. See -WISE.
root'-wise', adj.
rooves (rōōvz). Dial. pl. of ROOF. roo'ye-bok'. Var. of ROOIBOK. ro·pal'ic (rō-păl'ĭk), adj. Var. of ROPALIC. [Obs.] ro'pand, adj. Crashing; beating.
ro·pa'ni (rō-pä'nē), n. sing. & pl. [Nepali.] See MEASURE, Table.

N O P Q R

6. A viscous or glutinous formation in a ropy liquid, as by a twisted fabric; as, the treatment of the fabric in the rope stretches the cloth; also, such a formation in bread (see ROPY BREAD).
7. pl. Boxing. The cords, usually three in number, stretched one above another at intervals of about eighteen inches, marking off a prize ring.

☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are:

rope-bound	rope-girt	rope-reeved rope-closing	rope-laying	rope-shod rope-driven	ropemaking	rope-spinning rope-driving	rope-muscled	rope-stock rope-fastened	rope-pulling	rope-stropped

— a rope of sand. Something of no cohesion or stability; a feeble union or tie. — give one, or let one have, rope. To give one liberty or license; to let one go at will or unchecked. Colloq. — on the ropes. Boxing. Holding to the ropes around the ring; hence, Slang, in a helpless condition; as, to have one on the ropes. — the ropes. The way to get around and do things, or get things done; — used in various phrases to indicate a sophisticated knowledge of the ways of the world; as, to know, learn, be on to, show (one), the ropes. Slang.

rope (rōp), v.; ROPED (rōpt); ROP'ING (rōp'ĭng). Transitive: 1. To bind, fasten, or tie, with a rope or cord.
2. To connect or fasten together, as a party of mountain climbers, with a rope.
3. To sew a rope on the edge of, as a boltrope on a sail.
